MARYLAND ROBBERY SUSPECTS SHOOT AT ACCOMACK DEPUTY; SUSPECTS STILL AT LARGE

By Linda Cicaira

It wasn't the latest game app, it was real life "Cops and Robbers" when suspects from the PNC Bank robbery in Pocomoke, Md. were spotted by an Accomack deputy near Mappsville Monday.

"The deputy attempted to stop the (silver newer-model Chevrolet Malibu) vehicle on Bethel Church Road, at which time gunshots were fired at the deputy, striking the deputy's patrol vehicle and ultimately disabling it," Sheriff Todd Godwin said in a prepared statement later that day. "The suspect vehicle was last observed traveling eastbound on Turkey Run Road near Mappsville."

Deputy Eric Nottingham spotted the vehicle and followed it, Godwin said later. The suspects "shot right through the engine, through the transmission line and all the fluid came out. He could no longer pursue them. Thank God they didn't hit him (Nottingham). I can't remember anybody shooting at one of our deputies in my 30 years" in law enforcement. "It is the first and last time," Godwin said adding, "he was in a marked unit."

Godwin said Nottingham was not hurt.

At about 2 p.m. the Accomack County Sheriff's Office was notified by the Seven to 8 inches of rain fell in northern Accomack. Rain collected in the courtyard at Chincoteague High School Thursday morning, and water went into the school. All county schools were closed. Operations Director Mike Tolbert said the high school has been cleaned and will reopen Friday.

Man Convicted of Killing Keller 3-Year-Old

By Linda Cicaira

Life without parole is being sought for a Pocomoke, Md. man convicted last week in Worcester County Circuit Court of striking his three-year-old nephew between 40 and 50 times including six times to the head and causing him to die from brain swelling.

The child, Luke Page Hill, of Keller, died May 5, 2015. He was visiting his aunt and uncle when the beating occurred.

It took about an hour for a 12-member jury to find Kevin M. Sewell, 28, of Oxford Street, guilty of first-degree murder, child abuse resulting in death and neglect of a minor. Sewell is being held in Worcester County Jail in Snow Hill, Md.

Juries in Maryland do not recommend a sentence. Prosecutors filed papers within the 30-day time limit to seek the maximum sentence of life without parole. Without that notice, Sewell would face a maximum of life in prison but could eventually be paroled. With the request, a pre-sentencing evaluation, which takes 30 to 60 days to perform, must be made. Northampton Supervisors Inch Towards EMS Solution

By Ron West

The Northampton supervisors inched the proposed Emergency Medical Services garage a bit closer to reality Tuesday by agreeing to hold the cost at $250,000.

The facility has been requested for several years by EMS Director Hollye Carpenter who reported emergency equipment remains outside exposed to the elements.

After reviewing a number of proposals, board members said they were unable to financially support the type of structure that has been requested in the past by Carpenter. Chairman Spencer Murray said the panel would continue to investigate possible options before accepting proposals. Funds to handle the cost of the structure are available in the county's Capital Improvement Plan.

Adding a second ambulance to the fleet was also discussed. Carpenter said Northampton received approval of a Rescue Squad Assistance Fund Grant that would cover approximately 80 percent of the cost or about $173,000. The board agreed to provide another $49,000 so the ambulance could be ordered. Plans to seek other sources of funding for equipment for the vehicle were also part of the conversation.

Young Farmers of Northampton County has offered to help repair a portion of the bleachers at the former middle school in Machipongo, where the Ag Fair will be held Oct. 15, Murray said. The group would provide the labor. About $1,300 for materials would be funded by the county. Murray said Northampton Lumber Company has offered to assist with painting.

Several changes to the 2016 Zoning Ordinance were discussed with a public hearing being slated for discussion and comment regarding front setbacks for some properties. Under current setback regulations, according to the discussion, certain properties might be unbuildable unless adjustments could be made to the front setback lines.

Supervisor Granville Hogg raised concerns over how changing the front setbacks might be viewed by some subdivisions, which have covenants regarding the positioning of structures on lots.

Murray reminded everyone the county does not have anything to do with subdivision covenants and that such issues would need to be worked out between the property owner and the subdivision. He also stated it was not the intent of the county to render a parcel unbuildable and that prospective buyers need to investigate homeowner covenants prior to purchase.

Hogg said three properties near Kiptopeke State Park, in his district, might need to have their permits reviewed. One is owned by Royal Farms and has been in limbo for several years.

Murray said permits for the properties were in order and the matter settled. Hogg pressed the board to request a ruling by the state attorney general's office on the legality of the permits. The chairman said the county attorney found no irregularities with the handling of the project and that there was no reason to believe that the state should be brought into the matter.

The adjacent property, Kiptopeke Inn, was renovated and is in operation. A nearby structure that once housed a Gulf service station is being refurbished, although no use for it has been indicated.

The Board recognized the recent 150th Anniversary of Shorter's Chapel in Bridgetown with a resolution.

No Injuries from Tangier Plane Crash

By Linda Cicaira

A single-engine Piper airplane crashed on the runway at the Tangier Airport when attempting to land Monday afternoon.

An investigation revealed "the nose of the plane bounced causing the front landing gear to break," according to 1st Sgt. Jeff Jones of the state police. The incident occurred about 1 p.m.

Pilot Jamison Simpson, 49, of Waldorf, Md. and his passenger, Leonard Baker, 64, of Washington, D. C. were not injured, Jones said. The runway was cleared for about two hours. Both men are pilots with about 10 years experience each.

Jones and Trooper Cameron Richardson responded to the call via the Accomack County Sheriff's Office's 25-foot Safeboat, a former Coast Guard vessel refurbished by deputies.

The ride "reduced the response time to the scene exponentially," Jones said thanking Sheriff Todd Godwin and two deputies. "From the time my office received the call until we were on scene was an astonishing 50 minutes. The addition of the sheriff's office boat was invaluable in this call."

Middle School Students (and Teachers) Rule Here and Abroad

3-D Printers Let Students Design Solutions

By Linda Cicoira

When Shane Kio was a kid, his superheroes came from the graphic images and stories in comic books.

One of Kio's favorites, The Green Lantern, had powers that gave him the ability to create just about anything.

The sixth-grade teacher at Nandua Middle School now has students with the same potential. Only, they use a 3-D printer instead of the ring of power to finish their tasks.

"They're not worried about someone else solving problems," the 19-year veteran teacher said of his students. "They make the solutions."

During Kio's career, the science instructor has carried around a heavy-duty stapler to connect volumes of papers. He lost the rubber pieces that kept the equipment from marring conventional desktops soon after he bought the tool.

So he did the first thing he could think of to fix it: He wound tape around it and kept going; accepting that his makeshift solution would have to suffice.

And then a student, David Gastellum, came along.

Last year, David studied the stapler for about 10 minutes. "You need new feet on the back," he told Kio. David took another 20 minutes to go to a computer and command the printer to create the parts. Then he fit them on the stapler. Voila!

"He fixed a problem I had for 15 years," Kio said.

Another student, Shane Melody, designed a foosball game part for another teacher. And yet another sixth grader, Matthew Taylor, designed the 3-D coordinate grid in which pins were dropped so that vision-impaired students at the school could read.

"There were literally dozens of other projects, but these stick out," Kio said later.

When a student broke both wrists when he fell off his scooter, "we designed for him insets for his pencil so he could hold it normally," the teacher continued. "We didn't send away for this. This was in-house a couple of years ago."

"We have to have 3-D printers in all the schools," said Kio.

