Supervisors Proceed With Accommodations for 'No Excuse' Absentee Voting

By Connie Morrison

Voters and public safety communications were on the minds of Accomack supervisors Wednesday night as they considered two major initiatives.

The first was characterized by supervisors as an unfunded mandate from the state: renovating a building to house the county registrar to accommodate the anticipated increase in absentee voters after the Virginia General Assembly approved a "no excuse" absentee voting law this year that goes into effect for the 2020 general elections next.

"The building and associated equipment must be in place much earlier than that," said County Administrator Mike Mason.

The traditional absentee ballot - with an excuse and beginning the 45th day before the election - will still exist. But there will also be an "no excuse" method closer to Election Day.

According to a summary of the law, any registered voter can vote "by absentee ballot in person beginning on the second Saturday immediately preceding any election in which he is qualified to vote without providing a reason or making prior application for an absentee ballot."

Higher absentee voting is anticipated under the new system, and counties around the state are under the gun to find facilities that are adequate in space and accommodations for the mobility challenged.

"We've been talking about this for a number of months now," said Mason. "The current registrar's office is not equipped, nor is it large enough to handle the anticipated additional turnout that we're going to get with no excuse voting."

The registrar's office, now in the circuit court building, will move to the former parks and recreation building at Saw Mill Park.

As far as paying for the project, there is good news and bad news. "This is an unbudgeted expense," said Mason, but he was able to take some of the sting out of that news by informing supervisors that the county ended the 2019 fiscal year with a $3 million surplus.

Compared to prior years, "We're in better shape, even with this issue in

'Free Lunch for All' Program Back on the Menu for Consideration in Northampton

By Stefanie Jackson

The "free lunch for all" program is back on the menu for the Northampton school board's consideration as of its Nov. 14 meeting.

"This issue's just not going away, and if the board of supervisors is willing to ensure us that we're not going to lose that money ... I don't see any other way around it," said Superintendent Eddie Lawrence.

The school board was criticized by parents, community members, and county supervisors for the decision made in June not to implement a program of the U.S. Department of Agriculture (USDA) called the Community Eligibility Provision (CEP), which provides free breakfast and lunch to all students at qualifying schools, with no applications to fill out.

Schools may participate if at least 40% of their students qualify through direct certification, meaning they receive government assistance such as food stamps or Medicaid.

As of 2019, 58.5% of Northampton students are directly certified.

But there's a catch. Northampton schools would need 62.5% of its students to be directly certified for the division to receive 100% reimbursement front of us to solve," Mason said.

The $240,288 price tag for the new registrar's office includes a 20% contingency for overruns.

Supervisor Harrison Phillips asked if the project would yield a permanent location for the registrar.

"We're already starting to discuss what we'll do with her space," quipped Mason.

"Staff has looked at a number of places where we could go. This, by far, is the best place that we could find," said Supervisor Reneta Major. "I don't think it's too far off the beaten path."

The new location is about 1.1 miles, a 3-minute drive or a 22 minute walk, from the current location, according to Google maps.

The board voted unanimously to proceed with the project. Supervisor Ron Wolff was absent.

Public Safety Radio System

The Eastern Shore 9-1-1 Commission initiated a shorewide study of public safety radio communications in 2019. Eastern Shore 9-1-1 Communications Center Director Jeff Flournoy introduced CTA consultants Curtis Johnson and Rachel Soward who presented the study findings to supervisors.

One finding was that communications were not balanced: public safety workers in the field received messages much more regularly than they were able to send them, and the reliability of communications dropped rapidly as communicants moved away from U.S. Route 13.

"Mr. Chairman, this is near and dear to Mr. Tarr's and my heart," said Supervisor Robert Crockett, a former Accomack County sheriff. "There's nothing any worse than a deputy or a firefighter in a situation where they have no radio contact." Tarr is a retired police officer and a life member of the Chincoteague Volunteer Fire Company.

The consultants also found most of the public safety radio communication equipment was at the end or beyond the end of its service life.

The consultants developed a slate of alternatives from "do nothing" to combining with the school system, joining the state's STARS system, upgrading the existing system, or building a new system.

They recommended a new system that would cover 95% of both Northampton and Accomack counties, either as a stand-alone system or interconnected with a neighboring Maryland county. The estimated cost is $7.6 million for the interconnected system and $8.5 million for the stand-alone system, although there could be savings depending on how the procurement process is undertaken.

Board of Supervisors Chairman Donald Hart asked Mason to draft a letter to Northampton County about the need to form a committee to examine the options.

Waste Tires

Board members had previously expressed concerns about waste tires accumulating on properties and asked Mason to see what solutions there might be. Mason found there is an existing Virginia law that addresses the issue.

It is a misdemeanor to have 100 waste tires on public or private property without a permit; a felony to have 500 or more without a permit. "The permit is basically the same type as you would have for a sanitary landfill," said Mason. Enforcement would be carried out by the sheriff's office.

Mason was directed to speak with outgoing Sheriff Todd Godwin and incoming Sheriff Todd Wessells.

Shields Bridge

Mason notified the board that the Virginia Department of Transportation will replace Shields Bridge in March or April 2023. Work is expected to be completed by June 2024. A detour will be in place during construction. Shields Bridge was determined to be "structurally deficient."

Northampton Approves Rezoning for Royal Farms Near Cape Charles Food Lion

By Stefanie Jackson

The Northampton board of supervisors approved rezoning that will allow gas station and convenience store chain Royal Farms to apply for permits to build a third location in the county, about seven miles from its Kiptopeke store.

“Unless we do things like this and invite sensible development on Route 13 in places where it’s safe, we will continue to raise property taxes and we won’t have the sales tax income and everything else that we need to move forward,” said Chairman Spencer Murray Nov. 14.

Royal Farms requested the rezoning of 10 acres near Cape Charles from agricultural-rural business to commercial use. Combined with an adjacent three acres that is already commercially zoned, Royal Farms will have 13 acres on which to build its business.

The parcels are on Route 13, at the highway’s intersection with Bayview Circle. The Royal Farms property is on the south side of the crossroad, with Corner Mart on the north side.

Rezoning the parcel would be consistent with the other commercial uses in the immediate area, Supervisor John Coker said, and the parcel in question was zoned for commercial use previously.

In an unconventional move, supervisors submitted the zoning application on behalf of Royal Farms. That drew criticism from one citizen during a public hearing.

Granville Hogg, of Cheriton, said the board cannot be an applicant, according to Section B of the zoning application.

An applicant may be “a consultant, a person with power of attorney, a leaseholder, a renter, and a contract purchaser,” he read.

But the board of supervisors submitting a zoning application is not without precedent. The board has used the application previously to submit proposed changes to the county’s zoning ordinance.

The difference in this case is that supervisors are intervening on behalf of a single entity instead of the entire county.

“The reason we helped them out here ... we saved them probably $100,000 in engineering fees up front,” Coker explained.

If Royal Farms had submitted the zoning application, it would have been required to include fully engineered plans for the building.

“They didn’t want to do it unless they knew they were going to be able to build it there,” he said.

The board of supervisors has tasked the county planning commission with reviewing a proposal to no longer require fully engineered construction plans with zoning applications for special-use permits.

“So that offer’s open to anybody?” Supervisor Robert Duer asked. “Yes,” Murray said.

“Northampton County Board of Supervisors is acting as an applicant and a decision-maker. How much impartiality can this decision receive?” Hogg asked.

“It appears as a conflict of interest by the governing body, and that question should be directed to the board’s legal counsel prior to further discussion,” he said.

“There’s an appearance that the chairman supports recreating the same traffic signal issue that exists less than 2,000 feet north to the entrance of the McDonald’s and Food Lion shopping area,” Hogg added.

Bill Parr, of Seaview, pointed out that no special-use permit had been granted, and supervisors’ approval of the zoning change would only be “step one” of the building project.

For example, the Virginia Department of Transportation will conduct traffic studies of the area to ensure safety and the Virginia Department of Environmental Quality will require a storm-water management plan, he noted.

“Every community that I’m aware of is interested in shifting its tax base,” Parr said.

When commercial business “carries the load” it lightens the tax burden on farmers and residents, he said.

“This is exactly what economic development is about.”

Ken Dufty, of Wardtown, said, “My issue here is that our current comprehensive plan encourages growth and development in the towns and off of 13, and I understand that. The other side of that is this county needs revenue.”

Supervisor Oliver Bennett said, “In order for Northampton to grow, and to expand, and to pay bills, we need new money. This is new money.”

Royal Farms employs more than 40 people in Northampton County, according to a letter from the company’s president, John Kemp.

The new store will create additional jobs and generate more sales tax revenue, Murray said.

During the update of Northampton’s comprehensive plan, “I think we’re going to have to look very, very hard at Route 13 and what we can do with safe access,” he added.

