PEDESTRIAN FATALITY IN CAPE CHARLES

By Linda Cicaira

A pedestrian died Sunday night in Northampton County after getting struck by a car, according to 1st Sgt. B.E. Jeff Jones of the state police.

The incident that killed Lybren Brian Hart, 64, of Cape Charles, occurred at 9:40 p.m. on Stone Road, also known as Route 184, about a quarter-mile west of Lankford Highway.

Trooper Ethan O. Price reported, the 1993 Lincoln town car that hit the victim was driven by Anthony Lee Brady, 26, of Cape Charles. Stone Road was closed for about three hours.

"The Crash Reconstruction Team responded to the scene to assist in the investigation," said Jones. "The crash is still under investigation and it is unknown at this time if alcohol was a factor. No charges have been placed at this time."

Northampton Man Convicted of Murdering Cousin

By Linda Cicaira

Alexander Hunter Picott-Cleveland practiced shooting guns in the yard behind the house where he and his family lived near Cheapside, despite that it was illegal for a gun to be there since his father was a felon.

The younger man got that status too, in Northampton Circuit Court late Friday when he was convicted of using one of those guns to commit second-degree murder of his first cousin, Ronald Graves, 30, of Portsmouth, and for attempting to maliciously wound his dad, Alexander Cleveland Sr., on June 18, 2016, the same weekend as Father's Day last year.

Both incidents occurred outside the Arlington Road home where the defendant lived with his parents and sister.

Chincoteague Water Safe To Drink Wells Above Accepted Levels Removed from Use

By Linda Cicaira

Tests done by an independent laboratory show deep-well drinking water for Wallops and Chincoteague Islands is safe to drink.

"We learned that two of three shallow wells had high levels of the PFAS (per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances) contaminants, but we had already stopped using the wells on April 8," Chincoteague Town Manager Jim West said Thursday. "We also learned that one deep well had high levels of PFAS and we have discontinued use of that well."

A report states the contaminants "are manmade compounds used extensively in a wide variety of consumer products and are also related to the use of a firefighting foam."

Tests from a "sampling ... of Chincoteague's seven wells, which are on Wallops property, show PFAS at a level above the EPA's Lifetime Health Advisory (LHA) in two of three shallow wells and an adjacent deep water well. Results show PFAS in the town's ... third shallow well, but at a level below the LHA. The town ... is not using its shallow wells to produce finished water for the town, and has stopped using the one deep water well," the report stated.

The updated information also stated the town is producing finished drinking water from three deep wells, none of which detects "PFAS in independent sampling results." NASA continues to share sampling results with local, state and federal officials and to meet with town leaders, the EPA, the state environmental quality department and health department "to discuss next steps."

NASA will continue to sample Chincoteague's four deep water wells as well as the Wallops and Chincoteague finished drinking water. The report stated, "Sampling will occur over the next several weeks, and NASA will continue to use an independent lab to analyze samples."

Body of Tangier Waterman Recovered; Autopsy Confirms Drowning

By Linda Cicaira

The body of 70-year-old Capt. Edward Charnock of Tangier was found in the waters of the Chesapeake Bay last week nearly 10 days after his boat, the Henrietta C., sank during a storm while he and his son were crabbing.

Reports show he was found about a half-mile from the site where the 40-foot vessel went down. Arkuie Williams of the state medical examiner's office said results of an autopsy showed Charnock drowned. A funeral is being planned for May 18.

The son, Jason Charnock, 40, was rescued the same day the boat sank, April 24. The two were five miles southwest of Tangier in 20-to-30 mph winds with waves of 4 to 6 feet and lots of rain when there was a problem with the bottom of the boat.

The incident occurred at 2:30 p.m. There was poor visibility. Other crabbers had been in the vicinity, but had already left for port when the Charnocks began to have difficulties.

Jason Charnock's father-in-law,

Lonnie Moore, who works on a tugboat, was at the dock and went to find the missing men. An EMT went along with him. Jason Charnock was in the water for 1½ to 2 hours when he was rescued.

Other watermen, the Coast Guard and the Virginia Marine Resources Police also searched for Capt. Charnock.

Breweries Bring Big Bucks Back to Shore with State Grant Awards

By Linda Cicoira

State monies were awarded to two privately owned breweries on the Eastern Shore recently, according to announcements made by Gov. Terry McAuliffe.

On April 24, McAuliffe announced $500,000 in Industrial Revitalization Funds (IRF) was given to the Cape Charles Brewery in Northampton County.

Submitted Article

ESTACI invites Eastern Shore of Virginia families to a "Women Empowering Girls – Forum for Change," in the Great Hall of the Eastern Shore Community College (ESCC) Workforce Development Building on Tuesday May 16, at 5:30 p.m.

The forum will begin with a panel of presenters representing a variety of programs currently available to Eastern Shore girls in five topic areas, followed by five separate topic table discussions led by facilitators. The event is free and open to the public.

Panelists and discussion facilitators include Dr. Linda Thomas-Glover, ESCC; Chauna Phiri, NHS; Linda Spence, Women's Pregnancy Center; Trina Cooper, AKAS ASCEND; Felicia Trower-Matthews, ESCADV; and Lekeila Powell, Franktown CHC. Topics include: 1) Education and Careers; 2) Spirit and Service; 3) Emotional and Psychological Health; 4) Social and Family Life; and 5) Physical Health and Development.