Geographic Goodtimes with Glaciers and Geothermal

By Linda Cicoira

If you're planning a trip to Iceland, that Nordic country between the Atlantic and Arctic oceans, you might want to ask a Nandua Middle School student what to do while you're there.

Nine of them went to the far-off geothermic destination last summer for five days. They trekked up a glacier, stood atop an active volcano, dined on a feast cooked in a geothermal spring and put their hands on Icelandic ponies, which their 6th-grade science teacher Shane Kio recently compared to the Assateague herd.

"It was amazing," said Tyler Milliken, one of the travelers. "The waterfalls were brilliant, the glacier was impressive for being a small one, and the food was excellent."

"The whole trip was awesome," said another student, Carolyn Kio, who is also the teacher's daughter. "But my favorite part was drinking water from the top of a glacier."

Kio said, on the glacier, they got to see "scientists measure the depth of the ice and determine the rate of ice melt. We hiked down into the caldera of the active volcano Kerio, which has a 3,000-year-old lake at its center. The food we ate at the Hveragerði Geothermal Park was cooked by super-heated water inside a volcanic vent."

"We had a good time," said Kio. "We had fun. This is a trip of a lifetime. The kids paid for this - some by becoming ... entrepreneurs."

The younger Kio raised half of the $2,500 needed for the adventure by making t-shirts and selling home-made dog treats.

"Twenty years from now when these kids are out there (in the world) and they ask themselves, 'How am I going to make it?' (Their answer will be) I climbed a glacier in Iceland; how big of a problem can it really be?" Kio imagined.

"It was an amazing trip that worth every cent," said Jasmine Floyd. "I especially enjoyed hiking a glacier and seeing Icelandic horses."

"These things will stay with the children forever," said Kio. "We got to see a lot of geological formations."

"Visiting Iceland was the journey of a lifetime," said Stephen Hall. "Many new friends and memories were made that I will never forget. I hope to go back and visit one day."

The next excursion is being planned for Costa Rica in the summer of 2018.

"I haven't started signing people up yet," said Kio. "I'm hoping for about 20 travelers, including chaperones."

Technology and Necessity Survey: Phones, Internet

By Linda Cicaira

Technology reins in Accomack and Northampton where folks are using cell phones more than ever, according to a recent poll conducted by the Eastern Shore Post.

Ninety-three percent of those participating in the email survey have cell phones. About 62 percent still pay for landlines compared to 88 percent identified in a query six years ago.

Seventy percent of the current users surveyed are served by Verizon. Of those, 64 percent can make calls from home, while 12 percent get a weak signal and 24 percent get no reception at all.

More than 60 percent of participants said Verizon was also the company they use for internet. HughesNet was second with 16 percent. Charter got 13 percent. Eighty-five percent said they have DSL. Many said they prefer broadband, which is used by nearly 15 percent, mostly at work.

DirecTV and Dish Network were shown to equally supply TV services to participants with 40 percent each. Almost all survey-takers said they were pleased with the satellite companies. Some complained services are too costly.

All participants own a microwave oven. They were satisfied with a variety of brands. Kenmore was the most popular. More than 62 percent use electric cooking stoves while 15 percent use propane. GE was most popular stove.

Terry Ewell of Young's Creek has written both county boards of supervisors about cell signals. "Will it take someone dying, someone who needs to report an emergency situation and cannot get a cell signal to make a call to 911, to get adequate and dependable cell service on the Shore? Verizon customers are paying for a service that has deteriorated very badly since spring of 2015 ... due to inadequate equipment to handle the call volume, aging equipment and a lack of antennas to transmit signals," Ewell wrote.

Shore residents "deserve the same service as customers living ... in other areas of Virginia. I have been calling and complaining to Verizon for the last two years and Verizon has done nothing to improve.

... The service has gotten worse," Ewell continued.

"I hear people complaining all up and down the Shore. ... Action is required. Verizon is not going to do anything until we band together and voice our complaints to the people that can address the issue. I recently contacted local state representatives and I have filed a complaint with the Federal Trade Commission."

"I cannot afford a land line and a mobile phone," Ewell said. "There are many other people who cannot afford to have both. I have a mobile phone, because I am frequently traveling up and down the Shore."

Calls cannot be made or are dropped "in Capeville, Savage Neck, Indiantown Park, Nassawadox, Wachapreague, Willis Wharf, Jamesville, Painter, Onancock, Fisher's Corner, Parksley, Bloxom, Guilford, Miona, Withams, Chincoteague and other points," Ewell said. I have been told by Verizon employees ... equipment is outdated and cannot handle the call volume, especially during the summer months ... Verizon has no intention of installing more antennas on the Shore anytime in the near future."

Cherie Jester of Atlantic gets a cell signal at her house. She no longer has a landline. Jester has DSL at home and broadband at work. She prefers the latter. She is dissatisfied with package choices and the cost of DirecTV. "We are discussing and seriously considering termination."

Her microwave is a Panasonic. "We bought our first one (Genius model) nearly 32 years ago before our son was born and used it without issue for 30½ years!" she wrote. "We looked until we found a new, almost identical model and bought that early last year. Loving it too!"

Kathleen Crockett of the Parksley area uses ATT for her cell service. It picks up at home but the signal is "very weak." She does not have a landline. She uses Excede for internet. She is not happy with either but satisfied with DirecTV.

Jennifer Alley of Capeville cannot get a cell signal at home. She uses Verizon. "I have to go outside and walk a ways into a field," she wrote. Alley does not have a landline. "Cannot get internet service at our house. Verizon can only provide a fraction of what we would need," she added.

Haydon Rochester of Onancock uses a TracFone cell and Eastern Shore Communications for broadband internet access. He recommends both. He also has a landline and no service for television.

Edean Bundick of Greenbackville is happy with Verizon for internet and cell and recommends them. She said Dish is "expensive, but got to have something."

Doug Stewart of Wardtown said he doesn't have a cell "because when we moved here the only way to get a signal was from the roof. We do have a landline." He has Verizon DSL at home and broadband at work. He doesn't recommend Verizon. Stewart uses DirecTV and "except for the high cost, I'm very satisfied when it's not stormy."

James Schavel of Painter has Verizon cell and DSL. He said the internet connection is "SLOW" and he "barely" has a cell connection from home. He would not recommend either.

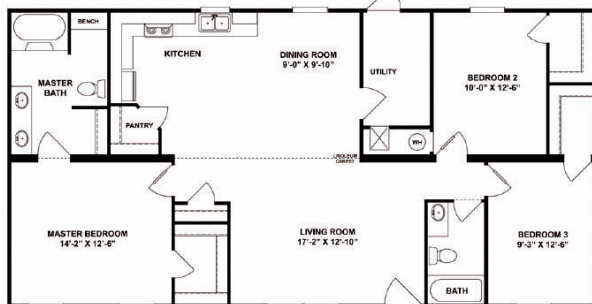

Ellen Spence of Chincoteague said her "Verizon cell service is expensive and has several large areas on the Shore that are 'black holes' with no service. Calls are dropped, text messages can take hours, even days, to reach recipient." She is satisfied with DSL from Charter and "reasonably satisfied" with the company for TV.

Nancy Kubar-Page of Parksley and her husband "use TracFone & Net 10 phones so service is provided by whoever picks up the signal best, mostly Verizon." They also have a landline and Verizon DSL. They would not recommend them. They are "moderately" satisfied with Dish. "I think the prices are obscene for TV viewing," she wrote.

Libby Hume of Machipongo can get a Verizon cell signal at her house when she is "outside on the deck or in the yard." She also has a landline. Hume has Verizon DSL at home. "I had Neubeam for several months, but it stopped receiving a signal," she wrote. She would recommend Verizon for cell but not for internet. She is very satisfied with DirecTV. Her microwave is a Sharp. "We've had it for close to 20 years and have never had a problem."

