Law enforcement officers learn how to use naloxone kits to save lives after heroin overdoses.

LEARNING TO SAVE ADDICTS FROM HEROIN OVERDOSES

"It's here," Eastern Shore Drug Task Force Director Scott Wade said Wednesday as he stood outside a training center in Melfa where 120 local law enforcement officers were taught this week how to use kits to revive overdose victims.

"We have an opioid problem," he said. "There are a lot of prescription drugs being sold here ... We've had heroin overdoses in Accomack County. We're trying to get ahead of the curve ... These kits will provide law

Little Buzz About Accomack Budget

By Linda Cicaira

Accomack County's proposed $61 million fiscal 2017-18 budget was taken to public hearing Wednesday without real estate or personal property tax rate increases bringing little conversation. No increases are scheduled for user fees either.

The only four-minute speaker was Superintendent Chris Holland, who oversees nearly 40 percent of the spending. His comments included boasting that seven school administrators "all worked their way up" locally and that $150,000 would be spent on employees or $300 each to help with health insurance costs.

"This will be a big factor with some of our young people," Holland said. He also thanked the board and Sheriff Todd Godwin for helping provide another resource officer.

With that and a review of the budget presented by Acting County Administrator and Finance Director

Northampton Supervisors Begin Budget Reconciliation

By Ron West

Northampton Supervisors began the difficult and tiring task this week of seeking ways to stretch the limited resources of the county to meet ever growing needs.

Requests by county departments have caused a $1.36 million deficit, Chairman Spencer Murray said. Funding all would require a 9-cent increase per $100 valuation of real estate, something the board has no desire to do. So, first they will trim as much as possible.

Interim County Administrator and Finance Director John Andrzejewski said he would work with the department heads and other staff to figure out which items could be removed from the budget without adversely affecting day-to-day operations. Two projects could make it more difficult to balance the budget.

The computer network at the sheriff's office needs an upgrade. Sheriff David Doughty said the software used by his department including the regional jail would no longer be supported by the vendor after 2019. To be prepared for the change on time, he urged the board to approve the $400,000 needed for the new software package.

Doughty said the software would allow dispatchers to pinpoint deputies' vehicles at any time, thus adding to their safety. In

Clean Up and Fun Days Scheduled in Cheriton

By Ron West

Cheriton's Town Cleanup Day was rescheduled for April 15 as other events on the Eastern Shore are set to take place on the original date, Saturday, April 1.

The event is aimed at sprucing up the community in anticipation of spring. A recent report made by Councilwoman Mary Mears also suggested that the town consider having a fall cleanup day.

Council also marked June 10 on its calendar for the annual Cheriton Fun Day at the newly completed town park. There will be activities for the young and old alike.

Town Clerk Stacy Sparrow asked council to consider replacement of the office desk that was donated to the town several years ago. She noted band-aids must be sought after attempting to open the jagged drawers. A quick look at the desk showed that the metal drawers had deteriorated to a point where opening them posed a hazard not only those who attempt to open them but also to anyone who ventures too close to the desk. Officials agreed to seek prices for a replacement and discuss their options at the April session.

Investigator Terry Thomas of the Northampton County Sheriff's Office reported crime was down in the town during the past month. Earlier in the year, several break-ins were reported at local homes. Stepped-up patrols and locked doors seem to have helped deter crime. Vice Mayor J. Wesley Travis said speeding and reckless driving has occurred on Cherrystone Road and enforcement needed to be stepped up there as well.

Travis also announced that the DMV bus would be in town on April 27. It offers some services that are not available at the town's DMV Select office. For more information, contact the town office at 757-331-8200

Chincoteague Cultural Alliance: Ponies in The Mist

The Chincoteague Island Arts Organization (CIAO) is pleased to sponsor the second Island Talk of the 2017 series on Saturday, April 1, 7 p.m. at the Island Theatre. The talk is free and open to the public.

Ponies in The Mist includes a discussion of the famous Chincoteague ponies accompanied by photographs taken by local nature photographers Steve and Darcy Cole of DSC Photography. While they are primarily wildlife photographers, Steve and Darcy are best known for reporting new foal sightings in the Wild Chincoteague Pony Herds. Their dedication and love of the ponies shows in their work. Hiking as much as 20 miles in a single day, they have hiked over 2,000 miles on Assateague Island, recording and reporting information on the ponies and taking pictures for their archives.

The program will include highlights from Darcy's hiking experiences on Assateague Island and the development of her personal interest in the ponies and foal season.

The Island Theatre is at 4074 Main St. in historic downtown Chincoteague. For additional information about this and other CIAO events, please visit www.ciarts.org enforcement a means of immediately treating an individual suffering from an opioid overdose and not having to wait on emergency medical personnel.”

Between January 2007 and September 2016, there were nearly 40 fatal drug overdoses on the Eastern Shore, according a state report. Thirty-one were in Accomack with 25 being attributed to opioids — four were specifically being blamed on heroin and three were blamed on cocaine. Another four Accomack deaths, three of which occurred in 2016, were attributed to the drug fentanyl, which is often laced in heroin.

Eight drug deaths were in Northampton County, five of which were attributed to opioids. None were blamed on heroin. One death in 2016 was attributed to cocaine.

