Two Die in Crash

By Linda Cicoira

Two Craddockville residents were killed in a single-vehicle traffic accident Monday night near Pungoteague. Sgt. Michelle Anaya of the Virginia State Police said alcohol was a factor in the crash.

Cecilio Purneda Alaniz, 55, was driving a 1996 Buick Century on Route 178 (Bobtown Road) just north of Route 609 (Michael's Hill Road) just north of Pungoteague at about 10:15 p.m. when the vehicle went off the road to the right, struck a tree stump and overturned.

Both Alaniz and his front seat passenger, Shirley Mae Tate, 72, died at the scene, Anaya said. Two unidentified passengers in the back seat were listed as having "non-life threatening injuries." They were taken to Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital.

All the occupants were wearing seat belts.

Anaya said Trooper R.C. Brown is continuing an investigation of the incident. (Mr. Alaniz's obituary is on Page 11.)

Accomac Attorney Named Circuit Court Judge

By Cheryl Nowak

Last Friday, at a special session, the General Assembly unanimously elected Accomack County attorney W. Revell Lewis III as judge of the Second Judicial Court, including Accomack and Northampton counties, for an eight-year term. Lewis is slated to be sworn in on Aug. 26.

While Lewis had been recommended for the position by the local bar association, his appointment was held up beyond the normal General Assembly session last spring by budgetary and political delays.

Commenting on his selection to the bench, the new judge said, "I'm just honored to have been elected by the legislature and I'm looking forward to serving the commonwealth."

Gov. Bob McDonnell applauded the election of several circuit court judges, including Lewis. "I congratulate these newly-elected justices and judges on their election," said the governor. "I also thank the General Assembly for taking action to fill these vacancies so that justice can continue to be served in our commonwealth."

Said state Sen. Ralph S. Northam, who represents the Shore, "I am happy that we were able to come together and put this behind us to ensure that justice will be administered swiftly and fairly. I commend my colleagues on both sides of the aisle for setting aside their differences and putting the citizens of the Eastern Shore ... first."

Regarding Lewis' appointment, Eastern Shore

Del. Lynwood Lewis (no relation) said, "With the unanimous vote in the House of Delegates in April, I was optimistic that this position would ultimately be filled. It is so important to the Shore. Today's vote makes W. Revell Lewis III the Eastern Shore's resident judge and he will do an outstanding job. Thanks also to all Eastern Shore citizens who helped make the importance of funding and filling this position well-known in the General Assembly."

Pizza Hut Murder Suspect Pleads Not Guilty

By Linda Cicoira

The accused killer of pizza parlor manager Johnny Strand pleaded not guilty to the crime at an arraignment last week in Accomack Circuit Court. Fernando Carrillo Sanchez, formerly of Dreamland #1 in Accomac, waived his right to a trial by jury.

He allegedly bludgeoned Strand until dead with a blue "Little League" aluminum baseball bat and was recently found competent to stand trial by a court-appointed doctor. The case is slated to go before a judge on Sept. 15.

Sanchez, who has several aliases, including Fernando Martinez-Alex and Fernando S. Carillo, speaks little English and is considered illiterate, according to court records. His immediate family still lives in Mexico, where he was born and raised. Court records also state he has never before been charged with a crime and that he had difficulty in school and quit in the second grade.

The 24-year-old communicated with the court and a doctor during a recent mental evaluation through an interpreter. His name was printed on the waiver filed with the court. It states in part, "I understand my right to trial by a jury and wish to waive that right, and agree to be tried by a judge sitting without a jury ... I have discussed this right with my attorney," Garrett Dunham of Eastville.

Psychiatrist Dr. C. Arthur Nalls III wrote in a letter to the court on June 16, 2011, that Sanchez "has been living with a group of peers ... he denies any use of drugs or alcohol other than stating that at one time he drank one beer and got drunk. He has been in this country for two years and knows limited English, ostensibly he has been working with other Hispanics painting houses and evidentially was doing that at the time of his incarceration."

Nalls' letter continues, "The jail nurse report(ed) that Mr. Sanchez tends to hang around a number of Hispanics and seemingly is acting appropriately. Dr. (John D.) Ogram has him on two medications. One for sleep ... and one for possible hallucinations although Dr. Ogram reports that he is far from convinced that he is having any type of hallucinations."

"It is my impression," Nalls wrote, "that his mental status and mental state as far as understanding right and wrong and being able to discriminate between right and wrong are essentially the same at the time of the examination as it was at the time of the alleged offense."

"He was clearly able to relate details quite coherently about the time and circumstances of events that occurred during the time of the alleged offense," the doctor continued. "His memory appeared quite clear in that regards. He may need further information in regards to the court procedures because of his limited education and I suspect his limited IQ. I suspect that his judgment is somewhat impaired. I do feel like he can contribute to his own defense and help in his own defense with further education about the court system and an adequate interpreter to help explain the situation to him."

"At the time of his alleged offense, it is my opinion that he was capable of distinguishing right and wrong and capable of understanding the consequences of his behavior," Nalls wrote. "As far as any future dangerousness, I would not speculate beyond the fact that he has to the best of my knowledge had no prior incarcerations or legal difficulties until his current situation."

Evidence at a preliminary hearing revealed that a 10-page interview with confession was taken from and signed by Sanchez after a two-hour police interrogation. The document was entered as a court exhibit but was not left for public viewing.

Bits and pieces of testimony revealed that Strand brought Sanchez to his home sometime on the night or early morning that Strand died. The defendant claims Strand forced him to have sex. There was no sign of a struggle at the scene, officers testified.

Judge Gordon Vincent found probable cause to certify the charge of second-degree murder against Sanchez to a Circuit Court grand jury.

On Dec. 10, 2010, the now retired Judge Glen A. Tyler found "that the defendant's actions during the time of the alleged offense may have been affected by mental disease or defect and that it is necessary to determine the defendant's mental condition at the time of the offense and his competency to stand trial." He appointed Nalls to evaluate the defendant.

According to court records, the trial was set for May 12, 2011, but was continued until Aug. 18 so the mental evaluation could be performed.

In other cases:

•George Harry Gaskill Jr., 46, of Onley was sentenced for the April 4, 2010, unauthorized use of a vehicle to five years in prison, with all but 18 months suspended. He was ordered to pay $4,733 in restitution to State Farm Insurance Co.

•Shakeva Matthews, 23, of Tasley was convicted of unlawful wounding in the stabbing of Rojohn Singleton in October 2010 and possession of a cell phone by a prisoner in November of that year. She was sentenced to five years on each charge, with all but a year each suspended, to run consecutively. Probation was revoked on a 2009 assault-and-battery charge involving Officer B.K. Greer. Previously, two years and two months of that three-year term was suspended.

•William Russell Wood, 51, of Onancock pleaded guilty to the Jan. 1, 2010, grand larceny of 350 water meters belonging to the town while he worked for a town contractor. He was ordered to pay restitution of $1,050 based on the value of $3 each. A presentence report was ordered. Court costs of $1,940 were assessed.

