Northampton Aquaculture Takes Center Stage

By Ron West

The Northampton County Planning Commission left representatives of the aquafarming industry hanging following over two hours of public input and internal discussions this week.

On behalf of property owners in Willis Wharf, attorney Ceil Burge has requested an amendment to the Northampton County zoning code to adjust lot sizes and setbacks for waterfront villages. Burge argued that aquafarming, defined as one of the primary components of the county's economic plan, requires direct access to coastal. For many of the lots adjacent to the waters of Willis Wharf, adhering to the current minimum shoreline width of 250 feet and shoreline setbacks of 110 feet makes it virtually impossible for some aquafarming operations to grow. The proposal would reduce the minimum shoreline width to 60 feet and 0 for shoreline set-

Northampton Names New Superintendent

Dr. Walter R. Clemons has been named the new superintendent of Northampton County Public Schools, effective July 1, 2011. He replaces Dr. Richard J. Bowmaster who is retiring after more than 31 years in public school education.

In making the announcement, School Board Chairman Dr. Richard L. Drury, stated, "The School Board initiated a national and diverse search for the new superintendent and we are extremely pleased that Dr. Clemons has accepted our offer. His background fits perfectly with our rural environment, size of school district, and the demographics of our public school students. The School Board worked tirelessly during the screening and interview processes these past few months and we are confident our selection of Dr. Clemons is indeed the right choice."

Dr. Clemons

Clemons is a native of Smithfield, Va., and has worked in public education for over 21 years. He has worked in four school divisions: Isle of Wight County (Va.), Newport News City (Va.), Charlotte Mecklenburg (N.C.) and Franklin City (Va.). Clemons has served as teacher, assistant principal, and principal, and currently serves as assistant superintendent for human resources/administrative services for Franklin City Public Schools. While he served as principal of Franklin High School, the school was fully accredited by the Virginia Standards of Learning. While serving in his current position, the percentage of highly qualified teachers in that district increased from 86 percent to 99.7 percent. Clemons also has extensive knowledge in the areas of curriculum and instruction, budgeting and finance, policy and planning, and student services.

Clemons' educational background includes undergraduate and graduate degrees in Music Education from Norfolk State University, a Certificate of Advanced Study in Educational Administration from Old Dominion University, and a Ph.D. in Educational Leadership and Policy Studies from Virginia Tech.

Dr. Clemons is married to the former LaGuamna M. Salley of Portsmouth, Va., and they have one son, Walter R. Clemons II.

Gordy Will Seek Sixth Term as Accomack Supervisor

Accomack County Board of Supervisors Vice Chairwoman Laura Belle Gordy will seek re-election as a District 7 representative on that board in the November General Election.

The Onley resident said this week that she decided to run at the urging of many of her constituents. The four-time chairwoman of the panel is seeking a sixth four-year term. She took office for the first time in 1988 and served two terms. Then she was defeated by a narrow margin of 17 votes in 1995 and came back in 2000 to serve three more terms.

Gordy

Gordy said among her accomplishments are getting convenience centers, seeing new schools constructed and helping the Eastern Shore Area

Agency on Aging purchase its own building. She also has served during three redistricting processes.

She served as chairwoman in 1990, 1994, 2004 and 2010. Gordy has served on the Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital Board, Accomack Social Services Board, Accomack-Northampton Planning District Commission, Accomack Parks and Recreation Commission and Eastern Shore of Virginia Tourism Commission.

Gordy also served on the Virginia Association of Counties' Nominating Chair Committee and Conference Planning and Health and Human Resources Committee. She was appointed by the governor to serve on the Delmarva Advisory Council, the Virginia Marine Resources Commission and the Chesapeake Bay Governor's Board.

She is a member of Temperanceville Eastern Star

(past worthy matron), Onancock Emblem Club 195, Friends of Onancock School, Onancock Elks 1766, and Exmore Moose, and was past president of the Women's Club of Accomack County, Delmarva Firemen's Ladies' Auxiliary, the Virginia Federation of Business and Professional Women and Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital Auxiliary. She also volunteered as manager of the hospital's gift shop for many years and served as chairwoman of the hospital ball.

Gordy has two sons, four grandchildren, one great-grandchild and another great-grandchild on the way.

back, if the applicant's business is water-dependent.