Issues are with both heroin and synthetic pain medicines like Oxy-Contin, oxycodone and Percocet, the latter three of which often start the addiction process.

Captain Todd Wessells of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office wants to alert residents in an effort to stop problems before they start. The plan is to make a film featuring local situations and take it to the high schools for students and parents to view.

“We have a couple of people who we are going to interview to help,” said Wessells. “They are from our community. We want the kids to see that this is not a big city problem.”

Wade sought and recently received a grant that provided 100 voice guided injection kits used to shoot naloxone, also known as Narcan, into the victim's thigh to block or reverse the effects of opioids when someone is overdosing from the drugs. Wessells said he is going to continue seeking assistance for more kits since these will expire in a year.

Classes were held Tuesday and Wednesday to train officers prior to the kits being distributed. Each box has two treatments. Sometimes the drug user will quickly come around and become combative, the officials said.

Then they can go back into a coma-like sleep and need another injection.

“Why are these people so upset?” Wade asked the class.

“You took their high away,” an officer answered.

Wade agreed, “Just a second ago they were in their happy place.”

He was being facetious because the spot the addicts are in isn't pleasurable. In fact, many who started using heroin after getting hooked on pain medicine prescribed for an injury are seeking anything cheap that will keep them from the sickness known as withdrawal.

Heroin is the cheap drug. It costs between $10 and $15 compared to $80 for a prescription drug on the black market.

Nate Passewaters, Director of the Worcester County, Md. Drug Task Force, and his associate, Rodney Wells, led the program this week. That county has seen more opioid problems and has experience to share.

“Cocaine, crack cocaine is only a psychological addiction,” Passewaters said. “Opioids are also a physical addiction.” Users “can't afford to buy Percocet Heroin is so much cheaper.”

He said there are telltale signs of drug abuse. Pupils that are the size of pinpoints is one symptom. “It's like they are burning holes in your head.” He said parents who are suspicious should search through their kid's belongings for answers. “No fourth amendment in my house,” he added.

If they find anti-constipation medicine, they probably have an opioid user. Other signs are weight loss, runny nose, needle marks on the arms, infections or abscesses, loss of menstrual cycles and itching and scabs from skin picking.

The heroin is cut with “just about anything,” he said. “Chocolate milk powder. We've seen that. When you inject that into your body ... it rejects it. Gas is expelling into your skin ... 70 percent of addicts have a pre-existing condition that started with prescription drugs.”

Passewaters said withdrawal can be “like a flu times 100. They are wishing they were dying. It's nasty.

It's really, really, nasty. Muscle and bone aches, vomiting, diarrhea, fever ... we have addicts who are using up to 30 bags of heroin a day ... this is not just a law enforcement problem."

An opioid death panel of local agency members is going to be established to seek ways to do things better, said Wade. They object is to figure out how to educate the public. A pamphlet that law enforcement can use will also be designed.

Officers took the classes and obtained the kits from both sheriffs' offices; Chincoteague, Parksley, Onancock, Exmore, Cape Charles, Eastville police departments; the Virginia Marine Resources Commission police; and U.S.

Fish and Wildlife. Wade, who is a special agent for the state police, said his agency does its own training and will provide kits to its own in the future.

Wessells noted that state law allows "safe reporting of overdoses" by other drug users as long as they are seeking good faith or medical attention for themselves or others by contacting a firefighter, EMS, law enforcement officer, or 911 system. They also must stay at the scene until an officer responds to the report and be cooperative.

Someone who is overdosing is unresponsive to any stimuli, has pale clammy skin, breathing is infrequent or has stopped, deep snoring or gurgling, slow or no heart rate or pulse and has blue lips or fingertips.

Eastville Community Health Center Fundraising Hopes for Healthy Start

Submitted Article

A $2 million fundraising campaign for the Eastville Community Health Center was launched last week with a luncheon at the Eastern Shore Yacht & Country Club featuring Bruce Bradley, former president of Landmark Publishing Group and president of the Hampton Roads Community Foundation, as the keynote speaker.

Bradley, who now has a home in Northampton County, noted 33,000 of the 45,000 residents on the Eastern Shore of Virginia received medical care from one of the Eastern Shore Rural Health (ESRH) facilities in the past year. "It would have a devastating impact to this area to be without Eastern Shore Rural Health," said Bradley, who noted Northampton County ranks high in many undesirable health categories, including breast cancer, obesity and teen pregnancy.

The Eastville Center, slated to cost $9 million and funded through contributions, a grant, foundation funds and a loan, would replace the Franktown and Bayview health centers. "Those centers have served us well, but they are outdated," said Nancy Stern, chief executive officer of ESRH. Stern said the new center, on Route 13 near Eastville, would have 24,000 square feet and would include eight dental chairs with one designed for disabled patients.

Stern also noted the Eastville facility would have digital X-ray, not currently available at the Franktown or Bayview facilities. The new center will also have the capability to handle drug screening and pre-employment physicals for county businesses.

Bradley quoted a book he read recently that asked, "What have you done that has eternal consequences?"

He said the employees of ESRH are making a lasting impact, and there is value investing in the effort to build a much-needed center.