•Mary Etta Nock, 65, of Chincoteague pleaded guilty to misdemeanor domestic assault and battery in connection with a Jan. 1, 2011, incident involving Paul Nock, her son. Court records show she admitted to stabbing him. She had been charged with felony unlawful wounding. She was given a 12-month suspended sentence.

•Amy Gladden Sturgis, 30, of Mt. Nebo Road in Onancock pleaded guilty to the felony of defrauding an innkeeper, and 15 misdemeanor counts of passing bad checks. All the offenses occurred in 2010. Sentencing was deferred. She was released on an unspecified existing bond.

•Bond was denied for Macio LaFonzo Stewart, 35, of Christopher Lane in Painter, who is accused of breaking into Onancock Building Supply on April 10, 2011, and stealing property.

Edwards Throws Hat in Ring for Supervisor's Seat

Wesley Edwards, a local political activist who lives at Scarborough's Neck near Craddockville, officially qualified this week as a candidate for the District 9 seat on the Accomack Board of Supervisors. He will seek the position in the November General Election.

For about five years, Edwards has regularly attended the board's sessions. "Accomack County faces a number of challenges," he said. "Jobs, $13 million in uncollected delinquent taxes, EMS, school budgets, non-funded state and federal programs just to name a few. Our county needs to be run with a steady eye on the financial sources available to us and be prepared to reduce expenses when necessary."

A Navy veteran, Edwards is running as an Independent. He and his wife, Terry, moved to the area about 11 years ago. He retired after 30 years in the textile industry. Born and raised in a blue-collar family in Danville, Va., a tobacco and textile town, he served as president of five different companies, including Schoeller International in Zurich. He earned a Bachelor of Science Degree from Philadelphia College of Textile and Science.

Edwards said he was asked to run the businesses when their outlook was grim and he revived them. "My business career took me from North Carolina to suburban New York," said Edwards. "I ran companies with $50 million to $150 million in revenues. I was responsible for as many as 1,200 people. The employees came from all walks of life, from blue-collar workers to science specialists to corporate management. I know what it means to meet the payroll on Friday and I know how to responsibly run a business."

"Regardless of where I have lived, community involvement and participation have been a priority of mine," he said. "Here on the Shore I currently umpire Little League, high-school baseball and softball. I have been a volunteer both here on the Shore as well as in North Carolina for Habitat for Humanity."

"I have attended most of the Accomack County Board of Supervisors meetings, along with most of the special meetings, including sessions on budgets and taxes," Edwards said. "I have attended more of these meetings than any other regular citizen in this county, giving me a unique insight, knowledge and perspective. I served on the Utility Cost Committee making recommendations to the board for water and sewer projects" and the "Wallops Flight Facility Land Swap Committee."

"I have actively participated in or spoken at countless board meetings and voiced opinions on fiscal responsibility and government transparency," he continued. "I am a vocal advocate for the principle that elected officials have a responsibility to those who elected them. I strongly favor balanced budgets, job creation and governments living within their means."

When former Supervisor Phil McCaleb stepped down for health reasons in early 2011, he asked the rest of the board to appoint Edwards to the position. Instead, the majority selected former Supervisor Reneta Major of Boston, who was beat out by McCaleb in an election four years ago. Edwards and Major are both seeking the District 9 seat.

Accomack Grand Jury Hands Down Several Indictments

By Linda Cicaira

Details of the April Fools' Day shoot-out that occurred near Painter were disclosed in court documents made available Monday after an Accomack Grand Jury indicted about 20 county residents on a variety of charges.

Suspects who allegedly beat John Gerald Sepeda Jr. with a baseball bat, shot him in the arm and leg, robbed him, put him in the trunk of a car and then left him for dead in the woods also were indicted.

And the case of a former Onancock clerk accused of embezzling town funds was included in the true bills signed by the foreman of the jury.

Regarding the Painter incident, Jarod Scott Lee, 24, of Boston Road was indicted on counts of attempting to maliciously maim Richmond Southey Johnson, 48, of Village Park Lane in Parksley; Philip Maurice Robinson, 36, of A.S. West Road; and Samuel Randolph Custis, 46, of Christopher Lane in Painter on April 1. Lee also was indicted on three counts of use of a firearm in those alleged crimes.

Johnson, Robinson and Custis were each indicted on a count of possession of a firearm by a felon, also in connection with the incident.

In court records, Investigator R.E. Drummond of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office (ACSO) wrote that three males advised that Lee had been in an altercation with Robinson and threatened to "go get his gun and come back and shoot all" three men who were at Robinson's residence.

Lee "left in a vehicle driven by (Korris) Scarborough, who was shot during this incident," the file states. "Lee returned to the area minutes later armed with a short-barrel, 12-gauge shotgun (and) discharged his shotgun toward them," the record states. Scarborough said he was hit with gunfire from Johnson. Robinson told police he put "a shotgun up against the wall near the front door to his residence" prior to the incident.

In a separate case, former Onancock clerk, Colleen Patricia Reiber, 47, of Wakefield Street in Pungoteague was indicted on two counts of embezzling more than $1,000 of town money between Oct 13, 2010, and April 14, 2011. Special Agent A.R. Ashby of Virginia State Police (VSP) investigated.

At a preliminary hearing in Accomack General District Court in June, Ashby played a video of Reiber allegedly stealing funds that a visitor to the town office used to pay a town bill. "You can see Miss Reiber at her desk and area," said Ashby. "Money was not put in the register but was put to the right of the register," he said and then after a pause added, "currency now in her hand, it goes into her pocket." The officer testified that there were at least four other incidents showing Reiber taking funds.

Donovan Robert Terek Weathers, 18, of Cooper Lane in Accomack; Morris DeShawn Townsend, 18 (17 when the incident allegedly occurred), of Savageville Road in Onancock; and Kentray Devon Bailey, 18, of Tyler Lane in Accomack were indicted on counts of abduction, malicious maiming, robbery of a 1998 Chevy Blazer and use of a firearm in those crimes against Sepeda on April 16, 2011.

Sepeda told police he left his home on Parsons Road in Greenbush to go to Royal Farms in Parksley at around 7:30 p.m. on April 16. Weathers, whom he knew from working at Perdue, "waved" him over. While the two talked, "an unknown vehicle approached their location from the rear of Sepeda's vehicle. Two ... suspects approached Sepeda's ... Blazer. Each armed with shotguns," the file stated.

Sepeda told police he thought Weathers said, "We want all your money." He was then forced from the vehicle, "beaten and shot with a shotgun at least two times." Weathers allegedly "beat Sepeda with a baseball bat he had retrieved from his vehicle ... Sepeda was dumped into the trunk of a car and ... discarded in a wooded area, where he said he played dead so the suspects would leave."

Also indicted were:

- Terry Dean Kinzer, 53, of Chicken City Road on Chincoteague, on a count of unauthorized use of a vehicle belonging to Beverly Bowden on June 2, 2010. Officer T.J. Adams of Chincoteague Police Department (CPD) investigated.

