HOSPITAL HABITABLE AFTER FEBRUARY 2017 MOVE

By Connie Morrison

The new Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital near Onancock will open for patients on Saturday, Feb. 25, 2017. Such a simple statement belies the carefully planned logistics of a transition that will occur over several days and involve multiple functions, beginning with the Feb. 23 move of the cancer center to the new 60-acre, $90 million healthcare campus.

"We started planning a year ago," said the hospital's Marketing Business Partner Sally Schreiber.

On Friday, Feb. 24, the specialty physicians with Riverside Medical Group, along with Riverside's outpatient physical therapy services, will move into the on-site medical office building.

The hospital's move day will begin Feb. 25 at 7 a.m., with the opening of the emergency department, which will have 13 private rooms. Newly arriving emergency patients will be directed to the new department by signs and by parking staff. Also at 7 a.m., the Nassawadox emergency room will no longer accept new patients. Existing patients will have their care completed and be discharged or transported to the new hospital for admittance.

Beginning at 8 a.m., and every 10 minutes thereafter, a patient will be transported via ambulance to the new hospital. There will be a designated "move team" for each patient. Move team members will include nurses, transport personnel, respiratory therapists, EMS personnel and safety observers.

It is vital that residents on the Shore make note of the date and time that the new hospital will open and the current hospital will close. Any patients seeking medical help after 7 a.m. on Feb. 25 must come to the Onancock campus for medical assistance. The Nassawadox hospital will close at the exact time the new hospital opens.

"Patient safety is the most critical priority. We have plans and backup plans – we have considered every angle," said Riverside Vice President John Peterman, who is also administrator for Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital.

Parent Charged With Assaulting Kegotank Principal

By Linda Cicaira

A Mappsville woman was accused in papers filed in Accomack General District Court last week of attacking Kegotank Elementary School Principal Jennifer Annis.

Yashica Tonya Hope, 37, of Chester Street in Mappsville, was charged on Wednesday, Nov. 17, with assault and battery of Annis while knowing she was an employee of Accomack County Public Schools; disorderly conduct; and possession of marijuana.

At almost 10 a.m. that day, Deputy Bobby Taylor of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office (ACSO) was dispatched to the school in reference to the assault.

"Upon my arrival on scene, I spoke with Mrs. Annis and she informed me ... Hope had slapped her

FIRST-DEGREE MURDER CHARGE CERTIFIED IN SUMMER SHOOTING NEAR NELSONIA

By Linda Cicoira

Probable cause was found Monday in Accomack General District Court to certify first-degree murder and related charges to a grand jury in the case of a Nelsonia driver accused of chasing and shooting at another car while traveling on Lankford Highway last summer.

Tyquon Demetrius Robins, 24, also known as Otis, of Deer Drive in Nelsonia, was taken back to Accomack Jail following the preliminary hearing. The charges against him include murder, use of a firearm and intentionally discharging a firearm from a vehicle. Robins is being held without bond. His lawyer, Paul Watson, unsuccessfully argued that there was nothing conclusive to show his client had committed the crimes.

"The defendant gets in the car in the driver's seat of his vehicle without a lapse of time, that car follows the other car onto the highway," said Matthew Brenner, the prosecutor. "I believe it's pretty obvious from the testimony here." If there is an "absence of this defendant pulling the trigger, he is still driving this car and chasing this vehicle and gunshots were coming from the vehicle."

Judge Gordon Vincent agreed, adding, "The number of shots fired all were indicative of ... intent."

Later, 1st Sgt. Elliott Anderson of the state police, a street gang expert, said the testimony about waving a green bandana makes him suspect "a show of force by a street gang."

"In Bloods culture, a green bandana would be worn if you are selling narcotics," Anderson explained. "It could be a territorial thing."

According to testimony, four men were riding in the other vehicle when shots were fired at it. Fardale (also known as Fairdale) Antonio Johnson, 39, of Mappsville, who was in the backseat, said he had been hit. When one car pulled away, the other went to a nearby trailer park to wait for police and rescue workers.

A crowd had gathered making it difficult for rescuers to examine Johnson, testimony disclosed. Once he was in an ambulance, rescuers found he had died. People in the unruly gathering then began to yell and jump on the rescue vehicle, which was able to leave the scene and returned to a firehouse where sets of doors were locked for protection.

Ja'mes Nelson of Mappsville said he and Johnson, who was the grandfather of his children, were out for a night of celebrating because Johnson had just gotten out of jail. "We were going to get a few beers, to play pool," he explained.

They went to the Corner Mart in Nelsonia and Robins was inside. His hands were full of items to purchase, so Nelson said he greeted Robins, who he worked with at Perdue Farms, but shook hands with another man who was also in the store.

Nelson said Robins became offended because he hadn't offered his hand to him and started arguing about it. Johnson came in and also got involved in the dispute. Nelson said outside, a woman was sitting in the passenger side of Robins' vehicle.

Johnson, Nelson and two other men were getting gas. Nelson said Robins got in his vehicle and was waving a green bandana. "He backed up as we're getting into a car. He pulls behind us. He's yelling ... waving a green flag."

Nelson said he followed them down the highway. When they got in front of the beer distributing company, they heard the shots. "It was slight but you could hear it. This guy, he was right on us and all the shots were aimed at the rear bumper." Nelson was in the front passenger seat and said he had ducked down but looked back between the front seats and saw the driver with the

Sign Discourse Discussed At Cape Charles Council Meeting

By Ron West

A political sign in Cape Charles gives a derogatory message and creates a poor image of the town and its residents, says one resident.

Jane McKinley urged the town council last week to review its policy regarding signs in Cape Charles. She did not state which political candidate was targeted.

