Fatal Crash

By Linda Cicaira

Fatal traffic accidents are back on the rise on the Eastern Shore of Virginia where already a ninth person has died in a crash this year.

In 2008 there were 11 fatalities, a decline of about 50 percent compared to the previous year.

Sgt. Michelle Cotten of the Virginia State Police said a Pennsylvania man died in a one-vehicle crash Sunday. The incident occurred at about 5:15 p.m., just across from the police barracks on Lankford Highway near Melfa.

Cotten said Karen Seabrooks, age and address not available, was driving a 2002 Cadillac Escalade north when she "ran off the road to the right, struck a culvert and overturned." The passenger, Abney Hayward, 58, of Philadelphia, died at the scene.

Seabrooks was charged with reckless driving.

Alcohol was not a factor and the driver and passenger were wearing seatbelts, Cotten said.

Trooper R.C. Brown investigated the accident. Melfa, Onley, Tasley and Onancock volunteer fire and rescue companies responded.

Broken Memories

According to the Society for the Preservation of Onancock Cemeteries, these mementos were removed from gravesites and neatly stacked, unbroken, to be picked up by family members. Many of those relatives, who say they were not notified before the clean-up, claim the mementos were broken by those who cleared them away. See story on Page 5.

Swine Flu Here

Eastern Shore Health District Director Dr. Michael Margolius reported Thursday that the Eastern Shore has its first confirmed case of the H1N1 virus, commonly known as swine flu.

The patient is an adult male, was not hospitalized, and is recovering, according to Dr. Margolius.

There now have been 136 confirmed cases of swine flu in Virginia.

The current swine flu outbreak is caused by an influenza virus not previously detected in humans or animals. Symptoms are similar to those of seasonal flu and typically include fever, cough and sore throat. Additional symptoms may include headache, chills and fatigue, and sometimes vomiting and diarrhea. Persons with H1N1 or swine flu are contagious for up to seven days after the onset of illness and possibly longer if they are still symptomatic.

Anyone with concerns or questions about swine flu should contact his or her physician or the Accomack or Northampton County Health Department.

Survey Respondents Offer Racy Comments

By Linda Cicaira

They love the excitement. They crave the sounds of roaring engines and screeching tires. They favor the makes and models of the vehicles and the down-to-earth drivers.

It's the National Association for Stock Car Auto Racing (NASCAR) and on the Eastern Shore of Virginia that usually means sitting in front of the television on Saturday night or Sunday afternoon from February through November or not being a fan at all.

In an e-mail survey conducted by the Eastern Shore Post, local residents from all walks of life — retired accountants to high-school students — said they enjoy watching the races, viewing the replays, staying home to beat the crowds and kicking back on the couch.

Of course, they've also sat in the bleachers at various tracks, usually at Dover Downs in Delaware. Some have season tickets.

Many, including our office NASCAR expert, Troy Justis, want to see a course built here.

"It would be nice and bring lots of money to the Shore," said Justis. "The perfect place for the track is Painter, across from my house."

Justis said he would sell parking places in his backyard, like Chincoteaguers do during the Pony Penning. But he actually gets more pleasure from watching the races on television.

"It was great at the time (going to Richmond and Dover and seeing Ricky Rudd, Dale Jr., and Jeff Gordon be the first to cross the finish line), but being home when it's over and not fighting the crowd is good."

"Everyone should go at least once in their life!" said Darlene Shrieves Hudson of Melfa. "This experience must include arriving about six hours early and tailgating. Watching/interacting with the other people is really amusing. The sound and speed of the cars is unreal. It just can't be explained with words. And if your favorite guy passes someone or is out front, it's the best," Hudson said.

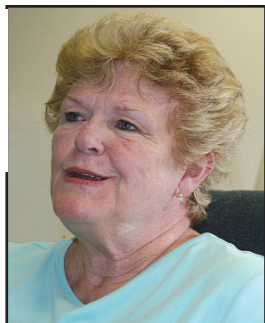

C.L. Marshall favors "the air conditioning, crab cakes, and open bar in the skybox."

Jamie Davis of New Church has been to lots of races. He wrote that he prefers to watch the competition on TV. "The traffic is terrible when

Miles Named to School Board

Miles

By Linda Cicaira

Margaret Taylor Miles, a former Accomack County supervisor, school administrator and teacher, was unanimously appointed last week to serve on the county School Board.

The Parksley woman will represent Election District 4. Her four-year term begins July 1.