Duer questioned Kemp’s statement in his letter that Northampton “should provide us with the necessary commercial zoning on its own accord ... otherwise, it is very unlikely that we will make any further investment, and the county will lose an important opportunity to build both its tax base and its employment base as well.”

“I don’t take it as a threat,” Murray said.

Royal Farms has been a “good neighbor” who has supported the community, he said.

Kemp is considering using the additional 10 acres of land for a solar farm to help make the business self-sustaining, Coker said.

“They don’t want to be viewed as just selling gas, they want to be viewed as good environmental and corporate citizens.”

“This drives developers off,” Murray said of the current zoning code. “If I have to spend thousands of dollars on something before I know whether I’m even going to get a special-use permit – hundreds of thousands of dollars – I’m not going to do it. I’ve got other places I can go and spend my capital.”

Coker said, “We’re just trying to make it more business-friendly. We’re trying to create a situation where people can tell us what they want to do, and if it’s reasonable, then we’ll let it move forward.”

Luria To Hold ESVA Office Hours Nov. 22

By Stefanie Jackson

U.S. Rep. Elaine Luria has announced that her team will hold mobile office hours Friday, Nov. 22, noon to 2 p.m., in Eastville, to provide constituent services.

“It is the honor of my lifetime to serve you in Congress. My top priority is to be a resource to you and to be an effective voice for our community,” she told constituents in an email Nov. 20.

The congresswoman’s team will be in the main conference room of the Northampton County administration building to help constituents with outstanding claims with federal agencies or other federal matters.

Available services include assistance with Social Security, Medicare, veterans’ benefits, IRS issues, passports and visas, small business assistance, and federal grants and loans.

For more information, contact Caroline Bott at Luria’s Eastern Shore office in Onley, at 757-364-7631.

The Northampton County administration building is located at 16404 Courthouse Road, in Eastville.

Bloxom and Lewis To Host Veterans Town Hall

Del. Robert S. Bloxom Jr. and Sen. Lynwood Lewis have rescheduled the Veterans Town Hall meeting originally planned for Oct. 22 to December 3, from 6-7:30 p.m.

They will discuss the accomplishments made and initiatives undertaken by the commonwealth to benefit the veteran population. The Secretary of Veteran and Defense Affairs Carlos Hopkins and the Executive Director of the Hampton Veterans Administration Medical Center David Collins will be present to answer questions.

Bloxom and Lewis ask that veterans consider attending with friends, family, and neighbors.

The meeting will be held at Eastern Shore Community College Workforce Development Great Hall/Atrium, 29300 Lankford Highway, Melfa.

Public Is the Heart of Northampton's Comprehensive Plan Update

Survey shows public wants focus on schools, economic development, and housing

By Stefanie Jackson

Northampton citizens attended a meeting hosted by the Berkley Group consulting firm Tuesday night, and they participated in a small-group activity that provided insight on how the county comprehensive plan should be updated.

The comprehensive plan will undergo changes with "meaningful public input as a cornerstone," Berkley Group CEO Darren Coffey said.

Before beginning the small-group exercise, Coffey informed citizens on the progress of the comprehensive plan update.

Starting in September, the Berkley Group surveyed Northampton citizens about their impressions of the county's strengths and weaknesses.

As of Nov. 19, 593 people had completed the survey, including 467 surveys taken online at Northampton County's official website and 126 written surveys.

Nearly 13% of the surveys were completed in Spanish.

According to the U.S. Census Bureau, Northampton's population was about 11,850 in 2017. Nearly 600 people, or about 5% of the county's total population, completed a survey.

Coffey said that's an "excellent participation rate" in his line of work, contradicting the doubt expressed by some audience members.

A fairly even distribution of age groups answered the survey. Less than 10% of the respondents were under age 20. Adults between the ages of 20 and 29 also accounted for less than 10% of participants.

The age groups of 30 to 39, 40 to 49, 50 to 59, and 60 to 69 each completed about 20% of the surveys. About 10% of the respondents were between the ages of 70 and 79. A few participants were age 80 or older.

About 30% live in Cape Charles,

20% in Eastville, 17% in Exmore, 13% in Cheriton, and 10% in Nassawadox.

According to the survey results, the three best qualities of Northampton County are its rural character, sense of community, and access to the water.

The top three areas of concern to Northampton citizens are the county's public schools, job opportunities, and access to healthcare.

A large majority, 70% of respondents, want the comprehensive plan to focus on schools.

About 50% want economic development – any kind of economic development – including more restaurants, retail stores, professional services, and healthcare services.

A majority also sees a need for all types of housing, including single family homes, duplexes and townhouses, apartments, and retirement communities.

The Berkley Group's next steps will be to close the survey period and conduct interviews with citizens, Coffey said. But several audience members were concerned that not enough people had received the opportunity to complete a survey, especially those without access to a computer or the internet.

Northampton Deputy Administrator Janice Williams said hard copies of the survey were available at the county administration building, and letters had been sent to every Northampton church on record to inform congregations about the survey.

The Rev. Kelvin Jones, of First Baptist Church in Capeville, said that information was incorrect, and many members of the African American community did not know about the first meeting on the comprehensive plan, which the Berkley Group held in September.

Coffey said he would recommend the board of supervisors extend the survey period until the end of November.

Following his presentation, small groups gathered around poster-size maps of Northampton County and used multi-colored highlighters to circle the towns that they believe most need improvement in economic development, recreation facilities, trails, natural preservation, safety of motor vehicles, bicycles, and pedestrians, and miscellaneous areas of concern.

After about 45 minutes, a representative of each small group reported to the whole group.

The consensus appeared to be that Exmore and Nassawadox were the two towns most ready for or in need of economic development.

Arthur Upshur's group noted that Exmore is a central location on the Eastern Shore with business infrastructure in place – namely, empty buildings in its downtown waiting to be filled.

In addition to Exmore and Nassawadox, Eastville was named as needing economic growth because employees of the new Eastville Community Health Center will need places to eat and shop.

Cape Charles – where economic growth has been concentrated – has become a tourist center lacking affordable housing, the small groups appeared to agree.

There was concern that more homes being used as Airbnb vacation rentals mean fewer homes that could provide affordable housing for families.

Skilled tradesmen such as electricians, plumbers, and HVAC technicians are needed in Northampton's workforce, one group leader said.

Upshur's group suggested building a Northampton campus of Eastern Shore Community College to teach students those trades and help them find jobs in the county after completing their training.

Broadband internet access will give students more learning opportunities, and it will enable people to stay or move here and open an online business or work from home, group members said.

Cape Charles and Exmore were named as the two towns with the most traffic problems. Cape Charles hosts the majority of tourists visiting Northampton, Exmore has three major hotel chains, and the towns have the two largest shopping centers in the county.

Safer options are also needed for residents of towns to cross the highway on foot, on a bicycle, or in a wheelchair, participants said.

It was noted that Eastville has a high potential for future traffic issues because of poor access between the new health center and the highway.

Expansion of Star Transit was recommended to improve transportation. The public bus system currently does not operate on nights or weekends.

Some participants called for day-care for seniors and more after-school programs for children.

There was support for the new YMCA coming to the Cape Charles area and for the former Northampton Middle School in Machipongo providing opportunities for recreation. Citizens also were in favor of the "rails to trails" program.

Northampton citizens said they want "livable communities" – areas with housing, stores, and restaurants within walking distance.

They supported protecting the Eastern Shore's sole-source aquifer and safeguarding the coasts against overdevelopment and sea-level rise, preserving both the seaside and bayside.

The Nature Conservancy was commended on its restoration of eelgrass, a habitat for bay scallops. Not only will this effort help preserve nature, it could lead to the expansion of the Shore's aquaculture industry that is currently dominated by oysters and clams.

A church pastor offered a different perspective.

"We talk about preservation," Jones said. "If we don't have any dignity, which comes along with a good job, if we don't have housing – then having a bike trail doesn't matter, having aquaculture doesn't matter."

"A suggestion is that we look at how do we preserve the people of

OBITUARIES

John Addison

Mr. John Chewing Addison, 84, of Mechanicsville, departed peacefully from this life at his home Nov. 13, 2019. Johnny was a quiet man and true gentleman who loved his family, walked in faith, and led by example. The twinkle in his eye will be missed by all who knew and loved him. He was the son of John and Jane Addison, of Eastville, and brother of Lucy Addison Restein.

Mr. Addison

Left to cherish his memory are his wife of 61 years, Byrd Addison; daughters, Lynn Hancock (Tim), Corinne Price (Greg), and Eve Addison (Bert); grandchildren, John and Evie Price, Addison Burton, Richard and Thomas Hancock; sister-in-law, Barbara Tull; nieces, Jane Bailey and Carolyn Stiles; and nephews, Joe and Addison Restein.

