BOARD ORDERS OVERHAUL OF ACCOMACK SCHOOLS CENTRAL OFFICE

By Linda Cicoira

Accomack's School Board approved a surprise reorganization plan in a 6-2-1 vote Tuesday night that essentially fires top administrators, redistributes the workload and then opens the application process to all, including the former job holders.

"This is not about eliminating people from their positions," Superintendent Dr. Gregg Cuellar said when explaining the move. "It is, however, about creating systems that provide the very best support for all schools and children in the division."

The board voted to employ an agency "to assist with the screening and hiring to ensure the integrity of the process, allowing equal opportunity to all who apply or are interested in the positions, which will be posted for internal and external applicants," Cuellar said.

The cost of the assistance will be $15,000 for the top three positions directly under Cuellar. Those top three "cabinet members" will hire the rest of the administrative staff.

"It is imperative that people hear that while we have renamed our top positions, establishing new job descriptions and responsibilities, we are not adding new positions to the Central Office," Cuellar said.

Now in the top two posts are Assistant Superintendent Dr. Rhonda Hall and Finance Director Beth Onley, previously known as Beth Charnock. A third post does not exist at this time. It was dissolved when former Assistant Superintendent Jessie Duncil was re-assigned to serve as principal of Metompkin Elementary School earlier in the school year.

School Board members Dr. Ronnie Holden and Naudya Mapp were opposed to the reorganization, but did not say why. Chairwoman Margaret Miles (voting through a conference call while out of town), Vice Chairman Travis Thornton, and members Shannon Wessells, Paul Bull, Aaron Kane, and Audrey Furness voted in favor. Member Camesha Handy was also in the conference call (due to illness), but did not appear to be connected when the vote was taken.

The subject came up after a 2½-hour closed session.

"Upon closer examination and further discussion with our constituents, we found that the issue resides in the need to recalibrate job descriptions and functions, which is the direction this board is headed with its vote to reorganize our structure," Cuellar said.

"The school system has also proposed to contract the services of an independent auditor to conduct two very important audits, a Central Office compensation study and a human resource management review," said Cuellar. "It is important for the board to show all schools, constituents and community members that their concerns and needs are being heard and that the board is making a concerted effort to address the issues brought forth."

The three top-level positions accepted informally by the board were chief of staff, chief academic officer and chief of operations and management. Cuellar said, the middle- and high-school coordinator positions were consolidated into a director of secondary schools. Special education and English language learner directors will be combined into the director of special populations.

The chief of staff position was "designed to provide strategic support for all personnel, departments, and teams operating within the system and a human resources coordinator," the superintendent said.

Cuellar was hired after the School Board used a

While Atlantic Town Center Is Denied, School Funds Are Not

By Linda Ciccoira

They denied a developer, disagreed about appropriations, moved forward with sewage plans, recognized firefighters and heard from two political parties. Those are a few of the things that Accomack supervisors did Wednesday night.

In two 6-3 votes, the board denied a conditional-use permit and a rezoning request for Chris Carbaugh's proposed Atlantic Town Center in Wattsville. The actions limit the developer to commercial projects unless he returns with more residential considerations. Many local residents are vehemently against the development and continued to speak out at the session.

Carbaugh wanted about 77 acres rezoned from Agricultural to Residential to allow a multi-family development. The board delayed a decision months ago so Caroline Massey of NASA Wallops could explain that agency's opposition. She said part of the property is in a hazard area because the Navy is using the runway for Field Carrier Landing Practice. One of those planes recently lost 800 gallons of fuel while flying nearby.

Carbaugh also wanted to increase the capacity of water withdrawal and wastewater treatment from 10,000 to 30,000 gallons per day. The supervisors previously allowed the lower figure until they could see how the site progressed. Some wanted to stick with that plan.

Supervisors Wanda Thornton, Kay Lewis and Laura Belle Gordy favored the developer's requests. Chairwoman Reneta Major, Vice Chairman Ron Wolff and Supervisors Grayson Chessner, Jack Gray and Donald Hart were opposed.

In other business, a 4-4 vote, with Hart abstaining, failed to hold back $75,000 in appropriations for the School Board to send a message about a retirement incentive that is being phased out. Thornton, Lewis, Gordy and Wolff said they couldn't vote to give the money because County Attorney Mark Taylor advised the nearly 20-year-old retirement plan is illegal since the supervisors never approved it. Hart didn't break the tie because, as a retired teacher, he once collected the benefit.

Representatives from both local Democratic and Republican parties asked the board to take a proposal to build a county sewage plant off the table. They complained that Onancock's plant could handle the waste and the two governments should work it out to save money. The supervisors voted 7-2, with Thornton and Lewis opposed, to have Taylor draft an agreement with Onancock.