Town Planner Larry DiRe and Mayor George Proto noted VDOT policy states that no signs, regardless of their content, are allowed within the agency's right-of-way. The U.S. Supreme Court ruled that signs on private property were allowed and the town could face legal action if it chose to have the such a sign removed, DiRe said.

Councilman Sambo Brown suggested letting VDOT handle matters within its right-of-way. The council directed the planning commission to review the sign ordinance and make recommendations that would bring it in compliance with the court action. DiRe was asked to report back within three months.

Councilwoman Dora Sullivan suggested adding a note to water bills about that issue and to remind dog owners to keep their animals under control when they are outside.

Harbormaster Charlie Farlow reported the new pump-out facility was being installed. It will be able to handle boats of any size within the harbor. He also said the Virginia Department of Game and Inland Fisheries was notified about repairs needed to boat ramps. An agency representative visited the area and Farlow is awaiting a response regarding repairs to the wooden structures along the sides of the boat ramps.

The Cape Charles Trail Project is about 40 percent complete but vegetation will not be put in until the spring. As planned, the trail will run from Bay Creek across the town, along the boardwalk, along Washington Avenue to the Oyster Farm Marina and along Peach Street. Panek noted that there had been issues with the portion along Washington and that the work was shifted to the Peach Street portion.

The panel agreed to move dumpsters that are behind the library to improve the appearance of the area. Lights will be put there and a shield for the remaining dumpster. The members also adopted an amendment to the town code regarding tourism.

Town offices will be closed today, Friday, Nov. 25. A grand illumination of Central Park will occur at 6 p.m., Dec. 3.

Julie Badger Named Eastern Shore Foundation Director

Submitted Article

David Parker, executive director of the Eastern Shore of Virginia Community Foundation, retired recently. Parker served as the first executive director for the organization and was instrumental in establishing the foundation.

"While I'm saddened at David's retirement, I am immensely grateful for his leadership and service to the Foundation," said Board Chairman Maureen Lawrence. The foundation board named Julie Badger as its new executive director. Badger brings nearly three decades of finance, banking and nonprofit experience to the Foundation. Badger began serving in her new position at the foundation on Oct. 1, 2016.

"On behalf of the Board of Directors of the foundation, I am delighted to welcome Julie as the new executive director," Lawrence said. "Her wealth of experience and demonstrated leadership in serving those in need will help the foundation move forward in its mission to support nonprofits on Virginia's Eastern Shore."

"It's an honor to join the Foundation—the work of this organization is vitally important," Badger said. "Our work truly makes a difference in the lives of our friends and neighbors and I look forward to working and learning more about the organizations in our community."

Readers Share Thanksgiving Stories: Survey Responses Part II

Last week we ran the Part I of responses to a survey asking readers to share Thanksgiving stories. This week we run Part II

By Linda Cicaira

Dan Hillman was doing a fellow worker a favor in 1985 when he got stranded in New York City on Thanksgiving wearing a costume that caused passersby to honk their horns. His home was about 45 miles away.

Now retired and living with his wife, Marilyn, in Locustville, Hillman occasionally draws political cartoons for the Eastern Shore Post. But, despite the decades that have passed and the changes that life has brought, that holiday of more than 30 years ago is still vivid in his mind.

Dressed like the Raspberry Lion, a children's book character, he somehow managed to get stuck in the city alone without money, he replied recently in an email when asked about a memorable Turkey Day. "It was a bit too long to walk, especially in the costume I was wearing," he said.

"My wife, David, my son, and my friends two daughters, Jennifer and Melissa, were to meet me at the end of the parade, which was at the Macy's store at Herald Square ... and return home to Babylon to have dinner with my close friend. Somehow we did not connect."

"I marched in the Macy's Thanksgiving Day Parade dressed ... in a costume that cost $1,500 to create and fit to my size," he wrote. The co-worker, who went by the name, Master Jamieson Steele, asked Hillman to help him market his new book in the series "Raspberry Lion and his Friends."

"One of the things I was able to do was get approved to march in the parade," Hillman said. "There was a large grandstand there and a lot of people. I went to the top of the grandstand, some 20 odd rows up, thinking they had to be able to see me in my costume," he said. "Never happened. A half hour after the parade ended most of the crowd had dispersed and there I still stood at the top of the grandstand (with) no family in sight. They had left!!!"

"I did not have my wallet," he said. "It was very warm inside the costume, so I only had shorts on; no pockets and I did not think I would need any money, ergo, took none with me."

"The company I worked for had given me a phone card," he continued. "Fortunately, I remembered the card number ... Steele ... had driven me into Manhattan at 5:30 that morning, but he knew my family was to meet me, so he left the city right after the parade. He did not know my predicament."

"As I walked about mid-town Manhattan people honked at me," Hillman continued. Some thought he was the Lion King and wanted him to pose with their children.

"If I had thought about it, I could have charged $1 for each picture and made enough money to take the Long Island Railroad home," Hillman said.

But, finally, he remembered, "I had a telephone charge card." He made a call and his friend soon picked him up. "I ate dinner in my Raspberry Lion costume sans the lion head, which was huge."

Hillman said he is most thankful this year for living "in the greatest country in the history of the world!" He really doesn't have a Thanksgiving tradition but likes to "eat turkey" and "watch football. What else is there!!!"

He thinks of many ancestors during the holiday. "Both my parents are gone, both my in-laws are gone. Can't think of one without thinking of the others," Hillman said. If he could choose a famous person in history to share the meal with, it would be Christopher Columbus. "Had to be a hell of a ride, great story," he added.