- Samantha Tenica Jarvis, 33, of Big Pine Road in Painter, on a count of grand larceny of a purse and contents belonging to Crystal Simpson on April 10, 2011. Deputy Zach Widgeon of ACSO investigated.

- Beverly Rene Jackson, 45, of Seaside

Road in Melfa, on counts of passing two bad checks between June 9 and June 23, 2007, drawn on BB&T Bank and made payable to H.W. Drummond. Sgt. Anthony Bright of ACSO investigated.

- Michael Allen Isdale, 19, of Accomack Street on Chincoteague, of grand larceny of property belonging to William T. Davis on April 23, 2011. Chincoteague Officer G. Ryan Daisey investigated.

- Charmonique Niketa Hamilton, 29, of Nedab Drive in Locustville, of a third offense of larceny in connection with property belonging to Katherine Zahn between Jan 20 and Jan. 21, 2011. Lt. Gerald Goga of ACSO investigated.

- Termaine Rayell Reid, 25, of Jackson Street in Parksley, on a count of felony shoplifting from Fresh Pride in Parksley on May 5, 2011. Officer D.W. Kilmon of Parksley Police Department (PPD) investigated.

- Ray Ellis Townsend 54, of Townsend Lane in Atlantic, on counts of forging and passing bad checks for $2,451 and passing a bad check for $150, all on April 20, 2011. Daisey and Kilmon investigated.

- Patrick Allan Seely, 29, of Oceanview Way in Parksley and Hubert Chancellor Herring III, 35, of Lankford Highway in Temperanceville, charged with grand larceny of property belonging to Taylor and Fulton on April 9, 2011. Bright investigated.

- Isaac Sample Jr. of Accomack, on a third offense in 20 years of assault and battery of a household member. The offense allegedly involved Laneen Sample and occurred on Dec. 13, 2010. Deputy Ed Perry of ACSO investigated.

- Roman Morales-Hernandez of Greenbush, on counts of leaving the scene of an accident with property damage of over $1,000, driving on a revoked license, giving a false report to police, possession of fictitious identification and failure to stop at a stop sign on April 10, 2011. Trooper D.N. Lawson investigated.

- Vicki Rowley Woermer, 50, of Mary Street in Parksley, on a count of obtaining money by false pretenses from Laura Ryan on Feb. 1, 2010. Chief W.T. Carpenter of PPD investigated.

2 Accomack Shooting Cases Under Investigation

By Linda Cicaira

In some states it's legally used for medicinal purposes, but on the Eastern Shore of Virginia last month, marijuana was linked to two shootings, one in which a father with four small children was killed and another during which five bullets were allegedly pumped into a man who was left listening to the click of an empty gun.

"Currently, we cannot link these two cases," said Accomack Sheriff Todd Godwin Tuesday. The July 21 murder is being "actively investigated" and a suspect has been arrested and charged in the other case, he added.

Anthony Lee Wise, 32, of Airport Drive in Melfa was charged with malicious wounding and use of a firearm in a felony in connection with the July 22 shooting. Accomack General District Court records identified the victim as Sedric Jamal Dennis. Wise was arrested on July 28 and is being held in Accomack Jail without bond, Godwin said.

At about 2:20 a.m. July 22, the sheriff's office got a complaint that Dennis was shot in the area of Germaine Lane in Parksley (Rolling Acres) and then driven to a nearby convenience store. He was taken by Parksley ambulance to Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital and later transferred to Sentara Norfolk General Hospital, where he was listed in stable condition, Godwin said.

Court records state Dennis was alert and in stable condition when interviewed by Investigator R.E. Drummond.

"Dennis advised he had been seated in an SUV/truck with two other males in the driveway of an abandoned house on Germaine Lane just off Dennis Drive," according to the court records. "Dennis and these males were consuming alcoholic beverages in celebration of Sedric's birthday."

"Anthony Wise approached the vehicle and started arguing with the driver over some marijuana," the records state. "According to Dennis, Anthony Wise produced a short barreled revolver and began shooting, resulting in him (Dennis) being hit several times." No one else was injured.

"Dennis exited the vehicle and attempted to run but fell to the ground due to the injuries he had sustained from being shot," the record continues. "While on the ground, Wise approached and stood above him. Wise pointed the revolver ... at Dennis and stated 'I might as well finish you off.' As he pulled the trigger of his revolver, Dennis advised, the revolver made a 'click' sound. Anthony Wise then ran to his parked car across the street and fled the area."

According to the court file, "Medical staff at Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital's emergency room" said "Dennis was shot five times and sustained a broken femur in both legs. "Dennis also had one bullet ... that had lodged in his pelvis." He was flown to the Norfolk hospital "due to his severe injuries."

The Eastern Shore Drug Task Force, Onancock Police Department and the Northampton County Sheriff's Department assisted the sheriff's office in that case.

Meanwhile, a funeral service was held last Saturday for Belarmino Escalante, 25, of Greenbush who was shot on July 21 after unknown men allegedly approached him while he waited at the former Godwin's Nursery on Lankford Highway for a ride to an area chicken factory where he worked. He died of a single gunshot wound on the way to the Nassawadox hospital.

Pastor Humberto Rodriguez said some men offered to sell Escalante marijuana and when he didn't buy, he was shot. Left behind are a disabled widow and four children, ages 1 year and 4 months to 7. His brothers and their families also live in the area, Rodriguez said. The Guatemalan natives want to send his body back to their homeland. The cost is $5,000. The minister said a fund for the widow and children and to send Escalante's remains has been established.

Donations are being accepted at Candelero de Oro Church on Lankford Highway near Nelsonia Tuesdays and Thursdays between 6:30 and 7 p.m. or call 710-7515.

Facebook Site Launches Virtual Shore Reunion

By Linda Cicaira

Scores of Accomack and Northampton natives took to their computers this week in an effort to beat the heat. They landed on facebook.com where they contributed to the page, "Growing Up on the Eastern Shore of Virginia."

It has been a virtual reunion as people throw out the names of their favorite places and activities while others type in their accounts of times gone by and plans being made for the "First Annual Four Corners' Cruise" from 7 to 11 p.m. Sept. 23, 2011.

"If you grew up on the Shore and cruised Four Corners, join us" at "the lot and hit your brake lights to say hey," wrote Rob Kellam. "Sure to be a great time. Party to follow the next day. Details on both to follow. ... Who's in?"

He got lots of answers on that one. "That's the best idea ever!" wrote Andrea Pietluck Whisman from Onley. "I'll be there," said David Hargis of Onancock High School's Class of 1978. "This sounds like so much fun," Roberta Thornton wrote, adding a little smiley face. Tommy Taylor said designated drivers would be needed.

Susan Bloxom wrote, "There is a hotel right there and I will see if they will give us a deal on a block of rooms, if you like. We don't want this to end badly."

"I think this is leading to a cruise night followed by a shed party!!!!" Kellam said. "Four Corners parking lot won't know what the heck will be going on that night ... sounds like fun," wrote Patricia Killmon, formerly of Willis Wharf.

"I remember cruisin' Four Corners, when Peebles wasn't even there yet," answered Susie Tweedy.

