Two Life Sentences for Muslimani Former wife sentenced to time served for her role in abuse of daughter

By Linda Cicaira

The 12-year-old Onancock girl was kept inside, out of school and in baggy clothes, to hide the pregnancy conceived after her stepfather repeatedly raped her, all while a woman she now calls her "birth mother" followed his orders and stuffed herself with a pillow to mimic the condition and cover any possible questions that might develop as a result of the upcoming delivery.

About 30 years after Stacey Johnson Spione, now 43, of Northampton, lived that appalling childhood, she finally found justice. Wednesday, a jury convicted Khalil Muslimani, 70, of Robins Lane in Onancock, of rape and taking indecent liberties with his oldest stepdaughter. Spione was 11 when she says she was first impregnated by him and taken to North Carolina for an abortion. She had four children by the man by the age of 16 and court records show a marriage license was obtained by him with the wrong birthdate for her.

Spione consented to her name being used for this article. She said she wants to make a difference for others, who have also been abused and is working with the state to abolish a time limit for victims

Court Affirms Fines And Jail Time In Wetlands Case

By Stefanie Jackson

Benjamin Mathai, of Manassas, was sentenced in Northampton County Circuit Court Monday to a total of 40 days in jail and fined $3,000 for clear-cutting approximately three acres of protected wetlands on his Exmore property without a permit in August.

The landmark decision was the only instance Commonwealth's Attorney Bruce Jones could recall in which a Northampton judge handed down a jail sentence for violations regarding unpermitted wetlands use and soil disturbance. Judge W. Revell Lewis III disregarded the request of defense attorney, Adam Carroll, to give Mathai community service instead.

Mathai was found guilty of three misdemeanors. For unpermitted encroachment into the Chesapeake Bay Resource Protection Area, an unclassified misdemeanor, he was fined $1,000. For use of wetlands without a permit, and unpermitted land disturbing activity, both classified misdemeanors, Mathai was given fines totaling $5,000, with $3,000 suspended, and jail sentences totaling 24 months, with all but 40 days suspended. He was permitted to serve his time on weekends.

Lewis denied Carroll's request for his client to begin serving time after the first of the year, and ordered Mathai to report to jail at 5 p.m. on Friday, Dec. 15.

Judge Gordon Vincent found Mathai guilty of all three offenses on Sept. 11, but Carroll filed an appeal that same afternoon. The appeal was withdrawn Dec. 5,

In court on Monday, Mathai apologized and said he accepted responsibility for the wetlands destruction, but it did not earn him any leniency with the judge. Neither did the testimony of George Dilley, the Northampton-based marine construction contractor in charge of the wetlands restoration on Mathai's property. He said Mathai has been "cooperative" and calls him once a week to discuss the progress of the wetlands restoration.

Mathai paid the $7,500 fine, the highest that can be imposed by the county wetlands board. He has paid about $137,000 for the wetlands restoration, a figure he expects to climb to $160,000 by the time the project is completed. Mathai estimated he has paid between $8,000 and $12,000 to land consultant Ellen Grimes, $32,000 to engineer John Salms, and between $70,000 and $78,000 to George Dilley to date.

He said the criminal proceedings against him ruined the "solitude, peacefulness, [and] calm" he sought in purchasing property on the Eastern Shore.

Mathai admitted that he was at the property Aug. 6 "to make a payment" to the contractor he hired on Craigslist, and knew he needed a permit for the work being performed.

However, Mathai said he did not recall the Aug. 9 phone conversation between himself and then-wetlands board enforcement agent Kelley Parks, in which he claimed he was not there Aug. 6, and only wanted about 200 trees removed near the house. None of the trees removed from the property were near the house.

Jones stated there was no "good faith" error in the case, and disagreed with Carroll's assessment that Mathai committed no "moral wrong." Jones contended Mathai "got what he wanted" — a better view of the water — and was not truly remorseful, but merely "sorry he got caught." Jones asked the judge for a "stiff sentence to deter similar behaviors" by other wealthy property owners who may not be dissuaded by hefty fines.

In addition to the 40-day jail term and $3,000 in fines, Lewis sentenced Mathai to five years of probation, the same length of time as the monitoring period for the wetlands restoration and mitigation agreement. The court will revisit the case Jan. 21, 2019, to review mitigation progress.

SCHOOL BOARD REJECTS COAST GUARD SCHOOL ASSIGNMENT REQUEST

By Connie Morrison

Coast Guard members again appeared before the Accomack School Board to request a waiver from the school zone attendance policy to allow children of service members stationed in Chincoteague to attend Chincoteague Elementary School.

Service members are required to live at Wallops, which is in the Kegotank school zone, and Coast Guard members say the 26-minute drive from the Chincoteague station to Kegotank makes it difficult for them to be involved in their children's school activities when they are working.

"To be clear, this is not a request to adjust boundary lines," said Capt. R.J.

Wester in a letter to board Chairman Ronnie E. Holden. "Additionally, families ... would be responsible for transporting their own children to and from Chincoteague Elementary School."

Following their request, Superintendent Chris Holland called forward Kegotank Principal Jennifer Annis and Vice Principal Amber Yorke for a presentation about Kegotank Elementary, its strengths, and the contributions of military families to the school.