If Shirley Christian of Melfa could only eat one food at her Thanksgiving feast, it would be turkey, "Since it's the

Additional vehicles may now qualify for tax relief beginning in 2017

Eastville, Va --- Northampton County Commissioner of Revenue, Charlene P. Gray, announced today that due to legislative changes that had taken place in the 2016 session of the Virginia General Assembly, additional vehicles might now qualify for Personal Property Tax Relief (PPTR) from the Commonwealth of Virginia beginning 2017.

The action by the General Assembly changed the registration requirements for personal use trucks with gross weight between 7,501 and 10,000 pounds. As of January 1, 2017 these vehicles must be reclassified as pickups. These vehicles will require standard passenger license plates, and no longer qualify for truck license plates.

Once you have successfully reclassified your vehicle with DMV as a pickup before January 1, 2017, it may then qualify for personal property tax relief in 2017. Contact the Northampton County Commissioner of the Revenue office for details. The change does not apply to vehicles registered for business use. If your truck is registered for business use, no action on your part is required.

You can reclassify your vehicle by visiting your local DMV customer service center.

Devan Lamar Hinmon, 27, who has addresses on Saxis Road in Temperanceville and Big Road in Bloxom, pleaded guilty to possession of marijuana and possession of a Schedule IV drug in March. A short form presentence report was ordered. Hinmon was released on existing bond. Sentencing was tentatively set for April.

Benito Flores, 31, of Wayne Drive in Bloxom, pleaded guilty to forgery, uttering, obtaining money by false pretenses and stealing checks in January 2016. A short form pre-sentence report was ordered. He was allowed to remain free on existing bond.

Dewey Elmer Hall, 51, of Chicken City Road in Chincoteague, was sentenced to five years in prison with three years and three months suspended for assault and battery of a Chincoteague police officer. The incident occurred Nov. 11, 2015. He

A Maryland woman was charged recently with stealing money from the Accomack business where she worked.

Natisha T. Creecy, 40, of Colona Road in Pocomoke, was charged with embezzling more than $200 from Royal Farms between April 22 and Aug 15, 2016. Records filed in Accomack General District Court stated she "confessed" to the crimes. Unsecured bond was set at $5,000. She was arrested Nov. 4. Sgt. Anthony Bright of ACSO investigated.

Amanda Jean Kelley, 27, of Beacon Road of Melfa, was charged with stealing property worth $200 or more that belonged to Wayne Norton Sr. on Jan. 6, 2014. She was also accused of misdemeanor receiving stolen property on Jan. 12, 2014. Unsecured bond was set at $2,500. Investigator Sam Castiglia of ACSO handled the case.

Veronne Drummond Jr., 21, of McCray Lane in Accomack, was charged with intentionally destroying, defacing or damaging property worth more than $1,000 belonging to Nicholas Miller on Oct. 30. Secured bond was

Northampton General District

A Cape Charles man was charged with two felonies earlier this month, according to documents filed in Northampton General District Court.

Lorenzo J. Stith is accused of credit card larceny and credit card fraud that occurred on Nov. 9. He was arrested the next day. A preliminary hearing was set for January. He is free on his own recognizance.

Kyron Xavier Graham, of Newport News, was charged with possession with intent to distribute marijuana on Nov. 11. He was arrested the same day. A February preliminary hearing was scheduled.

Sheriff's Marine Unit Rescues Two After Capsize

By Linda Cicaira

Two men were rescued last weekend by the Accomack County Sheriff's Office marine unit after a boat in Onancock Creek capsized.

Sheriff Todd Godwin said a report came into his office at about 6:15 p.m., Saturday, Nov. 19. The unit and an EMS officer arrived at the scene near the mouth of the creek off East Point where they found Charles Doyle, of Onancock, and Daniel Harshaw, of Virginia Beach.

The two were retrieved from the water and taken to Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital. Their condition was not available.

Broadwater Academy Middle School Vikings Football End Season with Clean Sweep

Story and Photos Submitted by Airlia Gustafson

Broadwater's Middle School football team ended the season with a convincing 41-20 win against Portsmouth Christian to finish the season with an untarnished 6-0 record.

"We've got a solid core of boys who have played together for years and it shows," said Head Coach, Eddie Spencer. "Because of the team's experience, we were able to pass and run some more complicated plays. I'm very proud of the way the boys came together as a team this year."

The Vikings started the season with a big win over rival Greenbrier Christian at Bynum Field two days into the school year. Viking Co-captain Gunnar Gustafson scored five of his season total of 21 touchdowns and ran for 510 all-purpose yards to put the game out of reach very early. Behind the strong play of quarterback, Brant Bloxom, Tucker Arcos and Cole Celli added touchdowns to cement the win.

The Broadwater gridders went on to notch more wins against Norfolk Christian, Portsmouth Christian, Greenbrier Christian and Atlantic Shores.

Keys to the undefeated season were strong play by the offensive and defensive lines – Jack Barker, Nick Hutchinson, Jonathan Graham, Clay Wardius, Benjamin Price and Reade Nichols – and hard hitting defense by Cain Taylor, Caleb Floyd and Miles McIntyre. One of the highlights of the season was a successful two-point conversion run by Grade 6 student, Ryan Lawson.

"Broadwater football has a bright future once these boys get to varsity," Coach Spencer added.

Viking Gunnar Gustafson runs the ball during the team's last home game of the season against Portsmouth Christian.

Taking My Golf Game to the House

Article by Bill Sterling

Retirement rocks. It really does.

I am about five months into my second retirement — having flunked my first attempt — and am finally getting into the swing of things. Literally. My favorite place in the morning is the swing on my front porch with a cup of hot coffee and again that evening with my beverage of choice.

And I've learned that it's all the choices available to me that is the secret to retirement.