Karen Tapman added, "When we cruise there now we stop and ask the kids 'How do you get to Chincoteague from here?' You ought to hear some of their answers!" Roxane Ward wrote, "Wow, I feel 20 years (OK, maybe 30+) younger just thinking about it!"

Kathryn Outten said, "Cruising 4 C's again, as we called it, would mean I have to wash my car, get cool tunes on the radio, and fuss about an outfit for hours; even though I was only viewed from the neck up. Just like back in the day."

Connie Burford added, "We all used to line up car to car, truck to car, van to car, door to door ... straight across the parking lot till there was only room to drive by, then we would start another row. In the summers we put chairs in the back of the trucks and Frankie Hall's El Camino and sit and talk for hours."

"I'm so excited about this," wrote Melanie Williams Long.

Rob Kellam started the whole group talk. He later warned others to change their edit settings "if you don't want a million emails. It's an automatic with facebook otherwise. I had over 4,000 emails," he reported. "That will take a year to delete. I say, well worth it if everyone is enjoying a walk down memory lane."

"You created a monster," wrote Patsy Northam Goard of Hallwood. "An awesome one, but still a monster. Loving this!"

"I don't think I've ever come across a site so impactful or well-visited!" wrote Sarah Weekly of California. "Good job, Rob! Are you sorry you started this?"

Evangeline Giddins Briscoe later wrote, "I love this group!!!!" She lives in Maryland now and asked where others wound up.

"Thanks Rob for creating a place we can all share our favorite memories," said Michele Trader. "I'm really enjoying reading all of this. It's hard to stop reading but I've got things to do."

Mary Elizabeth McCarthy said she'd be at the 4 Corner Cruise in spirit. "There are quite a few miles between Los Angeles and Onley ... looking forward to pics and posts though!!!"

Kellam, who lives in Delaware but was born in Nassawadox, moved away from the area in 1968 when he was 4 years old. He came back every third weekend and summers to visit family. His grandfather was the "original Lloyd of Lloyd's Drug Store in Exmore ... the Late Lloyd Branson Kellam. My Uncle Lloyd Kellam took over."

Of course, that business was later cited by others when Kellam asked participants to list "the business you miss the most in Northampton and Accomack County from years past, no matter how long ago."

He got about 200 comments for that topic in less than 24 hours, with answers that also included Forks Grill, Cherry Jane, Whispering Pines, Mason's Beach "parking and partying," dances at the Legion Hall in Belle Haven, Shorty Parker's Grocery and Gun Store just outside of Melfa, J. Edward Bundick's and Savage's Grocery in Painter, Hotel Wachapreague, Starlight in Pocomoke, the Owl Restaurant near Parksley, the X-rated movies in Wattsville, Dal's in Deep Creek, the Lunchbox, Top's Grocery, Florence and Louise's store on Church Street in Chincoteague and The Cameo in Exmore.

Of that last nightspot, Ellen White of Norfolk wrote, "The year I was finally old enough to go there, it closed. I was devastated!" Laura Parks Tatum wrote, "It was a movie theater back in my Mom's day, then a skating rink, then the Cameo, then Meatland offices. That place has seen a lot."

People also noted fun times at Armory Dances in Onancock and Dairy Queen in Exmore and recalled "sitting in class at Mary N. Smith (School) getting sick from the smell of Frank Perdue," and "the A&P in Exmore" where "the meat department had those mirrored sliding window things that you couldn't see behind where the butcher was." And there was the Tasley Fair and Tasley Diner.

"I couldn't wait to get out of school so I could come to the Shore," Kellam told the Eastern Shore Post. He sometimes arrived a few hours after the last day of school. "Both of my parents were from the Shore. I had a rather large family, including cousins who were older. ... As a young boy and teenager, I experienced at one time or another most everything you could imagine on the Shore, from attending the fireman's carnivals, fishing, baseball games, stock-car races in Tasley, jumping the train ... cruising the beachfront in Cape Charles, Four Corners ... rides up and down the seaside and bayside roads, pool halls, Moose pool, every movie theater on the Shore, you name it — all wonderful experiences and treasured memories."

"Most of all I miss the businesses that have since closed and the people that ran them," Kellam continued. "Pappy's Pizza was one of my favorites as was visiting my Uncle Lloyd at his drug store. It was a different time when children could walk or ride their bicycles anywhere and the folks looked after us all. I still reside in Delaware and get back to the Shore several times a year and usually grab a meal at the Exmore Diner where I usually run into friends or family. There is nothing like or even close to the Eastern Shore of Virginia."

Johnny Goodtimes wrote, "I miss Connie's Corner in Nassawadox. But the one I miss the most is Pappy's. My sister and I would stare at the guy twirling the dough for hours, then play Q-Bert."

Lorraine Martin Mason of Harborton wrote, "I remember passing out from the heat when we marched at an air show in Melfa. I also thought it was called the Parks and Rec Band because there were so many Parks playing in the band."

"Remember the Legion Hall and Armory Dances?" wrote Kay P. Trower. "Hanging out at Bayford in the summer (and) cruising Cape Charles every Sunday afternoon!"

Carl Thornton of Parksley fondly remembered Eddie and Marie Core of E&M Market in Parksley. "I loved Eddie Core!" wrote Dawn Chesser of Jenkins Bridge. "This is such a nice way to remember special people in your life." Bob Boyce wrote, "I was going to say the same thing. As a kid, I remember the candy rack looked HUGE!"

Mike Holt remembered "sneaking across the street from Cheriton Elementary at recess to buy fireballs and cinnamon toothpicks. Only to have it all confiscated by the principal who was waiting for you when you came back!"

"It was Joe and Dot Etz's Store," wrote Barbara Belote, who now lives in West Virginia.

Gerry Greene wrote about Tops Grocery, "down 13 about a mile from Fisher's Corner. I remember when you could buy a bus ticket at Fisher's Corner and catch the Trailways bus there."

Elron Savage of Onancock asked if anyone remembered the "Candy Factory that was back in Onley? My grandmother could not go without her Chocolate Peanuts."

Bev Walker reminded readers of “my Dad’s country store in Seaview, Lewis’ Grocery,” where she “got many a splinter in my feet running around that place, and Blazing Flippers in Cape Charles!”

Ginny McMath of Los Angeles brought up “going hunting for ghosts in the abandoned houses in fields and finding treasures like pieces of marble from fireplaces. I still have a green piece.”

Frances Hall of Cape Charles wrote, “Growing up on the Eastern Shore was wonderful especially if you lived in Oyster. We had so many people down there. We had a hotel, three stores and a wonderful church. The three stores are gone now; they were Granville and Elizabeth McCready’s ... Russell Hinman and Berlie Bell’s and Mrs. McCready ran the restaurant in the bottom floor of the Hotel. Life was very simple then. It was wonderful. We had so many people that Travis Chapel was full every Sunday and one school bus just to get all of us from Oyster to school. There are so many more memories.”

