PUBLIC GETS ITS SAY WITH DEQ ON CHICKEN HOUSE PERMITS

By Linda Cicoira

It started with low lighting and jazz music reminiscent of a candlelight dinner for two.

But it soon broke into a civilized fight between several forces surrounding the influx of huge poultry houses infiltrating Accomack County — the poultry farmers, the aquaculturists, the conservationists and the regular folks just trying to get by, who have been scared by the whole controversy.

About 150 people gathered for a public hearing Tuesday night at Nantux High School conducted by the state Water Control Board and Department of Environmental Quality (DEQ). The topic was permits ordered by the federal Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) for three poultry-growing operations in northern Accomack County because “of their potential to discharge contaminated stormwater” from chicken manure and litter.

“These important constituencies must be balanced against the fundamental right of our community to have clean water and clean air, to enjoy the benefits of living in this incredible place we all call home,” said Arthur Upshur, a Northampton farmer and president of CBES (Citizens for a Better Eastern Shore), a group 1,400 strong. “The build-out of new poultry houses is straining the ability of these operations to co-exist with their surrounding communities and with this fragile ecosystem. We need to establish a regulatory framework now — not years from now. If you get this wrong, other important economic sectors such as tourism and aquaculture could be lost.” He urged the board to consider the interaction between air quality and water quality using scientific rigor, while maintaining enough flexibility for the industry to operate successfully.

The draft permits allow discharge of manure, litter and wastewater from the production areas when there is a 25-year storm; monitored discharge of stormwater that has been in contact with manure, litter and wastewater; and agricultural stormwater from land application. It requires visual inspection of water samples during 25-year storms, but provides exemptions if weather conditions would jeopardize the safety of those taking the samples. They also call for daily inspections of water lines and weekly inspections of waste storage and treatment structures, annual waste monitoring, and soil monitoring every three years.

Many speakers raised concerns about water usage and odor which were not subjects of the DEQ permits. Others were afraid all growers would want DEQ to issue them permits.

Among the topics raised by those addressing the permit specifically was how to capture possible windborne ammonia and particulate contaminants expelled by chicken house fans in the discharge permits.

While not a neighbor of the draft permit facilities, Andrew Bolster, who is an organic farmer from Melfa, said soon 24 chicken houses will be close to his house. With the 12 already in operation, debris causes his children’s soccer cleats to turn black when they play in the yard. “I took pictures today in a 30 mph wind and snow; the amount of dust that was coming out of those fans was very visible.”

Jay Ford, of Eastern Shorekeeper, noted one house emits 4,407 pounds of ammonia a day. “There’s a lot of talk about the bay getting cleaner and we’re excited about that.” He warned increases from poultry houses could set things back.

“I’m not a corporation; I’m a grower,” said poultry farmer Mark McCready. He complained pollution was caused by sludge from the Baltimore Harbor that was dumped on the marsh. “Farmers are not your enemy. If you ate dinner tonight, thank me. I’m as much of an environmentalist as you are, folks.” McCready said the ammonia is untraceable. The data you’re putting out there is totally false. Humidity is what you see coming out of the vents ... I want our Bay clean. I want our water clean. We need good science. We need good information.” He said he uses buf-

Northampton Reviews Finances Headed Into Budget Preparation

By Stefanie Jackson

Northampton Director of Finance John Chandler projects county revenues will increase by $366,306 in fiscal year 2019, compared to estimated revenues in the fiscal year 2018 adopted budget. Total revenues of $27,193,130 are expected in FY 2019, close to the actual total of $27,422,633 collected in FY 2017.

Real estate taxes are the largest source of revenue for Northampton County, comprising approximately 52 percent of its total revenues. Real estate taxes of $14,405,665 are expected in FY 2019, an increase of $365,457. Northampton's real estate tax rate is 83 cents per $100, compared to Accomack's rate of 61 cents per $100.

Northampton real estate values are reassessed every two years, and 2018 is a reassessment year. In accordance with Virginia code, a formula is used to determine the real estate tax rate, ensuring the county receives at least the same amount of real estate tax as the previous year. As part of the calculation, one percent was added to the amount of real estate tax received in 2017. That figure, $16,656,345, was divided by the total value of real estate assessed in 2018 (not counting new construction) — $2,005,983,464 — and multiplied by $100 to determine a real estate tax rate of 83 cents per $100, the same as the current rate. However, this rate is subject to change after Northampton supervisors review FY 2019 expenses.

Personal property taxes for FY 2019 are estimated at $2,282,488, an increase of $211,431. The value of personal property increased from $24 million to $28 million, Chandler said.

Northampton's personal property tax rate is $3.90 per $100, compared to Accomack's rate of $3.72 per $100.

Northampton's FY 2019 projected revenues from general property taxes — real estate and personal property taxes combined — total $18,416,876, an increase of $635,743. This figure is larger than the total projected revenue increase of $366,306 from all sources. Some revenues are expected to decline in FY 2019, such as sales taxes, recreation and harbor fees, and other taxes and fees.

Northampton sales and use taxes are expected to generate $1,241,029 in county revenue in FY 2019. While this figure represents a decline of $159,276, Chandler noted there has been sustained growth in sales tax revenues during tourism shoulder seasons. For the month of November, sales taxes totaled $76,747 in FY 2015, but rose 34.5 percent to $103,248 in FY 2016, and increased to $107,008 and $109,660 in FY 2017 and FY 2018, respectively. The month of December has seen a similar trend, with $79,854 in sales taxes in FY 2015, $91,218 in FY 2016, and $95,970 and $100,705 in FY 2017 and FY 2018, respectively.

Transient occupancy taxes are expected to generate $350,000 in revenue in FY 2019, a $30,000 increase. Chandler attributes the growth to the proliferation of short-term rentals, such as Airbnb, and improvements to Sunset Beach Resort in Cape Charles.

Another $350,000 in FY 2019 revenue is expected from food and beverages taxes, a $50,000 projected increase. Supervisor Oliver Bennett asserted that even though some citizens objected to the construction of the new Royal Farms in Kiptopeke, it is now contributing to Northampton's real estate, sales, and food and beverage taxes.

Further suggesting economic growth is the FY 2019 revenue estimates for building permits, $105,000, a $15,000 increase.

Chairman Spencer Murray said supervisors could provide financial relief to farmers by lowering or eliminating the farm equipment tax, as permitted by Virginia law. This tax is expected to produce FY 2019 revenues of $132,902, a $7,630 increase. The current farm equipment tax rate is $1.43 per $100.

