Board Declines To Bail Out Quinby Harbor Project

By Linda Ciccoira

Accomack supervisors put off helping the Quinby Harbor Committee with its bulkhead replacement project Wednesday despite a warning that conditions there are dangerous and at least 30 working watermen depend on the facility.

In a 5-4 vote, the supervisors followed the lead of newly appointed Supervisor Robert Crockett. He explained that as a former sheriff, he often "had to make split-second decisions. When you have the opportunity to step back, step back" and think about the issue, he said. Crockett suggested action on the request be delayed until budget deliberations later in the year.

Others argued the project has been on the county's capital improvement project list for years and needs immediate action.

Harbor Committee Chairman David Farlow passed around photos that depicted the deteriorating bulkhead. "If you want to keep it a nice, viable harbor, you've got to maintain it." He said $113,000 is needed to help get the first phase done. "I came here as a last resort," he said of his request to the board. He explained the committee is putting in $175,000 that it collected in fees and would also be using a $67,000 grant. But more money is needed.

Farlow said $7 million worth of seafood is brought to market through the harbor. "If we don't get the money from you all, we'll have to postpone it," said Farlow. "It's all going to fall in ... we're just a volunteer committee ... you all are the ones responsible for it. We honestly try to do everything we can. We didn't have anywhere else to go."

"This one leg needs to be done immediately," said Building Director David Fluhart. He was concerned that "someone could get injured."

Board Chairman Donald Hart and Supervisors Sandy Hart Mears, Wanda Thornton and Phil McCaleb favored giving the committee the money. Vice Chairwoman Laura Belle Gordy and Supervisors Crockett, Grayson Chesser, Jack Gray and Ron Wolff wanted to wait until upcoming budget debates to decide.

Hart said making the repairs now made sense. "It's going to cost us a lot more money" later, he argued. He got offended when someone suggested that he only favored the project because it is in his district. "The committee did everything they could to get money," he

Woman Dies in Fire; Juvenile Charged

By Linda Ciccoira

A Parksley woman died in a fire at her home early Wednesday morning and a juvenile was charged with "threaten to burn" in connection with the incident.

Sgt. Michelle Anaya of the Virginia State Police identified the victim as Dana Rodriguez, 45, of Estate Lane. Police would not release any other information because the investigation is continuing.

Chief Phillip Kelly of the Parksley Volunteer Fire Department said the blaze was reported around 2 a.m. "with a subject possibly trapped inside" a single-wide trailer.

About 25 volunteer firefighters from Parksley, Onancock, Tasley and Bloxom responded and were assisted by the Department of Safety. "It was well involved when we got on the scene," Kelly said. The fire took about 40 minutes to control.

County Gives Mary N. Smith School to Alumni Group

By Linda Cicotra

Accomack supervisors accepted ownership of Mary N. Smith School Wednesday night and then gave it away. The recipient, the alumni association, plans to turn the building into a cultural enrichment center that will "foster an environment where the physical, cultural, educational and social needs of the community are met."

After a 20-minute closed session, Accomack supervisors unanimously agreed to three motions made by Supervisor Jack Gray, a former educator who represents the election district where the former school is located. The supervisors agreed to accept title to the property, which was recently declared surplus and offered to them by the school system.

The board also decided against transforming the property into more than 90 apartments for low-income residents as proposed by the Mark Dana Corporation, manager of Accomack and Exmore manors.

The supervisors then authorized County Administrator Steve Miner to execute documents that turn the property over to the association. The end result made local residents applaud and smile as they left the packed board chambers.

Last week some of the same people complained that the housing plan could run their wells dry, bring crime and high volumes of traffic to the community and further devalue property that sits across from a chicken factory.

Kelvin Pettit graduated from the school in 1967 and lives nearby. He presented the alumni's plan to the supervisors. "You have wrestled with how to dispose of Mary N. Smith School," he said. "We, like you, have considered many proposals." Pettit did not disclose the association's wealth but he assured the supervisors, "You have spent your last dime on Mary N. Smith. Allow us to create special programs ... an opportunity for those of us who have time and energy to help those in need of help."

Pettit promised the old school will not "turn into a hangout." Instead it would be "a place of refuge" for "folks a little bit off track. We will strive to make this the Mary N. Smith Center for Cultural Enrichment. Each of you can be proud. We will not be asking the Board of Supervisors for anything more ... than the opportunity to do it."