Upon the conclusion of the presentation, Holland read a prepared statement in which he said he could not "in good conscience" recommend granting the waiver,

"which is based on residency, not place of employment." He suggested the Coast Guard, instead, change its housing policy.

Deputy Capt. Kevin Carroll, who made the request to the board, said a housing waiver is not possible. "Congress said if you have housing available, you must have them live there."

Board member Paul Bull said they are looking out for all 5,000 students in the district and can't section off groups for special treatment. "Everyone considers themselves different."

"We appreciate your service ... but we will not be granting your waiver," said Holden.

Woman Who Robbed Catholic Church Says Black Magic To Blame

By Linda Cicoira

The woman who is being held in Accomack Jail without bond while awaiting trial for robbing St. Peter's Catholic Church in Onley last May and related offenses, says black magic practiced at her long-time family home conjured up the devil to make her use cocaine, do those crimes and the 23 other felonies with which she was previously convicted.

Bertisha Rose Johnson, 53, of Bay-side Road in Onancock, contended in a letter to the county circuit court, that her sanity is intact. Despite that claim, Judge W. Revell Lewis III continued her court date until Feb. 5, and ordered a psychiatric evaluation.

"I am not going to plead guilty to something evil in my aunt's house," she wrote. "The devil is very real. I tried cocaine like three times ... when I started getting into trouble because of it, there was no reason for me to use ... there were no so-called triggers and I have never had drug cravings," she continued.

"The only time I have had any type of issue with using, is in and on the property of my aunt's house. ... I don't care if I have to ask for a lie detector test or a doctor of mental health to evaluate me. I know, I am very sane. I know people do not want to believe in evil and demons, but how can you read the Bible and not?"

"Anyone who knows me personally and my personality and character should know this is not me," she continued. "I have always been caring and compassionate to others, willing to help anyone and a gun? Never! I am 53 years old. I've always been afraid of guns. I never even tried to learn how to use one and I hate them around me. Fifty-three and very first time in life I've held a gun towards anyone. And the Catholic Church never would."

She also asked for a new court-appointed attorney, complaining that Carl Bundick had only visited her once for 15 minutes before her hearing. That matter was not debated.

Church manager Joanne Boyko testified at a preliminary hearing. She said Johnson pulled out a gun that was wrapped in a blue grocery store bag and demanded money. "I told her we made a deposit the night before," Boyko said, offering petty cash in an envelope. But with only $22 inside, "She didn't seem very happy. ... She said put your hands behind your back."

"We are a church, we can help you," Boyko said she told the robber.

"You can't help me for what I've done," the robber answered, according to Boyko.

"She spotted my purse under the desk," took another $22, tied Boyko's hands behind her back and took a garbage bag and twisted it like a rope and tied Boyko to a drawer.

The victim got her hands apart but waited until Johnson was closer to rebel. Johnson had covered her mouth with a cloth and asked for her car keys. Boyko "lunged at her hand and grabbed it (the gun) they struggled and she (Johnson) continuously hit me in the head with the gun."

Boyko started screaming and the suspect fled.

"I know in my heart and soul now what's been taking place in my life all these years," Johnson wrote to the Eastern Shore Post this week. "Maybe it was not meant for me to see as now I do and my very life is hanging in the balance. So are my children's because they still reside in the house that used to be my grandfather's and aunt's ... I love my two sons more than my own life, that's the only reason I keep coming back to the Shore after release. I have constantly been told by counselors and evangelists that came to the prison, not to return to my aunt's home but self-will can be a terrible thing as well as pride. I always wanted to be near my boys, grown or not ... I am 53 and I do not have time to play games with my life anymore. But I do need someone's help because I know, I, of my own will, did not rob the Catholic Church, that church is the only church that has ever helped me, and I am not crazy or insane enough to keep returning to prison time and time again."

Johnson said when she was 16, the house caught fire. It was Dec. 19, 1982. "There was an entity living in my aunt's home. My son saw it when he was 6½ and my aunt was always seeing it. My family members practiced black magic in the house when I was younger and by doing so, I don't know what type of entity they allowed into our homes. I know that there are several ... paranormal investigators even in Virginia Beach and Hampton."

to report their plight. Once that becomes a reality in Virginia, Spione said she will move on to working for it in other states.

In 2011, Gov. Bob McDonnell signed into law a bill extending the statute of limitations from two years to 20 years for sexual abuse civil lawsuits.

There should be no statute of limitations for victims as there is for criminals, she said as she tried to compose herself while the jury was deliberating. The trial was held in Virginia Beach because Muslimani's previous sex offense convictions with minors are widely known on the Eastern Shore. The panel of seven women and five men were not told of his past until after the guilty verdicts were rendered. It took about 20 minutes to pick a foreman and come to a consensus.

Commonwealth's Attorney Spencer Morgan then asked for life in prison for Muslimani for the rape. His request was granted when they recommended life plus 10 years in prison for the two charges and assessed a fine of $100,000 after deliberating for less than 10 minutes. Retired Judge Frederick Lowe scheduled sentencing for Feb. 15. He ordered a new presentence report despite that one had been made in 2016 when Muslimani was sentenced to a total of two life terms plus 20 years for two counts of rape and two counts of sodomy involving his niece, who was a teenager when the crimes occurred in 1998 and 2002.

He committed those offenses after he served six years in prison. In 1990, Muslimani was convicted of carnal knowledge of Spione and of attempted object sexual penetration and forcible sodomy of another young relative. He was sentenced to 12 years but served half due to parole and good behavior regulations that are no longer allowed.