"Schools have always been my life," Miles said Wednesday. She wants to continue to help find ways for children to "grow and learn and become productive citizens. I'm delighted to be on the board."

"It concerns me a lot the things I see," she continued. "I see many positive things. I also see things we need to improve upon."

Miles worked for Accomack schools for 33 years. She taught for 12 years at various county facilities, was principal at Accomack Primary School for 15 years, principal at South Accomack Elementary (now Pungoteague Elementary) for five years and was the first principal at Metompkin Elementary School where she served for a year. Miles retired from Accomack in 1999 and then taught in Worcester County, Md., schools for seven years.

Since 2006 she has been a long-term substitute teacher for both counties. She will continue the job in Worcester, but must give up "subbing" in Accomack to serve on the School Board.

Quinby Creek Dredging Gets Spoil Site

By Linda Cicaira

The Virginia Marine Resources Commission unanimously approved a spoil site Tuesday where dredged material will be deposited from Quinby Creek Channel.

The authorization includes placing up to 100,000 cubic yards of dredged material per dredge cycle at a "previously used spoil site adjacent to state-owned marsh northwest of Peeler Point in Public Ground 61 in Upshur Bay."

The VMRC also approved taking 200,000 cubic yards of dredged material from the maintenance of Sloop Channel and North Channel in Accomack County to two previously used spoil sites adjacent to state-owned marsh northwest of Cunjer Channel in Public Ground 66 and north of the intersection of Great Machipongo and North channels in Hog Island Bay.

VMRC staff recommended the projects. Wetlands and subaqueous permits are also required.

John Allen was granted permission to install 65 linear feet of stone riprap on his property along Onancock Creek in the Bailey Neck area.

Hank Jones, a local clammer, asked the VMRC to reconsider which oyster grounds should remain public as delineated in the 1894 Baylor survey. He was told those public oyster rocks are protected by the Virginia Constitution and any changes must be approved by the General Assembly.

The commission also unanimously approved an exemption to the oyster size regulations for those "grown by caged aquaculture methods."

Northampton Interviews School Board Candidates

By Ron West

Northampton supervisors met in closed session Tuesday to interview candidates for the School Board's three vacancies.

Kristin Webb, current chairwoman, and Dr. Richard Drury were re-appointed. The third candidate, Ann E. Terry, a retired educator, did not show up to for the interview. Assistant County Administrator Janice Williams indicated that the supervisors will contact her to see if she still plans to interview and if so, another interview would be set up before they ask for more applicants.

BaySys Sued for Non-payment

By Linda Cicaira

More trouble looms for BaySys Technologies, LLC of Accomac, with lawsuits being filed against the company in an effort to collect thousands of dollars in debt.

Documents in Accomack Circuit Court show that The Cube Corporation and VT Griffin Services, Inc. of Wallops are asking the court to help them collect more than $40,000.

According to the warrant in debt, The Cube Corporation "entered a contract with Griffin to install five hundred kva transformers in Building D-1, Room S111 where defendant has a portion of its business activities at NASA, Wallops Island."

The contract was for $122,000 and the work was completed this January, the suit states. "BaySys was to pay $40,000 upon execution of contract on August 21, 2008 which it proceeded to do on or about August 28, 2008." A second payment of $40,000 was due "on November 18, 2008 ... and $42,000 due upon completion."

BaySys paid the second balance "after considerable delay, but has failed to pay the balance," according to the court document

In Accomack General District Court, six warrant in debts were filed against BaySys.

Jet Jockey Inc. of Virginia Beach says it is owed $9,754.55 and The Cube Corporation and VT Griffin Services Inc. are asking for $7,146 for modifications to room S115, $525 for partition power adapters, $294 for hangar sweeping, $740 for moving an aerial line and $1,000 for installing power to exit lights.

Court Postings

Accomack Circuit Court

According to Commonwealth's Attorney Gary Agar, sentencing was deferred in Accomack County Circuit Court until a presentence report is prepared for Theodore Snead, 40, of Painter, found guilty of incest.

Raymond King, 42, of Chincoteague was found guilty of petty larceny and given a 12-month suspended sentence.

Judgment was withheld for Gladene Banks, 55, of Atlantic, charged with possession of cocaine. Banks was given First Offender Status, by which the charge will be dismissed if Banks maintains a clean record.

Northampton Circuit Court

Robert Powell Young, 69, of Virginia Beach was sentenced in Northampton Circuit Court for a previous conviction of robbery. According to Commonwealth's Attorney Bruce Jones, Young was given 20 years, with all but six years suspended.