Chad Ballard and Hank Bowen spoke of the value of the industry to the county, including jobs and a source of tax income. Kelly Taylor, an employee and aquaculture investor, noted that she hates to see such a great industry restrained from growing.

Builder Steve Lawson spoke on the value of the aquafarming industry to related business owners such as he. "Not approving this request would be a deterrent to the building industry," he said.

Letters were introduced from area residents supporting the proposal.

While no speakers opposed the changes for the area of Willis Wharf, one speaker indicated that it should not apply to Oyster, the only other waterfront village on Northampton's seaside.

The Planning Commission discussed the proposed changes at length. While generally supportive of the request to change lot size and setback requirements for Willis Wharf, there was opposition to approving it as written in that it also would apply to Oyster. Three additional related amendments to the Comprehensive Plan and or the Zoning Ordinance were likewise placed in limbo as they applied to the aquafarming industry. In the end, the planners tabled the discussion and agreed to bring it back up at a future session.

Health Matters

Local Fund for Sick Children & Their Families Needs Help Itself

In 1996, Kristin Matthews, the 10-year-old daughter of Parksley Volunteer Fire Company President Fred Matthews and his wife, Angie, was diagnosed with Ewing's Sarcoma, a moderately rare form of bone cancer affecting primarily teenagers.

Kristin received surgical treatment and chemotherapy at MCV in Richmond. Her treatment lasted approximately 18 months, during which her parents spent considerable time in Richmond. To help the family with expenses, such as travel, food, hotels, etc., Parksley Volunteer Fire Company established the Kristin Matthews Fund. An auction was held and fire companies and citizens throughout Delmarva contributed funds to assist her family.

Following her treatment, there still were funds in the account. The Board of Directors for the fire company decided to maintain the fund as a tribute to Kristin and to assist other children and their families battling cancer. The directors later changed it to include children with severe medical conditions.

The fund is not for paying for medical care, but since most seriously ill children must be treated at facilities off the Shore, the fund is used to provide money for travel, food, tolls and, if necessary, hotel rooms.

Several families have been assisted by the fund, which is maintained by the fire company accountant. Decisions concerning the amount of assistance to be given are made by the fire company Board of Directors.

With the increasing costs of many things, the fund has become nearly depleted.

With this in mind, a 9-year-old has been diagnosed with lung cancer and is undergoing testing and treatment at Children's Hospital of the King's Daughters and in North Carolina.

On Saturday, May 21, a dinner and auction will be held at Parksley Volunteer Fire Company to raise money for the Kristin Matthews Fund. The dinner will start at 5 p.m., catered by Annie's of Parksley. The menu will include chicken and dumplings, pork loin, crab cakes, vegetables, rolls, dessert and beverages. The cost is $25. A live auction, conducted by Henry Nicholson Jr., will begin at 7 p.m. A silent auction will be held from 5 to 8:30 p.m.

Auction items include decoys, paintings and gift certificates. Everyone is welcome to donate an item to be auctioned. Cash donations also would be appreciated. Checks should be made payable to the Kristin Matthews Fund and mailed to Parksley Volunteer Fire Company at P.O. Box 14, Parksley, VA 23421.

For tickets, information or to donate an auction item, call 710-4398, 710-5557, 710-4201 or 710-9533.

On a happy note, Kristin has been cancer-free for 13 years and is now married with a 17-month-old daughter. Kristin teaches third grade with the Campbell County School System near Lynchburg.

WELL, BULLY FOR YOU!

By Linda Cicaira

For generations, a bully was depicted as the tough guy in the schoolyard who turned smaller kids upside down to steal the coins that rolled from their pockets. Nobody really associated the title with the merciless teasers from the popular crowd who left out and persecuted those they considered not as athletic, pretty or rich.

One way schools retaliated was by requiring students to wear uniforms. They also kept the "bad" boys and girls after class, banned designer tennis shoes and sent a note home to Mom or Dad. The latter usually took care of the problem since the wrath of one's parents was worse than anything the system could dole out.

Modern technology has brought a new wave of bullying. Now the girls and boys are not only calling each other dirty names, but they are doing it through online social networks and text messages. The kids don't have to wait their turn at home to spread gossip via the family landline telephone. They have their own computers and cells and their fingers and voices are never still.

Peer pressure is tougher than ever.

An e-mail survey conducted earlier this month by the Eastern Shore Post reminded adults of their old school days and brought out the new issues.

