'Shepparding' the Arts in Cape Charles

How one family's vision became an arts-based tourism lodestone

By Stefanie Jackson

Clelia Sheppard made it her personal goal "to shine a spotlight on the people of Cape Charles and the lower Eastern Shore" after moving here about 25 years ago. Her sustained efforts founding and working in numerous Northampton County art organizations have established her as a leader in the Shore arts movement.

The Harbor for the Arts Festival and Experimental Film Virginia, which kicked off June 30 and July 1, respectively, are both in their fifth years as Sheppard's vision and passion for art on the Eastern Shore continues to resonate with artists and audiences alike.

That passion was likely ignited by Sheppard's mother, Sheila Cardano, a professional London theatre actress who directed many of the Palace Theatre plays produced by Arts Enter, the nonprofit her daughter founded. Each member of Sheppard's family has played a role in the development of Arts Enter and the Cape Charles art scene.

Sheppard was born in Italy, and earned degrees from the Academy of Art in Rome. She discovered the Eastern Shore when she and her husband moved from California to Virginia Beach as he began his medical career. They were pleasantly surprised how the Shore "reminded us of the Italian coastline," she said. Its "beautiful countryside" became home. Sheppard's parents moved from Italy and the family settled in Cape Charles.

Sheppard said she found her calling when she set foot in the art-deco style Palace Theatre, built in 1942. She was determined to renew the "gem" and "share my love of the arts."

In 1997, Sheppard founded Arts Enter "to bring the arts to Cape Charles." In 1998, the organization purchased the Palace Theatre, which became the hub of activity for Arts Enter and the cultural heart of the town.

Sheppard said, "My family has grown up within the walls of the Palace Theatre," and Arts Enter has grown around them. Daughters Renata, Sheila, and Clelia Jane led the organization's first dance class, taught music and violin, and sang onstage, respectively. Her son, Sean, was Arts Enter's first light and sound technician. Her sister, Luisa Gazzolo, acted onstage and served on the board. Her husband, John, "offered his support... even at times when our family could least afford it."

In July 2012, Arts Enter received a grant from the National Endowment for the Arts to "help transform communities into lively, beautiful and sustainable places with the arts at their core." Sheppard, her daughter Sheila, and Arts Enter Co-Director Mary Ann Roehm helped write the grant. The two-year grant funded the first Harbor for the Arts Festival in Aug. 2013, whose motto was "free, live entertainment in public spaces for all to enjoy."

The festival created an "explosion of art" in Cape Charles. For two consecutive weeks, five art events took place daily in town, including concerts in the park, plays at the theatre, and skits in the coffee house. The festival returned in summer 2014.

In 2015, when the NEA grant ended, Arts Enter board members disagreed on the future of Harbor for the Arts. They discussed cutting Experimental Film

Church Robbery Victim Beaten, Detained for $44

By Linda Cicaira

Bertisha Rose Johnson, of Onancock, had a cocaine relapse earlier this year. In May, she was desperate to get cash so she could return money to her son's debit account before he realized she'd spent it on drugs, according to testimony at a preliminary hearing held in Accomack General District Court Monday.

With 23 criminal convictions behind her, the 52-year-old Bayside Road resident arrived at a church on May 24. She wasn't going there to pray or seek redemption. She was dressed in black, complete with a matching ski mask and a pistol that she later used to beat a worker who was struggling to get away from her, the victim testified.

Johnson tied the woman up after getting about $44.

Judge Gordon Vincent found probable cause to certify charges of robbery, abduction, eluding, assault of a law enforcement officer and use of a firearm to an Accomack grand jury, which will meet next month. He denied her attempt to seek bond.

Daughter and mother Renata (left) and Clelia Sheppard

Commonwealth's Attorney Spencer Morgan said he would not prosecute the multiple traffic infractions that were made against Johnson and those offenses were dismissed. The defendant did not testify. She will

Chincoteague Council Mulls Marina Purchase, Asks for More Time

By Linda Cicaira

Chincoteague officials discussed buying Capt. Bob's Marina on the south-side of the island for $2 million Monday night, but agreed the Oct. 31 deadline for closing the deal was too soon and the non-refundable down payment of $150,000 was too high to consider seriously.

The town council informally agreed to write back to Henry Custis, the lawyer who represents owner Donna Rae Roeske to ask for more time and a lower deposit.

Roeske spoke earlier in the session but made no comment publicly regarding the panel's request.

"It's unbelievable what can be done," said Roeske, admitting, "it's looking pretty poor thanks to Hurricane Sandy ... One thing about Capt. Bob's, it brings revenue." The property comes with 114 boat slips, some need to be rebuilt. The five-acre parcel is a good spot for those staying at hotels and motels and have no where to park their boat trailers, she said, "That's another revenue."

"Twenty-seven minutes," by boat, "the fishing is like the flounder fishing in the 60s and 70s," she said. "The Back Bay waters can't compare," she continued, mentioning a nearby "shark fishery. Capt. Bob's can pay for itself in a short time."

"I know I'm in the ghetto down there," Roeske said. "We need to make it attractive ... enjoy the sunsets ... preserve ... maintain it as recreational ... you can have a doggie park."

"Everybody knows I'm a Facebook queen," said Vice Mayor Denise Bowden. "So I put it out there." She got 438 comments in 72 hours with "overwhelming support of the town trying to purchase this land," she said. The marina could go to private enterprise for a lot higher price.

Bowden urged the others to "explore every option ... to have a space that could never see a condo, never see a hotel ... I would love to see our future generations grow up with what we grew up with ... we should all work towards making it happen."

"I don't think it's fair to put this town in the position to compete with private enterprise," said Councilman Jim Frese. Twenty years ago the town budget was $3.5 million. Now it is $8 million. "We can't keep that up folks ... we're going to spend ourselves into the poor house." He said another $500,000 to $750,000 would be needed to improve the property. "I don't think that's a good idea ... our business is to look out for the health and safety of the citizens."

