Supervisors Irate Over School Board's 'Secret' Stash

By Linda Cicoira

One side paints an image of stacks of paper money. There is a narrow path between the clutter that allows those in charge to turn sideways to navigate.

The vision was provided Monday night by Accomack Supervisor Donald Hart, who said the School Board has been "hoarding" millions of dollars since 2010, possibly for a purchase.

He later said he was referring to the School Board's desire to buy Shore Bank Headquarters in Onley for its Central Office. Another official said the building was available at one time for about $3 million.

The other version, outlined in a PowerPoint presentation at a School Board meeting the following night by Schools Finance Director Beth Onley, shows yearly disclosures of the money. It's a tale about the $6.2 million from the state that wasn't spent so a percentage of the overall budget of $50 million could be saved for emergencies. She contends these funds can't be used to buy just anything.

Supervisors complained about a lack of transparency in School Board activities, including sessions that are not broadcast live.

School Board member Dr. Ronnie Holden said Tuesday the division is working toward that goal. However, those board members were asked repeatedly to speak up at the session. They would then pass a microphone around, but they still were difficult to hear.

The supervisors complained that Accomack County Public Schools (ACPS) should have disclosed information about the funds when asking for $1.8 million to build a new gym, cafeteria and cold storage facility at Kegotank Elementary. Bonds were obtained for the expense and now the supervisors have threatened to hold back that amount so they can repay the loan as interest is accruing.

Both sides agreed that ACPS needs to spend the money in the next year or two or the state will take it back. Board of Supervisors Chairman Ron Wolff complained that ACPS was able to save by first spending local money.

Monday's supervisors' meeting was set to discuss the overall $59 million FY 2016-17 budget, which the board approved 8-1. It raises the real-estate tax rate by 3 cents per $100 (in all but Chincoteague, which has its own fire/rescue system) to fund nine new fire/medics.

Supervisor Harris Phillips cast the opposing vote. He said that because of unspecified waste throughout county departments, he could not vote to raise taxes.

About $17 million of the county budget is local money for schools. In addition to withholding the $1.8 million, the supervisors discussed the appropriation of another $853,000 that was spent by the School Board to give bonuses to its employees. In the end, the supervisors did not vote on making any appropriations until more information is available. The budget year starts July 1.

Attending Monday's supervisors' meeting were Onley, new ACPS Superintendent Chris Holland, School Board member Janet Turner, and ACPS Operations and Management Chief Mike Tolbert.

Holland was praised by several supervisors in advance for being the person who will straighten out the money dilemma. He was asked no questions by the supervisors and would not comment as he left the session.

Onley listened to the supervisors' questions and complaints Monday night and then simply told them, "I have plenty of answers, but I have to report to the School Board."

The next night, Onley said the fund balance was explained to County Finance Director Mike Mason in a memo dated Feb. 11, 2013, and was noted in yearly disclosures. She showed the documents on a big screen and stated that the funds are for "hundreds of projects."

"You know it's a goal of ours to have a contingency fund," she said. "I don't think having a contingency fund is hoarding money." She compared the savings to the county's Rainy Day Fund, which is 13.3 percent of the county budget. The school division's plan is to have 4 percent ($2 million). Onley said they have $4.3 million.

Supervisors Grayson Chesser, Paul Muhly and Harris Phillips attended the School Board meeting. None of them spoke in the public session.

"My confidence was severely shaken by all this and I didn't hear anything tonight that restored it," Chesser said. "Hopefully, when we get a written report at our board meeting, it will be."

Onley had suggested the School Board talk in depth about the money at its next session April 19 so she could report to the supervisors the next night.

"This evening ... we heard a version that it was entirely different as to the carryover monies that we heard about last night," Muhly said Tuesday. "There is obviously a difference of opinion ... which has to be reconciled. Somebody's got to come up with some hard figures as to what happened to these carryover funds."

"Our Rainy Day Fund takes care of them (ACPS)," Chesser later noted. "They don't need a Rainy Day Fund. Contingency is for more minor unexpected occurrences. "The county's contingency fund is less than 1 percent."

The Rainy Day Fund is for a catastrophic emergency like a destructive hurricane after which the county would need money to operate. The supervisors put $806,980 in that fund in the budget they passed Monday, as well as the current budget.