ONLEY COMPANY CHIEF SAYS FIRE COMPANY SLOWLY LIQUIDATING ASSETS

By Linda Cicaira

The old Onley firehouse is marked with a warning. “NO TRESPASSING. This Building is Under Surveillance. Unless you are here to work for the Liquidation or have a Set Appointment on the inside of this Building, NO ONE IS ALLOWED.”

The metal structure appears to be vacant. The firefighters and rescue workers haven’t lived there in months. There are no vehicles parked outside.

Last July, Accomack County dissolved the company because it was not providing services. The ambulance needed repair, a dispute with a former chief caused the Operational Medical Director (OMD) to resign and the fire engine had no tags or title because it was purchased from New York, where those things are not required.

All hope of rekindling the unit has disappeared. The members planned to fight for more time to get reorganized but gave up when the supervisors took action.

Onley Volunteer Fire & Rescue Company’s president, Royal Governor, says he is hanging on to finish his responsibility of office by liquidating the assets. Anything left over will be given to another nonprofit organization. He hasn’t decided which one yet but he said any group in the nation can be chosen. He is leaning towards an educational and scientific group or one that promotes fire safety.

Last week, an ambulance, the chief’s car and a heavy rescue truck were picked up by the finance company, at Governor’s request, and will be sold to pay off the debt on them. Governor said there was $21,000 owed on the ambulance and car. He is hoping the sale would be enough to persuade the finance company to write the rest off.

About $68,000 is owed for the heavy rescue truck, which is valued at about $120,000. The truck is 26 years old. “They might write it off” as well, he said.

Governor lives in Virginia Beach but comes back to the Eastern Shore for appointments in the sale of company items. There are bunk beds, dressers, radios, helmets, boots and turnout gear that need to be sold. Governor expects to have a commercial real estate company advertise the building and grounds soon.

A few offers have been made, Governor said. But he was hoping the town would buy the building instead of spending much more for a new town hall and police station. The president said the fire hall and land is valued at $289,000.

“There’s a lot of potential with this building,” he said. “Only 500 people live in ... Onley, why spend $800,000 for a town office?” he rhetorically asked. “People worry about the wrong things.”

Governor said it is costly for him to ride back and forth across the bridge-tunnel but “Nobody wants to take over. It’s okay. By law, the registered agent is in charge of all this stuff.”

Governor said an inquiry about how to proceed was requested from an attorney but at $1,400 an hour, it was too costly. “That’s when I gave up – when I heard that. If you don’t have the citizens backing you up,” he said, there was also no point in trying. Governor said he has opened a financial business and is moving forward with his life.

He is keeping receipts from sales that he will hand over to a local accountant for tax purposes. An extension was given to the company for filing.

“People talking about Onley Fire Department is irrelevant right now,” Governor said. “Unless they are going to have some bright ideas to open it back up, they need to move on with something for their future, not a fire department that is closed.”

Also among the reasons cited by supervisors for closing the station were: a member was convicted in 2014 of embezzling money from the company, there was another conviction of a member who set a truck ablaze in 2016, and a former chief’s report said the company would close in early 2017. The hospital’s move to Onley earlier this year also has an impact on the need for service in the area.

Anyone interested in purchasing items can call Governor at 202-669-4881.

Trooper Charged With Forged Tickets Pleads Guilty To Lesser Charges

By Linda Cicoira

Johnny Godwin, the former senior Virginia trooper charged with six felony counts of forging tickets in November 2016, pleaded guilty Friday in Accomack Circuit Court to three amended charges of falsifying records, which are misdemeanors.

He was given suspended 12-month terms in jail for each of the three charges and ordered to do 100 hours of community service during the two years he is on good behavior.

Godwin was banned by the court from ever holding another position of public trust.

Judge Stephen Mahan's actions were made in accordance with a plea bargain. Because local officials worked with Godwin, they removed themselves from the case. Judge W. Revell Lewis and Commonwealth's Attorney Spencer Morgan both asked that others take over. The case was handled by the Prince William County Commonwealth's Attorney Paul B. Ebert. Mahan, who is in the local circuit, was chosen to preside over the case by Chief Judge William R. O'Brien.

Godwin apologized to the court.

"I think it's a good disposition in this case," Ebert said. "He had a good record. He succumbed to pressure. He made a very, very poor choice. There are no other blemishes." He was a mentor for other troopers and was in charge of the crash team.

Had Godwin's case gone to trial, witnesses would have testified that Godwin turned in tickets to the state that were never filed in the district court. The tickets in question involved ones dated Nov. 25, 2016, in the name of Kevin Cooper Leslie, and on Nov. 26, 2016, for Mitra Elizabeth English and Larry Gordon Marsh II.

English would have said she had moved from her address four years earlier and had sold the vehicle. Larry Marsh was issued a summons for an accident, but not charged with failure to wear a seatbelt or not having a operator's license in his possession. The license plates from Leslie's vehicle were removed in 2014 and the car has been in a garage ever since because it is in need of repair.

Godwin worked as a trooper for about 20 years. He was assigned to the Eastern Shore in 1999. When off duty, Godwin once grabbed an unattended toddler off Lankford Highway before the child could get struck by a passing vehicle.

Several officers, who did not want to be identified, said troopers are under a lot of pressure to make quotas and that Godwin was working on being promoted to sergeant.

"Without a doubt, Senior Trooper Godwin's fast thinking and reaction saved this child's life," 1st Sgt. Ben E. Jeffrey Jones wrote in a letter about the former officer. "His actions of stopping his vehicle to block traffic and running into oncoming traffic to save the child put his own life in imminent danger."

Fatal Fire Claims Life of Bloxom Man

By Linda Cicoira

A blaze battled by five volunteer fire companies Monday night took the life of a Bloxom man. The cause has not yet been determined but no foul play is suspected. Because the fire had a fatality, the State Police Bureau of Criminal Investigation was asked to investigate.

Donald (Bo) Wayne Taylor, 61, of T & E Trailer Park on the 2500 block of Wayne Drive, is believed to have died from smoke inhalation, according to a preliminary investigation. Details of an autopsy have not yet been released.

Chief Jody Bagwell of Bloxom Volunteer Fire Company said the incident was called in by neighbors at about 8:30 p.m. "We had a quick knock down," he said. "Probably about 40 percent was gutted but still standing." Bagwell said the victim lived at the trailer and was the only person there.

In addition to Bloxom, fire companies from Parksley, Tasley, Atlantic and Onancock responded. The structure was marked as being under control around 9 p.m.

Northampton Class of 2018 On Fast Track to Graduation

By Stefanie Jackson

Northampton High School Principal Mike Myers indicated to the school board Jan. 25 that the class of 2018 is on the fast track to graduation compared to last year's graduating class. Only 13 of 114 seniors still need to pass a Career and Technical Education course, compared to more than 40 students who had not yet fulfilled their CTE graduation requirements by this time last year. Only three students currently lack the required writing credits.