Funeral service will take place at Christ Church-Eastville, Saturday, Nov. 30, 2019, at 1 p.m. In lieu of flowers, contributions may be made to Christ Episcopal Church, P.O. Box 367, Eastville, VA 23347 or The Chesapeake Bay Foundation at www.cbf.org

Lillian Edmonds

Mrs. Lillian Edmonds, 81, of Parksley, wife of Aubrey Edmonds, passed away Nov. 19, 2019, at Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital in Onancock.

Born Aug. 2, 1938, in Mount Holly, N.J., she was the daughter of the late James and Ethel Thomas Beebe. She was a homemaker, an avid sewer, and a 20-year employee of Walmart.

Other than her husband, Aubrey, Mrs. Edmonds is survived by two sons, Edward and Richard; a stepson, Aubrey Jr.; four daughters, Carole, Gloria,

Mrs. Edmonds

Nina, and Lorrain; 15 grandchildren; nine great-grandchildren; three sisters; and two brothers.

A funeral service will be held Friday, Nov. 22, 2019, at 2 p.m., at the Thornton Funeral Home in Parksley, with the Rev. Robert Garris officiating. Interment will follow in the Modest Town Baptist Church Cemetery in Modest Town. The family will receive friends one hour prior to the service at the funeral home.

Arrangements were made by the Thornton Funeral Home in Parksley.

Mark Glackin

Mr. R. Mark Glackin, 69, of Wallops Island, died Wednesday, Nov. 13, 2019, in his home. Born Feb. 21, 1950, in Baltimore, he was a son of the late Jesse Raymond and Mary Beard Glackin. A 1968 graduate of Perry Hall High School, Mr. Glackin enlisted in the U.S. Navy, serving two years active and two reserve, including a tour in the Philippine Islands. Growing up in a large family, Mr. Glackin was the child who brought every lost, stray, and injured animal home for recuperation including snakes, an alligator, a monkey, and pigeons. His love of animals encouraged him to take classes and later become a licensed master taxidermist.

Mr. Glackin

Mr. Glackin had a natural talent for carpentry that he did for most of his life. He worked at various locations, was self-employed, and in addition, built the barn, his home, and many outbuildings on his original Virginia property. While in Virginia, he briefly ran a country store that carried "most of everything" for the community shopping needs. Mr. Glackin was instrumental in the establishment of the Northampton Pregnancy Center in the 1990s serving the Eastern Shore area.

Mr. Glackin was an avid outdoorsman, and loved his farm and animals. He chose Wallops Island as his last home. He lived a practical life, living off the land and appreciating the resources it provided. His family commented that he will be remembered as a devout Christian who led a spiritual life.

He is survived by two children, Raymond Gabriel Glackin, of Airville, Pa., and Lillie Mae Merritt and her husband, Jeffrey, of Westover, Md.; four sisters, Nancy Foltz and her husband, Edward, of Bel Air, Md., Betty Contino and her husband, Francis, of Cockeysville, Md., Martha Glackin Bagley and her husband, Dennis, of Tucson, Ariz., and Mary Lyons of Globe, Ariz.; sister-in-law, Kim Glackin, wife of Mark's brother, Stephen, who preceded him in death in 2012; four grandchildren, Olivia Hope Merritt, Autumn Grace Merritt, Layla Faith Merritt, and Charlotte Joy Merritt; and two stepdaughters, Christa Ingoglia, of Florida, and Carey Ingoglia, of Maryland.

Mr. Glackin leaves many more family members, nieces, nephews, and cousins behind. His legacy would include his numerous friends who were much like family as well, both in Maryland and Virginia.

Graveside services were held Thursday, Nov. 21, 2019, in St. Mary's Cemetery, Pylesville, Md., with military honors presented by the U.S. Naval Honor Guard.

His family would appreciate memorial contributions to: Ascension Hermitage & Sanctuary, P.O. Box 52, Princess Anne, MD 21853 www.ascensionhermitage.blogspot.com for the meals it serves.

~Free Lunch~

School division staff want to achieve the 100% reimbursement rate because school food service programs are intended to be self-sustaining, not operate at a loss to be covered by local government.

If Northampton schools had implemented the CEP program between 2015 and 2017, they would have had an annual budget shortfall of about $170,000.

By 2019, the projected shortfall had fallen to about $25,000.

Supervisors admonished school board members for not asking for the $25,000.

The school division would also need around $28,000 to hire two part-time cafeteria workers to handle the expected increased student demand for school breakfast and lunch.

Lawrence said he and members of the school board had recently received emails from Supervisor John Coker stating, "the board of supervisors is willing to subsidize our lunch program," up to about $53,000, the combined cost of the projected budget shortfall and the two cafeteria workers.

Lawrence asked the school board to rescind their votes for delaying implementation of the "free lunch for all" program.

Northampton supervisors had learned from USDA that the school division could apply for a waiver allowing CEP to be implemented now instead of at the beginning of the next school year.

A request for a waiver had been written and signed and was waiting approval by the school board so the document could be submitted.

Lawrence said there is no guarantee that the waiver will be approved.

"If they don't act on it, at least then we can say we applied," he said.

Northampton schools Chief Financial Officer Brook Thomas said it was "interesting" that USDA gave county supervisors information on the waiver program.

She had recently contacted the Virginia Department of Education and "they were unaware of a waiver program," including the director of school nutrition programs.

School division staff are attempting to work out strategies for feeding more students breakfast and lunch during regularly scheduled mealtimes without lengthening the school day.

Director of Operations Chris Truckner has also spoken with Accomack County Public Schools staff about how they implemented the CEP program this year.

They are purchasing prepackaged breakfasts that meet USDA's nutrition guidelines and allow students to be served more quickly.

The prepackaged meals of cold items like milk and cereal are expensive, but they help ensure every student gets served, Truckner said.

At the elementary schools, the meals are delivered to the classrooms so that "every kid gets breakfast as soon as they walk in the door."

Letters have been sent to the homes of Northampton students who recently became eligible for the division's current free and reduced school lunch program.

Nearly 81% of all Northampton public school students qualify for the program.

Accomack School Board Pressed on Special Education and Policy Implementation

By Stefanie Jackson

A parent of a former Chincoteague student informed the Accomack school board Tuesday night about the unfairness of the manner in which its policies are enforced regarding out-of-zone students.

"I do believe that schools should not be permitted to pick and choose which out-of-zone students stay or go," said Jessica Lewis, of Chincoteague.

Lewis explained that her husband had finished building a home in New Church prior to their marriage that took place two weeks ago.

The couple has been staying in the new home, but Lewis maintains her Chincoteague residence and will continue to do so until her lease expires in February.

Yet the process was begun to withdraw her son from Chincoteague Combined School "as soon as they knew we got married," in spite of conversations with school administration that she and her son are still residents of Chincoteague.

Her son has autism and anxiety and does not cope well with abrupt change, Lewis said.

She and her husband scrambled to find three proofs of his residency at the New Church home to enroll her son at Arcadia Middle School.

Lewis believed it was unfair that "they were very quick to push my son out of Chincoteague Combined School when he was out-of-zone," even though other out-of-zone families send their children to Chincoteague schools.

Those families' addresses are in the areas of Atlantic and Wallops Island. One family uses the address of the NA-SA Visitors Center as their address on school forms, she said.

She called for an investigation and the withdrawal of all students who do not belong in Chincoteague schools according to school zoning rules.

Lewis said Chincoteague Combined School Principal Harold Holmes had advised her to contact Director of Secondary Education Karen Taylor about the concerns.

Lewis left messages for Taylor and Della Jordan, of student support services, but Lewis received no response, she said.

School board Chairman Paul Bull told Lewis that someone from the school district will contact her.

Connie Burford, of Bloxom, reminded the school board of deficiencies in its special education program.

Accomack schools lack a universal pre-K program, and sometimes there is a delay identifying students who need special education because they start school later.

Burford also called for aides in kindergarten and first-grade classrooms. She suggested if the school division cannot afford to hire aides, substitutes might be used to provide assistance to teachers.

"Before we know it, there is going to be a child that hurts another child in the classroom, and you all will be responsible for that happening."

Marie Gunter, of Bloxom, spoke about the need to establish a memorandum of understanding (MOU) between Accomack schools and the Accomack sheriff's office.

According to a new Virginia law, schools that use school resource officers must have an MOU with the local sheriff's department.

The MOU will protect students "from illegally being detained and questioned without parent or guardian representation."

Gunter said her nephew, who is also a special needs student, had his rights violated, "which continues to add to his trauma."

She spoke on behalf of her nephew's parents, who feared there may be repercussions for speaking out.

"We're trying to disrupt the school-to-prison pipeline and cannot allow these injustices to continue without accountability," she said.