Initially, Ruth Johnson Carpenter, 61, of Louisiana, Spione's mother, was indicted on counts of rape, indecent liberties and felony neglect in connection with incidents involving Spione. Morgan amended the first two charges to being an accessory after the fact, which are misdemeanors. Due to the overwhelming evidence, Carpenter pleaded guilty in Accomack Circuit Court Thursday to the three crimes but took an Alford plea, which means she conceded there appeared to be sufficient evidence for a conviction, but did not admit guilt. Morgan recommended 12 months each for the amended charges and 10 years for neglect with all but time served suspended. Judge W. Revell Lewis went along with the deal and sentenced her accordingly. She spent about two weeks in Accomack Jail in 2015 before getting bond.

Defense lawyer Garrett Dunham also asked for leniency. He said Carpenter has stage four kidney disease, asthma, diabetes and "as you can imagine depression. She is quite a fragile individual, not suitable for jail."

"The children were brainwashed, she (Carpenter) was brainwashed," Dunham said. "Her mother died when she was 12. From 12 to 16, her father beat and abused her. Her history is difficult." When she married her first husband there was a "pattern of verbal/physical abuse" then in this case, "she signed off her parental rights." He showed pictures of Spione and Muslimani at a wedding reception and a honeymoon in the Bahamas. Dunham described it as the "evil of mental pressure and poisoning."

"The facts of the case are really horrific," Morgan told Lewis. "Muslimani would like everyone to believe this was all Carpenter's doing ... I think Mrs. Carpenter was a victim of that. He threatened he would take all the children. When she had another daughter, she was fearful to take it home because he would abuse her and she did not bring home a son."

"Those photos should not by any stretch of the imagination be assessed as happy times," said Morgan. "They were horrific times. Ms. Carpenter does have some culpability, she could have taken many steps at many times.”

Ruth Carpenter in court Wednesday.

“She was totally unmatched and scared ... and wound up losing her family anyway,” said Dunham. She is not a “threat to society.”

Carpenter testified Wednesday that she had two daughters when she married Muslimani. When Spione got pregnant at 12, “she wasn’t allowed to go to any doctors. She wasn’t allowed to go anywhere.

He didn’t want anyone to know anything,” Carpenter testified. Carpenter did not go to the hospital when her grandson was born. “The entire time I was threatened he was going to take my other kids to Israel, and he had the money to do it,” she said.

Ruth (Muslimani) was listed as the child’s mother on the birth certificate. A recent DNA testing ruled out Carpenter. There was a 99.99 percent chance the parents were Muslimani and Spione, evidence showed.

Retired Investigator Gerald Goga, of the Accomack County Sheriff’s Office, worked the case and also testified regarding taking buccal swabs from those three. Goga, Lt. Anthony Bright and retired social services worker Gail Walker told the court that Muslimani admitted to them he had a sexual relationship with the young Spione.

“In the summer 1986, it was discovered that I was pregnant,” Spione testified. “I had been missing my monthly cycles. My stepfather had vaginal intercourse with me. It was almost daily ... in the house, in a guest house there on the property, in the van that he had ... he initiated it. He would come into my room and force himself upon me ... He would have one of my siblings and my birth mother ... get me and tell me that he wants me to go to his room.” After she got pregnant, “it never stopped,” she said.

“He said that this was normal in his country and that even in the Quran it was okay for him to do that to me because I was not his child,” she said. “He made threats constantly (for me) not to tell anyone. They made me wear baggy clothes, told people I was gaining weight (and) reduced the amount of food. I wasn’t allowed to come out of my room after getting further along in the pregnancy where it was visible.”

Spione made it clear the sex was not consensual. “Both my stepfather and birth mother had been abusing me since I was four years old,” she said in a previous interview. “That man abused me for 13 years.” She said Carpenter fled with one of her four sisters when Spione was a young teenager.

STAR Transit Proposes To Expand Service in Northampton County

By Stefanie Jackson

Northampton residents want more public transportation, and STAR Transit is prepared to give it to them.

Phil Thompson, of Virginia Regional Transit, which has managed STAR Transit since 2010, proposed the expansion of the county's only public transportation system to Northampton supervisors last month.

STAR Transit services Accomack and Northampton along seven color-coded routes. VRT is proposing to expand the green route to Northampton, an "on-demand" route which currently serves only Accomack.

STAR Transit's targeted ridership includes the elderly and disabled, but the service is open to the general public. Rides must be scheduled at least 24 hours but no more than two weeks in advance. The proposed cost for the Northampton green route is $3 per ride, regardless of distance. Currently, only riders who live no more than ¼ of a mile away from a fixed route may be picked up by STAR Transit at home.

The Eastern Shore Area Agency on Aging and the Hare Valley Senior Center in Exmore contacted VRT about creating public transportation solutions for the elderly and disabled, giving those outside of STAR Transit's normal ¼ mile route deviation access to the service, and alleviating the strain on ESAAA transportation resources.