Brenda Harrie of the Parksley/Clam area uses a "TracFone because it's the cheapest." She "must travel to Rt. 13 for a signal." Harrie said she has a landline because of the poor cell service. She has internet. "It is very intermittent, very difficult to maintain a connection and a real headache to conduct any kind of business online," she added. The service is a Verizon hotspot. She would not recommend it. Harrie has DirecTV and says she pays "way too much for basic TV."

Stephen J. Rulison of Occohannock Neck is satisfied with the cell signal, landline and DSL he gets from Verizon and would recommend it to family and friends. He is also very satisfied with DirecTV.

Victoria Riggin-Bundick lives outside of Exmore and can get a cell connection with Verizon Wireless "most of the time." She doesn't recommend it. "Need new lines because internet is always going out but Verizon isn't going to put new lines in." She is "very satisfied" with DirecTV.

Barbara Stevenson of Silver Beach has a cell phone but can't get a signal at her house. She has a land line and DSL from Verizon. "No choice," she said.

Vic Pepler of Captain's Cove can't afford a cell phone. His landline and DSL are Verizon. "Internet is slow," he said. Pepler uses the internet for TV. "Very unhappy but better than paying for a dish."

Anthony Lofaso of Onancock is "sufficiently satisfied with Verizon Wireless. DSL gets slow due to shuttling but they gave me a new router/modem and things are better surprisingly better ... I was overdue for an upgrade anyway. I would definitely recommend ... but would caution about DSL depending on where they live... the less copper distance the better."

Lofaso said he uses By Linda Cicoira Bob Peters of Horsey is pleased with Consumer Cellular and myhughes.net for DSL. He no longer has a landline. He is very satisfied with DirecTV.

Joanne Laskowski of Nelsonia has AT&T service for her cell phone, which gets a signal "most of the time but not always." Her internet and landline are Verizon. "The one thing I hate about Verizon is their inability to resolve problems quickly," she wrote. "Customer service folks are very nice and helpful, but the system that they have to use" is not. "When we moved to Virginia, it took six months before Verizon could figure out the difference between our old service and our new service. You know it is bad, when the head person for repairs is at your house, after two other technicians ... and cannot resolve the problem and ... has to dial into Verizon using the same voice answering service" customers use. "He had no direct line."

She would still "probably" recommend Verizon "since there is no other game in town. They all fight over the city folks but couldn't care less about the rural areas." She is "very" happy with DirecTV due to "wonderful customer service."

Denise Bowden of Chincoteague Island "panics" when her cell is not "within reach. I absolutely hate that I have allowed myself to get so dependent on it. However, it's my lifeline in business and the organizations I belong to. When I can answer an email within seconds instead of waiting to get to a computer, that speaks volumes. ... I get a good signal at my house. Around the NASA area, forget it. I have Verizon."

She has a landline. "I can't seem to break away from it. I like the fact that when I may have to call 9-1-1 from my landline, my address automatically pops up in front of the dispatcher. ... That won't happen from a cell phone."

"I do believe Verizon has the best phone coverage but their internet service is severely lacking. I have recommended Charter for internet," Bowden said. "I have DirecTV and have been satisfied. As long as I can catch the score of the Yankees and watch Turner Classic Movies then I'm happy!"

Artima Taylor-Thornton of Accomac says her cell reception "depends on what part of the house I am in. If I am in the front of the house then the signal is strong ... in the back bedroom, it is very weak. I currently use Verizon." She uses a satellite system for internet and does not recommend it. She does not have a landline. She said Dish goes out "no matter what type of wind, rain, etc."

Reade Bonniwell of Quinby uses Verizon for cell, landline and DSL. "Speed is very slow and there are no options with the company," he wrote. "Verizon has little concern for customers service issues." For TV, he uses Dish Network. "Service is OK. But, way overpriced once you pass the introductory period."

Patrick Belote of Onancock uses Verizon. He has broadband at work at NOAA on Wallops Island. "My DSL isn't what it used to be, but I can still stream Netflix. Wallops Island has the ultimate. I'd recommend it but you can't get it." Belote uses Dish. "Mostly satisfied. I'm a little upset that I didn't have CBS for most of the summer due to some (kind of) contract dispute.

ESVA Missing From Debate Banners

By Linda Cicoir

This time the Eastern Shore was absent from a map of Virginia on banners in Longwood University's media room where the upcoming vice presidential debate will be held.

Jennings Custis, a reader who is originally from the Shore, saw a photo on the Farmville Area Chamber of Commerce Facebook page and immediately noticed the omission. Custis contacted the college and the Eastern Shore Post.

"I have contacted Longwood University about the error and was told two different answers: One that it was human error; and two, that it was not the image the university was trying to project," wrote Custis in an email on Wednesday.

Two of the banners were visible on the far wall. The debate is scheduled for Oct. 4. Virginia Senator Tim Kaine, the Democratic Party's candidate, has been a frequent visitor to Accomack and Northampton counties.

A Post reporter also called Longwood and was referred to media relations. The query was unanswered at press time Thursday.

"I was just offended that the Shore was left off the map in such a big event," Custis said.

Court Postings

Accomack Circuit Court

A former Eastern Shore of Virginia Association of Realtors employee from Parksley was arraigned in Accomack Circuit Court Thursday where she entered pleas of not guilty to 12 counts of embezzlement.

Laura Flournoy is accused of the crimes between July 2009 and May 2015. She told Judge W. Revell Lewis III she would waive a jury trial in favor of him deciding her case. The trial was set for Nov. 17.

"There have been no offers formal or informal in this case," said Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Spencer Murray.

Defense lawyer Carl Bundick said the two lawyers "had discussions" regarding the charges.

"It was a one-sided discussion, your honor," replied Murray.

In another case, a Snow Hill, Md. man pleaded guilty last week to grand larceny, assault and battery and violating a protective order in connection with incidents that involved his estranged wife in October 2014.

Judgment was deferred for Kelvin Williams Sr., 44, of Public Landing for the rape charge, which will be dismissed after he successfully completes a counseling program.

A search warrant stated the crimes occurred near Parksley. The victim was waiting for her two sons to return from a football game when she heard a knock at the door she thought was her children. Instead the defendant was at the door. She told him he could not be there because of the protective order.

The defendant said he wanted to talk but "he began slapping her in the face," forced her to disrobe and had sex with her, the papers stated. He continued to assault her by kicking her in the ribs and punching her in the mouth and head.

Williams was sentenced to 10 years for burglary, with eight suspended; three years for grand larceny, with all but four months suspended; five years for violating the order, with four years suspended; and eight months for assault and battery of a household member. The terms were set to run consecutively. Probation for five years and good behavior for 20 years were ordered. Restitution of $1,918.38 was also ordered.

In another case, it took a jury just over three minutes to find Lewis Eric Owens, 37, of Maple Village in Parksley guilty of stealing a $62,000 Ford F-250 pick up belonging to Chesson Enterprises Inc., also known as Best Western Plus, of Chincoteague last year.

The trial was held Friday in Accomack Circuit Court. Owens pleaded not guilty. The jury recommended he be sentenced to two years in prison. The maximum term is 20 years. He was ordered to be on post release supervision and probation for three years.

Accomack District Court

Judge Gordon Vincent denied bond Monday in Accomack General District Court for a murder suspect, who was recently apprehended after hiding on the Eastern Shore since June.