Reservations are not required.

Before that, Black Narrows Brewing Company on Chincoteague was reported to have created five new jobs and invested more than $350,000 to open the business in Accomack. The Virginia Department of Agriculture and Consumer Services worked with the county and the company to secure the project. McAuliffe approved an $11,000 grant from his Agriculture and Forestry Industries Development Fund with Accomack matching the grant.

McAuliffe announced awards totaling $1.45 million in IRF this week. "Building a new Virginia economy starts with a strong, vibrant local economy in every corner of our Commonwealth," the governor said. "From the Eastern Shore to the coal fields and every place in between, these funds ensure localities have the resources to complete projects that will diversify our economy and produce real benefits for communi-

Samples were also collected at two points on the west side of the facility near the 10-28 runway and one point on the south side of the facility to confirm whether or not PFAS are present in the groundwater in these areas. Those results have not yet been received.

Firefighting foam with PFAS was used at a former training area on the north-central side of Wallops. The EPA has not established drinking water standards for PFAS. "While not reguties, like direct business activity and tourism."

Projects were reviewed and evaluated competitively, with an emphasis on those with a high level of blight, impediments to economic development efforts, alignment with regional or local strategies, availability of matching resources, the level of community distress where the property is located and an identified and feasible end use.

"Black Narrows is adding to the tourism offerings that make Accomack County and the Town of Chincoteague a true destination. Today's announcement is a great win for Virginia's craft beer industry and our ongoing efforts to build a new Virginia economy."

"We couldn't be more proud of what this moment represents," said Jenna Chapman, co-founder of Black Narrows Brewing. "When state and local governments support small business, as the commonwealth and lated, the EPA has been increasingly sampling for PFAS. Since 2013, the EPA has detected PFAS in numerous public water supplies serving 16 million people across 33 states. In May 2016, the EPA issued updated LHA level guidelines for two PFAS compounds, perfluorooctane sulfonate (PFOS) and perfluorooctanoic acid (PFOA)."

Accomack County have done for us, the effects ripple throughout the surrounding communities. They're not just supporting the first craft brewery on Virginia's Eastern Shore; they're supporting our local farmers, artisans and watermen. And because of our commitment to give back to our local and global communities, the effects will reach further than we can imagine."

Northampton Chairman Asks Citizens to Get Involved, Run for Office

Northampton residents need to get involved in county government. That's what Chairman Spencer Murray of the county board of supervisors said at a session Tuesday.

In November, three seats on the board will be up for grabs with only one person seeking reelection. Supervisor Oliver Bennett of District 3 is running again but Supervisors Granville Hogg and Larry LeMond have indicated they will not seek another term.

Murray noted, 35 days are left for candidates to get 125 signatures needed for a name to be put on the ballot. While the job takes time and can be frustrating, Murray noted, it can also be rewarding when efforts help to improve the welfare of citizens.

"Let's get the good government we deserve through strong leadership and widespread participation," Murray said.

The board voted to approve a permit that would allow reopening of a spoils site at Willis Wharf for materials dredged from the harbor there. A portion of the site needs to be excavated and some berm around the site needs to be rebuilt before it can be used.

Daniel Brown, of Cape Charles, read a letter from Julie Wagner, an owner of the borrow pit that would be accepting spoils from the Chesapeake Bay Bridge Tunnel project. Earlier, Hogg sought to have a discussion regarding the pit's special use permit added to the agenda. A vote of the board turned his request down. Murray said the permit was approved by the board, so the matter was already settled. In the letter, Wagner said she had no issues with the site and materials being tested.

Carolyn Bott, of the Accomack-Northampton Planning District Commission, gave an update on the condition of the former Northampton Middle School. She said there is mold in the structure, especially in the newer portions constructed in 1992. There appears to be little or no evidence of mold in portions of the building being used by Parks and Recreation, as storage for county records, the extension service or as a polling place for District 4, she reported.

Murray asked Bott to investigate reuses of the building and how much it would cost to correct building issues. The annual cost of operating the building for current uses was estimated at about $110,000.

A public hearing on the proposed fiscal 2018 budget will be held on May 22. A final vote is expected on June 13.

Every Day is Mother's Day at Accomack-Northampton Pregnancy Center

By Connie Morrison

Mother's Day evokes visions of finger-painted potato people on hand-made cards from little ones who unfailingly think their mothers are the best mothers in the world.

But sometimes motherhood is not begun or carried out under the happiest circumstances, and even when it is, mothers (and fathers) can use a little help.

Shortly after Candy Barnes moved from Kentucky to Belle Haven with her new husband, Accomack County Sheriff's Deputy Michael Barnes, she sought the services of the Accomack-Northampton Pregnancy Center. That pregnancy test was the beginning of a long-term relationship.

"Teresa and Candy just clicked," said Linda Baylis-Spence, the center's director. Teresa Cartwright is a teacher and coach at the center. Baylis says there is no "typical" client. "Everyone's story and situation is different. You see moms and dads from all walks of life."

The pregnancy center, which relocated to Onley in December, offers parenting and life skills classes and coaching, pregnancy tests and information, abortion and miscarriage recovery support, and other services.

Parents can make purchases in the on-site baby store using "baby bucks" earned by attending classes, which is exactly what Candy Barnes did while pregnant with the couple's oldest child, Abigail. The curriculum includes such topics as what to expect in labor and delivery, how to breastfeed, what to pack for the hospital, how to prepare for bringing home a newborn from the hospital, and sanitation of bottles.

