Exmore's Community Fire Company Sues to Recover Bad Investment

By Linda Cicoira

Officials from Community Fire Company Inc., in Exmore, invested $100,000 in 2016 in a quick return venture and are still waiting to get the money back, which was derived from donations and provisions for Emergency Medical Services.

Despite a win in Northampton Circuit Court against Harvest Financial Group LLC, of Richmond, and owner, Kyle T. Mills, repayment of the funds has been held up by the appeal process.

Last summer, a jury recommended Harvest refund the initial investment and pay $145,000 in punitive damages. Judge Burke McCahill approved the order and eventually said another $48,000 in legal fees and costs should be paid by the financial firm. The group's motion to set aside the verdict was denied.

Community Fire asked for $350,000 in punitive damages plus costs and attorney fees of $215,000. Harvest is appealing the case to the Supreme Court.

"We invested the money," Chief Greg DeYoung said last week speaking about four fire company officers. "After several months we ultimately got information that it might not be a great investment. We were told it (the money) would be returned and it wasn't ... We trusted this person," the chief continued. "We still have a lot of money that was invested properly."

DeYoung would not disclose the agent's name.

Court records state J. Michael "Mike" Johnson, of Midlothian, Va., portrayed himself to fire company officials as a representative in good standing with Harvest. Johnson was named in the initial lawsuit but was later eliminated as a defendant when amended papers were filed. This financial advisor successfully made money for the Exmore fire department in the past.

Tom and Pam Lewis, a married couple, and president and treasurer of the fire company respectively, met with Johnson one night for dinner and on previous occasions to discuss investments, DeYoung said.

Johnson "asked if the fire company had any funds to invest. He was selling an investment loan program that was guaranteed to return principal plus a healthy rate of interest over a short term," the lawsuit stated. "Johnson represented that the loan

Supervisors Approve Zoning Change for Proposed Melfa Development

By Linda Cicaira

The Fox Meadows, a proposed development that includes a Chick-fil-A restaurant, Wawa convenience store, and 45 apartments, is getting closer to becoming reality for the Melfa area.

Accomack supervisors approved a zoning change Wednesday and sent a request for a conditional use permit back to the planning commission for a final review. The review appeared to be a formality as VDOT has already approved a traffic light at the intersection at Lankford Highway and Dogwood Lane / Phillips Drive.

The light is a requirement if the gas station is to be constructed. Project engineer John Salm said all three undertakings are needed to make the plan work so there is no doubt a light would be installed, at the cost of the developer, Jack Siesmon, of Accomack Properties Inc. State land from the nearby police barracks will also be needed to make the intersection big enough for the endeavor.

The entrance to the apartments, at the back of the development, would be accessed via Dogwood Lane. The county's nearby sewage system will be used. Salm said Dogwood Lane from the highway to the apartments would also be improved.

Supervisor Donald Hart suggested the developer upgrade the road back to Savageville by improving the sharp turn and potholes but that is unlikely since apartments would be between the highway and where the road bends.

"A traffic light will be a big bonus for residents," said Supervisor Paul Muhly. "This is a dangerous intersection."

Property Purchase

The supervisors voted to buy the former Saecker dental office, on Front Street in Accomack, for $190,836 with the deal expected to close at press time Thursday.

County Administrator Mike Mason said the building would be used for storage for "short-term." Supervisor Grayson Chesser said it was a deal the county couldn't resist. Both agreed the location next to the Eastern Shore 9-1-1 Communications Center and the health department is an asset for future office space.

"The size of government never shrinks," said Chesser. "We felt like it would just be a good idea to go ahead and get it while we have a chance. We still have plenty of space needs. We bought it for the future really. State and feds keep giving us all these mandates. I feel like we'd be real unwise to let it go."

New Zoning Official Named

The supervisors also appointed Deputy Director of Planning & Zoning Katherine Nunez as the county's Zoning Administrator and Subdivision Agent. Nunez recently passed the certification exam administered by the Virginia Association of Zoning Officials.

Moment of Silence

A moment of silence was given in honor of former Supervisor C.D. "Toppy" Fleming Jr. and for former Lt. Gerald Goga of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office. Fleming served District 2 from 1976 to 2003. Goga was in charge of the sheriff's investigations division from 2005 to 2017. Both died recently.

Good Work Noted

Mason also mentioned how three employees went above and beyond their duties on Sunday, Oct. 28, after Treasurer Dana Bundick called Mason to report flooding in her office. The workers, Andy Nunnally, Joseph Gross, and Leon Ayres, were commended. Damages were repaired before business on Monday.

It was also reported that county employees gave $13,277 to support the United Way, which is a $688 increase over the record-breaking figure from last year. The success was attributed to Billie Jean Miles, who led the initiative.

COUNTY NAMES TAX PERSONAL PROPERTY TAX DELINQUENTS

By Linda Cicoira

The 35 highest outstanding personal property tax bills in Accomack total $782,915, according to a chart distributed to county supervisors this week.

At the top of the list is KMX Chemical Corporation, a recycling chemical facility in New Church that stopped operating last June. It owes $70,103 in back taxes.

When the plant closed, CEO Hubert Fleming reported “stored chemicals, all operating permits, including environmental permits” would be maintained. “There is minimal chemical inventory at the plant, and the plant facilities will be continuously monitored.”

Next on the delinquent list is Benny Franklin Hall, of Oak Hall, a local farmer who owes $65,858. Hall was also on the delinquent real estate list for $28,891. Benny F. Hall & Sons Trucking Co., also of Oak Hall, owes $14,312 in delinquent personal property for a total tax debt of $109,061.

Hall is serving six months in federal prison for conversion of mortgaged property, an unrelated incident. Hall’s crime was for selling “approximately 120,000 bushels of corn, which were mortgaged and pledged to Commodity Credit Corporation as security for the payment of certain loans totaling $276,277.87,” according to court records. The crime occurred between October 2014 and September 2017. He was also prohibited from opening any new lines of credit or bank accounts without the permission of the federal probation office.

Birding Group Reports on Status of Tourism Initiative

By Stefanie Jackson

Roberta Kellam has an idea about how to get tourists to flock to Northampton County during the off-season: birding.

Kellam belongs to Eastern Shore Birding and Wildlife Inc., a nonprofit organization whose purpose is “to promote birding and nature experiences both for tourists and residents of the Eastern Shore.”

Birding is the “low-hanging fruit” of Shore tourism, she said. There are 439 species of birds in Northampton and Accomack counties combined.

A U.S. Department of Fish and Wildlife survey revealed that about 20 million Americans travel away from home for birding.

Average American birding enthusiasts are like most of the members on the Eastern Shore Birding and Wildlife board: females age 50 or older with slightly above-average income.

Kellam named Cape May County in New Jersey as a location that has maximized its birding tourism potential. As of 2014, tourists were spending $5.2 billion per year there, and 10 percent of those tourists said birding was the number one reason they visited.

That’s nearly half a million people who visit Cape May County every year for birding. Kellam believes attracting 20 percent as many birders to the Shore, or about 100,000 people annually, “would make a real difference here,” she said.

More than 50 percent of people who have attended Eastern Shore birding festivals were from out of state. The Shore is the ideal place for creating “those magical moments that make a vacation worthwhile” because of its “vast coastal wilderness accessible only by boat,” Kellam said.

Cape May and the Eastern Shore are home to about the same number and species of birds, following similar migratory patterns. Rare birds that have been spotted in Cape May have appeared in Kiptopeke five hours later, Kellam said.

“We’re literally able to give the same experience from a birding tourist standpoint, except that we’re not really capturing that tourism group,” she said.

Eastern Shore Birding and Wildlife’s first step toward capturing the attention of its intended audience will be the launch of its website, www.easternshorebirding.org, which is expected to go live by March 1, 2019.

The tagline, “Virginia is for BIRD Lovers” will be used on the site and other promotional materials.

Liz Watson Design is creating the website and logo.