Councilman Eddie Lewis' concern was the cost, especially the down payment. "We worked hard last year not to do a budget increase," he said. "Where are we going to come up with this money? How much tax increase" would be needed? he asked.

"Under different circumstances, I would be very open," said Councilman Gene Taylor.

"I think we would be losing a wonderful opportunity, if we don't at least make the effort," said Councilman Ben Ellis.

Councilwoman Ellen Richardson said grant money for infrastructure might be available but not for the purchase. "We don't have the money," she said. "I don't know how we would get it. It would be an asset. I would hate to see us lose this opportunity."

Mayor Arthur Leonard only votes in a tie. He was skeptical grant money could be found since only $700,000 was available for all of Virginia this year. "Two million is getting your foot in the door," he said.

Donna Mason was among those who purchased the waterfront property downtown where Robert Reed Park now stands. They held the land until the town was able to buy it. "If there is a will, there is a way," she said. "Can anybody in this room say that was a mistake? ... I'm proud of every minute I put in it."

"God is not creating land anymore," said Barbara Huffman Walker. "We can find money for just about anything

EXMORE SPEED ENFORCEMENT: SPEED TRAP OR HIGHWAY SAFETY?

By Stefanie Jackson

At least one Eastern Shore citizen took issue with Exmore town manager Robert Duer's recent comment that law enforcement "didn't cost citizens a dime this year." Revenue from police fines totaled more than half a million dollars last fiscal year, exceeding the annual cost to run the police department.

Orest Pelech, of Onancock, attributed this revenue to speed traps, which have "nothing to do with safety, public order or enforcement of any reasonable law," but instead create a "double bind" for Eastern Shore visitors attracted by local businesses.

Exmore Police Chief Angelo DiMartino disagreed. "Exmore is definitely not a speed trap," he stated. While fines do generate revenue, highway safety is the police department's foremost concern. DiMartino said that Exmore has a "serious problem with people traveling at high rates of speed... and [causing] accidents."

When Exmore traffic enforcement increased, the number of reported crashes decreased - from 28 crashes in the 2015-2016 fiscal year, to 19 crashes in the 2016-2017 fiscal year.

Pelech recommended the National Motorists Association website, speedtrap.org, for drivers wanting to avoid what he termed "highway robbery." The site claims there are speed traps in Accomac, Belle Haven, Cape Charles, Cheriton, Chincoteague, Eastville, Exmore, New Church, Onancock, and Onley.

The National Motorists Association defines a speed trap as "wherever traffic enforcement is focused on extracting revenue from drivers instead of improving safety, made possible by speed limits posted below the prevailing flow of traffic."

Exmore, like most Eastern Shore police departments, DiMartino said, participates in the Department of Motor Vehicle's traffic enforcement grant program. DMV monitors the grants, with the goal of decreasing the number of police fines issued by 10 percent each year.

DiMartino affirmed that Exmore police officers are not "hiding behind billboards," and that studies justify the 45 mph reduced speed zone. Police vehicles and speed limit signs are clearly visible. Drivers are repeatedly warned of the reduced speed zone by four "45 mph" signs along the southbound lanes of Route 13, and three along the northbound lanes. Each measures 60 inches tall and 30 inches wide, or, as DiMartino estimates, about the size of a car hood.

Exmore police typically issue violations to drivers traveling at least 15 mph over the 45 mph speed limit, between 60 and 90 mph. DiMartino said the force protects many pedestrians, bicyclists and other drivers on the road. Catching speeders often allows police the opportunity to apprehend individuals with illegal drugs in their possession or warrants against them, which "increases highway safety and decreases the crime rate."

DiMartino's advice to drivers: "Don't speed, don't get stopped."

we want ... it has been given as a gift to us at this price."

The town's budget would have to be adjusted and a public hearing would have to be held before action could be taken.

Residents also questioned the legality of possibly 18 people living in a one-bedroom house on Lekites Drive, where that many bicycles are parked and a garage was made into a bunk house. Leonard said staff would investigate the allegations.

Nine Murders Among Crimes in State Police Report for 2016

By Linda Cicoira

Nine murders/maughters were listed for the Eastern Shore of Virginia in the 2016 state police crime report released recently. Four of the deaths were in Northampton County. The other five were in Accomack.

A Nov. 28, 2016, case in Northampton involved the brutal death of Shelli Lou Crockett, 42, of Keller, who worked at Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital when the facility was still in Nassawadox, where the crimes occurred. She was a former girlfriend of the suspect, Winston Leroy Burton, 58, of Cheriton Cross Road in Cheriton.

A jury trial is set for this Tuesday and Wednesday in Northampton Circuit Court for first-degree murder and abduction. Crockett endured 46 “sharp force injuries of the head, neck, torso and extremities,” according to her autopsy. Both charges against Burton are under third-strike provisions that carry mandatory life sentences as opposed to 20 years to life for murder and 10 years for abduction. The statute does not allow the circuit court judge to suspend any of the sentences because Burton has a history of violence.

A second-degree murder case is coming up in Accomack for Lonnie Medlin, 67, of Silverthorne Road in New Church. He is accused of killing his stepson, 44-year-old Patrick Wescott. Wescott died of a gunshot wound to the torso, according to a medical examiner’s report.

Both Burton and Medlin have admitted to the crimes.

Another murder trial in Accomack, now set for September, could be delayed as the suspect, Zachary Isaiah Townsend, recently asked the court for a new lawyer. Townsend was 17, and lived in Atlantic, when he was charged with first-degree murder, robbery and use of a firearm in connection with the death of Nathaniel (Nate) Adam Ayres, 19, of Deer Drive in Nelsonia. The victim was killed at the intersection of Nock’s Landing and Greta roads. He died of gunshot wounds to the head, neck and torso. A search warrant disclosed at least two people saw Ayres killed on Aug. 12, 2016.