A local 15-year-old high-school sophomore was bullied in Grades 7, 8 and 9. "The students would call me names and it would be hurtful. I felt that I was the only one that they bullied. ... It would happen in every class and it hurt my grades tremendously. It made me not want to go" to school.

Cell "phones and networks" also contribute, she wrote. "Many people they don't even know will hear lies about them, the girl added. "Now that I am in high school I see a lot of people my age being bullied and I try to help stop the bullying, but that does not always help and it continues to go on. I have learned that you just need to ignore them and hope they move on. For me they have and my life is much better and my grades are very good. I do not have to worry about what my friends hear about me and I have even made a 'truce' with some of the people who did bully me."

"Cell phones and social networks make everything more accessible," wrote Wendy Hall, the reading coach and pre-K lead teacher at Occohanock Elementary School. "Whatever someone thinks comes up and out in a matter of minutes."

She defined a bully as someone who feels "superior at someone else's expense." She said the major contribution is "lack of self-worth." She deals with it by talking to the students and involving a counselor.

Another local teacher, described herself as "in my twenties." She asked to remain anonymous and admitted that she was bullied as a student. "I was teased on the basis of not wearing cool clothes, being smart, or being nice to people who were outcast. My entire eighth grade year was my own personal hell."

She said bullying involves "verbally or physically harming someone regularly, on the basis of something that makes them different. I would even go as far as to say that it is sometimes intentionally seeking out differences for the sole purpose of pointing them out and using them as a reason to make fun of someone."

Then add technology to the mix. "Anyone can post anything they want to online and there's largely nothing anyone can do about it," she said. "You literally have access to thousands of people at the push of a button. It's kind of scary."

"My students are all involved in it (bullying) in one way or another. There are some who can't handle the idea of anyone picking on them, so they quickly find another child who is extremely vulnerable and gang up as many of their friends as they possibly can to join them."

"Largely," she wrote, "it's either ignored by the adults involved or they don't realize it's going on in the first place. ... There are children who cry at home because they are so afraid to go to school. That shouldn't happen. No child should have to feel completely alone.”

“As a teacher, it’s always difficult to tell at first who are the bullies and who are the bullied. After a while, you start noticing a trend. One student is always left out or always in the bullying group. There’s no black-and-white with it, ever. So many gray areas. I just have to keep in very close contact with parents: keeping them aware of what’s going on, finding out about the child’s home situation and other aggravating factors, and so on and so forth. Parents have to instill in their children from the beginning that it is absolutely NOT okay to push anyone around. Ever.”

When 55-year-old Terry Bowling of Tasley was a child, she was “pushed down the basement stairs almost every day.” She also was “pushed down on the playground” and “teased terribly about my parents being divorced.” This happened in the first, second, third and fourth grades. Other girls were the bullies. “Never any of the boys. The boys never got involved to try to protect me or some other classmates that were bullied.”

She defines a bully as “someone trying to take advantage of another person or getting amusement at someone else’s expense. Trying to show that a person is better than another. I think in my case it was jealousy and the girl/girls that did that to me had a low self-esteem. Some of them just wanted to be mean and have a good laugh. They knew that I didn’t have older sisters or brothers to take care of me either.”

She said cell phones and social networks are contributing to the cause. “Other people are egged on and rumors are spread. ... and no one takes the blame for anything. They use other people as their scapegoats.”

Albert Ayres, a former Accomack resident who lives in Princess Anne, Md., said he was bullied once in the third grade when “playground teasing turned physical. With this particular bully, it was just my turn in the barrel. He was always looking for someone to push around or rough up. I dealt with that immediately, remembering what my mom and grandmom taught me about defending myself.”

Ayres said he “never had another problem with that bully or any other bullies. ... You have to teach people how to treat you.” He blamed “poor parenting and self-esteem” for the issue. Ayres also said cell phone and social networks contribute by allowing “the bully to hide behind the keyboard. They would never say what they type directly to that person.”

“Recently a person used verbal bullying to try to get his way on a construction project I was working on,” a Melfa man said. “As I always have, I stood up to him and refused to be intimidated. In grade school, standing up to a bully meant learning how to fight. I learned how to fight well enough that the teachers would think I was the bully even if the person was twice my size.”

“Faces of Bullying,” will be the subject of a parent workshop during Accomack County Schools’ First Annual Parent University from 8:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Saturday, May 21, at Nandua Middle School in Onley.