Edward Brinkley, a resident of Cape Charles and the former editor-in-chief of the journal published by the American Birding Association, is the website’s content consultant.

The site will link to eBird, an online database of real-time observations of bird populations and their distribution, maintained by both scientists and amateur naturalists.

The Eastern Shore Birding and Wildlife board wants to put its online marketing infrastructure in place before planning any more major events like the birding festival, which last appeared in 2016, when Hurricane Matthew caused some activities to be canceled and organizers had to give out $6,000 in refunds.

Board members would like to reinstate the festival, but they may decide to plan smaller events first. They will meet in about two weeks to create the organization's 2019 calendar.

Northampton supervisors gave Eastern Shore Birding and Wildlife two $5,000 grants this year, one in June and one in October, from the tourism infrastructure fund supported by local transient occupancy taxes.

The organization plans to double its money by obtaining a $10,000, 50/50 matching grant from the Virginia Tourism Corporation.

Supervisor John Coker explained that birding mainly happens in the "fall, winter, and spring, and there's not a lot of birding in the summertime, so this is exactly the kind of tourism infrastructure we want to build that's going to drive off-season visitors, so we can be more of a year-round community." He called the idea "music to my ears."

was a prudent investment ... guaranteed. (He) failed to disclose a finder's fee was being paid to him which represented a conflict of interest."

The Lewises talked about the venture, then spoke to DeYoung and another officer, who was not named, and went back to the firehouse and wrote Johnson a check.

"Despite repeated demands by Community Fire for repayment, the promised return of capital and interest has not occurred," the lawsuit stated. "And the investment is considered to be a total loss."

The fire officials say Mills, Harvest's owner, knew or should have known Johnson was sanctioned in 2013 "by the Financial Industry Regulatory Authority (FINRA) for amongst other things, lying to his customers about a short-term promissory note he sold them in connection with a fraudulent land development investment." Johnson was suspended in all capacities for two years from November 2015 to 2017. He "was discharged from his former stock brokerage firm for engaging in unauthorized trades in customer accounts. In November 2013, he became the subject of at least two customer complaints."

"Motivated by profit, Mills and Harvest consciously chose to turn a blind eye to Johnson's past misconduct," the lawsuit stated. The fire company was unaware of the complaints and the sanction when they invested the $100,000.

A written announcement sent to the fire company listed Johnson as Harvest's director of investment strategies. Mills contends Johnson was selling his client list to Harvest and was supposed to be acting only as a liaison to make for a smoother transition. "Harvest and Johnson agreed that Johnson was to no longer to give investment advice to clients or to solicit clients."

By 2012, Community Fire had amassed savings in excess of $500,000, which were earmarked for a new fire truck. Johnson was retained as the fire company's investment advisor in March of that year and was told of the company's "conservative investment objectives."

Harvest has an A+ rating with the Better Business Bureau, according to that agency's website. The financial firm is listed as having more than $110 million under its management.

Disclosures on the site showed three customer disputes and three "employment separations after allegations" for Johnson. The U.S. Securities and Exchange Commission listed Johnson as being an employee of Harvest from Nov. 14, 2013, to Nov. 5, 2015.

Mills argued, "The money came out of community fire's operating account. Not the fire company's Harvest account and was never reflected on Harvest's monthly account statements." He said Harvest "did not learn of the investment until the lawsuit was filed."

Mills further stated that no malice on the part of Harvest or Mills could be proven.

White is accused of carnal knowledge, taking indecent liberties, and contributing to the delinquency of a minor. The offenses occurred Feb. 14, July 2, Sept. 2, and Sept. 8. One of the dates was the child's birthday. Chief Angelo DiMartino, of Exmore Police Department (EPD), gave information about the case to the grand jury.

Daniel G. Randall, 45, of Exmore, was indicted on a count of robbery by violence July 28, in Exmore. Details of the incident were not part of the court record. Officer Greg Rippon, of EPD, investigated.

Kenneth Jackson Bowen Jr., 59, of Houston Street in Exmore, was indicted on counts of grand larceny of property from Food Lion and Dollar General, in Exmore, Aug. 31. DiMartino investigated.

John Junior Burton, 61, of Lankford Highway in Birdsnest, was indicted on a count of eluding police on July 3. Trooper M.M. Shaffer investigated.

Christopher Elliott, 46, of Cheriton Cross Road in Cape Charles, was indicted on two counts of forging a check and two counts of uttering a forged check May 28. He was also indicted on a count of stealing property valued at less than $200 belonging to Don Miles. Deputy Danny Bell of the Northampton County Sheriff's Office (NCSO) investigated.

Devyonn M. Evans, 19, of Fairground Drive in Salisbury, Md., was indicted on a count of stealing a vehicle valued at more than $500 and concealing stolen property in connection with the July 9 incident. Sgt. J.L. Hickman of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel (CBBT) Police Department investigated.

Evans was also indicted on a count of possession of marijuana by a prisoner of the Eastern Shore Regional Jail. Deputy Bradley Taylor of NSCO investigated.

Jason Gonzales, 21, of McComas Drive in Greenbush, was indicted on a count of hit-and-run on Aug. 5. Sgt. Adam Zieger of EPD investigated.

Amanda Lea Grover-Snyder, 35, of Costen Road in Westover, Md., was indicted on seven counts of grand larceny in connection with the theft of copper wire from ANEC between Aug. 31 and Oct. 4. Deputy Montego Johnson of NCSO investigated.

James Hobson, of Cape Charles, was indicted on counts of a third offense of DUI and assault and battery of Officer J.K. Brady of the Eastville Police Department. The incident occurred July 4, 2018. Officer Robert Stubbs of the same department investigated.

Billy Pesantes, 22, of Taylor Avenue in the Bronx, N.Y., was indicted on a count of possessing LSD on Sept. 3. Officer R.M. Steele, of the CBBT Police Department, investigated.

William Jerome Reed Jr., 39, of Machipongo, was indicted on two counts of possession of cocaine and eluding police in connection with July 2 incidents. Hickman investigated.

Cape Charles area, between June 23 and July 10.

John Ross Taveras, 30, of University Avenue in the Bronx, N.Y., was indicted on counts of possession of psilocybin, also known as mushrooms, and ecstasy, and possession with intent to distribute LSD. The incidents occurred Sept. 3. Steele investigated.

Woman Gets 8 Years

An Accomac woman was sentenced last week in Accomack Circuit Court to a total of eight years.

All but a year was suspended for Zelmaya Kelley, 34, of Doughty Road, for possession of a firearm by a felon and credit card larceny. She was sentenced to five years with four suspended for the firearm offense and was given a three-year suspended sentence for the theft. The crimes occurred Aug. 20, 2017. Upon release, Kelley's driver's license will be suspended for six months. She will be on good behavior for 10 years. Indefinite probation was ordered.

Randolph Giddens, 57, of Michelle Circle in Melfa, was sentenced to five years in prison with all but six months suspended for distribution of cocaine as an accommodation. The crime occurred Dec. 16, 2015. Giddens will be on indefinite probation and on good behavior for five years. His driver's license was also suspended for six months upon release.

Defendant Gets Continuance In Murder-for-Hire Case

A Melfa man accused in the murder-for-hire scheme near Painter in October 2017 was scheduled to plead guilty to conspiracy to commit capital murder of an Eastern Shore Drug Task informant Thursday in Accomack Circuit Court.

But the prosecution and defense agreed a continuance was needed and Deshawn Markiese Drummond was taken back over to Accomack Jail in handcuffs and leg irons. The two lawyers told Judge W. Revell Lewis III that they would compare schedules to set a new trial date after press time Thursday.

Illegal drug distribution and gang affiliations riddle the case that includes seven defendants and $3,000 offered for the death of informant 30-year-old Nathaniel Johnson.

Drummond was initially scheduled for trial Aug. 23.

Johnson survived being shot three times. His girlfriend, Dezarae Smith, 19, was struck in the foot during the murder attempt, which occurred when the two were walking on Linhaven Circle.

Alvin Thomas Carpenter Sr.

