Shore Residents Are a Vanishing Breed

By Linda Ciccoira

Election redistricting measures just got even more complicated. Newly released 2010 U.S. Census figures show a population drop of 13.4 percent, or 5,141 people, for Accomack County since 2000.

The bureau said Accomack had 38,305 residents in 2000. But county officials questioned those figures, saying they were too high. Accomack used 34,488 as a total population when completing redistricting work in 2001. The efforts were approved by the U.S. Justice Department. Since then the figure also was used for planning.

Now the census shows a population of 33,164, or 3.8 percent, compared to the figure Accomack used.

The number of people living in Northampton County decreased by 5.4 percent, or 704, in the last 10 years.

Commenting on the Redistricting Dataset for Virginia released last Thursday by the Census Bureau, Accomack GIS Coordinator Tom Brockenbrough wrote County Administrator Steve Miner, "The numbers do not look good for Accomack. It will take me some time to fully drill down the data to have a more composite look at what this will mean for redistricting. ... At this point I have some great reservations about the accuracy of the numbers. We had a dramatic over-count in 2000. I think we've now got a serious under-count."

Brockenbrough, who also serves as Accomack's interim planning director, noted that if the county continues to use nine election districts, the ideal number in each would be 3,685 residents.

"Generally, election districts must be within 95 percent to 105 percent of the ideal population to be considered an acceptable size after the redistricting process (3,501 - 3,869)," he continued. "At present, five districts meet the criteria - Districts 3, 4, 6, 8 and 9. Two districts need to gain additional residents to meet the threshold - Districts 1 and 7 - and two districts need to lose residents to keep from being too large - Districts 2 and 5."

Two charts were sent to each of the supervisors regarding election district and town populations.

The information shows Election District 1, which is comprised of Chincoteague and is represented by Supervisor Wanda Thornton, as going from 3,906 residents to 2,941 or a drop of 24.7 percent in the past 10 years.

Election District 2, which is Supervisor Ron Wolff's territory, had 4,023 residents in 2000 and has climbed to 4,763, according to the figures. The hike represents 18.4 percent.

Supervisor Grayson Chesser represents Election District 3. It has dropped in population, according to these figures, by 6.8 percent, from 3,868 to 3,605.

Election District 4, which is Supervisor Sandra Hart Mears' territory, had 3,693 residents in 2000 and has dropped by 0.9 percent to 3,660.

Supervisor Jack Gray represents Election District 5, which has grown by 2.4 percent. In 2000, figures show the district had 3,996, compared to 4,090 in 2010.

Former Sheriff Robert Crockett represents District 6. He was recently appointed by the board to fill the unexpired term of Steve

Bill and Mary Rose Lazenby of Atlantic (above) will celebrate their 55th Valentine's Day as husband and wife next week. She met him when she worked at the soda shop in Melfa. "I thought he was cute so I asked him out. I invited him to a sock hop," said Mrs. Lazenby. "I've been happy ever since," said Mr. Lazenby. "I'm proud of you. I really am." The couple have four children, eight grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. (See Valentine survey story on Page 12.)

McCaleb Resigns as Supervisor

By Linda Ciccoira

Accomack County District 9 Supervisor Phil McCaleb of Craddockville resigned from office this week, effective today.

"It is with heavy heart that I tender this resignation due to health reasons," he wrote in a letter to Chairman Donald Hart dated Tuesday.

McCaleb said Wednesday, "I have prostate cancer. While I probably could continue to serve out my term, I felt that both the people of my district and myself would pay a potential high price if I stayed on. It is likely that I will be leaving the Shore for treatment and who knows the side effects, time and distractions I would face. While I have found the work as a member of the board to be fascinating, and frustrating, it needs or demands more time and focus than I am able to give the job, as well as making a living."

McCaleb requested that the board appoint Wesley Edwards of Belle Haven to fill the seat.

Red Cross A Shore Thing

By Ron West

After two years without a presence on the Eastern Shore, the American Red Cross again will provide direct support locally.

John Culp, executive director for the Lower Shore Chapter of the Red Cross, told the Northampton County Board of Supervisors that the Salisbury office now will provide service to Accomack and Northampton counties. From time to time, the Red Cross has had offices in one or both counties on the Shore, but budget and manpower issues resulted in the office located in Belle Haven closing. For a time, the services provided by the Red Cross were coming out of Baltimore. Culp stated that the Lower Shore Chapter agreed to assume support for the Eastern Shore beginning this year.