George McMath, the chairman of the fundraising campaign, said the campaign has been divided among 13 committees. "The plan is to hit the ground running and get the job done," said McMath, adding the bulk of the work will be completed by late May.

The honorary co-chairmen of the campaign are Drs. Cathy and David Riopel, who have been pediatricians with the ESRH System for 25 years.

REFUGE ACCEPTING PUBLIC COMMENT ON PROPOSED FEE HIKE

By Linda Cicoira

Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge visitors might soon see a hike at the toll gate.

Entry fees are proposed to increase from $15 to $20 for a weekly pass and from $30 to $40 for the annual entry card, according to an announcement made this week. The daily pass will be eliminated and a new taxi charge of $5 per person is included in the plan for mass transportation.

The proposed fee schedule for the refuge will be open for public comment until April 25. Refuge Manager Kevin Sloan said feedback will help the refuge gain prospective for the proposals. Comments may be emailed to FW5RW_CNWR@fws.gov, or sent to the Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge, P.O. Box 62, Chincoteague, VA 23336.

Current fees have been in place since 2008. The Virginia refuge and the Assateague Island National Seashore in Maryland share management responsibilities of recreational lands. The two "have a reciprocal agreement, which allows visitors to use passes issued by both agencies at either site ... the entrance fee will be waived for passengers of local courtesy shuttles but won't apply to commercially operated mass transportation."

Eighty percent of the fees, with the exception of the Federal Duck Stamp, remain at the refuge to be used for visitor services and facility improvements. Entrance fees have been used to improve refuge conditions and visitor experience including repairs on the historic Assateague Lighthouse, annual maintenance of roads, trails, beach parking lots, visitor health and safety services, fee collection operations and providing ranger programs and special events. Revenue raised by the increase would be used to provide enhanced visitor services including repair and maintenance of facilities, capital improvements, enhanced amenities, resource protection and additional visitor programs and services, the announcement stated.

The refuge has about 1.3 million visitors annually who contribute to the local economy. The facility generates $155 in local economic activity for every $1 congress appropriates to run it, according to the 2010 Banking on Nature report.

MORE STUDENTS EQUALS MORE REVENUE - AND MORE EXPENSES

By Ron West

Northampton County School Superintendent Eddie Lawrence told the school board last week that enrollment continues to increase. Nearly 1,700 students were either enrolled in the county's schools or receiving services provided by the county. The growth is a mixed blessing since it means additional state funding, but it also means that schools need more room for the students and more teachers to maintain an appropriate ratio of teachers and students.

Lawrence reported that two busloads of seniors would be heading to Old Dominion University (ODU) in April for what is referred to as College Commitment Day. On that day, seniors will have an opportunity to sign with a college for the fall of 2017.

Operations Director Chris Truckner updated the board on repairs to Northampton High School. When the HVAC system failed earlier in March, the resulting flood produced approximately $100,000 in damage to the office and other nearby rooms. While the school system's insurance will cover the damage, it has produced a major inconvenience for the school staff.

Truckner also reported that the soccer practice field adjacent to the high school football field is ready for use. The area consists of property that was once part of the Selma Subdivision in Eastville. The county purchased parcels several years ago when they were auctioned off, and the property was made available to the school system.

Vice Chairman Randy Parks reported the high school's robotics team did very well at the regional competition at Churchland High School in Portsmouth. He added that the next phase of competition for the team would take them to Richmond, and urged board members to attend.

Lawrence urged the board to consider seeking support for Director of Special Program Karen Plowden. Her job has expanded and it is imperative the county obtain someone who would be able to track down truant students.

“No Contest” Plea in 2016 Tyson Bomb Threat

A Pungoteague resident entered a no contest plea earlier this month in Accomack Circuit Court to a charge of making bomb threats to Tyson Foods in February 2016.

Danny Jurmell Robertson, 31, of Pungoteague Road, is scheduled to be sentenced in August. The call came from the cell phone of Travis White, of Melfa, who was working at the plant when the threats were made. White previously told the court that he was working with Robertson that day and let the defendant borrow his phone so he could call his girlfriend. He said Robertson left the freezer where they were working so he could get phone service.

In another case, Derion Lamont Reid, 22, of Robinson Circle in Wachapreague, was given a four-year suspended sentence for possession of a firearm by a violent felon on Jan. 30, 2016. He was put on probation for two years.

Xavier J. Mason, 19, of Church Road in Accomack, was sentenced to 20 years each for two counts of robbery on Dec. 30, 2015, and Jan 5, 2016, to run concurrently. He got three years for use of a firearm in connection with the 2016 incident, to run consecutively, for a total of 23 years. Twenty years was suspended on the condition that Mason be committed to a youthful offender program for four years with 18 months of supervisory parole and 15 years of good behavior. He was ordered to make restitution of $39 to Gas Stop and $130 to Ocean Traders.

Jennifer Anne Ayres, 47, of West Mifflin, Pa., formerly of the Shore, pleaded guilty to forging checks on April 9 for $675, May 1 for $257.25 and April 23 for $569.50; and stealing at least $200 belonging to Mary Agnes Gillespie on April 9 and 23 and May 1. All the incidents were alleged to have occurred in 2015.