Kenneth Tyrone McCaine, 42, of Salisbury, Md., was sentenced for forgery to eight years and for passing bad checks to eight years, to run consecutively, with six years suspended, for a total of 10 years to serve.

Rodney Scott Spady, 43, and Herbert Dewayne Young, 38, both of Cheriton, each were sentenced for possession of cocaine to two years, with all but three months suspended, followed by supervised probation.

Jerry Leon Reese, 33, of Ellenwood, Ga., was sentenced for soliciting pictures of genital parts by electronic means to five years, with all but two years and eight months suspended. He was given 12-month suspended sentences for contributing to the delinquency of a minor and distributing an obscene item, all to run consecutively, for a total of two years and eight months to serve.

Linwood Jones Jr., 51, of Melfa was sentenced to 12 months for driving after having been declared an habitual offender.

Tiffany Garris, 26, of Birdsnest pleaded guilty to threatening to burn, for which she was sentenced to two years, with all but 35 days suspended; and assault and battery, for which she was sentenced to 12 months, with all but 35 days suspended, to run concurrently.

Nicole Lynn Thompson, 21, of Jamesville pleaded guilty to breaking and entering and petty larceny. Sentencing was deferred until a presentence report is prepared.

Brent J. Gough 31, of Brunswick, Maine, pleaded guilty to a third offense of driving under the influence and was sentenced to five years, with all but 90 days suspended. He also was fined $1,000 and his operator's license was suspended indefinitely.

Painter Area May Get Convenience Center

By Linda Cicaira

Accomack's Planning Commission will review the location of a proposed solid waste convenience center near Painter when it meets at 7 p.m. Wednesday, July 1, at Metompkin Elementary School.

According to a memo from Planning Director James McGowan, the site is west of town on the corner of Wayside Road and Cosby Street.

The site is zoned general business, is convenient to existing population centers and accessible to Route 13, with a buffer between the convenience center and existing land uses, McGowan notes.

The commission is expected to make a recommendation to the Board of Supervisors.

Grave Concerns

By Linda Cicaira & Cheryl Nowak

It was hard enough to bury their loved ones. Now those graves have been cleared of mementos at three cemeteries in Onancock without their prior knowledge.

Many complained this week that workers hired to maintain the Fairview Lawn, Mount Holly and Onancock cemeteries dumped the tokens of their grief and affection. Flags, crosses, vases, stuffed-animals, solar lights, plaques, angels and other statues were found in a pile at the backside of one of the cemeteries this week.

"After the hurt and all you go through, you don't need this," said Sherry Smith of Onancock, whose mother and father, Blanche and Homer Pruitt, were buried there about 18 years ago. "I've never had that happen before. That's not right. If they'd have come and told me to take them off, we would have."

Henry Custis, a local lawyer and president of the Society for the Preservation of Onancock Cemeteries, said all but American flags and flowers were taken from the sites in accordance with cemetery restrictions and because there were complaints that the appearance of the graveyards was "not in good taste."

He said the items that were removed were placed in neat piles and separated by type so that folks could pick them up. "They were not broken by us at all," he said, contending that the items were thrown from one pile to another as people rummaged through them.

Somebody who buys a gravesite buys the "right to inter" and may erect a headstone and footstone "and nothing else, nothing else," he said. They do not own the property, according to Custis.

"We've been tolerant in letting people put things out there. I mean, you have to," Custis said. "It just reached a point where we had to do something about it." The lawyer said a notice was put in the Eastern Shore News for two or three weeks, stating that "what was not allowed pursuant to the paper they got when they purchased" would be removed.

Noting that the silk flowers she put on her sister's grave are missing, Edith Fisher of Parksley said, "As far as I know, there is no stipulation in the perpetual care contract" to warrant the recent actions. Fisher said since her sister was buried five years ago, the cemetery care has not been up to par. She did complain about that. "But nothing changed," Fisher said.

Custis anticipated getting plenty of phone calls after the last section of Fairview Lawn, where the most recent burials have been, was cleared, he said. "We did the best that we could as far as the notification," he said. "Most have been understanding."

Noting that the caretakers will continue to clear items away, Custis said the society will "let them have their trinkets or whatever they want on the headstone."

Janice Prier of Onancock cried after visiting her nephew's grave.

"He was sick for a long time" and died at 31, she said. He loved hummingbirds. But the replica she placed at his grave is gone. Prier went through the pile and didn't find it nor a shepherd's hook that she had traveled to Tangier to find.