The supervisors voted unanimously to hire a full-time replacement for Taylor, who has accepted a position off the Shore. In an 8-1 vote, with Gordy opposed, the board voted to hire a firm to help with the search. Gordy wanted the county to look for a local lawyer first. A unanimous vote gave County Administrator Steve Miner authority to hire an interim attorney or get occasional legal advice until a permanent replacement is found. Crockett assured Taylor, whose last day is April 10, that his secretary would continue to be employed.

During work with heavy equipment at the county airport recently, nearby grave casings were accidentally torn open, Taylor reported. Graves were fixed and records were made to protect them in the future, he said.

State Sen. Lynwood Lewis, a representative of Del. Robert Bloxom and the supervisors commended fire and rescue volunteers and workers across Accomack for their hard work during the 2012-13 arson spree.

The board also voted unanimously to send a letter to NASA regarding dredging near Chincoteague. Thornton said effects to the island should be studied before the whole southern end of it disappears. Silt from the area was used to build up Wallops Island's beach where a launch pad is located.

Exmore Town Manager Throws Hat in Ring for Supervisor

Exmore Town Manager Robert Grayson Duer has announced his candidacy for Northampton County supervisor representing District 5 in the Nov. 3 elections.

District 5 includes the incorporated Town of Exmore, part of Belle Haven, and an area extending down Occohanock Neck to Jamesville and beyond.

Duer was appointed town manager in November 2013 after the former manager, Zeke Jackson, resigned. At the time, Duer was serving on Exmore Town Council and was employed as the practice director for Riverside Eastern Shore Physicians and Surgeons in Nassawadox.

Duer brought 15 years of corporate management experience to the Town of Exmore, having managed Eastern Shore Physicians and Surgeons for 10 years and serving as operations manager for New Ravenna in Exmore from 2000-04. Prior to that, Duer was day support coordinator for Eastern Shore Community Services Board, where he served in the public sector for 11 years.

A graduate of Randolph-Macon College with a bachelor's degree in biology, and Clemson University with a master's degree in plant pathology, Duer is a resident of Exmore and his family has run businesses and been involved in local government on the Eastern Shore for generations. He is a member of Exmore Rotary Club and Epworth United Methodist Church.

"One of my first concerns before making a decision to seek a seat on the Northampton County Board of Supervisors was to ensure that Mayor Doug Greer and all of the members of the Exmore Town Council were interested and supportive of my pending decision to seek this position," Duer said.

"After receiving their enthusiastic support as well as that of my family, I felt it was my duty, as well as my privilege, to appeal to the voters of District 5 to also support my candidacy."

District 5 is currently represented by Supervisor Larry Trala, an Exmore businessman who has been active in local government and community affairs for decades.

Said Duer, "I consider Larry a personal friend and we are all grateful for the service he has provided over the years in local and county government."

Duer noted that since taking over as town manager and working in partnership with Town Council and the mayor, he has delivered two balanced budgets, both with surpluses. He added that cash reserves for the town have increased by over $500,000 during his 16-month tenure.

According to Duer, the town has enjoyed vastly improved worker morale, there is a renewed sense of optimism within the Police Department, and Exmore has completed many capital improvement projects within various town departments and throughout the town.

"Exmore is a growing, prosperous town and we all feel that we need enthusiastic representation on the Northampton County Board of Supervisors," said Greer. "I can say with certainty that all of us within the town government are excited about Mr. Duer's willingness to serve our interests on a county level, and we are wholly supportive of his candidacy."

Duer will run as an Independent.

Proposed Zoning Changes Take Center Stage at Info. Sessions

By Ron West

Northampton citizens were given an opportunity to view the proposed changes to the county's zoning ordinance at two public information sessions held at Kiptopeke and Occohanock elementary schools this week.

The changes, which have been under review by the Planning Commission, as well as the Board of Supervisors, have been discussed for the past two years.

At this week's sessions, Long Range Planner Peter Stith provided a brief overview of the changes, which include among other things, keeping the Chesapeake Bay Preservation Act in place for the entire county, reducing the number of districts to 15, and increasing the number and types of residential districts.

The Planning Department laid out the room with maps and handouts showing where each district would be located as well as what uses would be allowed in each. Planning staff fielded a number of questions and concerns. Attendees were given an opportunity to provide written comments to be presented to the Board of Supervisors and Planning Commission.

Once officials have finalized the proposed changes to the ordinance, a public hearing will be conducted to provide for additional citizen input prior to a final vote on the document.

The current timeline calls for the public hearing to take place later in the spring, with a possible final vote by the Board of Supervisors in late summer.

Anyone unable to attend this week's public information sessions is invited to provide written comments on the proposed ordinance to the county.

Proposed Northampton Budget Includes Tax Increase

By Ron West

The Northampton County Board of Supervisors met last Thursday in an effort to finalize the FY 2016 budget.

As the board weighed the financial requests of county departments, Finance Director Leslie Lewis provided a running tally with each cut or addition.

Every penny of the tax rate equates to roughly $197,000 in taxes. And piece by piece, the board began to chip away at the department requests.