Pettit reminded the officials of the community's opposition to the housing development. He pointed to other property for the endeavor. "Two farms are for sale not far away," said Pettit. "Explore the property that is for sale."

A plan presented to the board, stated, "Using the business model generally employed by the Belle Haven Center as well as other similar projects throughout the state, the ... association would agree to accept the building. It would own and manage the building as a ... nonprofit for the purpose of providing those community services that are currently unavailable or not supported by other organizations ... the alumni need not be the primary supplier of services but may act more in the role as facilitator."

"The center would be managed by a board of directors elected from among the citizenry," the plan stated. "The board would elect a chairman and other officers as deemed necessary. A director would not be required to have attended Mary N. Smith. ... A center director and maintenance person would be employed as well as other personnel as funds became available."

The alumni group offered a list of improvements it would make to the school.

Among the potential clients listed were county parks and recreation, Hampton Roads Boys and Girls Club, a martial arts school, modern dance and ballet classes, Accomack Unity Band, Accomack Chorus, senior services, Eastern Shore Literacy Council, English as a Second Language, after-school tutoring, summer program and physical fitness programs for all ages.

The group also plans to sponsor annual fundraising for capital improvements and scholarships and bring in programs and services that would be self-supporting either by individuals or sponsoring organizations.

Duncan Announces Candidacy for Treasurer

By Linda Cicotra

Gregory L. Duncan Sr., former chairman of the Accomack Board of Supervisors, is asking voters to elect him treasurer in November, a post currently held by Dana Bundick.

"I'll give it 110 percent like I always do," said Duncan, 55, of Mappsville, who will run as an independent. "I just feel like I am duly qualified for it." His good working relationship with local politicians will help, he added.

"In today's times we have to make that collection process as easy and painless as possible," he said of county taxes. "That's my goal. Right now, we have one or two ways," taxpayers can pay their bills. "You can carry it or mail it in. I will explore (other) opportunities."

"My management and public relations skills span over three decades," he said.

"In various positions held throughout my professional career as well as elected positions within the county, I have excelled because my number one commitment has always and remains to be establishing an excellent rapport with those that I encounter," Duncan noted. "I believe this to be a strong suit that I perfect daily and one that ultimately hinges upon my professionalism and other professional attributes."

As secretary/treasurer of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel (CBBT) Commission, Duncan said he gets a chance to "work with some pretty big bucks and investments. The more money we can generate, the more money services we can provide," he said.

Duncan serves as pastor of House of Prayer in Bloxom and runs his marketing, rental and property management firm established in 2000, GL Duncan LLC. He is a former general manager of Midway in Pocomoke, Md., where he worked from 1995 to December 2010. He also moved up the ranks at Tyson's Holly Farms, where he labored for more than 20 years, serving for over five years as plant superintendent supervising 450 employees.

Other personal business ventures include D&D Enterprises from 1994 to 1997, Duncan's Driveway Construction from 1989 to 1994, Duncan's Trucking Co. from 1978 to 1980 and Duncan Farms from 1977 to present.

His educational background includes Wesley Seminary of Washington, D.C., University of Maryland Eastern Shore with a major in political science and Atlantic High School. He also took numerous management training workshops and classes.

This is Duncan's second year as secretary/treasurer of the CBBT Commission. He has been on the panel for six years. Duncan has served on the Finance Committee of the Eastern Shore District United Methodist Church; as chairman of the board of supervisors for four terms; on the Accomack-Northampton Planning District Commission; as senior vice president of Administration for Eastern Shore Railroad; as a former member of the board of directors and current member of the Virginia Association of Counties; as chairman of Finance, trustee and former president of trustees for St. John's United Methodist Church; as district lay leader for the Eastern Shore District; on the District Finance Committee for the Eastern Shore United Methodist Churches; and on the Board of Laity Virginia Annual Conference.

He said his strengths include production, sales and personnel management, quality control, market analysis and sales operations.

Both School Boards in Session

- In Accomack -

By Linda Cicotra

Accomack's School Board unanimously proposed a $42 million fiscal 2011-12 operating budget Tuesday night that includes giving teachers their first salary hike in four years.

The figure reflects a request for $1.18 million or 7.6 percent more in local funds than last year and takes into consideration an additional $358,842 the governor has promised.