VRT estimated the "all-in" cost of the expansion at $62,400 per year, with localities responsible for $19,968 per year. Though urban transit systems are normally paid for 100 percent by municipalities, rural transit systems are funded by 50 percent federal, 18 percent state, and 32 percent local funds. Thompson indicated there may also be a "cost-sharing opportunity" between Northampton and ESAAA for the expansion. Supervisor Granville Hogg estimated if the new route served 1,500 riders per year, it would cost a total of $13 per person, and each end user paying $3 per ride would equal a subsidy of $10 per person.

Supervisors made a "soft commitment" to the proposed expansion, permitting VRT to send the Department of Rail and Public Transportation an update letter notifying them of the need for additional transit service, and to seek the required state and federal funds for the project. A budget request to DRPT will follow in January 2018. A response on funding availability should be received by June 2018.

The proposed expansion comes on the heels of a record year for STAR Transit, which served more than 90,000 yearly passengers for the first time in 2017. The public transportation provider runs for 16,000 service hours each year in Accomack, a 1,310-square-mile area with a population of 32,947. STAR Transit currently runs for 11,000 service hours yearly in Northampton, encompassing 795 square miles and 12,139 people. Expanding STAR Transit's green route to Northampton three days a week, eight hours a day, would add 1,248 service hours per year, at a cost of $50 per hour.

The new route would primarily serve Exmore, Nassawadox, Eastville, Treherneville, and additional areas as necessary, each Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday from 7 to 11 a.m. and noon to 4 p.m. Thompson said there is also an option for the route to run on a five-day schedule. The vehicle running the route would likely be a 20-passenger bus, which can accommodate up to six wheelchairs, rather than a 10-passenger van.

Riders of the green route would be picked up from their residences and transferred to one of STAR Transit's six direct routes. Hogg's major concerns with the new route were elderly riders' ability to get on and off the bus while transferring between routes, and whether there would be bus shelters to protect them from the winter cold and summer heat while they wait.

STAR Transit's new Northampton green route could begin running by October 2018 if DRPT approves the project and all funding becomes available.

More Accomack Indictments

A Bloxom handyman was indicted by an Accomack grand jury last week on 45 counts of forging and uttering checks valued at nearly $15,600 that belonged to the farm where he sometimes worked, according to papers released Monday.

Corey Wayne Marshall, 39, of Quail Circle, is accused of altering some of the checks given to him by Steven Van Kesteren and then cashing them. The incidents occurred between October 2016 and July 2017.

Van Kesteren bragged about Marshall's abilities at a preliminary hearing saying, "He can fix anything." But after "I started trusting him and we actually became friends, I started missing things in the house," Van Kesteren testified. "He started taking everything from me." He said, "It was easy to see the alterations on the checks." Van Kesteren explained the numerals didn't match the written numbers. "I can't see how the bank ever cashed it."

Investigator Edward Perry of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office (ACSO) handled the case.

Thomas Roosevelt Bunting, 34, of Melfa, was indicted on counts of providing false information to the registry for sex offenders and crimes against minors on Oct. 30, 2017, and failure to register on Nov. 13, 2017. Trooper A. D. Montross investigated.

David Thomas Wilson, 38, of Oak Haven Avenue in Delmar, Md., was indicted on counts of felony burglary at the home of Timothy Duvall at Johnson Circle in Nelsonia on Aug. 20, 2017, and misdemeanor trespassing and disorderly conduct.

Deputy Jessica Young, of ACSO, said when she arrived at the house, Duvall was on the roof claiming the man standing and yelling at him from the ground had come into his residence and threatened to "put him in the hospital" and chased him through the house and onto the roof.

Fred Douglas Lykes, 61, of Church Street in Onancock, was indicted on a count of stealing money on Jan. 21, 2017, belonging to Matthews Market in Mappsville. Officer David Gladding of Chincoteague Police Department investigated.

Sean Michael Shea, no age available, of Bloxom, was indicted on five counts of stalking, which are misdemeanors, on Feb. 24, March 27, April 19, July 7 and July 17, 2017. The victim was Karen Shea. The indictments did not indicate their relationship but stated she was placed "in reasonable fear of death, criminal sexual assault or bodily injury." Sr. Trooper Glenn Neal of the state police investigated.

SHORE SWIM UNDERWAY IN SECOND SEASON

By Krystle Bono

With only a single season under their belt, Shore Swim is already experiencing some successful outcomes in their second year. The team is not unfamiliar with success, as they posted a third place overall, and third fastest time, across the state last season at the state finals; to the 16th fastest in the state, among several other titles in between.

Shore Swim had two meets so far this year, with the first against Seaford High School, Dec. 7. The boys team earned a second-place finish by a score of 90-63, and the girls came in first by a score of 79-50 across 10 out of 11 events.

Tuesday evening, the girls team defeated Pocomoke by a score of 106-34, in their first home meet of the season, which took place at the Eastern Shore YMCA. This time, the girls swept the opposition, recording first place finishes in all 11 events.

The boys also topped Pocomoke, earning first-place finishes in eight out of 11 events.

The boys 400 freestyle relay was won by Grady Harmon, Saunders, Williams and Parker Stern (5:31.98).

Caleb Burford competed in the boys 50 freestyle with a time of 47.99.

"The swimmers are doing great so far, I just can't wait to see how well they will do with more training over the winter break. The best thing about swimming is how hard you work is almost directly related to how well you do in the meet. The swimmers will learn the more hard work they put in, the more this work will pay off," said Coach Maggie Beard.