Culp noted that providing services for the Eastern Shore will pose a financial burden for the Lower Shore Chapter in that it had not been factored in to the 2011 budget. As a result, he hoped that local residents and possibly the local governments would be forthcoming with donations.

School Superintendent Dr. Richard Bowmaster provided an update on the Capital Improvement Plan (CIP) for the next several years. According to Dr. Bowmaster, the CIP includes approximately $9 million for improvements to the three county schools.

Psychiatrist Dr. John Ogram, addressed the lack of long-term care for county residents suffering from mental and substance abuse issues now that Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital no longer offers this service. Dr. Ogram urged the supervisors to press Riverside to consider resuming such care locally.

Area resident David Kabler reported that Indian Town Park is seeing record interest from the public. Kabler said that the Parks and Recreation Department wants to add an additional two weeks to its summer program for young people.

Tom Murray and Doug McMinn gave the supervisors their perspectives on the status of aquaculture in the county. Murray noted that the Eastern Shore is the largest producer of hard-shell clams on the East Coast, with 90 percent from Northampton County. He said the industry has an annual production valued at $50 million, with approximately $9 million of that going into the wages of the 380 plus workers.

McMinn noted the value of the farmed oyster industry to the Shore stating that oysters can bring in an average of 25 cents each, thus providing a good income for anyone willing to invest the time and energy in the industry.

Supervisor Oliver Bennett asked what a person would need in order to get started in aquaculture. McMinn replied that it could be as simple as having a small skiff and a way to access the water. He continued by saying that the farming of oysters was poised to equal the harvesting of native stocks seen in years past but that have been on a decline for the past half-century.

Following a public hearing, the supervisors agreed to support a request by Eastern Shore Rural Health, the World Health Institute, and the Eastern Shore Area Agency of Aging/Community Action Agency to be given tax-exempt status.

The board also approved a request by Delsea Energy to erect a meteorological tower (MET) to gather data on wind speed and direction, on the condition that it have bird diverters as well as acoustic bat detectors.

Supervisors Tankard and Murray gave an update regarding the move of Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital to an area near Accomack. Tankard cited the additional financial costs that would be incurred by Northampton Emergency Medical Services (EMS) agencies, including the need for additional equipment and staffing. "If (the hospital) goes to the Accomack area, the new line for moving patients south to a Hampton Roads hospital will be located just south of Eastville," Tankard said. He noted the need to encourage Riverside to consider an emergency facility to fill the gap in medical care for county residents once the Nassawadox facility is closed.

Supervisor Sam Long Jr. noted that factoring in the added distance, the period from receiving a call to reaching the hospital could exceed an hour.

Plea Made for New Hospital

By Linda Cicaira

Census figures are a big part of Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital's plea for a Certificate of Public Need (CPN) to move its facility to Accomack.

The CPN application states, "In order for the hospital to survive in this changing healthcare environment, it needs to move to an area where the hospital can build a completely new physical plant, both inpatient and outpatient components can be cost efficient to operate; the hospital can be in a patient market, which contains an existing favorable demographic and third party pay or mix; and future population growth provides a more stable, as opposed to declining, patient census."

While the application cites a 48.9-acre parcel of land near Accomack, a hospital official recently said that could change in the next several weeks. The application identifies property "18 miles from the existing hospital site with a travel time of 22 minutes. While the property is currently zoned for agricultural use, Riverside has been assured by the Accomack County Administrator and County Planner that re-zoning will not be an issue. Travel to Sentara Bay-side in Virginia Beach from the new site is estimated at 67 miles and to Peninsula Regional in Salisbury at 57 miles."

The U.S. Census Bureau's 2010 figures show a population drop of 3.8 percent in Accomack County compared to the total used by officials in 2000 and a 5.4 percent drop for Northampton County in the last 10 years.

The CPN application states, "Most of the numerical growth in the decade 2010 to 2020 is expected to occur in Accomack County, increasing some 1,940 persons, or 4.8 percent. Northampton County is estimated to increase by some 1,000 residents or 6.7 percent. Of significance, the population age 65 and over for both counties is projected to show dramatic percentage increases by 2016 over 2010."

"Nearly one out of every five residents on the Eastern Shore in 2016 will be age 65 and over. It should be noted that the age group 65 and over consumes at least four times more healthcare resources than those individuals under age 65. This high proportion of senior citizens is reflected in the percentage of inpatient days (2009) at Riverside Shore Memorial."