"It couldn't have been any better," she said. "They make you feel like part of the family."

It seemed natural, then, to continue that relationship with her second pregnancy, even after the baby didn't survive to full term. It helped "knowing there are people praying for us and supporting us," she said.

With Mother's Day looming, she said it is no worse than other times, because she thinks about the baby they lost every day. She finds comfort thinking of her deceased grandmother taking care of their little one in heaven until they are one day reunited.

"It's a blessing waiting for me there. It helps me to strive to be a better mother to those that are here with me," she said.

Her Christian faith is a strong force in her own life, and is central to the pregnancy center's pro-life operating philosophy.

"It's amazing to see what God is doing with them, for us and through us," she said.

When the Barnes' second daughter, Addalynn, was born, Candy Barnes worried about something that is familiar to many parents. "I wondered if I could have as much love for another." The photo on this page answers that question.

Barnes is now enrolled in toddler parenting classes, and still using baby bucks in the center's boutique.

Her own children have helped Barnes to better appreciate her own mother. "I didn't understand what goes into raising them right," she said. "She is a godly woman and taught me to be a good Christian and mother."

Barnes also had high praise for her mother-in-law, who lives down the street. "She is also a good Christian woman and a good example to my kids and to me and my husband."

She said she used to call and send flowers to her mother, who lives in Indiana. "I have the best mother in the world," she said. It's not on a card with a hand-drawn potato person, but reading that in the paper is probably just as good this year.

Embezzlement Charges Certified for Former Republican Party Treasurer

When the former treasurer of the Accomack Republican Party waived her right to a preliminary hearing Monday, two counts of embezzlement were certified to a grand jury by Judge Gordon Vincent of the county general district court.

Ann Marie Page, 62, of Arthur Lane in Accomack, was initially charged with one count of embezzlement and one count of stealing money belonging to the party, between May 1 and Dec. 31, 2016. The charges were amended to narrow the time frame from May 1 to Oct. 31, 2016, and the theft charge was changed to embezzlement.

Page was allowed to remain free on $3,000 unsecured bond.

In another case, Bernard Wendell Wynder, 57, of Banks Road in Cape Charles, was charged with two counts of stealing property worth more than $200 from Walmart in Onley, on May 4. Wynder told a magistrate "he stole the items so he could pay his child support payment."

Deputy D. Gladding of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office investigated. Wynder is being held without bail.

Hammer-Head Indictment In Northampton

A Cape Charles man accused of hitting another resident in the head with a hammer was indicted Monday by a Northampton grand jury on a count of malicious wounding.

Joseph Washington Burton, 67, of Cobb Station Road in Cape Charles, admitted to police that he struck Daryl Taylor, also of Cape Charles, with the tool on Jan. 3, 2017, according to court records.

The Vietnam War veteran later told a magistrate that he threw the hammer at Taylor, who "charged at him." A witness, James Bell, also agreed the victim was "charging" Burton. Taylor has since moved to Pennsylvania. Deputy Barry Randall of the Northampton County Sheriff's Office (NCSO) investigated.

In another case, Kevin Da'Auyan Clark, 21, of Cheapside Drive in Cape Charles, was indicted on counts of armed robbery and use of a firearm in a felony in connection with April 2, 2017, incidents.

Deputy Walter Marks of NCSO responded to the incident at 2 p.m. at the parking lot of Yuk Yuk & Joe's Restaurant in Eastville. Records state Daveon Ayers, of Exmore, told Marks, the defendant "got into his vehicle on the passenger side ... pointed a handgun at him and said, 'Yeah, I'm sticking you up.'"

Ayers told the deputy he gave $100 to Clark, who "then got out of the car and walked/ran quickly back to his vehicle and left the parking lot." A witness who was nearby corroborated Ayers' story. The file stated the victim identified Clark by a photograph. Clark was arrested two days later.

Donte Lamont Cooper, 25, of Roanoke Avenue in Newport News, was indicted on a count of possessing cocaine on Feb. 24, 2017. Officer Matthew T. Boggs of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel Police pulled Cooper over that day for speeding.

"Upon my approach I could smell a strong odor of marijuana coming from the vehicle," Boggs wrote in the file. "Mr. Cooper said they just smoked before they got on the bridge. I searched the vehicle and found one small pre-rolled marijuana blunt. Also in Mr. Cooper's wallet was a folded dollar bill with a small amount of white powder substance. I tested the substance with a ... kit and it tested positive for cocaine."

Tyrhee Carter Henderson, 20, of Main Street in Exmore, was indicted on two counts of credit card larceny and two counts of credit card fraud in connection with incidents that occurred Feb. 22, 2017. He was arrested Feb. 28. Investigator Tara Leckel of NCSO handled the case.

Fernando Daniel Espinosa, 46, of Boole Lane in Franktown, was indicted on a count of making a false statement on a consent form on June 16, 2016. He was arrested Feb. 16, 2017. Trooper L. E. Farlow investigated.

Five Arrested in Northampton County

Five people were recently arrested in Northampton, according to records filed in the county's general district court.