Advised by Lewis and Commissioner of the Revenue Anne Sayers that it costs approximately $20,000 more to send out tax bills twice a year, Supervisor Granville Hogg suggested that the switch from one tax bill in December to a smaller one twice a year was a political move that costs taxpayers more in the long run. Supervisor Larry LeMond countered that the move was sought by taxpayers who found the burden of one large bill at Christmas could be lessened by splitting it up. "I voted for the change at the request of my constituents," LeMond said, "and have not heard a single complaint about it."

Hogg next ticked off a list of every employee assigned to the schools' Central Office, contending that there are too many staff members assigned there. School Superintendent Eddie Lawrence pointed out that several of those staff members actually work in the schools.

Additionally, Lawrence said that several of the staff in the Central Office wear multiple "hats." For example, Northampton's Assistant Superintendent Annette Gray also serves as director of instruction for all levels.

One by one, Lawrence countered Hogg's comments and invited the supervisors to spend a day at the Central Office to see how many jobs each staff member performs.

Additionally, Lawrence reminded the board that the school bus garage also services other county vehicles, while employees of the school system's finance department often work week-ends without extra pay.

Hogg urged that the county not use funds from traffic fines for budget needs, noting that it is not a dependable source of revenue. "If the people begin to drive the speed limit in the county, that money will need to be replaced in the budget," Hogg said. Currently, Northampton County collects in excess of $500,000 annually in traffic fines.

Hogg pressed to increase the tax rate by about 2.5 cents per $100 in real-estate assessments to cover the difference. He suggested that a 7-cent increase per $100 assessed value be considered.

One by one, the supervisors presented proposals as they attempted to reach a consensus on just how much to increase the budget. Supervisor Larry Trala sought to hold the tax increase to just enough to cover the minimum increase in needs, about 2.6 cents per $100 in assessments. Following much debate, the board agreed to advertise a rate of 70.88 cents per $100 in assessed real-estate value, which would be a 3.6-cent increase over the current tax rate. Additionally, there would be a 5-cent increase in personal-property taxes, up to $3.90 per $100 in assessed value. The tax rates for boats, heavy construction, machinery and tools would remain unchanged.

The board will conduct a public hearing later in the month to allow the public to comment on tax rates, as well as the $42,189,448 budget that is proposed for the coming year.

Court Postings

By Linda Cicaira

Accomack Circuit Court

An Eastern Shore native pleaded guilty last week in Accomack Circuit Court to two more embezzling charges, according to court records.

Angela L. Taylor, 34, of Nipigon Court in Virginia Beach could face up to 40 years in prison and a fine of $5,000. Judge H. Thomas Patrick Jr. convicted her of the charges after accepting a plea bargain in connection with the embezzlement of money from Grace U.M. Church's Boy Scout Troop 303 and Cub Scout Pack 300 in 2013. Two other counts will not be prosecuted.

Taylor previously pleaded guilty to embezzling funds from a Girl Scout Troop between Jan. 28 and July 1, 2013. A presentence report was ordered. Taylor is free on existing bail.

Court records show restitution to the church's insurance company is $7,500.

In another case, Margaret Aye, 50, of Valentine Drive in Princess Anne, Md., previously of Oak Hall, was convicted of welfare fraud. She was accused of fraudulently getting nearly $380 worth of fuel assistance on Nov. 5, 2013. She was allowed to remain free on bail until a presentence report is completed.

Marcus Joynes, 33, of Kilmontown Road in Melfa was arraigned on a count of grand larceny of property belonging to Walmart in Onley worth more than $200 on Sept. 21, 2014. He pleaded not guilty to the charge, but the case was continued until his lawyer could prepare for the case, according to the court record.

Accomack Circuit Court

An Painter woman pleaded guilty Tuesday in Northampton Circuit Court to four counts of obtaining money by false pretenses and making false statements in order to get Medicare funds.

Grenda Laverne Mears, 59, of Boston Road committed the crimes between April and September 2013.

Jamar Jones, 36, of Johnson Town Road in Birdsnest pleaded guilty to possession with intent to distribute marijuana, obstruction, eluding, two counts of driving on a suspended license and having defective equipment. The incidents occurred on Oct. 24, 2014.

Both cases were continued until presentence reports can be completed.

Accomack District Court

A Painter man was convicted Monday in Accomack General District Court of misdemeanor sexual battery that occurred last November.

Douglas Darrell Bragg, 31, of Big Pine Road was initially charged with felony rape by force or intimidation. Bragg was sentenced to 12 months in jail with all but time served suspended. He was arrested Nov. 13, 2014 for the Nov. 10 offense. He was also fined $150. Costs were $556. The victim was not identified.

Megan Ann Jones, 28, of Dover, Del., who has family ties to Chincoteague, was accused of stealing property belonging to Patty Bloxom worth $200 or more between Aug. 3 and 5, 2012. Cpl. Tyler Greenly of Chincoteague Police Department investigated. Secured Bail set at $500.