Myers reviewed the high school's SOL passing rates from 2016-2017: English, 79 percent; math, 73 percent, history, 75 percent; and science, 83 percent. The graduation rate was 84 percent. The school's SOL passing rate goals for 2017-2018 are: English, 80 percent; math, 80 percent; history, 80 percent; and science, 85 percent. The target graduation rate is 90 percent.

One strategy used to attain these goals is teaching "essentials" classes, targeting SOL prep in specific subject areas and giving students what Superintendent Eddie Lawrence called a "double dose" of instruction where they need it most - for example, in writing or algebra. A similar strategy is "double blocking" classes, in which the same class is taught during two blocks instead of one, though not scheduled back-to-back. Other efforts include after-school programs, short-term remediation, and teacher and administrator cohort committees.

Myers reported attendance has trended upward throughout the first four months of the school year, and he expects NHS to attain its goal of a 90 percent attendance rate this year. In 2016-2017, according to the Virginia Department of Education, 72 percent of NHS students missed 18 or fewer instructional days, or ten percent or less of the school year. Students who miss more than 18 days or ten percent of the school year are considered "chronically absent" by VDOE.

Myers also believes the high school climate has improved since he became the principal in 2014, noting there has been only one fight within the student body this school year.

John Coker, Northampton's new District 1 supervisor, spoke "as a citizen" during the public comment period of the school board's Jan. 25 meeting. He said he "knocked on 500 doors" during his campaign, and wanted the school board to know that among many Northampton citizens, the "impression is the schools are not good" and "everybody in the county is talking about it."

Coker relayed the opposing viewpoint of Andy Teeling, a member of the Northampton County Education Foundation, who says the school district is doing well. Coker said he didn't know if the larger issue with schools was SOL scores or communication, but added, "if it's a perception problem, let's deal with it."

He was concerned with a county budget amendment of $597,103 submitted to supervisors Jan. 9 by Director of Finance John Chandler, on behalf of Northampton Schools Chief Financial Officer Brook Thomas, who had been absent. A letter from Thomas to the county's accounting department indicated the need to roll over remaining federal awards to Northampton Schools into the county's fiscal year 2018 budget, after all fiscal year 2017 reimbursements had been processed. The federal grants may be spent within 27 months of the date they were awarded. The letter stated the amount to be rolled over included Title I, II, III and VI funds for rural and low income schools, special education, migrant children, and other programs, but supervisors wanted to know exactly how the funds would be allocated.

Thomas informed Coker on Jan. 25 of her intent to address the issue before supervisors in February, but she was willing to meet with Coker anytime to discuss his financial concerns for the school district.

Liz Jones, of the education foundation, reported the foundation raised nearly $11,000 in 2017 to support Northampton public school classrooms, teachers, and students.

Grand Jury Indicts 14

Fourteen men and women were indicted Monday by a Northampton Grand Jury on crimes including abduction and trying to make intimate images of a minor.

Arthur Ricky Zimmerman, 57, a homeless man who was living in a tent near Onley, was indicted on a count of attempting to capture an image of a minor on Dec. 16, 2017. A search warrant filed in Accomack Circuit Court stated that Zimmerman positioned a smart phone “beneath or between the legs” of a child while visiting a residence in Northampton.

Zimmerman was arrested two days later. He is being held without bail.

Shauntea Arnez Giddens, 39, of Bayford Road in Exmore, was indicted on counts of breaking into of a building belonging to Gordon Campbell of Nassawadox, and stealing property valued at $200 or more on March 4, 2017. Deputy Barry Randall of the Northampton County Sheriff’s Office (NCSO) investigated.

Edward Moore, 54, of Sunnyside Road in Cape Charles, was indicted on five counts of uttering bad checks between Oct. 1 and 18, 2017. The checks totaled more than $1,000. Randall investigated.

Hakeem Lamarr Johnson, 23, of Windsor Court in Newport News, was indicted on a count of selling between a half-ounce and five pounds of marijuana on Nov. 3, 2017. Officer Matthew Boggs of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel (CBBT) Police Department pulled Johnson over because he was allegedly “riding the white line on the shoulder of the road.” Boggs smelled marijuana and Johnson admitted to having “just a couple pills” and “like three ounces” of marijuana. Secured bond was set at $3,500.

Tomar Martez Jones, 28, of Virginia Avenue in Exmore, was indicted on a count of burglary with intent to commit another crime involving his child’s mother, Wykia James, of Weirwood, on Nov. 7, 2017.

James complained that Jones “came into her house and grabbed her around the throat while she was sitting on the sofa. ... He said he would kill her if he ever found out that she was having sex with another man. He tried to pull her pants down but she was able to stop him. She ran outside and Tomar ran after her pulling her bra off from behind, breaking the bra.” She flagged down a vehicle and authorities were notified. Jones was arrested the same day. Sgt. Chad Kellam of the NCSO investigated.

Keyon Antonio Kellam, 27, of Cemetery Road in Exmore, was indicted on a count for making a false statement on a federal firearm transaction record on March 14, 2017. Kellam was arrested Nov. 3, 2017. Unsecured bond was set at $2,500. Trooper Ryan Dougherty investigated.

Malissa Quintina Mason, 48, of Nelsonia Road in Bloxom, was indicted on a count of credit card theft on Nov. 26, 2017. The court record said she confessed to the crime and is remorseful. She told authorities she is battling an ongoing drug problem and was using when the incident occurred. Mason was arrested Nov. 29. Secured bond was set at $1,000. Cpl. Carlos Moyano of the NCSO investigated.

Angel L. Robles-Robinson, 39, of Chestnut Place in Cambridge, Md., was indicted on a count of possession of cocaine on July 23, 2017. Robinson was going to see relatives in Hampton Roads. The woman said she had no money to pay the CBBT toll. She was advised by Officer Ernest Hall to bring her driver’s license inside the bridge-tunnel office to fill out “a promise to pay form.” Her license was found to be suspended. Two passengers also did not have driver’s licenses. When Hall went to the vehicle to talk to the passengers, he smelled marijuana. A search was made and cocaine was found. Unsecured bail was set at $5,000.

Shane Michael Rooney, 26, of Victory Drive in Barto, Pa., was indicted on a count of possession of a controlled substance on Sept. 23, 2017. On a checklist for bail, evidence was shown as “weak.” Sgt. Adam Zieger, of Exmore Police Department, investigated. Secured bond was set at $1,000.