Jonathan Johnlee Craig Jr., 35, of Norfolk, was charged Monday with felony possession with intent to distribute marijuana and the misdemeanors, obstruction of justice and resisting arrest. He was arrested the same day. A preliminary hearing was set for June. He is in custody. Deputy Glenn Bailey of the NCSO investigated.

Danny Joseph Klutts, 49, of Painter, was arrested May 6 and charged with the April 15 offense of felony larceny. Chief A. P. DiMartino, of Exmore Police Department, investigated. A June preliminary hearing was set.

William Trower Morris, 57, of Cape Charles, was accused of possession of a Schedule I or II drug, which is a felony. The offense occurred Monday. Morris was arrested the same day and is still in custody. A July preliminary hearing was scheduled.

Claudette Marie Brown, 48, of Cape Charles, was accused of six counts of credit card fraud and six counts of credit card larceny in April and March 2017. She was arrested April 27 and was released on her own recognizance. A preliminary hearing was set for June 15. Officer Jacob Leuer of the Cape Charles Police Department investigated.

Christopher Wayne Elliott Sr., 45, of Cheriton, was charged with a count of credit card fraud in connection with an April 1, 2017, incident. He was arrested April 27. Deputy S. C. Kellam of NCSO investigated. Elliott was released on his own recognizance.

OBITUARIES

Mr. Edward Vaughn "Ed" Charnock, 70, beloved husband of Annette Pruitt Charnock and the late Henrietta Harrison Charnock, and lifelong resident of Tangier, walked into the loving arms of his Lord and Savior on Monday, April 24, 2017.

Born March 29, 1947, on Tangier, he was a son of the late Vaughn Wesley Charnock and Virginia Lee Thomas Charnock. Although he was a man of few words, Ed could instantly fill a room with laughter. He enjoyed hanging out at the oil dock, where you could often find him perched on his five-gallon bucket, in the middle of his buddies, cracking jokes until they split their sides. ## World War II Bombardier, Former Editor of Air Force Times, Dies in Onancock

Mr. Bruce D. Callander died May 4, 2017, at the Hermitage in Onancock.

Born December 23, 1923, he served in the Army Air Corps during World War II and the Air Force Reserves during the Korean War, earning the Distinguished Flying Cross and the Air Medal with three oak leaf clusters among other decorations. He was also a frequent contributor to the Cheboygan Daily Tribune, Air Force Magazine and many other publications.

He was a mentor as well as an editor and many careers were touched and improved by his gentle direction. He was quoted as saying: “An insatiable curiosity is essential to a good reporter. A person can be taught to write and spell. But unless there is an inherent desire to know where the road leads, how the machine works, how society functions and why people act as they do, the chronicle of human affairs will be incomplete and meaningless. Keep your scholars - Send me the person with an itch to learn.”

As one of the original founders of the Fairfax County Animal Welfare League, a longtime member of the St. Andrews Society and an accomplished artist, he received many awards including the Freedom Foundation at Valley Forge Gold Medal. His humor, generosity, love and wisdom will be sorely missed.

Mr. Callander has donated his body to medical research and requested that all who knew him take a moment to reflect on art, world peace and good works instead of attending any formal memorial service.

His remaining ashes will eventually be spread over his beloved Mullet Lake in Michigan.

Picott-Cleveland pleaded guilty in January to three counts of malicious wounding. At a party in the New Road section of Exmore, also on June 18, the defendant got upset because he couldn't find his "fronts," also known as grills or grillz, decorative covers that snap over the front of teeth.

He told police that he felt threatened by one of the people who got shot there because he was from Cape Charles. He pulled out an automatic pistol and in addition to gunning down one man, he wound up hitting a woman who had gone to the party with his group and another man, a passenger in a car that had just pulled up to join the party.

Picott-Cleveland told police he meant to shoot Ranquise Coston of Exmore, "They (Coston and others) were going to do something to me. I wasn't going to let that happen ... I was trying to shoot him ... I unloaded my whole clip."

Coston previously testified he was shot four times in the back and spent 2 1/2 weeks in the hospital because of his injuries. "I was doing a lot of ducking, trying to get away ... I got shot four times ... I don't even know who shot me."

Just after the shooting, Picott-Cleveland, his sister, Mona Jones (who got hit in the neck), and Graves left the party. Jones declined going to the hospital although they stopped there. The defendant also fired the gun inside the vehicle during the ride back to Arlington Road and before falling asleep.

According to testimony, when they arrived at the house, Alexander Cleveland Sr. already knew about the Exmore incident because Graves had called him. The father said he went out to the vehicle to talk to his son.

"His eyes were big as I don't know what," Cleveland said. "His eyes didn't look right. He had a wild look in his eyes." He said his son didn't recognize him and thought he was someone from Exmore. "I bear hugged him" and got him out of the vehicle. The two tussled and Graves pulled the older man away allowing the defendant to go into the house. Testimony also disclosed Picott-

Cleveland got a shotgun while inside and jumped out a back window with it.

The father said he was calling police and trying to stay back from his son.

Picott-Cleveland's sister said after Graves was shot, her brother continued to ask about his "fronts." At her instruction that the "fronts" were down the road, he walked in that direction. He then hid in the woods until the next morning. At about 6 a.m. he showed back up at the house. He was taking a shower when police arrived to arrest him.

Punishment for second-degree murder is five to 40 years in prison. The maximum punishment for malicious wounding is 20 years in prison and a $100,000 fine.