Based on previous budget calculations, a 1-cent increase in real-estate rates is needed to raise $340,000. Superintendent Rick Bull said if funding for mandatory expenses is not provided, the board would need to eliminate services or jobs.

He suggested the School Board be "reasonable" with its requests. A public hearing is set for 7:30 p.m. Feb. 1 at Arcadia High School.

"Maybe the Board of Supervisors will really feel our need," said School Board member Margaret Miles, who once served on that board. "I'm just dreaming. Maybe we can make them understand. I want pie in the sky," she said.

Bull was not optimistic about getting the money from the county supervisors. "Here's where the hard part comes in," he said of his conversation with County Administrator Steve Miner. "He did not lead me to believe we are going to get any benefits this year."

A breakdown of the request shows $503,486 for a 2 percent salary step for teachers, $196,000 for half of the anticipated 12 percent increase for workers' health insurance premiums, $42,000 for a new special education teacher and $797,428 for increases in Virginia Retirement System (VRS) rates. The school system is required by law to pay for the latter two expenses, the officials said.

At the start of the session, the list of considerations also included $164,000 for three English as a Second Language (ESL) teachers and $196,000 for expected health insurance costs. The School Board mixed both.

Officials don't expect to know the cost of health insurance until July.

- In Northampton -

By Ron West

Northampton teachers Karen Aita and Kim Smith, who have achieved National Board Teacher certification, addressed the Northampton County School Board about the process this week.

Smith stated that while the path was rough and expensive, it was well worth the journey. Aita listed the work that a teacher must complete over a three-year period, as well as the financial costs associated with the process. She estimated that a teacher seeking the certification would spend between 300 and 600 hours of personal time developing the lessons and portfolios that prepare them for the six National Board exams. Smith indicated that the initial application process cost $65 and the follow-up application ran about $2,500. Aita then noted that there were costs associated with each of the six exams.

Superintendent Dr. Richard Bowmaster said that because the School Board places great value on a teacher attaining National Board Certification, they helped fund some of the out of pocket cost for the process. Aita also indicated that some grants are available to help offset the expenses.

Smith said that once certified, Virginia provides the teacher with a one-time $5,000 payment the first year as well as an additional $2,500 each of the next nine years, if the teacher continues to teach in the state. Northampton County offers an additional $1,000 per year incentive for the achievement.

Bull said usually the insurance hikes come back lower than expected. Last year rates went up 2 percent.

The board spent much of the meeting discussing the ongoing FY 2012 budget process. Board Chairman Dr. Richard Drury noted that the School Board needed to press forward with an effort to provide the teachers with a salary increase to offset the rising cost of living. The Board is seeking to work out a budget that will allow for a 3 percent salary increase for school employees.

School Board member Ann Terry and Finance Director Brook Thomas updated the School Board on efforts to work out shared services with the Board of Supervisors.

Dr. Bowmaster advised the Board that the number of students in county schools continues to decline, which translates into less funding from the state. Currently there are 1,672 K-12 students, with an additional 135 Pre-K and Special Education students not included in the state's funding equation. The number of students in the county has declined by 137 in the past three school terms.

In a discussion dealing with the transition of reassigning students to the high school, Dr. Bowmaster described how the move would be accomplished. It would cost an additional $62,450 for staff changes while seeing savings in other areas. A public information meeting for parents has been set for Feb. 3 at Northampton High School at 6:30 p.m.

STAR Transit Ridership On the Rise Under New Management

More riders took STAR Transit, the Eastern Shore's public bus system, in recent months than before new management began operating the line in March 2010.

Use was up by 11,723 rides when comparing March through December of 2009 with the same months in 2010. And increases occurred for every month during that time, according to records.

"The largest factor that I truly believe contributed to the increasing ridership every month is the reliability of STAR Transit," said Greg McGowan of Virginia Regional Transit, which is operating the system. "We have an average 88 percent on-time record."

McGowan said that number would be even higher if not for the time it takes to load "wheelchairs ... and challenged individuals who receive personalized service. In years past, passengers never knew when the bus was coming."

"Another factor is the transfer point at Walmart, which allows riders from other routes to transfer and travel north or south," he said. "Plus Eastern Shore Community College has partnered with us. Student ridership has added to the increased numbers and is growing each semester."

The passenger count was 2,945 in March 2009 and 4,134 in March 2010. In April it was 3,143 in 2009 and 3,800 in 2010. In May it went up from 2,654 to 3,264. The count was 2,719 in Jeanne Moore, a driver for STAR Transit, helps William Sample of Nassawadox off the bus in Onancock this week.