Raymond Antonio Savage, 44, of Shields Bridge Road in Belle Haven, was indicted on a count of making a false statement regarding criminal history he put on a consent form on July 17, 2017. He was arrested Nov. 29. Trooper Zachary Beaver investigated. Bail was set at $1,000 secured.

Iquan Jerrell Smith, 22, of Clearbrook Road in Newport News, was indicted on a count of possession with intent to distribute between a half-ounce and five pounds of marijuana on Nov. 3. Boggs of the CBBT Police Department investigated. The bail checklist stated he confessed. Bail was set at $2,500.

Joseph Didier West, 29, of Belle Haven Road in Exmore, was indicted on a count of selling cocaine and more than a half-ounce but less than five pounds of marijuana on July 2, 2017. Deputy William Lewis of the NCSO investigated. West is being held without bond. The arrest was made after Lewis was called to Morley’s Wharf to investigate a strong odor of marijuana.

Larry Wayne Woods Jr., 36, of Ray Place in Virginia Beach, was indicted on a count of abducting his estranged wife, Megan Woods, outside Sting-Rays in Capeville on Aug. 26, 2017.

According to the court file, the two, who share custody of their daughter, agreed to meet at Royal Farms in Townsend so the defendant could deliver the child to her mother. The parents had a disagreement and the defendant took the child and left. A short time later, they agreed to meet at Sting-Ray’s. The mother went to get the girl out of the van, he pushed her into the vehicle, “closed the door and sped off very quickly out of the parking lot. Megan opened the door and jumped out. She rolled into the parking lot.” Larry Woods then put the girl into the car seat of the vehicle the mother was driving and left. Megan Woods had abrasions on her chest, back and hand, the record stated. Larry Woods was found competent to stand trial in October. Deputy Roger Pike of the NCSO investigated.

Bernard Wendell Wynder, 57, of Cheriton Crossroads in Cheriton, was indicted on a count of failing to register as a violent sex offender on Sept 22, 2017. He is being held without bond and has been convicted twice before of failing to register. Trooper Terry Albright investigated. Secured bond was set at $5,000. Wynder was arrested in October.

Barricaded Man Sentenced

A former New Church fire chief was ordered to serve a month in jail for threatening to kill police officers last November.

Accomack deputies were called to the home of Daniel C. Outten, 48, of Sign Post Road, for a domestic incident between him and his wife, according to a search warrant. When Accomack deputies arrived at the scene, he barricaded himself in a back bedroom and threatened to kill himself.

At some point, a state police tactical team was called because Outten threatened to kill any officer that entered his residence. He had firearms, the warrant stated. After several hours, Outten gave up.

He pleaded not guilty and was convicted of a count of obstruction of justice, which is a misdemeanor. Another identical charge was dismissed. Outten was sentenced to seven months in jail with six months suspended. He was also fined $1,000. The incident occurred on Nov. 7, 2017.

17-Year-Old Convicted Of Assaulting Officers

A 17-year-old Painter resident was tried as an adult in Accomack Circuit Court and convicted of six counts of assault and battery of police officers. Five other charges of offenses involving officers that were made against Shane Lee Williams were not prosecuted.

Deputies Coty Hodgson and Mike McCready of ACSO were serving a detention order on Williams when he “began hitting his head on the outside of his house.” The deputies took him to the back of the home to speak to his mother. When they reached the patrol car, he “began kicking the windows and doors.” McCready was kicked in the chest when they were putting leg shackles on him, court records stated.

“As they were attempting to put him back in the car,” he “spit on both deputies.” Williams also is accused of head-butting McCready in the face. He “continued to be physically aggressive ... and was routinely kicking the window, door, and separation portion of ... patrol vehicle.” When they got to the sheriff’s office, the suspect also threatened all the workers and their families.

Williams was indicted on counts of assault and battery of Deputies McCready, Hodgson and Spencer Rose and Shane Henning; Ann Webb of probation; Officer George Bennett of the Onley Police Department; and Investigator Patterson.

In another case, Brian Alexander Domenico Lentz, 28, of Evergreen Drive in New Church, was sentenced to five years in prison with all but five days suspended for embezzling money from the Dollar General Store on Chincoteague between July 5 and 24, 2016. Sgt. T. Greenley of Chincoteague Police Department (CPD) investigated. Lentz was ordered to show up within the next 30 days to serve his time.

Devan Lamar Hinmon, 28, of Lankford Highway in Mappsville, was convicted of one count of distributing heroin on Sept. 22, 2016. Another charge was not prosecuted. A presentence report was ordered.

Brandon Scott Mulder, 24, of Ferdinand Street in Scranton Pa., pleaded guilty to fer strips to keep the ditches clean.

Other suggestions included studying the whole picture instead of one facility at a time (Kitty Croke, Onancock); considering other methods of discharge (Charles Waters, Melfa); and taking into account extreme weather the area has (Miriam Riggs, Onancock).

One of the farms seeking a permit is The Brady Farm on Greta Road in Atlantic, owned by Ryan Lee Brady. It has three broiler houses with a combined capacity of 63,000 birds per flock with 5.5 flocks per year, for a total of 346,500 birds per year and about 433 tons of manure annually. Tyson Foods, Amick Poultry and Mountaire Poultry have been associated with Brady.

Brady spoke at the hearing. A Shore native, he bought the farm so he could hand it down to his daughter. "We spent a lot of money to do the right thing," he said. "More research needs to be done."

A DEQ inspection, in 2015, was made after several citizens complained of smoke and odor. Brady said complaints were due to an incineration method for poultry carcass disposal, according to DEQ documents. Brady's farm has the potential to run off into Assawoman Creek.

Fayyaz Mukhtar, who owns and operates FPNA Farms Inc., is also asking for a permit. His farm has six broiler houses for Perdue, on Neal Parker Road northwest of Oak Hall. Mukhtar's houses contain 28,300 birds each for about 170,000 birds per flock with 5.5 flocks per year, or a total of 935,000 birds. About 1,275 tons of litter will be produced there per year.

The EPA considers the business, which "confines at least 125,000 chickens, ... a large concentrated animal feeding operation ... that is designed, constructed, operated, and maintained in a manner such that a discharge will occur to Bullbeggar Creek," which is a federal waterway.

During the inspection on July 19, 2010, EPA representatives observed poultry houses near drainage ditches, poultry manure on the ground and on the concrete pads and ventilation fans that deposit to ditches and had particulates of dander and manure. The ditches run into Bullbeggar Creek. The notice threatened criminal action.

The third draft permit is for Horsely Poultry Farm LLC, on Farlow Road in New Church, owned by Freddie Holland. "There is runoff from concrete pads/aprons located at the front and rear of each of the six houses and from storm ditching alongside houses. Stormwater discharge collects at the southwest corner of house #6 and would travel through a series of farm ditches before entering the headwaters of Pitts Creek, less than a mile away," records state.