Police & Court Postings

Agar Won't Seek Death Sentence

Accomack Commonwealth's Attorney Gary R. Agar said this week that he will not seek the death penalty against a Parksley man who was indicted in October on a charge of capital murder. The alternative sentence is life in prison.

According to court records, the case against Brian Marquis Northan, 23, of Leslie Trent Road has been continued until July 19. A three-day jury trial has been scheduled. Chief Judge Frederick B. Lowe of the 2nd Judicial Circuit of Virginia is expected to appoint a specific judge "to hear all motions and this case," since there is not a sitting judge on the Eastern Shore.

Agar would not comment further regarding the case.

Edward A. Fiorella Jr. has been appointed to defend Northan.

The victim was Anthony Wayne Wilson, 46, of Felton, Del. Northan was also indicted on a charge of robbing Wilson, using a firearm in the murder and possession of a firearm by a felon.

Wilson was found dead at the scene of a traffic accident near Parksley on June 24, 2010. According to the medical examiner's office in Norfolk, he died from a gunshot wound to the head/neck.

When police were called to the accident on Bailey's Road they found Wilson's body under a wrecked 1994 Chevy pick-up truck. Initially, it was reported that the vehicle ran off the road to the right, overcorrected and struck an embankment.

An Accomack Grand Jury indicted Northan in December of shooting at an occupied dwelling and possession of a firearm by a felon in connection with an incident on June 18, 2010. That trial is set for Sept. 13, 2011.

Man left for Dead; Three Charged

They allegedly beat the victim with a baseball bat, shot him in the arm and leg, robbed him, put him in the trunk of a car and then left him for dead in the woods.

Two Accomack 18-year-olds and a juvenile were arrested last week and charged with robbery, malicious wounding, abduction and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony in connection with the incident, which occurred near Parksley earlier this month.

Maj. Todd Godwin of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office (ACSO) and documents filed in Accomack General District Court identified the suspects as Donovan Robert Terek Weathers of Cooper Lane and Kentray Devon Bailey of Tyler Lane. Both are being held in the Accomack County Jail without bond.

Godwin said a 17-year-old male also was charged and is being held in the Norfolk Detention Center.

The officer did not identify the victim. However, warrants charging the suspects stated that the victim is John Gerald Sepeda Jr., 18, of Parksley.

At about 12:40 p.m. Sunday, April 17, ACSO was notified that a gunshot victim had been found on Whites Neck Road. Godwin said further investigation found that this incident actually occurred during the late evening of April 16 in the John Cane Road area.

Investigator R.E. Drummond wrote in the court file that the victim "was transported to Peninsula Regional Medical Center in Salisbury, Md., with multiple injuries including gunshot wounds, broken bones and blunt trauma to the head area."

Sepeda told police he left his home on Parsons Road in Greenbush to go to Royal Farms in Parksley at around 7:30 p.m. April 16. He said Weathers, whom he knew from working at Perdue, "waved" him over and while the two talked, "an unknown vehicle approached their location from the rear of Sepeda's vehicle. Two ... suspects approached Sepeda's 1998 Chevrolet four-door Blazer. Each armed with shotguns," the document states.

The victim told police that he thought Weathers said, "We want all your money." The victim was then forced from the vehicle, "beaten and shot with a shotgun at least two times," according to court records, which also allege that Weathers "beat Sepeda with a baseball bat he had retrieved from his vehicle ... Sepeda was dumped into the trunk of a car and ... discarded in a wooded area, where he advised he played dead so the suspects would leave."

Court records state Weathers has lived on the Shore for about eight years. He worked at Perdue for about two months. The file also states that Bailey allegedly "was not wearing a mask when committing the crime." Bailey has lived in the area for four years and was working toward his GED.

Godwin said the victim's vehicle was taken during the incident, but has since been recovered. "The victim in this case is still undergoing medical treatment for the injuries," he added.

Preliminary hearings are set for June.

Council Meetings

By Linda Cicoira

Island motel owners don't want the transient occupancy tax rate increased by the proposed 1 percent. In fact, they are against any tax hike.

Tommy Daisey of Dove Winds told Town Council and Mayor Jack Tarr Monday night that the proposal is a bad idea. "My clientele consists of middle-income families," he said. "They have a certain amount of money to spend on vacation. Just about everything has gone up ... but not their salaries. ... These people are not money people."