Norris Ray Beasley, 22, of Cashville Road in Onancock was charged with assault and battery of two law enforcement officers - Deputy B. Davis and Deputy L.N. Higgins - while he was in custody on March 13, 2015.

Man Sentenced in Child's Death

Two-year-old Jasheena Bull of Belle Haven had "fresh, recent and old injuries" when she died in 2013 of blunt force trauma, according to the medical examiner. The man who said he loved her like a daughter was sentenced Thursday in Accomack Circuit Court to 10 years in prison for abuse and neglect of the child.

Judge W. Revell Lewis suspended six years of the sentence for James Martinez Snead, 32, of Melfa. "You are the person who was responsible in the house ... who should have done something about this," the judge said. He ordered three years of supervised probation.

"I'm sorry I didn't call 911 sooner than I did," Snead said. "I loved Jasheena with all my heart. I'd never do anything to hurt anyone."

Jasheena's mother, Victoria Joynes, 37, of Belle Haven pleaded guilty to the same charges. Her sentencing is scheduled for next month. Evidence disclosed that Joynes took medication for mental-health issues that caused her to sleep 12 to 14 hours per day while Snead was left in charge of the girl.

Dr. Suzanne Starling of the Medical Examiner's Office in Norfolk testified that Jasheena had multiple bruises, scratches and a fractured rib. When her "belly was opened ... lots of blood gushed out. Very unusual. There was a lot of injury to the intestines themselves and to the lining that holds the intestines together ... there was a hole in the bowel" and the starting of decay ... there was an infection of the abdomen ... as a general rule ... accidental injuries can cause this... typically something that involves a very hard force."

Accomack School Days Will Be Lengthened

By Linda Cicoira

Accomack's School Board voted Tuesday to add 47 minutes to the length of each school day between March 23 and June 12 to make up 10 days of instruction that were lost to inclement weather.

The move will not interrupt the scheduled Spring Break from March 30 to April 3.

The decision was reached after reviewing four options for satisfying the 990 teaching hours of instructional time required annually to receive state money from the Basic School Aid Fund.

It was not announced if the additional minutes would be added in the morning or afternoon or by a combination of both since bus schedules would have to be altered and some drivers have second jobs.

Superintendent Dr. Gregg Cuellar said each school principal would decide how the 47 minutes would be distributed. The additional minutes are a "good amount of instructional time to recoup and get kids ready" for Standards of Learning tests, he added.

After-school events "might have to be delayed a little," said Cuellar. "I think everything comes second to instruction."

recruiting firm that surveyed more than 350 Accomack constituents, "many of whom pointed to issues with the efficiency and customer service of Central Office as impeding the progressive movement of its schools," the superintendent said, adding the report was presented to him when he took the post a year ago.

"We need to move quickly and efficiently on this while maintaining focus on our students," Cuellar said.

April 7 was set for reviewing candidate applications, with interviews of finalists conducted from April 13 to 17. The three new positions will be effective July 1.

Several parents were in attendance for the announcement.

"I think we need to sit back and wait for the whole picture to come clear," said Connie Burford, a school system activist and parent. "Re-organizing" can mean many things. I am hopeful that shaking all the pieces of the puzzle ... and then having them put back together by an outside source removes all doubt that our organization is solid and has the best possible leadership available to us ... our focus should be on what is best for the future generations ... the School Board made a firm and strong statement showing ... commitment to our superintendent, school system and community."

MAPQUEST

By Ellen Nicholas

Lieutenant Governor's Office

While walking around the Oliver Hill building in Richmond's Capitol Square one winter day, something caught Lt. Gov. Ralph Northam's eye that stopped him in his tracks.

Hanging on the wall outside the state veterinarian's office is a map of Virginia. Stretching six feet wide, the piece is a carved wooden map with bronze letters spelling "State Veterinarian" covering most of central Virginia.

There was just one problem. The Eastern Shore, which includes the lieutenant governor's birthplace of Nassawadox, was completely missing.

When Northam pointed out that the Eastern Shore was absent from the map, State Veterinarian Richard Wilkes, D.V.M., quite literally took matters into his own hands. Wilkes hand-carved an Eastern Shore addition to perfectly match the rest of the map and presented it to the lieutenant governor.

To continue the spirit of inclusion and unity, Northam invited bipartisan members of the Virginia General Assembly to join him in unveiling the newly completed carving. On Feb. 25, Shore representatives Sen. Lynwood Lewis and Del. Rob Bloxom gathered with the lieutenant governor and Wilkes to reveal the newly completed map and celebrate unity in Virginia.

Now, the map hangs outside Wilkes' office, unbroken and finally complete.

Living As You Like It, Then and Now

Living as You Like it

Five minutes after leaving work I'm home. Within the hour I ease back the throttle of my outboard motor and come to a rest on the Chesapeake Bay. My fishing partner already has the bait cut and placed on my hooks.

Though my line is ready, I reach for something cool to quench a terrible thirst.