Linda Taylor of Locustville said she was devastated when she visited her father's grave last Sunday only to find the site barren.

"People had just trashed the memorabilia," she said. "It just crushed me on Father's Day. I feel like someone has taken something away from me. ... You can't put an angel on a loved one's grave. Where do you draw the line?"

"The grave is well maintained," Taylor continued, explaining that her mother visits it regularly. "It gives her comfort. ... There was a better way to do this."

"I think they need to apologize," said Rebecca Eskridge of Onley. She said she was "frantic" when she realized her daughter's gravesite had been disturbed. "When I went digging through to find my daughter's stuff, things were broken that were not broken before."

IS YOUR HOME AND EQUIPMENT PROTECTED FROM LIGHTNING AND ELECTRICAL POWER SURGES?

Don't wait until you lose your TV, computer or a major appliance...

DID YOU KNOW...

One-half of all lightning fires occur each year in July and August.

Many homeowner policies don't cover lightning strikes.

The average home gets hit with more than 20 electrical spikes every day.

Surge protectors give you up to 30% more life out of your appliances and electronic equipment.

Lightning accounted for 101,000 laptop and desktop computer losses in one year alone.

you attend. I love to go, but between money for tickets, food, drinks, program, and souvenirs, it adds up quick!"

"We visit race tracks when we travel so we can see the pit area and what the track is like," said Lisa W. Lewis of Onancock. "But I like being able to watch the instant replays and the analysis on TV on race day. I have thought that it would be nice to go to Daytona for the 500 just once, for the experience."

"I would love to see the old Tasley Fairgrounds racetrack banked, paved and hosting a NASCAR-sanctioned event," wrote Don Amadeo of Tasley. "I'd just like to see a dirt track race there again like I remember my father taking me to when I was a kid. Those were some fun times!"

Unfortunately, most agreed that a track here would have drawbacks.

"We need an economic boost on the Shore, but this would be a once-a-year thing and wouldn't exactly be beneficial," wrote Linda Regula of Machipongo. Still, "nothing beats the sound at the start of the race, (I) can't hear it that well on TV."

"The smallest tracks now seat more than 100,000 people and must be able to handle the air traffic (planes and helicopters)," wrote Wesley Edwards of Craddockville. "Could the Eastern Shore handle 100,000 people from Wednesday to Sunday night? I don't think so."

"I love the suspense, the hard-core racing and watching each car manufacturer bring their A-game," said Crystal Bagwell of Bloxom. "I would like to see NASCAR go all out the way it used to be — no restrictor plates and if Dodge has a hemi, then let them race it!!!"

Bruce Brinkley of Cape Charles was "a kid and sold programs in the '50s at a dirt track in Princess Anne County." He liked "everything a kid likes: loud cars, junk food, dirt and dust flying everywhere (and) car crashes. I would watch the race from the roof of the local fire truck."

Carol A. Glowacki of Nassawadox wrote,

"Charlotte was my favorite track because of the sound of the pack when they came off of turn four in formation after the second or third lap when they were up to full speed. That's just awesome!"

Justis agreed. "Turn up the volume. Let it crank!"

"Take restrictor plates off the cars at Talladega and Daytona and let 'em race!" Glowacki continued. "I'd also like to see the drivers be allowed to 'be themselves' instead of having to play the corporate game and not being able to speak their minds and express their feelings publicly."

The favorite driver of those surveyed is 37-year-old Jeff Gordon.

"He is nice and wears a nice race outfit," wrote Chris Fazekas of Quinby. "He is my favorite driver in the whole wide world!!!"

Justis agreed. A former Bill Elliott fan, he picked Gordon when he was still new to the sport. "He raced in a few Cup events. I really liked him and decided that was my choice. No wins, not many races and a brand new rookie driver!! No one can say that I only went with him because he was winning, but boy, has he!!!"

Shirley Fauber gave no special reason for picking Gordon above the rest. "I just like him," she wrote. "Brian Whitesell of his team lived beside us when we were growing up in Stuarts Draft, Virginia."

Lewis said she likes Gordon for several reasons. "He wins races, he's a good sport even when he loses a race, he races clean, he looks at the big picture, he represents his owner and sponsor in a professional way (and) he's won four championships and is still racing. The guy loves to race. This year may be his last if his back injury can't be fixed. I hope not," she said.