June of 2009 and 3,269 in June 2010. In July it went from 2,470 to 3,519. In August of 2009 there were 2,601 riders compared with 3,895 in the same month in 2010.

The number of riders went over the 4,000 mark in September, October and November of 2010. Usage was at 2,844 in September 2009 compared to 4,270 in September 2010. In October 2009 it was 2,932 compared to 4,680 in October 2010.

The best month was November 2010 when there were 4,785 riders, up from 2,381 in November 2009. In December 2009, there were 2,781 riders compared to 3,577 in December 2010.

When the new management team took the reins, the bus line stopped going to Chincoteague and other northern parts of Accomack. It also no longer picked up in the far southern areas of Northampton County.

"There were two additional routes being operated in 2008 and one additional route being operated in 2009," said Dave Morgan of the transit company. "So we have increased ridership with a reduced level of service and a smaller service area."

"We commend and thank Accomack and Northampton counties for believing in our changes and their continued support," said McGowan. "The changes at STAR and the phenomenal ridership increases are very noteworthy and the 100 percent increase we experienced in November is unheard of. STAR is on the move."

Transit worker Mark McGregor told the supervisors Wednesday that he would be seeking grant money so the route to northern Accomack areas and Chincoteague could be brought back. "We will do everything we can to restore service to that area," he said, adding that he also would pursue funds for bus shelters.

CAPITAL LETTERS

By Sen. Ralph Northam

Greetings from Richmond! The General Assembly Session began in earnest Wednesday. This is a short session that will last until the final Saturday of February. As I'm sure you know, we face a number of challenges this year, and I will keep you apprised of our progress in addressing them in the coming weeks.

First however, I wanted to thank those of you who attended the town hall meetings I held last week in Norfolk and Mathews, and on the Eastern Shore. I always learn a great deal from those sessions, and our time together truly helps me better represent your interests in Richmond.

This is a particularly important year for the General Assembly, as we offer amendments to the biennial state budget bill passed last year. During the recession, we were forced to cut spending dramatically to make up for lower than projected revenue. This was not all bad, because it helped us rethink our priorities as a commonwealth, and also reflected the belt-tightening practiced by many families across our state and nation. However, some of the cuts came at great cost to Virginia's investments in public education, health, and safety, three areas that must be better supported if we expect Virginia to remain a great place to live and work. As our economy slowly recovers, we must continue to chart a fiscally responsible course: though our budget shortfall is a fraction of what it was last year, we are still around $250 million short of our projected revenue, and need to close the gap in a way that doesn't impede recovery. However, we must also make plans to increase funding to core services as soon as possible when we emerge from this time of fiscal difficulty.

Last month, Gov. McDonnell made some suggestions for how he envisions us rebalancing the state budget. My colleagues and I have been reviewing his plan, and while I support some of his ideas, there are others that I find troubling, especially his proposal to have teachers and state employees pay more into their own pension plans. Most importantly, I don't believe it is fair to change the rules of the game for people who are planning their futures around a retirement we promised them. It is true, however, that we need to address the issue of solvency in the Virginia Retirement System, and I applaud the governor for tackling it head-on. I am confident that in the coming weeks we will arrive at a better solution.

As far as legislation, I am focusing on improving the health of our children, spurring economic development, and protecting our valuable marine resources. I have introduced a bill to help fight childhood obesity by requiring more physical education in our elementary and middle schools, as well as measures to promote growth in the aquaculture and aerospace industries. I also am reintroducing the legislation I sponsored last year to transfer management of menhaden from the General Assembly to the Virginia Marine Resources Commission.

I thank you all for your support, and welcome your input during session. My office phone number in the General Assembly building is (804) 698-7506, and my e-mail address is Senator@RalphNortham.com

If I am not available, my legislative assistant, Matt Strickler, will be happy to help. Please do not hesitate to call or e-mail, and if you are in Richmond, please feel free to stop by and say hello.

By Del. Lynwood Lewis

The 2011 Commonwealth of Virginia General Assembly was gaveled to order by the speaker of the House Jan. 12 at noon.

The legislature has a very full plate for the 45 days of this 2011 session. Foremost will be an amendment to Virginia's two-year budget adopted during the last General Assembly session in 2010, the governor's proposal for jump-starting Virginia's transportation infrastructure construction, and a solution to the funding problem with the Virginia Retirement System.