"I couldn't be more pleased how the second season is going and how the first ever home swim meet went. For our first meet, it was a total success. Things ran smoothly and we swam great on top of it all, piling up one first after another. It was a great night for the newly added sport with our home crowd watching," said Coach Bryan McElwain.

Shore Swim's inception came after a group of parents and student athletes expressed interest for a swim team in Accomack County, and the club consists of members from Nandua, Arcadia and Chincoteague high schools.

The team's next meet will be held at Stephen Decatur, Jan. 9.

To the citizens of Accomack County,

Recently, a native eastern shoreman referred to supervisor Robert Crockett as Robert “Cluck-Cluck” Crockett, of which I did not appreciate the significance until I attended an Eastern Shore Chamber of Commerce meeting. There, Mr. Crockett gave such a pro Tyson/Perdue presentation that I questioned whether he is working for the citizens of Accomack County, or those chicken entities. It is time to replace this board of directors, or at least the ones openly in the pocket of Tyson/Perdue, as is Mr. Crockett.

Fishing from the Shore

By Bill Hall

Last weekend's burst of arctic-like weather conditions with snow, sleet, and freezing rain put a severe damper on the striped bass fishing effort for almost everyone without access to a large, comfortable and warm vessel!

Upper Shore – Captain Matt Abell at the Sea Hawk Sports Center reported “lots” of larger-sized rockfish were being encountered by anglers, both trolling as well as fishing live eels in the area around Rappahannock Light. Flocks of feeding, diving gannets were often associated with the schools of larger fish. Although the fish could start feeding at any time, the first of the ebb tide has seemed to really trigger a feeding frenzy with the recent rockfish bite.

Wind, snow, and bitter conditions occurred during both days of the 12th Annual Atlantic Volunteer Fire & Rescue Company Rockfish Tournament held on the 9th and 10th of this month. First place was caught by Alan Poulson aboard the Pole Dancer with Captain Brandon Martin. The 14-0 fish was worth $1,000.

On the freshwater scene, the recent cold spell has produced good catches of chain pickerel as well as crappie in the Pocomoke River and into the adjacent Stevenson's Pond.

Chincoteague – Jimmy Vasilou, at Captain Steve's, reported that he had not heard about much recent fishing action because of the latest bout of rough weather. Jimmy did say that tautog were still being pulled from around some of the local bridge pilings.

Lower Shore – Chris Snook took a day out of the shop to sample the trophy striper fishing for herself and was rewarded with a 50-15 cow for her effort! The fish is currently sitting in fourth place in the 7th Annual Pig-zilla Rockfish Tournament. As of Monday, a 56-4 fish currently sat in first place. Chris commented that the fish are not overly plentiful but “if you put your time in, you can catch a fish.” The best fishing lately for the larger fish has occurred in the area from buoy 42 up to number 54.

The largest striper of the season was caught on Monday, it weighed a whopping 64-10 and was caught by Stacy D. Moose, of Manteo, NC. Moose and his two fishing buddies brought in three fish with a combined weight of almost 155 pounds!

Some of the boats are running all the way up to Tangier Island but most of the fish in that area were a smaller class of fish. Puppy drum and speckled trout action seems to be finished for the season.

State Record Triggerfish – On Dec. 6, the Virginia Saltwater Fishing Tournament announced that a 6-12 gray triggerfish has been certified as a Virginia State Record for the species.

The large trigger was caught by Yorktown angler Dave Walden, who was fishing aboard the charter vessel, Underdog, with Captain Jake Hiles. The fish was caught over the Chenango Wreck which sits approximately 50 miles east of Virginia Beach on the west side of the Cigar in 100 feet of water. Walden was using strips of squid as bait.

Bill Hall was the first Eastern Shore resident to achieve Virginia Salt Water Master Angler Status. He has been named Virginia Saltwater Angler of the Year and Virginia Saltwater Release Angler of the Year. Bill is an I.G.F.A. International Committee Representative and a longtime member of the Virginia Saltwater Fishing Tournament Committee. He is the Virginia Recreation Fishing representative on the ASMFC Striped Bass Management Panel and is a past recipient of the CCA-VA Virginia Outdoor Writer Conservation Leadership Award.

Convicted Arsonists React to “American Fire” Book

By Linda Cicoira

“American Fire: Love, Arson, and Life in a Vanishing Land,” by Monica Hesse, is a book released earlier this year about a local arson spree committed in Accomack County nearly five years ago. It features former star-crossed lovers, Tonya Bundick and Charlie Smith.

The two, now inmates in Virginia prisons, don’t write to each other and haven’t spoken since December 2013. But, both told the Eastern Shore Post of their dismay with the novel.

“Personally, I feel that Monica Hesse would be better suited to write for a gossip column,” Bundick, 44, a former nurse’s assistant, said in a letter interview. “Much of her writing is pure gossip, with no actual fact-checking. As for my portrayal, I really don’t give it any credence. It’s just someone else’s opinion and I’ve never put my self-worth at the mercy of others. I do believe she would be better suited working for U.S. Weekly or Star Magazine (than the Washington Post). And I often times found her provocative portrayal (of Bundick) laughable.”

Bundick said Hesse was “grasping at straws, trying to write this story (after the majority of my family and friends refused all her attempts at interviews. She should have checked her sources and facts before printing this book. One of her main sources is a prescription drug abuser who has made several false accusations against others. I believe she should have checked for credibility first. Lots of people try to jump on the bandwagon and get five minutes of fame,” she said.