"The hospital ranks 11th of all 64 acute care hospitals in Virginia in combined Medicare and Medicaid as a percent of total gross patient revenue," the application states. "It is fourth among all Virginia acute care hospitals in the percent of bad debt expense. A significant part of this expense could probably be classified as charity care, given the economic circumstances of many Eastern Shore residents."

Car Care

TRY THESE STEPS FOR A 'GREENER' CAR

It doesn't matter if the car you're driving is new or old, big or small. There are preventive maintenance steps vehicle owners can take to make sure their car is as "green" or environmentally friendly as possible, according to the Car Care Council.

By following simple preventive maintenance steps, you can help protect the environment by improving gas mileage, which in turn saves money at the pump.

•Keep your car properly tuned for optimum performance. A well-tuned engine delivers the best balance of power and fuel economy and produces the lowest level of emissions. A 21st Century tune-up can improve gas mileage by an average of 4 percent. Fixing a serious maintenance problem, such as a faulty oxygen sensor, can improve gas mileage by as much as 40 percent.

•Regularly check and re- place dirty air filters. An air filter that is clogged with dirt, dust and bugs chokes off the air and creates a "rich" mixture - too much gas being burned for the amount of air - that wastes gas and causes the engine to lose power. Replacing a clogged air filter can improve gas mileage by as much as 10 percent, saving about 15 cents a gallon.

•Have spark plugs checked and replaced if necessary. A vehicle can have four, six or eight spark plugs, which fire as many as three million times every 1,000 miles. This results in a lot of heat, electrical, and chemical erosion. A dirty spark plug also causes misfiring, which wastes fuel.

•Maintain the cooling system. A cooling system thermostat that causes the engine to run too cold will lower the fuel efficiency of a car by as much as one or two mpg. There also are improved radiator caps on the market today that allow the cooling system to operate at a higher temperature before boiling over, increasing the system's efficiency and reducing emissions.

In addition to proper vehicle maintenance, vehicles can be more fuel-efficient if tires are properly inflated and if drivers observe the speed limit, avoid aggressive driving and excessive idling, and adhere to an errand list to eliminate extra trips to the store for forgotten items.

Exmore Reviews Policies for Filling Council Seats

By Ron West

Exmore Town Council continues to revise the town charter to bring it in line with recent General Assembly actions.

One area of interest defines policies surrounding the filling of vacant seats on Council. Prior to 2010, such vacancies were filled by Council appointment. In 2010 the Virginia General Assembly enacted changes that could require a special election to fill a vacant seat.

One additional change proposed by Exmore Town Council would require a sitting member who wishes to run for mayor to resign from Council, thus leaving a vacancy that would need to be filled by election.

Once Town Council refines its recommendations on changes to the charter, it will conduct a public hearing for citizen input. Any proposed changes to the charter must be approved by the General Assembly; thus, it would be more than a year before any such changes would be in place.

Interim Town Manager Arthur Miles gave an update on the Public Service Authority (PSA) and efforts of the Project Management Team (PMT) to move forward with the proposed regional wastewater project.

Miles said there is still a need for additional volunteers to get surveys completed regarding the public's interest in connecting to the system once it is in place. According to Miles, just over 200 surveys have been completed, with several hundred more needed. Most surveys thus far indicate an interest in connecting to the system.

A grant being sought by the PSA/PMT calls for either an 80 percent interest in voluntary hookups by the public or putting a mandatory hookup requirement in place. Miles said Nassawadox Town Council has voiced opposition to a mandatory hookup. Other towns have not conducted a vote on the requirement and are still seeking surveys by the public in an effort to demonstrate the required 80 percent interest in hooking up to the regional system.

Councilman Dave Scanlan expressed concern over what the monthly rate might be for those who connect to the regional system. That topic also has been a stumbling block for other towns in the county, as many citizens with a working septic system do not want an additional monthly fee. Until it is known how many customers will be hooked to a system, it is difficult to determine what the monthly fee would be.

Council reviewed proposals on what to do with a small portion of property east of the town center currently known as the Doughty Property. Members of Council were less than enthusiastic about spending money to purchase the property, given the limited resources of the town. Miles said one issue of concern is that there is no clear title available and that to get one would require a survey of the property. No final decision was made.

In other business, Miles said the town is still waiting for a letter of approval by ANEC to burn derelict homes on Gladstone Lane. In a related area, Miles said that he is seeking parties interested in the demolition of several houses in various parts of the town. He is proposing that the affected property owners' share in the cost of equipment rental needed to complete the job. Once the homes have been demolished, it would still be the owners' responsibility to remove the debris.

