ACCOMACK SUES OPIOID INDUSTRY; CASE REMOVED TO U.S. COURT

By Linda Cicaira

Accomack County has taken the war on drugs to the courthouse. It says “the number of Americans who died of drug overdoses in 2017 was roughly equal the number of Americans who died in the Vietnam, Iraq, and Afghanistan wars combined.”

The county filed separately but joined other localities in blaming the local opioid epidemic on drug companies. It named 53 pharmaceutical makers and

BREAKING NEWS ... AS OF PRESS TIME

The Accomack County Circuit Court clerk's office was notified mid-afternoon Thursday that the opioid case, filed by Accomack County against 53 pharmaceutical companies filed just days earlier, was removed from that court.

A notice of removal was filed in U.S. District Court, in Norfolk, by defendants Mallinckrodt LLC and SpecGX LLC. They are allowed to move an action to a higher court.

Accomack County Attorney Cela Burge said she had not been notified of the action. “We have these larger firms representing the company. They are specialized in their area of practice. I will be in consultation with them,” she said.

distribution companies in a lawsuit late last week and is asking for a circuit court jury to be impaneled to award a total of $58.6 million in damages.

The lawsuit wants $40 million in compensatory damages — money for damages, injury, or another incurred loss as a result of the negligence or unlawful conduct. It also asks for $350,000 per defendant in punitive damages, which is $18.55 million total from all defendants.

“Accomack County has been hit hard by the opioid epidemic,” according to documents filed by Accomack County Attorney Cela J. Burge and lawyers from firms in Norfolk, Va., Texas, and Tennessee. “For example, the rate of neonatal abstinence syndrome (NAS) in Accomack County has peaked higher than the statewide rate ... during three of the last six years for which the data is available. The NAS rate peaked in 2015 at more than double the statewide rate. The reported rate of Hepatitis C among 18 to 30 years olds in Accomack County has jumped from zero in 2012 and 2013 to 135.1 cases per 100,000 people in 2016.”

“Perhaps even more disturbingly, the rate of overdose deaths in Accomack County has steadily risen from 4 to 5.9 deaths per 100,000 people in 1999 to 14 to 15.9 deaths per 100,000 people in 2016,” the lawsuit continued. “The acute opioid problem in Accomack ... reflects the overwhelming epidemic affecting the entire commonwealth,” the lawsuit continued. It noted that three years ago, the state health commissioner declared the issue a public health emergency.

Residents Will Drive Hillsborough Drive Again Soon

Repairs continue to Hillsborough Drive in Belle Haven. The road was wiped out when the dam upon which the road was constructed gave way during flash flooding in September. The dam separated a freshwater pond from Occohannock Creek. On-site VDOT personnel said the construction was slightly behind schedule due to the wet spring and did not have an anticipated opening date. In January, VDOT expected the road to open March.

Tourism Grant Gives Cape Charles $5,000 Marketing Boost

By Stefanie Jackson

Cape Charles Main Street has accepted a $5,000 grant from the Virginia Tourism Corporation's Marketing Leverage program.

According to a recent Cape Charles Main Street press release, the nonprofit received one of 33 tourism marketing grants given out across the state, totaling $625,000.

Gov. Ralph Northam announced, "Virginia tourism is a crucial sector of our economy and when we invest in this industry, we support local job creation and drive regional economic growth."

"The Virginia Tourism Corporation's Marketing Leverage program gives localities and businesses access to critical marketing resources that will help bring more travelers to our Commonwealth, increase visitor spending, and grow demand for Virginia products."

Last July, Northam toured downtown Cape Charles and participated in 14 ribbon-cuttings celebrating the new businesses that had opened within the year.

At that event, the governor, an Eastern Shore of Virginia native, said, "We're a little bit biased, being from the Eastern Shore, but this is truly God's country, and it is so great to see Cape Charles and the Eastern Shore are thriving."

The Virginia Tourism Corporation grant will help support Cape Charles Main Street's Discover Cape Charles advertising campaign, featuring the slogan, "Cape Charles – Virginia's Cape."

Cape Charles Main Street is responsible for the town's participation in the Virginia Main Street program that helps small towns across the commonwealth grow their economies while preserving their history and sense of community.

The local nonprofit is partnering with the Town of Cape Charles and the Cape Charles Business Association to help meet the minimum 2-to-1 grant-matching requirement.

To participate in the market leveraging program, at least three entities must form a financial partnership that may include towns, counties, chambers of commerce, private businesses, museums, attractions, and other cultural and tourist events and organizations.

Funds raised through the partnership will support the creation of a new town map, increased social media presence, and updates to the website, CapeCharlesByTheBay.com

Not to be confused with the town's official website, CapeCharles.org, loaded with information and resources for residents, the Cape Charles by the Bay website is geared toward visitors, focusing on accommodations, shopping, and tourist activities.

"Over the last few years Cape Charles Main Street, along with its local partners, worked diligently to engage the community, study the market, and build awareness to a broader audience about what a great place Cape Charles is to live, visit, and invest," said Kyle Meyer, of Virginia Main Street.

"The Virginia Tourism grant is the next logical step to start putting all of that planning to work."

Campaigns that receive Virginia Tourism Corporation grants for marketing leverage successfully drive 15% more visits to their respective towns, and every dollar invested in the grants results in $16 of visitor spending.

Dollars invested in Virginia tourism provide a 7-to-1 return in tax revenue.

In the last five years, Virginia Main Street downtowns have attracted more than $400 million in private investments and 5,000 jobs, Meyer said.

Virginia Secretary of Commerce and Trade Brian Ball said, "Tourism is an important part of Virginia's economy as it adds to our economic diversity and is an instant revenue generator."

"In 2017, tourism injected $25 billion into the Virginia economy and provided 232,000 jobs. The Marketing Leverage grant helps leverage limited marketing dollars to increase visitor spending and encourage public-private partnership opportunities."

Suzanne Golibart, owner of the Periwinkles consignment boutique on Mason Avenue, Cape Charles' commercial main street, said, "Over the past six years, I've experienced the vibrancy of the Cape Charles business community firsthand."

Cape Charles Main Street, "through leveraging grants and enhanced marketing, will directly benefit businesses and encourage this continued vibrancy," she said.

Visit the Facebook page for Cape Charles Main Street for updates on the organization's initiatives.

Northampton Supervisors Give Short-Term Rentals a Long-Term Solution

By Stefanie Jackson

Northampton supervisors voted Tuesday night on two zoning issues that have plagued them for months.

In a unanimous decision, supervisors eliminated “watch houses for shellfish grounds,” aka oyster watch houses, from the land-use table in the county’s zoning ordinance.

Spencer Murray, chairman of the board of supervisors, said, “We didn’t see any need for this to be a use in our zoning any further. It’s not used very much.”

Traditionally, an oyster watch house is a structure built on the water, or in the water on pilings, for watching oyster grounds, safeguarding against poaching.

An oyster watch house is not meant to be used as a dwelling or to generate rental income. But in 2017, Thornton Tayloe, a citizen of the Cheriton area, notified county staff that an oyster watch house near his residence had been converted into a dwelling and was used for overnight stays.

He was primarily concerned about the development’s impact on water quality and noted that several of the surrounding creeks contained condemned shellfish areas.

The property in question, Salt Grove, belongs to local developer Eyre Baldwin.

The county was unable to enforce the intended use of the structure because “watch house” was not defined in the zoning ordinance. “From the perspective of the building code, there is no difference between a watch house and a residence,” stated minutes from a board of supervisors meeting held May 29, 2018.

The next day, the board of supervisors submitted a zoning application to amend the ordinance to allow regulation of the use of watch houses.

Over the next several months, the matter was passed back and forth between the board of supervisors and the planning commission, but a conclusion was not reached.

Instead, in February 2019, supervisors submitted a new zoning application for deleting references to watch houses from the zoning ordinance.

On April 2, the planning commission voted unanimously to recommend the deletion, a decision supervisors cemented with their own unanimous vote April 9.

Murray noted that existing watch houses will not be affected by the decision and will be considered “legally nonconforming.”

He added that new watch houses could be built, but only “if you can get through all those hoops” that may include permission from the Virginia Department of Health, Virginia Department of Environmental Quality, Virginia Marine Resource Commission, Army Corps of Engineers, and Northampton County Wetlands Board, plus zoning clearance and a building permit.

After supervisors removed the “watch house” land use from Northampton’s zoning ordinance, they added a new one, “short term rental.”

Short-term rentals are accommodations provided for a period of 30 days or less to guests in exchange for a fee, and they are typically private homes or rooms reserved for rent by tourists and other visitors using apps and websites like Airbnb.

Northampton Commissioner of the Revenue Charlene Gray said there are already 275 short-term rentals operating in the county that are paying transient occupancy taxes.

Hundreds more short term rentals could be operating “under the radar,” supervisors have said, but the exact number is unknown.

Supervisors wanted to bring existing short-term rentals in compliance with the county zoning ordinance. Technically, before “short term rental” was included in the zoning text, it was illegal to operate one.

Supervisor David Fauber favored allowing short-term rentals by right, with no permit required. “I don’t want to go through this every time somebody wants to rent a room out,” he said.

Supervisor Robert Duer disagreed because there’s no way to root out a “bad apple.”

County Attorney Beverly Leatherbury said, “I don’t know what you could do. You’d fall back upon the criminal law.”

Supervisor John Coker said, “Let’s start somewhere.”

The new short-term rental zoning text was adopted in a 4-1 vote, with Duer opposed.

Northampton Residents More Likely To Get IRS Audit

By Linda Cicaira

Northampton County folks have a better than average chance of getting audited by the IRS, according to www.projects.propublica.org where a map of the U.S. was lit with red marks on the counties that earned the warning.