No sooner do I pop the top than my friend whistles, "I've got one on."

"Trout or croaker?" I ask matter-of-factly.

"Running like a trout and it feels like a nice one."

Although my interest is heightened considerably, I know my friend's delight in playing a fish to the fullest and take another swig of soda, bouncing my sinker once more off the bottom.

After an intense struggle in which the running gray peels off half the line from Curtis' light tackle, I know the trout is near the top and reach for the net. Moments later, I scoop a wriggling 8-pound trout from the placid waters.

Leaning back in our seats, we gloat in the knowledge our big-city counterparts — those daily newspaper scribes — will just be taking the subway or, worse yet, battling the Beltway traffic to their distant suburban homes. We all have our pipe dreams.

For Curtis, it might be toiling as a photographer for National Geographic. And I imagine he assumes mine would be writing for Sports Illustrated. It is a subject we rarely discuss, being too busy extolling the virtues of a Penn 9 reel over an Ambassador or deciding number five shot is a pretty good compromise between sixes and fours.

But unless either of those magazines establishes an Eastern Shore branch office, I'm not sure how close we'll ever come to realizing those lofty ambitions.

More than one man has sold his professional soul to live on the Eastern Shore. Many more have endured the rat race for a lifetime to retire here.

It is said once you get Eastern Shore sand between your toes, you'll never want to leave this place. Sometimes I feel Curtis and I must be ankle-deep in the stuff, with a ball and chain attached for good measure. Like most of us who dwell here, the sight of marsh grass at dawn means more to us than bright lights at night.

Through the winter we hunt waterfowl and by summer we fish. So much time we've spent at these pursuits that now an hour can pass without sighting a duck or feeling a nibble, and yet there is no need for forced conversation.

Just as there are no bad days in a duck blind, a day on the water can never be wasted — no matter what lies in the cooler. Curtis and I are luckier than some, who — by the very act of extending their education — force themselves into moving away.

In my newspaper position, I find satisfaction in knowing I am fulfilling a service to the community. If through my local sports coverage, our young athletes gain some measure of self-respect and ambition, and at the same time avoid less constructive behavior, then I could not be more pleased if I had been given a Super Bowl assignment.

In the end, I will admit my love of Eastern Shore living could eventually hamper my career as a journalist, but I will also argue that it will never detract from my happiness as a person.

And, for now at least, I am more important than are my ambitions.

It's amazing how many times life comes full circle.

I started my journalism career as a sports reporter on the Eastern Shore and now find myself in a similar position as my career draws to a close. That's not an announcement of any type, but surely I am nearing the finish line after 41 years in the newspaper business.

There was a time — about five years after I wrote first my first story — that I had an opportunity to interview for a sports reporter position at a daily newspaper. I admit I had visions of eventually covering the ACC beat or the Redskins at a daily newspaper. But I couldn't fathom the thought of leaving a land that I loved so much. I also wanted my children to be near their grandparents and to enjoy what I had as a child. The position also entailed going to work about the time they would be getting out of school and coming home near midnight once the next day's deadline had been met.

I realized that though I might not have my "dream job," I was living in my "dream place."

Taking all that in, I declined the interview and subsequently wrote a column about it.

These days the gray trout may not be running like they were then, but other worthy fish have taken their place. I am fortunate I can keep a boat moored to a dock on both the bayside and seaside of the Eastern Shore. I still enjoy the cool breezes of the ocean on a hot summer day and watching the sun melt into the Chesapeake Bay while wetting a line.

And I still enjoy what I do for a living.

Here is that column I wrote over 25 years ago.

Chincoteague Opens Season with Win Over Wi-High

Story and photos by Bill Sterling

The Chincoteague Ponies were expected to challenge for the Eastern Shore District title this season, and on Monday they showed they're worthy contenders by defeating Wicomico High out of Salisbury, Md., 6-4 at home.

With approximately 1,200 students, Wicomico is many times the size of Chincoteague, which will graduate a class of 32 this year.

The Ponies returned eight starters this season and are still young, with only one senior and two freshmen in the starting lineup Monday. But that didn't faze them as sophomore Trey Fisher hurled four effective innings before sophomore Collin Derrickson finished with three strong innings, helped by a game-ending assist from Fisher out of left field.

The assist was a major play as the tying run was headed to second base when the Wi-Hi runner was tossed out at the plate.

"It was a great opening day win," said Pony coach Will Thompson. "Fisher gave us a strong outing, and Derrickson shut the door. The play at home with Fisher throwing a strike to the plate was huge."

The Pony hurlers allowed only one earned run as four errors contributed to three unearned runs for Wicomico. Fisher gave up only one hit and struck out five with two walks. Derrickson allowed two hits and permitted one walk.

At the plate, Derrickson was 1 for 3 with a double and RBI. Mason Marshall was 1 for 4 with a single, steal and a run scored. Dylan Mason had two RBIs with a single and a run.