"We don't want to kill the goose that laid the golden egg," he continued. "This is no time in our country to raise taxes on anything. ... We need to tighten our belts. ... When I voted for you all, I thought I was getting conservatives ... don't become liberal spenders."

Daisey complained that officials gave $5,000 to the library and another $5,000 to the Eastern Shore Tourism Commission. Of the latter, he said, "I'm willing to bet you that money is spent in Cape Charles. ... I don't think we have a tax problem. We have a spending problem."

Daisey also said the town is losing occupancy tax money from those who rent their houses and then don't contribute. "That needs to be looked into," he said.

"Tourism is our main industry," said Richard Conklin, another motel owner. "We just keep on taxing them to death. ... Expenditures need to be cut." There are "enough vehicles (used by the town) to open a car lot."

Tommy Mason said it's the "wrong time" for an increase. "The economy is in the dumps," he said, complaining that other resorts "don't charge to go to the beach."

Tarr said money from the increase (estimated at $100,000) is needed to start an Assateague Beach Replenishment Fund in case a storm in May or June damages parking spaces. A system would have to be set up to take tourists to the beach, he said.

"We go to every rental site we can find" to make sure permits are obtained and payments are made, the mayor added, referring to rental houses. "We know we're not getting them all. But we try."

In the end, Council voted to take the proposed fiscal 2011-12 budget and the transient occupancy tax to public hearing. Nothing else is set to increase. Councilman John Howard voted against the occupancy tax increase being included in the documents.

Councilman Tripp Muth also said he is opposed to the increase. "My business is having a hard time," he said. "It's not a time to be imposing any kind of tax."

Other Council members said they want to wait until after the hearing to decide. That session was set for 7 p.m. June 6 in Council Chambers.

~ Exmore ~

By Ron West

Exmore Interim Town Manager Arthur Miles told Town Council this week that the FY 2012 budget needs to include an increase in wastewater rates to help offset operating costs for the town system. Miles proposed that the rates be raised by $4 per month. The current monthly minimum rate is $34. Miles noted that the minimum rate being discussed for the proposed regional system is in the area of $42 per month. Council discussed the matter, but did not make a decision.

In other business, Council strongly endorsed a request from David Kabler to support efforts to attract tourism to the town in connection with tallship visits to area harbors. Kabler, who has sought and received similar support from other towns as well as the county, is working with other representatives from Hampton Roads to support OPSAIL 2012. The event will bring in excess of 100 tall ships and military vessels from around the world to a number ports. While Exmore has no harbor, it does have several hotels that are within easy driving distance of Cape Charles and could support travelers who might come to the area to visit the ships.

Donnie Kellam questioned Council on the legality of a commercial building being used as a meeting site for a church. Miles said the building in question is not zoned for that and the group will be made aware of it.

Mrs. Johnsen served on the ESCC Foundation Board of Directors for seven years, including two years as president. The Johnsens were a significant lead contributor in the college's major gifts campaign several years ago, and they continue to support the various programs and activities of the college. Mrs. Johnsen currently serves on the State Board for Community Colleges as well as the Virginia Foundation for Community

Steve and Barbara Johnsen

College Education Board of Directors. Eve Belote, executive director of the ESCC Foundation, noted, "It was an easy choice this year when it came time to nominate our recipient for this award. Barbara and Steve have supported the college and foundation consistently and generously for many years. ... We truly appreciate all she and Steven do for the college and this award is a small token of that appreciation."

Mr. and Mrs. Johnsen will have a scholarship named after them which will be awarded next fall to a student attending ESCC. These scholarships are funded largely by the Wachovia Wells Fargo Foundation.

In the 12th century, a church promised a side of bacon to any married man who could swear that he had not fought with his wife for a year and a day. It was that hard work and not the usual labors associated with a paycheck from which the term "bring home the bacon" originated.

Am I reporting this trivia because I think I should claim my pork product? Hardly. Ditto for my husband. Some would call us fussy by nature. We have some so-called friends who refer to us by the names of a television series couple that I wouldn't mention if I were tortured. Go ahead and guess. I'm not telling.

We're not much on giving gifts to each other for wedding anniversaries either. The next such holiday is in September. It will be the 22nd milestone of our marital bliss. On this occasion, I will have a bone to pick with tradition. There isn't any. After that many years, I would think someone somewhere would list a gift suggestion.