Approximately 8.6 audits were made for every 1,000 filings in Northampton County between 2012 and 2015. The website stated that the national average was 7.7.

Acomack County also earned the red mark but came in below the national average with an estimated 7.3 audits per 1,000.

"The rates were estimated using audit coverage rates published in the annual IRS Data Book in combination with county tax return data on the IRS website," the site stated.

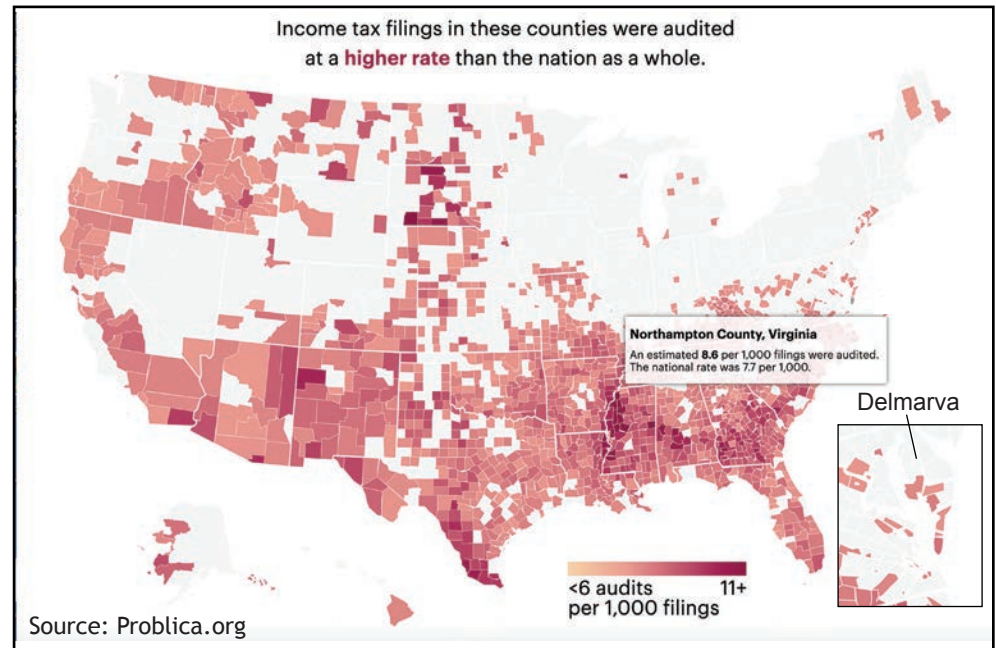

A comparison was made between the poor rural Humphreys County, Miss., and affluent Loudoun County, Va.

"In a baffling twist of logic, the intense IRS focus on Humphreys County is actually because so many of its taxpayers are poor," the site stated. "More than half of the county's taxpayers claim the earned income tax credit (EITC), a program designed to help boost low-income workers out of poverty ... the IRS audits EITC recipients at higher rates than all but the richest Americans, a response to pressure from congressional Republicans to root out incorrect payments of the credit."

The median annual household income in Humphreys is $26,000. In Loudoun, it is $130,000, the highest in the U.S. It is about $37,000 in Northampton and $38,500 in Acomack.

"In counties with the highest audit rates, there were about 11 audits per 1,000 tax returns filed each year," said the author of the study, Kim M. Bloomquist, a former senior economist with the IRS' research division. "The map reveals wide variations in the audit rate from place to place, but also how certain groups of Americans are disproportionately affected by the IRS' policies."

"The five counties with the highest audit rates are all predominantly African-American, and rural counties in the Deep South," he said. "The audit rate is also very high in South Texas' largely Hispanic counties and in counties with Native American reservations, such as in South Dakota. Primarily poor, white counties, such as those in eastern Kentucky, in Appalachia, also have elevated audit rates."

"The states with the lowest audit rates tend to be home to middle income, largely white populations," Bloomquist stated. He listed New Hampshire, Wisconsin, and Minnesota. "Generally, the IRS audits taxpayers with household income between $50,000 and $100,000 the least."

No Love Lost Over Proposed Northampton Wedding Venue

By Stefanie Jackson

The Northampton planning commission was left to reconsider the effectiveness of its communication following two long and contentious public hearings April 2.

Eyre Baldwin, of Pearl LLC, received the planning commission's approval for a minor special use permit (SUP) to convert an old farm shed into a new business he called a "food hub," where customers can buy wholesale or retail, fresh and prepared local foods.

However, that conclusion was reached after an hour-long inquisition that left Baldwin wondering aloud if keeping people in business "means nothing" to the planning commission.

The Northampton board of supervisors granted the special use permit April 9 and removed several of the 10 conditions set by the planning commission.

The planning commission did not approve a major special use permit for John and Linda Cleaveland, of Franktown, to use their land as an event venue — also after about an hour of discussion. That matter was tabled until May.

Linda Cleaveland concluded her remarks to the planning commission with, "If you want a good story, we can dig up a lot of dirt on this county."

The former wedding planner had begun by saying she believes hosting weddings on the 65-acre property with a water view would present "a wonderful opportunity for Northampton County" for economic growth and to "show these people how beautiful the Eastern Shore is."

"I love weddings," she said.

But Commissioner Janet Sturgis didn't love the zoning application. The directions for filling out the application requested an "accurately scaled plat," but instead commissioners received a marked-up aerial photo.

The notes written on the photo did not include all the required information, such as the distances between buildings, streets, and property lines. "I can't accept this," Sturgis said.

She questioned why a note said 500 guests would need 167 parking spaces, or one space for every three guests, when staff recommended a maximum of 150 guests.

Linda Cleaveland attempted to estimate how many guests she wanted to host, but her husband later balked at the questions.

"Why don't you folks get together and decide what the limitations are ... make it simple, not like Washington," he said.

Furthermore, Sturgis was perplexed by a letter from the Virginia Eastern Shore Land Trust, which has a conservation easement on the Cleaveland property. The letter contained awkward wording that could have been interpreted to mean weddings up to seven days long were permitted.

"Maybe you need to go back to English class," Linda Cleaveland said.

"Excuse me?" Sturgis replied.

Commissioner Glen Anders raised concern about the safety and accessibility of the long dirt road leading to the property.

Later, Sturgis seemed to hit a nerve when she said commissioners also need to discuss a 2017 resource protection area violation on the property, and Linda Cleaveland said she would "open a can of worms" if there were any questions about it.

man Dixon Leatherbury hit them with the news that the SUP for their private air strip had expired because they had sold some of their land and their property had fallen below the minimum area required for the permit.

Senior Planner Kelly Parks originally recommended rejecting the Cleavelands' wedding venue application based on multiple objections made in writing by neighbors, mostly concerns about noise and traffic.

But Parks was willing to reverse her position if neighbors supported allowing the SUP with several conditions, including limitations on amplified outdoor music.

Commissioner Andrew Follmer later said, "We can tighten up our communication."

If an issue with a zoning application is found during a public hearing that "we could have caught very early," then "we're not working well together. That should not be a reason for a delay."

The board of supervisors held a public hearing on the Cleavelands' application April 9. That story will appear in next week's edition of the Eastern Shore Post.

Store Clerk Robbed at Gunpoint

A clerk at the Dollar General Store, on Lankford Highway in Painter, was robbed at gunpoint Saturday night. Shots were fired, but no one was injured, Accomack Sheriff Todd Godwin said Monday in a prepared statement.

The incident was reported to the sheriff's office at 8:53 p.m., April 6. Deputies rushed to the scene and determined that an armed male, between 5'6" and 5'10" with a slim to medium build entered the store and demanded that the clerk open the register.

"The suspect fired several shots inside the store before fleeing the scene on foot in an unknown direction," Godwin said.

Anyone with information on this or any other crime is asked to contact the sheriff's office at 757-787-1131 or 757-824-5666. Tips may also be submitted at www.accomackcountysheriffsoffice.org

Drug Charges Won't Be Prosecuted for Accused Shooter

Drug distribution charges filed in Northampton County last year will not be prosecuted against Roquan Lee'teq "Cake" Rogers, the accused shooter in the 2017 murder-for-hire scheme of an Eastern Shore Drug Task Force informant in Accomack.

Commonwealth's Attorney Beverly Leatherbury filed papers in Northampton Circuit Court late last month that stated there wasn't enough evidence to convict Rogers, 20, of Benjamin Banneker Street in Exmore, of possession with the intent to distribute cocaine, dibutylone (also known as bath salts), and between a half-ounce and five pounds of marijuana and three counts of conspiracy to distribute the illegal drugs.

The charges are from Jan. 4, 2017, incidents. The action was approved by Judge Burke F. McCahill.

Meanwhile, Rogers is being held in Accomack County Jail as lawyers continue to file papers about what to do next about the murder-for-hire charges. A jury convicted him of three counts of conspiracy but were deadlocked on nine other counts including attempted capital murder of Eastern Shore Drug Task Force informant, Nathaniel "Nate" Johnson, 31, and his then-girlfriend, Desiree Smith, 19, on Oct. 31, 2017, at Linhaven Circle near Painter.

Both victims testified at Rogers' trial that he was the person who shot them as they fled down the street.

The panel of six men and women recommended a total of 17 years in prison for Rogers. A breakdown showed 10 years for conspiracy to commit capital murder for hire, five years for conspiracy to commit capital murder involving a prisoner, and two years for conspiracy to commit obstruction of justice.

When the jurors were polled, a man on the panel said he did not agree with the recommendation and the jury was discharged. Lewis could decide the sentence himself or impanel another jury. If the latter is done, Lewis said the jury would be read the transcript omitting parts that were done in the absence of the jury or that the jury was told to ignore.

Another scenario would have Commonwealth's Attorney Spencer Morgan retrying the other counts because the jury did not decide those.

Roger's lawyer, Curtis Brown, wants a mistrial.