Bundick said, “I think I would have spoken about the beauty of the Shore. The almost back-in-time feel of it, which is why most of us love it.”

Hesse described a different place. One of economic downfall and despair. Both descriptions can be accurate.

“The only interview I did with Hesse was when I was at Eastern Shore Regional Jail (ESRJ),” Bundick said. “But when I saw the article and all the false statements she printed ... this among a few other things, made me realize Hesse was after sensationalism, not truth, not actual facts.”

“Like for instance, I had county deputies serve a ‘no trespass’ on a certain person approximately two years before this case,” Bundick added. “I didn’t even speak to this person much less make some statements about arsons,” the inmate at Fluvanna Correction Center in Troy, Va., continued.

“She (Hesse) would show up at (the) jail after that first interview (and) try to see me and write me, tried to get me to call her,” Bundick said. “Finally, I had to inform jail staff and Sheriff (David) Doughty, I wished no contact with her. She was sent papers at home and at work notifying her to not contact me again ... She wasn’t interested in truth ... I felt her to be rather stalkerish.”

Doughty said there were no visits recorded of Hesse visiting Bundick at ESRJ. A story by Hesse about the arsons appeared in the Washington Post on April 9, 2014. It noted there was a “lengthy interview from the Eastern Shore Regional Jail” with Bundick.

“I also find it ironic after the fact that Charles Smith was a suspect and why these people never came forth,” Bundick wrote. She referred to a section of the book in which Shannon Bridges, a Tasley firefighter, talks about Smith.

Bridges relayed a night the Tasley fire department responded to a call, and while passing Smith’s Tasley auto body garage in the engine, Bridges spotted Smith in his truck in front of the business. When they returned, she saw Smith again.

Hesse wrote, “It seemed explainable to Shannon — maybe he had a big job and was working late. But something about the situation made her turn to Richie (her brother) and joke, ‘What if Charlie was the arsonist?’”

Smith, 42, appreciated the book more than Bundick.

“I believe the book was well written,” said Smith. “But, I also believe there are a lot of false truths in the book. The writer did the best she could with the information she could get.”

“Have you ever written your own account of what happened?” he was asked. “I’ve started to a few different times, but decided, for now, to leave it alone and try to just move on with my life.”

“I didn’t have a hard time getting the book,” he continued. “The author ordered it from Amazon and had it mailed straight to me. Yes, there are restrictions on what we can read. No nudity or gang-related stuff. There are more restrictions, but I have no clue what they are.”

Regarding other things in prison life, Smith said, “There are a lot of other restrictions. We are only allowed (a) two-and-a-half-page letter, front and back, sent to us. They make copies of it and destroy the letter or photos we get. We now wear jumpsuits to visit instead of our state blues. We are only outside when they have enough guards on duty, which isn’t very often. We have to lock down when told. There are just too many restrictions to tell about.”

Hesse wrote in her book about another publication, ‘Burned,’ which is attributed to author Z. Jasmine BelFord. According to the author notes, BelFord is “quite familiar with the small rural community” - Accalake County - where the serial arsons took place. “The author,” continue the notes, “has (an) ... inside track to the heart, mind and soul of Sonya Booneswick, who happens to be the main character. ... BelFord walked step-by-step, side-by-side with the accused. ... This is the real story, straight from the heart.”

Bundick has denied writing her own account of the incidents and trials. She was specifically told by the court that she could not profit from doing so.

Smith is scheduled to be released from Greensville Correctional Center in Jarratt, Va., in 2026. He pleaded guilty to setting 67 fires and conspiring to commit arson. Bundick is not set for release until 2028.

Next week will conclude the interviews with Bundick and Smith.

SMITH SAYS HE ‘PROBABLY WILL NOT’ RETURN TO SHORE AFTER PRISON

By Linda Cicoira

Notorious arsonist Charles Robert Smith III will probably not return home when he gets released from prison in 2026, he told the Eastern Shore Post in an exclusive interview last week.

Smith, also known as Charlie Applegate, 42, a former firefighter from Tasley, is in the Greensville Correctional Center in Jarratt, Va., serving time for deliberately setting 67 fires and conspiracy to commit arson in a spree that terrorized Accomack County between October 2012 and March 2013.

“I do miss the Eastern Shore,” he answered to written questions that were delivered at press time Thursday, Dec. 8. “I grew up there and there’s a lot of really good people there. I probably will not return. I am not sure I’d be welcome back, so I feel it better to stay away.” Smith is scheduled to get out on Jan. 9, 2026.

“I am no longer in love with Tonya” Bundick, he said of his former fiancée and co-defendant in the fires. She was also convicted of committing the arsons but has contended her innocence despite evidence that the two were arrested just after police saw him setting the blaze on Airport Drive in Melfa in March of 2013. A van dropped him off and picked him up. She was driving.

“I do wish her luck,” he continued. “I don’t believe we are friends. We don’t communicate at all.”

In an interview of Bundick for the Post, the woman said she had not talked to Smith since December 2013 just after being indicted on more than 65 counts of arson.

“I don’t regret confessing,” Smith wrote. “I didn’t like testifying either but sometimes you have to, especially when the truth needs to be told. As we all know, there are three sides to every story. Her side, my side and the truth. My testimony was to ensure that the truth was told.”