Jamestown Exhibit on Loan

The Eastern Shore Public Library (ESPL) is hosting an educational exhibit, "Uncovering Home: A Visual Essay on Jamestown Archaeology," on loan from the Virginia Museum of Fine Arts in Richmond. What's new on Jamestown Island? Archaeologists from the Jamestown Rediscovery project at Historic Jamestowne are uncovering James Fort's oldest artifacts, and creating a revised picture of life in the first permanent English settlement in America! This limited security exhibition is perfect for schools, libraries, and art centers.

The exhibition's 12 panels paint a vivid picture of the struggles of the early colonists, while illustrating critical processes of historical archaeology. Are you looking for ways to generate enthusiasm for SOL-related Virginia history, science, and math? Come see this exhibition!

The exhibit will be at the library in Accomac through June 27 and viewable during hours of operation. There is no cost to view the exhibit. Plans are underway to extend the tour to Northampton Memorial Library in Nassawadox.

ESPL has become a "statewide partner" with VMFA, making the library system eligible for their touring exhibits and speakers. Community, schools, home-school, and church groups are invited to tour the exhibit and are encouraged to make reservations for general library tours or a corresponding program.

To learn more, call the ESPL at (757) 787-3400 or visit online at www.espl.org

Día de los Niños

ESPL held an outdoor children's festival on April 30 at its future location in Parksley. "El Día de los Niños, El Día de los Libros" marked the traditional Mexican national children's day. Central and South American countries also celebrate children on a special day, much like Mother's and Father's Day in the United States. The event was co-sponsored by La Fabulosa 95.5 FM radio station which streamed the event live. More than 300 people joined in activities including juggler Cascading Carlos, taqueria food trucks, and more than 10 community groups with information tables and giveaways. Library staff and volunteers had children's games and gave away books. Visitors spontaneously collected donations for the new regional library because of their excitement for the space and programs it will be able to offer their children.

SURF FISHING AT ITS PEAK - HOOK 'EM WHILE THEY'RE HOT!

By Connie Morrison

If you haven't hooked a drum or rockfish yet, better get out in the surf soon. Drum and rockfish surfing is at its peak, says Jimmy Vasiliou of Steve's Bait and Tackle in Chincoteague. Can you say, "Rockfish dinner?" So can I, but saying's not eating. Vasiliou says peelers, clams, or bunker on an East Coast hollow rig with a circle hook are just the ticket. Now we're talking and eating. Vasiliou says a few flounder are being hauled in as well.

Don Varney of Don's Tackle Shop near Wachapreague summed up recent flounder action this way: "Lousy. The weather has just tore up the flounder fishing." He reported plenty of black drum being taken at Quinby and Willis Wharf when weather cooperates for anglers to go out. Speckled trout are taking the bite in the Bay on Z-Man lures with jig heads, and many anglers are having luck trolling the Bay for red drum using trolling lures.

Black drum are biting on the seaside and bayside, says James Beasley, of Chris' Bait and Tackle in Capeville. Red drum are in the surf in the breakers off Fisherman's Island. Sea clams are the bait of choice for both. Beasley says flounder can be had, but action is spotty.

If you're tired of coming up empty, too bad. You couldn't have a day-long lesson from the best, like the 18 young people who spent May 7 learning the fundamentals of surf fishing from some of the top surf anglers on the East Coast.

The Surf Hogs fishing team of the Eastern Shore of Virginia Anglers Club worked with youngsters at Assateague National Seashore during the inaugural J.T. Bolding Memorial Youth Surf Fishing Event. Bolding was a Mid-Atlantic surf fishing and distance casting icon, an enthusiastic mentor to many local anglers, and a member of Surf Hogs. The event was to honor his memory. His friend, Dr. Paul Rochmis, funded the purchase of caps and sand spikes for the young anglers, who were instructed by the Surf Hogs team, with bait and extra equipment provided by Matt Abell of Sea Hawk Sports. Another friend, David Page, instructed the anglers on safety. After catching some striped bass, black drum, and bluefish, the youngsters enjoyed snacks, drinks, and pizza. Thanks to Ken Shultz for submitting event info and photos.

Many Hands Lighten the Load in Eastville Health Center Campaign

Submitted Article and Photo

George McMath has seen a few fundraising campaigns in his time. But he believes the one he is currently chairing might involve the most Shore people ever.

McMath says planning for the capital campaign to build Eastern Shore Rural Health System's new $9.5 million Eastville Community Health Center started last September. "We are just now entering the solicitation stage, having mailed about 900 letters this week, but there has been a lot of groundwork to get to this point," said McMath. "We have 13 committees with about 120 people taking part in the campaign. They are really motivated and are doing a great job in every regard."

McMath says it would be hard to miss the $2 million campaign. "We've handed out placemats to 11 restaurants in Northampton County, we have messages on billboards, and we have ads in both local newspapers and radio stations." A social media campaign will also be launched to spread awareness.

McMath says he is gratified by the results thus far. "The employees of Eastern Shore Rural Health have already exceeded their $75,000 goal and are now looking to raise $100,000. We have 100 percent involvement by the Rural Health board." Rural Health employees raised more than $3,000 at the Bayview Center by conducting a "paper brick" campaign where family members and friends can buy a "brick" and tape them up in the center with their name on it. That center also raised $1,200 in a car wash.