Holland has 198,000 birds per flock with six flocks per year.

Another report stated, "The concrete loadout pads on the farm were generally clean. No residual manure was found anywhere else on the farm. The manure shed located on the back of the farm site contained manure. All manure was under a roof. A small amount of manure at the back entrance to the shed was wet due to ... rainfall. Mr. Holland mentioned that he was looking at purchasing a tractor-mounted broom sweeper to enhance the cleaning of tracked out manure on the concrete pads after use."

Written comments will be received through Feb. 14 and should be sent to Robert Smithson, DEQ-TRO, 5636 Southern Blvd., Virginia Beach, VA 23462 or to robert.smithsonjr@deq.virginia.gov or by calling 757-518-2106.

Sons Help Blind Father Find Sight Solution

By Connie Morrison

At 4 years old, William Weeks was being treated for chickenpox with an antibiotic, when a severe medication reaction — Stevens Johnson syndrome, together with toxic epidermal necrolysis — led to long-term hospitalization. The ordeal left the Exmore man legally blind, able to see only blurs and shadows, and with light sensitivity, for which he wears dark glasses.

Over the years, many medications, surgeries and specialized glasses have been tried to restore some of his vision, without success. It was his sons, 12-year-old Noah and 15-year-old Josh, who found the first adaptation that actually allowed him to see.

His sons had made it their mission to help Weeks. "He (Noah) came into the room and said, 'Dad, I've got it. I have found something that I think is going to help you see.'" Noah told Josh and he watched a YouTube video. Josh immediately went to Weeks and said, "Dad you've got to see this." What they found was eSight.

eSight electronic glasses were named one of the 25 best inventions of 2017 by Time magazine. They consist of a high-definition camera, headset, and remote control. The camera projects a magnified image of what is in front of the wearer onto glass lenses in real time. The remote control allows the wearer to adjust the camera's zoom. The headset resembles those used for virtual reality applications, but for wearers, it is very real.

Weeks was skeptical, thinking perhaps the boys had stumbled upon an infomercial. "I have tried some of the most sophisticated technology out there. None of it has really helped."

But his sons were adamant, so Weeks began his own research. He became serious about eSight when he found it was developed especially for the legally blind. He eventually set up a demonstration at an advanced technology center in Bethesda, Md.

Weeks said the first person he saw with the glasses was the woman running the demonstration. It was a revelation. "I saw the color of her hair. I saw her cheekbones, her facial structure. ... She had lipstick on," he marveled. He considered the possibilities. "I immediately started thinking, 'Just think about the opportunities and doors this could open.' I can think of 100 things I have never been able to do," he said.

He is eager to get his glasses so he can watch his sons in their school activities. "All of a sudden you're able to see what's actually happening. You don't have to put together a picture in your head," he said.

At $9,995, the glasses don't come cheap, and they are not covered by insurance. "They are not considered medical, but assistive devices," said Laura Chau, marketing manager for eSight. "We try to work with people to fundraise or find other ways to pay for them." One way is to help clients set up fundraising pages on their website, complete with videos that allow the public to see their eSight demonstrations.

See William Weeks' eSight demonstration, or contribute, go to www.giving.esighteyewear.com/williamweeks. All donations go directly to eSight to pay for the glasses. eSight does not take any fees for fundraising, nor does Weeks have access to the funds. Videos of other eSight users can be found at <https://www.esighteyewear.com/>

Actors rehearse a scene from “Arsenic and Old Lace.” 2-Story Set Puts New Shine On ‘Old’ Play

By Stefanie Jackson

“Arsenic and Old Lace,” the classic play featuring two spinster sisters who put old gentlemen out of their misery by serving them elderberry wine laced with arsenic and other deadly additives, comes to the Palace Theatre in Cape Charles this weekend.

Written by Joseph Kesselring in 1939, the dark comedy is told from the viewpoint of drama critic Mortimer Brewster, former marriage detractor who has recently become engaged to Elaine Harper, a reveren’s daughter and the girl-next-door from Brewster’s youth. Brewster visits his aunts Abby and Martha at his childhood home to tell them the good news, but becomes embroiled in the family secret of murder and mayhem.

Susan Kovacs, who portrays Abby Brewster, said her favorite thing about the play is “the intrigue and artistry of melding crime and comedy.”

Portraying Martha Brewster, Melinda Blanchard said, “The two-story set, designed and constructed by Peter Helck, is amazing. I want to move into it! It must be seen!”

Bruce Gittenger, who plays Reverend Harper, commented, “As a rookie cast member I have enjoyed getting to know the other cast members and seeing their creative talents at work. The play, of course, is a classic.”

Ted Boelt, appearing as Officer Brophy, said, “It is a pleasure to work with a dedicated cast and crew on a really big production. There is some terrific talent on the Shore, and I hope that folks will enjoy this great show in this handsome theatre!”

Rounding out the cast, in no particular order, are: John Silvestro, David Head, Luke Conroe, Nathaniel Hallack, Amy Hallack, Tristan Denny, Wayne Creed, and George Proto.

Arts Enter, a local nonprofit organization, puts on four to six stage productions at the Palace Theatre each year, as well as dance productions, live music, and movies. The theater is also rented for private functions.

“Arsenic and Old Lace” runs at the Historic Palace Theatre in Cape Charles tonight, Friday, Feb. 2, at 7:30 p.m.; Saturday, Feb. 3, at 7:30 p.m.; and Sunday, Feb. 4, at 2:30 p.m. Tickets are $15 for adults and $10 for students. The show is recommended for ages 10 and up.

Shore's First Female Commonwealth's Attorney Brings Professional and Life Experience to Job

By Stefanie Jackson

Beverly Leatherbury believes that her experience as a woman and mother gives her a certain advantage as Northampton County's first female commonwealth's attorney. The wife, mother of four, and lawyer with 40 years experience replaced Bruce Jones after he retired from the position effective Dec. 31, 2017.

Leatherbury distinctly remembers the day she decided she wanted to be a lawyer, in 1967 at age 14, in her small hometown of Victoria in Lunenburg County, Virginia. New York City law students, whom she emulated, were assisting the voter registration process, embroiled in controversy, as advocates for black voters lined one side of the street and Ku Klux Klan members flanked the opposite side.

She was the second person in her family to go to college. She earned her undergraduate degree from the College of William and Mary, and received her law degree from the University of Virginia in 1977. She took the bar exam in New York, and was sworn in as an attorney at the trial court in Manhattan of "Law & Order" fame.