A recent murder trial in Accomack ended with a manslaughter conviction for a 2016 death. A jury recommended Tyquon Demetrius Robins, 25, of Deer Drive in Nelsonia, be sentenced to 20 years in prison for manslaughter and shooting from a vehicle in an incident in which Fardale (also known as Fairdale) Antonio Johnson, 39, of Mapps ville, died a short time later.

In 2016, Elizabeth Madison Ann Jensen, 20, of Sanford, died of gunshot wounds to the head and torso, according to an autopsy. The manner of her death was homicide. Jonan Faricio Gonzales-Funes died from a self-inflicted gunshot wound to the head. The two bodies were found in a vehicle parked at the old ferry dock near Mapps ville on July 16.

The previous month, in Accomack, the body of Eric Clifford Rhatigan, 41, with addresses in both Belle Haven and Eastville, was found in a field about 145 feet from Davis Wharf Road near Craddockville. Police are still investigating that homicide and have released few details.

Authorities in Northampton linked Malik Javon Johnson, 18, of Exmore, to the homicide of Delyn Martin, 51, who was found dead at his Smith’s Beach home in January 2016. The accusation was made during burglary and larceny cases conducted in the county circuit court. One of the crimes involved breaking into Martin’s home. The victim died from gunshot wounds. No charges have been made in the death.

Alexander Hunter Picott-Cleveland,

23, of Arlington Road, was convicted recently of the second degree murder of his first cousin, Ronald Graves, 30, of Portsmouth, on June 18, 2016.

In late January 2016, in Northampton, the remains of Shirley Onley, 70, of the 7200 block of Occohannock Neck Road, were found at the scene of a fire at her home. The case is being handled as a homicide, with the blaze having suspicious origin. No arrests have been made and few details have been disclosed.

Four murders or non-negligent manslaughters were reported in Accomack in 2015. There were two murders in the Northampton town of Exmore in 2015.

Last year, the Accomack County Sheriff’s Office (ACSO) investigated 944 incidents, compared to 964 the previous year. State police officers in Accomack investigated 132 incidents in 2016, compared to 105 in 2015.

Last year, the Northampton County Sheriff’s Office (NCSO) investigated 192 incidents, compared to 248 in 2015. State police in Northampton investigated 55 incidents in 2016, compared to 57 in 2015.

In addition to the murder/maughters, a breakdown of crimes investigated by ACSO last year shows 3 abductions, 7 forcible rapes, 18 other forcible sex crimes, 5 robberies, 17 aggravated-assaults, 328 simple assault/intimidations, 1 arson, 112 burglaries, 243 larcenies, 24 vehicle thefts, 4 counterfeiting/forgeries, 21 frauds, 11 embezzlements, 172 destruction/damage/vandalisms, 13 drug/narcotic offenses, 1 non-forcible sex offense, 6 weapons law violations and 4 pornography cases.

Northampton in 2016, officers also investigated 1 forcible rape, 2 arsons, 1 vehicle theft, 1 counterfeit/forgery, 3 frauds, 2 embezzlements, 45 drug/narcotic cases and 1 weapons violation.

Cape Charles police investigated 18 criminal incidents in 2016. There were 1 simple assault/intimidation, 2 burglaries, 4 larcenies, 1 vehicle theft, 9 destruction/damage/vandalisms and 1 drug offense.

Chincoteague police investigated 142 incidents in 2016. have that opportunity at trial.

Joanne Boyko, business manager at St. Peter the Apostle Roman Catholic Church, on Coastal Boulevard in Onley, quickly knew “something wasn’t right” when Johnson came through the church door but “didn’t look at me.”

Boyko testified the woman pulled out a gun that was wrapped in a blue grocery store bag and demanded money. “I told her we made a deposit the night before,” Boyko said, offering petty cash in an envelope. But with only $22 inside, “She didn’t seem very happy with that. She was looking around the office ... for a camera or I don’t know what. She said put your hands behind your back.”

“We are a church, we can help you,” Boyko said she told the robber.

“You can’t help me for what I’ve done,” the robber answered, according to Boyko.

“She spotted my purse under the desk,” took another $22 and tied her hands behind her back. Boyko said she wanted her to go to the kitchen and sit on a stool but she was unable to balance herself there. Instead Johnson took a garbage bag and twisted it like a rope and tied Boyko to a drawer.

Johnson hadn’t really done a great job of tying it, Boyko said. She was able to get her hands apart, but waited until Johnson got closer to her to rebel.

The priest and three nuns were down the hall at a meeting. Boyko urged the robber to get closer to them by inviting her to go into the temporary church room. “Why don’t you go in, and take anything you want?” Boyko urged.

Johnson didn’t obey. She closed the door and came back to Boyko. She had covered her mouth with a cloth and asked for her car keys.

When she got close enough, “I lunged at her hand and grabbed it (the gun) they struggled and she (Johnson) continuously hit me in the head with the gun.”

Boyko started screaming and the suspect fled.

Boyko said she got hit “right up on the crown of my head ... It was a pistol ... I think she might have hit me at least five times. She didn’t talk she just kept on hitting me.”

Since then, the victim received a letter from Johnson. “It was directed to me at the church. She was sorry for what she did. She seemed to be very unhappy with Accomack County ... I guess that she had been judged too harshly and things had not gone right for her.”

Boyko said the priest heard the screaming but thought it was children playing outside. When asked to identify Johnson, Boyko pointed at the defendant and said, “I believe that’s the lady there. I was looking directly into her eyes ... I saw her very brown eyes.”

Johnson confessed to the crimes, according to the police report. She is being held in Accomack Jail without bond.

Trooper Kurt Johnson was doing a stationary radar of vehicles on Drummond-town Road, near Accomack, not long after the robbery occurred. He clocked the suspect going 41 in a 25-mph zone. She failed to stop and a chase ensued. He backed up to try to block the vehicle and was struck. The vehicle went southbound in the northbound lane. “I had to go and turn around to follow,” he wrote in the court file. He lost her but she eventually abandoned the vehicle and was captured on foot.