"With the new budget, we have slightly over $10 million" in the Rainy Day Fund, County Administrator Steve Miner said Wednesday. "The board's policy goal is 16.7 percent of operating revenues, including schools. We have been increasing it some each year to reach our goal. This brings us to 13.7 percent, I believe."

Mason said he learned from the state Department of Education during a conference call Monday afternoon that the money ACPS has retained could be spent for any "public education expense." Though Onley was in on that call, she said she called the state official back and got information that makes her believe otherwise.

Mason told the supervisors they can withhold appropriations, but he cautioned against going over $2 million since that could interfere with matching funds. They also could stop providing money in a "lump sum" to ACPS as they historically have done. Instead, the county could do it by categories.

"We have a lot of poor people in this county and they struggle to pay their taxes," Chesser said Monday. "The real problem with the School Board is ... spending ... this bothers me really bad. You come to us and ask us to borrow $1.8 million when you're sitting on that money."

"Most of the School Board members knew what they wanted" at a joint meeting with the supervisors last year, Chesser said. "But they didn't say boo. The lack of transparency ... I have hopes that Mr. Holland will cure ... that stuff."

"It seems to me when the School Board came and asked for this money, the board (of supervisors) thought they meant it," said Muhly.

Supervisor Robert Crockett wanted more information about ACPS' plans for the $4.6 million. "We asked them Feb. 17 for a report showing us any obligations ... I'd like to see the report ... before ... a vote to take any funds away."

Said Supervisor Reneta Major, "It's hard for people who are pro-schools ... if you're not coming clean, so to speak ... you come back and give us a report definitely before appropriations or in the near future. It needs to happen."

Hart, a retired teacher and guidance counselor who now works for a school contractor, said buses are "far behind on rotation, teachers and children are not getting supplies. "Teachers are not being compensating as they should."

"Previous superintendents ... have been hoarding this money and for what purpose?" Hart asked. "Was this money put aside so they could buy something? I think so. I know what they wanted to buy. It's wrong. And I'm hoping and praying Mr. Holland" will solve the problems. "How can you defend giving more to someone who's been hoarding this much money when they tell us they are poor? I have lost faith in this School Board."

"This process is nothing new," said Wolff. "We're just getting back what we gave you that you didn't need in the first place. You weren't fair with us."

At Tuesday's School Board meeting, members nodded and smiled at Onley's presentation.

"We were trying to act prudent with the funds," said Holden, adding that he wants a contingency of "5 percent or better."

"It was knowledge that everybody should have known," School Board member Paul Bull said. He asked Chairwoman Margaret Miles to set up a meeting with the supervisors to clear up the issues. She agreed to do so.

Suit Claims Accomack Jailed Wrong Man

A former Eastern Shore resident filed a $250,000 lawsuit in Accomack Circuit Court last week, claiming that he was falsely arrested for two felony charges and imprisoned for 10 days.

Keith Bailey of Kinsdale, Va., named Accomack County, Sheriff Todd Godwin, and Deputy Simone (Sam) Castiglia in his complaint. Bailey claims that Castiglia showed “complete disregard” for his rights and “acted with such disregard that his conduct constituted gross negligence.”

Bailey is requesting a jury trial and wants $200,000 in compensatory damages and the rest in punitive damages. He also is asking for interest on damages, costs and “other and further relief as the court deems just and proper.”

He contends that on Nov. 6, 2014, the sheriff’s office and Castiglia “issued a warrant for the arrest of one Keith Bailey for two felony offenses of credit card fraud greater than $200,” occurring Oct. 8, 2014.

During an investigation, “Castiglia interviewed a store clerk at Vernon Powell Shoes in Onley ... Florence Mathews, who identified the individual committing the credit card fraud via a composite pulled from surveillance video from Walmart (in) ... Onley ... where the first ... fraud was committed.” Mathews said the suspect’s name was Keith Bailey. “The correct Keith Bailey’s build was particular and easily distinguishable in the composite as a tall and slender build,” the complaint states. “The plaintiff has a height of 5’2” and a weight of 198 pounds.”

“Castiglia failed to properly identify the proper individual ... no attempt was made to contact the plaintiff to ascertain if he was the Keith Bailey identified by Ms. Mathews.”

On Feb. 2, 2015, Bailey was arrested in Warsaw, Va. He was held in North Neck Regional Jail and later taken to Accomack Jail. He said he told Deputy R.D. Taylor, who arrested him, “numerous times that he had not lived in Accomack County for years and specifically was not in Accomack on Oct. 8, 2014. Despite the plaintiff’s continued plea of innocence ... Taylor had the plaintiff imprisoned.” He was held until Feb. 11, 2015.