Mr. Alvin Thomas Carpenter Sr., 90, known to many as A.T. or Boody, and a resident of Machipongo, passed away Friday, Nov. 9, 2018, at his residence surrounded by his family. Mr. Carpenter was born Oct. 31, 1928. He was raised in Northampton County by his grandparents, the late Captain George and Nellie Fitzhugh Carpenter.

Mr. Carpenter

The minute Mr. Carpenter became of age, he enlisted in the U.S. Army where he would remain for 20 years. Their union was blessed with four children. Mr. Carpenter retired from the U.S. Army an ensign seven in 1968. He moved his family back to Northampton County, to Cape Charles, where he and Irene raised their family.

Mr. Carpenter went to work at the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel in January 1969 and retired from there as a lieutenant. To those who knew him, they knew him to be a family man. He was the family historian and could recall dates of birth, death, and marriage and family lineage at the drop of a dime. He was never late and always organized.

Mr. Carpenter is survived by three children, Robert (Katy) Carpenter, of Warren, R.I., Richard (Donna) Carpenter, of Cutoff, La., and Patricia (Peanut) Nock, of Salisbury, Md.; eight grandchildren, Adam Carpenter, of Panama City, Fla., Thomas Dize, of Machipongo, who Pop affectionately called "his boy," Courtney, Cody, Casey and Chloe Carpenter, all of Warren, and Whitney and Noah Whittington, of Salisbury; three great-grandchildren, Logan Marshall and Colton and Mason Carpenter, all of Warren; his beloved dog, Quinn; one sister, Helen Lewis Wilson, of Townsend, Va.; and a lifelong friend, Kenneth Webb, of Machipongo.

Donald Morgan Gillingham

Sgt. Donald Morgan "Pappy" Gillingham, 84, U.S. Army Retired, husband of Lynn Anne Gillingham and a resident of Schooner Bay, Onancock, passed away on Friday, Nov. 9, 2018, on his farm in Bloxom.

Born Sept. 22, 1934, in Waterloo, Md., he was a son of the late William R. Gillingham and Helen Lowman

Sgt. Gillingham

Gillingham. Mr. Gillingham proudly devoted his life in service to his country, in various capacities. Following retirement from the U. S. Army, with the rank of Sergeant, he continued to serve in the Army National Guard and Civil Service for many years. Once officially retired, he focused on his first love — fishing, a hobby he and his wife, Lynn, enjoyed together. Never idle, Mr. Gillingham was always tinkering, whether he was working on his farm in Bloxom, helping a neighbor, or putting in the garage on a rainy day. His legacy of commitment and sacrifice to our country, defines the life of a true patriot, although he'd likely prefer to be remembered as the man who caught the biggest fish.

In addition to his wife, survivors include his two sons, William Morgan "Butch" Gillingham and wife, Jean, of Colorado, and Steven Ernest Donald Gillingham, of Charlottesville, Va.; four stepchildren, Elizabeth Comesi, and Jonathan, David, and Jason Jones; sister, Ethel Wiley; brother, Lawrence Gillingham; and several grandchildren, great-grandchildren, nieces and nephews. Other than his parents, he was predeceased by a son, Donald Charles "Chuck" Gillingham; and three brothers, William, Morris, and Grover Gillingham.

Accomack Supervisors Vote To Restructure Tourism Commission

By Linda Cicaira

Accomack supervisors passed a resolution Wednesday to restructure the Eastern Shore Tourism Commission Board of Directors, a move that is anticipated to be approved by Northampton supervisors next week.

The proposal puts Robie Marsh, executive director of the Eastern Shore Chamber of Commerce, as also being the executive director of the tourism commission. The dual positions will be held by Marsh for six months to see if the arrangement will work. The tourism commission will decide if it is successful.

“John Coker (vice chairman of the Northampton Board of Supervisors) and I feel very supportive of the makeup of the new board,” said Chairman Robert Crockett of the Accomack Board of Supervisors.

“The new location for the tourism office will be at Eastern Shore Chamber of Commerce” office in Melfa. Staff will continue to work in the two divisions.

“Coker and I are both very supportive of the resolution,” Crockett said. “This would be effective Jan. 1, 2019.” The welcome center at the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel will remain open, he reported.

The current commission has agreed to work with the new appointees so that a smooth transition is possible, Crockett said. He noted that Coker is confident that he will have the support of the Northampton supervisors.

The commission will consist of a supervisor from each county appointed by the respective board of supervisors, a member appointed by the Cape Charles Town Council, a member appointed by the Chincoteague Chamber of Commerce, a member from the northern area of Northampton to be appointed by that county’s board of supervisors, an at-large member from Accomack appointed by that county’s board, and a non-voting member from the Virginia Tourism Corporation.

“I want to point out that I think what makes it really, really solid is the structure of the new tourism board,” said Crockett. “Chincoteague is the hub in Accomack and Cape Charles is the hub in Northampton. We will have representatives from both of these areas ... the state rep will be extremely important.”

Supervisor Billy Joe Tarr, of Chincoteague, was appointed to the commission as the Accomack supervisors’ representative. Adam James, of Onancock, was appointed as the at-large Accomack member.

“I got letters and phone calls from businesses that wanted us to do something and not just dissolve the tourism commission,” said Supervisor Reneta Major. “I hope it will be received well because I think that’s what the masses wanted to happen.” Major commended Crockett and Coker for their work.

Accomack officials voiced dismay last summer after tourism executive director Kerry Allison’s suggestion to “outlaw industrial chicken farming” was posted at an economic summit attended by Gov. Ralph Northam and other top state officials. Allison has since retired.

The poultry industry is important to Accomack’s economy. “Without the poultry plant, you wouldn’t have a Walmart (and) you wouldn’t have a hospital because you wouldn’t have the population to support” them, Supervisor Grayson Chesser said soon after Allison’s suggestion was posted. “These are not minimum wage jobs. And if you are smart ... you can work your way up the ladder.”

In other action, the supervisors appointed Gerald Pitts, of Melfa, to the Parks and Recreation Board, to fill the unexpired term of the late Tony R. Washington Jr.; Gene Wayne Taylor, of Chincoteague, to another term on the Wetland’s Board; and former Mayor Jack Tarr, of Chincoteague, to the Economic Development Authority to fill the unexpired term of C. Ray Davis, who resigned.

NORTHAMPTON SCHOOLS TAKES BIDS TO EXAMINE CONDITION OF HIGH SCHOOL

By Stefanie Jackson

Northampton school division has received six responses to the request for proposals it advertised in September for architectural or engineering firms to inspect Northampton High School and make recommendations for renovation or reconstruction.

Five companies qualify to be interviewed on Nov. 27 and 28 for the job, which may include future phases of construction or repair.

The inspection results will serve as the second opinion of the school building's condition as requested by Northampton supervisors. The school division's regular structural engineer, Speight, Marshall, & Francis, of Virginia Beach, reported more than a decade ago that the original 1954 building was in poor condition.

In anticipation of future structural costs, Northampton schools are saving money wherever possible. In late September, the school division appropriated nearly $420,000 from its capital improvement fund to purchase three buses and 24 smartboards (electronic interactive white boards).

The school division will pay itself back over the next five years at 0 percent interest, saving $40,000 in financing. Northampton schools decided to self-finance the equipment after discovering the lowest interest rate offered is 30 percent higher than it was last year.

Northampton schools Chief Financial Officer Brook Thomas announced it's time to begin work on the school division's $22 million budget for fiscal year 2020.

The current school year was budgeted based on an average daily membership (ADM) of 1,515 students. Thomas advised that Northampton's ADM will need to be reduced because enrollment is trending down.

Northampton schools' ADM was 1,503 in October and the current year-to-date figure is 1,512.

ADM dropping to 1,500 would result in a $73,000 funding reduction. Thomas said she would look for budget savings (from vacated teaching positions that have not yet been refilled) to cover potential funding losses.

She said the decline in enrollment may be due to families of migrant farm workers leaving as the weather turns colder.