Virginia. In March, Sheppard resigned as Arts Enter's executive director, pledging to remain a board member “ad infinitum.” In 2016, she took over Stage Door Gallery, next to the Palace Theatre. The leased, ground-floor space was renovated, and re-opened that April with a fresh face and new name: Lemon Tree Gallery.

The gallery partnered with nonprofit organization GEAR (Global Exchange Arts Roundtable), founded by Renata Sheppard, who had become a well-connected international artist. GEAR ensures the yearly continuance of Experimental Film Virginia. Renata Sheppard has written several grants for the project.

The Sheppards believe art is interactive. Clelia Sheppard encourages group discussions and activities every Friday night at Lemon Tree Gallery, and Renata Sheppard continues global art community outreach through Experimental

Over the past two weeks, the visiting experimental film artists have infused Cape Charles with creative energy and enthusiasm, leaving an impression that Experimental Film Virginia and the Cape Charles art scene will thrive for years to come.

Arts Enter continues to support the annual Harbor for the Arts festival, now comprised of the summer concert series held in Cape Charles Central Park and the Palace Theatre.

Northampton Grand Jury

An Eastville man, who resisted arrest in January by fighting with Northampton deputies for more than 30 minutes — despite being hit multiple times with a taser — was indicted by a county grand jury on seven felony counts and will face trial for more than 10 other offenses.

Everado Maldonado-Rosales, 25, of Robins Circle in Eastville, was indicted for the first incident, hit and run with injury, that occurred on Stone Road, on Dec. 30, 2016. Trooper W. Wallace investigated and had issued warrants for the defendant's arrest.

Deputies were answering a noise complaint on Jan. 15, 2017, at the William Hughes Apartments, on Lankford Highway in Eastville, and found a party with alcohol, marijuana and underage participants.

Deputy William Lewis recognized Maldonado-Rosales, a passenger in a truck that had driven up to the site. Lewis called his office to verify that the defendant was still wanted. While he made the call, Maldonado-Rosales went around to the side of the apartments. When Lewis and Deputy Daniel Bell went to find him, he was urinating on the side of the building. They told him he could finish, but then needed to put his hands on the wall, so they could arrest him, court records state.

Lewis, who investigated the incident, wrote, "Bell and I gave him verbal commands to stop resisting arrest and tried to restrain him ... he was able to slip free and ran around the building. I was able to catch him and take him to the ground with the intent to restrain his movement and handcuff him there ... Maldonado-Rosales was actively resisting by pulling away ... he was kneeling, kicking and punching in any attempt to break free from us. I witnessed Maldonado-Rosales grabbing ... Bell's vest and saw him rip off ... Bell's badge," Lewis continued.

"I delivered several knee strikes to his right thigh while trying to detain him," Lewis wrote. Maldonado-Rosales told officers "he was giving up and was telling us to stop, but continued to fight with us. He was able to break free from us again and I deployed my taser, striking Maldonado-Rosales with no effect. He then ran back towards where we initially began our arrest and I deployed my taser again, which caused Maldonado-Rosales to fall to the dirt. As Deputy Bell and I got to him," the taser stopped working, "and we went hands-on again."

Deputy Carlos Moyano "then ran over to our location and ordered Maldonado-Rosales to put his hands behind his back and deployed his taser (twice) with no effect." Lewis wrote, his father "was continually walking around all of us and speaking to his son in both English and Spanish and refused orders multiple times ... to back up, stay back and stop interfering."

During the scuffle, the defendant was able to grab a taser. "He was drive stunned twice." Maldonado-Rosales also bit Lewis three times and attempted to take his gun.

He kicked Bell "in the ribs and bit me on the right hand." Bell's glasses were ripped from his face and destroyed.

Moyano was spit on, hit numerous times in the upper body and neck. He "managed to grab my radio and remove it from my duty belt," the deputy wrote.

Two officers, one from Exmore and another from Cape Charles arrived and the group was finally able to detain the suspect.

Maldonado-Rosales was convicted of a third offense of DUI in 2013 and sexual battery in Newport News in 2016. Records state he has an "extensive juvenile record."

The jury indicted him on counts of attempting to disarm an officer, disarming an officer of a stun gun, assault and battery of deputies Lewis, Bell and Moyano, and malicious injury of Lewis. Lesser charges of obstruction of justice, giving false information to an officer, driving on a suspended license and reckless driving were made against Maldonado-Rosales in connection with the December traffic crash. In the January incident, he was charged with attempting to impede an officer, three counts of resisting arrest, two counts of attempting to steal property from Bell and public intoxication.

In another case, Brian Terrell Walker, 32, of Lee Street in Belle Haven, was indicted on counts of forging two checks and then uttering them in March. Lt. A. J. Ferebee of Northampton County Sheriff's Office (NCSO) investigated.

Walker was convicted in Accomack Circuit Court of involuntary manslaughter in the 2010 death of his fiancée's 11-month old son. At that time, he lived in Parksley with the family of the victim.

He was sentenced in accordance with a jury's recommendation to five years in prison. Judge Stephen Mahan also added on a three-year post-release term that holds Walker to more prison time if he misbehaves after being released.

Isaiah died from "blunt-force head injuries," a medical examiner testified during the trial. She said the boy's skull was fractured in three places, his brain was swollen and the encompassing membranes and his retinas hemorrhaged. In addition, bruises marked his face, head, shin, elbow and buttocks and the child's optic nerves were bleeding.

The child's injuries occurred when the boy's mother was at work in a local chicken factory. Walker was on vacation from the plant and was in charge of the daytime care of the boy and his toddler sister. Walker told police he was asleep when the injuries occurred and wasn't aware the child was hurt until the girl awakened him saying the boy "couldn't breathe."