A 70-year-old Modest Town man was convicted last week by an Accomack jury of felony animal cruelty in the shooting death of a neighbor's dog. The panel suggested he be fined $2,500.

Samuel Burdell Howarth, 70, of Hopeland Way, said he shot the dog because it had bitten him. A witness said the dog never left owner Leslie Watson's yard. The incident occurred June 16.

Republican Treasurer Charged with Embezzling from Local Republicans

The former treasurer of the Accomack Republican Party has been accused of stealing an unspecified amount of money from the group, according to warrants filed in the county general district court.

Ann Marie Page, 62, of Arthur Lane in Accomack, is charged with both embezzling currency and stealing money belonging to the party between May 1, and Dec. 31, 2016. She was arrested Monday and is free on $3,000 unsecured bond. Documents state Page has lived on the Eastern Shore for 37 years.

Investigator E.C. Perry of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office (ACSO) handled the case.

In another case, James Pierre Walsh Jr., 69, of Curratuck Road in Painter, was charged with hit and run, eluding police and assault and battery of Trooper J.K. Feryus on Sunday, March 26. Trooper B.M. Tripp also investigated the incidents. Unsecured bond of $3,000 was set.

Chappell Teriz Falcon, 30, of Bradley Court in Pocomoke, Md., was charged with felony obtaining a credit card without the cardholder's consent and petty theft of property belonging to Cynthia Vanvliet on March 24. He was arrested the same day. Secured bond was set at $4,000. Deputy David Gladding of ACSO investigated.

Man Pleads Guilty to Assault/Threat of Officer

Frederick Wayne Baker, the 17-year-old who is awaiting sentencing for rape, sodomy, abduction, theft and related gun crimes that occurred in Cape Charles in 2015, pleaded guilty last week in Northampton Circuit Court to five counts of assault and battery of a police officer and two counts of threatening to kill officers at the Eastern Shore Regional Jail last July and August.

By pleading guilty he admitted to assault and battery of Valerie Thomas, an employee responsible for the care and treatment of inmates; assault and batter of Officers Jacob Foisey, Jeffery Smith, Clark Lovelady and Montego Johnson; and threatening to kill Johnson and Officer Willie Stevens.

Baker is also awaiting sentencing for escape and property damage at the jail in February 2016. He pleaded guilty to those and the Cape Charles incidents.

Keith Philip Kirby Jr., 41, of Exmore, was sentenced to four years each for four counts of forgery with all but six months each suspended. He was also given six months for possession of cocaine. The terms were set to run consecutively. Supervised probation was set for five years with good behavior for 10. Restitution of $760 was ordered.

Carlos Orlando Walton, 32, of Washington Avenue in Cape Charles, was sentenced to 12 months in jail with all but 40 days suspended for DUI. The charge, which occurred April 9, 2016, was a felony because Walton had been convicted of two or more prior offenses within the last 10 years.

He was also fined $1,000 with half suspended and ordered to attend VA-SAP. His driver's license was suspended for three years. He got four years with all but 10 months and 20 days suspended for a third offense of driving on a suspended license that was DUI related. Good behavior was ordered for 5 years.

Gavin Samere Sample Sr., 35, of Exmore, was sentenced to 15 years in prison for robbery with 10 years suspended. He was put on supervised probation for five years and good behavior for 10 years. Sample robbed the Nasawadox Shore Stop at about 3 a.m., on Dec. 30, 2015.

James Carter Walker, 26, with addresses in Chesapeake and Petersburg, Va., was sentenced to four years with 2.5 years suspended each for felony eluding and possession of a firearm by a felon and 90 days with 70 days suspended each for driving 110 mph in 55 mph zone and reckless driving. He was put on supervised probation for five years and good behavior for 10 years. His driver's license was also suspended. The incidents occurred Sept. 12, 2015.

Suzanne Bruno, 33, of Southside Road in Onancock, was sentenced to five years each for embezzlement and forgery, to run concurrently, with all but 30 days suspended.

Bruno worked at Rent-A-Center in Exmore, when she forged a lease agreement on Dec. 12, 2013, and embezzled from the company on June 1, 2013. According to court records, seven other forgery charges were not prosecuted.

Drugs Dominate Monday's Circuit Docket

Drug offenses dominated the docket Monday in Northampton Circuit Court.

Terrence Devon Brisco, 42, of Nasawadox, was sentenced to a total of five years in prison. He was given eight years with five suspended for a second offense of possession with the intent to distribute oxycodone on Oct. 5, 2015. The term was set to run consecutively with a probation revocation. Brisco was ordered to be on supervised probation and good behavior for three years.

Heather Marie Jones, 32, of Townsend, was sentenced to four years with all but five months suspended for distribution of the drug Adderall. She was put on two years probation and five years of good behavior. The offense occurred Sept. 16, 2015.

Robert Lee Lewis, 34, of Cape Charles, pleaded guilty to two counts of possession with the intent to distribute Percocet on Dec. 3 and 15, 2015. The case was continued until a presentence report could be completed.

Gregory Scott Foster, 25, of Exmore, got three years with all but eight months suspended for a third offense of larceny. He was given three years with all but four months suspended for attempted burglary and four years with all but four months suspended for distribution of oxycodone. Foster was ordered to be on good behavior for five years and probation for three years. His driver's license was suspended for six months.