The lawsuit claims that “the plaintiff made numerous attempts to assert his innocence and mistaken identity ... by requesting to speak with law enforcement officials and speaking with his attorney.”

On April 15, 2015, the commonwealth’s attorney’s office decided not to prosecute the charges, citing “bad ID by victim wrong Keith Bailey.”

Bailey claims “that the arrest ... was an intentional restriction of (his) freedom of movement,” and that he suffered greatly as a result.

Accomack County, Godwin and Castiglia have 21 days from the date they are served with the lawsuit to respond. Godwin was contacted Monday and declined to comment.

Eastville Seeks Rezoning to Commercial

By Ron West

Eastville Town Council submitted requests to the Northampton Planning Commission to rezone several properties from Residential (R-20) to Commercial General (C-G).

Mayor Jim Sturgis noted that council intends to create a commercial district at the intersection of Lankford Highway and Willow Oak Drive, east of the highway.

Area residents Benjamin Mears IV and Amanda Mears were the only members of the public to speak at the public hearing; neither opposed the request.

County Zoning Administrator Melissa Kellam noted that should the zoning be changed, a home on the property could continue to serve as a residence until it is vacant for two years. Should that occur, Kellam said that as commercial property, it could not serve as a residence.

Sturgis stated that no business has indicated it wishes to locate on the property and there may be some interest in joining the properties to form a larger lot by vacating the property lines.

Several commissioners raised concerns that the proposed changes do not agree with the town's Comprehensive Plan.

They said that while they consider the proposed changes a positive move for Eastville, Town Council first needs to update the Comprehensive Plan with regard to the Highway Corridor District.

Sturgis and council agreed to meet with Kellam to work out issues with the proposed change and then return to the Planning Commission.

Goodman Family Eager To Give Back to March of Dimes

By Angie H. Crutchley

Jarrold and Whitney Goodman moved to the Eastern Shore from North Carolina three years ago for his job at Tyson Foods.

They fell in love with the place and decided to start a family, which proved difficult. But in 2015 Whitney got pregnant via intracytoplasmic sperm injection with in-vitro fertilization (ICSI IVF).

"I was so cautious during my pregnancy, because we had been wanting this for so long," Whitney said.

But one early Friday morning just a little over 31 weeks into her pregnancy, her water broke. She was sent to Children's Hospital of The King's Daughters (CHKD) in Norfolk, where the medical team was concerned with the development of her unborn son's lungs. They gave her two sets of steroids. She had to remain in labor for 24 hours with the first set. The second steroid dose got her through another 48 hours. Whitney was in the hospital for seven days.

Knox Goodman was ushered into this world at four pounds, 12 ounces on Aug. 13, 2015, by an entourage of 14 doctors.

According to Whitney, Knox was born with a host of health problems, including trouble breathing on his own and an inability to regulate his own temperature. He was in an incubator in the neonatal intensive-care unit (NICU) for four-and-a-half weeks.

"I wouldn't leave my baby," said Whitney. She stayed in the hospital with him until the doctors gave him the OK to return to their Accomac home.

During that long stay, Whitney became well-acquainted with the March of Dimes (MOD) "One in 10 babies is born prematurely," she said. "There were many little babies in the NICU for five months or longer. Many of the parents had to go back to work. I would see the volunteers from March of Dimes come in and hold the little babies — rock them, feed them and show them love until their parent got back for the day. I knew right then I wanted to support March of Dimes in any way I could."

Susan Turner, community director for MOD, has announced that Knox Goodman is the 2016 MOD ambassador. This year's walk will take place Sunday, May 1, at the old Onancock School. The 3.9-mile walk has drawn more than 20 teams, with a goal of raising $60,000.

Turner, who started as volunteer in the 1980s, said, "They are a great family and Knox is just the most adorable little boy!"

"It was an honor for Knox to be chosen as the ambassador," said Jarrod, who also participates in Team Tyson Foods.

"About 4 million babies were born prematurely last year and benefited from the March of Dimes," said Turner. "We have a slogan, 'CARES' — which stands for Community. Advocacy. Research. Education. Support. In the local community, we work with the health department for education, support and advocacy with a mentoring program for pregnant teenagers. We encourage mothers to go full-term with their pregnancies. And Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital screens for 32 newborn disorders and helps support new mothers through their research."