These are the larger issues with a host of smaller, yet very important issues behind them, including a dispute between the electrical cooperatives and the cable industry regarding the fees charged by the cooperative for use of utility poles by the cable industry.

There also will be substantial discussions on lawn fertilizers and their effect on water quality. The General Assembly is called upon to referee and resolve a number of such disputes between groups in an effort to promote economic development while protecting Virginia's citizens.

We have three new members in the Virginia House of Delegates and we will complete this session one member short of our 100 members due to the resignation, for health reasons, of Del. Tom Gear from Hampton. A special election for his seat has been set by the governor for March, so that the 91st District will be unrepresented during this General Assembly session. While people many times speak of term limits, in the Virginia House of Delegates at least, there is a fairly significant and rapid turnover. I began my service in the House of Delegates as number 99 in seniority and am now number 53.

I prefiled nine bills and anticipate filing a few more before our final deadline for introducing legislation, which is Friday, Jan. 21. The House of Delegates has a self-imposed limit of 15 bills per member in the odd-numbered year sessions. The Senate does not impose such a limit upon itself.

I anticipate and hope for a large number of visitors from the Shore during this General Assembly session. So far, we have had a number of visitors from the Eastern Shore's agricultural and banking communities and we expect visits from teachers, electrical cooperative members and the community college and chambers of commerce, among others. I encourage groups to visit so they can see first-hand how the commonwealth's system of government works. The Capitol is very visitor-friendly and my office will be glad to coordinate arrangements for a visit.

I had a very successful round of town-hall meetings across the Shore prior to leaving for Richmond, which I was pleased to see were very well attended. I will follow up with another round of town-hall meetings in the spring after the Assembly completes its business.

In addition, you have probably received a survey from me in the mail. I hope you will take a few minutes to fill it out and return it as it provides me with a real sense of how the district feels on issues that are likely to come before the General Assembly. In addition, you can complete the survey online at www.lywoodlewis.com if you did not receive one in the mail.

I will be in Richmond until Saturday, Feb. 25, when the General Assembly is scheduled to adjourn at noon. It is important that I hear from the people I represent. Please do not hesitate to contact me in Richmond at (804)698-1000, by e-mail at DelLLewis@house.virginia.gov or by mail at Del. Lynwood Lewis, P.O. ## Bridge Work

A workman atop the old Chincoteague bridge uses his torch to cut away a section as the removal of the bridge begins. Although the dismantling of the bridge, which has provided passage to Chincoteague and Assateague islands since 1940, began in earnest Monday morning, workers began positioning equipment and acetylene tanks Sunday evening, working most of the night. The work went on Monday despite a sharp wind and rainy conditions. A new bridge and spur to Marsh Island cost $69 million and opened recently.

Cape Charles Gets FEMA Award

By Ron West

In recognition of the fact that Cape Charles exceeds the minimum requirements of the National Flood Insurance Program, Robert Sobota, representing the Department of Homeland Security and FEMA, presented the town a plaque last Thursday for going the extra mile to protect its residents. The town's choice to do more than required saves its residents an average of $53 in their annual flood insurance premium.

Mayor Dora Sullivan announced that Jeb Brady has been appointed as the town's building code official. The position had been vacant since 2009. In the interim, the job had fallen to Dave Fauber, who is director of Public Works. Brady completed the final portion of his Building Official Exam on Jan. 6.

Sullivan announced that arrangements have been made to have a traveling veterinarian offer his services once a month in the town. Sullivan said the vet services would be offered at Cape Charles Fire Station.

Harbormaster Smitty Dize announced that construction on new floating piers at the harbor is expected to begin by the end of January. The 44 new slips will enable the town to provide additional space for visiting boaters. Funding for the new slips and other work previously completed in the harbor came in the form of Port Authority grants.

Dize said the town is seeking additional funding for construction of shower facilities for boaters mooring in the harbor. Council authorized the town manager to apply for an additional $500,000 Port Authority grant.

Town Council will hold a joint public hearing with the town Planning Commission on a wind energy ordinance on Feb. 1.

Council also agreed to hold public hearings on town code updates and a rezoning request for property on 546 Randolph Ave. on Feb. 10.