Mayor Billy Moore Jr. announced that there is an opening on the town's Planning Commission. He urged anyone interested in becoming involved in the future of the town to apply at the Town Office for consideration for the position by Council.

Accomack County Deputy Arrested on 10 Misdemeanor Counts

Accomack Deputy Sheriff Jerry Spencer Tarr was charged with 10 counts of petit larceny (shoplifting) by Virginia State Police Special Agent P.A. Compton Monday.

Tarr, 45, came under investigation early this year, when Petroleum Marketing Group (PMG) contacted the State Police to investigate an alleged larceny at Corner Mart Convenience store in Chincoteague. Petroleum Marketing Group and its employees identified Tarr on 10 occasions on video surveillance stealing several Five Hour Energy Drinks.

According to court records, Laura McDowell, district manager of the store, "personally viewed the DVD surveillance video and identified Jerry Tarr" as the person who stole Five Hour Energy Drinks in January and February 2011.

He is accused of stealing two drinks on Jan. 19, 2011; three on Jan. 20; two on Jan. 21; one on Jan. 25; one on Jan. 26; one on January 27, three on Jan. 29; four on Jan. 30; two on Jan. 31; and two on Feb. 1.

"The total amount of loss is $78.26," Compton wrote.

Tarr was charged and released, according to State Police.

Sheriff Larry Giddens said Tarr, who had worked for his department for three months, resigned Monday. "He did a great job for us," said Giddens. "This is one of those things you can't explain. It's a sad time for us."

Mallette, who resigned. Figures show that district had a 2 percent drop in population, from 3,659 residents to 3,587.

Election District 7, which is represented by Vice Chairwoman Laura Belle Gordy, went from 3,725 residents to 3,265, a decline of 11.8 percent.

The population of Election District 8, which is represented by Chairman Donald Hart, went down by 1.4 percent, from 3,725 to 3,671.

The population of Election District 9, which is represented by Supervisor Phil McCaleb, went down by 8.6 percent, from 3,917 to 3,582 residents.

Figures for towns were also released for 2010. Population is down for Accomack, Bloxom, Chincoteague, Hallwood, Melfa, Onancock, Painter, Saxis and Wachapreague.

Figures for Belle Haven, which is in both Accomack and Northampton counties, were not included in Brockenbrough's letter. "The Census Bureau reports three numbers for Belle Haven — the Accomack portion, the Northampton portion and a total and I haven't yet been able to verify that I'm comparing numbers for a similar geography," wrote Brockenbrough.

In Accomack, the population was down by 5.1 percent, from 547 residents to 519. In Bloxom, it was down 3 percent, from 399 to 387. In Hallwood, it went down by 29 percent, from 290 to 206. Melfa's population dropped by 9.3 percent, from 450 residents to 408. Onancock's population declined by 17.2 percent, from 1,525 residents to 1,263. Painter went down by 6.9 percent, from 246 to 229 residents. Saxis went down 28.5 percent, from 337 to 241. Wachapreague's population went from 236 to 232 residents, a drop of 1.7 percent.

Population is up in Keller, Onley, Parksley and Tangier. In Keller, it went from 173 to 178, an increase of 2.9 percent. In Onley it went from 472 to 516, a hike of 9.3 percent. In Parksley, it went from 837 to 842, an increase of 0.6 percent and on Tangier Island it went from 604 to 727, an increase of 20.4 percent.

Mayor Billye D. Custis of Onley was surprised to hear the numbers for her town. "We had a whole lot (of census surveys) that were delivered to Onley that said Melfa," she said. "My whole street (Caroline) was wrong. The majority of West Main Street was wrong. There was someone on Maple that was wrong. Nobody gave me a satisfactory answer about how it was going to be handled."

She said population figures affect the amount of funding handed out by the state.

According to the state Department of Criminal Justice Web site, money for local police is distributed based on crime rates, population, population density and welfare caseloads.

Onley expects to get more than $11,000 for its police department. While there are 225 inhabited houses in the town, there are also more than 80 businesses and busy Lankford Highway. Custis said local sales tax is also returned based on school-age residents.

Other towns that will see police money are Cape Charles with $26,076, Chincoteague with $97,587, Exmore with $31,049, Onancock with $32,993, and Parksley with $18,496.

According to the Virginia Public Asset Project's Web site (vpap.org), "based on the 2010 Census, the ideal population of each Congressional District will be 727,366 people." The district, which includes the Eastern Shore, is more than 10 percent below target.