Leatherbury worked at a federal prosecutor's office in New York City, and litigated for a prominent Wall Street law firm early in her career. She was drawn away from New York by a position as a law clerk in Richmond, working for a federal judge who was one of her former college professors, with whom she had a close professional relationship.

Leatherbury returned to litigation at Richmond law firms for several years before she settled down and "got a horse ... a dog ... and a husband." She had four children in the space of about seven years, and took off two years from work to be "a housewife" in Georgia, where the family had relocated.

It was not long afterward that Leatherbury made the disheartening discovery of her first husband's "double life," involving drug use, followed by costly, failed attempts at rehabilitation, and later, criminal activity. Leatherbury was compelled to seek a divorce and found herself as a single mother with four children to support alone.

She took the Georgia bar exam and went back to work as a lawyer, taking whatever legal work she could find. Leatherbury moved back to Richmond with her children, where she started a small firm with several friends.

After about six years avoiding the dating scene, Leatherbury's 14-year-old daughter and a young law partner took it upon themselves to create a profile for Leatherbury on the dating website, Love@AOL (America Online). She was introduced to a farm equipment dealer from Machipongo, who, like her, was an Episcopalian. Through an Episcopalian church friend, an "all points bulletin" was put out on Dixon Leatherbury, who passed the test with flying colors. The couple met in 2000, were married a year later, and are still "living happily ever after."

Beverly Leatherbury's career continued to grow and flourish. After moving to the Eastern Shore, she worked for Turner & Turner in Eastville, then ran a private law practice in Exmore from 2003 to 2005. The former big-city, commercial litigator became experienced in small-town, general practice, working on divorce, custody, and criminal defense cases.

As a criminal defense attorney, Leatherbury often faced prosecutor Bruce Jones in court. They developed a mutual, professional respect. Jones originally hired Leatherbury to do contract work for the county, to which she committed her private practice for eight or nine months of the year. She became the Northampton deputy commonwealth's attorney and assistant county attorney in 2005, positions she held through 2017.

Leatherbury is now Northampton's commonwealth's attorney and county attorney. Virginia law allows her to hold the former position until the end of the year. In November, she must be elected to continue in her position through 2019, the last year left in Jones' term. If successful, Leatherbury will run for election again in 2019 for her first four-year term.

"I hope the public will let me do it (her job as commonwealth's attorney) longer," she said.

Students Find Senior Year Exciting and Worrisome

By Tiffany Boggs

Senior year can be the most stressful and exciting time of students' lives. They stress about prom, graduation, where they want to go to college, how to pay for it and what field to study. The Eastern Shore Post interviewed five Nandua High students to find out how their senior year has been for them. The students talked about their future plans and who influenced their choices.

Alajia Diaz is a student who does it all: a hard worker, busy with track, basketball and cheerleading, and working for Wendy's. After graduation she will enter the U.S. Army, studying medical logistics. She has an outgoing demeanor and love for sports. All she wants is to make her mother proud.

be sad to see senior year end. Some described high school as the next step in life.

"I'm ready to go to college. High school's been just the beginning of life. (I'm) ready to go ahead, take the next step, get a job, get working. I'm really worried about the future," said Edward Stratton. He added that college is "all about the experience" of going out and trying something new.

Jacqueline Hernandez described her senior year as fun. She joined extracurricular activities and is enjoying all of it. "I think senior year is actually pretty nice," she said. "I'm sad it's going to end because I'm going to miss high school a lot. I'm going to miss the clubs and everything."

High school helped Hernandez see the maturity of her classmates and find her path for the future. There are some students who are happy to get out of high school, but she is not one of them. Hernandez doesn't want to see everything end too soon.

Not every student is headed directly to a university. Some students have their minds set on community college, which they find to be a better choice to save money and get their general studies out of the way.

That's Stella Lee's plan. After graduation, she wants to attend Wor Wic Community College in Salisbury, Md., to live close to her mother, Paula Lee, who influenced her college plan. She told Stella she would give good insights and advice on the college. Stella Lee visited Wor Wic and was highly impressed with the school. As someone who has a love for reading and writing, she described the school library as "a dream come true."

Sadye Saunders comes across as a well-mannered, hard-working, caring girl. After graduation she wants to attend the University of Virginia to go into biomedical engineering and study drug theory in the agricultural economy. At the age of 6, Saunders' mother was diagnosed with ovarian cancer and although it has been hard on her and her mother, they both remain strong. Saunders has had other family and friends who have been diagnosed with cancer, but her mother is the main influence of her career choice. She wants to make a change in the lives of cancer patients and also children in poverty. She believes students should have options for better education and have more motivation, whether that's going into college or the military.

Senior year has been great for Saunders so far. She has enjoyed all the clubs and the friends she hangs out with. High school has allowed her to personally grow and to develop a political perspective. After high school is over she hopes to grow some more — into a successful business woman.

Tiffany Boggs is a senior at Nandua

High and an intern at the Eastern Shore Post. After graduation, she plans to attend Eastern Shore Community College. She hopes to become a journalist.

Alajia Diaz

Her influence for the Army came from her mother, who was in the military. Once Diaz's older brother was born, her mother didn't re-enlist, but went on to have one more child, Alajia, who wants to follow in her mother's footsteps.

Alajia Diaz enlisted in the Army during her junior year, took the Armed Services Vocational Aptitude Battery test (ASVAB) and went to Baltimore for Military Entrance Processing (MEPS). While other students might find these changes stressful, Diaz has everything planned out, and describes her senior year as "relaxing."

"People (said) it would be stressful. ... (asking) What kind of college I want to go into. ... (For) me, honestly, it's very relaxing."

The other four students interviewed said they are ready for college and will

News from the ESVA Chamber...

'Cast Your Bread Upon the Water and It Will Come Back to You'

By David McCaleb, Board Member
ESVA Chamber of Commerce
Submitted Article

Words have power. Each of us, if given the opportunity, could no doubt offer several sayings that have encouraged us in life. When I began working with my father in the family business, he gave one to me:

"Sometimes you do something because it's profitable, but sometimes you just do it because it's right."

Those words have returned to me many times since. Ironically, I have found when we do something because it is right, in the end it is profitable as well. It reminds me of another saying from my father:

"Cast your bread upon the water, and the game warden will arrest you."

Nope. That's the wrong one.

"Cast your bread upon the water, and it will come back to you."

What he meant was when we help others, it eventually returns to be profitable to us. That is the definition of an economy. Scholars and government officials may debate what creates a thriving community. But we know the economy on the Eastern Shore will either thrive or stagnate depending upon the depth, strength, and resiliency of the bonds between its businesses and citizens.