If I want to attack that yard project today, I can do that, starting as soon as I complete my morning ritual of walking the dog, drinking my coffee and reading the newspaper. Depending on when Duke starts his day and my level of energy on this particular day, that could be before 8 o'clock or nearly 10. Or I could put the project off until the next day or the day after that. Clocks — unless it is a tide clock — and calendars take on less importance in retirement.

There is also more time for travel.

My wife and I recently returned from nine days in sunny Florida, where the temperatures were in the mid-80s every day. In the days of our newspaper deadlines, getting away for more than a long weekend was a challenge.

We did the Epcot at Disney, saw some other sights and visited with friends and family. Golf also was involved.

On one of those golf outings, my wife joined me. She did not play because she said visually-impaired people should not be swinging clubs. (It's the same reason she never holds a shotgun.)

Now, she has helped my game by giving me a driver that gets me extra yardage off the tee and a wedge that drops the ball closer to the hole. But by actually seeing me on the course for the first time, she has learned some things about my game that are creating considerable discussion around the house.

After about three holes, which I thought I played fairly well, her main takeaway was, "I am impressed. You can find a divot on the green the size of a quarter and meticulously repair it, take time to carefully cover sand over your divots in the fairway, and go to painstaking lengths to rake the sand in the trap before you hit your next shot."

I replied that my actions were simply good golf etiquette and showed consideration for other golfers.

"Then, tell me how," she retorted, "you can be oblivious to a trail of soap and shaving cream suds throughout the bathroom, overlook the wet towel on the floor and leave enough water outside the shower to fill that lake by the last hole."

"Uh, uh," I stammered.

"Exactly," she replied, "What about good house etiquette and some consideration for others in our home?"

I must admit that after years of living alone, I had gotten somewhat lazy about picking things up or cleaning the messes I make. I generally let things get to the level where even I can't stand it and then go into serious cleanup mode.

And while it would disturb me to leave my divot on a green before heading to the next tee, I apparently am not bothered by leaving three cabinet doors open in the kitchen after procuring the glasses, plates and utensils for a meal.

So, here's a golf lesson for me. Take my game home, where good etiquette means leaving the premises in the same or better condition you found it.

Now, I am not exactly a par golfer, so I am sure there will be some bogies along the way. But maybe a few more birdies than in the past, too.

And when I mess up, I will be sure to yell, "Fore!"

Eastern Shore Street Hockey League (ESSHL)

Senior League Game Results

Article Submitted by Michael Garbacz

Game 1: Red Wings 4, Blues 2

The Wings walked away with the day's opening game, with nearly every player chipping in on the score sheet. The Blues, meanwhile, were severely shorthanded, fighting tooth-and-nail just to stay in the game. Robby Parker led the way for the Red Wings with a goal and two assists; Steve Sharo also had a multipoint game with a goal and an assist. Brandon "The Huntsman" Stapleton, along with brother Wes, scored the other goals for the Wings; Danny Tweedy and Talyer Parks both also picked up an assist. Julian Dedicatoria and Danny Miller tickled the twine for the Blues in the loss, with Jenny Rice picking up a helper each time.

Game 2: Penguins 1, Bruins 9

The next game of the day again featured a very shorthanded squad, albeit with a much different result. Derek Hail, Dean Dedicatoria and Kim Mills "Iron-manned" the whole game themselves, and took the steamrolling like champs. Scott Millkin, Matt Ayres, Zach Webb and the smooth criminal, Donnie Williams, scored the goal—Webb and Williams each netted a hat trick. Jason Johnson and Mike McCready added assists. Hail spoiled shutout bid for Dave Sepelak in the loss.

Game 3: Predators 6, Red Wings 2

Rookie netminder Ali Stapleton did an outstanding job for the Predators, as they stunned the Wings in this tilt. The Preds looked like league champions in this game, shelling Red Wings goalie Brad Ford with 31 shots while only allowing nine against. El Presidente led the charge with a hat trick and two assists; Guy Shover also had a big game, putting home two goals and two assists. Jesse West scored the remaining goal for the Preds; Willie Crockett added an assist. Wes Stapleton had a multipoint effort in the loss, netting a goal and an assist. The Huntsman scored the other goal for the Wings.

Game 4: Capitals 6, Blues 1

Blame it on the windy day, I suppose, because the lopsided games continued with this affair. Miller scored a beauty of a semi-breakaway goal in the defeat, but otherwise the Blues could not keep up with the Caps' tight passing and skillful cycling. The Capitals spread the scoring out, with Preston Shover (2G, 1A), James Haley (1G, 1A), Ray Schrefler (1G, 1A) and the Pat Trick (2A) all registering multipoint games. Matt Yetter also scored a goal and Dylan Harington added an assist.

Game 5: Bruins 7, Avalanche 1

The trend held true once again today as the red-hot Bruins melted the Avalanche. Just as with the previous game, the killer Bs' cycling and ball movement proved too much for the young Avs squad to handle. Williams put up two goals and an assist; Millikin joined the three-point parade with a goal and two assists. Johnson and Webb each scored a goal and an assist; Matt Ayres found the back of the net twice.

Game 6: Penguins 2, Predators 8

The Preds followed up their dominant first game with an even stronger effort, running away from the flightless birds with ease. Guy Shover more than doubled up the Pens' goal scoring by himself, posting an incredible five for the game. El Presidente, not to be outdone, added a goal and six assists to the proceedings. Keith Hagler and Jesse West rounded out the markers for the Preds; Willie Crockett also chipped in a helper. Hail and Michael Garbacz scored the goals for the Penguins in the loss; Kim Mills picked up an assist.