Anyone wishing to donate to Team Knox Goodman can do so at web site, www.marchforbabies.org/knoxgoodman and anybody wanting to start a team or with questions can email Turner at sturner@marchofdimes.com

Local Nurse Passes Away

Unez Meschelle Hughes, 61, passed away at her father's home in Cape Charles Thursday, March 31, 2016, surrounded by her family.

Born in Cape Charles, she was the first of five children born to William Hughes and the late Mary Hughes. Her role as the first born, being a caregiver to her younger siblings, carried over into her choice of a career in the nursing profession, providing aid and comfort to many residents of Northampton County, as did her mother Mary. The two shared a very deep and loving bond, sharing joys and heartaches through the years. They would shop together, garden together, just enjoy life together. When the entire family came together, Meschelle's heart was filled with so much more joy

Blake Johnson Meets Challenge of NYC Marathon

Blake Johnson is the first to tell you he doesn't look like the typical marathoner.

"I'm 5-foot-7 and stocky. Most long-distance runners are tall and lean."

But run a marathon he did, and Johnson learned something about himself in the process.

On the first Sunday of November 2015, Johnson was among more than 50,000 runners who started on the Verazano-Narrows Bridge in New York City and covered 26.2 miles through all five boroughs of the city. The New York City Marathon, maybe not as well-known as the Boston Marathon, which is set for April 18, is the largest marathon in the world.

"I wasn't too concerned about the physical aspect of running a marathon. I endured far worse physically in 13 years in the Service. I was more concerned with the time it took to prepare for a marathon," said Johnson earlier this week from his second-floor office at the Island House Restaurant in Wachapreague, where he can overlook the marsh leading to the Atlantic Ocean in the distance.

"It was a huge time commitment to get ready. I started in early summer, the busiest time of the year here. The staff was a tremendous support. Every day I would be gone an hour or more running around Wachapreague. Or Debbie (Shrieves) would drop me off on the way to the bank, and I would run back to the restaurant. Everyone pitched in and helped," said Johnson.

"But you know, that time away from the restaurant helped me in many ways. I would be totally unplugged from the world for that hour. I would return physically exhausted, but mentally refreshed."

Johnson had never run a marathon before, but he did wrestle and run cross country in high school in his native Minnesota while also playing ice hockey growing up. And then there were the 13 years of military service which tested him physically in many ways.

But, still, he has been out of the service for eight years and just turned 40 years old. "There were many days I was walking around with ice bags on my knees or a bandage wrapped around my leg. Just when the pain got so bad I thought I couldn't go on, it would ease up and let me continue training," said Johnson.

Running a marathon wasn't exactly at the forefront of Johnson's mind when 2015 dawned.

Last June, Johnson had a visitor at his home who was introduced to him by an old Navy buddy and has become a good friend. "He's a member of the New York City Police counter-terrorism team and convinced me to join his group, which competes against the city firemen. Our group was placed right behind the elite and professional runners at the start line. It was a neat experience," recalled Johnson.

He upped his pace gradually last summer and by September, was running 40 miles a week. His longest run prior to the marathon was 20 miles. His total mileage prior to the marathon was just over 400 miles.

In addition to his staff at the restaurant, Johnson's family also supported him and made sacrifices along the way.

"My wife Martha has run a marathon before, so she knew about the preparation involved. But we have three young children (Faith, 11, Gracie, 9, and Wyatt, 3), and I would have to get up at 4:30 a.m. on Sundays to get in a long run before church services. In the summer, Sunday is the only day I take off from work, so I hated taking time away from the family on that day. But they understood and supported me. It was nice that the entire family was there in New York City to watch me cross the finish line."

Marathons are unique in the sporting world in that they include amateur and professional runners in the same event.

"Think about it, it would be like playing baseball on the same field with the pros," explained Johnson.

However, since he was close to the start by virtue of being placed with the New York City Police team with thousands of runners lined up behind him, he found himself running too fast at the start of the race.

"I looked at my watch and saw I was doing 8:30 minutes per mile, which was a full minute over my training time. I thought there was no way my watch could be right, but I was getting passed by top runners and found myself running too fast to keep up."

Blake settled down and kept a steady pace, although he admits the final 10 miles, mostly uphill, were a struggle. He completed the run in 4:13. A sensor in his bib told him how many miles he had completed. In fact, his family could track him online and determine his exact whereabouts through the sensor.