Tyqon Demetrius Robins, 24, of Deer Drive in Nelsonia was taken back to Accomack Jail to await his preliminary hearing for first-degree murder of Fardale, also known as Fairdale, Antonio Johnson, 39, of Mappsville.

"Just a few minutes before the shooting," Commonwealth's Attorney Matthew Brenner said there was a "confrontation at a convenience store" in Nelsonia, which "led to a car chase and firing from the car."

Defense lawyer Paul Watson asked for an unspecified bond. "We understand the seriousness of the charges." Robins "is a lifelong resident of the Eastern Shore."

Robins is also being held on charges of use of a firearm in the murder and shooting from a vehicle, both felonies.

The incidents occurred at nearly 10 p.m. on Lankford Highway in Mappsville on June 24. Sheriff Todd Godwin said his office was alerted to gunshots being fired between the occupants of two vehicles. A few minutes later, a caller told police, a gunshot victim was on Nathaniel Street. Johnson was pronounced dead at the scene.

In another case, Dontrail Atqwan Johnson, 18, of Main Street in Melfa, waived his right to a preliminary hearing involving charges that he carjacked Accomack Supervisor Cassandra (Rene-ta) Major's vehicle and stole a Broadwater Academy bus in August.

Gordon then automatically certified the charges of carjacking, three counts of grand larceny, malicious shooting at an occupied vehicle, use of a firearm in a felony and felony intentional damage to a grand jury.

A misdemeanor count of intentional damage will not be prosecuted, Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Spencer Morgan told the court.

Dontrail Johnson is free on a secured bond of $10,000. The grand jury will meet in October. He was wearing a button down shirt and slacks for the proceeding with a large cross around his neck.

His alleged accomplice, Dabreon Lamont Tankard, 15, of Woodland Avenue in Melfa, will be tried as an adult despite his age. His charges were sent to the circuit court from the Accomack Juvenile and Domestic Relations Court recently. Tankard is being held in Accomack Jail.

A Hallwood man was accused Monday of making a bomb threat, according to records filed in Accomack General District Court.

Sonny James Kelly Sr., 46, of Savannah Road is charged with making the threat to Edith Leisner. Secured bail was set at $2,000. Officer T. J. Adams of the Police Department investigated.

In another case, Amanda Marie Pruitt, 35, of Southside Road near Onancock, was charged with a third or subsequent offense of petty larceny, which is a felony. The incident occurred at the Corner Mart in Onancock on Sept. 15. Pruitt was arrested Sept. 22. Unsecured bail was set at $5,000. Officer E. C. Perry of the Onancock Police Department investigated.

Somerset County, Md. District Court

A Hallwood man was arrested last Friday and charged with attempted murder and related offenses in Somerset County, Md., according to district court records filed there. The incidents were alleged to have occurred the previous day.

Jayquan Demarcus Ayres, 19, of Bethel Church Road is accused of attempted first-degree murder, attempted second-degree murder, two counts of first-degree assault, two counts of second-degree assault, handgun on person, use of a firearm in a violent felony and disorderly conduct.

Deputy First Class Rondell Redding of the Somerset County Sheriff's Office investigated.

A preliminary hearing was set for Oct. 17.

Ayres is being held in the Somerset County Detention Center without bond.

Eastern Shore Scores Federal, Commonwealth Grants

By Linda Cicaira

Nearly 100 projects across Virginia will get $5.7 million in federal funds including several in Accomack County, Gov. Terry McAuliffe announced last week.

This week, McAuliffe announced $196,000 in funding for projects in rural communities at The Governor's Summit on Rural Prosperity, an effort to connect rural Virginia to the global economy, landing an additional $48,000 for the Eastern Shore.

The Rural Prosperity grant was awarded to the Accomack-Northampton Planning District Commission. The agency will use the funds for entrepreneurial and workforce development planning.

The federal grants announced last week will be administered by the Virginia Department of Emergency Management to sustain emergency preparedness, security operations, equipment replacement, training, planning and exercise programs.

Northampton was not listed in the allocations. Accomack will receive a total of $131,200. A breakdown shows $10,600 for inoperable communications for shelter operations; $20,000 for an accessibility vehicle for Tangier; $24,000 for a whole community outreach and preparedness project; and $76,600 for a state hazardous materials team.

"Whether it was the Pentagon on 9/11, Hurricane Isabel in 2003 and Snowmageddon in 2010, our first responders and local law enforcement agencies have been essential in protecting Virginians each and every time they are called on," said Gov. McAuliffe. "These grants will provide vital support to communities across the commonwealth and I am confident that they will go a long way toward building a stronger and more resilient Virginia."

MARYLAND STATE POLICE: AUTOPSIES CONFIRM MURDER-SUICIDE IN POCOMOKE

By Linda Cicaira

Recent autopsies of three family members who were found dead at their Groton Road home near Pocomoke earlier this month confirmed that they were the victims of a double murder/suicide, according to the Maryland State Police spokesperson Elena

Russo.

The bodies of Marvin Wilmer Purnell, 78; his daughter, Karen E. Purnell, 53; and his son, Marvin Desmond Purnell, 46; were found Sept. 12 by Worcester County deputies who answered a call there.

Russo confirmed that the younger

Marvin Purnell was suspected of killing the other two. He died from a gunshot wound to the neck with the manner of death being suicide.

The father died from gunshot wounds to the facial area and Karen Purnell was stabbed numerous times and was also shot. Both of those incidents are considered homicides, Russo said.

A friend of Karen Purnell was unable to contact her and after going to the house reported a "strong disturbing odor coming from the residence" to police at about 10:30 a.m.

Deputies found the home "to be secure from the outside with no signs of forced entry," an officer said. "As deputies continued attempts to make contact" with whoever might be inside, they heard a "male" voice.

After retrieving a key, the deputies entered and "found two decomposing bodies ... on the kitchen floor and a third body in the hallway opposite the kitchen," according to the officer. They then left as a safety precaution and for about an hour attempted to make contact with whoever might be alive inside. Gas was deployed through a window in an effort to force any occupant out, and resulted in a fire. The blaze was extinguished by Pocomoke firefighters.

When officers and firefighters later entered the structure, they found the suspect's body had a rifle beneath it.

Thomas Groton is expected to sentence Sewell sometime in December.

No motive was disclosed in the testimony.

The toddler was returned to his mother, Victoria Harmon, who called an ambulance for the child. He died at the Children's Hospital of the Kings Daughters (CHKD) in Norfolk, Va.

Harmon told authorities that she left her son with the her sister, Amanda Sewell, and the defendant at about 2 p.m. May 2. Amanda Sewell, 27, is charged with first-degree child abuse in the death and neglect of a minor. Her trial is scheduled for October.

Mrs. Sewell said the child "was playful, happy and had an appetite" Saturday evening.

"Amanda Sewell advised investigators that she fed breakfast to" Luke at about 6:30 the next morning. She said when she went to work, Luke and "her two children, a 5-year-old and an infant," were left in Kevin Sewell's care. Amanda Sewell said when she returned at about 2:30 p.m., her husband told her Luke "had vomited several times" and he "had cleaned him up and put the ... child down to sleep. Amanda Sewell had checked on him ... and found the boy was unresponsive."

An hour and a half after Amanda Sewell got home, she took Luke back to his mother in Virginia, where he still didn't respond. The boy was then taken by ambulance to Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital. He was soon transported to Norfolk.

On May 4, Accomack County Sheriff's Office (ACSO) contacted the Worcester

County Bureau of Investigation "regarding a child abuse investigation they were conducting," according to records filed in Worcester County District Court. Luke was being treated at the Norfolk hospital "for suspected brain injuries," the record continued.