The number of Northampton children enrolling in kindergarten is about 82 percent of the number of children born in the county five years ago, which is normal, Thomas said.

There were 131 Northampton children born in 2013. If 82 percent of those children were enrolled in kindergarten in Northampton schools this year, the division would have 118 kindergarteners. It is on trend with 116 kindergarteners.

In other business, Superintendent Eddie Lawrence said for two years there have been two openings for math teachers at the high school and something needs to be done about it.

The school division hired a headhunter who has had no success finding qualified teachers willing to fill the positions.

All suggestions are on the table, from paying more for high school teachers to offering sign-on bonuses.

School board member Jo Ann Molera suggested using Teach for America, a nonprofit organization that recruits recent college graduates to teach for a least two years in an urban or rural community in exchange for education vouchers that can help pay for further education or existing student loans.

Other alternative pathways for training and recruiting teachers include the Career Switcher program, created by the Virginia Department of Education and offered at Old Dominion University, and the Troops to Teachers program for U.S. military veterans.

School board member Nancy Proto, who moved to the Shore from New York state, suggested recruiting retired New York teachers.

Many New York teachers start their careers early and have 30 years of experience by age 55 but are not ready to retire. They are often interested in moving to a rural area with a lower cost of living, living off their pensions, and returning to the classroom to earn additional income, Proto said.

Lawrence is also researching possibly paying teachers bonuses for not missing school as an incentive to improve the consistency of classroom instruction and student performance.

Cherrydale Solar Farm Helping ANEC Deliver on Sun Power Potential

By Stefanie Jackson

Northampton County is shining a light on the path that brings solar energy to the Eastern Shore.

The Cherrydale solar farm in Eastville is one of two facilities in Virginia powering A&N Electric Cooperative's new solar energy programs like Cooperative Sunshare. (The other facility is in Shenandoah.)

Cherrydale has the capacity to generate up to 20 megawatts of electricity. It produces enough electricity every year to power about 4,000 homes.

The 200-acre property boasts 78,000 solar panels, wired together in rows of 19 panels each. Each row connects to a combiner box, which connects to an inverter that converts the DC power generated by the panels into AC power for use by the electric grid.

There are two types of panels that can be used by solar power facilities, fixed tilt solar panels and tracking solar panels.

Fixed tilt solar panels, as the name suggests, are fixed in one position. They are inexpensive because they have few moving parts.

Tracking solar panels follow the path of the sun from sunrise to sunset. They are more expensive but maximize the amount of solar power that is captured. Cherrydale uses tracking solar panels.

At some facilities using a tracking system, all the solar panels are rotated simultaneously by a central motor. At Cherrydale and other sites, each row of panels has its own motor. The motors are powered by smaller solar panels.

Solar power is a free, renewable energy source, but it doesn't come without challenges. A cloudy sky, a blanket of snow on the panels, or even wind can interfere with output.

However, the solar panels are built with rapidly changing weather conditions in mind. They can withstand winds up to 100 mph, and before a storm, the panels can be turned to face the wind at an angle to deflect it.

The solar power industry on the Eastern Shore has potential for future growth. Winter Cullen III, of the Painter area, reported receiving an offer from a South Carolina company to lease 150 acres from him for $1,250 per acre, per year, for 20 to 40 years for another solar farm.

Eastern Shore residents who are customers of ANEC have three options for participating in the cooperative's solar energy initiative.

The first option is available to homeowners who install solar panels on their property. ANEC will provide each qualifying homeowner with a device called a net energy meter, which differs from a standard meter in that it measures both the electricity used by the home and the electricity put into the grid.

ANEC uses the net meter to determine the amount of electricity generated by the solar panels and put into the grid, then subtracts that from the total amount of electricity used by the home, and bills the customer for the difference.

The second option is the Cooperative Sunshare program. It is ideal for consumers who want to use renewable, solar energy but are unable to install solar panels because they can't afford them or they rent their homes or live in a shaded area.

The Cooperative Sunshare allows consumers to purchase solar energy directly. Solar energy can be purchased monthly in 50 kilowatt hour blocks that cost $5.42 each. (According to the U.S. Energy Information Administration, the average home uses 867 kilowatt hours of electricity per month.) There is an additional charge for ANEC to deliver the power.

The third option is purchasing renewable energy credits. The consumer does not purchase the energy directly but can claim its environmental benefits.

This option is normally chosen by large companies that need to fulfill certain environmental obligations, but individuals may also participate. The cost is 1.5 cents per kilowatt hour in addition to the normal monthly charges for the electricity used by the consumer.

Northampton Initiates Small Group Meetings To Discuss Comp Plan Revisions

By Stefanie Jackson

A public gathering at the Nassawadox fire station Wednesday night revealed new insights on why the Northampton planning commission is attempting to change the county comprehensive plan and why citizens oppose the proposed changes.

The town hall meeting was led by Spencer Murray, chairman of the Northampton board of supervisors and representative of the fourth district, and Oliver Bennett, the supervisor representing the third district.

One of the first orders of business was discussion of the proposal to reclassify very small communities known as hamlets to villages in the updated comprehensive plan.

Hamlets are “small, rural settlements, typically of 10 to 30 houses ... often of local historic or cultural significance,” according to the definition Murray read.

Both hamlets and villages allow two homes per acre, but villages also allow up to four multi-family dwellings per acre.

Kenneth Dufty, who owns an business in Exmore and a home in the hamlet of Wardtown, has previously called the change allowing higher housing density “arbitrary and capricious.”

But planning commissioner Janet Sturgis offered reasons for the change. From a political viewpoint, hamlets “do not exist in Virginia. You have counties, you have towns and cities, and that’s it,” she said, “and we do need to simplify our zoning code.”

The classification of “village” may allow increased housing density, but it also offers “additional protection,” Sturgis continued. “There’s some things you can’t do businesswise and industrywise (in a village) that you could do in a hamlet.”

She suggested a possible alternative – reclassifying hamlets and other cross-roads communities as historic communities, which would preserve their nature yet simplify the zoning code.

“The preservation of these hamlets is key to the nature of this Eastern Shore ... that’s what makes us unique,” real estate broker David Kabler said.

Sturgis admitted the hamlets contain “very small lots; a lot of them, if not most of them, have poor soils, so it’s very difficult to put in traditional wastewater.”

Roberta Kellam criticized the updated comprehensive plan as “internally inconsistent” because it “up-zones” hamlets into villages though “the soils are too poor” to accommodate septic systems and drain fields.

When the current comprehensive plan was written, the planning commission didn’t “sit there as seven people on a board and say, ‘What should we allow them to do?’” in the hamlets, Kellam said. “They went out to the hamlets and talked to the people who lived there.”

There appears to be no consensus from the Northampton community where it wants to allow residential development.

“We’re never going to solve our housing problems if we say you can’t have multi-family (homes) anywhere in the county,” Murray pointed out.

According to the current comprehensive plan, town edge districts, surrounding Exmore, Nassawadox, Eastville, Cheriton, and Cape Charles, are “potential development areas” and “natural future expansion areas for the incorporated towns and may potentially be served by future public sewer and water extensions.”

But sewer service in the towns appears to be as contentious an issue as septic service in hamlets and villages.

“Exmore cannot put anybody else on, right now, on that sewer system,” Murray said, and “Nassawadox is hemmed in because of a lack of sewer.”

But the philosophy of “If you build it, they will come” doesn’t work either, he added.

One possible solution lies in the study being done that may enable the Hampton Roads Sanitation District to build a sewer system running through all the towns from Nassawadox in Northampton to Onancock in Accomack.

“At the end of the day, we’ve got to get away with every little town having its own sewer plant. It just doesn’t work,” Murray said.

Exmore also held a town hall meeting on the comprehensive plan on Thursday, and there will be one in Cape Charles at Kiptopeke Elementary School on Nov. 27 at 7 p.m.