Khiry Di-Frederick Washington, 19, of Cape Charles, got eight years with all but 18 months suspended each for burglary and grand larceny to run consecutively for a total of three years to serve. In another case of burglary and destruction of property, he was given five years with four years suspended each for a total of two years to serve. Mike Mason, the session was over in about 20 minutes. The supervisors will meet next week to finalize the plan. According to law, the board must wait seven days after the hearing to adopt the budget.

Mason said the budget includes "$393,000 in additional local funding for public education per the school revenue sharing formula, in addition to restoring the previous year one-time reduction."

A breakdown of the budget shows 39.7 percent for education, 11.8 percent for debt service, 8 percent for public works, 8.4 percent for general government administration, 9.5 percent for public safety, 4.1 percent for health and welfare, 4.4 percent for public safety/fire companies, 4.9 percent for law enforcement/jail, 2.3 percent for other public safety, 3.3 percent for planning and community development, 1.7 percent for parks & recreation and cultural, 1.3 percent for judicial administration and .5 percent for non-departmental.

in addition, it would provide deputies with instant access to criminal records from their vehicles and allow them to submit reports while in the field.

Providing a garage for the county's Emergency Medical Services (EMS) vehicles was the second high-ticket item. The county's ambulance and quick response vehicles are located at the EMS office in Machipongo and are exposed to weather. EMS Director Hollye Carpenter has asked for a garage for the vehicles but in the past the cost has prevented it from becoming a reality.

Earlier this year, the board set a budget for the garage at $250,000. That figure must also cover the need to install a water and septic system for the EMS office, which currently is tied to an adjacent property owner's system. County Public Works Director Chris Thomas and Planning Director Susan Mcghee provided a preliminary drawing of the proposed garage, well and septic system and access locations for the vehicles. Board members said they were ready to move forward, assuming that the project numbers worked.

Members will also need to iron out how to handle the projected employee insurance premiums. Andrzejewski said premiums are expected to increase by more than seven percent for the coming year. Employee contributions could increase from $40 to $150 a month, depending on the plan. Such an increase would dramatically decrease the take home pay for the employees and produce a hardship on many who are in the lower income bracket.

The board is seeking options regarding either increasing salaries or providing some other form of relief.

In other business, the board unanimously endorsed a resolution supporting Eastern Shore Rural Health's quest for a block grant to assist in financing a new health center in Eastville. The new facility would merge the older centers in Bayview and Franktown, which provide services for more than 10,000 clients, most of whom are on limited incomes and might not otherwise be able to afford care. The site is just south of the Eastville traffic light.

Last Saturday and Sunday, a two-day basketball clinic was held at Nandua High School, facilitated by Keith McLawhorn, coach of John Paul II Prep in Greensboro, N.C., and founder of Outwork Performance. McLawhorn is a renowned skill-trainer for many high school, college and professional basketball players.

The camp, intended for boys and girls grades 8 - 11, will help young players learn offensive and defensive skills and they were evaluated by the coaches in order to help with individual development. Over 21 student athletes from across the two Eastern Shore counties participated in the skills clinic under the direction of McLawhorn and AJ Evans.

No POSTED SPEED

By Troy and JJ Justis

Always the bridesmaid, never the bride. That seemed to be the story for Kyle Larson, who was beginning to make a career of second place finishes. But, last Sunday was the day the stars aligned, and Larson tasted victory. The young driver was able to grab his first win of this season and his second win ever in the series. He had to overcome a lot of stop-and-go and restarts to get and keep the lead, but adapted and pressed through to the finish.

His View: Ok...ok, so Chase is second in the standing and that is great – BUT, I really want a win! I am putting it on the line here and predict 24 in the Winner’s Circle at Martinsville. I’m also going with the underdog, South Carolina Gamecocks, for the NCAA Basketball Champs. Wify and I are going to have to set some dates for some Orioles games (brown nosing). If she’s paying, then I’m going! Go-24-Go! P.S. Be on the lookout for a white Chevy Malibu cruising the roads on the Shore with the tags BAYLEE J. I still can’t believe it!

Her View: If there is anything that I can say about the new points system, it would be that consistency is rewarded. Several drivers have been having multiple top ten finishes early in this season, and it is evident every week in the driver standings. I am all for ensuring drivers with repeated success are around and contenders for the championship race rather than the “Cinderellas.” I just wish that Denny was one of them. I’m still waiting for a dominant performance from the Virginia boy. It seems only fitting that it would happen in his home state this week with the circuit coming to Martinsville. On the NCAA front, I am for anyone but UNC. The Virginia baseball team is looking good so far on the college front. We will see if they can make another trip to Omaha. My eldest daughter just got her license and is now tasting her independence a little more. We have had several talks and first-hand demonstrations of how to drive (Me) and how not to drive (Hubby. I usually feel like I’m on a racetrack experiencing drafting up close when I do a ride-along with Hubby.) He often reminds me that he is trying to channel his inner Jeff Gordon!