A jury recommended a total of 50 years in prison for the man who masterminded the plan from his cell in Accomack Jail. Evron Terrell Strand, 44, of Deer Drive in Nelsonia, was convicted of seven felony counts. The jury recommended five years each for four counts of soliciting murder, 10 years and a $100,000 fine for conspiracy to commit murder-for-hire, 20 years and a $100,000 fine for attempted capital murder-for-hire, and a fine of $2,500 for conspiracy to obstruct justice. Lewis ordered a presentence report and set sentencing for June 6.

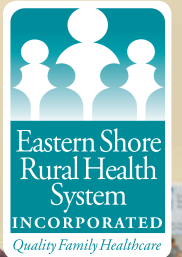

Evidence showed Strand was helped in his plan by his girlfriend and drug sales partner, Cynthia Harmon, 52, of Parksley. She admitted to connecting him with several potential shooters, including her son, in conference telephone calls. Strand wanted to keep Johnson from testifying against him.

Rogers is accused taking the job at Strand's urging for revenge for Johnson testifying against his brother Akeem Markiese Rogers, 27, of Madame CJ Walker Lane in Exmore, earlier in Oc-

THE RESURRECTION, WHY DOES IT MATTER?

Experience the Journey to Eternal Life

It is said the world should be a better place because a man has lived, to which we at Cape Charles Baptist Church at 501 Randolph Ave., respond, "Indeed, it is." With that in mind, this Easter morning we invite you to drop in any time between 10 -10:40 a.m. to enjoy a free narrated tour of Jesus' last days and hours on Earth prior to his rising triumphantly from the grave and later ascending to Heaven. Children and adults can walk away having experienced a fuller understanding of the man Jesus Christ and why, as God's son, He came as the savior of the world and remains the way to eternal life. During and after the tour, light refreshments will be served prior to our 11:15 a.m. service of song and worship.

Children will be provided relevant pages to color during the service while all interested will leave with resources that include the Good News of the Gospel.

Smith said she recognized Roquan Rogers as the shooter when his trial was held. She changed her testimony at Strand's trial and said she was going by what Johnson had said and that she didn't know he was an informant until after the shooting. They are no longer in a relationship.

Two Felony Arrests in Accomack

Two Accomack residents were arrested on felony charges this week, according to records filed in the county general district court.

Lashanta Nicole Edwards, 37, of Leslie Trent Road of Parksley, was charged with credit card fraud, stealing more than $500 belonging to Union Bank & Trust, and two counts of credit card theft. The incidents occurred between Sept. 16, and Oct. 7, 2018. Edwards was arrested April 8. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for May 20. Sgt. Ed Perry of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office (ACSO), investigated.

Leshawn Lamar Davis, 31, of Matthews Street in Bloxom, was charged with possession of a Schedule I or II drug on April 9. A secured bond was set at $1,500. Deputy G. Lewis, of ACSO, investigated. A preliminary hearing was set for June 24.

Felony Charges Filed in Northampton

Hit-and-run, drug offenses, embezzlement, and theft were among the felony charges that were alleged this week in documents filed in Northampton General District Court.

Tyevon White, 28, of Willis Wharf Road in Exmore, is accused of uttering a check he knew had insufficient funds. The check for $559.99 was cashed at Tru Blue, in Exmore, Jan. 18. It was from an account that belongs to Calvin B. Taylor.

The record stated, "White stopped coming to the store after the incident, then gave the owner a written note saying he would be paying the debt but had not done so." An unsecured bond was set at $1,000. Sgt. Jason Campbell, of the Exmore Police Department, investigated.

Tray Von Snead, 24, of Exmore, was charged with credit card theft and two counts of credit card fraud involving $500 or more. The charges involve "stealing a credit card from his child's mother," the record stated. "They are not married and don't live together." He made three withdrawals on April 6 for a total of $549.50. "There were $94.50 in overdraft fees." Campbell also investigated this case. He wrote in the file, Snead "sent a note to her, Tamiya Wise, apologizing ... and promising to pay her back." An unsecured bond was set at $1,000.

Quaizal Kuylik Kellam, 18, of Carlton's Circle in Nassawadox, was charged with hit-and-run in connection with an incident that occurred Jan. 15 and involved $1,000 or more in property damages. Kellam turned himself in to authorities on March 20. Special Agent Glen Neal, of the state police, investigated. An unsecured bond of $2,000 was set. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for May 9.

William Lane Lane, 27, of Machipongo, was charged with embezzling $528 from the Shore Stop in Cape Charles on March 5. He was arrested March 20 after being contacted in Richmond and returning to the Shore to surrender. Deputy William Garrett, of the Northampton County Sheriff's Office (NCSO), investigated.

Milbourne was arrested the same day. A secured bond of $1,000 was set. A preliminary hearing was scheduled for June 13.

Albright wrote in the file that “he knows it looks one way, but he smokes a lot. Not trying to sell.” A preliminary hearing was set for May.

Northampton Issues Summonses

Northampton County is cracking down on inoperable vehicles as shown recently when a Machipongo man was accused of 10 violations.

Joseph Foster, 51, of Snipe Lane, was charged with violating the county law between Jan. 8 and March 15. Thomas W. Rippon, the building inspector for the Northampton Department of Code Compliance, issued the summonses on March 15. They were later filed in the general district court.

Rippon and Director Susan McGhee did not return a reporter’s phone calls about the charges.

The code states that inoperable vehicles are not permitted “on any property zoned for residential, commercial or agricultural purposes except within a fully enclosed building or structure or otherwise shielded or screened from view.”

The county website states “an abandoned vehicle is a self-propelled vehicle that is wrecked, dismantled, partially dismantled, or discarded; or remains inoperative for a continuous period of more than 60 days on private property. The vehicle must be removed from the property, restored to running condition and have current plates and inspection sticker, or be stored in an enclosed structure.”

In another zoning related issue, Johnnie Eubank and Patsy Eubanks were charged with misdemeanor offenses.

Johnnie Eubank, 74, and his wife, Patsy Eubank, 71, of Pickett’s Harbor Drive in Capeville, were charged with “placing a temporary building or structure on a construction site prior to a building permit being issued for the on-site construction work to be performed.” The offense occurred between July 1 and Dec. 11, 2018.

According to the court record, a notice to comply was issued Sept. 4, 2018, for violating three sections of the zoning ordinance. Another was issued Sept. 20, 2018, for violating two sections. A board of zoning appeals application was submitted but was withdrawn on Nov. 29, 2018.

A plan of development was issued by the county Nov. 28, 2017. “A camper was placed on site in front of your existing Northrop Grumman’s 11th Cygnus mission to the International Space Station (ISS) is set to blast off from the NASA Wallops Flight Facility at 4:46 p.m., Wednesday, April 17.

This mission will use a new late load capability in which time-sensitive science experiments will be loaded just 24 hours before liftoff. In prior missions, all cargo had to be loaded about four days earlier.

The mission also is the inaugural launch of the Virginia Space ThinSat Program. The Cygnus will release 63 ThinSats and the Student Aerothermal Spectrometer Satellite of Illinois and Indiana CubeSat from the second stage of Antares into extreme low Earth orbit.

tower,” according to a copy of a letter sent from Zoning Administrator John Bartman and included in the court file. “There was a report that the camper has been occupied without a building permit application being submitted or a building permit being issued. The county agreed the camper could be parking on site with a permit application submitted by the end of August.”

A hearing was scheduled for May 30.

CubeSat is a collaborative effort between the University of Illinois Urbana-Champaign and Purdue University. Students will collect and analyze data transmitted from their satellite for approximately five days before the ThinSat or CubeSat deorbits and burns up in the atmosphere.

Virginia Space and Twigg’s Space Lab LLC partnered to create the Virginia Space ThinSats Program to enable participating students to design, build, and launch a picosatellite within a year. The Virginia Space ThinSat Program includes about 70 schools from nine states, with a focus on students in Virginia.

~ Opioids ~

Montgomery, Alexandria, and Dickerson counties are among the local governments fighting back with a lawsuit. The city of Bristol, Va., also filed a $40 million suit and localities in Tennessee, Florida, Nevada, North Carolina, North Dakota, and Texas are suing.

Purdue Pharma reached a $270 million settlement with the state of Oklahoma in March. Oklahoma Attorney General Mike Hunter reportedly streamlined his case against the remaining companies in the lawsuit and expects to go trial in May. Oklahoma will be the first of 36 states — at last count — to sue the opioid companies. New York joined in March and Illinois reportedly joined this week. There are more than 1,600 individual federal cases in the mix that are being overseen by a federal judge in Ohio.

Acomack's lawsuit states the case can be filed locally because the drugs are sold here.

In Kentucky, the attorney general filed a lawsuit that focuses on the marketing of Opana ER, also known as oxymorphone, that is used to treat chronic pain, according to the American Bar Association.

Opioids are defined by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services as "a class of drugs that include the illegal drug heroin, synthetic opioids such as fentanyl, and pain relievers available legally by prescription, such as oxycodone (OxyContin), hydrocodone (Vicodin), codeine, morphine, and many others. When used correctly under a health care provider's direction, prescription pain medicines are helpful. However, misusing prescription opioids risks dependence and addiction."

"On average, three Virginians die of a drug overdose and over two dozen are treated in emergency departments for drug overdoses each day," the papers stated. "Fatal drug overdose in the first half of 2016 increased by 35% compared to the same period in 2015. More Virginians die each year from drug overdoses than motor vehicle accidents."

The county also blamed the pharmaceutical companies' "opioid-related misconducts" for the hike in heroin abuse. "A 2015 study found four out of five heroin users report that their addiction started with opioid pain relievers." The drugs the defendants "provided to patients for everyday conditions such as knee pain, headaches, and dental pain - can operate as a gateway drug to heroin use and involvement with the illegal drug market."