Dr. Christopher Foley of CHKD "advised investigators that there was trauma to the head of the ... child which caused brain swelling," the record states. He "indicated that the ... child also had bruising that was in various stages of healing about his body" and "there was also an abdominal hematoma, which Dr. Foley believes was from an unknown blunt force trauma." According to the report, "Bite marks were also observed on the shoulders" of the boy. "Dr. Foley advised that the injuries were caused by an adult and the mechanism of the injury could be blunt force trauma, shaken baby syndrome and/or strangulation or choking."

Dr. Suzanne Starling, a child abuse expert and board-certified pediatric forensic physician, consulted in the case and agreed with Foley's conclusions. "Foley also surmised that the injuries would have been within hours of the ... child coming to the hospital." The "child suffered a fatal brain injury and fatal abdominal injury," the record continued. "Starling indicated either injury would have led to ... death," court papers stated.

Prosecutors in the case were State's Attorney Beau Oglesby, Deputy State's Attorney Billy McDermott and Diane Karsnitz. Sewell was defended by Scott Collins.

EASTERN SHORE SPORTS

The Northampton High School Yellow Jackets football team earned its second consecutive win after defeating the King and Queen High School Tigers last Friday night in Eastville.

The Yellow Jackets jumped to a quick lead after scoring their first touchdown of the night just a minute and a half post kick-off. The Tigers seemed to have a difficult time retaining the ball, and after a mere three minutes of play, Northampton stretched its lead to 14-0.

By halftime, the Jackets held a comfortable advantage over the Tigers, who still were unable to mark the board. The second half saw several vain attempts by the visitors to score, only to have the ball turned over to the Yellow Jackets, whose defensive line continued to pound the Tigers back into their cages. Northampton scored an additional four times to bring the final score to a 49-0 shutout.

The Yellow Jackets, now 3-2 for the season will celebrate their annual Homecoming event on Sept. 30, before they face-off with the Middlesex Chargers, who hold a record of 1-3.

JACKETS, PONIES, VIKINGS CLAIM HOME VICTORIES

Story and Photos by Krystle Bono

It was a busy week on the volleyball front across the Shore. Broadwater's middle school girls started things off Tuesday afternoon with a win at home against Isle of Wight, while the junior varsity team followed up with a hard-fought loss against the Chargers. The varsity Vikings took the floor to round out the evening with a 3-1 victory.

The Chincoteague Ponies and the Northampton Yellow Jackets also hosted home matches Tuesday night. The Ponies defeated district foes, the Arcadia Firebirds, 3-0, while the Yellow Jackets harnessed their Conference 41 rivals, Franklin Broncos, into a 3-0 win.

Both teams swapped opponents Wednesday night, with Franklin traveling to Chincoteague and Arcadia making the trek to Northampton. The Yellow Jackets earned their second win in a row, topping the Firebirds in all three sets. Senior Michaela Wilson (9) led the match for Northampton with five kills, seven aces, five digs, one assist and two blocks. Following her lead was fellow senior, Evelyn Dunton (27), who tallied four kills, seven aces, two assists and two digs.

Class 4 Laser Treatment for Peripheral Neuropathy

Jason Hale of Bloxom has been an equipment operator and truck driver for most of his career. At 34, he was suffering from neuropathy in his feet due to lumbar disk degeneration. He said it got so bad he was always in pain with burning and numbness, had trouble with balance, and couldn't play with his son. All doctors could offer him was surgery and pain medication, which was not what he wanted. He heard about Dr. Bull and the Class 4 laser treatment that increases cell permeability and decided to give it a try. After 12 sessions, he feels he is already 75 percent back to normal and can now feel his feet without pain. He has been very pleased with the results. Dr. Bull's laser treatment has given him more than traditional medicine could offer with no side effects.

Cabela's Disappoints; Wegman's Wows

How One Man's Trip to Outdoor Mecca Cabela's Affirms Eastern Shore Way of Life is Best

Photo and Story by Bill Sterling
Special to the Post

Most of us have heard of the "The City Mouse and the Country Mouse," one of the Aesop's Fables that taught us lessons as children.

I felt somewhat like that country mouse on a recent trip to Richmond.

I was there for a Grandparents' Day for two of my grandchildren. Now I thought Grandparents' Day was an event held at elementary schools. But, no, this was a daycare center where my 3-year-old granddaughter and 1-year-old grandson attend.

It seemed like a reach, but who can resist a menu of blueberry pancakes, bacon, sausage, fruit, milk and orange juice? Certainly not I, not when I also have a chance to see the little ones.

Since my wife and I were in the city with a couple of hours to spare, she suggested I fulfill a bucket list wish of mine and visit a Cabela's store.

I can recall first receiving those voluminous, hard-bound Cabela's catalogues, filled with hunting and fishing gear, many years ago before Internet sales made them unnecessary. Or maybe I just don't buy enough outdoor equipment anymore to be on their mailing list.

Fish display at Wegman's in Short Pump.

I kept those books for years as a wish-list reference for anyone who wanted to buy me a birthday or Christmas present.

And then I began to hear from my well-traveled hunting buddies about actual visits to a Cabela's store. They told tales of three-hour stays with interactive exhibits, dazzling displays and hunting wares that stretched far beyond one's eyesight.

Looking at a map in the Cabela's catalog, I could see at that time there were no stores in Virginia. There was one in West Virginia and another in Pennsylvania, the largest in the land with an astounding 250,000 square feet of floor space.

When I first heard of these mega-stores, there might have been a dozen or so in the country. Today, there are 82, including two in Virginia, at Bristol and Richmond.

When the Cabela's store opened in Richmond, more than 3,000 people entered the store in the first hour and traffic backed up for miles as others kept coming throughout the day.

I am sorry to say I was somewhat disappointed with my visit. The Cabela's at Richmond — Short Pump to be exact — is a mere 82,000 square feet and has fewer displays than the Bass Pro Shops in Hampton.

I really didn't need anything, but somehow I managed to spend $150 on stuff I probably already have tucked away or may never use, just like the countless lures and hooks that have never been out of my tackle box. Of course, I could have spent more than that amount on one Yeti cooler. I got a serviceable one for a fraction of the cost. Did you hear that the Yeti coolers are now being called "the redneck Rolex?"

My "Wow" moment came at the store next door, where I visited for an hour waiting for the Cabela's to open. Wegman's is the Holy Grail of supermarkets. This Wegman's store stocks more than 60,000 items, including 900 varieties of beer, 36 different cookies and even more pastries, in addition to a climate-controlled wine case that features $400 bottles of wine. There were mountains of fresh produce, fresh fish laid out on ice and meat being wrapped right before your eyes. Flowers, pharmaceutical drugs, hardware and most anything else under the sun made this a one-stop shop.

The 120,000-square-foot Short Pump location employs 550 almost-always-smiling cooks, checkers, bakers, florists and butchers who staff the store in addition to a pub and market café.

I may be broke if I lived near this store, but I would never be hungry as long as my credit card limit had a dollar left on it.

Now, like that country mouse who witnessed his city counterparts feasting on untold delicacies he never saw back home, I was envious of all those choices in this store. At least until I got stuck in traffic trying to make it to Grandparents' Day. To me, like the cat who chased the country mouse away from his feast in the city, the congestion surrounding those stores made me realize I am happier in the country, despite the limited shopping choices.

I recalled to my wife that when I went to the University of Richmond in the 1970s, Short Pump was nothing more than a gas station amid a bunch of farms on Interstate 64 as my college friends and I made our way to Charlottesville and the U.Va. campus.