Miner wrote to the supervisors last Friday. "Our population has dropped according to the census by some 5,100 persons. At first blush, I suspected a second bad census for us. The last one was high and this one, well, who knows. We had a lot of stories of people not counted. I will say that our 'loss' in population does seem incongruous with the interim numbers we have occasionally received, which showed us with very modest growth."

Supervisor Claims Census Reflects Several Errors

By Linda Cicaira

Accomack Supervisor Wanda Thornton of Chincoteague is joining forces with Chincoteague officials and staff to fix mistakes in the island's 2010 census.

"We had multiple complaints from people who said they weren't counted," said Thornton. "Some said they (census workers) came to their houses three times. It really is a messed-up thing ... just looking at it you'll know it isn't correct," she told Town Council Monday.

According to 2010 census figures, the population on Chincoteague Island is down by 24.7 percent compared with figures gathered in 2000, from 3,906 to 2,941 residents.

Thornton said there are 2,602 registered voters on the island and 420 students in the public schools. "Lots of people won't register to vote because they (incorrectly) think that means jury duty," she said. Voters and public-school students combined are more than what the census came up with and don't include children who are home-schooled or attend private schools, Thornton said. There is a similar situation with countywide results, she added.

The census shows Accomack with a population of 33,164 but Thornton said there are 22,000 registered voters in the county and that, combined with the number of students, shows the census figures are too low.

"We're going to have to do a lot of the work ourselves," she said, warning that not righting the wrong could result in losing state money for town road maintenance and a seat on the Accomack-Northampton Planning District Commission. "This could really be devastating for us," she told Council.

"We're just going to have to do our own count," she said. And the new figures would have to be proven. In 2000, Thornton said, it was easier to correct errors in the census, which showed 418 residents in Inlet View, where no one lived.

"The biggest increase was in Ron Wolff's District where they made a big mistake last time," said Thornton. She explained errors in those population figures also were corrected easily because they occurred at Trails End, which also did not have full-time residents.

Both Inlet View and Trails End now do have some residents, she added. While the county corrected problems with the 2000 census, some figures are still wrong because the "information had already gone to print."

Thornton also commented that recent census figures for Tangier are wrong. In District 9 (the Painter/Belle Haven areas), she said, there were also complaints about residents not being counted. Thornton said the local census was performed by people from "across the bay" who do not "know the properties and the ins and outs of getting in touch with people" here.

Chincoteague Councilman John Howard said the biggest complaint was the fear residents had when strangers showed up on their property. "They felt very uncomfortable," Thornton agreed, adding, "They are geared to handling the cities."

The supervisor suggested that corrections be made by the street. Chincoteague Mayor Jack Tarr, who said the census workers missed all of Bunker Hill, noted that Chincoteague "was one of the few places that didn't get the mailing. They just came door-to-door."

In addition to a physical count, County Attorney Jon Poulson said the town could use personal property and water bills to show population.

Town Manager Robert Ritter also said errors in the census were made. He said of the 4,517 dwellings on the island, the census shows 69 percent are not occupied.

"We have a lot of unoccupied houses, but we don't have that many," said Thornton. "It's just another thing you have to spend your time and money on that should have been done right in the first place."

In other business, Chincoteague Council agreed to seek a federal grant for $256,000 to buy new trolleys. After the old ones are sold, the cost to the town would be about $12,000 if the grant is obtained and the state kicks in $32,000.

Councilman Terry Howard wanted the town to urge owners of the Roxy Theater to change the name back to Island Theater, which it was for years in his youth. He said keeping the history is important and that the cost would be worth it.

"My request is that the ... board ... does whatever necessary to seat Mr. Edwards before the regular meeting of Feb. 16 so that the District 9 constituents will have continuous representation," McCaleb wrote.

"I am recommending Wes Edwards be appointed in my stead for one reason," McCaleb continued. "He is the best person for the job. I don't think Wes has missed a board meeting in the last five years. He is up to speed on all the issues before the board and has a good grasp of the various personalities of the board members and the various county employees. In other words, he will not have the 'learning curve' that made me feel so 'at sea' when I first went on the board. He is bright, a hard worker and he cares about Accomack County and its government."

Edwards, who was McCaleb's campaign manager, said he will pursue the supervisor's seat "now and in the November General Election."

McCaleb of McCaleb-Metzler Inc., an insurance firm in Belle Haven, is the second supervisor to resign in 2011. Former Sheriff Robert Crockett was appointed last month to fill the unexpired term of Steve Mallette, District 6 representative to the Board of Supervisors.