Joe Thornton clubbed a double and had an RBI. Spencer White scored a run and had a stolen base.

Arcadia Wins

Arcadia, under first-year head coach Trey Haynie, won its opener over Holly Grove 11-6 Tuesday at home.

Zach Mills started on the mound for the Firebirds and pitched 1²/₃ innings. Terrell Wharton relieved and got the win before Dalton McDaniel pitched the final three innings to get the save.

Third baseman Todd McAvene helped the Firebird cause in the sixth inning when he snared a line drive down the line with Holly Grove runners on first and third. McAvene stepped on third for a double play.

Jaquan Wharton was 3 for 5 with three RBIs and scored two runs.

Coach Haynie said McAvene's play was a "momentum swinger," noting that Wharton and Mills also combined on a key double play.

"For our first game I thought we played well, but we have a lot to improve on. I was happy with our defensive play, but we need to do a better job of hitting with runners in scoring position," said Haynie

Lefty Trey Fisher of Chincoteague threw four innings of one-hit ball and had a game-ending assist from left field to nail a Wicomico runner.

Lady Firebirds Win

The Arcadia softball team won its opener 7-3 over Holly Grove as Sarah Jones pitched a complete game, striking out five, and Taylor Lewis went 3 for 3 with a two-run homer, triple and single.

Amanda Stalgatis had a pair of hits, and Tiffany Trader and Tabby Thornes had one hit each.

"It was a great way to start the season," said Firebird coach Richard Strautz. "We played small ball, we had big hits and we took the extra base. Our defense was solid. We did everything we needed to win."

First-year Firebird head coach Trey Haynie (facing) talks with his team between innings in Tuesday's 11-6 win over Holly Grove.

Soccer Season Underway as Jacket Girls, Boys and Nandua Boys Win

The Northampton girls' soccer team tied Nansemond Suffolk 2-2 in its season opener Tuesday on the road.

Taylor Webb and Ashlyn Arnold each scored a goal for the Lady Jackets, who gave up one of their goals on a penalty kick.

"We had a very competitive game," said Northampton coach Tabi Webb. "Our goalie, Elizabeth Lilliston, made some nice saves and is off to a great start as a new soccer player. We are off to a strong start and all the girls are working well together."

Last week, Northampton won two scrimmages, defeating Greenbrier Christian Academy Tuesday 2-0, with Taylor Webb and Cecilia Cruz scoring, and then shutting out Sussex Central of Delaware 3-0 as Taylor Webb scored a pair of goals and Kennedy Webb found the net with an assist by Erica Head.

Nandua Boys Stop Windsor

The Nandua boys' soccer team defeated Windsor 6-4 Tuesday on the road as Onyer Velasquez scored a pair of goals and Effrain Ruiz, Tanner Troyer, Victor Esteban and Christian Esteban each scored a goal.

Troyer had three assists for the Warriors, with Ruiz, Velasquez and Tio Tinoco getting one assist each.

"It's still very early in the season. The late snow put us behind in out training," said Coach Paul Nolz. "By the score you can tell we still have a lot of things to work on, but overall it is a good conference win. Windsor is a much improved team with excellent speed."

Nandua hosts Bruton Tuesday at 6:30 p.m.

Jackets Win 1-0

The Northampton boys' soccer team won its season opener 1-0 over West Point Tuesday night.

Vincent Cusimano scored the lone Jacket goal; Gabe Webb and José Ibarra split time in goal to earn the shutout.

"West Point advanced deep into the tournament last year and always has a competitive soccer program. This was a good win for us," said Jacket coach John Gorman. He noted that the Jackets have 13 seniors this season and boast considerable experience.

State Anglers Reel In Over 5,000 Citations in 2014

Anglers registered 5,040 trophy-size fish for citation awards during the 57th Annual Virginia Saltwater Fishing Tournament that ran from Jan. 1 through Dec. 31 last year. This was slightly below the 10-year average (2004-13) of 5,219 citations and represents an 18 percent reduction in citations from 2013.

As they did in the record-setting year of 2013, speckled trout accounted for the greatest number of citations among the 35 eligible species in 2014 with a total of 1,476 awards, 1,034 (70 percent) of which were releases. While the majority of speckled trout registered were released, of those that were killed, 11 topped the 10-pound mark and 56 fish weighed 8 pounds or more. Trophy specks represented 30 percent of the year's awards. Although the 2013 total was easily the highest in tournament history at 1,874 citation specks, 2014 was the tournament's second highest total, continuing a trend for high numbers of these spotted trophy fish that began in 2008.

One reason for the drop in citation numbers was the fact that the Virginia Marine Resources Commission closed the recreational speckled trout fishery from March 1 through July 31 following concerns raised by recreational anglers as a result of a winter cold stun event of large speckled trout in late January and early February 2013.