Gunter is also a member of nonprofit Virginia Organizing, which has offered on multiple occasions to help the school board "construct an MOU that will best protect and serve all parties involved."

"It is our hope that Accomack County will follow the lead of other districts ... and get community input for developing a comprehensive MOU."

"Please don't wait until something happens to another student in violation of this policy that the state has mandated to be followed."

New Methods Could See the Return of Strawberries as a Shore Cash Crop

This is the first of two stories from the 16th annual Small Farm Conference held earlier this month at the University of Maryland Eastern Shore. The other story, about cultivating industrial hemp, will appear in next week's edition.

By Matthew Yoder

Earlier this month the University of Maryland Eastern Shore hosted its 16th Annual Small Farm Conference, with workshops and lectures geared toward the aims of smaller producers. Saturday's session highlighted a crop with historical significance to the Eastern shore of Maryland and Virginia.

Strawberries were at one time a reliable cash crop for Shore farmers, well suited to the soil and climate conditions here. Their demise came about in part because of an inability to bring the fruit out of the field. Michael Sigrist spent nearly 40 years working with the USDA and now serves as the agriculture technician lead with the UMES small farm program. He was at one time a strawberry grower himself on the Shore and spoke to the challenges that largely eliminated the crop from the area.

"Labor killed the strawberry industry here," said Sigrist.

He lamented the fact, because he spoke of the region we live in being ideal to support a robust crop of berries.

"We're in the mid-Atlantic, we're in a transition zone, we're blessed to be buffered by the Chesapeake and Atlantic," Sigrist said.

In an attempt to encourage strawberries' re-emergence on the Shore, Sigrist presented Kim Lewers, a plant geneticist with USDA's Beltsville Agricultural Research Center in Maryland. Lewers has been leading the USDA's research in the field of strawberries since 2001. Her research is part of the longest continually running strawberry program in the world, a program that is credited with creating the U-Pick model.

Her presentation offered new data to the public and did so in a part of the country she has strong family ties to. Her father's family grew up as tenant farmers in New Church, Va., picking tomatoes and strawberries.

Lewers' research centers on the ability to skirt heavy labor demands and work towards securing a supplemental income in a niche market.

She spoke first of the effectiveness over the years for USDA research to advance the marketability of strawberries for little cost to the taxpayer.

"I'm proud to say my research costs less than a cent per taxpayer," said Lewers. "Our program is credited with producing strawberries as a commercial crop in the first place."

Lewers sees the ability for farmers here to compete against states like California and Florida by growing cultivars suited to the area and extending the season by constructing low tunnels.

The process was laid out step-by-step, first outlining the specific needs of varieties to thrive in this climate, such as rain tolerance, anthracnose resistance, and a low nitrogen requirement. Too much nitrogen can contribute to increased diseases, fewer flowers, and a subsequent lower yield, as well as berries suffering from a watery, bland flavor. Only cultivars that meet the requirements were discussed, and Lewers recommended on several occasions growing multiple varieties.

A four-year field rotation serves as a basis to control pest management and help eliminate nutsedge. Lewers mentioned sudex cover crops that meet these aims but also listed garlic, onions, or carrots as offering similar benefits to these ends, crops that could also provide income.

The majority of Lewers' presentation, however, was in the construction of low tunnels. Growing in this manner, Lewers sees the potential to extend the growing season into the winter and get an early jump in the spring.

"You'll be the only ones growing for November and December. If you want to aim for the niche it will take effort but it can be done," said Lewers.

Paramount is investing in the proper system for season extension.

"You have to use low tunnels for repeat growing cultivars," Lewers said.

Lewers recommends in February setting out two rows of trickle line, 12 inches apart, covered by white-on-black mulch, with straw between the beds for anthracnose, weeds, and erosion control. Planting is followed in March, with bare-root, day-neutral varieties, 12 to 15 inches apart in the row and 14 inches between rows. At that time it is crucial to raise your low tunnels, incorporating no less than one-fourth-inch stainless steel rods and clear plastic sheeting, preferably infrared diffusing.

“When I first build the low tunnels, I often have the sides down to keep the beds warm, the key is the bed temperature, that’s where the crown is, the brain of the plant,” said Lewers.

As spring temperatures intensify, Lewers believes a lot of people fear the heat will affect the plants, but in this system, she says it is not a concern.

“I keep the sides up until September or October, then lower them in the fall to trap the heat,” said Lewers.

“People worry about it being too hot, but low tunnels are small enough that they don’t change things.”

What does change under the tunnels is how the plants convert light, and the results are surprising.

“Diffused light is less stressful on the plants, the plants had relaxed leaves and under tunnels the plants use light more efficiently,” said Lewers.

Converting that sunlight adds to what we all look for in strawberries, flavor.

“Sunshine equals sugar,” said Lewers.

Under the tunnels the water retention is better too, though Lewers recommends only watering after a harvest.

The system comes with a cost but has been effective, and Sigrist spoke of not having to look very far to see the results.

“Kim Lewers does research right in our backyard and what’s phenomenal is that it’s in strawberries, you don’t have look to Cornell, Florida, or California,” said Sigrist.

That point can’t be overstated.

“She is keyed in to this region and you need to find research that relates to this region,” said Sigrist.

Another important note is that though lack of labor contributed to a strawberry hiatus here, Lewers system focuses on starting at a manageable level to determine your own results.

Lewers recommends starting with eight beds, 100 feet long, which is a size she can manage by herself. She also comments that cost efficiency is improved the closer you get to a square.

The dividends involved with commercial strawberry production can be lucrative, with numbers far exceeding corn and soybeans per acre. Her data listed upwards of $60,000 per acre, depending on yield, taste, and time of year for harvest.

Lewers knowledge of strawberries was presented in a detailed, yet easily applicable fashion. Her passion is in plain view for anyone to see at the Agriculture Research Center in Beltsville. She’s spent 18 years perfecting methods and developing flavor in one of America’s favorite fruits.

“I wanted a crop of my own and when I got it, I threw everything into it, whatever crop I found I was going to put my heart into it,” said Lewers.

She often referred to a new variety introduced by the USDA, Keepsake. She touted its qualities across the board and strongly urged growers and backyard gardeners to incorporate it in their fields and gardens. A June-bearing variety developed under her direction, Keepsake was described as having exceptional flavor and size, in addition to meeting the criteria to thrive in the mid-Atlantic.

Kim Lewers of the USDA delivers a presentation on extending your strawberry growing season. Photo by Matthew Yoder.

Travel to Beltsville on the right day and you might just find Lewers employing the help of her mother in the field.

“My greatest joy was to sit my 90-year-old mother in the border rows to pick and eat strawberries until she couldn’t eat anymore,” said Lewers.

She said her mother outworked teenagers, which further gave credence to the ability of those looking to secure a nice income on smaller plots and do so without a tremendous need for labor.

HOLLY DAY MARKET FEATURES CARVERS, ARTISTS, AND GROWERS

The Chincoteague Cultural Alliance's Holly Day Market and Wildlife Art Gallery presents an amazing array of arts and crafts along with the last farmers market of the year Saturday, Nov. 30, from 9 a.m. until 3 p.m., at 6309 Church St. More than 80 vendors will offer everything from handmade decoys and jewelry to holiday decorations and fresh seafood. Admission and parking are free.

Exhibitors in the Wildlife Art Gallery inside the Amrien Activities Center include local carvers Jimmy Bowden and David Justice, painter Nancy Richards West, and many more. Next door, inside and outside CCA's Community Center for the Arts, visitors will find holiday decor, jewelry, woodwork, stained glass, photographs, pottery, knitted clothing, musical instruments, candles, soaps, toys, and other handcrafted items, along with antiques and collectibles.

In the farmers market section, look for produce, eggs, meats, seafood, baked goods, honey, jams, and plants. A list of all the Wildlife Art Gallery and Holly Day Market vendors is available at www.Chincoteagueca.org

Popular performers Jeff Madison and Zander Jett will play throughout the day, and Captain E's Hurricane Grill food truck will be onsite.

"With so many fine vendors, you're bound to find the perfect gifts for everyone on your holiday list," said Markets Manager Alex Hubb. "Allow an hour or two to see everything and enjoy some great food and live music while you shop."

The Holly Day Market and Wildlife Art Show is sponsored by the Chincoteague Cultural Alliance, a nonprofit, all-volunteer community arts organization that presents over 100 events a year.

Holly Day Market will feature handmade holiday decor by Alan Andreatch.

JFK Assassinated This Day, 1963

Today is the anniversary of JFK's assassination.

On this day in 1963, President John F. Kennedy was shot twice and killed in Dallas, Texas. Within an hour or so of the shooting, Lee Harvey Oswald was arrested for the assassination and for killing a Dallas police officer. Two days later, while Oswald was being walked through a police station basement, he was shot and killed by Jack Ruby, a Dallas nightclub owner who said he was enraged about the assassination.