Glowacki has other reasons for her choice. "I used to live and breathe everything Rusty Wallace because he had a cute butt!" she wrote. "Then when he retired, I latched on to Kevin Harvick because I liked his driving style. Definitely a sign of getting older!"

Bagwell's favorite driver is Kasey Kahne. "He took over driving for Evernham Motorsports when Bill Elliott stopped racing full-time. He really showed how good he was during his rookie year with Evernham. He is a skilled driver with much potential to go far in auto racing. But he is also the sweetest person you could ever meet. I've met him and Ray Evernham both and I can say without a doubt that NO ONE could be as nice or as genuine as those two. Kasey has fan club picnics for his fan club members where he mingles with them and takes pictures. He's very down-to-earth and that is a great quality."

Brinkley's favorite driver is Kurt Busch. "He is a family friend and visits us here in Cape Charles."

One survey participant said the acronym NASCAR came about when two cars were stopped at a traffic light and one passenger yelled out the window "Nice Car" pronounced Nace Car. He is from South Carolina.

School Nursing Issues Resurface

By Ron West

At its meeting Wednesday, the Northampton County School Board heard a plea from high-school nurse Linda Morris to find funds to re-instate a nurse's aide for the building.

Funding for the school system's nurse's aides was cut and then reinstated for two of the positions. Current plans call for the school nursing supervisor to be assigned to the high school to fill the gap. Morris cited a critical need for the position to be filled without having the health services coordinator doing double duty as an administrator and a full-time school nurse. She indicated that a similar situation a few years ago had resulted in a health services coordinator leaving the system.

Following the meeting, Superintendent Dr. Richard Bowmaster indicated that the School Board had not reached a final decision regarding the nursing program.

High-school math teacher Sandra Lewis pressed the School Board to put more teeth in grading and retention policies. Lewis indicated that the system of promoting non-performing elementary students was resulting in their reaching the high school unprepared for that level of work. Lewis suggested that the concept of social promotion and the numerous hoops a teacher is required to go through before retaining students is instilling the wrong work ethic in some students. "The schools should consider retaining poor performing students at the elementary level to insure that they are prepared for what they will face at the high-school level," she said. "Our students deserve better than this. Education is the key to their futures."

Also approved was the decision to prohibit the use of cell phones by elementary students and to limit high-school students' use of cell phones to non-instructional hours.

BIRTHS

Amanda J. Burton
Weds Alan R. Lotspeich

The marriage of Amanda Joanne Burton to Alan Rector Lotspeich took place on May 10, 2009, at Magnolia Plantation in Charleston, S.C. Rev. Frank Harris, chaplain, U.S. Air Force, officiated the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Cheryl Maggard of Cayuga, Ind., and Mr. and Mrs. Steven Burton of Marion, Ind. She is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Sam Maggard of Fairmount, Ind.; Mr. and Mrs. Simon Aglikin of Marion; and Mr. and Mrs. Michael Burton of Fairmount.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Lotspeich III, of Parksley. He is the grandson of Gladys T. Salley of Halifax, Va., and the late James R. Salley; and the late Mr. and Mrs. Clyde E. Lot-speich Jr. from Parksley.

The matron of honor was Kristy Weaver, sister of the bride, from Indianapolis, Ind. Bridesmaids were Natalie Lotspeich, sister-in-law of the groom, of Drexel Hill, Pa.; Clare Lotspeich, sister-in-law of the groom, of Midlothian, Va.; and Desiree Chappell and Lauren Gonzalez, both of Charleston. Arianna Gonzalez was flower girl.

Clyde E. Lotspeich III, was his son's best man. Groomsmen were Walter B. Lotspeich, brother of the groom, of Drexel Hill, R. Russell Lotspeich, brother of the groom, of Midlothian, Aaron Bohl of New Church and David Waterfield of Atlantic. Bryce B. Lotspeich of Midlothian, nephew of the groom, was ringbearer. Derek Weaver, brother-in-law of the bride, Zachary Chappell, and Bryan Fox served as ushers.

Patrena Williams served as wedding coordinator.

The bride's sister, Kristy Weaver, sang during the ceremony and accompanied herself on the guitar.

A buffet reception followed the ceremony at the plantation.

The newly-weds are both on active duty in the U.S. Air Force at Charleston Air Force Base. After a honeymoon in Key West, Fla., and Nassau in the Bahama Islands, they reside in Ladson, S.C.