14 New Master Naturalists

The Eastern Shore Chapter of the Virginia Master Naturalists celebrated the graduation of 14 new members on Nov. 8. Every Thursday for 10 weeks, participants attended courses exploring the ecology, botany, insects, marine life, mammals, reptiles, birds, and the barrier islands of the Eastern Shore. The new graduates will join 132 existing chapter members currently volunteering in Accomack and Northampton Counties. In 2017 alone, Master Naturalists volunteered more than 7,000 hours on projects that helped conserve and manage the natural resources and public lands of the Virginia Eastern Shore.

The Eastern Shore Master Naturalists would like to especially recognize Brandon Cook, of Onancock, who was able to meet all requirements to become a Master Naturalist with support from No Limits Eastern Shore. He has a strong passion for nature and is especially interested in native plants. The Eastern Shore Chapter is proud of his hard work and looks forward to his continued participation in volunteer activities.

Yellow Jackets, Firebirds Regional Gridiron Battles

By Krystle Bono

The Arcadia Firebirds and the Northampton Yellow Jackets hit the road last Friday to play in their respective regional games. Both Eastern Shore teams fell to their opponents, ending memorable seasons for both clubs.

Arcadia traveled to face Amelia County, but were defeated by the Raiders, 46-0.

The Yellow Jackets road-tripped it to Essex, where the boys were not able to one-up the Trojans, falling 46-26, despite gaining an early lead over the regional rival.

Carlton Smith put six on the board for Northampton on a 6-yard run to score first. The extra points were no good, but Smith stuck again, rushing 13 yards to earn the Yellow Jackets another touchdown, and this go-round, Smith ran the extra points to make it a 14-0 count.

Essex would retaliate on a 47-yard run and were able to capitalize on the two-point conversion.

Carlton Smith ran for his third touchdown of the night, rushing six yards to score again for the Yellow Jackets, and with the failed extra points, the score was 20-8, still in Northampton's favor.

A 68-yard run by the Trojans closed the gap, and after another touchdown by Essex, things took a turn and flipped the game in the Trojans' favor.

Essex would notch three more touchdowns before the end of regulation, upping their final score to 46.

The Yellow Jackets put up six more points to end the night with a 19-yard run by Corey Smith late in the game, but it remained a 46-26 score by the sound of the buzzer.

Vikings Fall Short to Fuqua in Last Game of the Season

The Broadwater Academy football team lost its final game of the season to the Fuqua School, 49-8.

Broadwater had been in the hunt to participate in the state tournament, but the loss dropped Broadwater to fifth in the state rankings and out of contention for the VISAA Division III state title.

Conditions were sloppy in Farmville, home of the Fuqua Falcons, as the predicted deluge of rain coincided with the opening kickoff. Fuqua jumped out to an early 14-point lead and the Broadwater Vikings were playing catch-up for the remainder of the game.

Broadwater's talented quarterback duo of senior co-captain Finn Kelly and sophomore Brant Bloxom moved the ball effectively for the Vikings, but Fuqua's defense kept the Vikings out of the end zone in the first half. Senior co-captain Matt Albertson had several nice short pass receptions and sophomore running back Gunnar Gustafson consistently moved the ball up the middle of the field for gains. Senior co-captain Brian Drummond played outstanding offensive and defensive line all night.

But Fuqua's offense had the upper hand most of the game as junior quarterback Elijah Warner utilized senior running backs Frank Denaro and Christian Adams and several fast and sure-handed receivers to move the ball against the Vikings.

The game highlight for the Vikings came in the fourth quarter when quarterback Bloxom took the snap on his own 48-yard line and threw a long lateral to Gunnar Gustafson on the right side.

Gustafson faced upfield, broke one tackle, ran left then darted sharply right between four Falcon defenders and turned on the speed to complete a 52-yard scoring run. Gustafson would end the day with 95 rushing yards.

Broadwater lined up for the two-point conversion with Albertson in the left tight end position. At the signal "riggle," the ball was snapped to Bloxom in shotgun. Viking guard Jonathan Graham jammed a Fuqua defender and freshman Garrett Miles pulled from his tackle position and clearing a path for Albertson to fade onto the left corner of the end zone. Backpedaling under heavy pressure from two Falcon defenders, Bloxom threw a perfect strike to a diving Albertson who made the catch.

Charles Hickman played outstanding at corner back and right offensive tackle. Clay Wardius was again key to Broadwater's defense until he was injured and missed the second half of the game. Jonathan Graham established himself as one of the best linemen in the division this year. Juniors Wade Smith and Walt Etheridge were key to the Vikings success all year.

The Vikings squad will graduate only three seniors. With a team comprised of two-thirds sophomores and freshmen, the future looks bright for Head Coach Eddie Spencer's Vikings.

Wade Smith (8) catches the ball as Matt Albertson (4) prepares to block in Broadwater's game against Fuqua School.

Hunters for the Hungry Starting Collections for the 21st Season

The Eastern Shore chapter of the Hunters for the Hungry will begin receiving deer donations to the program this year. Since 1997, the program has received and processed over 4,500 deer donations. The deer donated have been processed into over 500,000 servings of this nutritious lean meat to the clients of The Food Bank of the Eastern Shore and other agencies. There is no charge to the hunter to donate the deer. The deer must be properly harvested and registered, field-dressed, and taken to one of the processors or collection points. The goal this year is 200 deer.

The program raises funds from local individuals, businesses, and civic organizations to pay the processing cost of the deer. This year the cost of processing a deer is $50. The processors help the program by processing the deer at almost half their regular cost. Since the program pays a per deer processing fee, please consider a larger bodied deer. Processors have the right to refuse any deer donation that has not been field-dressed or cared for in a manner that ensures quality usable meat.

There is a 25-item raffle for those hunters who donate a deer to the program. The hunter will receive one ticket per deer donated. Deer donated at a processor will be issued a raffle ticket at donation time. Hunters donating a deer at a collection trailer will have a raffle ticket sent to the address on the donation tag attached to the deer in the cooler. The prizes range from several firearms, cross-bows, Yeti cooler, tree stand, gift certificates, etc. Refer to www.h4hungry.org for a complete list. Drawing will be in the spring 2019 once the season has closed.

The processors this year are (from north to south): Brent Powell, Powell Processing 21397 Trower Rd., Wachapreague, 757-787-7107, and Scott Hines Eastern Shore Outfitters, 4306 Main St., Exmore, 757-442-4009. Collection points are The Food Bank at Tasley, 24530 Coastal Blvd, 757-787-2557, and B&B Market, 13001 Lankford Hwy., Machipongo, 757-678-7236.

The program is a 501(c)(3) charitable organization and donations are deductible as allowed by law. The program is a listed agency for the local United Way campaign. There currently is a dollar for dollar match for donations from businesses, civic organizations, and Ruritan clubs. Donations, made out to Hunters for the Hungry may be sent to P.O. Box 1702 Parksley 23421.

Fishing from the Shore

By Bill Hall

Poor weather continues to plague the traditionally productive autumn fishing season, with most anglers wisely limiting their fishing activities to sheltered waters, and the short-term weather predictions do not give anglers much optimism. Hopefully, the recent drop in air temperatures will push a new body of larger striped bass down into Virginia waters. But until that happens and when conditions allow, schools of small to medium-sized rockfish can still be found under flocks of feeding birds in the open waters of Pocomoke and Tangier sounds. Smaller stripers, up to 24 inches are still available in the shallow waters of the upper Chesapeake Bay side creeks, while smaller speckled trout are hitting artificial lures in the lower creeks on the bayside.

Upper Shore – Allan Ring, of the Sea Hawk Sports Center, reported that he has been doing well on Chesapeake Bay striped bass using soft plastic baits fished on jig heads, particularly DOA jerk baits on Faux jig heads. Chartreuse and white has been the most productive color combination. He has been fishing primarily under working birds in deeper water. He has also enjoyed success jigging with Crippled Herring lures on the deeper fish. Top locations have included Tangier Sound, buoy 72A down to the target ships, the west side of Smith Island. He said that there is still a good population of stripers in the shallows. Customer Jack Tatem was finding limit catches of rockfish in the 21-to-25-inch range while deep jigging off Crisfield, Md. Tatem said that the best action has been occurring on the ebb tide.