"It was a beautiful day after having been very cold the year before," recalled Johnson. "I think some of the runners who had run the year before had overdressed, and there were clothes strewn everywhere along the course. The crowd treated you like rock stars. They were great."

Johnson lived in Virginia Beach for 14 years while in the military and knew of the Eastern Shore through visits to John Payne of Quinby, his financial backer at the Island House, where Johnson is the owner/operator. But he said that visiting the Shore is different than knowing the Shore.

"I think to understand the Shore, it is a rite of passage for you to take your family for a boat ride and find a sandbar to enjoy for an afternoon. It's also nice when you share company with friends on a sandbar.

Sundays on a sandbar to me makes the Shore a special place to live."

Johnson said he feels blessed to have found the Shore and loves getting to know his customers at the Island House. The quiet life he leads now is in stark contrast to his days in the military.

"I was away from my family as many as 280 days a year. In 2006, I was shot in Afghanistan. I still have the helmet which shows the mark left by an AK47. I realized then, as a family man, it was time for me to consider other options. I was fortunate that I had the opportunity to come here and run the Island House," said Johnson, who earned his degree in psychology and education in the service under the GI Bill. He also earned a commercial pilot's license after leaving the service.

"We are far from perfect at the restaurant, but we try every day to make it a really good experience to dine here. I enjoyed my time in the Navy and think about it every day, always thinking I would spend 20 years in the service, but I don't regret the decision that led me to the Eastern Shore."

Blake Johnson ran a marathon last November in New York City.

Nandua Blanks Arcadia 10-0

Nandua blanked Arcadia Monday at home as Mike McCluskey pitched a one-hit shutout, striking out eight batters and collecting two of the three Warrior hits on the day, including a double.

Eleven free passes issued by the Firebirds led to their defeat.

Garrett Baylis scored three runs for the Warriors, and Evan McGregor had three RBIs.

Nandua base runners were 9 of 9 in stolen bases and have now been thrown out only twice in 42 attempts.

Nandua Splits Pair

Lancaster pushed across a run in the bottom of the seventh inning to edge Nandua 4-3 last Thursday at Lancaster High School.

The Warriors managed only four hits, all singles, by Derek Bjorlo, Matthew Teasley, Kelly Reagan and Waylon White. Bjorlo and Reagan each had an RBI.

Austin Atkinson started and pitched 3.2 innings, allowing only one hit and an earned run. Evan McGregor pitched the final 2.1 innings, giving up only the winning run on three hits.

Nandua overcame a 4-0 Washington & Lee lead after the opening half inning to take a 9-6 win Thursday afternoon on the road at Lancaster.

Bjorlo and Evan McGregor each had two hits, while Hunter Hickman scored three runs. Bjorlo clubbed his third triple of the season. McGregor, Teasley and White collected two RBIs each. Jake Guy, Mike McCluskey, Teasley and White each had one hit.

Nandua scored four runs in the fifth inning to overcome a two-run deficit.

Starter Jake Guy survived a shaky start, giving up four runs in the top of the first, but held W&L to two runs the rest of the way to get the win.

Warrior coach Luke Brankley said, "Overall, we played pretty well as a team during the tournament."

Ponies Romp

Chincoteague defeated Northampton Wednesday 18-1 in a game stopped after three innings.

Vikings Fall to SA

Broadwater suffered an 11-1 home loss to Southampton Monday with nine of the visitors' runs coming in the third inning.

Ben Farlow, Austin Murphy and Andrew Hart each had doubles, with Farlow getting the lone RBI. Andrew Hart also had a single.

Farlow started and took the loss, striking out five in 2.2 innings.

Jackets Get Soccer Win

The Northampton boys' soccer team defeated New Kent 4-1 Monday night at home, with Noah Leffel scoring three goals and Bayron Ortiz adding one. Junior Gildo had three assists.

Northampton coach John Gorman said the defense played great behind Jose Palacio, Brian Terron, Garrett Marsh, and Elian Morales. Mawyer Garvis had an outstanding game at mid-field, added Gorman.

Ashlyn Arnold scored two goals in the first half on assists by Erica Head and Taylor Webb in a 3-0 win over Middlesex Wednesday at home. Nohemi Montalvo scored a second-half goal to finish the scoring.

Parker Murphy pitched to the minimum nine batters over three innings against Southampton on Monday in a 6-1 Viking loss. First baseman Heather Custis awaits the throw.