Jason Chalfant 1st To Be Certified

As a high-school sophomore, Justin Chalfant began his computer training when he entered the Computer Systems Technology course that covered the CompTIA A+ objectives. During his senior year, he took and passed the CompTIA A+ and Network+ certification exams at Badger Technical Center (North). He is the first student in the computer systems technology program to accomplish this.

According to Chalfant, "Passing the CompTIA A+ and Network+ exams made it possible for me to earn six college credits."

The certifications will enable him to take advanced courses in college much sooner and reduce the time it will take to graduate.

Marine Science Camp

Kids between the ages of 10 and 17 who love the outdoors and are interested in exploring what lies beneath the waves can spend six days living and learning at a Marine Science Consortium camp.

These overnight camps, which focus on inhabitants of the land and sea, are "geared toward our mission of connecting kids to their environment through hands-on, inquiry-based science," says Lauren Hvorecny, MSC's program manager. "We want kids to find the wonder that lies in muddy tidal flats as well as sharks and dolphins."

MSC offers camps and courses for rising 5th through 12th graders.

Contact The Marine Science Consortium at 824-5636 for more information or visit their Web site at www.msconsortium.org where you can learn about all the camp options and download a registration form.

The Marine Science Consortium is located in Wallops Island, just off Chincoteague Road.

The Scratching Post

By Scoop

It is truly humiliating to be a cat at the Eastern Shore Post.

Today a guy with a big belly came into our office. While patting my head, he asked if my sister and I were pregnant.

He said this about me, the alpha male of this thriving newspaper! The nerve! I was mortified.

Then to add insult to injury, he held Snoop while she purred happily, making a fool of herself. Sometimes it's hard to believe that girl came from the same litter. It's a crying shame.

About an hour later, some lady and her daughter arrived. Both announced that we were beautiful. (Tell us something we don't know.) But then they proceeded to discuss our weight as if we couldn't hear. It's hurtful.

Just because our readers and customers come in and pet me doesn't mean I want any of them to take me home.

This week (as usual), they came by to admire my tiger fur. They want to catnap me.

As long as I remain the king of these parts, I'm staying put.

There's a lot of pressure involved with my job. As the main attraction, I have to put up with the peons — the human part-time and so-called full-time staff. Ha! If they only would realize that sleeping AT the job is what full time is all about.

Earlier this month, while the regular humans were working from home or were away at Dollywood, my sister Snoop and I had to contend with a particularly evil part-timer. There was some celebrating going on for the Post's 10th anniversary.

Angie Crutchley tried to strangle me! When it was time for my medicine, she thought she was Mary Poppins. No, Angie, the act of tightly holding my throat will not make medicine "go down in the most delightful way." And where was the spoonful of sugar?

Angie knows nothing about the sensitivities of felines. She did not keep our litter box fresh. YUCK.

She also watched chick flick television for three straight days. It was humiliating. Not that I was bothered. I just sat on the edge of the desk and passed gas all day ... I mean purred for hours.

I missed Troy Justis while he was on vacation. He makes me work for my treats. Instead of just offering the goods, I have to jump up in the air and catch each one on my tongue. I'm pretty good at it and Troy thinks it's cool. I figure whatever it takes to keep the big guy happy.

Don't get me wrong about what I said earlier; I like it when I have visitors. Perhaps someone would like to take home my loving sister Scoop. That would be nice.

Cemetery 'Clean-Up' Disgraceful

Dear Editor:

This week I was notified by a friend that I needed to come to Fairview Lawn Cemetery in Onancock and collect items from my daughter's grave that had been carelessly thrown in a pile along with many other items from other graves. It looked like the dump. No one should have to rummage through a pile such as that to hunt for your particular personal items.

It broke my heart to see the broken angels, busted Baby Jesus figurines, stuffed animals and even pictures of children and, in my case, ashes from my daughter's father. Fortunately, I was able to find them.

The emotions that came flooding back were overwhelming.

Just because there is a new lawn-care company taking care of Fairview Lawn and a Board of Directors that states "this should have been done a long time ago" does not mean we should not have been given proper notice. I have seen previous lawn-care providers who did a ifne job and did not need to put weed killer around graves or throw our special stuff away.

It is an absolute disgrace to have endured this, especially in such a small community. Surely, there was a better way to handle this. They said a notice of the "clean up" was printed in the Eastern Shore News. Did they forget the Eastern Shore Post or our local radio stations? Or how about a sign at all entrances to the cemetery? It does not take long for news to travel.

I hope we can find some compassionate and sincere people to take care of our loved ones' memorial areas.