Brian Austry wrote, “At one time many, many years ago, the original bridge in Quinby was a toll bridge.” Sarah RoacheI remembered “Hub Mason’s gas station in Bloxom. We would wait for my mom’s car to be fixed and get a Zero candy bar and a Coke for a quarter. The Coke machine had a handle you had to turn and the little bottles were glass.”

Janet Roberts Trader remembered “the Steak and Burger in Nelsonia. When I was a young child, my Mom worked there with Ada Linton and Amelia White Adams, Jim Fahey’s mom. I remember playing hooky from school (I had a lot of tummy aches) as much as I could so I could go be with Mom there. I loved that place!”

Kevin Bryan Lovell of Onancock wrote about “Willet’s Market in Lee Mont.” He worked there before Meatland and called it his “training ground. Nate was real good to me.” Lovell remembers cutting meat with Bobbie Lewis on Sundays. “Worked there for $1 an hour ... thought I was rich.”

Bill LeCato remembered buying Nehi soda and licorice at Buster Willis’s store in Franktown in between terrorizing Rt. 618 (Bayside Road) with cap guns.” Deborah Finney Evans from Central’s Class of 1973 said Sally and Bob’s had the best crab cakes.

Mike Wessells of Oak Hall recalled, “The drive-in movies in Pocomoke, friends hiding in the trunk to get in for free and then buying one of these coils to keep the mosquitoes out of the car.”

Krissy Farlow-Marie of Chester, Va., said she got her first lotto ticket out of the machine at Meatland in Onancock (later Food City.) She also has fond memories of “Sand Piper Cove swimming, Onancock Carnival, (and Chick’s in Deep Creek where I waited for the bus while watching all the early fishermen rocking in their rocking chairs and buying us chocolate bars.”

Anthony D. White of Maryland nominated “the best TOWN COP that looked out for everyone, the late Robert Cobb.” Polly Milliner Ransone of Onancock commented, “He liked to stop you to see who you were.”

There was also conversation about who got stopped by which state trooper.

Patsy Northam Goard of Hallwood wrote, “Once I was stopped by Trooper Furman for speeding on my way home from work for a date. He said if you will date by son, Bill, I will let you go. I told him to tell him to call me ... just let me get home. He promptly told me if I wasn’t speeding, I’d already be dressed and ready to go out.”

“I know B.K. Marshall got me three times in three different cars!!” said Shiela Ferry. “I was so glad to see him retire at the time. I kept thinking no more tickets. LOL.”

“Rest in Peace, B.K. Marshall,” wrote David Hargis.

“I got stopped every month for speeding so I’m quite sure he would have pulled me once or twice,” wrote Fabian Drummond of Fayetteville, N.C.

Jeffrey Davis said, “When I was a little kid, I rode our mini-bike on the road in front of our house. Little did I know that Griffin was standing on the porch with Mr. Onley and my father. Griffin just looked at Dad. That kept me off the mini-bike for awhile.”

“I remember all of them,” wrote Laurie Goleman Fujimoto of Las Vegas regarding local officers. “They used to hang out at my Mom Mom’s Exxon Gas Station in Temperanceville. Marshall, Toth, Griffin, Godwin, Furman, Misuna, Baird.”

New Planning Director Hired

By Linda Cicoira

Accomack County has hired a new director of Planning and Community Development, according to County Administrator Steve Miner.

Rich Morrison, director of Community Services for the City of Mount Pleasant, Mich., was selected for the job. That metropolis’ website reports a population of 25,946 residents.

Mt. Pleasant is described as “a friendly community dedicated to retaining small town traditions while building a vital economy, thus assuring a stable future for its residents.” The city has a university and a hospital.

Miner said Morrison has more than 20 years of experience in planning, community service and community development in Michigan and “announced his resignation there in order to accept the Accomack County position.”

“Morrison is a member of the American Planning Association and is eligible for certification by the American Institute of Certified Planners,” said Miner. In Mt. Pleasant, Morrison “supervised building and code enforcement as well as community development and other functions.” He was also responsible for the development of the city’s economic action plan and advised its Economic Development Corporation and other boards and commissions.

Miner said Morrison has experience with “livable and walkable community initiatives” and “all processes intended to enhance community property values while maintaining or enhancing the quality of life for community citizens.”

“The position requires an experience and skill set identical to what Mr. Morrison brings,” said Miner. “Rich understands the power of planning to protect the county’s special quality of life. He has knowledge of methods to attract and harness the power of private investment to bring diversity and vitality to our economy.”

“Rich is a mature and balanced individual,” Miner continued. “He will ... be primarily responsible to coordinate the staff efforts to achieve their ... vision ... adopted by the board of supervisors.”

Rich’s annual salary will be $81,000. He will start no later than Sept. 15.

On Saturday, Aug. 6, Waste Watchers will be picking up trash from 10 a.m. to noon outside Onley Community Health Center on Badger Drive in Onley. This pick-up is the choice of the winner of a Waste Watchers Charity Pick-Up auctioned to benefit the Literacy Council. The rain date is Sunday.

The sponsor chose this week and place because there will be a meeting of doctors at the Health Center this week and this loyal employee wants to make the Eastern Shore look good.

If you can help, send an email to wastewatchers.esva@gmail.com

Be sure to wear protective clothing and use bug spray. Water, vests, roadside warning signs and picker uppers will be provided.

After studying the purchase of benches for the town boat launch area, the Harborton Public Facility Committee determined that the options were not affordable. When town resident Doug Cowling heard of this, he informed the committee that his employer, Bayshore Concrete Products in Cape Charles, has a program of providing free benches to communities on the Shore.

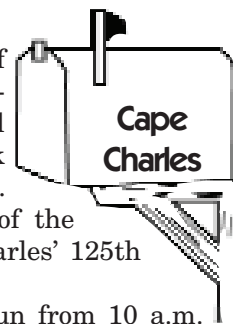

Cowling recently transported two benches to Harborton, where he was met by members of the committee and a wrecker from Barnes Truck and Equipment Repair from Parksley, which lifted the benches and put them in place.

Harborton residents now have a place to sit and enjoy the view down Pungoteague Creek.

The Friends of Cape Charles Memorial Library will hold a used book sale Saturday, Aug. 6, in celebration of the Town of Cape Charles' 125th birthday.

The sale will run from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on the library grounds at 500 Tazewell Ave. in Cape Charles.

Chincoteague 'Signs' New Measure

By Linda Cicoira

Chincoteague Town Council voted 4-2 Monday night to change height requirements for business signs, as recommended by the town's Planning Commission.

The revision permits exterior wall signs to exceed the 12-foot height limit under certain conditions.

Previously when businesses asked to erect a sign higher than the restriction, the only remedy was to appeal to the Board of Zoning Appeals, said Chincoteague planner William Neville.

"I'd much rather see this than a free-standing, 12-foot sign," said Councilwoman Nancy Conklin, who voted in favor of the change. Councilmen John Howard, Trip Muth and John Jester also voted for the measure. Councilman Terry Howard and Vice Mayor Ellen Richardson were opposed. Mayor Jack Tarr only votes to break a tie.