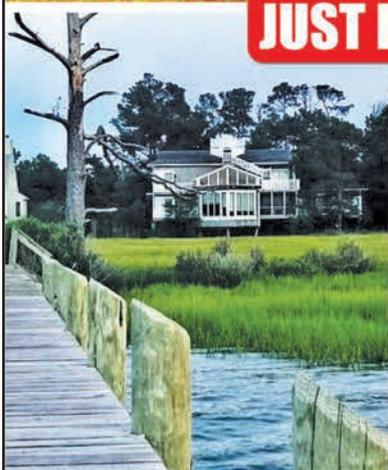

Confusing, suspicious, and contested evidence surrounded the assassination: the number of shots fired, where the shooting came from, the fact that Oswald was a former Marine who had once defected to the Soviet Union, Oswald's killing before he could be thoroughly interrogated, and so on. Even after a federal commission concluded that Oswald was the sole gunman, the Kennedy assassination became the mother of all conspiracy theories.

Master Gardener Meets Roads Scholars: Joining Petal and Mettle

It began with a neighborly chat and ended with the Eastern Shore of Virginia Master Gardeners guiding Roads Scholar service project volunteers to build a rain garden at the Museum of Chincoteague.

When the directors learned that Bob Shendock was a master gardener and interested in supporting community outreach at the museum, they made a proposal to get the Roads Scholars unit involved in supporting the goal to create a learning lab for environmental barrier island education. And it fit beautifully with the master gardener's goal to encourage and promote environmentally sound horticulture practices through sustainable landscape management.

The first project was held in the spring with a native plants educational program for the Roads Scholar volunteers and community and a native plant sale open to the community. The sale was a big hit and sold out in the first hour. Volunteers were also involved in replanting the museum grounds with native plants along with labeling those plants.

The fall project, a Rain Garden: Design, Construction and Maintenance presentation, was made, along with actual construction of a rain garden at the museum.

The presentation began with the explanation that a rain garden is "a functional landscape element to manage storm water collection, filtration, infiltration and/or discharge."

Among the elements of a rain garden that were discussed included:

- Inflow, ponding area, mulch, soil, and plant layers and an overflow feature.
- General location considerations, such as a recommendation of 10 feet or more from a building foundation.
- Adaptations required to accommodate the location at the museum. Since water gushing off the roof had to be captured close to the foundation, consideration had to be given to effectively moving the water away from the building and protecting the sides from backplash.

Rain garden construction tasks including excavation, framing installation, soil amendments, and construction of an outflow system were listed. These tasks were used as a plan for the work to be performed at the museum throughout the week.

The overall goal of this Roads Scholar service-learning project was to work at the Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge and the Museum of Chincoteague Island to help conserve the islands' wildlife, habitats, history, and culture.

Volunteers assisted with a variety of projects ranging from cleaning out barbed wire from Assateague Island to preserving the Chincoteague lighthouse and, of course, to work at the museum on the rain garden project.

Volunteers rotated throughout the various projects daily, each having an opportunity to participate in a variety of service work as well as experience the beauty of the Virginia barrier islands and its wildlife. With this overall goal in mind, Road Scholar volunteers selected this program for a variety of personal reasons.

Barry, from the Shenandoah Valley of Virginia, was curious to learn more about the design of a rain garden since his background is in engineering. Jim and Mellanie were following their commitment to be involved in nature which, at their home in St. Louis, includes volunteering in a monarch butterfly collection and tagging project. Cynthia, from West Chester, Pa., wanted to learn more about the Eastern Shore of Virginia and about the rain garden project since she has had some exposure to the principles of stormwater management as a volunteer at Longwood Gardens. Linda, from The Villages in Florida, wanted to see the ponies. Madeleine, from Minnesota, wanted to be involved in service-learning and wanted to experience a new area of the country. Don, from Richmond, Va., came along with friends to try something new. And Gene and Dale, from Chesterfield, Va.,

impressed with all the offerings in the Roads Scholar catalog, picked this one due to its relatively proximity.

But whatever their personal reasons were for signing up, they all left the week with a lot of in-depth knowledge about how to build a rain garden. And there were probably some sore muscles to boot!

Thanks to Bob Shendock for his many hours spent planning, coordinating, and leading the project. And thanks to Jocelyn Grover for her leadership at the site and to Claude Taylor, Joyce Almond, Marianne Francavilla, and Victor Klein who provided guidance to the Road Scholars.

Hunters for Hungry Accepting Deer

Submitted Article

The Eastern Shore Chapter of the Hunters for the Hungry is pleased to announce the start of receiving deer donations to the program this year. Since 1997, the program has received and processed over 4,500 deer donations. The deer donated have been processed into more than 500,000 servings of this nutritious, lean meat to the clients of the Food Bank of the Eastern Shore and other agencies. There is no charge to the hunter to donate the deer, which must be properly harvested and registered, field dressed, and taken to one of the processors or collection points. The goal this year is 200 deer.

The program raises funds from local individuals, businesses, and civic organizations to pay deer processing costs. This year the cost of processing a deer is $50. The processors help the program by processing the deer at almost half their regular cost. Since the program pays a per-deer processing fee, please consider a larger bodied deer. Processors have the right to refuse any deer donation that has not been field dressed or cared for in a manner that ensures quality usable meat.

The processors this year are Brent Powell, Powell Processing, 21397 Trower Road, Wachapreague, 787-7107, and Scott Hines Eastern Shore Outfitters, 4306 Main St., Exmore, 442-4009. Collections points are The Food Bank in Tasley, 24530 Coastal Blvd, 787-2557, and B&B Market, 13001 Lankford Highway, Machipongo, 678-7236.

The program is a nonprofit organization and donations are tax-deductible as allowed by law. The program is a listed agency for the local United Way campaign. There currently is a dollar-for-dollar match for donations from businesses, civic organizations, and Ruritan clubs. Donations made out to Hunters for the Hungry may be sent to P.O. Box 1702, Parksley VA 23421. For further information, to arrange a speaker, or to help out, please call or email the local director, Worth Saunders, at 757-710-0049 or worth@baysiderehab.com.

“When Mom decided she was tired of taking care of the house, we all worked together to find independent living that would bring balance to her life. We all agreed that if her needs changed, she wouldn’t want to move again. Commonwealth was the perfect fit. Not only did they check all the boxes we needed for amenities, the warm and friendly associates made us feel at home right away. When they asked her about her life story and passions, we all said, ‘Dancing!’ They started a dance class, and she’s helping to teach it. Commonwealth keeps the music playing!”