McMath says an experience last week showed him firsthand how badly the new center is needed. "I had a meeting at the Franktown Health Center and saw there wasn't enough parking available. There's no room to expand either. And then in the building the hallway was so crowded I had to take a different exit to leave the building."

The new center will have 24,000 square feet, almost double the combined size of the Franktown and Bayview centers it will replace. Dental services, now only at Franktown, will be more centralized for Northampton residents with the current six chairs increased to eight chairs, and one accessible to disabled patients. The new facility will also have digital X-ray which will provide doctors with a radiology report within 20 minutes.

Last year there were nearly 34,000 visits to the two Northampton centers. McMath says approximately 79 percent of Shore residents visited an Rural Health center last year. McMath, who headed the fundraising campaign to build the Onley Community Health Center that opened in 2010, notes that 22 percent of the funds for that campaign came from Northampton County residents. "I think the people of the Eastern Shore recognize this center will benefit the entire area and is very much needed."

McMath, who has also chaired two cancer crusades and the drive to build the Eastern Shore Chamber of Commerce building, jokes he knew he had been around for awhile when he realized the Northampton-Accomack Memorial Hospital building that opened in 1971 was being torn down. "I was the chairman of the fundraising drive for that building too," said McMath with a chuckle.

Nancy Stern, chief executive officer for Eastern Shore Rural Health, has now teamed up with McMath twice. "We are both honored and proud to have Mr. McMath lead our campaign to build the Eastville Community Health Center. He is creative, compelling and committed to our mission and to enhancing access to health care on the Shore," said Stern.

McMath says he believes in short campaigns to keep the volunteers fresh and having fun. "We are looking to wrap this campaign up by May 24."

At a historical site in Eyreville, along Cherrystone Inlet, dozens of volunteers began digging for artifacts Tuesday, where a Dutch casting counter was found six weeks ago, and dates between 1580 and 1620.

Debris Cleanup Yields 17th Century Artifacts on Historic Homesite

Story and Photos by Linda Cicaira

What started as a felled Maple tree at the end of Eyreville Drive in Northampton County about six weeks ago turned into an archeological excavation Tuesday that promises artifacts from the early 1600s.

A Dutch casting counter, made in Nuremberg between 1580 and 1620 and used by merchants of the time, was found when the tree was removed. There were Dutch pipes with carved patterns, a cream-colored brick believed to be Dutch, British and Irish coins, pieces of pottery and red bricks, too.

"This whole thing was just an accident," said Christopher (Crittter) Derwort, who lives on the site and farms in the area with owner Roger Buyrn. "A little back hoe work turned into an archeological dig. We started finding things. This is why they are here," he said pointing to the two dozen others, (mostly from state and local archeological and historical societies) who were carefully using small shovels and trowels in their quest to find a cellar (or anything else) that might hold even more treasures.

The group set up small squares throughout the yard where the digging would be done. Others would take the dirt and gently sift it so nothing is lost. There were also squares close to a hole where the tree once stood. Other large trunk trees were also in close proximity.

"People think it's just artifacts" that are the important finds, State Archeologist Mike Barber, who was the leader of the dig, explained. "But it's also what they are near or lying on."

Comparably, he said, "Jamestown was in its third decade and it was before the Indian War of 1644. It's a time period of early settlement, obviously Dutch smoking pipes ... influence from Maryland ... a unique setting," Barber said.

The archeologist is concerned important historical sites like this will be destroyed as sea levels rise and more and more erosion occurs. The farm is along Cherrystone Inlet, a tributary of the Chesapeake Bay. One can look out across the water and see two sand bars. It is likely that the farthest one once held a pier. Of course, that would have been before so many feet of land had eroded away.

So, you've got a 200-year-old tree, on a 400-year-old home site that is about a half mile from the place where more than a decade ago, scientists studied the Chesapeake Bay Impact Crater, that was formed by a large meteor or about 35.5 million years ago. And all are in a county that has the oldest continuous court records in the country.

About two dozen archeology and history buffs (some are pictured above) turned out Tuesday to kick off the quest for artifacts in Eyreville. Below are pieces of smoking pipes, also Dutch and found at the site, dating from the early 1600s.

The present dig area “was the site of Col. William Kendall’s original house,” said Fitzhugh Godwin of Onancock, a direct descendant. “Kendall was a very wealthy landowner.” He was also a Jamestown burgess. Kendall owned another farm in Temperanceville that was 10,000 acres and took in the present day towns of Hallwood and Bloxom, Godwin said.

The 1799 two-story brick house on the site was also once the estate of the Webster family, that owned the processing plant in nearby Cheriton, Godwin continued. The original house is believed to have been closer to the water, where volunteers were digging this week.

Derwort lives in the estate’s tavern house (not a bar) that has wide-plank floors and ceilings and is the smaller dwelling on the farm. At this time, no one lives in the larger house, which includes a sanatorium or built-in swimming pool, which is also not being used at this time.

Derwort was excited to have found six white pipes that had not been touched by another human hand in 400 years and were made with kaolin clay that had been burnished. Local clay would have been red. A red pipe was also found that was possibly made by an Englishman, he said.

Christopher (Crittter) Derwort, who lives on the estate, shows off a 400-year-old Dutch brick that was unearthed after a tree fell on the grounds.

