Accomack Names New School Superintendent

By Linda Cicaira

Dr. William Bruce Benson was named the next superintendent of Accomack Public Schools by the county School Board late Tuesday. The Albemarle County assistant superintendent for operations and system planning will take the job on July 1.

The panel voted 6-3 to approve an "amended" personnel list that included the selection, but did not publicly discuss Dr. Benson, who was not in attendance.

"I am excited about it," Dr. Benson said Wednesday in a telephone interview. "There's a really strong sense of community in Accomack. I was very impressed by the opportunities available." Dr. Benson said he will be interested to hear what everyone — workers, parents, students, other officials — has to say about the school system "as we start this next path."

While the School Board went through the process of discussing and voting on Dr. Benson, the decision obviously was decided in advance since moments after the meeting was adjourned, Chairman Travis Thornton instructed the board's clerk to hand out a prepared statement announcing the decision. The vote followed an hour-long closed session.

Dr. Benson

Thornton said the next day that Dr. Benson's annual salary will be $139,000.

At Tuesday's School Board meeting, approval of the personnel list, which included Dr. Benson's appointment, was opposed by Vice Chairman Dr. Ronnie Holden and members Naudya Mapp and Camesha Handy. Voting in favor of the measure were Thornton and members Patricia White, Margaret Miles, Audrey Furness, Al McMath and Aaron Kane.

According to the prepared announcement, Dr. Benson's "current leadership responsibilities include principal superision, policy review and strategic planning. He is responsible for fiscal services, human resources, transportation, child nutrition services and building services. Prior to his current position, Dr. Benson served as Assistant Superintendent for Student Learning and Executive Director for Curriculum, Instruction and Technology."

"Dr. Benson brings 28 years' experience as an educator in Virginia," the written announcement continues. "He has a doctorate degree from the University of Virginia, a master's degree from Old Dominion University and a bachelor's degree from Western Michigan University. As a classroom teacher,

Redistricting Proposal Sent to Justice Department for Approval

By Linda Cicaira

Accomack supervisors unanimously agreed last week to send newly drawn election district lines and a list of revamped polling places to the U.S. Justice Department for approval.

The measure, which is taken every 10 years, is based on population figures. No one from the public spoke at the hearing conducted just prior to the action. The only people in attendance besides the supervisors and staff were a news reporter and Bloxom's mayor. However, there was a live feed of the meeting on the Internet so it was unclear how many people were listening.

County Attorney Mark Taylor said he expected to send the plan to the federal government earlier this week. "The whole country is doing this ... if they (the Justice Department) have concerns, our job is to respond instantly (in 72 hours)," the attorney said, adding that otherwise the county could go to the "bottom of the pile. They (Justice) have 90 days. They aspire to 60."

The biggest changes include accepting corrected census figures for Chincoteague and Tangier and moving Tangier from District 2 to District 6. Tom Brokenbrough, the county's GIS (geographic information system) coordinator, noted in a memorandum to the board that it was also discovered that "census data incorrectly had placed The Hermitage in the wrong district." He also wrote, "Minority representation has been increased in Districts 2, 3, 5, 7 and 9 when compared to the existing Election District lines."

In addition, Saxis was moved to District 4 and all of Savageville and Texacotown were combined in District 8.

Supervisor Wanda Thornton of District 1 wanted the county to send maps to the Justice Department that exclude uninhabited marshland. She said district lines "look better" when shown that way, "especially on the seaside."

Taylor said he would make sure the Justice Dept understands the population in Accomack "like pepper on a paper. The simpler you can make the presentation the better. We gather in clusters," he said.

The supervisors were able to maintain the county's three minority districts; Districts 3 and 9 have a majority of black residents and District 5 contains "large concentrations of both African-Americans and Hispanics."

Although Supervisor Jack Gray of District 5 voted in favor of the plan, he complained that a map should have been published in local newspapers. He got "complaints from citizens. They are saying, 'You're going to just shove this thing through ... railroad it through.'"

Thornton said citizens had the opportunity to attend "a lot of meetings. I'm not sure we could have changed it. We've done our work and we've come to this conclusion."

Vice Chairwoman Laura Belle Gordy of District 7 said she also has heard complaints, mostly regarding the new line along Locustville Road. She said the "majority of the calls were from other districts. They all think it's terrible ... I'm sorry more of them didn't come to the meetings."

Gordy was referring to the change that moves School Board member Al McMath's home near Onley from District 7 to District 8, thereby removing him from office at the end of his term next June. He has served on that panel for 16 years and was interested in another term.