Game 7: Capitals 5, Avalanche 4

The best game of the day saw the Caps leap out to a big 4-1 lead after the first period, with the Avs clawing their way back to make it a real nail-biter by the end. Just when it looked like another runaway game, the young legs of the Avalanche kicked in. They managed to outshoot the Caps in each of the last two periods, but those "blueshirts", backstopped by young Dylan Harrington, held on for dear life and sealed the win. Pat Trick, Matt Yetter, Preston Shover and Cliff Windsor scored the goals for the Caps; Shover and Yetter also added an assist each, as did Ray Schrefler and James Haley. Dustin Palo (1G, 1A), Nate Metzger (2G), Garret Baylis (1G, 1A) and Mr. Tease (2A) all registered two-point games for the Avs in the loss.

Game 8: Avalanche 7, Penguins 3

Bless their hearts, the Pens just can't seem to get the motor going this season. Although starting out strong, the Penguins lost their tuxedos by game's end. Mr. Tease potted a hat trick and added an assist for good measure to lead the Avs; captain Nate Metzger also came up with a four-point game with two goals and two assists. Dustin Palo had a goal and an assist; Garret Baylis rounded out the scoring with a helper. Michael Garbacz (2G), Derek Hail (1G, 1A) and Josh LoFaso (2A) each had multipoint games in the losing effort.

NEW LIFE FOR OLD WOOD

Article and Photos

Submitted by Max Lonzanida

Eight students from Shore Christian Academy had a rare opportunity to turn washed-up lumber into unique pieces of art during their field trip to Eastern Shore of Virginia National Wildlife Refuge (NWR) in Cape Charles. The lumber and pallets were found during a recent beach cleanup on remote Fisherman Island NWR.

During that cleanup, Girl Scout Troop #176 from Norfolk pulled off four truck loads full of harmful marine debris. This debris included derelict fishing gear, plastic bottles, single-serve food containers, pieces of foam and salvageable lumber.

Fisherman Island is no stranger to marine debris. In fact, Clean Virginia Waterways and the Virginia Coastal Zone Management Program have been surveying the amount of debris on the island for more than two years. As part of their Monitoring Marine Debris in Virginia's Coastal Zone project report, released in September, Fisherman Island has a disproportionate share of marine debris on its beaches compared to other survey sites. The report found the remote island had more accumulation of harmful marine debris than Back Bay National Wildlife Refuge, Grand View Nature Preserve, and Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge.

Instead of dumping the salvageable wood into Northampton County's landfill, refuge staff decided to up-cycle it. Refuge staff cut the lumber and joined pieces to form wood canvases consisting of 3 to 4 planks. Refuge staff whitewashed the canvases, and last week students from Shore Christian Academy used acrylic paints and brushes to turn them into unique works of art.

It was an opportunity for students because who do not have an art curriculum, and students took home their paintings, and a free way for the refuge to save derelict wood from the landfill and provided a unique opportunity to promote environmental stewardship to the students. Best of all, students took home their own pieces of the refuge.

Max Lonzanida is the visitor services park ranger at the Eastern Shore of Virginia National Wildlife Refuge, part of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service near Kiptopeke.

in the face, grabbed her by her hair and threw her in the floor against the filing cabinets in the office," Taylor wrote in the file.

"Two other witnesses gave me the same testimony," the deputy continued. "Upon a pat down of Ms. Hope and her purse, I discovered two partially smoked cigars containing green leafy material. The green leafy material reacted positive for marijuana in a field test kit," he wrote.

Hope is unemployed, is "a native to the Eastern Shore," the weight of the evidence is "strong," was "remorseful to a law enforcement officer" and "was polite and cooperative" with the magistrate, the court documents also stated.

In addition, Hope was "banned from all school property in Accomack." She is free on a $2,500 unsecured bond, which means her own recognizance. Two other school workers, Wendy Linton and Treketta Harris, were listed as witnesses. A January trial was set.

"Our security measures were intact," said Superintendent Chris Holland, adding "We continue still to have safe schools." He declined to say more, except that "We're concerned about our employee," characterizing it as "a personnel issue."

bandana/flag waving it out the car window. "He was driving the car ... when we pulled out he pulled out directly behind us," Nelson continued. "He was making all sorts of gestures with his green flag out the window." Nelson said he didn't know what the significance of the flag was.

Another resident was driving on the same road between 9:30 and 10 p.m., Friday, June 24. A car was coming up fast in his rear view mirror so he got over to let it pass. Another car came up behind that one and ran him into the shoulder of the highway. He heard the gunshots after they passed but said he didn't see the flash of the gun because it was aimed away from him. "Stuff starting hitting my windshield ... I got a hold of 9-1-1 just before I got to Stuckey's ... I was in the Coast Guard, still hunts, grew up with guns, know what they sound like."

The witness said he heard more than four shots but not more than six. "I didn't see any people. All I saw was the cars." He slowed to stay away from the incident.

Investigator Pat Coulter of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office said traffic was stopped on the highway that night and he recovered six cartridge casings and a bullet. Another bullet was recovered from the body by the medical examiner, he said.

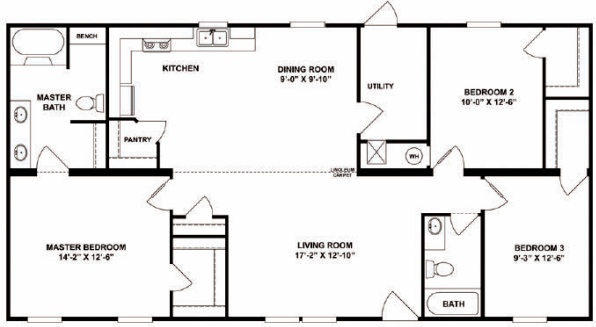

In September 2010, Johnson was convicted of distribution of cocaine and given 20 years with 15 suspended. Three years of probation was set to begin upon release. He was free for less than 24 hours when he was killed.