A recent survey of the top 50 places to live in the country included Northern Virginia towns Ashburn and Hunter Mill. In the descriptions for both locations, there were references to "bumper-to-bumper traffic," "worst gridlock in the country," and "expensive housing."

I am sure those towns have their assets, but those descriptions are deal breakers for me. Give me the life on the Eastern Shore, where, like the country mouse, I can enjoy my dinner in peace.

Northampton School District Grapples with Growth, Greenbacks

By Ron West

Enrollment is up by 14 students compared to last year in Northampton County Public Schools and while that news is welcomed, Superintendent Eddie Lawrence told the School Board last week, it poses a problem or two.

With 33 additional students at the middle school, there is a need for additional class space and possibly additional personnel, he said.

Since all teachers are not certified to teach all subjects at all grade levels, it is not as simple as switching staff members from another school, where enrollment may have dropped by a few students. Lawrence noted finding additional teachers at this time of the year, even if the funding issue was resolved, would be a problem.

The General Assembly planned to provide funding for additional school staffing, but is now facing budget shortfalls. Previously announced state funding for teacher raises is also at risk.

Lawrence said agenda for the school board retreat slated for Oct. 13 at the Barrier Island Center may need to be modified. With the state funding for the coming year still in flux, localities are finding it difficult to move forward with their own plans.

The Superintendent also said truancy continues to cause concern. Statistics show that once attendance habits are established by children in elementary school, those habits tend to continue. Lawrence said students would be offered vision screening due to grants or support from the Lions Club.

The board briefly discussed Standards of Learning (SOL) requirements. Vice Chairman Randy Parks, who taught for decades at Northampton High, said the state's emphasis on the SOLs fails to adequately prepare students for transitioning to college. Teaching students to pass SOL tests does not help them face professors who use lectures as their primary method of teaching, he said.

Band Director Kevin Schwenk again sought support for an overnight field trip for middle school band and chorus students. At an earlier school board session, concerns were expressed over the cost and time missed from the classroom. Chairman Skip Oakley suggested students attend the competition and other events without staying overnight in Williamsburg. The board had mixed views on the value of an overnight stay and how it might benefit the students. The trip is slated for April 21-22, 2017 and costs must be fielded by students via fundraising projects.

The trip will be canceled if enough money isn't raised. Lawrence said a written note should be sent to parents advising them that if the funds aren't gathered, the monies that are collected would be retained by the school for a possible future band/chorus trip rather than be refunded. The trip was approved 4-1 with Oakley opposed.

Also approved was an overnight field trip to the Virginia State Fair this week requested by teacher Billy Davis. Davis also got permission to take the girl's softball team to the Sports Plus High School Softball Tournament in Richmond in March.

The board hired a Cafeteria Assistant Manager for the high school. Creating the position would provide a backup should a manager from any of the schools need extended time off.

Former Northampton High teacher Dianne Davis praised the efforts of the school's guidance counselor for helping students obtain college scholarships.

~Bank Heist~

Pocomoke Police Department to be on a lookout for the vehicle.

Pocomoke police was alerted by a panic alarm from the bank at about 1:50 p.m., said Detective Alex Kagan of the Worcester County Sheriff's Office. When they arrived at the scene, the officers were told the bank had been robbed by three black men "who threatened to blow it up with an explosive device."

No weapon or explosive was displayed to bank tellers. The robbers fled, heading toward Virginia, he said.

The suspects were described as two African American males and an African American male dressed in women's clothing. Kagan said the first suspect was wearing a tan skirt, black-haired wig and a dark-colored scarf. The second wore a red baseball cap, dark shirt and blue jeans. The third had past-the-shoulder-length dreadlocks and was wearing a lime green floppy-style hat, gray full-zipped sweat shirt and dark-colored pants.

PNC Bank is offering a $10,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and prosecution of the suspects. EASTERN SHORE

How Virginia Brochures Help You

By Martha Steger
Special to the Eastern Shore Post

If your 2016 summer vacation was too short or non-existent, consider a digital trip back in time with the aid of Virginia travel brochures. The Library of Virginia houses the pamphlets – most from the 1930s to 1950s – which are largely available through the library’s website. (See the information box to the right for instructions on how to access the digital collection.)

The collection is a nostalgia tour for older travelers. A ferry brochure (circa 1946) promotes “a new fast route between north & south via the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula, Cape Charles – Norfolk.”

An Eastern Shore of Virginia Chamber of Commerce brochure, circa 1930, carries the quote, “Where time has only served to enhance the charm of nature and minister to the comfort of man.” Another circa-1930 brochure – of Richmond -- touts a city street-car tour for seven cents.

A now-decayed Accomac hotel landmark, the Whispering Pines, was in its heyday in the 1940s.

A brochure from early in the decade refers to it as “Your Home Away From Home,” offering AAA-recommended “hotels and cottages” on “Ocean Highway.” The cover goes on to say, “In the ‘Land of Accawmacke’ lies an ‘Isle’ of refreshment where all is quiet amid nature’s own surroundings. A home away from home nestled in the tranquil setting of Mother Earth’s own sentinels – ‘The Pines.’ Whispering Pines, on U. S. 13, thirty-nine miles north of Cape Charles, Virginia, has something new and different to offer to the traveling public. Perfectly appointed hotel and cottage accommodations. A spacious dining room and soda shop. All centrally heated.”

Parksley might be surprised to find history repeating itself. An undated travel brochure boasts of a 16,000-volume library in the “Friendly Town in Which to Shop and Live.” The current library board is in the midst of a capital campaign to raise funds for relocating the main branch of the Eastern Shore Public Library from Accomac to Parksley, which does not currently have a library.

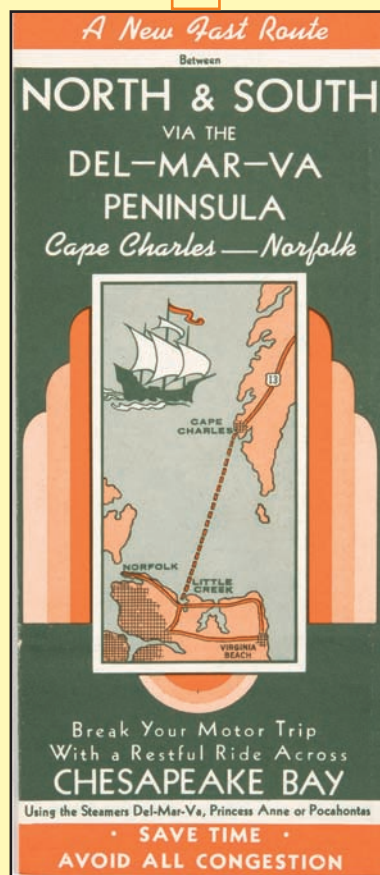

And even if you’re not John D. Rockefeller – the benefactor behind Colonial Williamsburg -- you can come close to being treated like him at the Williamsburg Inn, constructed on its present site in 1933. A brochure from that era gives a perspective – from manuscripts at the College of William and Mary’s Earl Gregg Swem Library -- on Colonial Williamsburg’s reconstruction, which began in 1926, with the first exhibition buildings opening six years later.

Your time-travel trip to and within Virginia by a variety of transports during the last century looks easy in brochures promoting tourism from the Blue Ridge Mountains to the Atlantic Ocean: check out “Fly to Enchanting Virginia,” 1952. A 1913 Old Dominion Line Pilot brochure provides information on steamship trips to New York leaving from Old Point Comfort, Norfolk, Newport News and Richmond; an American Express Travel Service brochure from the late-1940s promotes “Historic Virginia Tours Rail, Steamer, Motor.”