Our Eastern Shore Chamber of Commerce exists to foster these ties, advocate for our businesses, and build a prosperous economy enjoyed by all. It is where businesses come together to help each other, and recently they demonstrated how this works by collaborating with the Eastern Shore Community College (ESCC).

The chamber needed help with two skill sets, computer programming and project management. The ESCC had students thirsty for real world experience in their chosen areas of study, and Stephen Hopkins and Maggie Wescott-Williams raised their hands and volunteered to help. They cast their bread.

Hopkins had enrolled at ESCC after 17 years as a truck driver. He now carries a 4.0 average and studies for a career in computer programming and database management. He tackled a search engine project for the chamber and helped on several website projects. Wescott-Williams began attending the ESCC after all her children earned their education. She is maintaining a 4.0 as well, while working toward her Associates Degree in management. She helped on the same search engine project by collecting and organizing inputs from the various members all across the Eastern Shore.

Through this partnership, these two students gained real-world experience that will help in their college studies. They networked with potential employers and showcased their skills and strong work ethic. At the same time, the chamber gained valuable assistance in marketing and promoting Eastern Shore businesses.

That is how an economy works. It thrives when one satisfies the need of another in a win-win manner. Work gets done. Bonds are strengthened. Bread floats back.

The chamber would like to thank the college for its continued dedication to our community, and Hopkins and Wescott-Williams for a job well done.

Health Matters Sickle Cell Disease

Courtesy of The Virginia Department of Health

Sickle cell disease is one of the most common genetic disorders in the United States primarily affecting African-Americans. In Virginia, sickle cell disease is the most prevalent disorder identified by newborn screening tests. Approximately 75 newborns are identified each year through newborn screening.

Sickle cell disease causes red blood cells to function abnormally, becoming rigid and curving into a sickle-like shape. The sickle shape makes it difficult for the cells to pass through tiny blood vessels, resulting in painful blockages that prevent vital oxygen and nutrients in the blood from reaching organs and tissues. These blockages can result in tissue damage, severe recurrent pain, strokes, organ damage and other serious medical complications.

Sickle cell disease primarily affects those of African descent, but also is found in people who trace their ancestry to South and Central America, the Middle East, India, Italy, Greece and Turkey. There is no universal cure for sickle cell disease, but new treatments and preventive therapies have improved the life expectancy and quality of life for people with the disorder.

- It is estimated that 2,500 – 4,500 African-American residents are living with sickle cell disease.

- 1 in 325 African-Americans are living with sickle cell disease in Virginia.

- 1 in 12 African-Americans have the sickle cell trait in Virginia.

Testing

Sickle cell screening is offered through local health departments in both family planning and maternity clinics. "We encourage parents whose newborn has been identified with sickle cell disease or trait to be tested," a department notice stated. To see if you qualify for free screening, please contact your local health department.

Counseling

Anyone who has had sickle cell screening or whose newborn has been identified with a hemoglobinopathy should receive a copy of the test results and offered educational genetic counseling. This process involves all the medical, psychological, social, and genetic factors related to the specific trait being discussed.

Newborn Screening

In Virginia, all babies are screened for sickle cell disease. All infants identified with test results indicating sickle cell disease or other genetically related hemoglobinopathies are followed to ensure confirmatory testing is done and that all confirmed cases are in medical care. Enrollment in medical care is highly encouraged to ensure:

- Identification and confirmation of disease status prior to onset of clinical symptoms

- Enrollment of families into a comprehensive care plan that includes parent education and support

- Early administration of prophylactic penicillin

To obtain a copy of your baby's newborn screening results, contact your baby's doctor.

Additional Services

All newborns identified with having sickle cell disease or other genetically related hemoglobinopathies will be referred to a Care Connection for Children Center. Locate the closest center in your area.

There are nine Sickle Cell Chapters of Virginia that provide resources to individuals and families impacted by sickle cell disease by addressing unmet educational, social and psychosocial needs.

Johnson Named DAISY Award Recipient

Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital ICU nurse Jacqueline "Lee" Johnson, BSN, RN, WCC, was recognized for her outstanding patient care as the hospital's first DAISY (Diseases Attacking the Immune System) Award recipient.

The DAISY Award for Extraordinary Nurses was created by the National DAISY Foundation to recognize "outstanding clinical skill, personal acts of kindness and compassion to patients and families."

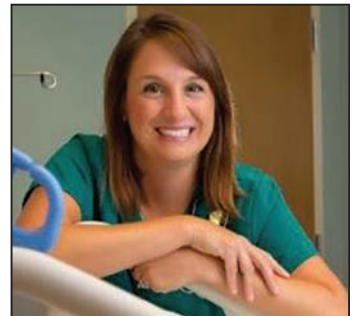

The daughter of a patient in the ICU nominated Johnson for the award because of the consideration and respect Johnson showed her mother and for keeping the family informed. A Riverside committee from across disciplines chose Johnson to win the award from the many nominations. The nominations were presented without identifying information so that the choice was impartial.

"It means so much to be part of a patient's journey," said Johnson. "It's an honor to be recognized, and I hope to always portray the characteristics that the award entails." Johnson has been a part of Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital for the last 16 years. She began as a nurse extern while completing nursing school and received a bachelor's degree in nursing from Radford University.

The not-for-profit DAISY Foundation was formed in 1999 by family members in memory of J. Patrick Barnes of Texas, who died at 33 from an autoimmune disease.

The family was inspired by the exceptional care they received from nurses and wanted a way to recognize all nurses for making such a meaningful impact to the lives of patients and their families.

As a DAISY award recipient, Johnson received special recognition at the hospital and on the national DAISY Foundation's website. Because Cinnamon were a favorite of Barnes, the foundation encourages selection committees to treat their winners with cinnamon doughnuts; Johnson received cinnamon treats from a local bakery. Johnson also received a hand-carved "Healer's Touch" stone statue.

Nominations can be submitted by patients, their family members and visitors, or Riverside team members, and are accepted throughout the year. A winner will be chosen each quarter from the nominations of the past three months.

Giving Honor to God, Our Father
 Billy W. Collins
 Feb. 3, 1946–Aug. 30, 2017

Billy, my everything, I will always love you. There's not a day that goes by that I don't have tears running down my face. Billy, my sweetheart and my love. Billy was truly blessed in singing, praying, helping others, and taking good care of his family. Billy would tell jokes and make us laugh. Every year for Billy's birthday I would get him the biggest cake and a seafood platter. I must close now. I thank God, our Father, for the many, many years we shared together. Happy, Happy Birthday Billy! Sleep on and one day we will meet again. I will always love you!