Chincoteague Refuge Drive This Weekend

Submitted Article

It's that time of year when multitudes of birds migrate through Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge. Many visitors also arrive to enjoy the extended Thanksgiving weekend through Sunday, Nov. 27. This is a popular time for many who enjoy participating in the "Special Drive". This the only time each year that visitors may drive their personal vehicles along the Service Road, a 15-mile round trip journey.

Visitors can only access the Service Road from noon - 2 p.m., so plan accordingly. To access the Service Road, follow the one-way traffic pattern around the Wildlife Loop Trail. This may take 10 or 15 minutes, due to high volume. All vehicles are expected to be off of the Service Road by 3:30 p.m.

2015 Another “Banner Year” for Eastern Shore Tourism

By Linda Cicoira

The tourism industry continued to grow last year for the Eastern Shore with visitor spending increasing by 2.6 percent compared to 2014, which is twice Virginia's 1.4 percent rate climb.

Accomack and Northampton counties jointly ranked #2 in the state for being the fastest growing tourism locations. The Shore was nudged out of being in the top spot for two years in a row by Northern Virginia.

In 2015, those visiting the Shore, spent a record $261 million at restaurrants, bed & breakfasts, hotels, campgrounds, shops, galleries, museums, attractions and at other tourism spots. The figures equal an average of $71,500 a day streaming into businesses from Cape Charles to Chincoteague. Travelers also contribute sales, lodging and meals taxes to the local economy and in 2015, local tax revenues totaled $7 million, a 6 percent increase from 2014, and an increase of 22 percent since 2010.

Comparatively, 2014 figures reported by Kerry Allison, executive director the Eastern Shore Tourism Commission, showed visitor spending at $254 million.

In addition, in 2015, the Eastern Shore got a 5.1 percent increase in tourism payroll, a total of $54 million, and a 3.1 percent increase in tourism-related jobs, which total about 2,910.

“As chairman of the Eastern Shore of Virginia Tourism Commission, I want to congratulate our tourism partners on another banner year,” said Larry LeMond. “We all know that we live in a beautiful area and now it is being discovered by more and more people every year.”

“We have things here that are, increasingly, in short supply in the rest of the world,” Allison said, referring to “pristine and wild outdoor places and friendly residents who treat others with a deep humanity. Add in a rich tapestry of things to do, interesting places to stay and places to eat. Then, realize we are a short drive from millions and millions of Americans on the Eastern Seaboard. It's a compelling mix.”

with family and remembering days past and creating new memories.”

Christian said the funniest thing she remembers about a past holiday is “forgetting to remove the packet from inside the turkey. Ugh,” she said. “What a smell!”

She thinks about her father on Thanksgiving “since he loved having his family all around him and thanking God for all his blessings.”

Her choice for a historical dinner guest “would be Mahatma Gandhi as he had a peaceful nature and stressed peace in the world, and that is the one thing our world and especially our nation needs so badly right now. We are having totally senseless riots, and our people need peace to reunite this country, to settle down and act as sane human beings of the 21st century. Destruction, chaos and bodily harm is not the answer.”

Laura Stewart of Exmore likes “any delicious dessert” for Thanksgiving. “I have a whole set of sweet teeth.”

She is thankful for “my education, and learning more every day through alternative means, meditation, yoga, et cetera.” Her favorite Thanksgiving tradition is “being with the people I love.” Stewart's funniest holiday story was “watching the video of the previous disastrous Thanksgiving when an inebriated relative spilled a hot dish on my brand new sweater, and we could all laugh about it.”

She thinks about her mother. “I really miss her during Thanksgiving since this was her favorite holiday and she made everything extra special for the family.”

Of the famous, she would pick the late U.S. President Franklin Delano Roosevelt for a Thanksgiving dinner guest. “He is actually a relative, we share the same middle name, and he did so many good things for the country when things needed to be done.”

Vic Pepler of Captain's Cove was once a vegetarian but now could just eat turkey for the holiday “because, how often do you get to eat wonderful turkey?!” Besides family and friends, he is most thankful for “my critters, but they are family.” His favorite tradition is “the food!” His mother is the person he thinks about on Thanksgiving. “She was the one who got us all together for a great meal.”

Bill Payne of Cape Charles prefers “rack of lamb” for his Thanksgiving feast. “I love lamb!” he said. He is thankful for his health and likes the tradition of “going around the table, each person expressing their thankfulness.” The funniest thing he remembers is “my partner igniting the marshmallow topping for baked sweet potatoes. She was ‘browning’ them under the broiler.”

The ancestor he thinks about is “my Mother, of course!” He would invite Martin Luther King to dinner; “to know him personally.”

Patsy Goard of Hallwood said her favorite holiday food is “dumplings – so I can maintain my figure ... haha.” She is thankful for God's grace and likes hearing what others are thankful for.

“One of the first Thanksgivings I had at my house, I realized I didn't have enough turkey,” Goard wrote in answer to the Post's email survey. “My mother saw me crying in the pantry and when I told her my concern, she said it would be plenty. Unbeknownst to me, she went around and whispered to the adults to not eat a lot of turkey to not make me feel bad. I had turkey left over.”

“I think of my mother” during the holiday. “She was a great cook, loved having the family together, and would be wild over all the great and great-great grandchildren she never met.”

“I'd love to share a meal and conversation with the brilliant (late former President) Thomas Jefferson,” she said.