ESCC Plans to Branch to New Building on Dec. 16

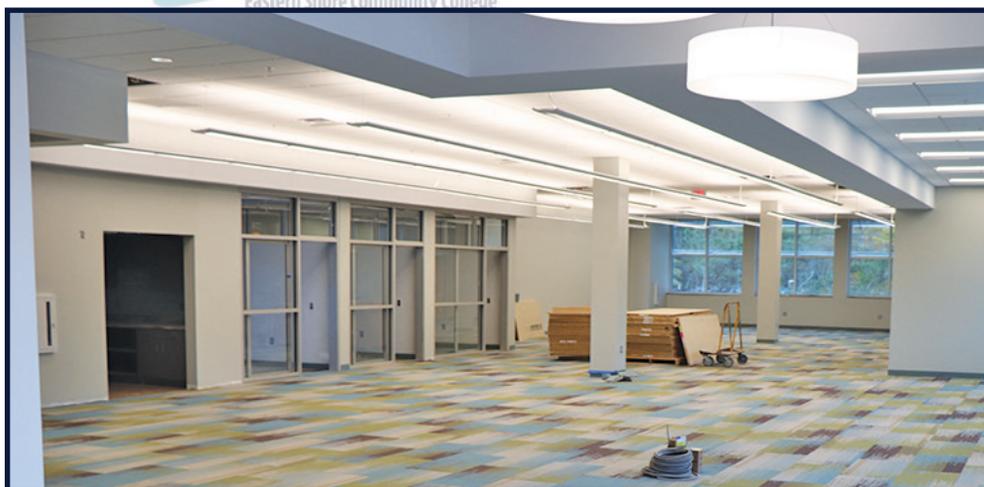

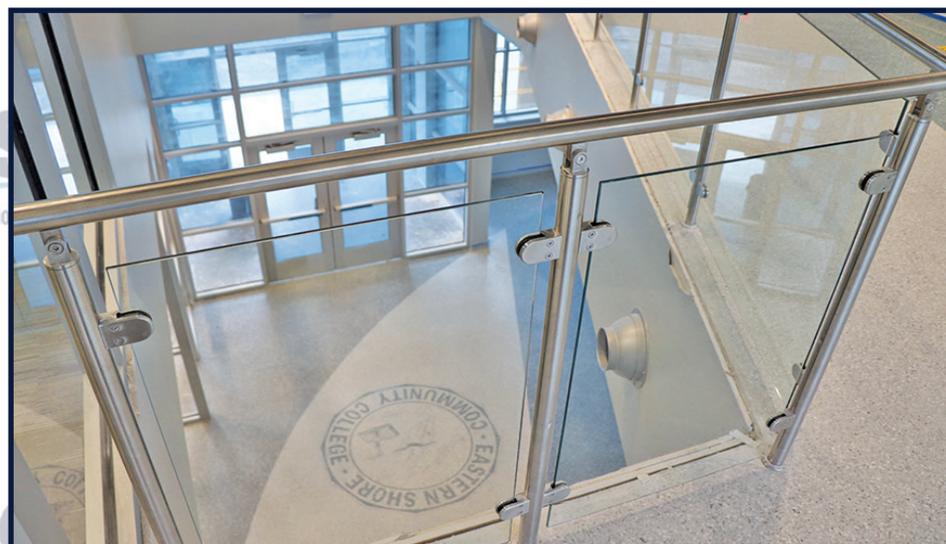

The Eastern Shore Community College move into its new academic building will begin on Monday, Dec. 16, after the semester ends Dec. 13. The library closes on Dec. 13 to begin the move. The business office will remain open the week of Dec. 16 to accommodate the spring semester payment deadlines.

Doors open Monday, Jan. 13, to start the spring semester. The official ribbon cutting will be scheduled a later date.

ESCC will be providing special commemorative items and giveaways for students to celebrate the new building, and there will be various celebratory happenings staged throughout the day.

Registration is underway now for the new semester. ESCC will be open next Monday and Tuesday, Nov. 25 and 26, 8 a.m.-6 p.m., but closed for Thanksgiving Nov. 27 through Dec. 1. Submitted photos.

Northampton Wrestling Wins Big Off The Mat

WRESTLING

By Brennan Waldorf

The Yellow Jacket Wrestling squad is already winning tournaments before the season has begun. Head coach Matt Evans entered the team into a tournament in hopes of scoring some new gear. The proactive coach had little expectations but was delighted as his team continuously moved through the rounds eventually claiming the title and reward of new singlets for the entire varsity squad.

The tournament was hosted by Constant Pressure and pitted the Jackets against 49 other squads in a single elimination style tourney where each team had two days of voting before advancing to the next round or being eliminated. Teams advanced based off social media votes via likes on either Facebook, Instagram, or Twitter.

With over 50 teams involved from around the U.S., Northampton prevailed thanks to the outstanding community and student effort in the county. The Yellow Jacket squad had to win six rounds to take the crown and was backed by the voting of students from the middle and high school along with the Northampton County teachers and administrators. "This was such a fun competition and we would like to thank everyone who helped place votes for us to win this competition," said coach Evans.

The teams Facebook posts were shared hundreds of times by community members to encourage others to vote. The Yellow Jackets managed to amass 4,500 votes in the last two rounds, winning in the finals against a team from the wrestling powerhouse state of Michigan.

"That is the true sense of victory in that we came together as a community to defeat such bigger areas," coach Evans said of the tournament outcome.

The community will have a chance to see the new singlets in action this year as Northampton will be hosting two separate home tournaments. The first will be the Annual Jacket Invitational on Dec. 7, which will be the Jackets' first matches of the year with 10 teams competing in a double elimination tournament.

The Jackets will also host the Annual Fred Diem/Scott Miles invite which is a two-day round robin tournament set to begin Jan. 10. The tournament welcomes Northampton wrestling alumni to attend for free entry and access to the Jacket hospitality room. Any alumni who attends will be honored in between rounds on Jan. 11 starting at 9 a.m.

Ponies are Encouraging During First Practice

BASKETBALL PREVIEW

By Matthew Yoder

Tuned to the hum of basketballs reverberating on wood, the Chincoteague girls officially took to the court for the first time this season on Monday, working through their rust in full-length outlet drills and jump shots. The Ponies had an encouraging turnout on the first day of practice, with more than 20 girls excitedly filling the gym. Though they are returning four starters, the Ponies face the challenge of replacing an irreplaceable talent in guard Caroline Thornton. She filled the stat sheets last season, averaging more than 20 points per game, a number that is difficult to overlook and provided intangibles at such a key position on the court.

Coach Jimmy Bloxom recognizes the many skills Thornton displayed and is realistic in assessing what it takes to replace such a player.

"I gotta get a guard, it's hard to replace Thornton and we've got to find other ways to score," said Bloxom.

Beyond scoring, he recognizes the need for somebody to effectively move the ball up court and for his team, likewise, to pressure in defensive transition. Bloxom sees these as keys to victory.

"It's all about handling full-court pressure," Bloxom said. "If you wanna build a lead then you have to try to pressure the other team and force turnovers."

If the Ponies are successful in making their opponents defend the half-court game, they will play to their strengths this year, size and grit.

Bloxom undeniably sees this as an asset for this year's squad.

"I've got bigs, we'll be scrappy," said Bloxom.

The team is filled with distinguished talent from this year's district champion volleyball team. Alanna Hall, Emma Jackson, and Caroline Shelley made significant contributions to that team, with Shelley and Jackson commanding respect at the net. The goal is to do the same at the rim, and they will be assisted by Lindsey O'Shea, a freshman with tremendous height.

"We will be just as tall as anybody in the gym, we shouldn't get beat on the boards," said Bloxom.

In addition to Hall, Jackson, and Shelley, Bethany Fosque is the fourth returning starter to a very successful Pony team from a year ago. Though these Ponies played significant minutes, Bloxom still thinks his team lacks experience in tight games.

"They're just a little green in how much they played. I want to see how they handle the pressure," said Bloxom.

A lot of games will unquestionably be decided by which team executes the fundamentals best.

"If you make layups and foul shots you can stay competitive," Bloxom said.

Both aspects were addressed heavily on this first day of practice. They are a team with strength in numbers, built to compete now and for years to come. Bloxom does not believe they are a team that will create space from opponents, but is still optimistic for the upcoming season. He appears quite adept at getting the best out of these kids, and if this year opponents sleep on the Ponies after losing Thornton, Bloxom is confident his squad will again reassert its will.

"I don't have four 20-point scorers, but every kid has a niche, a role," said Bloxom.

The Ponies have established a winning atmosphere, and in doing so have raised the attention of other local teams.

"We aren't going to sneak up on anybody. We're in the crosshairs now," said Bloxom.

Nandua Places in Top Ten at State Meet

11/16/19 - CROSS-COUNTRY

By Brennan Waldorf

Eastern Shore teams traveled to Salem, Va., last weekend to compete in the Virginia State Cross Country tournament. Northampton and Chincoteague both had girls running in the Division I race while Nandua and Arcadia had runners participate in the Division II race.

The district champion and regional runner-up Nandua boys team took top honors for the Shore as they were the only team to advance. The Warrior squad has much to be proud of as the team finished as a top ten team in the state coming in 9th place at the event with 224 points. Nandua participated in a field of 104 runners representing 28 different teams with Union High School claiming first place.

The Warriors were led by Carlo Balmoria who finished 38th with a time of 17:52. Sebastian Bonilla finished 55th with a time 18:52, Ethan Harrower placed 64th with a time of 18:50, and Panuncio Chavez finished 66th with a time of 18:54. The top runners for Nandua had a split time of 18:38 but the Warriors also had runners David Gastelum finish 69th, Bryan Tinoco finish 73rd, and Riley Bull finish 74th in the race as well. The Warriors will have plenty to build on next year with all runners being able to return apart from senior Panuncio Chavez.

In the girls division, Nandua's Areil Enriquez took top honors for the Shore as the Warriors' lone runner, finishing 59th with a time of 22:40. Arcadia's Gracie Perez finished 66th with a time of 23:19 and Arisbeth Gomez finished 88th with a time of 24:37. The girls competed against 103 of the best runners in the state with Radford High winning the state title.

In the girls Division I race, Northampton's district champion Daniela Gonzalez took top honors coming in 34th overall just two places away from tying the school's best finish in the race with a time of 22:34. Wendi Martinez, who had just recovered from injury, placed 61st with a time of 24:29. "We are very proud of our girls' accomplishments," said head coach Rich Wilfong and Kelly Driscole.

Chincoteague's Carli Fradja was the lone runner from the island and placed 62nd in the Division I race with a time of 24:32.