In a final action of the evening, Council agreed to request funding from Northampton County to support Cape Charles Memorial Library and the annual 4th of July fireworks display.

Jean Hungiville To Head Chamber

The Board of Directors of Eastern Shore of Virginia Chamber of Commerce has announced that Vice President of Membership and Marketing Jean Hungiville will assume the position of interim president, effective Feb. 1.

"We have decided to reorganize our staff and move forward with a more streamlined organization, even though we interviewed several very capable and qualified outside candidates for the position of president," said Board of Directors Chairman Willie C. Randall. "We are attaching the 'interim' prefix to the title as part of our decision to re-evaluate our status in six months."

In addition to Hungiville's new job duties, outgoing President Jeff Davis will remain with the chamber on a part-time basis as a financial consultant, reporting to the Board of Directors.

Shore Appointments to State Posts Announced

Gov. Bob McDonnell has re-appointed Robert S. Bloxom Jr. of Parksley, owner of Egret Point Seafood, to the state Aquaculture Advisory Board; and Hillary F. Little of Nassawadox, president of Waterford Printing, Inc., to the Board of Forestry.

The governor also appointed Nancy Stern of Belle Haven, chief executive officer for Eastern Shore Rural Health System, to the Virginia Health Workforce Development Authority.

said. "They didn't come here willy-nilly ... you saw what's happening. A lawsuit would (cost) much more," said Hart, adding, "It's dangerous."

Crockett said his "problem is not with the need. It's where the money is coming from. This economy is still down. Vendors need work. We just need more thought. I know it's worthwhile."

Wolff argued that the Greenbackville Harbor would also need help.

"They have not come with a proposal," said Hart.

"Something this large needs to be addressed at budget time," agreed Chesser. "All (facilities) need work. They're all churning mud. We need to look at all of them - not just harbors but boat ramps. Too much mud. We're kind of letting them go to pot. You've got commercial watermen working out of all these places," he said. "My biggest fear is I'll be sitting here when the county can't make its obligations. We're surrounded by water but we don't have water access."

Public Works Director Stewart Hall said there are 27 active facilities in the county with a budget of only $15,000 a year. "There's a big need out there."

Mears wondered whether helping with the Quinby project would "reflect poorly on their ability to get grants."

"This is going to be a horrendous expense," said Thornton. "I think that we need to be responsible" and make "a plan to generate more money." She said more federal funding (including money for dredging) might be available if the facility was made a harbor of refuge. Farlow asked them to help get the harbor the designation.

Laptop Still Not Recovered

By Linda Ciccoira

County Attorney Mark Taylor announced in a memo addressed last week to Accomack supervisors that he is disappointed there is nothing new to report about the missing laptop computer.

The lawyer was referring to equipment that held the privileged information of tens of thousands of local personal property owners. A former Accomack worker reported the laptop stolen from his hotel room while he vacationed in Las Vegas last October.

"The computer has not been found and there is no progress reported by the police at this time," Taylor wrote. "Though the police warned us from the beginning that it is unlikely that the laptop will be recovered, the lack of any progress is disappointing nonetheless ... note that there has been no report so far of any misuse of anyone's personal information that ties back to the data that was believed to be on the stolen computer," he continued.

Arrest

A Maryland man was arrested last week inside a building he had allegedly broken into.

Maj. Todd Godwin of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office (ACSO) said the suspect, Douglas Edwards Waters, 42, of Pocomoke was charged with burglary and grand larceny.

At 1:07 a.m. Jan. 13, according to Godwin, his office was alerted to an alarm at the Bargain Barrel in New Church. When deputies arrived at the store, they discovered the suspect was still inside. They surrounded the business and eventually arrested Waters. Godwin said, "The suspect was in possession of stolen merchandise."

Waters is being held in Accomack County Jail on $3,500 bond. Virginia State Police and the Chincoteague Police Department assisted in the case.

A dozen people can watch the same drama unfold and all 12 will recall different things about the experience. Some will just never agree about a happening. They have conflicting views. They process what they see in distinct manners.

So is the way of the world. There are those who would argue too many learned notions are at work interfering with those conclusions. We're only human after all.

How a person is dressed often causes a variety of opinions, down to discussions of the color of a woman's lipstick or a man's tie or lack thereof. Old money dresses like it wants. New money dresses to impress. The rest of us wear what we have or what fits. How much cash we have in our pockets is inconsequential. Or is it? Can one be eccentric without the almighty dollar?