The Episcopal Church Welcomes You

For more than fifty-five years these signs have graced the highways and by-ways of our beautiful country. Their message is not just a slogan and is apt for today. In our current climate of charged political rhetoric and division that has unfortunately lead to harassment, threats, violence towards many immigrants, refugees, ethnic and religious minorities, and people of color; Episcopal Churches stand as safe places of tolerance, compassion, understanding, and dialogue. Jesus' words in our scriptures tell us to "love your neighbor as yourself" (Mt. 22:39) and "do to others as you would have them do to you" (Mt. 7:12). Our baptismal covenant requires that we "Strive for justice and peace among all people and respect the dignity of every human being" (Book of Common Prayer p.305).

The Episcopal Churches of Virginia's Eastern Shore want you to know; regardless of your race, color, creed, age, ethnic background or gender identity you are welcome to participate in our worship and sacraments, spiritual guidance, fellowship, pastoral care, outreach and educational ministries.

Our doors are open to all and we look forward to offering our heartfelt hospitality to you, your families and friends.

Madrigals to Perform

The Eastern Shore Madrigal Singers, directed by Patricia Davis and accompanied by Stefan Dulcie, will present an original Christmas cantata, "What a Glorious Night," on Friday, Dec. 2, at 7 p.m., at Grace UMC, in Parksley, and on Sunday, Dec. 4, at 3 p.m., at All Hallows Episcopal Church, in Snow Hill, Md.

The Madrigal Singers are the longest continuing choral group on the Eastern Shore, originating in Northampton County in 1976. The late Dr. Stephen A. Boyer, a Snow Hill native, was one of the original founders. Many changes in style, content, and performance have taken place over the year, but the group and their director, Pat Davis, remain dedicated to and focused on bringing quality musical performances to their audiences.

Scripted by Madrigals singer Lynda Hinton, "What a Glorious Night" presents the prophecy and birth of Jesus. The Madrigals arranged this cantata themselves. The selections include seasonal melodies, gospel-style toe-tapping tunes, a rousing a capella selection by the men, and the traditional "Mary, Did You Know" with a "Let All Mortal Flesh Keep Silence" strain. Soprano Beth Sharpley and tenor Marty Killmon will perform "The Prayer." The program also features other traditional Christmas songs and some new, contemporary tunes.

Admission is $10 for adults and $5 for students 12 years and under, and will be collected at the door.

Our Local Churches Are Not Falling

Leviticus 8:1-8:5

The Lord said to Moses, speak to the Israelites and say to them: I am the Lord, your God. You must not do as they do in Egypt, where you used to live. And you must not do as they do in the land of Canaan, where I am bringing you. Do not follow in their practice. You must obey my laws—be careful to follow my degrees. I am the Lord, your God. Keep my degrees and laws for the men who obey them will live by them. I am the Lord.

FALL CELEBRATIONS FOR ESCC

2016 marked two special occasions for Eastern Shore Community College (ESCC). As a member of the Virginia Community College System (VCCS), ESCC joined in celebrating the 50th Anniversary of the 23 community colleges of the Commonwealth. Since the creation of the VCCS in 1966, more than 2.6 million individuals have enrolled and more than 575,000 degrees and credentials have been awarded.

On the evening of Oct. 15, 470 supporters gathered at the Richmond Marriott to celebrate the golden anniversary. The ESCC delegation attending the event included Dr. Linda Thomas-Glover, president of ESCC, and her husband, Rodney, also Mr.

and Mrs. Robert S. Bloxom Sr., David Landsberger, and Mr. and Mrs. Steve Johnsen.

The VCCS 50th Gala was followed on Oct. 28, by a local acknowledgement of the 45th Anniversary of ESCC. Current and former staff and faculty joined college board and foundation members, past and present, in an evening that celebrated the many ways the college has impacted the Shore and its residents, and the excitement surrounding the future groundbreaking for a new main building. Dr. Glover also announced the public phase of the college's second major gifts campaign which has raised $1.6 million of the $2 million goal.

Broadwater Students Place, Advance

Broadwater Academy Mathletes took second place at the 33rd Annual Eastern Shore High School Mathematics Competition. The math team, consisting of Zach Lingle, Winnie Wei, and Emma Booker, competed in the three-state math competition at Salisbury University. The team is coached by Dr. Mark Mentzer.

According to Mentzer, the team felt confident, stating they knew they had a shot at top honors. "It was evident this group of three of Broadwater's best, worked well together. As we reviewed our final strategies before the start of the contest, I felt this year's team had tremendous potential to do great work- and they proved me right!"

Broadwater competition math teams compete in a variety of contests, including the Virginia state contest, the US. Math Olympiad trials, Moody Math Challenge, and the US Math Modeling Championships. Broadwater students receive rigorous preparation in the art of problem-solving in preparation for these contests. Mentzer adds, "I could not be more proud of the accomplishments of these students."

Broadwater's Middle School Robotics Team advanced to the state championships after the regional competition in Norfolk earlier this month. The state championships will be held at James Madison University on December 3-4.

The championship team consists of Clay Wardius, Caleb Pruitt, Benjamin Price, Mahika Patel, Thomas Oliver, Suzanna Long, and Ture Gustafson.

"The students excelled in all aspects of the competition," said Kathy Custis, Middle School Robotics Co-Coach at Broadwater. "Their coding and the technical preparation of their robot was outstanding, their strategic approach to the tasks was excellent, and they showed great sportsmanship and character throughout the day," she added.

Broadwater's team of Grade 7 and 8 students won the overall regional titles in Robot Design and Robot Performance. Twenty-four teams from across Hampton Roads made a total of 72 individual trials with their robots, completing as many tasks as possible in 2.5 minutes. Broadwater's team earned the two highest scores of the day - 72 and 71. The next closest was 63.