Coach Tabi Webb said Brenda Guerrero and Karla Benavides had outstanding games at the outside back positions.

By Linda Cicaira

On this day 250 years ago, the first fire escape was patented. It was a wicker basket that moved on a pulley and chain to get people out of danger. I guess they didn't think about how flammable the carrier was. Still, it saved lives and was a start. So, Yippee.

One account says the first aerosol dispenser was patented in April 1862, while another lists the first aerosol spray can patent as being granted in Oslo in April 1927. Either way, the mosquito and your underarm aroma are being battled and that can only mean good things.

In 1879, milk was sold in glass bottles for the first time in April. In the same week in 1867, the Alaska Purchase was made by the United States from the Russian Empire for $7.2 million. Someday, I will get my dream vacation there. I drank milk out of a bottle when I was a kid. Not all that long ago, in 1967 (about the time I was drinking the milk), the first Boeing 737 made its maiden flight.

The Beatles took all five top positions on the Billboard singles chart in April 1964 with "Can't Buy Me Love," "Twist and Shout," "She Loves You," "I Want to Hold Your Hand," and "Please Please Me." I can sing all of those. Can you?

If not, perhaps you remember the 5,000th episode of "The Price is Right" that aired in April 1998. Cars were the only prizes given away on that episode. Yippee! "Bob Barker" were the first words my younger brother spoke. It was probably in April but it was a long time before that show. About a quarter of a century.

April is also BLT Sandwich Month. I like mine with cheese, which brings up that it is also Grilled Cheese Month and Garlic Month. Oh, my favorite vegetable. Actually, the things that go on in April seem endless. There's Autism Awareness Month, Child Abuse Prevention Month, Confederate History Month, Financial Literacy Month, Keep America Beautiful Month, Lawn and Garden Month, National Humor Month, Jazz Appreciation Month, Pecan Month, Poetry Writing Month, Rape Awareness Month and Soft Pretzel Month.

Some strange things have happened in this month. In April 1561, UFOs were reported flying over Nuremberg. On April 6, 648 BC, the earliest solar eclipse recorded by the Ancient Greeks occurred. In 1966, hundreds of children and their teachers reported seeing a UFO over Melbourne, Australia. Galileo was convicted of heresy for announcing that the Earth revolved around the Sun in April 1633. In April 1897, a UFO crashed into a Texas farm. And in April 1966, two officers reported chasing a UFO at 5 a.m. in Ohio.

Remember the TV show, "Twin Peaks?" It premiered in April 1990. Two other shows — "Married ... with Children" and "The Tracey Ullman Show" — kicked off in April 1987. It was the same year that latter show featured a short with "The Simpsons."

On April 5, 1614, Princess Pocahontas married English colonist John Rolfe in Virginia.

In April 1895, Oscar Wilde was arrested and later found guilty of being a homosexual. He was sentenced to two years of hard labor.

In April of 1943, Albert Hoffmann accidentally discovered the psychedelic effects of lysergic acid diethyl amide (LSD). Ten Aprils later, the CIA started giving the drug to unwitting people in its quest for mind control.

In April 1933, prohibition was repealed for beer of no more than 3.2 percent alcohol by weight. In April 1896, Athens opened the first modern Olympic Games 1,500 years after they were banned. In one day in April 1907, the Ellis Island Immigration Center in New York processed 11,747 people, more than on any other day. In April 1881, Bat Masterson, a gunslinger, fought his last battle in Dodge City, was fined $8 and retired.

The strongest surface wind gust ever recorded on Earth, at 231 mph, was measured in April 1934 on the summit of Mount Washington, N.H. RMS (Royal Mail Steamer) Titanic hit an iceberg in April 1912, killing 1514 people. In April 1815, the Tamboura volcano in Indonesia killed almost 100,000 people. In April of 1995, a truck bomb exploded and killed 168 people in Oklahoma City. In April of 1999, 13 people were killed and 23 were injured at Columbine High School in Littleton, Colo. April also was when the Gestapo was established in 1933 and the Chernobyl Nuclear Power Plant disaster occurred in 1986.

But let's end this column with some good stuff. Insulin became available for use by people with diabetes in April 1923 and Simon & Schuster published the first crossword puzzle book in April of the next year. Yippee!

In April 1930, the BBC reported there was no news and then played out with piano music. I thought some of you would appreciate that last one. Have a great month.