A Mother 2 All (Remembering My Mother, Darlene)

You have 3 Kings, but you're a mother to All
 You should've had a memorial outside of any mall
 You just didn't give love to some, you gave to All
 God gotta Great Angel when your name was called Wishing you were still living, just here reminiscing
 All the love you gave to everyone, especially your siblings
 If the world was a puzzle, you're the ultimate piece missing
 You're dearly loved and missed by your children and grandchildren
 R.I.P. Mother Darlene, also R.I.P. to my Grandmother Lillie Mae
 Shout-out and love to Grandmother Sarah and the Mothers on Mother's Day

-T. Davis J.

"When a mother quarrels with her daughter, she has a double dose of unhappiness: hers from the conflict, and empathy with her daughter from the conflict with her."

Thank you for dealing with my sour butt for the past 19 years. I love you to the moon and back! Happy Mother's Day.

Love, Kinmy xoxo

The family of Tiffany Lewis Smith would like to thank you very much for the cards, flowers and kind expressions of sympathy shown following her sad passing.

Your support at this difficult time was very much appreciated and of great comfort to all of the family.

Growing Up in a Small Town and Going Away to College

Editor's Note: This piece was previously published online at www.hercampus.com

By Mallory Ballance

Special to the Eastern Shore Post

I am from the small peninsula of the Eastern Shore of Virginia. Yes, you read that right I said Virginia. Most of the time when I explain to people where I am from, I usually say, "Have you heard of Ocean City in Maryland? Well, I live about 40 minutes south on the Eastern Shore in a small town called Parksley." If they haven't heard of Ocean City, most people have heard of Chincoteague Island, which is relatively close to me and known for the "wild ponies."

People who see me across campus would never know I was from a rural area, as some would call it. I don't sport camo on a daily basis, but I do own some. I don't wear my Muck boots and talk about my recent hunting experiences, but I have been hunting before. I'm just an average college student who wears yoga pants and T-shirts about 90 percent of the time.

I come from an area where the main source of income is from working on the water in the seafood industry. For most people that's unheard of. When we have fish or seafood in the dining hall, my instant thought is, "Is this fresh?" Where I'm from, I know for a fact where my blue crabs, fish, or other seafood have come from.

Most people at least have a neighboring city that they can use to describe their hometown's location. I am from a place that is so secluded to some parts of the world that it's left off of 20 percent of maps or is incorporated into Maryland.

I was drawn towards farther universities because of the limited opportunities I was offered in my local area. We have a local community college and a university in Maryland about 45 minutes away, but I wanted to go off on my own and explore how things work in the city. I wanted the sense of independence and the opportunity to meet different types of people from all over who were experiencing being away from home for the first time. The door to new food and retail stores in close vicinity was open, compared to having to drive over an hour away at home to just get to Chick-Fil-A or Target! I know what most of you are thinking: "How did you survive?"