This was McCaleb's first term after beating out Reneta Major who was appointed after her mother, Supervisor Julia Major, died.

Hart said he hopes the quest for a new supervisor would follow the same course as when Crockett was appointed. In that case, a deadline was set for residents of the district to apply for the position. Then a selection meeting was held, during which the candidates could tell about themselves and others could voice their support. If the supervisors fail to appoint a new member, a circuit court judge would decide.

Hart said he is calling a special meeting for 5 p.m. Feb. 14 to address the issue.

Readers Put Their Hearts Into Valentine's Survey

By Linda Cicora

Accomack and Northampton residents are gearing up for the big event. It's 72 hours until Valentine's Day!

Ive Chubb of Eastville said the perfect Valentine couple is Maryon and Stewart Womble of Cheriton. "Their kindness is endless. They are just lovely people in love."

Chubb is lucky that way, too. "My husband always makes Valentine's Day special," she wrote in response to an Eastern Shore Post e-mail survey. "We go out to dinner and he always makes me feel special and loved." She said her worst Valentine's Day was "many years ago (when) I was in the military in Spain and all alone."

Cissy Hall of the Accomack area fondly remembers an Alabama tradition called "stomping." Kids and teenagers "stomped on the doorstep or porch, banged on door, hid card under doormat and ran to hide" on Valentine's Day. She said a gift of chocolate or flowers ... for special friends or someone you had a crush on. (They) stayed in the neighborhoods most often ... we would ride our bikes for long distance stomping. As older teenagers we would drive. My parents' generation had this tradition too. (It is) fun to think about."

Richard Pearsall of Onancock said the perfect Valentine couple is "Iris and Willie Crockett, local icons in Onancock — still in love after five kids and many years."

Ron West of Machipongo said he knows how he won his wife's heart. "When Faye and I were in college, I did the usual thing of walking down to the lake on campus and carving our initials on a tree." Now he "bakes a Valentine's cake or other romantic item for Faye. I also try to bake supper for her."

Vicki Weiskopf of Chincoteague said her cousins, "age 88 and 92, are really the perfect Valentine's couple. Married 70 years, they still live independently and only think of the other. They still possess those qualities that first attracted them: compassion, dignity, and a sense of humor. They jokingly attribute their happiness to 'hearing loss'!"

Linda Mitchell of Melfa nominated Allen and Trish Underwood as the perfect Valentine couple. They live in the same area and are celebrating their 19th anniversary today. "Two great kids. Wonderful, wonderful people," she said.

Mitchell isn't a stranger to love either. She's been winning the heart of her husband by cooking lots of "fine candlelit dinners." Valentine's Day is "always great with my husband and has never been bad ever." Her husband usually rewards her with Godiva chocolates.

Sandy Storherr of Willis Wharf said Edward and Beverly Stetar of Exmore are the perfect Valentines. "After all these years and their medical problems, they hug and kiss and hold hands at every chance. They are the first ones to come and help a friend or even a stranger. Ed and Bev also are the workers behind putting out the Salvation Army kettles and counting the money each year in Northampton County. Plus taking care of the Angel Trees and seeing that everyone that can be helped is helped. They both have hearts of solid gold."

Storherr knows these things because she was born on Valentine's Day. And she's a sender of Valentines. "I have 12 already written. I love to give gifts and cards on my birthday," she said.

Jennifer Simpson of Exmore said, "Cooking up a killer meal" is "the way to a man's heart." Her best Valentine's Day "was 1999 when my husband and I started going out. The worst was when I did not have someone special, it's miserable to be alone on Valentine's, especially when all your friends have someone."

Kimberlee Ormsby of Onancock said her parents, who live at Wintergreen, in Virginia, are the perfect couple. "They have been married for 54 years. In July of 2010, their home burned to the ground. They escaped through their bedroom window, but nothing of the home or their valuables was saved. My father has always adored my mother and she has loved him through 30 years in the Air Force, which involved moving every three years, and government bureaucracy. After the fire, my father has become even more attached to my mother. The most recent heartfelt story is my mother telling me that at night he wakes up and just touches her. He doesn't mean to wake her, but he just wants to know she is there beside him and safe. I love that story."

The best Valentine's Day for Ormsby was when her husband took her out for a romantic dinner. They drove "home holding hands after many, many years of marriage. The worst was long before my husband and I were married. We broke up and did not spend Valentine's Day together."