"I think we've done as well as we can do," said Supervisor Grayson Chesser of District 3. "We have to abide by the Voting Rights Act. I think, all in all, I've been very pleased."

Supervisor Ron Wolff of District 2 said, "I think the biggest complaint is people don't like change ... that's the biggest obstacle that we have to overcome."

Supervisor Robert Crockett of District 6 was impressed that he didn't "hear a complaint ... or controversy from any board member ... all nine of us came in to get the job done."

Supervisor Reneta Major of District 9 said, "As the only minority member (of the Board of Supervisors), I feel like the process went well." She agreed with

Accomack Increases Transient Occupancy Tax

By Linda Cicaira

Accomack supervisors increased the county transient occupancy tax Wednesday night, a move that will force overnight visitors to pay for tourism efforts.

The vote was unanimous. (Supervisor Jack Gray was absent.) The tax was upped from 2 percent to 5 percent, with all of the increase devoted to tourism as allowed by a recently enacted state law.

Eastern Shore Tourism Commission Director Donna Bozza said the hike would allow the Welcome Center near the bridge-tunnel to be "operational seven days a week year 'round."

"Tourists expect to pay," said Lois Cooper of Pungoteague, a supporter of the industry. The tax "is strictly for lodging" and "basically a freebie for our citizens," she added.

Steve Potts, a Chincoteague business owner and native, also favored the tax. "It's the most exciting (move) since Misty hit the beach," he said, adding that "combined with the Tourism Commission's efforts," it will provide a big boost. Potts said it will also help pay for signs needed to alert people about the Shore as they exit Maryland on Lankford Highway.

Lisa LaMontagne, chairman of the Eastern Shore Tourism Commission, said the money would "help expand tourism by leveraging the state's investment particularly in the area of the space program — the biggest opportunity for the Shore since World War II ... this will open the doors to create business owners and entrepreneurs. These businesses benefit existing citizens and will provide professional jobs to keep our young people here."

The board also approved an ordinance that exempts disabled veterans and their surviving spouses from paying real-estate taxes, in accordance with recently passed state legislation.

Betty Reid of Onley complained that the law should include those whose spouses died before Jan. 1, 2011.

"He didn't choose when he was supposed to die," Reid said of her deceased husband who passed away in 1997. "I am struggling" to pay the taxes, she said.

At first, Chairman Donald Hart recommended that she go to her state representatives to get relief because state law doesn't allow her to benefit. Then he suggested the board send a letter to the governor and other state officials to ask for a remedy. The motion passed unanimously.

The supervisors also:

- formally accepted a $3,427,412 state Transportation Opportunity Grant to bury utility lines between the NASA Main Base and the island that will be used by the Mid-Atlantic Spaceport (MARS);

- met in an hour-long closed session with the county attorney regarding "actual or probable litigation," but took no action;

- requested the Virginia Department of Transportation conduct a safety study of the Chincoteague Causeway and consider placement of shoulders on that road.

Accomack Supervisors Debate Merits of Retaining Lobbyist

By Linda Cicaira

Accomack supervisors will have spent $45,500 to pay a lobbying firm to represent the county by the time the contract expires on June 30. At Wednesday's Board of Supervisors meeting, Supervisor Grayson Chesser said the money could have used to pay for an additional teacher in the public school system.

That's $6,500 a month or $78,000 a year — or as Chesser put it, "two teachers."

Supervisor Robert Crockett, who was appointed to his post a couple of months after the contract was approved last November, said he recently mentioned the lobbyist to his constituents who gather regularly to drink coffee at a local establishment. "They were amazed and, needless to say, they were not in support of that," he said.

Crockett was convinced they were correct after Rob Catron of Alcade & Fay LTD offered him "talking points" to "sway" the residents. "For him to think I should convince them of something I didn't believe in" was the deciding factor. "I'm trying to see the end point ... to your services ...

there's no end," he told Catron after the lobbyist gave his report Wednesday.

After much debate, the supervisors decided to table the issue until next month because Gray was absent and Supervisor Sandy Hart-Mears needed more time to decide.

But before that vote, Supervisor Wanda Thornton presented a different twist. Catron will save the county $820,000 by getting a bill through Congress, she said, referring to the federal requirement that the existing 32.56-acre parcel (obtained through the federal government) and designated as a parks area be replaced with other recreational land in order to develop the science-related Wallops Research Park.

No one mentioned if the county would ever get a recreational park in southern Accomack. A plan that involved the former Central School was scrapped.