"Accomack County is now having to allocate substantial taxpayer dollars, resources, staff, energy and time to address the damage the opioid scourge has left in its wake and to address its many casualties," the lawsuit continued. It blamed the rise in incarceration and the crime rate on the crisis.

"The cost that the county has borne for foster care and other child placement services have similarly increased" because the structure of families has been destroyed, the suit states.

The companies that were named include locally recognized prescription suppliers like Walgreens Company, CVS Pharmacy Inc., and Express Scripts Inc., along with national pharmaceutical companies like Purdue Pharma, Abbott Laboratories, Endo Health Solutions and Endo Pharmaceuticals, Teva Pharmaceuticals USA Inc., Janssen Pharmaceuticals Inc., Allergan PLC, and Abbott Laboratories Inc. "Defendants' efforts to deceive and make opioids widely accessible have also resulted in a windfall of profits," the attorneys wrote, "Opioids are now the most prescribed class of drugs, they generated $11 billion in revenue for drug companies in 2014 alone. While Americans represent only 5% of the world's population, they consume 80% of the world production of prescription opioids. The side effects of opioid use have provided even more profits for drug manufacturers. For example, television airwaves are now flooded with advertisements for remedies for the most common opioid-related side effect, opioid-induced constipation, which increases long-term opioid user's healthcare costs by over $10,000."

"The complaint states that the epidemic has resulted in economic social and emotional damage to tens of thousands of Americans through virtually every community in the U.S. It is indiscriminate and ruthless. It has impacted across demographic lines harming every economic class, race, gender and age group. It is killing Americans more than 134 people every day. Prescription and illegal opioids account for more than 670% of overdose deaths in the U.S. a total that has quadrupled over the past two decades," according to the U.S. Centers for Disease Control and Prevention. "More people died from opioid-related causes in 2016 than from car accident or guns. In 2016, more than 175 people died every day from drug overdoses, compared to an airplane crashing, killing everyone on board every day. In 2017, the number rose to over 197, the increase largely due to synthetic opioids," according to the CDC. "The costs of healthcare lost productivity, addiction treatment and criminal justice involvement due to opioid misuse alone is $78.5 billion a year."

Captain Todd Wessells, of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office, who is running for the top spot in his department in November, has been trained for Narcan and has been involved in anti-drug campaigns locally. A forum hosted by Brian Moran, Virginia's secretary of public safety and homeland security, was offered last year.

Wessells was not available for comment Monday night. Burge did not answer an email earlier in the evening.

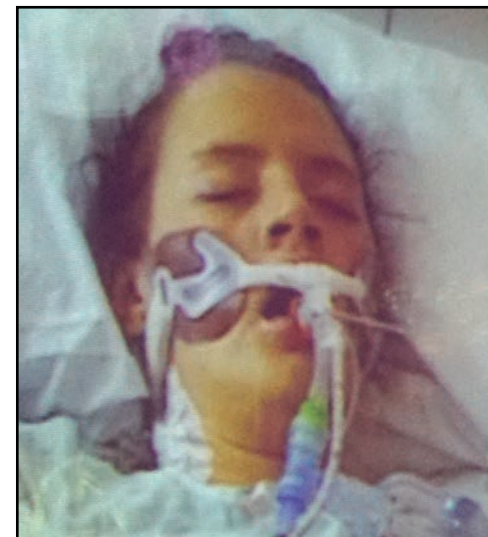

A documentary film on the impact of Eastern Shore opioid addiction, "No Second Chance," about a young woman who died from an overdose, was shown at the session. Special Agent Scott Wade, of the state police, who heads the Eastern Shore Drug Task Force, made it a mission to get the story filmed. It featured a local mother's nightmare about opioid abuse. Her daughter, Katelynn Sterling, of Saxis, was only 20 when she died in July 2016 from complications of heroin addiction. Holly Sterling described her daughter as a fun-loving, bright cheerleader and student before she started using drugs. The changes began in her daughter when she was 15. Over more than five years, she started smoking marijuana, dropped out of high school, got into harsher drugs like cocaine, and then began doing heroin, first orally, then sniffing and then intravenously "until she was a full-blown heroin addict."

Wade declined to comment on the lawsuit Monday. He is frequently in the courtroom when many of the drug distribution cases are being conducted. Accomack has seen trials for heroin, cocaine, meth, and designer drugs.

Virginia gave $100,000 to the Eastern Shore Community Services Board in 2017 for opioid addiction prevention but the area got no money to fund rehabilitation needs or for treatment medication despite a high death rate per capita for overdoses. A local 2016 study, required for the money, pointed to highest addiction rates for those in the 16 to 24 age group; police and other focus group members spoke out about drug abuse on the Shore, including bad situations at local high schools.

The lawsuit emphasized the "burden on law enforcement because of the sales on the black market and other crimes like theft associated with the desperation of addicts." "Accomack County's budget has been significantly and negatively impacted," the lawsuit stated. The monetary value of what has been spent or the increased was not noted in the documents.

al occasions, the Accomack County Sheriff's Office has disrupted sophisticated schemes to introduce these substances into the Accomack County Jail."

Morgan said drug task force agents learned dealers in northern Accomack began giving addicts free bags of heroin to "coax the user to return to them when they wanted more of the drug" and women tried to bring Bibles stuffed with drugs into the jail.

He talked about the challenges of trying to help the addict, protecting police and first responders from being hurt by coming in contact with the drugs, and the delays because of the increase in lab testing because "some opioids are disguised to look like legitimate medications."

Morgan said in one of his early heroin distribution cases there was evidence that an infant was present when the sale was going on. He's also heard an officer talk about a mother who died while cleaning her son's room after finding him overdosing and taking him to the hospital.

"We have users who are committing crimes in Accomack and traveling to Maryland or Delaware to purchase heroin," he said. "We are also seeing users from those areas coming to Accomack to commit crimes such as larceny or burglary to fund the purchase of drugs in their own area ... Some of our smaller law enforcement departments with fewer than 10 sworn officers find themselves responding to what are, in effect, homicide scenes and investigating them like accidental deaths. It did not take long to realize that investigations into these deaths were falling short of the attention needed."

Naloxone, an injection given for overdoses, is now carried by officers "saving at least one life in Accomack County and the life of a Drug Task Force officer trained through the program in a locality across the Chesapeake Bay when opioid-based narcotics became airborne and were inhaled by the officer's partner."

The officers also carry a pamphlet of local resources to give to those seeking help with substance abuse. "As a prosecutor, the resource guide is helpful because the information can be shared with victims and witnesses struggling with substance abuse and increase the odds that person will be available for court," Morgan said.

He compiled criminal cases handled between 2016 and 2017 and found "nearly half of the individuals prosecuted for simple possession of a Schedule I or II narcotics were facing additional criminal charges ... and the number of distribution charges was almost double that of the simple possession cases," Morgan said. "I believe these numbers demonstrate that our local law enforcement officers are focusing their efforts on pursuing distributors and solving crimes, as opposed to targeting addicts."

First offenders charged with possession are often given a chance to avoid a felony. They are required to have a substance abuse assessment, treatment, remain drug free, and perform 100 hours of community service with monitoring by the department of probation and parole. After a year the charge is dismissed.

"Our office and the probation officers recognize that relapse is a component of addiction recovery," Morgan continued. "Within the Department of Probation is a system of graduated sanctions which are imposed if a substance abuse related violation is discovered while the probationer is on supervision. However, multiple violations result in requests for action from our office. Once that request is made, a show cause or a capias is issued and the probationer is brought back before the court for judicial sanctions. In my experience, the success rate of individuals in either of these scenarios, first offender or probation, is much higher for users of cocaine than opioids."

After that, other residential programs are offered. Defendants on opioids are also sometimes taken into custody to protect them and others.

NORTHAMPTON SHERIFF'S OFFICE TAKING BACK UNWANTED PRESCRIPTION DRUGS APRIL 27, 2019, AT 5211 THE HORNES, EASTVILLE, VA 23347 (NORTHAMPTON SHERIFF'S OFFICE)

On Saturday, April 27, 2019, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m., the Northampton Sheriff's Office and the Drug Enforcement Administration will give the public its 17th opportunity in 9 years to prevent pill abuse and theft by ridding their homes of potentially dangerous expired, unused, and unwanted prescription drugs. Bring your pills for disposal to Northampton Sheriff's Office at 5211 The Hornes, Eastville, Va. (The DEA cannot accept liquids or needles or sharps, only pills or patches.) The service is free and anonymous, no questions asked.

The last NTBI was held on October 27, 2018. On that date, the effort across the nation resulted in the collection of approximately 457 tons of pharmaceutical controlled substances and other medication for safe and proper disposal. In Virginia 137 agencies collected over 22,345 pounds at 197 collection sites. As a result, our communities are safer because of the disposal opportunities.

This initiative addresses a vital public safety and public health issue. Medicines that languish in home cabinets are highly susceptible to diversion, misuse, and abuse. Rates of prescription drug abuse in the U.S. are alarmingly high, as are the number of accidental poisonings and overdoses due to these drugs. Studies show that a majority of abused prescription drugs are obtained from family and friends, including from the home medicine cabinet. In addition, Americans are now advised that their usual methods for disposing of unused medicines—flushing them down the toilet or throwing them in the trash—both pose potential safety and health hazards.

For more information about the disposal of prescription drugs or about the April 27 Take Back Day event, go to the DEA Diversion website or contact Major Mike Smith with Northampton Sheriff's Office at 757-678-0458.

'Teenie Weenie' at Birth, Jessie Flynn Has Lived a Giant-Sized Life

By Linda Cicaira

Her grandmother emptied whiskey bottles and filled them with hot water for a homemade dresser drawer incubator when Jessie Flynn was born in her parents' bedroom on April 30, 1926. She was "teenie weenie" and blue and needed the help.