Ricky Levon Doughty, 53, of A. S. West Road in Painter, was indicted on counts of strangulation and assault and battery of his wife, Charron Doughty, on April 28, 2017. Sgt. Adam Zieger, of Exmore Police Department (EPD), said he was called to Madame C. J. Walker Road in Exmore. At the scene, the victim stated "he had put his hands around her neck. I ... saw marks all the way around her neck." He said the defendant "did not have any visible marks on him."

Arthur Willis Bender, also known as Peter Bender, 48, of Mariner Road in Cape Charles, was indicted on a count of destroying property belonging to Lisa Bell and valued at $1,000 or more. The incident occurred Dec. 6, 2016, at Capt. Pete's Restaurant, on Lankford Highway, in the Cape Charles area. Deputy Barry Randall of NCSO investigated.

Bender "came into the restaurant and started slashing the furniture that was going to be donated to the American Legion in Cheriton," the court record stated. Also in the file, a magistrate wrote, "Very rude person. He refused to tell the officer he was co-owner of the business where he slashed the furniture. He refused to talk to officer prior to being detained. When he was on camera, he was not very compliant. Refused to answer standard questions."

Kenneth Gray, 60, of Tall Landing Road in Williamston, N.C., was indicted on a felony count of possession of a Schedule I or II drug and possession of marijuana, which is a misdemeanor. The offenses occurred April 13, 2017. Gray is disabled and told authorities he cannot tolerate smoke. Both Gray and his brother, Wayne Henry, wrote to the court and stated the drugs belonged to Henry.

The brother stated he left the drugs in Gray's vehicle. "I did it to him and I feel bad because he does not use drugs, only his prescriptions, because of his 17 operations," he wrote. Zieger investigated.

Shauntea Arnez Giddens, 39, of Bayford Road in Exmore, was indicted on a count of stealing a Viza Viper scooter on March 4, 2017. "The accused has been convicted two or more times previously of larceny or of offenses deemed to be punishable as larceny," according to the court record. Giddens told police, "He purchased the scooter for $80." Randall investigated.

Fred William Munford III, 22, of Lee Street in Belle Haven, was indicted on two counts of possession or transportation of a firearm by a violent felon. One indictment came in May and was made public Tuesday. Both crimes occurred April 15, 2017. Munford was also charged with brandishing a firearm, which is a misdemeanor. Officer Keith Brady of EPD investigated.

Sentencing in WalMart Facebook Spectacle

An Accomack man whose arrest at Walmart in Onley created a stir on Facebook in May pleaded guilty to three misdemeanor gun charges. A felony charge will not be prosecuted.

For brandishing a firearm, Veronne Drummond, 22, of McCray Lane, was given a 90-day suspended jail term and fined $50. For reckless handling of a firearm, he was sentenced to seven months in jail with all but a month suspended and fined $50. Drummond was given a six month suspended sentence and fined $50 for assault.

Brian Ewell Drewer, 44, of Lankford Highway in Painter, will not be prosecuted for felony possessing a Schedule I or II drug on May 14. He was fined $50 for public intoxication.

Daniel Parkerson Jr., 37, of Exmore, was convicted of petty larceny in connection with an April 13, 2014 incident. He was sentenced to a year in jail with 11 months and 15 days suspended. Parkerson was also fined $200. He was initially charged with grand larceny, a felony.

She graduated from Bryn Mawr College in Pennsylvania with a BS in Chemistry in 1946, then earned an MS in Chemistry there in 1947.

She later attended the Medical College of Virginia, graduating in 1957 as a board-certified anesthesiologist.

Her passing ended a line of five generations of medical doctors serving

Virginians since 1792.

After graduation, Dr. Carmichael practiced in Philadelphia before moving to the Eastern Shore of Virginia to practice with Dr. Philip Gleason.

Her love for animals, especially horses and dogs, was widely known and she was instrumental in starting the Eastern Shore branch of the SPCA.

By Krystle Bono

Daylen Van Linton, a member of Shore Little League, was selected as a finalist for the 2017 Scotts MLB Pitch, Hit and Run National Baseball Finals, held in Miami, Fla.

Linton, a resident of Belle Haven, joined 40 other finalists ages 7–14 from across North America, Monday, to compete during All-Star week during the 2017 MLB All-Star Game at Marlins Park.

Linton finished Runner-Up in the 7–8 year old competition. He had the opportunity to also shag fly balls in the outfield during the Homerun Derby, which was featured on ESPN, as well as attend the MLB FanFest, the Futures Baseball game, the Celebrity Softball game and a special appearance by Bryce Harper – Linton's favorite player – of the Washington Nationals.

As an 8-year-old Linton earned his bid to finals by first, competing locally at Shore Little League's Pitch Hit and Run Competition, where he swept all three categories to earn the titles of Pitch Champion, Hit Champion, Run Champion and then Overall Champion.

He went on to compete at the Sectional Competition held at the Tides' Stadium in Norfolk, where he took home first place. His score was compared to all the sectional competitions across the state and in Washington, D.C., and he placed in the top three, giving way to an invitation to the Washington Nationals' Team Championship on June 11. He performed at the top of his game and took home first place, and after his win, was recognized during the Washington Nationals game against the Texas Rangers the same day.

Fellow Shore Little League participants included Benjamin Stodghill, who placed second in his age group, and Suzanna Long, who also placed second in her respective group.

Team championships were held by all the MLB teams across the country, and Linton's score was among the top three, nationwide. The national finalists were announced live on MLB Network, with Linton among those listed.

The Washington Nationals fan began playing ball at the age of three, and has not looked back. According to his parents, he never stops practicing, and was back on the field as soon as their plane landed after the memorable trip to Miami.

LOCAL ATHLETE FOREVER YOUNG IN SENIOR GAMES TRACK AND FIELD

Neuman Northan, a resident of the Eastern Shore, has participated in track and field for 11 years in various states across the country and has competed in the National Senior Games Association.