ESSHL Senior League All-Star Game and Skills Competition

Submitted by Michael Garbacz
Team Ageless Wonder 3, Team Pat Trick 10

In 2017, it was the group hand-picked by Pat Luckenbach over his rival, famed goaltender and league founder Mark Stapleton, by a factor of three and then some. However, the final score hardly reflects on the flow of the game overall. This was a tale of unbelievably hard work versus uncanny finesse. Combined, these two groups of the ESSHL's finest rang up a whopping 73 shots on goal. Just about two-thirds of those shots came courtesy of Team Ageless Wonder, who relentlessly hammered goalies Brad Ford and Justin Wheeler. That duo impressively shut the door, as best can be expected, on their All-Star opponents, though.

Meanwhile, in front of them, the Pat Trick put up a Vladimir Putin-like five goals and an assist. Conversely, El Presidente presented a more gentlemanly one goal, five assist effort to complement his teammate. Other Pat Trickers included Robby Parker (1g, 3a), Derek Hail and TR Hoyt (1g, 1a), Zach Webb (1g) and Le'Andra Sabatino (1a). For Team Ageless Wonder, Guy Shover (2g) and Jennie Hagler (2a) each came away with multipoint performances in spite of the loss. The Smooth Criminal (1g) and The Huntsman (1a) also found their way to the score sheet.

In the Skills Competition, goalie Guy Parks (Ol' Plugalong) showed up the Whippersnappers by refusing to allow a single goal in the Breakaway competition. Ford edged Dave Sepelak in the Rapid Fire competition, which had to be decided in a runoff. For the shooters, area sensation Pat Luckenbach registered a pants-soiling 96 mph in the Hardest Shot contest. The Pat Trick also danced his way to a Breakaway competition, unsurprisingly. El Presidente, meanwhile, took the Shooting Accuracy competition.

The ESSHL resumes regular season play Sunday, April 2, at 1 p.m. at Stapleton Rink in Parksley.

SPORTFISHING REPORT

By Dr. Julie Ball, IGFA Representative

According to the calendar, spring officially began this week. Anglers can look forward to a warming trend over the next month, easing water temperatures into optimal range for newly arriving summer species.

The roller-coaster temperatures created a set-back in water temperatures again this week, and blustery conditions are often keeping boats at the dock. According to the folks at Long Bay Point Bait and Tackle, tautog action slowed in Bay waters, but the forecast of temperatures in the 70s could help turn the bite around. The best action continues to come from the deeper water structures and wrecks, with some tog trips yielding some very nice fish. Remember, the regulations for tautog limit you to three fish per person, stretching to at least 16-inches long. Big seabass will also compete for this same offering on these wrecks, but seabass must be tossed back since they are still out of season until May.

The first reports of flounder catches were short-lived, but once the water stabilizes, anglers will head back to the shallow water and inlets on the Eastern Shore. Hook and line catches of croaker could also happen soon in the lower Bay and in the tributary rivers. After that, the next anticipated debut will be black and red drum.

There are limited reports for speckled trout and puppy drum, but these fish are a possibility in most backwater locations and inlets. This trend should stabilize with the evolution of spring.

Deep droppers can expect good catches if they can make it out. Blueline tilefish, golden tilefish, blackbellied rosefish, and other deep bottom dwellers are available along the ocean floor and near the edge of the Norfolk Canyon. Dogfish continue to pose an incredible nuisance for deep droppers, so expect to weed through plenty of trash fish, as well as a by-catch of out-of-season seabass.

Bluefin tuna continue to please boats working out of Oregon Inlet, with some catches ranging to well over 500 pounds, but watch these regulations closely. Blackfin tuna are also providing some good action out of Carolina.

Preface by Linda Cicoira

Born on the Eastern Shore, 40-year-old Jamie Mackie hasn't forgotten his roots.

"I still come back home," he said last week from his California digs. "I still love to visit the Shore."

He noted two former Nandua High School teachers who inspired him to study science, and his family including his father, Mack Mackie of Parksley, his mother, Vickie Loving of Cashville, his sister, Laura Mackie of Onley, and his grandmother, Accomack Supervisor Laura Belle Gordy.

"I took a couple of classes with him," Mackie said of now retired biology teacher George Waldenmaier, a School Board member. "He really had an impact on my love of science."

Rod Hennessey was another of his local instructors. "He was one of those Earth Science teachers who really knew a lot about nature."

Eastern Shore Voice Helps Guide Heart Surgeons

*By Krista Dossetti,
California State University - East Bay
Permission*

Jamie Mackie is not a doctor. He never went to medical school, and his salary is paltry compared to a surgeon's. Nevertheless, he spends a 60-hour workweek in scrubs, logging in and out of hospital operating rooms, outfitted something like an air traffic controller: He wears a headset and microphone while building an atlas of neon veins on the computer screen before him — only a thin lead window separating him from a cardiac surgeon tapping into a femoral artery on the other side.

No, Jamie Mackie (MS '13, Kinesiology) is not a doctor. He is the voice helping to guide doctors; the hands at the keyboard behind an increasingly common medical technology that creates 3-D, real-time, electro-anatomical maps of the cardiac system so surgeons can burn scars into precise locations in the human heart. Through a series of catheters and a 3-D mapping system made by the company he works for (Biosense Webster, a subsidiary of Johnson & Johnson), Mackie helps a special type of doctor called a cardiac electrophysiologist build images of the heart for use during surgery. The images pinpoint any electrical impulses causing irregularities (arrhythmias) so they can be treated through cardiac ablation.