Resident Jane Wolffe urged the board to table the issue, vote "no" or get a committee to compare Maddox Boulevard to the downtown area. She referred to a 2005 study in which the majority — 700 islanders and visitors — said the height restrictions were either adequate or not restrictive enough and only 16 people said the requirements were too restrictive.

Wolffe asked Council to "think about what we want our identity to be." She said most of the comments in the survey asked things like "avoid tacky-tacky look," be consistent with history, "avoid looking junky," "retain fishing village image" and excessive signs "make it look like a Times Square tourist trap."

Commission Chairman Ray Rosenberger noted, "People come here and they know us ... most are return visitors. I think we're all concerned with maintaining the quality of the island the way it is."

Zoning Administrator Kenny Lewis, who repeatedly deals with applications for larger signs, recommended the commission review increasing the maximum allowable height of commercial wall signs from 12 feet to a height not to exceed the primary structure, and mounted on the wall beneath the eaves of the roof.

The town is seeking to be added to a group of areas (James City County and the cities of Colonial Heights, Newport News, Williamsburg, and Winchester) that by ordinance can require "vacant developed and undeveloped" property owners "to cut their grass, weeds and other foreign growth" to avoid "unmanaged or unsightly view."

Town Attorney Jon C. Poulson sent a letter to Del. Lynwood Lewis and Sen. Ralph Northam asking that Chincoteague be added to a list of regions that have taken advantage of authority through the state code.

Helen Merritt praised the success of the recent Pony Penning. "People have been so pleased," she said.

The officials agreed that everyone involved deserved to be congratulated. Tarr said "all the volunteers get a letter (of thanks) from us every year." John Howard marveled about the time it takes away from families. "It touches just about everybody on the island," he said. The presence of additional police officers during the event also was noted.

Exmore Looks Ahead to Upcoming Events

By Ron West

Exmore Town Council reviewed plans for the annual town yard sale, slated for Sept. 17 in the downtown business district.

Interim Town Manager Arthur Miles said trophies had been ordered for winning entries for the event which will include displays of automobiles, motorcycles, and vintage farm equipment. Food and product vendors are expected to line the sidewalks of Main Street. The town is seeking a volunteer to monitor the Moon Bounce for children. For additional information regarding the event or if interested in helping, contact Miles at the town office.

Miles provided Council with information regarding the upcoming OPSAIL 2012 event slated for next June. While most of the activities will be focused in Hampton Roads, including a visit by over 50 foreign vessels and a number of tall ships, some of the smaller vessels are expected to visit the harbor of Cape Charles. Miles indicated that he had begun discussions with local hotel operators to seek their support in attracting visiting crews as well as a host of recreation vessel owners expected to be coming to the Shore.

An additional bonus for the Exmore area is its proximity to the Parade of Sails, which will move north from Hampton Roads to Baltimore to take part in the bicentennial of the War of 1812. He suggested that recreational vessels might wish to launch from Morley's Wharf to view the tall ships as they pass.

The organizers of OPSAIL are seeking groups as well as towns to take part in the Adopt-a-Ship campaign that will welcome ships' crews during their visit. It is hoped that the welcome will include a gathering such as a small picnic or barbeque. Groups interested in the Adopt-a-Ship program can obtain additional information from Joella Adams at AdamsJ@festevents.org

In other business, Barry Marsh urged Council to improve stormwater drainage along the business district in town. Marsh said a recent storm had created a river of water in and along the street, posing a flooding issue for some business owners. The town is considering paving a town parking lot in the downtown area and Marsh urged Council to work to insure that paving the lot will not generate additional flooding issues.

Donnie Kellam spoke of the need to bleed the fire hydrants at least once a month to insure that the water quality for homes is not compromised. Council agreed that some areas near the ends of water lines should be flushed twice a month to clear the buildup of sediment and/or odors that might be in the lines.

In a related area, Miles said that drainage issues in the area of Virginia Street are being investigated and one blockage had been cleared by installing a culvert. He suggested that additional culverts might be needed to help improve stormwater drainage along the street.

Police Chief Tom Potts Jr. advised Council that one of the town police vehicles had been vandalized when a brick was thrown through the windshield and its hood was damaged as well. He indicated that the incident, as well as other acts of vandalism in the town, are under investigation.

Barry Marsh commended the job being done by the town officers. He said that he and other business owners are very pleased that their establishments are being checked nightly.

Prior to concluding the session, Mayor William Moore Jr. asked those present for input regarding a change in meeting times as a way to encourage additional members of the public to attend. No action was taken to change the meeting times.

NOAA Slated for Facelift

By Linda Cicaira

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration (NOAA) at Wallops Island is going to get a $250 million facelift, agency representatives told Chincoteague leaders Monday.

While the plan is mostly aimed at upgrading equipment as part of the GOES R (Geostationary Operational Environmental Satellite) project, construction also is expected to help the local economy by creating temporary jobs.

"You're going to see a lot of contracting personnel," said Project Manager Larry James. "They believe in working locally ... we've been her since 1964. This upgrade is a long time coming."

It was also disclosed that a third of the 74-strong NOAA workforce could lose their jobs by November 2014 through changes in a polar program. James said whether Wallops is in a good location for polar projects is "still in the equation." Another representative said, "We're also pursuing tracking satellites for NASA," which could save positions.

Spending on the entire GOES R project is budgeted at $6 billion. Locally, the project includes a new power house, four new 1-megawatt generators, increased station power capacity, a 6,000-square-foot data center, sitewide ductbanks and rehabilitation of the existing GOES operations area. Construction is expected to begin in September, with completion in the summer of 2015.

We're Jacks of Many Trades and Masters of Some

By Linda Cicoira

Accomack and Northampton residents have the knowledge and experience to get the necessary jobs done but also have talent and a sense of adventure to do the fun stuff.

A recent email survey conducted by the Eastern Shore Post showed that 100 percent of participants know how to ride a bicycle — most learned by the time they were 6 years old. Ninety-six percent have changed a baby's diaper.

Ninety-two percent can tie a necktie. The majority of those said they were taught by their father or another male relative or friend. The other 8 percent can go to www.tie-a-tie.net

Half of the participants said they know how to knit; 42 percent can crochet and 77 percent know how to sew.

Sixty-three percent can read music and 44 percent have sung karaoke. Forty-three percent said they know how or used to be able to do a cartwheel. Ninety-one percent can swim.

The majority said they can boogie and named the dance steps, including the Charleston, hustle, waltz, twist, tater harvester, cha-cha, merengue, Macarena, cupid shuffle, electric slide, two-step, hula, salsa, hora and polka. Sixty-nine percent know how to play chess, though very few consider themselves good at it. Ninety-two percent can shoot pool.

Ninety-one percent can make a paper airplane that flies and many had tips on how best to do that. Twenty-two percent said they could toss and catch more than three things at a time.

"If family, work and other things count then yes" she can juggle, said Amy Nottingham of Cheriton. "But not like a circus performer." Nottingham learned to sew when she was 10 by watching her "great-grandma" who "was a seamstress."