It was another spectacular year off the Virginia coast for white marlin as offshore anglers registered 928 white marlin releases in 2014 and this was the fourth highest total in tournament history. However, following the record-setting year in 2013, when 1,339 white marlin releases were registered, 2014 represented a reduction of 21 percent. Overall in 2014, white marlin accounted for the second most citations, just over 18 percent. This continued a trend of well-above-average numbers of white marlin that began in 2008. White marlin are only eligible for release, so all were released.

Red drum accounted for the third highest number of citations in 2014 and represented 18 percent of the year's total number. The 925 red drum citations in 2014 reflected a moderate reduction from the record-setting year of 2013, when 995 trophy reds were registered, but still ranks as the second most productive year in the program's history. Red drum citations became "release only" in 2000, and that was the first time in tournament history that more than 500 citation red drum were registered in a year. Since 2000, anglers have failed to register fewer than 500 reds in only two years, as management measures preclude the keeping of the large adult fish all along the Atlantic.

The season for trophy-sized red drum is long in Virginia. The season's first red drum was caught near the bay mouth on the Shoals off Fishermen's Island on May 2 and within a few days, the popular pastime blossomed into a consistent fishery that lasted well into October. The year's last trophy red drum was pulled from around the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel on Nov. 11.

Several species earned honorable mention in the 2014 review. Shark citation numbers topped 100 for the first time since 1989, even though only releases are offered. Cobia citation numbers were up again in 2014, as anglers reported fish in the 30- to 45-pound range were reasonably abundant and this bodes well for cobia hunters in 2015.

As good of a year as it was for some species, the opposite was true for several popular inshore species. Perhaps the biggest disappointment for anglers in 2014 was the lack of striped bass available in Virginia's coastal waters in December, January and February. Flounder citation numbers remain at a historically low level, although anglers did report more "keepers" were available in 2014. Spot meeting the minimum qualifying weight of 16 ounces have been very rare since 2006 and this trend continued in 2014. Only one gray trout citation was registered in 2014, as a depressed trend in trophy-sized trout has been evident since 2007. Spadefish and croaker meeting the tournament's minimum qualifying criteria were again very scarce in 2014.

The Virginia Saltwater Fishing Tournament is operated by the Virginia Marine Resources Commission with funding provided by the Virginia Saltwater Recreational Fishing License Fund. Awards are made to anglers catching fish meeting established weight criteria in 26 species, while an additional 10 species meeting established length criteria are only available for release awards, for a total of 36 species eligible for citation recognition.

As a reminder, golden tilefish were added to the list of species eligible for citation awards. The minimum weight was set at 30 pounds, but no release award is offered because of the extreme depths from which these bottom fish are pulled up and the associated high mortality rate due to barotrauma for released fish.

Citation awards are full-color certificates delivered at the recipient's choice as a plaque or in a plastic album page. Special awards are presented to anglers meeting the eligibility requirements of the Master Angler and Expert Angler programs. The program also administers the Virginia Junior Angler award program, where any angler 15 years of age and younger can earn a special Virginia Junior Angler Award certificate by catching and releasing six different species of saltwater fish in Virginia during a calendar year.

For more information, contact Lewis S. Gillingham, Virginia Saltwater Fishing Tournament, 2600 Washington Ave., Third Floor, Newport News, VA 23607, (757) 491-5160, or email vswft@mrc.virginia.gov

ESO Offered Musical Magic

Dear Editor:

If you've been hankering for spring and love classical music, our Orchestra of the Eastern Shore's recent concert would have appealed to you. It was another stunner; they are on a roll. It was the second appearance of vibrant Dr. Paul S. Kim, who succeeds the impressive five-year tenure of Professor Lee Jordan-Anders.

The 15-member volunteer orchestra was joined by a 10-member church chorus and two professional vocal soloists: the Shore's own soprano, Anna Sterrett, and, in stark effective contrast, Michigan native bass-baritone Matthew Scollin, who deftly paired with conductor Kim, playing violin in Bach's Cantata "I Will Gladly Carry the Cross" BWV56.

According to Dr. Kim, Bach could churn out such masterpieces weekly. This one aptly includes a raft of maritime images.

Prior to Mr. Scollin's powerful performance, the large audience had been nearly swept off their feet with Ms. Sterrett's solo throughout Mozart's Exultate, jubilate K.165, drafted at midpoint in his life in his teens. The Ave verum corpus, among his last pieces just 18 years later in 1791, impressively engaged our chorus and orchestra as melody and voice, with wonderful acoustics, continued to be projected in Hungars' tranquil refuge.

With such splendor shared, one dreams of an encore. We're incredibly fortunate for conductor and director Kim's presence, that of his teammates and guests, and the church's cordiality. Shore residents should seize the opportunity to hear them live in the future — again at Bridgetown or in Onancock — for free or in support.