Northan participated in the World Games in Florida, where he earned a bronze medal in the long jump with a 13'11" effort. Over the course of his career, he has earned gold, silver and bronze medals.

Most recently, Northan performed in the 50-meter, and after starting off in last-place, fought back to finish second in 7.34 seconds, separating himself from the rest of the pack by 1/10 of a second.

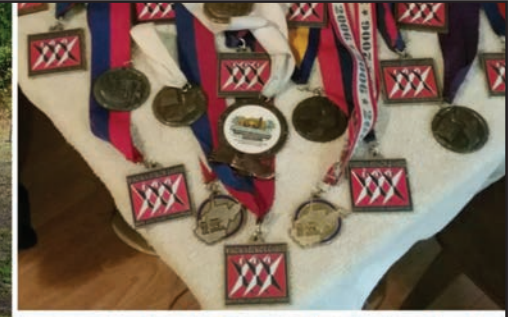

The Shore native also captured a silver medal in the 200-meter by a time of 29.2 seconds. He broke his own record of 13'11" in the long jump, recording his longest leap of 14'6", which earned him a silver medal.

This year, he was qualified to compete in the National Senior Games Competition in Birmingham, Ala., in the 60 – 65 category, but was unable to make it due to lack of sponsorship.

The 60-year-old athlete enjoys the games, and feels that he is doing better than he did 10 years ago.

"It is really a lot of fun to participate in the senior games, and knowing there are other athletes that have more talent [than myself, I] invite others to come out and join in the senior games, where athletes are forever young," says Northan.

Northan would also like to thank Cooper Hummins, the YMCA, Wise Boxing and Fitness in Exmore, the local high schools for allowing him to use their tracks to train, Wayne Burton and Accomack Parks and Recreation, and Perdue Farms for their continued support. Northan also invites anyone interested in joining him to contact the Accomack Parks and Rec office for more information.

Fishing from the Shore

By Bill Hall

The most abundant saltwater fish being caught around the Eastern Shore right now has more names than a Verizon phone book. You often hear it referred to as a mullet, a sea mullet, a sand mullet, a king whiting, a roundhead or even a kingfish (not to be confused with another name for a king mackerel). All these names locally refer to the whiting, and the Eastern Shore is actually the seasonal home to two different species of whiting; the northern whiting (Menticirrhus saxatilis) and the southern whiting (Menticirrhus americanus). The major difference between the two species is the northern variety has more noticeable vertical stripes and its first ray of the dorsal fin is much longer than the other spines, while the southern variety is more uniformly silver in coloration. Both have a barbel (whisker) under their chin.

Whiting are being caught right now by anglers fishing from the ocean beaches, inside the inlets on the seaside and in a variety of depths on the bayside. Despite their small size, adults typically measure 10-15 inches in length and both species make excellent table fare. Whiting are aggressive feeders and will hit a variety of baits fished along the bottom including shrimp, peeler crab, squid and bloodworms. Larger members of the species are often caught on strips of fresh cutbait. There is no real targeted commercial effort for whiting, and it remains one of the last few species without a recreational size or bag limit, so scale down your tackle, get out on the water and enjoy a catch of these tasty panfish.

Chincoteague – Donna Rae, at Captain Bob's Bait & Tackle, described flounder fishing as "sketchy," with keeper flounder hard to catch and few in number. She did reference the waters of Four Mouths as an area that is producing an occasional keeper. On a more positive note, she said that whiting measuring 12-14 inches were being caught from the Canal, all the way out to the inlet, on bloodworm-flavored Fish Bites and bloodworm-scented squid.

Croaker numbers are still well below expected for this time of year. Sharks are abundant, and their numbers are increasing as the water temps continue to climb. Atlantic sharpnose, sandbars and finetooths are three species commonly encountered by inshore anglers dunking cut mackerel and bunker baits. A lot of these sharks are in the 3-to 5-foot range. The opening of the legal offshore shark fishery is expected to produce catches of even larger specimens. Black seabass, spadefish and triggerfish are being caught over the offshore wrecks.

Jimmy, at Captain Steve's Bait & Tackle, reported that flounder and spadefish were being caught around the boxcar reefs offshore, but inside, most of the flounder are throwbacks with a couple of keepers being made off the town pier this week. He had heard of a few croaker catches and lots of whiting action. Sharks were providing plenty of action, (some welcome, some unwelcome) to anglers fishing in the surf and the inlet. A 66-0 cobia was caught in an unusual way, as it hit a trolled lure offshore that was intended for dolphin/tuna. Yellowfin tuna and dolphin (mahi) catches were being made offshore and king mackerel have arrived, with several caught near the Parking Lot and Lumpy Bottom.

Wachapreague – Captain Lindsay Paul, at Trident Tackle, reported that there were a few flounder, but plenty of "horseflies" biting. A nicer class of fish was being caught over and around the inshore wrecks in the cooler water. Large strips of squid or cutbait were the top large flounder baits. Captain Paul said Captain Nat Atkinson, aboard the Foxy Lady, was finding gaffer dolphin and nice-sized yellowfin tuna in the 40-pound class offshore. Most of the action has been occurring along the 20-Fathom line and wherever areas of warm water pop up. Whiting comprised most of the catches inside Metompkin Inlet, as legal-sized flounder numbers continue to fall. Many of the whiting are females and full of roe.

Lower Shore – Chris, at Chris' Bait & Tackle, reported that anglers were catching "coolers full" of whiting with action occurring from buoy 16 off Kiptopeke, all the way down to the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. Cobia action continues to be good for sight casters on clear sunny days. Bottom fishing for cobia was still productive, but anglers were having to deal with more than their share of sharks and rays. The best cobia action has been in the vicinities of buoys 36, 16 and 13. Spadefish and triggerfish were still hanging out at the fourth island of the bridge-tunnel.