Now at almost 93, her life continues to be a constant adventure.

For her 90th birthday, Flynn, of Nelsonia, and her daughter-in-law went hang gliding "on the sneak" so her children wouldn't try to dissuade them from the escapade.

As the plane took off, she didn't know the operation was recording her response. "The first thing you hear is 'Weeeeeee!'" she said. "I loved it. The kids were mad at first. Then they realized I was just as happy as a lark. I felt so free up there. It was just a wonderful feeling."

She has survived a lot in her decades, and like at her start, she has remained "small." When Flynn was five, a doctor mistook her for a toddler, and at 14, fellow high school students directed her to kindergarten.

Her life was also uncertain in those early days because she, her mother, and her two siblings were often abused by her alcoholic father. "We moved a lot," Flynn said. "Many times running for our lives."

The four of them left home and landed in a three-room apartment. It was about the start of the Great Depression when food was scarce. Her mother, Genevieve "Virginia" Berman, cleaned houses for a living while the kids were in school.

When Flynn was six, she said, an experience marked her life. A devoted Catholic, she stopped at church to pray for her father after one of his episodes. A young priest was there and spoke to her and she wound up telling him about the family's troubles.

"These words are just so in my head,"

she said. The priest told her, "You know you have a father in heaven who will always be there for you. He loves you. He is always with you."

After that, "I never felt alone," Flynn said. Even when her husband died. "I have a very strong faith. It's been proven to me. There are things that have happened that I don't know how they happened except for the will of God."

Jessie Flynn, of Nelsonia, now at 92, and pictured at 19 during WWII when her brother submitted her photo as a nomination for her to be mascot of his submarine.

She explained that she was postmenopausal with her last child and it was thought at first that she had a tumor. When she found out she was pregnant she knew the child was a gift from God. "He has been such a joy," she said. Of course, the other kids just referred to him as "the tumor."

Berman, Flynn's mother, married at 15 and was only 16 years older than her daughter. Flynn married at 20 and was with her husband for 63 years until he died 10 years ago. Berman lived to be the same age Flynn is now and was cared for by Flynn for many years. Now Flynn's daughter, 70, lives 30 feet from Flynn's house with her husband. Flynn also has two sons, 67 and 55 (the tumor), and an adopted daughter. She has 17 grandchildren, 24 great-grandchildren, and a great-great-grandchild.

She moved to the Eastern Shore in 1980 in a quest to live halfway between her homeland in New York and her husband's in North Carolina. The couple was entrepreneurs that tried every type of business. They once owned the Edgewood Motel, just a couple of miles from the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. It is now a well-known boat and tackle shop and motel.

In North Carolina, the couple owned a skating rink, a gas station, and a small grocery store. "One time I had five businesses," she said. It was her job to take care of the bookkeeping while taking care of the children.

Flynn also lived through WWII and was almost named mascot for the crew of a U.S. submarine. The sailors wanted a mascot because Betty Grable, a pinup girl who was photographed from behind looking seductively over her shoulder while wearing a bathing suit, was chosen for another group of service members.

Her brother, a sub crew member, took a picture of her at the beach and unbeknownst to her submitted her as a possible candidate. Flynn, a usually reserved "Victorian" lady was wearing a two-piece bathing suit, not her usual one-piece, but hardly considered scandalous in this day. She was sunbathing on Rockaway Beach, in N.Y.

"I won first place" but then was disqualified because the mascot was required to be a crew member's girlfriend.

"They said your best girl," she noted, using the words of her brother. He told them he had a couple of girlfriends he couldn't choose between. "My sister has always been my best girl and she always will be," Flynn said he told them to no avail. After her brother passed away, his wife gave her the nominating photograph, which is shown with this article.

For nine months during the war, the family didn't know where her brother was or how he was.

Rations were slim during the war so baking and sending cookies to soldiers sometimes was difficult but she was determined. A woman who owned a German deli in her neighborhood was a

U.S. citizen and found out she was sending the care packages. "She gave me the product -- butter and sugar -- for me to do it every month," Flynn said. "I got help and that's how I was able to do it."

Sadly, the last box she sent was to her cousin. "He was killed by a German sniper while in the street celebrating on the first day after the war was declared over in Germany," she said.

"He died and never got the cookies," Flynn continued. "They returned the cookies, in a big cardboard box, to me. It was nothing but a bunch of crumbs. It tore me up." The box arrived weeks after the family learned of his death. "It was shocking," she said.

"My best advice is to help everyone you can along the way," she said. "You will get more out of it than you give. I mean that very much. I have always taken people right into my home and taken care of them and certainly treat others like you want to be treated. And if someone does do something that goes against your grain, don't attack them for it. I just pray for them and it relieves my tension. You can't hold grudges. You can volunteer. I've always done a lot of volunteering in my life. ... My kids keep telling me to say, 'NO.'"

Flynn said staying active as she always has kept her young. "I found this place through the telephone book, (Eastern Shore) Area Agency on Aging," she said of the Onancock Senior Center. "I joined here in 2010. Hobbies. I always had a load of them. Always did gardening. I hope to get back to it."

Flynn also loves to dance but has been having some trouble with one of her feet. When she was in high school there were dances every week and she won some awards. "I used to do line dancing here," she said. "I hope to get back to it."

"I just always kept so busy," Flynn continued. "For 90 years, I always had all the family — at least 17 to 33 people for dinner" for holidays. A couple of years ago, the family said she had to slow down and let them help.

"I was pulling the turkey out of the oven and it was a 28-pounder," Flynn said. Someone came in and startled her and the bird went flying. "I caught it with my hands. I grabbed the whole thing. I burnt my hands, of course. But it didn't hit the floor" and she saved the feast from ruin. "My son-in-law said he will be doing the baking from now on."

For her birthday, Flynn is looking forward to her 75-year-old sister's visit later this month. The sister and her daughter come every year and they all go out to yard sales and for boat rides. A birthday bash for Flynn and her great-grandson's birthday is also held as he was born May 1.

Flynn has no regrets. "I am thrilled that I was able to do what I did." Her honeymoon to Niagara Falls didn't happen after the wedding because she insisted the couple visit his parents. "We finally made it for our 50th anniversary in 1996," Flynn said. "It was wonderful. It was worth the wait."

Flynn's auburn hair was a big asset. Her husband used to say it was how she managed to keep calm. "All the fire came out of your head," he would tell her.

Flynn said she has always been a frugal person. For her birthday, she wants "time. Some help with the garden. That's all I want. I don't need anything. I want services that I have had trouble getting done."

REGENT UNIVERSITY VOLLEYBALL INKS NANDUA'S JUSTIS

By Krystle Bono

Last Monday evening, the Nandua High School lobby was packed with family, friends, and supporters of senior Warrior Baylee Justis, who formally committed to play Division I volleyball at Regent University.

The two-sport athlete toured numerous campuses from North Carolina to Delaware, and entertained recruiting offers from Hollis and Mary Baldwin, among others, before making her final choice to settle on the private Christian university in Virginia Beach.

"My friend that I played travel ball with last year—she chose to play volleyball [at Regent] and I never really considered it until she told me about it, and I went there and as soon I stepped there [on campus] I was like, okay this is for me, it just feels right," said Justis.

"Then I talked to the volleyball coach after [touring campus] and she was so caring, and it was just completely different than anyone else I had talked to. I just love that it's not too far from home, but not too close."

Justis has been named to the Eastern Shore All-District teams for both volleyball and softball in past seasons. With a dedication to both sports over the years, she admitted that volleyball was not always her first choice, but it won her over in the end because of the person it ultimately helped shape her to be.

"Volleyball, at first, I didn't think I would like it as much [as softball] but my dad pushed me to play travel, and I wasn't even going to play high school at first, but when I started playing, something came to me—I'd never played before—but as soon as I started, I was good at it. I learned everything quick. My coach definitely pushed me to be a better player. As soon as she put me on varsity, in ninth grade year—I got put in an uncomfortable position—but it taught me to have confidence in myself, and even though there were better players, you know, like seniors when I was a freshman, they pushed me out of my comfort zone and got me where I am today."

It was apparent with the amount of witnesses present for her signing that she is well liked and supported; and Regent head volleyball coach Kelly Kessler knew from the first time she met Justis that she was much more than just a talented athlete.

"The first time Baylee came out, I could tell from the very beginning that she was very coachable, very humble in her talent, and she meshed really well with the rest of the team, and I knew right away she was someone I wanted to pursue. In the course of us emailing back and forth and her coming out for the evals and getting to know her, she was one of my top recruits that I wanted. You can tell from everyone being here [at the signing], from her little league coach, all the way to her high school coaches from softball and volleyball, that she's a very special girl and so, I feel very honored and blessed that she chose Regent to further her sports at the collegiate level," said Kessler.

Justis said her mom and dad, JJ and Troy Justis, helped make the opportunity possible, helping her see as many campuses as possible and always pushing her to go to the next level if she chose to go that path.

"They have always supported me, especially during sports."

It also comes as no surprise that the future Royal is a fan of the newly crowned NCAA champions, University of Virginia, her mother's alma mater, and says her favorite sports to watch are college basketball and of course, volleyball.

Justis plans to study counseling psychology for undergrad, and hopes to go into occupational therapy thereafter.

Yellow Jackets Pick Up Two More District Softball Wins

Story and Photos by Krystle Bono

The Northampton Yellow Jackets varsity softball team one-upped two of their district opponents this week, defeating the Nandua Warriors April 4, 7-6, and the Chincoteague Ponies Wednesday afternoon, 6-5.

Last Thursday's game was all tied up at six between the Warriors and the Yellow Jackets, with Northampton's Emily Kellam up to bat in the bottom of the seventh. Her singled shot scored the game-winning run, giving the Yellow Jackets the edge over the Warriors to seal the win.