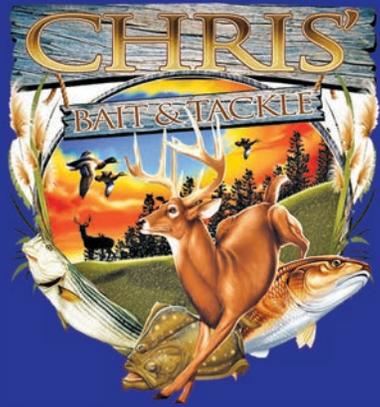

The girls competed against 98 runners from 25 teams with George Wythe High School claiming the 2019 title.

Game Results of E.S. Hockey League - Nov. 17

By Michael Garbacz

Game 1: Thornton Services Renegades 1, K&E Marine Capitals 6

The cold winds a-blowin' this day signaled some blowout tilts, as evinced by this one. Suffering a short bench, the 'Gaders still fought and outshot the Caps 23-22 but couldn't solve goalie Cabe Morgan. The Pat Trick rang up two goals and an assist; Brett Morgan upped the ante with a hattie and a helper; Sharkey Parks registered a goal and two assists; Jenny Hagler, Jack Smith, and Dalton McDaniel each picked up an apple. The Onancock Kid staved off a shutout for the Renegades with a little helper from Dustin Aigner and La Boca.

Game 2: EZ Loan Bruins 8, Neu-beam Harambe 3

The Killer B's continued the trend set by the Caps, unsealing a tin of how-do-you-do on the gorilla squad. The Smooth Criminal alone registered enough for the W, with four goals and an assist; Bradley Colona contributed a hat trick plus an assist; Gabe Nock picked up the other goal; Pat Cornwell chipped in a trio of helpers; Garrett Baylis registered an assist. For Harambe, Zach Webb led the offense in the loss with two goals and an assist; Preston Shover threw in a goal and an apple; Luke Webb put up a pair of assists.

Game 3: Blues 0, 3 Knots Taphouse Whalers 5

Another game, another win by a 5-goal margin. This time it was the Whalers who whaled on the Blues and handed them a goose egg to boot. Brandon Morgan took the bull by the horns and rode 'im to the tune of a hat trick and an assist; Scott Millikin added a goal and an assist; New York Metzger scored. Michael Fanning did the goalie dance of joy upon earning the shutout. Blues netminder Ol' Plugalong, meanwhile, was seen repeatedly winding his watch, to no avail.

Game 4: Delmarva Soil and Concrete Red Wings 3, K&E Marine Capitals 5

It took four games to break the trend of the day, as the Caps edged the Wings. Leaping out to a 4-0 lead, it did look like this one was well on its way to another laugh, but the Red Wings struck back late to make it interesting. Unfortunately for them, the hourglass ran out of sand before the comeback could be completed. The Pat Trick went helpers-only this time, accumulating 4; Sharkey Parks scored twice and threw in an assist; Brett Morgan tickled the twine two times; Keith Hagler scored; Jenny Hagler picked up an assist. For the Wings, the Huntsman figured in on every one of their goals, scoring twice and adding an apple; George Smith found the back of the net; Matt Sullivan and Wes Stapleton each added an assist.

Game 5: Thornton Services Renegades 0, EZ Loan Bruins 2

The Smooth Criminal had reality on a string in this one, slowing down and speeding up the game as he saw fit, confounding the 'Gaders to no end. Producing both goals, 12 of his team's 18 total shots, and almost as many as the Renegades had in total (13), there was no denying who the lord of the manor was this time around. Bradley Colona added an apple in the win for the Bruins; goalie Alex McCullough did the shutout dance.

Game 6: Blues 1, NeuBeam Harambe 7

Everything was going according to plan for the Blues in this one, until it wasn't. Up 1-0 heading into the third, the Blues were looking to register an extremely important win for themselves. The gorilla squad had other ideas, though, uncorking a wild 22-shot, 7-goal final frame and bursting the dam on poor Ol' Plugalong. Zach Webb and Preston Shover each traded natural hat tricks, with Shover also adding an assist; Robbie Washington scored the other goal; Caleb Clark chipped in a pair of apples; Luke Webb, Johnny Irvin, and power forward Jennie Rice each added an assist. James Haley was the goal scorer for the Blues, assisted by TR Hoyt.

Game 7: 3 Knots Taphouse Whalers 3, Delmarva Soil and Concrete Red Wings 4

The best game of the day came last, as the Wings managed to narrowly edge out the Whalers in a fun, back-and-forth affair. Though they outshot the Wings 16-12, the fellas in green fell just short of overcoming goalie Brad Ford. Ethan Ayer led the way for the Red Wings in this one, picking up two goals and an assist; the Huntsman and Wes Stapleton rang up a goal and an assist apiece; Justin Wheeler chimed in with a pair of apples; George Smith and Michael Garbacz each added an assist. For the Whalers, Brandon Morgan, Scott Millikin, and Ryan Parks all scored on remarkable individual efforts—all unassisted.

Fishing from the Shore

By Bill Hall

After a week that has seen coastal flooding, high waves, below average air temperatures for this time of year, and even a brief encounter with snowfall in some areas, firsthand fishing information has been mighty hard to come by, if not impossible. One tackle shop owner told me, with only a slight exaggeration, “the opening of deer season probably saved several local sportsmen from thoughts of suicide!” Let’s hope he was just kidding, but there are a lot of frustrated fishermen chomping at the bit to get their shot at the schools of rockfish that are starting to improve in size.

The run of great speckled trout fishing off the lower shore has come to a halt as a result of the recent weather conditions. I am hoping this is just a temporary lull and the fish have sought more stable water temperatures by seeking deeper holes. If and when the weather stabilizes, I am hoping there will be a limited fishery as the remaining fish return to the sun-warmed shallows. Good speckled trout fishing was still occurring inside Rudee Inlet early in the week.

The Virginia Beach and Ocean City offshore fleets are still experiencing excellent daytime sword fishing, with boats often getting double digit hook-ups per tip. Wahoo, some weighing around the century mark, are still being caught out of Virginia Beach. One giant wahoo tipped the scales at 116 pounds but was not eligible for recognition by the Virginia Saltwater Fishing Tournament because it was caught using an electric reel.

Upper Shore – Captain Matt Abell, of the Sea Hawk Sports Center, said that his last charter party, which occurred late in the week, fished over deep water structure, west of Smith Island, Md. Matt said that catching limits of fish was no problem as there were rockfish stacked over every rock-pile that he fished in depths of 10 to 35 feet. Captain Abell reported that all of the bird activity that he has observed has been occurring from Hooper’s Island, Md., and north, but he expected to see the flocks of birds marking feeding fish shifting south as the falling water temperatures cause more and more of the stripers and the migrating baitfish to school up. In the Pocomoke River, crappie are cooperating for anglers casting small live minnows and 2-inch curly tails. Some of the best action is occurring near Nassawango Creek.

Chincoteague – Rockfish continue to be caught around the bridge pilings along the causeway as well as the Assateague Bridge, with best action occurring during periods of high tidal flow. Most of the fish have been under the 28-inch coastal striped bass minimum size limit. Expect to see more and larger fish arriving as the water temperature continues to fall. Small stripers and bluefish have been caught from the surf as well as at least one slot-sized red drum this week. Offshore, black sea bass and bluefish are available over the deep-water wrecks, but ocean conditions have been unfavorable for most boats to venture out of port.

Lower Shore – Jeb Brady, at Bailey’s Bait & Tackle in Cape Charles, reports that the speckled trout fishing is starting to fade as the weather cools. He said that small stripers are abundant along the bayside but most fish have been under the minimum size limit. He said that anglers are hoping to see bigger fish as a result of the recent cold snap.

Mark Snook, at Chris’ Bait & Tackle, reported that anglers have been finding rockfish in the 24- to 25-inch class along the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. Mark said there have also been some stripers caught off the rocks/jetties out of Cape Charles. The pier at the Kiptopeke State Park has started to produce a few striped bass catches. Chris’ Bait & Tackle will be having its annual Black Friday Sale on November 29, which will feature discounts throughout the store as well as 60 pairs of Costa Del Mar sunglasses on sale for under $100/pair!

The Virginia Saltwater Fishing Tournament Committee, better known as the “Citation Program,” met on Monday, November 18, at the Virginia Marine Resources Commission’s new location at Fort Monroe in Hampton, Va. The committee inserted language into the program’s 2020 tournament that will prohibit the controversial practice of towing live striped bass and cobia behind a moving boat. The program also approved the addition of a state record category for tripletail, a southern fish that is showing up in increasing numbers in Virginia each year. It will take a fish weighing at least 8 pounds to qualify for the initial state record for the species. Tripletail are not currently eligible for citations in Virginia.

Bill Hall was the first Eastern Shore resident to achieve Virginia Salt Water Master Angler Status. He has been named Virginia Saltwater Angler of the Year and Virginia Saltwater Release Angler of the Year and is a Virginia Press Association award-winning sports columnist.