You can vicariously “Travel the Interstate 95 corridor”: “Safe, Fast, Economical, Pleasant Turnpike Driving” (mid-1960s) or take “Skyline Drive via Shenandoah Scenic Route,” circa 1935. “A Guide to Fishing & Water Sports,” with a water-skier on the cover, circa 1960s, demonstrates Hampton Roads’ effort to attract active outdoor travelers. Some of the language is pure exaggeration, with the Shenandoah Valley depicted as “a mountain-walled Eden”; but content sometimes reveals an effort at providing helpful information without making a phone call, as with 1930s hotel-room rates of $1.50 quoted in the Valley — “Cottages Double Room $1.00 per person.”

Long before state-operated Virginia visitor centers like the one on Route 13 started opening in the early 1970s, rows of brochures filled racks at local, travel-related businesses. Dale Neighbors, the library’s visual studies collection coordinator who pulled together the online collection, explains that Virginia’s tourism exhibit at the 1939 World’s Fair featured 300 photo albums for visitors to peruse: “Two sets of the albums were so popular that they were worn out,” he says. You can view the third set, residing at the Library of Virginia.

The 97 online travel brochures are a fraction of those housed at the library, but are a representative collection, according to Dana Puga, prints and photographs collection specialist. “The rest are spread among collections throughout the library,” she says.

Most of the brochures comprise a single sheet, printed on both sides and folded so that the panels form a pocket-sized carry-along. Only brochure covers are visible online, though in-person library visitors can request brochures be physically pulled for hard-copy viewing. “We don’t require an appointment,” Puga says, “but it’s helpful to know in advance what someone wants pulled.”

Even before Virginia was for lovers, it seems there were lots of lovers of Virginia. The Library of Virginia is located at 800 East Broad St., Richmond, VA 23219; phone 804-692-3500.

Martha Wessells Steger, who grew up on the Will Bond Farm outside of Greenbush, is a Midlothian-based free-lance writer and member of the Society of American Travel Writers.

Garden Week
BY MRS. E. ALMER AMES
Virginia's Historic Garden Week, which is observed annually the last week in April, is delightfully participated in on the Eastern Shore by The Eastern Shore of Virginia Garden Club.
What you see here will depend on what you want to see for there is every type of architecture from imposing Tidewater-Georgian to the appealing Big house-Little house-Colonnade and Kitchen. The gardens range from formal plantings of magnificent boxwood to the colorful small door-yard gardens.
To many Virginians, who are unaware of the beauties and historic interests that lie beyond the Chesapeake Bay and who know The Eastern Shore only as a confusing term, this is an opportunity for them to spend a rewarding two days discovering for themselves the low-lying loveliness of this country side.

United Way of
Virginia's Eastern Shore

Hermitage & United Way team up for an historic $22,000 campaign kick-off Fundraising event!

The 2016 United Way of Virginia's Eastern Shore fundraising campaign got off to a tremendous start Saturday, Sept. 10 when a dinner and auction at the Elks Lodge in Accomac raised just over $22,000. The event was sponsored by Hermitage on the Eastern Shore and spearheaded by Matt Parker, Sales and Marketing Director at the Hermitage. "We not only had a great turnout with attendees, auction items and sponsors, but we were also able to kick off the United Way campaign with a huge bang," said Parker. "Over $22,000 is an enormous amount of money to be made at a first time event. This gives us a great start to reaching our goal of $275,000 to help more than 150 non-profit organizations on the Eastern Shore that provide many vital services and needs." Hermitage on the Eastern Shore, having provided high quality living options for seniors for more than 50 years, has long recognized the tremendous contribution the United Way makes to the Eastern Shore of Virginia. Parker reached out to United Way and offered a fundraising event sponsored by Hermitage, then eventually also accepted the important role of chairing this year's United Way campaign. "The Hermitage and United Way board and its campaign committee really came together to benefit the Eastern Shore community," said Parker. The evening featured a raw oyster bar prior to a dinner of steamed shrimp and fried chicken and Island Creamery ice cream followed by both a silent and live auction conducted by Chester Jackson with numerous quality items, including local artwork, carvings, jewelry, trips and many other items. Bill LeCato provided DJ music during the preview. Top Shore artists such as Billy Crockett, Willie Crockett, Mark McNair, David Turner, Mark Daisey and others provided outstanding pieces that helped raised funds for United Way. In addition, numerous local businesses donated quality merchandise to the auction that included 76 items in the live auction and additional 50 in the silent auction. Sponsors who supported the dinner and auction fundraiser, adding to the bottom line, included $5,000. All proceeds benefited the United Way of Virginia's Eastern Shore. The local United Way chapter has raised over $6 million since forming in 1991 to improve the quality of life on Virginia's Eastern Shore. Funds go to provide emergency food and shelter; family counseling, health services; youth development and recreation programs in addition to many other services needed in the community. Costs are kept low with one part-time employee and the efforts of local volunteers. For more information on United Way of Virginia's Eastern Shore or to form a team, contact Dawn Byrd at 787-5622 or email her at dbyrd@esunitedway.org.

Cormons Recognized for SPARK Work

Grace Cormons (at left) was recognized by the Accomack Board of Supervisors last week for starting and working with the SPARK (Shore People Advancing Readiness for Knowledge) program that began in 1998 with 25 families of preschool children in the county.

The program was designed for busy parents to do constructive things with their children, bringing families closer together, increasing literacy and making learning about the environment fun, according to the resolution.

Her goal was to stimulate positive attitudes about education, especially science. The program served more than 100 families each year in three groups, SPARK for families with elementary school children; Creekwatchers for families with students in middle school; and the Shoreline team for families with high schoolers.

Cormons has stepped back from the program to pursue interests in running a farm and to study the endangered Roseate Turn. She passed the torch to the Chincoteague Bay Field Station.

CONTROVERSIAL?
 My writings may be controversial, the truth always is. The subjects I teach are in museums and libraries around the world written in stone thousands of years ago. The truth I bring to the congregation adds Holy knowledge to it. I asked for nothing; I teach for free. I am a senior on a fixed income, yet through sacrifice I pay for this ad you are reading monthly. If you read this ad and others who do, let's all meet at The Sage Restaurant in Onley, Va. on Sat, Oct. 8 @ 2:00 PM & Sat., Oct. 15 @ 2:00 PM. We will know each other, for we will be carrying our Bibles. Revelation 22:16 KJB: I Jesus have sent mine angel to testify unto you these things in the churches. I am the root and the offspring of David, and the bright and morning star.

Shorter's Chapel in Bridgetown recently celebrated its 150th anniversary.

Celebrating on High

Most of the individuals in our community have some intimate knowledge of anniversaries, be they marriage, engagement, or even job related. For a small congregation in Bridgetown, itself a tiny dot on a state road map, the 150th anniversary of Shorter's Chapel was a huge event.

Founded in 1866 as Bridgetown Church by Rev. John Offer, the original building had served as a school.

Coming on the heels of the conclusion of America's War Between the States, the church was one of the first on the Eastern Shore specifically established by and for African Americans. Prior to the conclusion of the war in 1865, some localities had laws forbidding African American slaves from attending church or, for that matter, learning to read and write. The justification was that education and religion tended to make individuals want freedom. By 1866, the laws began to change and African American churches began to spring up.

As with most churches in rural areas, funds for construction and repairs have always been hard to come by. Shorter's Chapel is no different, but over the past century and a half, the congregation has been able to gradually enlarge the structure. In the past year, the church has been able to replace a decaying floor, which now gleams and would be the pride of many a church in rural America.