Jada Giddens helped lead at the plate with four RBIs and Mollie Travis went 2-for-3 with one RBI.

Travis took the win on the mound, tossing all seven innings with four strikeouts, allowing seven hits, six runs, and one walk.

Nandua's offense was led by Parker Murphy and Baylee Justis, who each went 2-for-4, with Justis batting in one. Jamie Lynn Wert notched one homer in four chances with three RBIs.

Murphy shouldered the loss, pitching six innings, allowing six runs on 10 hits with five strikeouts.

The Ponies dropped Wednesday's contest to the Yellow Jackets, despite grabbing and maintaining an early lead. Caroline Thornton smashed a triple, bringing in two runs. The Ponies kept the score at 2-0 entering the third inning, when Northampton would get the go-ahead run. Things were leveled out in the bottom of the fifth, but an error would move the Yellow Jackets ahead for good.

Oakley Davis led with two hits in four showings in the box. Riley Hook batted in two.

Travis toed the rubber through the game's seven innings, retiring eight Chincoteague batters and giving up five runs and nine hits with just one walk.

Caity Kerchner took the loss for the Ponies, also manning the circle for the complete game, allowing five hits and six runs with three walks.

Thornton led the offense, batting 2-for-4 with three RBIs. Tylar Libertino went 3-for-3 with one RBI.

The Arcadia Firebirds hosted the Chincoteague Ponies April 4 in Oak Hall, and came away with the 6-4 victory. In the bottom of the first, the Firebirds moved ahead with a sacrifice fly ball by Skylar Stapleton, bringing in Haley McDaniel. Alison Bowmann added to the score with a deep single to centerfield, scoring McKinley Walsh.

McDaniel led the Firebirds offense with two hits and three RBIs. Stapleton went 1-for-2 with one RBI, and Bowmann went 1-for-3 and batted one in.

Hailey Berry earned the win for the Firebirds, pitching all seven innings giving up eight hits, two walks, two earned runs, and striking out seven Chincoteague batters.

Thornton led the Chincoteague bat club, notching two hits and one RBI. Alanna Hall was 2-for-4 and Hope Abell tallied one hit in two appearances and hit in one.

Kerchner took the loss in five innings. She allowed five runs on five hits, with two strikeouts and one walk.

The Firebirds faced Laurel last Saturday afternoon at Nandua and lost 19-1.

Stapleton went 1-for-1 and Bowmann was 1-for-2 and drove in the Firebirds sole run for the day to lead the offense.

Berry took the loss for Arcadia, allowing 14 hits, six earned runs, and three walks in 1.1 innings in the circle.

The Ponies fell to Wicomico 14-7 Saturday, despite collecting ten hits with homers from Mehsam Awan and Brendon LaFayette. Todd Matthews

EASTERN SHORE STREET HOCKEY LEAGUE GAME SUMMARIES

By Michael Garbacz

Game 1: EZ Loan Bruins 1, K&E Marine Capitals 4

On a day that couldn't have been nicer, the ESSHL seniors made the most of it, with a packed slate of games featuring two rain makeups. To start things off, the B's met the Caps, with everyone but the locked in, top-seeded Capitals jockeying for playoff positioning. Missing two key defensemen, the Bruins struggled to find any rhythm. Meanwhile, the Caps do what they do: control the pace of the game. They even managed the rare feat of holding the Smooth Criminal off of the score sheet. The Pat Trick netted a hat trick; Dustin Aigner tickled the twine; Bradley Colona and Jay Click each threw in an apple. For the B's, Sharkey Parks broke Justin Wheeler's goose egg off of an assist from T.R. Hoyt.

Game 2: Hoyt Insurance Ducks 4, Blues 0

It was all quack, all game long in this tilt, as the folks in purple ran circles around the Blues. Outshooting their opponents 23-10, the Ducks got all the offense they needed from a single Zach Webb goal. The General, however, tacked on a "pace yourself" hat trick for insurance; Josh Thomas and Jon-Jon Leach each added a helper. Goalie Brad Ford served up a stone-cold duck egg.

Game 3: Eastern Speed Shop Canucks 2, Delmarva Soil and Concrete Red Wings 4

The 'Nucks, Blues and Wings are all locked in a heated race to stay out of the basement in order to avoid drawing the Capital behemoth in the first round. In this affair, the Red Wings managed to eke out the crucial win, jumping out to an early lead and holding on as the Canucks mounted a comeback. The Huntsman registered two goals and two assists; New York Metzger and Ethan Ayer each potted a goal and an assist; Johnny Irvin chipped in a helper. For the 'Nucks, who else but the Onancock Kid led the way with a goal and an assist; La Boca made the other deposit; Catlynn Dowling added an assist.

Game 4: Hoyt Insurance Ducks 0,

K&E Marine Capitals 3

In what looks to be the most likely Parksley Cup Final matchup, the Caps and the Quackers squared off in a heavyweight contest. This time around it was the Capitals who came away victorious, despite being outshot 12-15. With such a low shot total, this one felt like a chess match indeed. The Pat Trick and Aigner each registered a goal and an assist; Colona found the other marker. Wheeler most happily handed friend and goaltending counterpart Brad Ford a fresh goose egg.

Game 5: EZ Loan Bruins 3, Delmarva Soil and Concrete Red Wings 4

Every team has their bad days (well, everyone but the Caps), and this time around the 'Killer' seemed to be missing from the B's, as they found themselves edged out by a hard-rushing Wings squad. This is shaping up to be easily the best first-round playoff matchup, so stay tuned. Hoyt, Sharkey Parks, and Austin Gregory found the back of the net for the Bruins; the Smooth Criminal threw in two assists; Parks had the other. For the exuberant Wings, Irvin, C.J. Jones, New York Metzger, and the Huntsman combined to seal the deal; Ethan Ayer shucked a couple apples; Stapleton and Michael Vargas each had one.

Game 6: Eastern Speed Shop Canucks 2, Blues 3

Teams don't typically come as evenly matched as the Blues and Canucks; it's fitting that with this Blues win, the season series ends at two wins, two losses and two ties for each. This time around, despite being knotted at 20 shots apiece, it was the Blues who found the extra marker. The Onancock Kid put the team on his back as he has done some many times before, scoring two goals in the third to give the blueshirts a run for their money, but it wasn't enough. La Boca and Dowling registered an assist on each of Miller's goals. Brandon Morgan scored two for the Blues and Wes Stapleton potted the other; the Animal and Paul Thornes picked up a helper apiece.

Game 7: Hoyt Insurance Ducks 2, EZ Loan Bruins 1

In arguably the best tilt of the day, the Ducks and Bruins fought an extremely playoff-like game. After a scoreless first period in which only seven shot on goal were registered, the Bruins found the back of the net courtesy of a Hoyt shot. Unfortunately for them, they could not carry the lead through the third, as the Ducks struck back twice in the final frame to seal the win. The General and Webb put the biscuits in the basket; Leach added an assist. Parks picked an apple for the B's.

Game 8: Eastern Speed Shop Canucks 0, K&E Marine Capitals 5

After a heartbreaking loss earlier to the Blues, the 'Nucks were systematically fed to the meat grinder that is the Caps, face first. The Pat Trick rang up two goals and two assists; Aigner picked up a goal and an assist. James Haley tickled the twine; Ben Bundick found a helper. Wheeler yawned his way to a shutout.

ESSHL Senior League action resumes Sunday, April 14, at 1:30 p.m. at Stapleton Rink in Parksley. That set of games will conclude the regular season, so get ready for the Parksley Cup Playoffs. # Microbe Managing the World, One Step at a Time

Story and Photos by Linda Cicaira

A local venture with a natural approach to cleaning up the environment is being nurtured “the old-fashioned way.”

There is no rich tycoon with a huge financial investment involved despite that the concept is revolutionary.

The principals of Eastern Shore Microbes, of Belle Haven, are hoping to bring commerce to the Eastern Shore, possibly save taxpayers’ money, recycle in a new way, and even help poultry operators market chicken litter fertilizer across the globe.

They haven’t pinpointed the exact value of their product. But the money aspect is not what drives them. They are trying to stop earthquakes and pollution.

The feat is somewhat secretive and consequently had three guys pacing this week.

Scientist Russell Vreeland and his 40-plus years of study; his friend, John Long, with his farmer know-how; and Beasley, the canine executive vice president for employee morale, waited for a delivery of some of the nastiest containers of water to ever cross the Continental Divide.

The Monday delivery from Colorado turned into the Tuesday delivery from Delaware, where the truck had another stop. It was unclear what else travels with 1,650 gallons of brown sludgy water divided into six containers.

The task is to treat wastewater — in this case the stuff that cow hides were thrown into after being treated right off the animal with tons of salt. The local company introduces tiny organisms that will clean the liquid. They add nutrients, including 40-pound sacks of cheaply bought yeast that were made for human consumption but didn’t make the grade and would have been tossed in a landfill. The combination will help quickly evaporate out fresh water so that nothing but sediment is left.

Vreeland and Long are going to add their cocktail right to the containers of wastewater and then ship it all back so the new mixture can be added to a lagoon. Eventually, the salt sediment could be used there to treat roads before snow storms.

“You can’t dispose of this,” Vreeland said of the wastewater that looked more

Science is Alive

Local scientist Russell Vreeland points to a container of microbes designed to make the other vial of extreme salty, dirty water evaporate.

like sludge when shown in a laboratory flask. “This stuff is so salty if you dump this on ground you kill the ground, you kill the plants. Most of these places are agricultural places. And it’s going to stay dead for a long time. It’s so high in biological waste that you can’t dump it in the ocean. You can’t bury it. We’re going to take what we grow here and inoculate their big lagoons.”