With Love,
 Your wife Annie M. Collins & Family
 Gone but never forgotten

 IN HEAVEN, NANNY
 WE LOVE & MISS YOU
 LOVE,
 JJ & BUDDY,
 & THE FAMILY

By Del. Rob Bloxom

Things are moving quickly in Richmond. One bill which has gathered much attention is HB 646 dealing with tethering animals, adequate shelter and space. I voted in opposition to this bill and wanted to provide my reasoning and some background in this week's update.

The Agriculture Subcommittee #1 voted to "pass by indefinitely" HB 646, a motion that I supported. The reason was the true effect of the bill, not its reported purpose. In spite of what has been said about what this bill would achieve, the facts of the bill and the existing laws are:

- Under existing law any dog left outside in any weather without adequate shelter, access to clean food and water or protection from the weather is already illegal and is animal cruelty.
- This bill would have only applied to dogs on a tether and would have reduced the current protections for dogs kept in lots.
- The bill would also have banned any dog from being tethered at any time, year round, unless someone was home.
- By putting temperature and weather conditions in the Code, it would have required animal control officers to verify these standards in order to seek a prosecution, rather than the current standard of the dog's well-being.

Despite the well-meaning intention, its true effect would have banned tethering unless someone was home, made the cruelty standards more difficult to enforce, and weakened protections for all dogs kept in lots by setting a double standard.

I did support and vote in favor of HB889, which authorizes the governing body of any locality to adopt an ordinance restricting the tethering of a dog outdoors. With this legislation each locality may adopt an ordinance to limit the maximum number of hours during which the dog may remain tethered but shall not completely prohibit tethering that provides the dog "adequate space" as that phrase is defined in the Code of Virginia.

I remain committed to protecting animals from cruelty and supporting laws that can enhance enforcement. As I have stated ever since I began service, I look forward to working with advocates to enhance our animal cruelty laws and to make them more enforceable.

Please don't hesitate to contact me again should you have any other bills of interest to you. I can be reached in Richmond at 804-698-1000. You may follow all legislation at <http://viriniageneralassembly.gov>

By Sen. Lynwood Lewis

After two and a half weeks of the 2018 General Assembly session, we have a final tally of 2,600 bills, which includes bills put forward by members of both the Senate and the House. This is a more than 25 percent increase from last year. We've had long committee meetings with incredibly full dockets, and it looks as though that trend will continue through the end of session.

This past week brought victories and disappointments, but I want to highlight a few developments of particular interest to the Eastern Shore. Our Virginia Waterway Maintenance Fund Bill, SB693, passed unanimously out of the Finance Committee and is on the uncontested docket for a full floor vote. As I mentioned in last week's column, establishing this fund is critical to addressing the Shore's dredging needs and I'm pleased the legislation has been so well-received. Del. Bloxom and Del. Keith Hodges are working with me on this as well as on the accompanying budget amendment, and we hope to bring these much-needed dollars directed for specified dredging projects back home to our districts. Thanks to Shannon Alexander and Curt Smith of the A-NPDC and John Joeckel for all of their help and support.

My bill to address the opioid epidemic made it through subcommittee 5-0 and through the full Education and Health Committee on a 13-2 vote. This bill allows the creation of local fatality review teams to study suspected overdose deaths. It is modeled after a successful program in Maryland, and I've received help on the direction of this legislation from several stakeholders on the Shore, including the Department of Corrections, the Eastern Shore Community Services Board, the Department of Juvenile Justice and the Virginia State Police. There is bipartisan support for addressing what is an urgent, growing problem, and passing this legislation to implement fatality review teams will put us on the path to finding solutions for the devastating spike in opioid-related deaths.

My bill to address security concerns regarding FOIA inquiries into Virginia Commercial Space Flight Authority (VCSFA) passed unanimously out of subcommittee. Our current FOIA provisions do not provide a relevant exclusion to the VCSFA for Federal Sensitive Security Information. In its role as a national asset of only one of four spaceports licensed to launch to orbit in the United States (Wallops) and as a secure testing facility with restricted airspace for unmanned aircraft systems development, Virginia Space is often in control of federal sensitive security information. The lack of a FOIA exemption for the VCSFA is both a national security risk and a competitive disadvantage, and I am hopeful we will get this bill through committee and a full floor vote.

Our money committees in both the House and the Senate are working on the new budget for the 2018-2020 biennium. I will continue to advocate for funding for areas of great importance to the Shore, including more funding for agricultural best management practices, much-needed dollars for Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital and for waterway maintenance, as well as specified funding to address recurrent flooding and oyster restoration.

And, last week I touched upon a bill that was of significant concern to our local watermen regarding new regulations on crab pots regulated by the Virginia Marine Resources Commission. My colleague's intentions were good, but it was important that my fellow senators on both sides of the aisle understood that this technology was not ready for prime time nor had it gone through the proper channels. When I spoke against this bill on the Senate floor, I explained how and why retrofitting in this manner is overly burdensome for our watermen and that moving forward this should go through the stakeholder process at VMRC. I am happy to report the bill died on a 15-25 vote.

We will have town halls in the district around the time of Crossover (Feb. 14). If you visit us in Richmond, our office is on the 6th floor of the Pocahontas building – Office 609. As always, I encourage everyone to reach out to us in Richmond and to continue to monitor the activities legislature on the General Assembly website VirginiaGeneral-Assembly.gov I can be reached at our legislative email District06@senate.virginia.gov and while in Richmond by telephone at 804-698-7506. Please do not hesitate to contact me on issues with questions about legislation or on issues of concern.

Advocate for Abused Animals

Dear Editor:

I am sure in the past weeks many of us have thought about all of the poor dogs and cats left outside in the cold to suffer and I am sure in some cases freeze to death. There are so many animals in need on the Shore.

Fortunately there are groups on the Shore trying to help, but they are small and with all of our help could assist more of these precious animals. They have provided as much shelter, food, and rescue as they can. They provide low-cost spaying and neutering to help with the pet over-population. We may not all be able to rescue dogs and cats, but you can adopt, foster and donate to these wonderful groups. They are: K-9 Rescue of the Eastern Shore, P.O. Box 171, Atlantic, VA 23303; The ESSO, P.O. Box 414, Cape Charles, VA 23310; The SPCA, 6528 Lankford Hwy. P.O. Box 164, Onley, VA 23418; Dogs Deserve Better, P.O. Box 70, Exmore, VA. 23350. Also, Kindness Matters Rescue pulls animals from animal control and gets them to rescues. Donations for them can go to their rescue account at the Eastern Shore Animal Hospital in Painter.

Also, if you see an animal outside without shelter, food or water or witness any abuse or have information regarding dog fighting, please call the sheriff's office in your county. You can be the voice for those that have none. You can also call your elected officials at all levels and let them know you want them to stand up for better legislation to protect animals.