Judges also assessed the team's attitude toward other competitors and their teamwork and respect for each other. Custis said, "Our kids are such good friends and such respectful citizens, I am sure that helped them with the judging. We are looking forward to showing what Broadwater can do at the state competition."

excuse imaginable to avoid them.

I just can't fathom not adoring a good sale. While I've often thought I would be a great professional shopper because I love, love, love, to peruse the goods, I prefer to do my looking (and spending) at times and on days when others are not jamming the aisles.

I can devote hours to shopping until I'm dropping. I find it relaxing. Believe it or not I can do it and not spend a dime. But that is really not quite as much fun as buying.

I do not particularly appreciate the art of online shopping. I want to touch the products. I want to taste the samples. I want to talk to the clerks or rummage through

By the time readers of the Eastern Shore Post check out this column, it will be Black Friday.

Most of you will either be running to the stores or finding every ex-on my own depending on my mood. I often start up conversations with other shoppers. It is very enlightening.

Nearly 60 percent of shoppers abandon a website if they have to wait more than three-seconds for something to load, according to www.marketingdonut.com. Eighty-five percent read online reviews before using local businesses and 41 percent abandon an online shopping cart because of hidden charges. Uh oh!

How I long for the days when shops would gift wrap everything for free. You could buy yourself something you really needed, get it wrapped, and then go home and act like a princess (or a prince) with a birthday. Yippee!

Yes, I like to wrap presents. I'm not a fan of gift bags. There is something to be said for ripping open the paper. It makes the giving even more fun. I love to bestow presents as much as I like to get them.

I especially enjoy giving a gift for no reason at all. I think while everyone is out there spending themselves into bankruptcy, they should buy a gift and hide it away to give to a loved one in January after all the fanfare has died down. It sure would be exciting on a snow day to be surprised. Hint. Hint.

Still, there are people to delight sooner than that. I have a secret about holiday shopping. You can get the same stuff later in the day. So don't let anybody tell you that getting to a store at 4 a.m. on a Saturday is a good idea.

Can you walk away from that last item on the shelf without snapping it up? Or do you want to pull the articles out from a display as if you were playing a classic game of Jenga? Do the red colors in an advertisement grab your attention like a child with an eye for the fire engine?

There's a lot of psychology involved in shopping. www.teenvogue.com says people tend to buy things before they are on sale because they "want to avoid that sinking feeling of regret" that happens when one goes back to the store in a week and the item is gone. "We as consumers tend to think that the things we want will go out of stock sooner than they actually do," the website stated. "Human beings are not good at dealing with uncertainty."

Well, I certainly want to go shopping every day. But, work is calling my name and I'm not Santa Claus, much as I wish I were.

Happy Shopping! Remember, you are just feeding the economy. And if you can afford it, give the gift of charity. There are organizations out there that can make others smile with your help.

Reading "Huckleberry Finn"

Dear Editor:

Mark Twain wrote "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn" as an anti-racism book with Jim as a black hero.

The "N-word" is a corruption of the Latin for black and Nigeria is derived from it. We've heard blacks use "my (the N-word)" as an endearment in the Walmart parking lot!

We would have been severely reprimanded for using it when I went to school 50 years ago, but its past literary use is a questionable reason to ban anti-discrimination books written by our greatest authors. Considering the obscene "music" children listen to today, could anything Twain wrote set a worse example?

Mark Twain wrote many books, some that I preferred to "Huck Finn." "Roughing It" and "Innocents Abroad" would probably be more acceptable to persons worried about racial labels.

There are many books that should be read in schools: Eric Hoffer's "The True Believer," Thomas Sowell's "A Conflict of Visions," Hayek's "Road to Serfdom," Dickens' "Bleak House" and hundreds of others. These books may be too heavy for some students, but excerpts could be used.

Bullying and name calling is the result of poor discipline at home and at school, not reading "The Adventures of Huckleberry Finn."

dio activity improve our physical well-being, exercising one's literary skills through reading for pleasure, can increase empathy, improve relationships with others, reduce the symptoms of depression and dementia, and improve overall well-being. Both "workouts" are imperative in seeking better health for our children, families, and our nation as a whole.

Today, I serve as membership director for the Eastern Shore Family YMCA, graciously allowing and encouraging others to begin their health and wellness journey. I began my own personal connection with family literacy many years ago, proudly assuming the role of "Story Lady" on Thursday mornings at the Accomac branch of the Eastern Shore Public Library. Family literacy programs are those programs that involve parents and children together in language and reading. Library programs such as Story Hour, the Summer Reading Program, and Legos In the Library events, to name a few, improve not only children's literacy outcomes over time, but it also may improve literacy outcomes for parents. Further, studies have shown that when parents and children interact, their personal relationships are strengthened and they become partners in education, fostering a learning relationship outside of a classroom setting. These parent-child interactions truly build the blueprint for life-long learning.

Visiting the library together is a great way to foster family literacy activities. Not only do libraries often offer access to books on a wide range of literacy levels and subjects, libraries often have books in several languages as well. Adults and children can improve their literacy skills by reading books in the family's first language and then reading the same book in English. By doing this, family members will build vocabulary, the ability to use context clues to learn new words, and enable adults to ask the child questions about the illustrations and predict what will happen next.

Everyone deserves the opportunity to discover who they are and what they can achieve. I challenge each of you to make a difference in people's lives through your support of the YMCA for healthy bodies and the Eastern Shore Public Library for healthy minds. You can help save and change lives on the Eastern Shore. Check out the progress toward the new main library in Parksley at www.shorelibrary.com