Sometimes companies dump it down what is called an injection well, a device that places fluid deep underground into porous rock formations, such as sandstone or limestone, or into or below the shallow soil layer. The fluid may be water, wastewater, brine salt water, or water mixed with chemicals.

“More than 100 billion gallons of contaminated wastewater are produced each year,” said Vreeland. “Other disposal methods damage the environment or require expensive machines” that eventually wear out. “ESM’s microbes eat the waste and heat the wastewater to effectively clear the contaminants. Our process uses no external energy and no additional building. We work to help restore the environment in a natural, clean and efficient manner.”

The Colorado plant, owned by Cargill Foods, which Vreeland described as the largest food producing corporation in the world, also sells salt. “They have two lagoons that are full. We’re going to treat one and not the other to show them that one is going to evaporate fast. That is how they’ll know that it works.”

Vreeland, a former college professor and researcher, got started as a graduate student around 1974, when he “first came across the phenomenon. It’s just taking natural organisms and using them in the proper environments. I spent the next 40-some years studying it, collecting organisms ...

at various universities ... It can’t be patented because it’s a natural product. We’re just taking advantage of a natural process. The Supreme Court has said you can’t patent that but you don’t have to tell anybody what you’re doing.”

Vreeland compared his microbes to the ingredients in Coca Cola, which was also never patented. “They have never divulged their recipe and neither will I.” He tried this for a Canadian company several years ago, had it working but was unable to maintain it when the company was sold and the new owners stopped the venture. Vreeland said they now have full lagoons and are looking for a way out.

“They were in a circumstance in which they had all this water,” said Vreeland. “When they bought the company, they had three lagoons the same size and another as big as all three. They built the big one before we started and then they didn’t need it.”

“It slaughtered 1,000 head a day,” he said. “The plant in Colorado is even bigger. They are doing about 7,000 a day.”

Locally, Vreeland said the possibilities for his microbes are endless. For example, he wants to decrease the amount of leachate that comes from the Northern Landfill in Accomack County to save hundreds of thousands of dollars charged in Maryland where it is trucked.

Vreeland said his microbes can clean up behind nuclear power plants and electric companies. He wants to change the bad reputation that microbes have. “I can actually use good microbes to use good things -- cleaning up the mess out there.”

“We’re throwing all this trash underground and causing all this stuff with earthquakes,” he said. “Prior to 2015, in Oklahoma, where they dispose of a lot of water in underground wells, they did not have an earthquake in 300 million years. In 2018, with their injection wells, they had 1,500. One of which was strong enough to knock fronts off of buildings.”

It’s the fact that they are drilling for oil and they have all this salt water that they pushed down the hole and they are doing fracking. We’re pulverizing and fracking the foundations of North America.”

Vreeland said they can also treat acidic lagoons and fertilizers. He mentioned a fertilizer made in California and used locally for potato production.

The process could also condense an 8-square-mile lithium plant in Brazil and reduce the time it takes to harvest with increased evaporation rates, Vreeland said. “If we get some of these things going, 95% of our revenue will come from outside the area ... and we’re going to spend it locally.”

John Long got involved after forming a friendship with Vreeland at the local beekeepers group. Long likes the green effect of the undertaking -- how it involves recycling and cleaning up the environment.

For fun, Vreeland also also makes his own beer and mead.

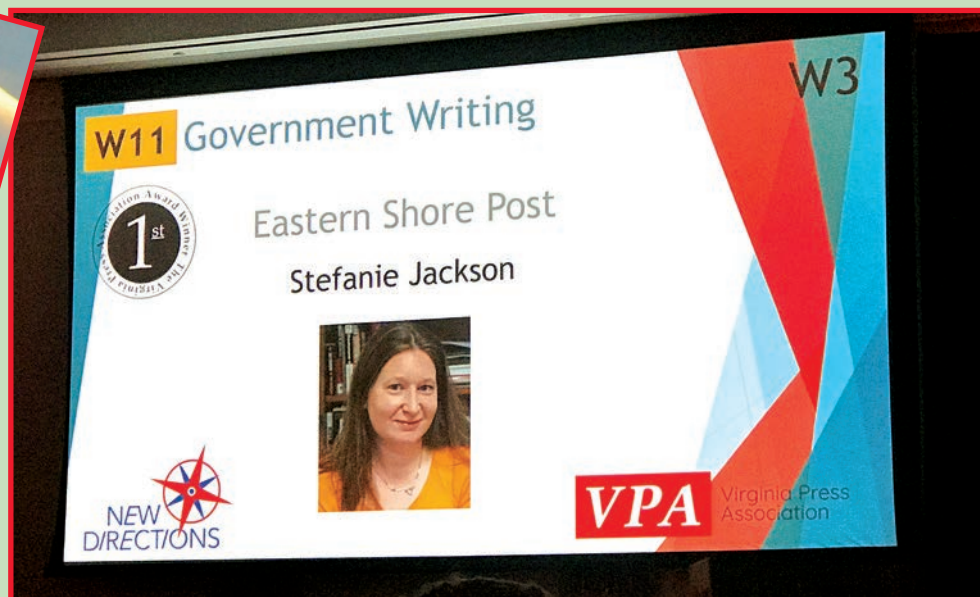

At left, Russell Vreeland shows a dish of microbes in which each red dot has more cells than there are people on Earth.

Eastern Shore Post Staff Earns 14 Awards in Virginia Press Association Contest

By Connie Morrison

The Eastern Shore Post writing, advertising, and publishing team was recognized for excellence during the Virginia Press Association conference Saturday at The Main, the Hilton hotel in Norfolk, Va. The annual event recognizes the highest achievements in the newspaper industry throughout the state. It is the first time in many years the Eastern Shore Post has entered the competition. The paper took home 14 awards in this year's contest.

"I am so happy our group is being recognized for its work," said co-owner Ace Seybolt. "I know we have a first-rate operation, and now the rest of the state knows it too."

"I can't say enough about how great it is to work with people who strive for the highest standards," said co-owner and editor Connie Morrison. "They have earned these accolades. It's not why they do it, but it's nice to see them recognized."

Krystle Bono, Parks Nunnally, and Angie Crutchley shared first place for their layout of the Post's food pages.

A first-place award also went to Stefanie Jackson for government reporting for her stories, "Panek Says Council's 'Inability To Focus on Real Jobs' Was Reason For Resignation," "Northampton Supervisors Approve Borrow Pit Expansion," and "Duer Says A-NPDC More Interested in Grants Than Solving Problems." Linda Cicaira took home second place in the same category for “Interest in Groundwater Protection Rises,” “State Board Issues Discharge Permits to Poultry Houses,” and “All but Two’ of 50 Facilities Responded to DEQ Water Warning Letters.”

“Keeping an eye on government is one of the fundamental purposes of a free press. It is no less important at the local level than it is for state or national government. That our reporters took first- and second-place awards speaks volumes for the seriousness we place on fulfilling this responsibility to our readers,” said Morrison.

Cicoira’s photo of watermen’s boots decorated for Christmas on the front porch of Hopkins & Bro. store in Onancock took the second-place award for feature photo. She also picked up a second-place win in breaking news photograph category for her shot of the Hillborough Drive washout in September.

The washout photo paired with the story by editor Connie Morrison describing the event and its aftermath won second place for combination photo and story.

Morrison also nabbed a third-place award in the personality or portrait photo category for the photos of drag queens at the Drag Me to Lunch event at the Shore’s first LGBT Pride event Sept. 28.

Copy editor David Martin was recognized with a second-place award for his feature writing portfolio, which included “More Than Glory: African-American Soldiers of the Civil War,” “Profiles in Patriotism: Shore Veterans,” and “Pulitzer Prize Winning Historian Shares Lessons for Leadership in Turbulent Times.”

Bill Hall’s Fishing from the Shore column garnered a third place award for sports column writing.

The versatile Angie Crutchley, the Post’s classified and legal advertising manager who is also part of our Pony Swim coverage team, hit the mark with her photo essay of last summer’s Pony Swim, winning second place in the category of picture story or essay.

Crutchley also won third place with her “Scary Bear” yard sale ad in the category of member self-promotion.

Ad manager Troy Justis and ad designer Kimberly Perry teamed up for three wins: second place in professional services for an ad they made for Friends of Eastern Shore Democrats; a third-place award in the fashion and personal care category for an ad they created for Russell’s Formal & Bridal; and another third-place recognition for a Kate’s Kupboard ad in the category of small space ads.

The competition is tiered so that newspapers of similar size compete against each other.

“I am so proud of this entire team and I hope our readers are proud of their hometown newspaper,” Morrison said.

THE ARC OF VIRGINIA'S EASTERN SHORE HONORS VOLUNTEERS, MEMORIALIZES PAST MEMBERS, AND LOOKS BACK OVER 50 YEARS

Photos by Connie Morrison

The names of Joseph Lyle Penney, Randy Nelson Alfree, Ricky Wilson, William Joseph "BJ" Carpenter, and Jasine Smith were added to the memorial tree.

By Connie Morrison

The Arc of the Eastern Shore spent some time Monday reflecting on its more than 50 years of providing services to people and families of those with intellectual and developmental disabilities.

Scrapbooks dating from 1963, pages brittle with time and use, were on display, tracing the history of the organization from its early days on the Shore. Tables were decorated with arrangements housed in vases painted at Shorecrafts, which provides vocation education for members of the Arc.

The event included recognition of volunteers who help with the annual fish fry, which will enter its 46th year in August. The Onancock Rotary takes on the big responsibility of cooking and serving the meals, and a host of volunteers make things run smoothly. Del. Rob Bloxom spoke about his volunteer work with the Rotary fish fry and commended the Arc on its work.

It also included names of late members whose names will be added to the copper memorial tree housed at the Community Services Board office. Families were invited to choose where on the tree they would like their loved ones' names to appear.