Oh yeah, a "modern" list calls for cop- per. So beware, the husband and I may have a penny war in our front yard. Hundreds of years from now, someone with a metal detector will wonder why there are little coins all over the yard.

Anyway, back to the subject. Once a couple hits the 15-year anniversary mark, they must wait every five years to be listed for a "traditional" present. There is something very wrong with that. I'm waiting for my letter from the president, our state senators and all the local leaders. Actually, I was waiting for that in October of 1989 when I checked the calendar after one month. Just kidding, Lloyd.

Everyone knows what I mean. Those who have managed to stay devoted to one another for 25 years are awarded with silver. Those with 30 years behind them get pearls, etc. I find it hilarious that the modern list doesn't skip around until it gets to 50 years. And a woman (whom I call a saint) who is married for 100 years gets a 10-carat diamond. Will I live to be 129? Yeah, right. I'll be lucky to get a good book to read on my 47th anniversary. There's a hint in there somewhere. Oh wait, the 44th anniversary is celebrated with groceries. Lloyd, are you going shopping for generic items again?

I love that man. And he loves a bargain. But please, no store-brand toilet paper or ketchup, turn off the porch lights and put your aspirin bottle back in the cabinet and I'll promise to close doors, put my plate in the dishwasher and watch mindless action films. Oh, and by the way, remember when you said I wouldn't use my exercise machine for more than eight weeks? You owe me $5.

Please Allow Us To 'Sound' Off

It's all about the systems. Sometimes it's a sound system. Other times it's the heating/air-conditioning system. It even can be students in an upstairs classroom. And beyond all that it's the way our leaders choose to get things done.

While Accomack's Board of Supervisors has had its problems with its sound system during meetings, in the case of Onancock Town Council, it's all of the above.

"I motion that we" BUZZ CRACKLE "why don't we let the public tell us" BUZZ CRACKLE BUZZ "we can't hear you."

That is a town council meeting at work.

Last week with a gallery full of citizens, the town leaders didn't wait for the system to quiet down. They just plunged ahead, giving the impression that they didn't want to be heard. Council was repeatedly told by constituents that something needed to be done to alleviate the problem. But nothing was.

Maybe, it was because they couldn't hear each other? Oh but wait. They could. Or at least they must have because they were able to get irate with one another. That's when their voices seemed to finally rise to an acceptable level.

Then there was the sound of the air-conditioning kicking in. It was a welcome relief to the hot day. Still, it was sporadic and quite noisy.

Teenagers could perhaps use the combination of cooling system and crackling microphones to make music and send their parents into orbit.

No one had any problems hearing the former mayor who spoke from the back of the room.

One resident's unsolicited comment stated it clearly. "As to the static, their apparatus is flawed in every way. How does the Board of Supervisors do their live streaming? While that audio also leaves much to be desired, at least the Web site permits users to listen to the meetings in the comfort of their homes instead of the suffocating town hall."

Still, count your blessings. During this session there wasn't a karate class going on upstairs. Then it would have been BOOM BUZZ CRACKLE or CRACKLE BOOM BUZZ or BOOM CRACKLE BUZZ or BUZZ CRACKLE BOOM or even BUZZ BOOM CRACKLE.

Learn Barrier Island History

Dear Editor:

In a recent trip "home" to the Shore (born in Accomack, grew up there, left in '79), my family decided to help celebrate my father's 85th birthday by spending an hour or two at the Barrier Islands Center on Route 13 near Machipongo. My dad is a history buff/farmer/waterman, so we thought he'd enjoy a narrated tour at the BIC, which I happened upon a few months ago. We were all in for a real treat!

Our group's ages ranged from my son, who is 17, to my mom and dad, 85, so we weren't necessarily an easy-to-please bunch. The word "guide" does not do Jerry Doughty justice. That man is the Shore version of a national treasure. He entertained us with fascinating facts and stories on all three levels of that building and its contents. Shore blood runs strong in me and I thought I knew a lot of the area's history, but I was floored by the wealth of knowledge in that man.

It seems presumptuous of me to suggest that people go there if they haven't, since I have lived off the Shore for the last 32 years, but I would strongly recommend it to anyone living on or off that precious peninsula.

A warm welcome from Laura Vaughn and the intriguing history of the barrier islands as presented by the knowledgeable staff there is a wonderful way to spend a morning or afternoon.