Still, she says she and her man don't usually make a big deal about the day. "I really just want my husband to say 'Happy Valentine's Day.'"

Nancy Galati of Belle Haven said her parents are the best couple: "Evelyn and Richard Lewis (of Cheriton) because they've been married 60+ years!"

Candy Williams of Exmore said the way to win someone's heart is "41 years of marriage, three children and six grandchildren!! Cooking, cleaning, work and taking care of the home all that time for better or worse!"

She named "Carole and Skip" as a great couple "because he always makes her feel like a queen ... they are such Christian examples of how couples should live together in peace and harmony."

Allison Pike, a high-school student from Cape Charles, said, "I think the perfect Valentine couple are my parents, Roger and Jeanine! I choose them because they are so loving and they think of others before themselves and they always stick together. Any tough situation and easy situation they are always a loving couple. I've never had a bad Valentine's Day. My parents always make it the best. I love to see my parents happy. That's what makes Valentine's Day the best. And I do not care for anything for Valentine's Day, just for my parents to be together forever and enjoy all the upcoming Valentine's there are to come!"

Barbara Miles of Gargatha named Jean and Billy Davis as Valentine couple. "They are a perfect image of relying on God and faith in each other to get through the hard times and still be the best of friends. Marriage is not easy, but they have a strong faith in the Lord and He has blessed them. Jean is so well-known for her directorship of the Food Bank and all the ways it has been improved throughout the years. Strong sense of family and values that never waiver. They have had sorrowful times and joyful times. They model themselves as God's servants in all they do. It is a pleasure to know them."

Miles said her best Valentine's Day was "cruising the Caribbean ... and of course the diamonds that went with it! Worst was not worth remembering ... love of family is all that is ever needed."

Erin Hall of Cheriton said, "My best and worst Valentine's Days were actually the same day. When I was in high school I used to get flowers delivered at school every year from my father. When I started dating, I expected that I would get flowers at school from my boyfriend, too. Valentine's Day came ... and... the school day ended without the usual call from the office to come pick up my delivery, and crushed, disheartened, and even a little mad, I left school and headed to my boyfriend's house. There I visited with him briefly, but, seeing that he neither had a Valentine's Day gift for me nor seemed to be aware that the day even existed, I stormed out to my car and went home in a rage. At home I found my room strewn with roses of every hue, plush animals and cards of humor and romance. It was the worst and best Valentine's Day because my boyfriend had taken such care, yet I had been such a ..., well, you know."

"I talk to my high-school Valentine every day when I see my husband. We have been together for 10½ years and very little has changed about the way we love," Hall said.

Ed Kehrig of Jamesville said, "Every day is Valentine's Day at my house. My wife is my queen and gets treated as such all year long."

Angie H. Crutchley of Onancock said her life is the perfect Valentine. "I choose myself and my husband Doug" as the Valentine couple. "Two weirder human beings couldn't have been more perfectly matched. If there is a fate, and I believe there is, it brought us together to live the rest of our disturbed lives together!"

"The best was when we didn't have much money and made each other love letters," Crutchley said. I ... put his on the refrigerator

Accomack Schools Oppose PE Bill

By Linda Cicoira

Accomack school officials informally voiced their disapproval last week of Virginia House Bill 1644, which requires an average of at least 150 hours of physical education per week for public school students in grades K-8 and similar goals for high school students.

Superintendent Rick Bull said, "They're always saying it's budget neutral. It's not budget neutral." In order to offer that much physical education, Bull said, 20 minutes would have to be added to the school day, or art, music or library would have to be cut.

As it is, he said, some students start their day on the school bus as early as 6:45 a.m. and end it as late as 4:45 p.m. Other after-school activities lengthen the day beyond that.

where it stays to this day, much to his embarrassment. I try to force a celebration. Seven years together and I still hear the same manufactured speech about how Valentine's Day is just propaganda from the Hallmark company." She wants to celebrate with diamonds.

The bill is scheduled to be heard in the Senate and Education and Health's Public Education Subcommittee on Monday, Feb. 14. If approved it would go into effect beginning with the 2014-15 term.

Supervisor Wolff Announces Meeting

Floyd Lee Harris, Sr.

01.02.50 - 01.30.11

Thank you to all who sent cards and flowers, who gave support, prepared food and prayed for us during our time of loss.