Upper Chesapeake Bay – Action

here has fallen off, as surface water temperatures have now reached the mid-80s. It sounds like a broken record, but whiting are the dominant bottom species. A few small spot, with an occasional gray trout, bluefish, croaker and flounder, are being caught in deeper water. Spot numbers and sizes should increase with the warmer water. Schools of cow-nosed rays have invaded the shallows.

Bill Hall was the first Eastern Shore resident to achieve Virginia Salt Water Master Angler Status. He has been named Virginia Saltwater Angler of the Year and Virginia Saltwater Release Angler of the Year. Bill is an I.G.F.A. International Committee Representative and a longtime member of the Virginia Saltwater Fishing Tournament Committee. He is the Virginia Recreation Fishing representative on the ASMFC Striped Bass Management Panel and is a past recipient of the CCA-VA Virginia Outdoor Writer Conservation Leadership Award.

nearly $1,200 from the political unit in 2016. Ann Marie Page will serve four days in jail.

The 63-year-old Accomack woman said at first she accidentally used the party's debit card when she pulled it from her wallet. When she was notified that the account was overdrawn and was going to be closed, she reported her actions to party president, Wesley Edwards. He told police a card had never been issued for the account. Page told authorities she never requested the card, but it came in the mail.

Judge W. Revell Lewis III sentenced Page to six months each for the two misdemeanor charges that occurred between May and December. A plea bargain agreement with the prosecutor's office was mentioned but details of that deal were unclear at press time. All but four days of the terms were suspended. She was ordered to report to jail on Friday evening. Lewis said he considered that she came forward before she got caught and paid restitution. The total amount lost was about $1,350 with bank fees and charges.

"I'm sorry it happened," she told Lewis as she mumbled her many circumstances.

Malicious Wounding Charge

A New Church man was charged with malicious wounding, according to records filed in Accomack General District Court.

Carlos M. Wise, 37, of Pearl Drive in New Church, was accused of the June 13 crime. The file said evidence was "sufficient." The victim was not named in court records.

Deputy Meghann Patterson, of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office, investigated. Secured bond was set at $15,000.

April Pruitt, 40, with addresses in Hallwood and Horntown, was charged with stealing more than $200 that belonged to Bruttani-Lee Selert on July 3, 2017. She was arrested July 8. Deputy Brian Misener investigated. Secured bond was set at $1,500.

Police Seek Suspect in Subway Robbery

Authorities are looking for a man who robbed a clerk at Subway in Onley this week, fled in a vehicle stolen from New Hampshire, was later pursued by Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel police, crashed in Virginia Beach and fled on foot.

Accomack Sheriff Todd Godwin said the robbery occurred a 9:18 p.m., Tuesday. The suspect drove off in a dark-colored Chrysler Sebring and went south on Lankford Highway.

A "be on the lookout" was issued about an hour later. At 2:41 a.m., Wednesday, the bridge-tunnel police observed the vehicle, which would not stop and was chased from the south toll plaza to East Independence Boulevard. That pursuit was called off "due to the speed."

Godwin said, a short time later,

NORTHAMPTON CONSIDERS BROADBAND REQUEST

By Stefanie Jackson

Consolidated Telecommunications Company wants to run miles of fiber optic cable to provide broadband internet to Northampton County, but first they must complete a strategic business plan and have it approved by the board of supervisors.

Joanne Hovis, president of CTC, and Robert Brigdham, executive director of the Eastern Shore of Virginia Broadband Authority, were present at Tuesday's supervisor's meeting to address the board's concerns about the strategic plan, which was originally to be completed by July 15.

Hovis said the strategic plan would be finished within 90 days, delayed due to "lack of shared vision among stakeholders."

The Eastern Shore of Virginia Broadband Authority, created jointly by Accomack and Northampton counties, built the broadband "backbone," running from Virginia Beach to the Maryland border, but many Eastern Shore business owners and residents are still "prisoners of DSL," according to Board Chairman Spencer Murray.

ESVBA cooperates with broadband service providers like Neubeam, which supplies customers with internet via satellite, but the broadband authority touts fiber optic cable as more reliable and secure. Fiber optic customers also avoid the "five o' clock slowdown" that occurs with DSL.

CTC has 90 days to decide whether its strategic plan will follow a full private, full public, or private/public hybrid service model to ensure the best chance of success. Murray recommended a hybrid service model, noting that the biggest drawback of fiber optics is cost, and that the Virginia Beach Police Department reported that the suspect's vehicle was involved in a crash at the intersection of Shore Drive and Point Holly Court. He fled before officers arrived at the scene.

The suspect is described as a white male, 5-feet, 9-inches to 6-feet tall with a medium build.

In addition to the other departments, Onley and Onancock police assisted.

Anyone with information about the case is asked to call the Accomack County Sheriff's Office at 757-787-1131 or 757-824-5666. Tips may be submitted through the sheriff's website at accomackcountysheriffsoffice.org

Northampton is a poor county where, "for a lot of people, broadband is a luxury." He wants the cheapest, most reliable broadband solution for the county, and board member Granville Hogg echoed Murray's view, asking CTC for a "no customer left behind" approach to their plan.

The board of supervisors does not want taxpayer-funded ESVBA to support CTC running fiber optic cable to homes that can't afford the service. ESVBA is currently solvent, with $3.3 million in capital. A budget estimate in ESVBA's public records states that laying fiber optics to Eastern Shore homes will cost $8 million over seven years.

Hogg mentioned Northampton's need for more Wi-Fi hotspots, and Brigdham responded ESVBA was "open to suggestion." The board requested a map to determine where fiber optic cable already exists. They also advised CTC to consider the "speed of technology" when composing their strategic plan for fiber optics, with Murray surmising that one day, smartphones may be able to download six Netflix movies in six minutes on the mobile web.

Murray asserted that "Verizon is not investing in our county," and giving Northampton access to broadband is "critical if we're going to be in the 21st century."

Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Beverly Leatherbury requested a budget amendment of about $12,000 for computer software needed at the commonwealth's attorney's office. She and Commonwealth's Attorney Bruce Jones are currently keeping track of 800 clients served each year using a typewriter, yellow pad, and paper clip system. The board granted Leatherbury's request.

It's that time of year — when thoughts turn to platters heaped with fried chicken and churns of homemade ice cream, served with a side of one-upsmanship.

Yes, sweltering weekends beckon the beginning of family reunion season.

Unlike Christmas and Thanksgiving, which we plan for months in advance, family reunions seem to sneak up and catch us unaware. At holiday gatherings, everyone knows the score and can swing by the neighborhood libations store to prepare. Family reunions, on the other hand, seem to sneak up on us. One week we're watching fireworks, the next we get a call from the appointed family member. Before you know it, we're sitting at concrete picnic tables behind the church hoping the flies don't land before the blessing ends.

I grew up going to family reunions in rural Georgia where my grandparents lived, and where my grandmother (100) and my mother (81) still reside. They also seemed to coincide with revival weeks. Or maybe they're just one big blur in my head. I remember accidentally-on-purpose forgetting to bring a dress to my grandparent's house one summer, thinking it would get me out of revival. My grandmother sat down at her sewing machine and stitched up a dress in less time than it took my two brothers and sister to get showered and changed. Can I get an "Amen?"

For a week's worth of nights, we sat in that un-air-conditioned church, waving funeral home fans praying. Boy, did we pray. Lord, please get me through this without passing out. Keep me from looking at my brothers, who always made me laugh. There were few sins more unparadonable than laughing in church.

But, oh, those dinners on the grounds. Everyone jockeyed for position around their favorites: the one platter of home-fried chicken, the deviled eggs, burnt caramel cake. Seasoned reunion-goers know better than to try a gelatin salad in this heat. And only amateurs make a second trip for dessert: that favorite you were eyeing will be long gone. Pile that baby on top, on a napkin, or in your spare hand. If you have to go back, go back for a drink. That is your tip of the day. You're welcome.

But back to family reunions. They were not my favorite way to spend time growing up. We lived far away, and I knew few people outside our immediate family. As I matured, I got to know mostly my grandmother's people, on both sides of the family. What wouldn't I give now to go back to those reunions.

I rode with Denise Bowden on one of her Teaguer's Tump Tours this week. Hearing her talk about her grandparents and Chincoteague days gone by made me nostalgic. She said she offers this advice to young people on her tour: "If you still have grandparents, go see them." To that, I would add parents. I have both, and now I'm motivated to make time this summer to go see my mom and grandmother. I hope it coincides with a family reunion.

Can I get an "Amen?"

Exmore Police Ticket Not Very Welcoming

Dear Editor:

I read with interest your article on the town of Exmore wanting to increase visitors to their town. Having a home in the area I agree something needs to be done as the number of empty stores has increased over the past few years. But I believe it is critical that the police force get on board with any attempt to welcome visitors. The comment alone about the police department did not cost the citizens a dime clearly indicates how the town looks at visitors - as cash cows. A friend of mine was recently traveling through the town and was given two speeding tickets at the same time! The officer sat close to the speed limit sign and ticketed him for speeding in one area and another for the second area. Yes, he was speeding and should have been ticketed, but the second ticket is excessive. Do you think he will visit me again? Yes. Do you think he will visit Exmore again? NO WAY. So much for welcoming visitors.

Exmore Police Save the Day

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to publicly express my gratitude to the Exmore Police Department and the 911 system dispatcher of June 27, 2017. Although I am uncertain if words of gratitude are enough to adequately express my feelings and thoughts, I have intense admiration for the entire 911 process after personally experiencing rescue.

It was extremely hot on June 27. My car read 88 degrees. My sweet little dog has been suffering with cancer as well as a ruptured ligament in his rear leg. Consequently, he is unable to walk and I use a stroller to take him outside. I was visiting with my mom and he needed to go outside. So, I strolled him to the end of the road, he did his business and we returned to my car. As it was so hot, I placed the key in the ignition and turned it to battery with the air conditioner on high, placed him on the passenger seat and shut the car door.

I walked to the driver door, pulled the handle and to my horror discovered the car was locked with my sweet little dog inside. I was unable to get it unlocked with a coat hanger and was contemplating breaking out the back window. I was in panic mode. My mom suggested the police and called 911.

The dispatcher was extremely efficient and kind. She placed a call to the Exmore police and then got directions from my dad. Within 10 minutes or less a police officer arrived and unlocked my car. The Exmore police officer, Angelo, was professional, never made me feel ridiculous or foolish for locking the dog in to begin with and adeptly unlocked the door with ease. In my opinion he is a hero.

We thanked him profusely but I wanted to thank him publicly. Police officers are often vilified, due to the nature of their profession, to uphold the law. To some it may seem as though a dog locked in a hot car is not an emergency but to my family it was a tragedy. I am thankful for the efficiency, kindness and professionalism of the 911 dispatcher and Angelo. I am thankful for the kind officer who rescued my dog on this hot summer day.

Chincoteague Drivers: Slow Down!

Dear Editor:

I was born on this island in 1932. As a resident I have seen many changes. Most were for the people it would serve best. Some, it made life a little better. The speed limit is the one I must address now. Many signs are posted all over the island stating 25 miles per hour. It seems slow for someone in a hurry but it is a safe speed if you should have to stop, if you need to prevent an accident or worse. I like many have broken that law occasionally. I live on Ridge Road and since the new bridge's traffic pattern has changed, our traffic has doubled. The amount does not bother me as much as the speed. Some think it is a highway and drive like it is, others respect the signs. A lady stopped to talk to me this week, she was very upset. She had not been here a week but had witnessed two cats killed. The driver was driving at such a high rate of speed, if it was a person or a vehicle in the way, you know what would have happened. It is time the police work some other area of the island than Maddox Boulevard. If not, maybe cats today but tomorrow, our children.