A professional program accompanies each performance. For more information, see <http://orchestraes.org> and for concert updates readers are invited to join their list via info@orchestraes.org

Retirement Plan Actually Saves $

Dear Editor:

In response to the paid ad, "Know Where Your Tax Dollars Are Going," in last week's edition of the Post, I would like to know where my tax dollars saved from the Early Retirement Options Program used by the Accomack County School System are going. The ad focuses on the 10 percent of the salaries ($429,742) being paid for these experienced employees to return to the division for 730 days as substitutes. The ad does not talk about the 90 percent of the salaries ($3,867,660) that the county is saving.

To replace these 73 employees (even though they were not all teachers) with first-year teacher salaries would cost $2,593,033 (a savings of $1,274,627), fifth-year teacher salaries would cost $2,656,324 (a savings of $1,211,366), or 10-year teacher salaries would cost

$2,833,203 (a savings of $1,034,457). Using the teacher salary scale makes the cost higher because some of these employees were not earning a teacher salary, which means the savings is also greater. Most likely, it would be a combination of these, but the minimum you would save would be in excess of $1 million after you paid the 10 percent for the substitutes.

Why do you want to eliminate a program that is saving you in excess of a million dollars each year and in this case providing qualified substitutes for 730 days? In order to save $400,000, you want to give up $1,000,000. Please explain the rationale for this decision to the taxpayers in Accomack County. We would also like to know how the $1 million+ has been spent each year since 1996.

Ann Bonniwell, Painter

If Program Must Go, Phase It Out

Dear Editor:

I earlier wrote to Accomack supervisors, urging that if the school system's early retirement incentive is to be eliminated, that it be phased out. Since then, I have learned that some supervisors, in order to realize cost savings (an admirable goal), favor an immediate total elimination of anything resembling the current program. I'd like to speak to that point.

However, first let me make a comment on the legality of the current program. Some who know nothing more than what has been in the papers, may be left with the impression that the School Board has secretly and knowingly done something illegal and underhanded. On the contrary, board policies are adopted in public meetings and the policy itself has been available, online, for years. It would be a mistake for anyone to infer that there was criminal intent on the part of the School Board. I'd imagine that the policy passed in the first place because both the savings and benefits as well as the costs of the program were weighed. It is my understanding that the program was originally seen as a revenue neutral retirement incentive (legal) rather than a retirement benefit (illegal, in the preliminary opinion of the attorney general, unless you were to vote on it). I'd like to illustrate those savings using my particular situation.

I am 61 and have been planning to retire this year. Given that keeping the school's health insurance policy, at current rates, would cost me $9,480 per year, if the early retirement incentive were removed, I might have to see if the School Board would allow me to reverse that decision (they are already advertising my position). Such a decision would come with considerable cost to the county as having an advanced degree and having taught 38 years places me near the top end of the pay scale.

Were I to teach another five years, until I reach Medicare eligibility, the cost of retaining me, over replacing me with a first-year teacher, would be $134,222. If the current program were left in place, and I were to take advantage of it for that five-year period, the county would incur a cost, but it would still wind up saving $104,227.

I will concede, however, that one way to really save money is to "change the rules in the middle of the game." If highly paid (relatively speaking) teachers retire, based on the belief that they will have some help paying for their health insurance, and then they are denied that help, indeed, a savings would be realized. These savings would come at a cost of considerable hardship on some who have already retired, and lower morale on the part of those who are nearing retirement. This letter is written in the hope that those costs can be mitigated by accepting the School Board's proposed changes (crafted, in part, to avoid legal difficulties) and phase it out.

Lawrence R. Blodgett, via email

Look at It This Way

Dear Editor:

The county is really saving money! After reading all of the negative comments about the Early Retirement Option for teachers, I have found it necessary to make the true facts known.

It is NOT costing the county more money to fund the 10-day substituting incentive. Yes, after faithfully teaching for 38 years, I was making $55,927 a year. I went to college and earned a bachelor's degree and a master's degree in order to receive that amount. If a teacher with no years of experience took my place, the county saved $20,406 that year. In reality, the teacher who replaced me had seven years of experience and the county still saved $18,645. The teacher salary pay scale can easily be found on the Accomack County Schools' web page.

It seems that some supervisors wish to support teachers only while they are still teaching. Please do NOT throw us out to the wolves after we have retired! Since I have retired, I am paying for $690.59 a month in health insurance, and the premium goes up every year. I do not have dental or vision coverage. Yes, I receive a check from the Virginia State Retirement System once a month, but the amount is only a little more than half of what I earned while I was still teaching. I am receiving less money, but the cost of living is steadily increasing.

After realizing that the county is saving money when older teachers retire, there should not be any problem with retired teachers substituting 10 days to help pay for the higher cost of living. People should appreciate retired teachers who are willing to substitute. Each year I substitute 10 to 12 extra days with lower pay, in addition to the 10 days. Talk with any secretary at any school and you will hear that there is a shortage of substitutes.

I want to thank all of the members of the Board of Supervisors and the School Board, and Dr. Cuellar, superintendent of Accomack County Schools, for their willingness to work together to come up with a compromise to suit everyone's needs. Please remember that retired teachers are taxpayers and voters, too.