She's sung karaoke but never won a prize. "I stank." Nottingham can do a cartwheel "after lots of practice and busting my butt" and learned to swim when she was 3, "then learned more on (her) school swim team and was a natural at backstroke and butterfly."

Craig Justis of Parksley said he can play chess and he's good at it. He's also "sometimes" good at shooting pool. Justis somehow makes his paper airplanes

"streamlined" so they will fly. He learned to swim after his dad threw him in the creek and told him to "SWIM." He was such an obedient kid.

Beware of playing chess with Phil McCaleb of Craddockville. He learned from one of the best. At 14, his father was Ohio's chess champion.

McCaleb diapered his children, learned to read music when he was taught to play the piano and swam before being allowed to go on a boat at age 7. His sister showed him how to tie a tie.

Gary Callaway of Custis Neck said he can juggle and offered to demonstrate. He also can build a good paper plane. It's "all in how you fold the wings," he said.

Callaway was once quite the dancer. "Used to moon walk ... till I fell head over heels." He also once often did The Funky Chicken at Armory dances.

"Growing up in Wachapreague, we had to learn to swim at an early age," Callaway continued. "I was 6 years old, loved the water, and my Dad took me to the dock and said, 'Today is the day.' So he tied a rope to my waist and told me to jump off the dock. I did, and he tossed the rope in after I hit the water and said, 'See you for supper and don't be late.' It was either sink or swim. Needless to say, I didn't miss supper! I found out later that he was watching me the whole time from inside the old oyster house."

Carlee Henry of Belle Haven said the secret to flying a paper airplane is to "make it as aerodynamic and streamlined as you can: small in front, big in back." Dawn White of Onley astutely said getting a paper plane requires the ability to "wing it." Tom Rakowski of the Melfa area said he folds "a special two-piece plane that flies real well." His mother taught him to use the Windsor knot on a tie. "Had to wear one every day and the nuns checked to see if they were clip-ons in parochial school."

Maphis Oswald of Onancock said she uses a paper clip on the nose of her plane to make it glide. She can juggle tasks, but "things as in objects, not even two." She can swim. "My father threw me into the water and said, 'Go.' Not a good start. Still phobic."

~ Survey ~

Diana M. Davis of Craddockville said her trick to flying a paper airplane is to “fold it tightly and point and throw!” She’s also “a fabulous dog-paddler. My grandfather, Jack Kellam, taught me to float at Silver Beach.”

Henry knows the importance of reading music since she teaches the undertaking to others. “It is one of the most valuable skills I have. I learned most of what I know in high school chorus from the best teacher ever, Mrs. Sunderland. She is the reason I wanted to teach music.”

Her “sweet husband” taught her to tie a tie. Henry can dance too. “I can do the basic ballet positions and some random easy musical theater staples. Oh, and the Hora.”

Her husband, Matthew Henry, said even though his wife says he’s never changed a diaper, he knows he has. “Even many cloth diapers - my daughter’s as well as my nieces.”

He learned to read music while in the choir at Epworth UMC “when I was growing up.” He learned to tie a tie from a friend on “my high school wrestling team.

Ann Stubbs of Chincoteague wrote, “Actually, I can’t do much of anything except read and talk. But my cousin, Brenda, could always do them (cartwheels) and flips. She just stopped a few years ago. She would get up and do them every morning until she was maybe 64 years old.”

Stubbs said when she was between 7 and 9, she had a swimming experience. “Dad tied a rope around me and threw me over. I was sure he meant to kill me. I had no trust at all in adults. My grandmother stood screaming that I would never learn and he was scaring me to death, and pulled me in. She was right; I never learned and my parents were great swimmers. I have always been scared of water going over my head and since the movie ‘Jaws’ came out, I never went in the water again. I am even hesitant of swimming pools ... you never know, a shark could be hiding down there waiting.”

Linda Mitchell of Pungoteague said with paper airplanes it’s all about the folds: “lots” of them. She learned to ride a bike when she was about 5. “It was an adult-sized women’s bike and my brother would hold it up at the top of the driveway and let me go down the driveway and usually crash at the bottom the first dozen times.”

Dr. Jeanne Roll of Belle Haven said when she constructs a paper plane, she gives it “nice sharp creases and makes sure the shape is symmetrical.” She also knits “Fair Isle sweaters” and can crochet, “except my tension keeps getting tighter so that rectangles turn into trapezoids.” She sews “like a champ” and learned in “Home Economics in 7th grade, which oddly enough, I despised.”

Roll learned to swim in “my uncle’s pool around age 8. It was literally, sink or swim.”

Patty Bailey of Seaview wrote, “My grandmother taught me how to crochet, but sad to say I have forgotten. Wish she were still here to teach me again.” She used to love to dance. “Knew all the country line dances. Now can only remember electric slide and maybe a few others.” She can’t do a cartwheel, “Never could ... I can swim enough to keep myself afloat. That’s why I love my pool. I can always touch bottom!!”

Jessica Bonniwell of Willis Wharf said she “only can juggle what life throws me.” She makes airplanes fly by making “the front of the plane pointy.”

“I learned to knit when I was about 5 or 6,” she wrote, explaining that her great-aunt showed her how. “My mom taught me to sew when I was a teen since I always went to her when I needed my pants hemmed or something. Guess she got tired of doing it, but I still go to her at 30 years old.” She learned to swim at Cape Charles beach. “My siblings and mother taught me.”

Jean Hungville of Onancock learned to ride a bike on her sixth birthday. “When the training wheels came off, I traveled down the sidewalk, across the neighbor’s lawn, through another neighbor’s garden and head first into a ditch!” she wrote. “I was so excited I didn’t realize my Papa wasn’t still holding the back of my seat to steer me!” She learned to “knit, crochet and cross stitch in preschool and first grade from my grandma. Learned to sew in high school.”

Theresa Wisner of Northampton suggested the survey taker write the book, “101 Things You Should Know How To Do, If You Live on the Eastern Shore” with “things like: know how to get home without using Lankford Highway, Eat toads. They are delicious and they are not frogs.”

Veronica Fosque Shrieves of Parkersley said, “My kids say I make the best paper airplanes. They are really amazed at how well my paper airplanes fly. I was taught the old school way. Ancient Chinese Secret.”

She learned to square dance in middle school and to swim in college in a swimming class”

“An anonymous participant wrote, “I can stop bleeding from a wound. I saved a life by doing CPR and I rescued people from burning buildings. But I can’t do cartwheels.”

Lois Cooper of Pungoteague gets her planes to fly by folding over the tip of the nose.

Debra Sorenson of Tangier started treading water at 5. She “became a world-record-setting long-distance swimmer.” Her paper airplanes are “lean and heavy enough to maintain direction.” She does cartwheels “regularly. They keep you young.”

Health Matters STAY HEALTHY IN HIGH HEAT

With the daytime heat index recently exceeding 110 degrees, it becomes even more important that people follow recommendations to protect themselves from extreme heat.

According to the Office of the Chief Medical Examiner, when temperatures approached 100 degrees in Virginia last year, there were 10 heat-related deaths.