Smith was much more talkative when he confessed to Accomack Sheriff Todd Godwin and Special Agent Robert F. Barnes Jr. of the state police. In recordings, Smith told them the spree started with revenge graffiti that he and Bundick spray-painted across roads, signs and buildings in the area. Those scrawls escalated to the fires.

He pleaded guilty to 68 charges and confessed he burned buildings to please Bundick so she would stay with him despite that he was impotent. He said the fires improved her bad moods but did not change his sexual capability. He claimed Bundick set the first fires and chose the targets when he took over.

"I'm spending my time trying to better myself by going to school," Smith said. He didn't specify what trade he is studying. "I also read a lot, draw and work out. I lift weights a lot and do cardio workouts."

His prison job is cleaning "the day room, where our cells are ... I also do a lot of extra work to help pass the time because I enjoy working ... I have made friends in here. There are a lot of good people who made mistakes ... Although I stay away from inmates who have hurt children and sex offenders."

Smith's crimes didn't physically hurt anyone. But the potential was there.

"I don't get many visitors since coming to prison," he said. "People have lives to live. So, I don't expect visits. I hear from some, but not a lot, but I put myself here." Smith said he is also "in treatment" but did not elaborate.

Regarding the graffiti, Smith said, "There is nothing for me to say about them."

Those writings made disparaging remarks about a couple of Bundick's friends. Smith told authorities they "were constantly talking ... behind my back. Putting me down and telling how no count I was" to Bundick. "Ironically, they're the ones who set me up with her," he said.

Bundick and Smith were never charged with any crimes related to the graffiti.

"He didn't like the closeness I had with them," she said. "There were several incidents where he felt insecure. I think (he) acted with someone or participated or even did it solo ... He could be very vindictive."

Bundick said Smith burned some places for revenge. She used Mallards, a former restaurant, as an example. Smith admitted he torched it because the owner owed his Mom money.

Smith said he "didn't know the judge or prosecutor before" the arsons except when he was convicted of previous crimes. Judge Glen Tyler convicted Smith in 1994 of 24 counts of forgery. Smith got three years for each offense to run concurrently with all but time served suspended. It was unclear how long Smith actually spent in jail before violating probation by testing positive for cocaine use. Tyler revoked his probation. The prosecutor was former Commonwealth's Attorney Gary Agar, who also handled the arson cases.

"There is a lot I would do differently," Smith said. "I would have been a better father, a better family man and a better friend. I regret what I've done each and every day," Smith said beginning and ending the interview with apologies. "I let my family and friends down. I also let the community down ... If anyone learns anything from my mistakes, I hope it is not to break the law ... I'd like to tell my family, friends, community, firefighters, officers and the victims of my crime, I'm sorry for my actions ... if you want an 'I'm sorry' letter, I'm willing to write them to my victims. If you want to just say hi or tell me off, that's fine also."

"And if you're in love, make sure they love you back just as much as you love them," Smith wrote.

Smith provided his mailing address for inclusion in this story. The Post declined that request.

Murray Recognized at 4-H Conference

Christina Murray, extension agent with Virginia Cooperative Extension (VCE), was honored with the National Achievement of Service Award presented by the National Association of Extension 4-H Agents (NAE4-HA). Murray was among approximately 1,500 4-H youth development professionals from across the nation to participate in the association's 70th annual conference in November in Indiana.

Each year, NAE4-HA recognizes members for their 4-H/extension work by presenting awards for outstanding accomplishments in achievement, leadership, service and communication. The award recognizes 4-H youth development professionals that have been creative and innovative in programming efforts with demonstrated results and contributions to the profession. Virginia selects two agents every year for the award. Murray has served as the 4-H agent in Northampton County for six years. She also serves on the National 4-H Agricultural Literacy Task Force and as past district director of the Virginia Association 4-H Extension Agents.

Eastern Shore Volunteers Celebrate Gift Collection for Children in Need

Volunteers from the Eastern Shore are celebrating the collection of 4,655 gift-filled shoeboxes that will remind children around the world they are loved and not forgotten.

Many Shore families, individuals, churches, and organizations participated in the Samaritan's Purse project, Operation Christmas Child, this year. For many of these children, the shoebox gift will be the first gift they ever receive. The most collected this year from one organization was 505 shoeboxes from Island Baptist Church, of Chincoteague.

Although collections have finished for the season, there is still time to pack a shoebox gift online for children affected by war, disease, disaster, poverty and famine. Those who prefer the convenience of online shopping can browse samaritanaspurse.org/buildonline to select gifts matched to a child's specific age and gender, then finish packing the virtual shoebox by adding a photo and personal note of encouragement. They can also donate $9 per shoebox gift online

Another way to share the gift of giving is by purchasing a $25 gift card for a family member or friend so they can join in the excitement of Operation Christmas Child by packing a shoebox online. These shoeboxes—filled with school supplies, hygiene items, and fun toys—are delivered to children in some of the hardest-to-reach countries around the world.

For more information on how to participate in Operation Christmas Child or to view gift suggestions, call 410-772-7360 or visit samaritanaspurse.org/occ.

When I first met Nancy-Jo Revell, her last name was Lazenby and we were taking eighth grade home economics together. It's hard to believe that was 45 years ago. Not even cancer changed her bright smile or the fact that inside, we still thought we were teenagers.