Chincoteague – Jimmy Vasilou, of Captain Steve's Bait & Tackle, reported the weather has severely im-acted recent fishing action. Vasilou said a couple of keeper-sized stripers were caught in the back bay. One customer landed a 30-inch keeper rockfish near Lewis Creek. When surf anglers have had fishable conditions, the Assateague Beach has produced snapper blues, flounder, a variety of skates and dogfish. The Captain Steve's Bait & Tackle Annual Fall Surf Fishing Tournament is scheduled for Nov. 16-18 with awards for the largest red drum, striped bass, bluefish, and kingfish (whiting). There is no entry fee for the tournament and details on the tournament and registration will be posted on the shop's website www.CaptainStevesBaitandTackle

On Monday, boats ventured to the inshore and offshore wrecks, targeting black sea bass and tautog, resulting in limit sea bass catches and some large tautog being taken.

Lower Shore – Chris Snook, of Chris' Bait & Tackle, reported that small rockfish continue to be caught at night under the lights of the Kiptopeke State Park Pier. Snook had seen reports of small rockfish being caught around the fourth island of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. Small speckled trout are still being caught along the beach at Kiptopeke, between the pound nets on curly tail grubs and Mirrorlures. The 8th Annual Pigzilla Rockfish Tournament is scheduled for Dec. 1-31. The entry fee is $100 captain. Registration and tournament information may be obtained by calling 757-460-2201.

Bill Hall was the first Eastern Shore resident to achieve Virginia Salt Water Master Angler Status. He has been named Virginia Saltwater Angler of the Year and Virginia Saltwater Release Angler of the Year. Bill is an I.G.F.A. International Committee Representative and a longtime member of the Virginia Saltwater Fishing Tournament Committee. He is the Virginia Recreation Fishing representative on the ASMFC Striped Bass Management Panel and is a past recipient of the CCA-VA Virginia Outdoor Writer Conservation Leadership Award.

E-Readers Make Great Gifts

The holidays are the time for gadgets: many of us acquire a new tablet, smartphone, or e-reader with the new year. Once the thrill of learning how to use our new technology has worn off, however, we face the challenge of finding quality content. Fortunately, the Eastern Shore Public Library offers several different e-reading resources, all available free for our patrons in partnership with the Library of Virginia.

ESPL's collection with RBDigital, one of the premier online content services for libraries, offers e-book copies of new bestsellers and old classics, audiobooks for downloading to your device, and over 70 magazine titles as well, from news and technology to lifestyle and gossip. You can read the current issue or browse the back numbers.

More eclectic is the Freading e-book service. While you may not find the latest big-name authors, there are still over 30,000 books to choose from in fiction and nonfiction, children's books, and many foreign-language titles. For academic, research, and homework needs, there are the EBSCOHost and Explora databases, which provide full-text, searchable, digital copies of periodicals, reference books, and nonfiction titles in all age ranges, from primary school to adult.

All of these resources are available 24 hours a day, seven days a week, through the library website, espl.org. A library card number is all you need for access. You can use EBSCOHost and Explora anywhere online, while the apps for RBDigital and Freading can be found in your device's app store. After a simple set-up process (and we can help you with that), you will be ready for hours of enjoyable reading.

The Gift of Reading

Children who grow up in homes where books are valued and displayed have higher academic achievement. In fact, there is a great deal of research indicating that the presence of books in the home has many positive effects on the children living there and on the family as a whole.

With the holidays approaching and the time of gift purchasing and giving growing near, it is a perfect time to think about adding to your collection of family books. Give the free gift of a library card and fill your bookcase (another gift-giving idea) with a rotation of books borrowed from one of the four public libraries on the Eastern Shore of Virginia.

If you find it hard to choose books to give to yourself or others, check out two of the newest resources at Eastern Shore Public Library, NoveList Plus and NoveList K-8 Plus. These free online products help you find books and audiobooks that match your reading style. NoveList can provide a list of "read-alikes" for a title or author you love. To find out more about the NoveList products and all of the library's digital offerings, check under our e-Resources tab at www.espl.org or stop by the library and ask for help.

The Eastern Shore Public Library System has four libraries in Accomac, Cape Charles, Chincoteague, and Nassawadox. Your ESPL library card can be used at any of the four libraries.

To learn about the regional library building project and ESVA Heritage Center in Parksley, opening in 2020, visit www.shorelibrary.com. For more information about your library services, library hours of operation, or your library account, visit www.espl.org or call the central library at 757-787-3400.

The Friends of ESPL will host a visit from Santa Saturday, Dec. 1, 10 a.m. until noon, at the library in Accomac. Each child receives a book and candy cane.

The Miles Files

A global genealogical treasure developed locally and housed at the Eastern Shore Public Library

Information for the following article was drawn from the resources of the Eastern Shore Room, soon to be expanded into the Eastern Shore of Virginia Heritage Center within the ESVA Regional Library to be built in Parksley.

By Brooks Miles Barnes

Special to the Eastern Shore Post

M.K. Miles, of Saxis, became interested in his family's history in 1978 while watching the television series "Roots." A short time later he began a collaboration with his cousin, Barry Miles, another avid genealogist, and their partnership lasted 30 years. Built largely on resources in the Eastern Shore Public Library's Eastern Shore of Virginia Collection and in the Accomack and Northampton clerks' offices, their collection to date includes documented information on more than 88,000 deceased persons and 300,000 events.

M.K. and Barry, who died in 2018, shared an interest in computer technology and were quick to take advantage of innovations in genealogical software. In 1995, they introduced an online version of the database they called the Miles Files, which in 2000 they placed on the Eastern Shore Public Library's website. It is an essential source for Eastern Shore of Virginia genealogy.

The Miles Files are located at <http://espl-genealogy.org/MilesFiles/site/index.htm> Access is free. The database is thoroughly documented: Miles has consulted 2,500 unique sources, and every entry is linked to the appropriate source. At the least, each entry includes basic genealogical information — birth, death, marriage, will, federal census, etc. Many of the entries are supplemented by narratives taken from newspapers and other sources. For example, included under the entry for George S. East (1806-1854) is an account from the Richmond Enquirer, Nov. 17, 1854, of East's brutal murder at the hands of his stepson.

Researchers with Eastern Shore of Virginia roots often can use the Miles Files to trace their ancestry back multiple generations. Almost as often, they can follow their line of descent to the 17th century and the earliest settlers of the Eastern Shore. If so, they might establish eligibility to membership in lineage societies such as the Jamestowne Society. Miles has also identified six Gateway Ancestors whose descendants are eligible to join the Order of the Crown of Charlemagne. If contacted by email, Miles can generate customized reports and pedigree charts.

Miles believes that around 2008 the Miles Files reached critical mass. So many documented entries had been added to the database that collateral as well as primary lines of descent could be easily established. Many of the more than 2,000 regular users from across the United States began to contact Miles. They offered the occasional correction to the Miles Files and willingly shared new data. Their contributions became so numerous and frequent that today Miles spends less time engaged in original research than in collating, checking, and entering the data offered him by his correspondents.

The Miles Files has become so crucial to Eastern Shore genealogical research that the Eastern Shore Public Library has arranged with Miles to maintain and expand the Miles Files after his work is done. Miles and the ESPL invite you to begin or continue your family search at <http://espl-genealogy.org/MilesFiles/site/index.htm>

A campaign is underway to fund the new ESVA Heritage Center, which will require specialized architectural design, environmental controls and equipment. Those wishing to donate or to be recognized with other Founders of the Heritage Center should send donations to ESPL Foundation, P.O. VIMS SETS MEETINGS FOR WATERMEN TO LEARN ABOUT FISHERY GRANTS

Submitted Article

The Virginia Institute of Marine Science's (VIMS) Marine Advisory Program is accepting applications to compete for funding as part of the Virginia Fishery Resource Grant Program.