“During times of excessive heat, people need to pay attention and take additional precautions,” says Dr. Venita Newby-Owens, acting director of Eastern Shore Health District. “According to our statistics, almost 31 percent of the hyperthermia cases, which were related to extreme heat, involved individuals who were engaging in outside activity such as gardening. Twenty-six percent of the hyperthermia cases were individuals who were inside without air-conditioning.”

One of the most important precautions people should take is to schedule activities and outdoor work during the coolest parts of the day. In the summer, sunlight exposure is greatest between 10 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Here are additional steps you can take to protect yourself against heat-related illnesses:

- Keep cool in an air-conditioned area. Take a cool shower or a bath. Consider a trip to the mall or a local library or visit a friend with air-conditioning. Spending at least two hours per day in air-conditioning significantly reduces the number of heat-related illnesses. When temperatures reach the upper 90s or above, a fan may not prevent heat-related illness.

- Drink plenty of fluids (two to four glasses of cool fluids each hour.) To replace salt and minerals lost from sweating, drink fruit juice or a sports beverage during exercise or when you have to work outside. However, talk to your doctor first if you're on a fluid-restricted diet or medications, or on a low-salt diet.

- Avoid sunburn and wear light clothing. Sunburn limits your body's ability to keep itself cool and causes loss of body fluids. Use sunscreen with a higher SPF. Loose, lighter-weight clothing that is light-colored is more comfortable during extreme temperatures. Use a hat to keep the head cool.

- Give your body a break as the heat wave can be stressful on your body. Limit physical activity until your body adjusts to the heat.

- Never leave children or pets in cars. Temperatures inside a car can reach over 150 degrees quickly, resulting in heat stroke and death.

- Use the “buddy system” if you're working outside. If you suffer a heat-related illness, you could become confused or lose consciousness. Therefore, make sure someone else knows of you plans.

Cape Cod Not Like Assateague

Dear Editor:

Over the past few years, the U.S. Fish & Wildlife Service and National Park Service have used Cape Cod National Seashore in Massachusetts as an example of where a beach shuttle system has been successfully implemented for many years.

Having examined the facts, I would like to point out that Cape Cod National Seashore covers about one third of Cape Cod, and is located in the Outer Cape or the farthest area from the mainland. There are six beaches that are part of the National Seashore: Coast Guard Beach, Nauset Light Beach in the town of Eastham near the Salt Pond Visitor Center, Marconi Beach in Wellfleet, Head of the Meadow Beach in Truro, and Race Point Beach and Herring Cove Beach in Provincetown near the Province Lands Visitor Center.

Coast Guard Beach at the Salt Pond Visitor Center in Eastham is the only beach of the six that has a shuttle; the others have parking. This beach had a very large parking lot at the shoreline until 1978, when a blizzard washed it away. The Park Service saw no need to replace it, since there were plenty of other beaches and parking available in the area.

So, it is true that there is a shuttle service in use. What seems to be left out of the equation is that Nauset Light Beach is only a mile away and has beach parking. Also overlooked are the other four beaches within the national seashore that have beach parking. And of course, there are the 13 other town beaches within the same area — an area, by the way, that is the most sparsely populated of all Cape Cod towns.

A shuttle system that works in Massachusetts is completely different than trying to implement one in Chincoteague. There is no comparison in the two areas; we have one beach, the only one within 50 miles.

We need to examine all the information that is being distributed as facts. Leaving half the information out of a presentation skews the results and misleads the public. All the facts need to be examined when making decisions that affect the lives and livelihood of the residents of Chincoteague. Any organization that funds a transportation study, or any study for that matter, can get that study to turn out the results they want.

The Volpe Center provided the results that were expected when it did the transportation study for the F&W Service; I suspect its CCP Plan will do likewise.

Assateague National Seashore in Virginia is unique. A national wildlife refuge and a national seashore on the same island do not exist anywhere else and to try and compare Chincoteague with other areas is not possible. The residents needs to recognize that this is a fight for the survival of our community and we need to be prepared to do whatever is necessary to maintain our 961 parking spaces and protect our island from the ocean.

There is beach replenishment in Ocean City, Md., that is justified by man manipulation when the jetty was built, that same jetty has influenced the movement of sand to the southern portion of Assateague, but we don't seem to matter. In the meantime, medium-size dunes should be re-established to help protect Chincoteague from storms.

We need to thank Congressman Scott Rigell for all the help he is providing, but we need Senators Wamer and Webb to assist also. Call, write, or email them as soon as possible asking them to help us.

Funds Raised for Homeless Haitians

Dear Editor:

Shelter 2.0, a non-profit organization dedicated to housing the homeless, recently had a fundraiser at the Great Machipongo Clam Shack to benefit a mission project to Haiti. The goal is to provide five shelters for Haitians still living in tent cities, with no real place to call home.

Thanks to the generous support of our community, we were able to raise $3,000 during this "Dine Out" night with a silent auction and "celebrity" wait staff.

We could not be more grateful to the Great Machipongo Clam Shack for providing a fun environment and serving delicious food and also to the wait staff, Linda and Cynthia, for helping a bunch of novices wait on customers and deliver food in a timely manner. We couldn't have done it without their help! The kitchen staff also was accommodating and a pleasure to work with.

Many, many thanks to our generous sponsors for the evening: Edwards' Seafood, H.M. Terry Co. and two anonymous donors. Thank you also to those who provided silent auction items, including the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel, Lena Gonzales, Bobby Bridges, Robert Bridges and Doug Parker. And of course, thanks to everyone who came out to eat and made a donation!

To find out more information about Shelter 2.0, please visit the website at www.shelter20.com Together, we can find a way to make sure everyone has a place to call home.

Returned Wallet Nice Surprise

Dear Editor:

I was surprised to get a small package in the mail recently. It was my 9-year-old son's wallet that had his picture ID with address, along with his money, still in it.

He did not know where he lost it, but it was turned in at Wachapreague Volunteer Fire Company during the carnival.

I want to thank the person or WVFC personnel for returning the wallet.

Government Should Serve Us

Dear Editor:

It seems as if the folks running our country do not understand the relationship between lower taxes and economic growth. It goes like this: If people have more money to spend, they will buy more things, thus creating the need for products to be produced. In turn, companies will be able to expand and create more jobs, thus creating more taxpayers and the companies will also pay more taxes because they have made larger profits. I can't make it any simpler than that.

Higher taxes serve as a disincentive for people to work more or risk money to start a new business or expand existing ones. You can only take so much from the givers before the givers become unwilling to strive for more.

I for one am tired of the government's "the more you make the more we take" attitude. I believe our country needs to return to the principles of our founding fathers; the government should serve the people, not the other way around.

Sheriff's Office, Politics As Usual

Dear Editor:

I leave the Shore for less than a week to attend a veterans' reunion and come home to "good ole boy" politics as usual.

Wonders of wonders, the Accomack sheriff retires, before the election, and his replacement is guess who? His #2, making him the incumbent with all the political advantages that that imbues.

The declared candidate, a former state trooper, now has a harder row to hoe, as was intended.

Sleaze rules in Accomack (as usual).