Thank you,
The Harris Family

The family of Pete Richardson would like to thank each and every one for their visits, flowers, food and prayers while he was ill and since his passing. Special thanks to the Chincoteague Vol. Fire Co., the ambulance crew, the Ladies' Auxiliary, and the Greenbackville Fire Co. for the ladder truck. The outpouring of love and compassion shown to our family during this trying time showed how much "Pete" touched peoples' lives. He will be sorely missed. There are no words to express our gratitude.

I bought myself a treadmill and I'm using it! Yippee! By the time this column is in the newspaper I will be on my 13th straight day of mile walking. My calves are firm. And the rest of me might follow some day. I have high hopes.

It's opened up a whole new world. I'm watching morning television now. That's right, this night owl is dragging herself out of bed 10 minutes earlier than usual. I finally understand what some of my coworkers are talking about — early news.

Last week I was able to debate whether giving hot sauce to a child is a proper form of punishment. I've kept up with happenings in Egypt and with Lindsay Lohan. And I now know that tater tots are less fattening than French fries.

The treadmill is set up in the middle of the living room so I can't easily ignore it. It has a fold-up conveyor belt that keeps Finnegan, one of my cats, from pretending he's in a cartoon and flipping around and around and around.

A friend hinted that using the machine late at night is not good for you. She's one of those early risers who put evil thoughts in my head about late-night exercise. Now I'm stuck with the morning routine.

It's not all bad. I can walk for the first 10 minutes before I even realize that my legs are killing me. I'm still asleep! The second 10 minutes allow me to comprehend some of "The Today Show." I love Matt Lauer! Then I check e-mail, eat breakfast, shower, dress and dash out the door in an effort to make it to work on time. Ain't life grand?

Exercise has got to work. I'm not much for dieting. In 2010, I gave up chocolate for a month and added five pounds to my already not ideal weight. It's not right. It's not fair. So, of course, now I'm eating chocolate again. It's my favorite food.

But I don't drink soda or eat beef. I'm allergic to the latter. I'm not getting any younger and I've got to do something to match my 24-year-old attitude with my 52-year-old body.

"I really wish you the best with it," my husband says about the treadmill endeavor. Lloyd is giving me eight weeks. He thinks after that the exercise equipment will evolve into a work of art to be admired but not touched. He's planning on buying special tract lighting to illuminate the sculpture.

And he's a skinny person who thinks he's fat!

Uh! I'll show him. I will make it to eight weeks and a day! And possibly longer!

Now he's laughing. He says I should start designing an advertisement for the future treadmill sale. Lloyd thinks he's using psychology on me. He thinks by saying that, he will make me strong. The man knows I am stubborn.

Is it wrong of me to wish he'd gain a few pounds, too? OK, yes it is.

But wouldn't it be nice of him to get up early and cheer me on? I think so. Then again, next thing you know he'll be hogging the television remote in the morning. Then I'll have to get up even earlier so I can be ahead of the game. Or I could hide it before I go to bed.

Isn't it bad enough that for the first time in 25 years he picked the winning Super Bowl team? Yeah. Oh Happy Valentine's Day. Yippee.

Trash Ruins Beauty of Eastern Shore

Dear Editor:

Thanks to Linda Cicaira for her excellent article regarding the trash problem here in Accomack County. Many people here speak of living on the Shore as living in paradise. If trash, garbage, debris and deteriorating buildings make them happy, then they would be in total bliss living on top of an urban landfill or in some urban ghetto.

Often I have out-of-state visitors who comment on the beauty of the marshes and coastline, but never fail to add another comment on the garbage and debris along the highways and byways and the rundown condition of many of the buildings.

I recently was picking up litter in the form of beer and soda cans, plastic bottles and fast-food containers at Gargatha Landing. A gentleman watching me from his parked car commented, "Ain't that there just awful how those people from out of state throw their trash around?" He suggested those responsible were fishermen from out-of-state. I said I didn't think the problem was limited to "out of staters." He uttered a grunt which I was unable to interpret and pulled away. While backing out, he threw a coffee cup from Royal Farms and an empty cigarette pack out the car window. I guess his idea of trash is different from mine. I think "Toss the Trash" should be listed as one of the local recreation activities along with hunting, fishing, bird watching and boating.

Miner Successfully Takes On Wannabe Reporter Nowak

Dear Editor:

OOPS, a reply by an informed, articulate and honest public servant — Steve Miner — trumps a vitriolic, biased screed by Cheryl Nowak, legendary hater of all Accomack government.

Truth cleaned your clock again.

Just keep quite (sic) and collect your advertising revenues or start trying to get your facts straight like a real reporter you try to imitate.