EASTERN SHORE COMICON TO TAKE CHERITON BY STORM

to attend the Eastern Shore Comicon dressed up as their favorite characters from comic books, video games, anime (Japanese animation), or sci-fi.

Comic-cons are hubs of creativity, and Brauer encourages cosplayers to make their own costumes rather than buying them off the rack.

There will be a fashion show and costume contest for teens and kids under age 18 at 3 p.m. on the Eastern Shore Comicon’s very own red carpet, organized by the Salty Stitchers, the Hampton Roads chapter of the American Sewing Guild.

Prizes will be given to the winners, with a new sewing machine for first place.

Although the contest is reserved for youth, adults are welcome to walk the red carpet, too.

Next Saturday, April 20, the Eastern Shore will kick off its first-ever comic book convention, better known as a “comic-con,” in Cheriton, home of the “small town, big heart.”

But the Eastern Shore Comicon isn’t just about comic books – it’s a celebration of everything pop culture – an affordable, family-friendly event with something for everyone.

It’s the brainchild of Cheriton citizen Nancy Brauer, who describes herself as a web developer and a “jill of all trades who has yet to decide what she wants to be when she grows up.”

Brauer has participated in comic-cons both as a vendor and an attendee. Her favorite costume is of Dr. Horrible – a character played by Neil Patrick Harris in “Dr. Horrible’s Sing-Along Blog” – complete with freeze ray.

Costume wearing, aka “cosplay,” is common at comic-cons, and adults, teens, and kids alike are welcome ing costumes made by kids who have been taking after-school sewing lessons from the Salty Stitchers. The dogs will visit from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Cosplayer Shadava will be a featured guest at the event. She has cosplayed as many characters, including Storm from “X-men,” Gamora from “Guardians of the Galaxy,” and Harley Quinn from “Batman.”

A cosplay group, Sienar Fleet Squad, the Southeastern Virginia branch of the 501st Garrison Tyrannus, will represent the Star Wars universe with up to 15 participants as Darth Vader, storm troopers, and scout troopers. The nonprofit group will be available for “photo ops galore.”

Stand-up comedian and star of the YouTube series, “DadSews,” Christian Lee, will host the live game show, “My Game Show Party,” at 10:30 a.m. and again at 2 p.m.

Two comic book artists with Eastern Shore ties will be featured at the event: Glen Paul, originally from Cheriton, who created titles such as “Sgt. Sasquatch: The Bigfoot of Liberty,” and Stevon Sample, of Exmore, who started an indie comic label, Victory Comics. He also draws portraits and illustrations.

Nearly all vendor tables are sold out for the event. Vendors will sell a variety of items including jewelry, candles, soap, hemp lotions and balms, Harry Potter-inspired, wood-turned bowls and goblets, steampunk-styled gifts, vintage and antique costume accessories, and, of course, comic books.

The ECPI University Rams eSports Team will also be represented at the vendor tables.

teer Fire Company.

Brauer is excited that the Eastern Shore Comicon will give local youth an outlet for their creativity and something new to do other than typical Shore activities like “hunting and fishing,” she said.

She had special thanks for longtime friend and artist Glen Paul and Salty Stitchers organizer Audrey Gardner for helping pull the event together, and for everyone who helped get the word out on social media.

She also gave kudos to Cheriton’s volunteer firefighters for being so easy to work with, and she is pleased to be able to “help them help the entire region” in their service to the community, with proceeds benefiting the Cheriton Volunteer Fire Company.

The Eastern Shore Comicon, at the Cheriton Volunteer Fire Company, is April 20, from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Tickets are $5 per adult or child age 13 and up. Admission is free for kids age 12 and under. Tickets are available at www.esc.eventbrite.com or at the door the day of the event.

The event logo features an alternate styling of “Comic-Con,” which is trademarked.

THE MAIL ORDER WAITING GAME

By Richard Saunders
Special to the Eastern Shore Post

There are two companies I see advertised often, one on TV the other on their vehicles. The one on TV is a heating, ventilation and air conditioning company whose tagline is “always on time or you don’t pay a dime.” The one on vehicles is a plumbing company that advertises itself as the “punctual plumber” with a tagline of “if we delay it’s you we pay.” It is refreshing to see that there are still some folks who observe the value of being on time, a value that is disappearing in today’s world. One hopes they are profitable now and in the future.

I lead with this to serve as a contrast to experiences I have had with several companies who do business over the internet and offer “free” shipping. Free prompt shipping is part of their pitch. My experience with two companies, in particular, is that the shipping may be free but its arrival is not predictable. The first offers two-day free shipping, but I have had orders take 4-6 days to arrive. That is one heck of an error ratio. The second company offers free shipping, but in my experience, it is anything but predictable.

I have gotten notices saying an item will arrive on one day and in fact it arrives on another day. Instructions to leave item(s) at rear door are ignored and items are left in front of house where they can be grabbed by anyone or get wet if it rains. Both companies use the same package delivery company, so it bears some of the fault.

I have had delivery drivers opt to ignore the delivery and just leave the item on their truck, among other mistakes. The vendor companies, when I contact them about missing deliveries just pass the buck to the delivery company, even though I have no relationship with the delivery company. For some reason, which totally baffles me, these companies refuse to crack the whip on their carrier even though the carrier is damaging the brand of the company by ruining the consumer relationship.

What is a consumer to do? Whenever possible, buy locally and in person. In an increasingly uncaring world, there is nothing more satisfying than taking the purchase with you rather than having to wait for uncertain delivery. If this is not feasible, when buying online, know who the carrier is that will actually bring the item to you. Allow for extra time, do not wait till the last minute before placing the order.

If your item does not show up when it is supposed to, badger the company you purchased from. You may end up with a credit in an attempt by the seller to mollify you.

As always, it is your money and your time. Unfortunately, we live in a world where often neither is respected. Be proactive and safeguard both.

Post Op-Ed Page

Our Group is Not the Klan

Dear Editor:

Well it’s happened again.

Our organization (Sons of Confederate Veterans) alerted northern Accomack and southern Somerset counties back in 2010, about the time we received our charter, of similar activity via this publication. Please do not assume that we have any affiliation with this bunch (Ku Klux Klan). They have been a festering thorn in our side since 1896 and have been pouring salt in wounds that for this very reason have yet to heal.

We have African American members and welcome anyone who can trace their line to a Confederate veteran.

Lowell G. Wallace Sr., Charter Member and Past Commander of General Wise’s Refugees, Camp 2189, Sons of Confederate Veterans

Looking for History

Dear Editor:

I am a retired university theater history professor doing a second book on “Ye Bare and Ye Cubbe” (with a contract from a New York publisher in hand). I have discovered a possible link to the First Amendment and the Bill of Rights.

I am interested in email interviewing people who have an oral history in their families going back to the mid-18th century or before, especially whose ancestors were involved in the trial or saw the performance.

The point of these interviews is to prove a long-standing oral tradition in the family. The content of the family story can be anything; Revolutionary War story, War of 1812, a funny incident on the farm, or Civil War story. The point is to prove longevity of oral histories in the family, not items discovered in text sources.

Stories will be selected, tightly edited, and included in the book with quote credit. Old photos or paintings of people in the stories as well as a picture of the current descendant may be included in the book.

Please respond to Joel D. Eis, MFA, at wanderfoot@aol.com, or 415-482-0550.

Joel D. Eis, Port Richmond, Calif.

‘Rumor’: It’s Worth Seeing

Dear Editor:

Saturday, April 13, at 7:30 p.m., will be your last chance to see this hilarious production. It is full of laughs and everyone puts on a wonderful performance. This is community theatre at its best! Don’t miss it!

Nicki and Paul Tiffany, Cape Charles

Principal Thompson Is a Gem

Dear Editor:

In my Virginia Cooperative Extension position, I have the privilege of visiting our elementary and middle schools to share nutrition classes with the students.

Over the years, I have observed many dedicated, tireless teachers and staff give of themselves educating our future generation.

I want to highlight Mr. Javan Thompson, the principal of Accawmacke Elementary. The atmosphere in that school reflects his leadership. He cares about the teachers, staff, students, and their families and it shows. He is never too busy to offer a kind, encouraging word to others, from my observations.

As another school year wraps up, I hope we will express appreciation to the teachers who touch the lives of our young people.

Susan O’Brien, Family Nutrition Program
Virginia Cooperative Extension

Suggestions for Cleaner Roads

The litter and trash problem in Accomack County is out of control. It is so bad that Maryland has placed an electric road sign at the Virginia/Maryland border on Route 13 stating “Litter is illegal – keep Maryland clean.”

Why is Accomack County the trashiest place on the Eastern Shore? The abuse is so blatant that as soon as a road is cleaned up, it is strewn with litter the next day. Who are these people that have no respect for their hometown? Why do people think it is acceptable to toss their trash on the side of the road? This travesty has been going on for years and all efforts to eliminate or control the problem have failed. Why can’t we get a handle on this problem? Trash is not only unsightly it creates a serious health hazard. Here are my suggestions to clean up our county and keep it free of debris.

See something say something. The state of Tennessee offers rewards of $50-$250 to those who report littering that leads to an apprehension.

Adopt a road. VDOT will provide a road sign and orange bags to individuals or organizations that are willing to pick up litter along the road.

Join Waste Watchers. Most meetings are the second Tuesday of the month at the Chamber of Commerce in Melba from 12-2 p.m. All are welcome. Contact Waste Watchers to verify times and dates.

Post fines for littering Posted signs simply say “Littering is illegal.” VDOT needs to add the penalty for littering.

Prosecute offenders VA Code 33.1-346 - Misdemeanor. Punishable by a fine between $250 and $2,500, imprisonment up to 12 months, or both. In lieu of jail, the court may order community service in litter abatement activities

It’s everyone’s responsibility to keep our county clean.