We talked about turning 60 in 2018. She was a month older than I. But Monday, the disease took her away. Another Christmas with her dear children would have been nice. She battled it hard for several years, continuing to work at the Accomack Circuit Court Clerk's office while she took treatments, and managing to deal with the toll it took on her body.

When I left the Eastern Shore to live in the Shenandoah Valley for 20 years, Pearl Lilliston was still working at the clerk's office. She came to my wedding in 1989, a year after I left the area. Clerk Sammy Cooper officiated. It was probably Pearl's 50th year there. She was my customer when I worked at the Acme Market in Onley and always bought canned salmon for her many cats. Bossy and Wonderful. I couldn't tell you what she liked for supper.

Nancy Jo was in Northern Accomack being a Soroptimist and raising two babies at that time. I don't know where she was working then. Our paths didn't cross often because she went to Atlantic High School and I went to Central.

When I returned to the Shore to cover news for the Post, there was Nancy-Jo taking care of business in the same clerk's office — working and caring for Pearl, who by then had retired for the second or third time. Things are all connected on the Shore.

I remember the day I walked into that office and saw Nancy-Jo after nearly three decades. We quickly went back to those early school times, talking about the cute boys, our acquaintances and what had happened since. She was a true friend who stepped up to help me with my divorce. Yes, I was married by the group who helped me get a divorce. She offered a sympathetic ear, shared pictures of her granddaughter and her children, and let me video her - not all on the same day. I'm a frequent visitor there.

Nancy-Jo was a detail person. She decided to take over the doll house initially meant for her daughter and made a tiny version of the Post edition that featured her parents' anniversary on the cover. It was on top of a stack of magazines. She also shrunk a painting I made and put that on the wall of a bedroom. I have no idea how she did that. Patience is not my virtue. But it was hers.

She was a poster woman for the local cancer center. She loved that she could go close to home for treatment. She sure was pretty in those photos which ran in advertisements in the Post.

I'm missing you, Nancy-Jo. You are my fifth friend to die this year. Hold a spot for me up there. We're bound to have a party someday. There were a few more things we have to talk about.

Murray Offbase on Broadband

Dear Editor:

In the Dec. 1 article regarding the leadership and operation of the Broadband Authority (ESVBA), Supervisor Murray is in error on several points. To paraphrase the late great senator from New York, Daniel Patrick Moynihan: Murray is entitled to his own opinions regarding broadband, but not his own set of facts!

First, Murray states the ESVBA is 100 percent funded by the local taxpayers. That is not correct. The authority's operation and its 50 percent+ expansion since the founding grants has been and is supported solely by its users. Not even all the ratepayers are local as a substantial portion of its revenue is paid by entities off the Shore. The $266,000 of ESVBA's initial funding provided by local county taxpayers has been fully repaid to the counties. The rest of the initial funding was from state and federal grants—so to that extent local taxpayers did contribute.

Second, Murray called citizen board members "lifetime appointments, if they want." The citizen members are appointed by written agreement binding both counties' boards of supervisors. Citizen members are appointed for specific three-year terms. The only reason a member couldn't or wouldn't be changed, if desired, would be failure of the two boards to agree on a replacement. In such case, the member with an expiring term continues to serve until replaced. The two boards have, so far, failed to agree on replacements. Murray's apparent attempts to seize effective control of the board may have a lot to do with the failure of bi-county agreement.

Third, Murray states: "They're not chartered to be the last mile, they're chartered to be the backbone, the middle mile." Perhaps Murray needs to read the enabling "Wireless Service Authorities Act" before making such an uninformed assertion. The counties' founding resolutions also specifically call out serving local businesses and the public.

Finally, the adopted business plan required and approved by the federal and state grantors lays out the goals and methods the authority will use in expanding and serving customers.

Murray may prefer private carriers provide the only connectivity to small businesses and residences, but that is not the responsibility, nor the charter, of the ESVBA. According to public opinions expressed at the recent open meetings on the strategic plan, limiting ESVBA is not even the prevailing opinion on the Shore. Most citizens just want fast reliable internet service as quickly as they can get it. This author thinks they have waited long enough!

Who Is This Jolly Man?

Dear Editor:

Some evidence exists that Santa may have an eating and drinking disorder. He is described as one with a large soft belly and a big red nose. These anatomical features are indicative of someone who eats and drinks to excess. Rudolph, one of Santa's reindeer, also has a nose so red it glows. Could Santa and Rudolph be drinking buddies? Then consider the proposition that reindeer can fly. Santa has eight, well nine, including Rudolph. Fantasy aside, this can be considered as obsessive-compulsive behavior.

The testimony also states that Santa has a team of elves that makes toys and gifts for boys and girls worldwide. Are they paid for their labor? In any case, Santa loads said gifts and toys and delivers them at the last minute while taking all the credit. This is classic alcoholic behavior. Finally, any policeman receiving a dispatch describing "a male wearing a red suit, jumping from housetop to housetop, yelling, "Ho, Ho, Ho!" in the middle of the night, will likely surmise that it's probably some drunk.

However, if Santa is in fact one "Nickolas," reputed to be a saint, working in the hearts of men, under the authority of Jesus, the anointed one, to promote peace and goodwill to men in honor of Jesus' birthday, then this premise is null and void.

Have a merry Christmas and a happy new year!