Saving for a rainy day, for economic uncertainty or spending to enjoy life to its fullest are often subjects of dispute. I favor the latter.

Last names often cause reactions. So does the color of our skin and our gender. Let's not even touch political affiliations and religion.

Even the basic difference between the truth and a lie (and a little white lie) is up for debate. Is it tolerable to fib for the right reason or for entertainment purposes? Or should one never tell lie?

So we hash it out, chew it over and ponder the discourse.

What constitutes art? Is it passion, mood, good taste or a shoddy attitude?

And what about tone of voice? The meaning of words can change, depending on the decibel or the accented syllable. Is someone joking, ranting or asking for help?

There's "cool" and "nerd" and what it means to be one of those. A recent online quiz showed that some of us at the Eastern Shore Post are on the dorky side because we like to read and have fewer than 50 friends. Who decided that?

According to this nonsense, it is suave to choose a reality television show over the news. Inconceivable is what I call it. I'll choose world, regional and local events any day. Besides, the definition of a nerd is an intelligent, single-minded expert in a particular technical discipline or profession. So take that, you popular kids. Nahi!

Onancock Doesn't Welcome Outside Opinions

Dear Editor:

Three years ago, when Onancock celebrated its 327th anniversary, Dr. Brooks Miles Barnes was asked to contribute a historical perspective on the town and how things are today. No person is more qualified in this regard than he, not only because of his pre-eminent knowledge of the history of Onancock but because he lives in Onancock and is a direct descendant of Charles Scarborough, who owned the land out of which Onancock was created.

In "A Voyage Through Time," Dr. Barnes gives a historical perspective of changes in Onancock as a consequence of the town being discovered by retirees, second careerists, and trust-funders. They were much wealthier than most residents, renovated old houses, opened bread and breakfasts, and converted empty stores into restaurants, boutiques and real-estate offices catering to tourists and the affluent. He further observed, among many long-time residents, a resentment of what they perceived as a cultural condescension by these new residents and the residents felt increasingly alienated from the town they and, in many cases, their ancestors had known.

While the question of alienation and cultural condescension may be argued, recent meetings of Onancock Town Council give evidence there is reason to believe the perceptions are real. At one meeting, a newly elected council member, who has lived in Onancock less than two years, said he was tired of public comments from the peanut gallery at council meetings, a reference to those who regularly attend council meetings whom he disdainfully dismisses as the same old faces.

Only six people attended two recent council work sessions, held to decide plans for Onancock, whereas, in the past, such planning was decided after public hearings were held to solicit public input. Now public comment is invited after decisions are made. The discussion was dominated by two council members who have lived here only a short time and they, clearly, had their own agenda. All that was heard was what they thought the plan should be for Onancock. No council members said they had ever invited, or planned to invite, their constituents to express their concerns and interests in planning for their town.

As a long-time, come-here resident, I, too, now understand and share the perception of those who feel the condescension and increasing alienation.

Charles A. Landis, Onancock

Northampton Should OK Chicken Industry

Dear Editor:

Indications are that an effort is underway to allow Delmarva's commercial chicken industry to expand into Northampton County by allowing the construction and operation of chicken houses on family farms. I heartily support a change of attitude among the Northampton County Board of Supervisors and the planning and zoning authorities to allow this expanded farming enterprise.

Throughout Delmarva, including Accomack County, family farms grow chickens. They are required to follow more stringent environmental regulations than farms that don't raise chickens. They provide additional farm income to allow existing grain and vegetable farms to remain in business. They help circulate money through their local communities. Properly designed and operated, neighbors would hardly know they are there.

With Northampton County facing financial challenges like many other local governments, allowing chicken houses in the county would add to the county's coffers with the county having to provide few, if any, taxpayer supported services. After all, chicken farms don't need or want schools, new roads, libraries, expanded police services, and public health programs.

As a homeowner near Modestown, I know that Accomack County is being hurt by Northampton's negative attitude toward the chicken industry. Tyson Foods is seeking to expand its Temperanceville processing plant and that could mean more local jobs. Perdue Farms at Accomack brings live birds from Delaware and North Carolina. Locally grown and therefore lower-cost chickens would allow the plant to be run more efficiently and that's good for everybody. It just makes sense for the entire expansion. I urge the county supervisors to study this issue once again.

Wayne K. Evans, Modestown