Lady Bulls Visit Lady Monarchs

On Friday, Nov. 1, the Northampton Middle School Girls Basketball team, the Lady Bulls, took an educational and sports trip to see the Lady Monarchs of Old Dominion University as they hosted Christopher Newport University at an exhibition game. After the game, the Lady Bulls had a meet-and-greet session with the Lady Monarchs where the Lady Bulls learned about the college process and expectations to balance both academics and athletics. The Lady Bulls were guided by assistant coach and recruiting coordinator Brittany Young of ODU on a tour of the practice facility. The team has been invited back by the Lady Monarchs for an upcoming training and camp session. In the 2018-19 school year, the Lady Bulls placed second in both the district and the tournament. The Lady Bulls are coached by Ernest Bethel and assisted by Charlena Jones, a volunteer team coordinator.

Missing You on Your Birthday

You were very kind and thoughtful with a warm & loving heart and when other people needed help, you always played your part. You're thought of every single day whatever time of year, but somehow more than ever Now your special day is here No present can be given and that's really very hard, but there's a world of love inside this special little card Each memory is shining bright & treasured dearly too But memories can't take the place of you

Love, your husband: Tyrone, son: T.W., daughters: Tyrontha, Renae, grandkids: Boogie, La'Meere, Jordan, Carmel, Desi, Derrick, Brandon & Germauri

I WOULD LIKE TO THANK EVERYONE FOR THEIR PRAYERS, CARDS, PHONE CALLS, AND CONCERNS DURING MY RECENT SURGERY. MY THANKS GO TO DR. JEANNE ROLL AT ATLANTIC MEDICAL CENTER, DR. PASCHALL AND STAFF AT RIVERSIDE IN ONLEY, DR. LEESCH AND STAFF AT RIVERSIDE IN NEWPORT NEWS FOR THEIR GREAT CARE AND ALSO TO PASTOR HYUNHO AND MIYEON LEE, AND MY WONDERFUL FAMILY. THANK YOU ALL.

Stanley (Bunky) Annis

The wife and family of William F. Dix Jr. would like to thank Parksley Volunteer Fire Dept. and Williams Funeral Home for all that they did to help us at our time of grieving and the passing of my husband and the kids' father. As well as all who attended the funeral service, and all who brought food to the firehouse, everything was wonderful.

Thank you for the help you gave, Trina and Stephanie. I want to thank my step-daughter, Trina Bradshaw, and step-granddaughter, Stephanie B. Chance, for making things a lot easier with the help they gave me during Bill's stay in the hospital and at his death.

Thank you all and may God bless all of you.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Northampton County Planning Commission will meet on Tuesday, December 3, 2019 at 7:00 p.m. in the Board Chambers located at 16404 Courthouse Road in Eastville, Virginia. The purpose is to conduct regular business and review applications to forward recommendations to the Board of Supervisors.

Withdraw from Hare Valley AFD: GPSP LLC has petitioned to remove three parcels of land from the Hare Valley AFD totaling 97.93 acres. The removal of the 97.93 acres will cause the Hare Valley AFD to fall below the 200-acre core. The parcels are located off of Milton Ames Drive in Exmore. They are further described as Tax Map Numbers 15-A-114, 15-A-112, and 15-A-80A.

SUP 2019-10 Bed and Breakfast: Lynn Allison has applied for a minor special use permit for her property located at 11261 Johnson Town Road to be used as a Bed and Breakfast. This property is zoned H/R-Hamlet/Residential and is further described as Tax Map 40-A-12.

The Board of Supervisors shall also conduct public hearings on Tuesday, December 10, 2019 at 6:00 p.m. in the Board Chambers. The applications will be on file and open to public inspection in the office of the Clerk of the Board of Supervisors and in the Office of Planning, Permitting, and Enforcement located at 16404 Courthouse Road, Eastville, VA.

Anyone wishing to comment on the above item is invited to attend the meetings and make their comments known. Written comments can be submitted to the Office of Planning, Permitting, and Enforcement/P.O. Box 538//Eastville, VA 23347.

Handicapped assistance available: Please telephone (757) 678-0440 at least 48 hours in advance.

SHOREnough

By David Martin

You're going to have a lovely time next Thursday. The food will be great. Your family will be loving. At the end of the day, you'll say, "This was the best Thanksgiving ever."

Unless Uncle Bill starts in about the impeachment hearings and Cousin Beverly grabs the electric carving knife and threatens to remove Bill's giblets, wherever those might be located on Bill. And your niece's boyfriend, the one with all the piercings, lectures everyone about 46 million turkeys being slaughtered at Thanksgiving so "I hope you enjoy your murderous flesh meal," to which Grandfather Kevin, who raises turkeys, throws a drumstick. Grandmother Karla claims heart palpitations and leaves the table clutching her chest. Uncle Ralph is drunk. And you make a silent pledge to never, ever host family Thanksgiving again.

But you made that pledge last year and you'll host Thanksgiving next year so let's see what we can do to keep damage to a minimum.

Separate combatants. You have to assign seats at the table with the care of a U.N. summit meeting. Rachel is fresh from college and refers to Thanksgiving as "Thanks-taking" because that's what we did to the Indians (took everything from them). Don't sit her next to the football fan wearing a Redskins sweatshirt.

If things do start to heat up, don't say, "Calm down." Telling people to calm down almost always has the opposite effect. Instead, use some de-escalation techniques employed by police.

Like many police departments, the Seattle, Wash., police use LEED: Listen and Explain with Equity and Dignity. You listen to the person's complaint or problem, you explain what you're going to do about it and why your action is equitable, and then you take that action while treating the person with dignity. Seattle also advises its police to give warnings calmly, including a Taser "spark display." We do not recommend using a Taser spark display to get Uncle Bill to stop talking about impeachment, but we bet it would be effective.

You can also delay and divert.

Delay: "Rachel, dear, we would love to hear why you think redskins is a racial epithet but could you hold off until your father finishes carving the turkey? You know how he adores an audience."

Divert: "Bill, your mentioning impeachment reminds me of your mother's peach cobbler. Did those peaches come from your own trees?"

Here's an oddball suggestion: We could stop hating each other. In church we learned to hate the sin, love the sinner, but in politics and on social media the practice has become oppose policies and hate opponents.

The hatred on Facebook and other social media is heartbreaking and, to give just two examples from politics: Democrats have called Republican supporters "deplorable," and Republicans have worn shirts declaring they'd rather be a Russian than a Democrat.

This has to stop. Whether things will improve at the national level or in social media is debatable, but we can start making changes at the Thanksgiving table. "I don't like your T-shirt, but you're a human, an American, and a member of my family. I love you."

Love is all powerful. Love is what made the Velveteen Rabbit become a real bunny. Ask Grandpa Kevin about bunnies. He says he can kill, gut, and dress a rabbit in under a minute. Tasers are legal for civilians in 48 states.

Editor Connie Morrison will write next week's column.

Climate Change Cause the End of Local Traditions and Economic Devastation

Dear Editor:

I have been coming to Chincoteague since 1975. We bought a house there in 2012 and moved permanently there in 2017. In the years since our first visit, we have seen dynamic migration southward and westward of the Assateague Island shoreline. The power of the ocean is massive over time. Experts are saying sea level will rise one to two inches a year if climate change is not addressed. Do the math, think what a 4+ foot rise in sea level will mean for your grandchildren. Much of the Eastern Shore will be permanently under water or dramatically affected by regular high tides, let alone storms.

The waterman culture and traditions so wonderfully preserved and honored will all but disappear, as will the aquaculture now proliferating. The economic impact of this sea level rise will be drastic. Tourism and the associated dollars will shrink tremendously. Yet politicians who deny this science and the inevitable bad outcomes continue to get votes. Voters who really care about the long term future of the Shore need to think long and hard about the regional suicide being committed by those pols who refuse to deal with this.

Eleven months before the next election. Think about it and stay dry.

Richard Saunders, Chincoteague

Hats Off to Principal Myers, Breakfast Champion

Dear Editor:

October was National Principals Month. It's an opportunity to honor and celebrate principals in our communities. I'd like to recognize Principal Mike Myers for his hard work to promote Northampton High School's Breakfast After the Bell program.

One in seven children in Virginia lives in families that struggle with hunger. We know Breakfast After the Bell, a program that increases access to school breakfast by making it a part of the school day, is a proven way to help end childhood hunger.

There are also academic benefits: Research indicates that eating breakfast at school helps children improve classroom performance, attendance and promotes healthy habits.

After Northampton High implemented a Breakfast After the Bell program in 2017, breakfast participation among free and reduced-price lunch eaters increased by 30 percent in a one-year period.

Principal Myers is a breakfast champion and his support of Northampton High's Breakfast After the Bell program has ensured more high school students start their day ready to learn.