The Virginia legislature created the program to "protect and enhance the Commonwealth's coastal fishery resource through the awarding of grants."

Basic to the program is the belief that people in the commercial fishing industry often have valid ideas to enhance and protect fisheries, but may lack the financial resources to experiment with innovations. The Fishery Resource Grant Program invests in such ideas generated by the fishing public through fair and competitive methods.

The legislation established four priority areas for funding:

New Fisheries Equipment and Gear. The development of more environmentally friendly gear, methods to reduce bycatch, and more effective ways to handle catch.

Environmental Pilot Studies. Ways to restore damaged habitat, create new habitat, prevent habitat impairment, or reduce impact from fishing or aquaculture activities.

Aquaculture/Mariculture. Focus on ways to develop criteria and assessment for permits, increase return from investment in culture activities, or introduce new species to the existing aquaculture list to broaden participation in commercial aquaculture.

Seafood Technology and Utilization. Develop value-added products from existing production, expand on underused or new fishery resources, create models for total quality system management programs, or increase returns in the seafood industry by improving packaging and handling.

To be eligible for funding under the Fishery Resource Grant Program, each proposal must substantially involve Virginians who are actively involved in a fishing industry (defined as persons involved in commercial activities relating to fishery resources, aquaculture/mariculture, or the processing or handling of fishery products). The work can involve both inshore and offshore fisheries. All proposals submitted within the limits of the Guidelines for Submission will be accepted and reviewed for technical merit and the ability to address one or more of the priorities listed above.

To be considered for funding in this solicitation, a signed application must be postmarked no later than Jan. 14, 2019. Mailed copies should be sent to VFRGP/Marine Advisory Program, Virginia Institute of Marine Science, P.O. Box 1346, Gloucester Point, VA 23062. No applicant may submit more than two proposals for this cycle. Faxed or electronic proposals will not be considered.

Two workshops will be held to explain the VFRGP, including eligibility and funding priorities, how to complete the application form and where to go for more help when developing a grant proposal package.

The request for proposals and application forms are available online at <http://www.vims.edu/adv/frg> To request a copy of the application package contact Dave Ferree at 804-684-7173.

VIMS Seeks Shore Students for Summer Internships

The Virginia Institute of Marine Science's Eastern Shore Laboratory will again offer summer intern opportunities for senior high school and college students who are primary residents of the Eastern Shore to work at the lab on various research projects related to marine science.

Interns will have the opportunity to work directly with research scientists and graduate students on projects ranging from shellfish aquaculture to water quality to restoration ecology. The goal of the program is to provide hands-on learning and employment opportunities for local students interested in careers in science.

The program is open to college students who are home for the summer and to senior high school students from Northampton and Accomack counties. Admission to the internship program is highly competitive, with the number of applicants exceeding available positions.

William & Mary values diversity and invites applicants from underrepresented groups who will enrich the research, teaching and service missions of the University. The

Chincoteague Holly Day Market Features Local Carvers, Artists, and Growers

The Chincoteague Cultural Alliance's Holly Day Market and Wildlife Art Gallery presents an amazing array of arts and crafts along with the last Farmers Market of the year on Saturday, Nov. 24.

From 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., at 6309 Church St., more than 80 vendors will offer everything from handmade decoys and jewelry to holiday decorations and fresh seafood. Admission and parking are free.

The event continues a more than 30-year tradition of having some of the region's best carvers and artists on the island on Thanksgiving weekend. Exhibitors in the Wildlife Art Gallery will include carvers Corky Dize, Jimmy Bowden, and David Justice, painters Nancy Richards West and Jenny Somers, and many more. The gallery is inside the Amrien Activities Center.

Next door, both inside and outside CCA's Community Center for the Arts, visitors will find jewelry, stained glass, photographs, pottery, knitted clothing, musical instruments, candles, soaps, toys, and other handcrafted items, along with antiques and collectibles. There will be lots of holiday decorations to choose from, including wreaths made by the Chincoteague Island Garden Club.

In the farmers market section, look for produce, eggs, meats, seafood, baked goods, honey, jams, and plants. A list of all the Wildlife Art Gallery and Holly Day Market exhibitors and vendors is available at www.Chincoteagueca.org.

“With so many fine vendors, you're bound to find the perfect gifts for everyone on your holiday list,” said markets manager Alex Hubb. “Allow an hour or two to see everything and enjoy some great food and live music while you shop.”

Food trucks from Captain E's Hurricane Grill and In and Out Foodbox will be there. And popular performers Jeff Madson and Paul Brion will provide live music at both venues throughout the day.

The Holly Day Market and Wildlife Art Show is sponsored by the Chincoteague Cultural Alliance, a non-profit community arts organization that presents over 100 events a year.

More Than Glory: African-American Civil War Soldiers of ESVA

By David Martin

Southern slaveholders must've been unsettled, to say the least, about the prospect of their former slaves being armed and trained in warfare and returning as soldiers, in some cases to the very plantations where they were enslaved. This story, which unfolded across the South, including here on the Shore, is fascinatingly told by Kellee Green Blake. Retired director of the National Archives, Mid-Atlantic Region, and well-known for articles and lectures on the Civil War, Blake gave her talk, "More Than Glory: African American Civil War Soldiers of ESVA," last Friday at the Eastern Shore Community College. Blake's presentation was one of the Science and Philosophy seminars that are open to the public, free of charge, and held regularly at the community college.

The 200,000 United States Colored Troops, as they were known, made up 10 percent of the entire Northern army. An unusually large portion of them paid the ultimate price: 40,000 killed. And that's not 40,000 casualties, which includes wounded; that's 40,000 (one in five) killed in service of a country that had legally enslaved them.

By Blake's estimate, 1,000 to 1,300 (or more) black soldiers were from the Eastern Shore of Virginia. Because the Eastern Shore was considered loyal to the Union and under Union control, and because the Emancipation Proclamation did not free any slaves in states or areas loyal to the Union, slaves on the Eastern Shore were not free. How, then, did those 1,300 African-Americans get into the army?

Some self-emancipated by walking off plantations and presenting themselves to Union encampments on the Shore. The law at the time required that runaway slaves be returned to their masters, but Maj. General Benjamin Butler set precedent by declaring the self-emancipated slaves as contraband of war that he would not return to enemy forces.

Eventually, Union recruiters would go to plantations on and around the Eastern Shore and order the masters to assemble all slaves. (Recruiters had this authority, because these areas were officially Union territories.) The recruiters would then tell the slaves, "Follow me and this day you will be free." Many did. On at least one plantation, Blake said, the entire population of adult male slaves left with the recruiters. Enslaved women and children left behind on these plantations were devastated to lose their spouses and fathers.

After the black soldiers from the Eastern Shore and elsewhere were trained, their deployment became as controversial as their recruitment into the army in the first place. Would they be used only as laborers and servants, digging trenches and caring for white soldiers' horses and equipment? Many in the North were convinced black soldiers would run at the first sign of battle.

They didn't. In fact, many black outfits distinguished themselves in battle. The 1989 movie, "Glory," tells the story of one such outfit. African Americans from the Eastern Shore populated several regiments, including the 10th United States Colored Infantry, which Blake talked about in her lecture and called "the Shore's own."

The 10th consisted of 800 men and had several distinctions. It was the only black regiment to occupy the Eastern Shore. This occupation ended when high-level officials complained to the White House that black men serving as the occupying force with control over a white population was untenable. The 10th was withdrawn from the Shore but then sent into battles where it distinguished itself. The 10th was the first outfit to battle the Confederacy's vaulted Army of Northern Virginia. The 10th participated in the siege of Petersburg and marched into Richmond when that Confederate capital was finally liberated. Members of another Eastern Shore regiment, the 7th, saw the surrender at Appomattox that ended the war.

After the war, the government did not release black soldiers from service, sending many of them to Texas. When the Eastern Shore black soldiers did finally return home, they suppressed some of the Ku Klux Klan terror that was then spreading throughout the South in the aftermath of defeat.