"I love the true health care aspect of this," Mackie says. "There's this whole group of people who could have a better life without being on drugs — who could possibly have a cure instead of a treatment."

After graduating from Cal State

East Bay's master's program in kinesiology, Mackie applied to the Arrhythmia Technology Institute, a cardiac device training center. There he began learning how to create anatomical models of the heart using a variety of imaging tools such as fluoroscope, ultrasound, MRI, TTE (trans-thoracic echocardiogram) and CT (computerized tomography). Mackie reports he was among the first group of students in his class at ATI to be placed with a biomedical company, and to then complete more than a year of guided surgeries before beginning to map on his own.

"Because I had the background in physiology and anatomy [from my kinesiology studies] and had taken this interest in medical devices, it opened up this job opportunity," he says.

Professor Cathy Inouye, a mentor to Mackie during his time at the university, says the majority of Cal State East Bay kinesiology graduates go on to become physical or occupational therapists — and that the route he has chosen is incredibly competitive.

"Very few of our graduates move into cardiac rehab — it's a difficult profession to enter and there's a lot of additional education and certification that has to happen before you can get a position like that. I know he'll be great at this because he's very driven, he's a powerful independent thinker, and he's very calm."

At least outwardly. "There's a person under that blue tarp," Mackie says. "And I need to be really, really good at this because every decision the doctor makes affects that patient. Little things make a big difference."

Coast Guard Pins Petty Promotion at Station Wachapreague

By Ron West

Coast Guard petty officer Christian Seay was honored at Coast Guard Station Wachapreague on March 16 with a promotion to the rank of Chief Petty Officer. After graduation from Northampton High School, Seay joined the Coast Guard and served 17 years at duty stations in Yorktown, Cape

Charles and Wachapreague. In addition to shore-based assignments, BMC Seay has served on the cutters Bear and Cochito. He and his wife Sara, along with his children Gayden (age 8) and Jace (age 3), reside in Cheriton.

The promotion, or frocking ceremony, is a tradition in the Coast Guard service and marks a time when an officer or petty officer who has been selected for promotion is entitled to wear the insignia of his or her new rank. During his frocking ceremony, his wife, Sara, and father, Gary, had the honor of attaching BMC Seay's new insignia to his collar. In attendance for the ceremony were chief petty officers from the Eastern Shore and Hampton Roads. BMC Seay will now have the honor and privilege of following in the footsteps of those who have gone before him.

Chief Seay's new duty station will be the Coast Guard Cutter Tampa, based in Portsmouth. The 270-foot, 1,800-ton medium endurance cutter Tampa was commissioned in 1984 and traditionally spends 60 to 70 days underway, followed by an equal amount of time pierside at Coast Guard Support Center Portsmouth. While the Tampa is a multi-mission ship capable of search and rescue (SAR), law enforcement (LE), and humanitarian support, much of her underway time is spent involved in drug interdiction. Such patrols often take place in the warm waters of the Gulf of Mexico, Caribbean Sea, or even along the shores of Central America.

REMEMBERING THE OLD COLONIAL STORE AND CAPE CHARLES' WILLIE JAMES

By Stephen K. Fox, Guest Columnist

The demise of the old "Colonial Store" building in Cape Charles, caused me to reminisce about the store and the part it had on my early life. Before the new store, our grocery store was a Colonial Store on Strawberry Street where "Best Nest" now operates. Moving to the new store on Mason Avenue brought with it a modern grocery store experience in the late 1950s. For one thing, it was fully air conditioned and offered a respite from the searing summer heat. But more than that, it was showcase for folks who came to town for their weekly grocery needs. It was a chance to see schoolmates who lived at distant locations throughout the county during the summer when there was little opportunity to see them until school reopened.

Its opening signaled more for me. It was a convenient walk from the barbershop. My mother would leave me and my younger brother, Lloyd, at the barbershop, and when we were finished, we were permitted to walk the several town blocks to meet up with her at the Colonial Store. Having weaned ourselves from our parents' clutches, this was quite an accomplishment for us! Raised on a farm and accustomed to free grazing, we had a defined/confined grid in Cape Charles, the admonition was, "no roaming." We were able to navigate the blocks, walking past the Presbyterian Church to meet our mother.

It was during one such venture that I first became acquainted with Willie James, then a young boy of no more than 12 years, who bagged groceries and assisted shoppers at their cars. I did not know him yet as a schoolmate, but his pleasant smile and easy going manner drew you into instant, but arms-length friendship. Soon, he realized that when my brother and I appeared, it was for the purpose of connecting with mother at the grocery store, and Willie was able to tell us where to find our mother. He was a sort of traffic cop!

In the fall of 1962, I entered eighth grade at Northampton County High School (NCHS) in Machipongo. To my surprise, there was the grocery store helper, Willie, whose name I had not known. He was a classmate!! And we were already somewhat acquainted as a result of our Colonial Store meetings a year earlier. Willie was just as I had known him: quiet and deliberate, and always pleasant. He could sometimes, in his laid back way, chance an entertaining verbal jolt at his friends. He did not have a mean bone in his body.