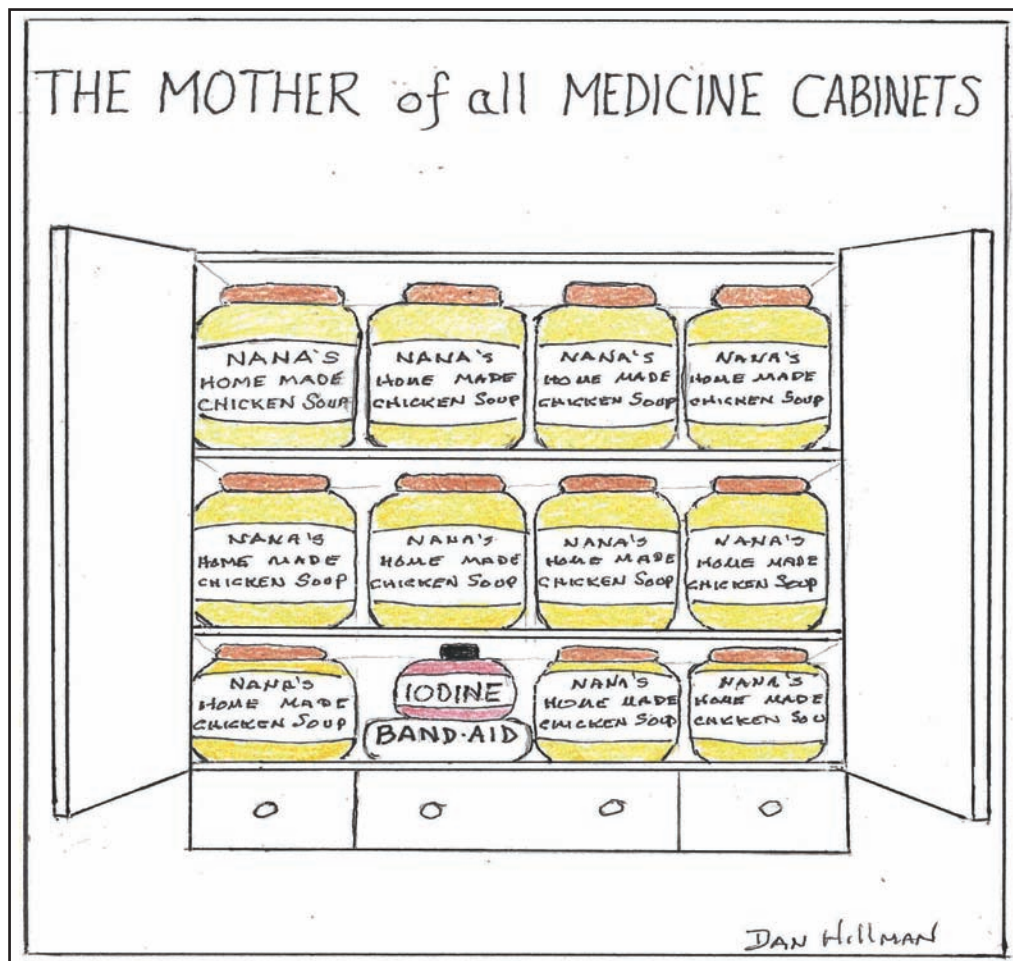

Where I'm from, we live by a traditional sense of simple living. The food options are limited to maybe five places in a 10-mile vicinity. There were only four high schools in my county and I only had about 200 people in my graduating class. Everyone got excited when we finally got a Walmart.

I opted to go live my dream by going away to college. I chose Christopher Newport University (CNU) for its sense of community, academic success, and beautiful campus. I loved that it was only two hours away from my home. I now live in two different worlds: one when I am at home and another when I'm here at school. There are still things that happen daily on campus that I have to learn and get used to. I had never heard the term "NOVA" until I stepped foot onto CNU's campus, where at least 50 percent of the student body is from. I get stuck in rush hour traffic here on my route to Target and at home I get stuck behind a tractor. I love where I'm from and I love coming home when I'm able. But, I also love being fortunate enough to attend CNU where I can get a full college experience and four-year degree. I have learned to embrace and have an open mind to how other people were brought up and why they are the way they are.

I strongly suggest to those who grew up in a small town to go away to college and step out of your small town world. The world is open to new possibilities, new lifestyles, and places that you may never get to experience if you don't step out of your bubble.

Have you ever crashed a party? Two women with whom I work seem to be tempted by such things. But they don't go for the field or barn or grader shed variety bash. And they aren't in their carefree 20s anymore.

These two were on the loose in Northampton County for the garden tour recently and pulled up at a grand-looking place they thought was on their itinerary.

Nope. There was a baby shower going on and they nearly walked in on it. Big clue was other women were strolling up to the door with presents. Beware folks. Don't put out balloons to mark the path to your house when public events are being held. You never know who might show up.

One of them thought she had a gift she could have given. It was a lobster claw trash picker-upper that she just happened to have in her vehicle. She claims it was for her 18-month-old niece. I dare say the expectant mother would have been thrilled.

I'm not allowed to disclose the identity of this woman to whom I'm referring. Does that give you a hint? Also it might be typical for her to carry around such a device since she is a member of the local Waste Watcher anti-litter group. Well, she kind of let that membership lapse. Perhaps one of you would want to pick up her slack.

All this leads to my rant on the GPS craze. There's a reason I don't bother with those things. I'm not nervous and jerky about getting lost. It's an adventure. I bet they had great food and drinks at the shower. And I love playing those party games. If someone had invited me along to the garden tour, I might have joined in on welcoming the baby.

But where was I that day? Oh yeah, I went to the Blessing of the Worms in Cape Charles only to learn it wasn't on Saturday, it was on Sunday. Ugh!

Her daughter also told us that her mother and another friend once crashed a child's birthday party. It was at a fancy restaurant and they just had to use the entrance where the event was being held. The friend even announced how sorry she was for being late. I'll just bet they ate cake.

This is a hint for some baklava. Yep! The same person is making Greek food to raise money for scholarships awarded through ESTACI (Eastern Shore Training and Consulting Incorporated), a group trying to end poverty on the Shore. The dinner is being served twice (at 5 and 7 p.m.) May 20 at Market Street United Methodist Church. The menu will include souvlaki (grilled chicken), dolmades (grape leaves with lamb or rice, raisins and pine nuts), spanakopita (spinach pie), roasted potatoes, Greek salad and the baklava, (which is also being sold separately).

Library Bricks Provide Lasting Memorials and Recognition

Dear Editor:

Well, the Big Bad Wolf found that brick buildings were more than he could handle. All the huffin' and puffin' just could not do the job and he went home a little hungry.

Today, the new Eastern Shore Public Library in Parkley launches the Memorial Brick Fundraising project.

This library is a community asset for all of the Shore. Sure, there are grants and big money donors. The state and Accomack County are contributing mightily to the establishment of this institution. But the real commitment is you, the individual. That person sees the need, lives here, and will use this library.

Here are some ways for you to participate.

For a permanent memorial to a loved one, a special wall at the entrance will be reserved. Everyone entering the library will pass by this wall.

The walkways are available for your name or message, as are small seating areas around the parking lot, lamp posts for those who share the light of knowledge, and outdoor benches for private musings. In the Commemoration Corridor will be other placings appropriate for your purpose, whether a family grouping, yourself, a friend, social club, high school classmates, or folks who were special to you in your lifetime. Even your pet.

Here is your chance to be a part of something big, important, and lasting.

Call 757-694-7000 for details, methods of payment (there are several), and answers to any questions you may have.

Remember, there is a time limit and a space limit, but no limit on how all of us can contribute in a meaningful way to the present and to the future of our children.

I've bought mine already; time for you to get yours. We'll be at Four Corner Plaza this Saturday under the tent. Mother's Day is Sunday, and a brick for Mom - in honor of or in remembrance of - would make a great gift. Come on by.