At the end of her lecture, Blake urged young scholars to continue telling the stories of black Civil War soldiers, especially those from the Eastern Shore.

Did You Know?

Did you know that Accomack and Northampton counties are mentioned, by name, in the Emancipation Proclamation? The proclamation is celebrated as a step in the right direction toward ending slavery in the United States, but at its heart the Emancipation Proclamation was a ruthlessly political document. It gave the Union a moral cause for the war and strengthened the United States' standing in the antislavery international community. It cast the Southern states as fighting to defend slavery rather than fighting for independence.

What the proclamation did not do was free any slaves.

It applied only to the states in rebellion against the United States and those Confederate states did not, of course, obey the proclamation. It did not apply to slave states that had not seceded from the Union—the four border states of Delaware, Maryland, Kentucky, and Missouri. It also did not apply to the union-loyal or union-controlled areas within a rebellious state. For Virginia, those areas included Accomack, as it was then spelled, and Northampton counties. Ironically, by being in Union areas, the slaves in our two counties were not freed by the Emancipation Proclamation.

Although slaves on the Eastern Shore were recruited and volunteered into the Union army (see story about Kellee Green Blake's Science and Philosophy seminar), slavery on the Eastern Shore did not officially end until the provisional government of what might be termed "free Virginia" (those areas of the state not in rebellion against the Union) ratified a new constitution that abolished slavery. That happened in April 1864, more than a year after the Emancipation Proclamation but almost two years before the 13th Amendment to the United States ended slavery throughout the United States.

Health and Emergency Professionals Practice Dispensing Medications for Biological Disaster

Staff members of the Eastern Shore Health District (ESHD) and Eastern Shore Rural Health (ESRH) exercised emergency preparedness plans at the Atlantic Community Health Center in New Church Thursday, Oct. 18. Using a scenario endorsed by the Centers for Disease Control, 100 workers from both of the organizations, along with the Accomack County Sheriff's Office, and volunteers from Eastern Shore Community Emergency Response Team and Eastern Shore Medical Reserve Corp rehearsed the opening of a Neighborhood Emergency Help Center where they practiced dispensing preventive medications to the exposed.

ESHD and ESRH have partnered since 2004. Exercises are held annually at community health centers located strategically throughout the Eastern Shore in order to be best prepared to handle a mass exposure to a biological agent or large outbreak type of event that might require a large number of people to seek treatment in a limited window of time. In a real event medications will arrive on the Eastern Shore from the United States Strategic National Stockpile that must be dispensed to all who need it within 48 hours, according to the plan. Evaluators from both organizations provide suggestions for improvement and all participants are encouraged to provide feedback in order to improve the process at each location.

Both organizations are members of the Eastern Shore Disaster Preparedness Coalition (ESDPC). The ESDPC is a multi-agency, multi-jurisdictional emergency preparedness and planning group that works to promote emergency planning, training, exercising and response activities on the Eastern Shore. Any organization or interested citizen may become a member of the ESDPC. For more information on the ESDPC or to become a member, please contact J.J. Justis at JJ.Justis@vdh.virginia.gov or 757-302-4267.

"In marble walls as white as milk,
 Lined with a skin as soft as silk;
 Within a liquid crystal clear
 A golden apple doth appear.
 There are no gates to this stronghold,
 Yet thieves break in and steal the gold."

CAN YOU FIGURE OUT the answer to the Jolly Jester's Rhyming Riddle!

Answer: He's talking about an egg.

CAN YOU EXPLAIN how a baseball pitcher could win a nine-inning game without once pitching to a batter?

Answer: He could if he were a substitute pitcher brought into the game at the top of the ninth inning with the score tied, two outs, and a man on first base. If he then picked the man off at first base, the side would be retired and his team would come to bat. If his team then scored the winning run, in the bottom of the ninth, he would be the winner without ever having pitched to a single batter.

By Linda Cicoira

Some people at my office don't recognize genius. They aren't interested in hearing me hum into a kazoo, or a comb pressed against a piece of wax paper, to create music. They don't want me to sing at karaoke. I don't bother trying to entertain them. I hate those tough audiences.

So, as I sat at the Subway in Exmore recently, eating my sandwich and thinking about how I could have taken the world by storm as a rock star, two men must have noticed my abilities even though I wasn't singing or humming. I guess it was personified through my aura. How else would they have known?

One of them came over and asked if he could play harmonica for me. Of course, I said, "Yes" and probably threw in a "Yippee!"

My companion is kind of shy and wasn't ready for the performance, which made it even more special if you know what I mean. He just stared at his food.

Mr. Trower wound up being one of the greatest harmonica players ever. He told me he can play other instruments as well and comes by it naturally. Now that is a true talent. Mr. Treherne, the other guy, was quite the vocalist. Both were singing about their God and smiling. As much as one can smile while playing the harmonica. The store workers and I applauded and the duo performed another gospel song. It was wonderful.

It also brought back a memory with my dad from when we met once in New York City and ate at an upscale Spanish restaurant. A mariachi band came over to the table in that case. They were good too.

And some people think the Eastern Shore doesn't have culture. Come on, folks! Look around. Do city folks get sung to at the deli? The answer is "no."

A few days later, at the office, I questioned the staff to see how much musical talent we have. I thought just maybe the Eastern Shore Post could form a band. The enthusiasm was low but it was deadline day and their minds were elsewhere. David Martin, our copy editor, boasted on his ability to play the radio. That's what I have to deal with here.

I already know that writers Krystle Bono and Stefanie Jackson can sing. Krystle also revealed she plays clarinet and guitar. Stefanie can play a computer software program. She must be related to David somehow.

Angie Crutchley, of classifieds, said of using the program, "It's called cheating." Yep. True story.

Angie also said she can play the graphic designer, can play the triangle. Editor Connie Morrison plays the autoharp, violin, and piano, though none very well, she was quick to add.

In its absence, we wanted to include the advertising department by assigning Troy Justis on trombone and Sam Sellard on sax. Yippee!

Proud To Be a Nurse

Dear Editor:

What do you think of when you think of a nurse? Who are nurses and what do they do? When thinking about these questions, one may think the answers are simple, but in reality the functions of a nurse don't fit perfectly in a box with pretty bow on it.

People sometimes ask me why I became a nurse. When I think about the question, the immediate answer that comes to mind is that I like to help people. This desire led me into nursing practice, but through the years I have learned that nursing is so much more.

In nursing school, students learn the mechanics of nursing. It isn't until nurses get out in the real world that the nuances of nursing are learned. Individual nursing practice is molded by choice of employment and the geographical areas in which one practices. In my case, my nursing practice has been molded by working on the Eastern Shore. There are many wonderful nurses working on the peninsula. Living in a rural area can make complex issues even more daunting. Nurses here have to persevere, have flexibility, and be multifaceted. While there have been days that I have felt defeated, the overwhelming sense of community always makes practicing here worthwhile.

Nurses can be found in many places on the Shore such as schools, medical clinics, rehabilitation centers, assisted living centers, hospitals, homes, the health department, and out in the community. I am proud to say that I am a nurse, and even more proud to say that I practice on the Eastern Shore. The next time you see a nurse, think of the incredible knowledge and qualities nurses have such as advocate, case manager, researcher, caregiver, as well as educator, and not just someone that helps the doctor.

Dear Editor:

I miss my patients and friends. To them: It was my great pleasure and honor to help you in your time of need. I hope in some small way I have made your life better. Thank you for all the kind gestures you offered during my stay. I'm sorry I had to leave. After six years on the Shore, my family and I moved to Floyd, Va. I am practicing at an outpatient clinic in Hillsville, Va.

There were multiple reasons for the move including financial, but the main one is because we love this area and wanted to move here. Please continue to make your health a priority by maintaining a relationship with a primary care provider and taking their advice. I wish you all the best! Please keep us in your prayers as you will remain in mine. Stay well!