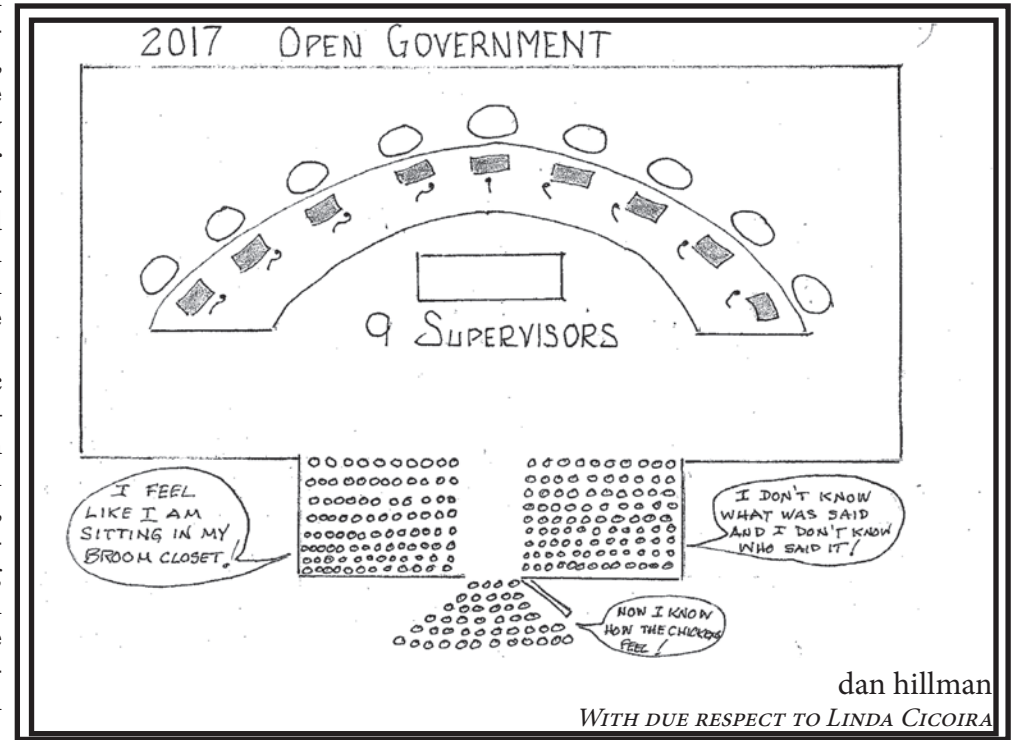

When we began to try out for athletic teams, Willie was there for basketball — smooth as silk. We nicknamed him "Satch Sanders" after the popular professional Boston Celtics player. Willie had his style, his movements, and most of all, his deadly set shot from the corner of the playing floor. It was a true pleasure to know him in this context. It seemed so easy to him. He was not quick, but he was fast and deceptive, seemingly covering the entire length of the court in three steps.

After five years at NCHS, we graduated and everybody went their own way. I lost track of Willie, but was saddened to learn of his demise in 1968 in the Vietnam War. I would never have thought of Willie James as a "warrior." Later, I thought to inquire whether Willie had been remembered on the Cape Charles war memorial. To my astonishment, his name, though enshrined at the Vietnam War Memorial in Washington, D.C., was nowhere to be found. After inquiry, and with some assistance, I was able to pay the fee to have his service noted on the town's war memorial. Willie is interred in the Cape Charles Memorial Cemetery.

His legacy lives in the hearts of his friends and schoolmates, and for me the now vanquished Colonial Store building reminds me of our first meetings.

Stephen K. Fox was raised in Northampton County and graduated from NCHS in 1967. After practicing law in Fairfax, Va., for 41 years, he is now a full-time resident of Northampton County.

Question Elected Leaders

Dear Editor:

Issues of honesty, commitment to the American public, and concerns for self, versus politicians' concern for their constituents, have me scared and mad. I don't think I am alone. I have been voting my opinion without regard for 40+ years and then living with the election results with the hope that our elected officials would try to do their best for us. I now think we as citizens and constituents need to take a more active role. I want to invite everyone in our community to start asking questions of our representatives - local, state and federal. Follow the news in print, on the air, and online. Our representatives at all levels have websites, both individually and through their government levels. Get familiar with them and send in your comments. Also, share your opinions with the rest of us. Together, we will make our government more responsive and better serve our needs.

Yvonne Schultz, Nassawadox

Hotel Apologizes About ADA

Dear Editor:

I would like to publicly apologize to Cheryl Drouin and her husband for my actions in September 2015. Cheryl Drouin and her husband came into our hotel looking for a room for the night. I was told they had a service dog. I asked her to provide proof that it was, in fact, a service dog. According to the Americans with Disabilities Act (ADA), I am not allowed to ask for that information. I now know the ADA requirements concerning service animals and have trained our employees on the proper way to handle a guest with a disability that requires a service animal. I can't imagine having to live with a disability that requires having a service animal by my side at all times. I was insensitive to her disability and genuinely apologize for my actions. We are a pet friendly establishment and welcome all persons with service animals to stay at our hotel.