Rev. Alfred Vann II, the current minister of Shorter's Chapel, said that the next project that needs to be addressed is finding the funds to modernize the restrooms, which were added 50 years ago.

While improvements to the interior of the church are on the to-do list, Rev. Vann noted that the church cemetery needs attention as soon as possible. The church has been able to purchase additional burial space near the church, but many of the original gravesites behind the church have deteriorated. Several graves are overgrown with brush and in some cases, even trees, while others sit on the edge of the embankment adjacent to Hungars Creek. Worst are the graves that have fallen open to the elements. Among the gravesites are nearly two dozen nearly identical markers, which state the name, dates of birth and death, branch of service, and the war in which the deceased served. They lie among the other gravesites as if standing guard over those who rest in the cemetery.

Many of the members of Shorter's Chapel stand ready to help when and where they can, but as with many church congregations in the county, their age and physical condition make it difficult for them to clean up the area and refurbish the damaged graves. Rev. Vann, who commutes to services each week from Richmond, would like to see a civic group or other volunteers step up and offer to help clean up the graves. For the military veterans interred in the cemetery, it was suggested that assistance be sought from current service members or veterans.

VMRC 2016-1562: Salt Grove L.C. is submitting an after-the-fact authorization of the improvements installed over the last 10 years. The primary impact of the project was to replace a failed bulkhead that collapsed in late 2006 following a series of storm events. The owner also installed a new 110-foot bulkhead channel ward of the failed bulkhead. A new timber wall and tieback system was placed approximately 10 feet channel ward of the original bulkhead. The project also includes two open pile platforms of decks that extend off the replacement bulkhead and provide working space for aquaculture activities that take place on the property. The owner has also installed a floating dock along the side of the property facing Cherrystone Inlet. The dock and access gangway provide additional access to work barges and vessels at all stages of the tide. Recently the owner installed geofabric along an existing shell/dirt slope at the southern boundary of the property. The fabric was keyed into the toe of the slope and resulted in temporary disturbance to tidal wetlands. Editor's note: Linda Cicaira covers the Accomack government beat. Although this opinion column is written from her perspective, in this matter she expresses the opinion of the Eastern Shore Post.

By Linda Cicaira

Part of my job is to attend the Accomack Board of Supervisors meetings and report to our readers about local government. While I have personal opinions about just about everything, it is not my job to offer those, so I don't.

But occasionally, I will beg my editor to let me have a voice because the actions are just so amazing that someone has to do it.

Anyway, last week the board voted unanimously to spend up to $2,000 to put speakers in the hallway of the meeting place in Accomack so those who were not provided with a seat inside could hear what was going on.

I learned later, the system that is already in place had a delay in repeating the words of both the public and the officials.

Not long ago, for $200, I bought a SONOS speaker, the best currently available for modern technology. It is loud enough to knock anyone in front of it over. So if the solution must be a speaker, there is a cheaper way. I am not an expert in these matters but it worked for my music system.

Post-Op Ed Page

But that aside, why would the officials be thinking that Accomack County residents, or anyone else, should stand outside?

Isn't government for the people?

There is no "if" about it, the board chambers are not big enough for public meetings. The seats are cramped together with no leg room. It is an invitation to stay away. Something should have been done about that a long time ago. I have to hang out into the aisle to use my laptop to take notes. I have pleaded for them to do something about this in previous writings.

The board spent thousands of dollars a few years ago to update equipment when they regularly met at Metompkin Elementary School. The equipment is still there. Although that multipurpose room was not often filled up with folks, it was very accommodating when there was a topic of interest to big crowds. A public hearing should require seats for the public.

Metompkin was an excellent place to meet because there wasn't a fan going to keep spectators from hearing, tables were around to hold laptops, no one had to stand and it is handicap accessible. I must admit though, the walk can still be far.

It is great when citizens come out to complain or rejoice. The county needs to find a way to get more people to have an interest. Providing access in a hallway is not the way to go.

In Defense of Margaret Miles

Dear Editor:

Thank you for taking the time to speak with me regarding an article that was posted in your newspaper on Friday, Sept. 23, 2016. I was very disappointed to see reference made about Margaret Miles and her position on the Accomack County School Board. The article discussed the recent school board meeting and falsely accused Margaret Miles of making special provisions for her granddaughter to attend school out of her district. A letter dated Sept. 8, 2016 was referenced and contained untrue information. The accusations are completely unfounded.

In addition, the referenced letter was signed Arcadia Middle School parents and teachers. This is also untrue as I was able to determine that the letter was, in fact, not written by educators of Arcadia Middle School.

Again, thank you for allowing my voice to be heard and to stand up for my daughter and for Margaret. As the great Maya Angelou once said, "People will forget what you said. People will forget what you did. But people will never forget how you made them feel."

Hannah P. Annis

Editor's Note: We offered Ms. Miles an opportunity to comment on the letter referenced in the Sept. 23 article. Here is her statement: "Every part of that letter was false."

Urgent Care A Broken Promise

Dear Editor:

All of the information that Dr. McDaniel, an apologist for Riverside, presented in his recent letter to the editor to the Post is correct. It would not be economically feasible for Riverside to operate an urgent care center in Northampton County. It would be a money-losing enterprise.

The point, however, is that Riverside knew all that in 2010 when, to get authorization to replace Shore Memorial Hospital with a new facility in Accomack County, they submitted the Certificate of Public Need (COPN) which contained their commitment to replace the existing hospital with an urgent care center in Nassawadox.

Post Office Mail

Are we to believe that they have only recently discovered that Northampton County does not have enough residents to cover the cost of operating an urgent care center, that they did not take the population of the county into consideration when they made the promise of an urgent care center?

Presumably that COPN promise to provide an urgent care center for the people of Northampton County was one of the reasons Riverside received authorization from the state health officials to replace Shore Memorial Hospital with a new facility in Accomack County, and they have reneged on that promise. That is the complaint of the well-meaning community groups and the folks who suggest that Northampton County deserves an urgent care center – those whom Dr. McDaniel wrote "have no idea of the cost or complexity" of establishing an urgent care center. Perhaps these people don't, but Riverside did know when they wrote their COPN, and yet they made the commitment to operate an urgent care center in Nassawadox. I wonder, did they ever intend to fulfill that commitment?

Dr. McDaniel, the people of Northampton County do, in fact, deserve to have an urgent care center simply because they have the right to demand that Riverside fulfill the promise to operate a facility that will provide this level of medical care for Northampton residents.

John Ordeman

Not Surprised Hogg in the Dark

Dear Editor:

I am not surprised Mr. Hogg was left in the dark, it is the way business is run down here. The "good ole boy" back room deals. Who in their right mind would rehire someone they had just let go, at full pay no less, and then sweeten the pot by adding $75 an hour to correct mistakes. I'd love a job like that! Then you wonder why people leave Northampton County in droves, besides the poor schools, bad hospital, poor medical care, no jobs, nothing to keep the children off the streets and away from drugs, welfare being more attractive than working, and illegal aliens who come here to get welfare and medical care and then leave. The list goes on and on. Pretty soon there will be no medical care, no urgent center and God help you if you have a stroke or heart attack. You're not going to make to the new hospital.

I recently had an accident and needed to be sent by ambulance to the hospital. It was a series of errors, including the driver of the ambulance going the wrong direction — north instead of south. My experience in the hospital went down hill fast. Thank goodness that time I had an excellent doctor and male nurse and could wait to get out of there. Sentara where, oh where, are you!

We are in desperate need of an urgent care center. Even the Medicaid people in Northampton go to Sentara! It wasn't like this 25 years ago when I moved here.