There were other reasons Thornton wanted the lobbyist. Catron discussed phases of the Chesapeake Bay Restoration Act, which he said would put a heavy load on agriculture, especially the poultry industry's ability to provide cheap chickens to local processors in Temperanceville and Accomack.

Catron said he could seek "low-interest loans or free money for ... areas" in need of wastewater facilities and work to get a natural gas pipeline that could connect at Pocomoke, Md.

"You have to lobby for these grants," said Thornton. She said her district got the new Chincoteague Bridge after she lobbied for it. "Which one of you is going to lobby for us?" she asked the other supervisors.

Chesser also did not vote on the lobbying contract in November. He was absent from that session. He said when an intermediary is needed between the board and state and federal officials, "I think it's time to remove those people." He also suggested possible conflicts for the lobbying firm in representing Accomack and urban counties. It is paid $14,000 a month by Fairfax and $12,500 by Virginia Beach. "Do you really believe we're going to be on the same page all the time?" Chesser asked. Catron said he needed specific issues to answer the question. Chincoteague pays $5,000 a month.

Supervisor Reneta Major favored hiring the lobbyist. "If you want to make money, sometimes you've got to spend money," she said.

Supervisor Ron Wolff said spending $78,000 to gain more than $800,000 makes "good business sense" and the lobbyist could also help with Tangier needs.

Supervisor Laura Belle Gordy said, "They (the Tangier people) would go to Washington. They will get what they want" without a lobbyist.

In another matter, at the urging of Hart-Mears, the members voted to enter a pilot dental discount program through the National Association of Counties.

Hart-Mears Announces Candidacy for Re-election

Election District 4 Representative Sandra "Sandy" Hart-Mears will seek a third four-year term on the Accomack Board of Supervisors in the November General Election.

The 50-year-old self-employed businesswoman is a lifelong resident of Parksley. During her tenure, she brought to the board's attention the opportunity to participate in the National Association of Counties' prescription drug discount card program at no cost to the consumer. She is now hoping to get a dental discount program for Accomack.

According to Hart-Mears, nearly 24,160 prescriptions were filled in the county since January 2009 using the prescription cards, almost double the previous year, with a total savings since inception of $210,000.

"It is very important for government to work efficiently so when tax dollars are spent, the investment is focused to support a limited but effective government," Hart-Mears said. "I have a great deal of respect for the constituents and their concerns. I will continue to listen to them along with the Virginia Association of Counties, the Virginia Municipal League and the National Association of Counties. All inform me of grants, programs and changes in legislative sessions and impacts on the local level along with the governing body, commissions, councils, committees and boards" and "the county staff"

"I have taken all the information provided to me and made the very best decisions for the citizens of District 4 and Accomack County," she said. "It's all about balance. Every aspect of local government is important to someone and the county as a whole."

Hart-Mears said she has gained knowledge and experience about many issues facing Accomack from serving on the board. I have become a good listener and am always willing to talk and to resolve the problems and issues as they arise and work hard to be open-minded to find a solution."

She serves on the Accomack-Northampton Planning District Commission, the Extension Leadership Council, and as ex-officio for the Eastern Shore Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) Council. The state RC&D recognized Hart-Mears in 2008 as an outstanding member.

"For some 30 years I have worked with the public and have had the opportunity to meet and work with individuals from all walks of life," Hart-Mears said. "I care about the quality of life for all people living in District 4 and Accomack County. I have made a positive difference."

Dr. Benson taught chemistry, biology and computer science at the high school level. Please join us in welcoming Dr. Benson to our division as he prepares to help us build on our achievements and chart a course for future success."

Dr. Benson said he and his wife, Barbara, who holds a bachelor's degree in nursing, would start looking for a place to live locally. They have four adult children.

The School Board also heard a report from Food Services Director Bill Hall. He announced that the cost of a "full pay" school lunch would rise by 5 cents in compliance with the federal Hunger-Free Kids Act of 2010. The law calls for lunch prices that are less than $2.46 to be increased gradually "or provide non-federal funding to cover the difference." Hall said, "It could take 17 years to catch up."

Next term, lunch will be $1.65 at elementary schools and $1.90 at secondary schools. All other meal prices will not change. Hall said the change would affect 34 percent of the system's students.

Rigell Discusses Issues With Shore Constituents

U.S. Congressman Scott Rigell, who represents the Eastern Shore, visited here Tuesday.

Speaking to a crowd of about 75 constituents at Little Italy in Nassawadox, Rigell fielded a number of questions, mostly focused on the economy, energy, and health care.

Rigell stated that the four campaign planks from his 2010 run for office are still his main focus: job creation, less federal spending, support for the military, and changing Washington rather than being changed by Washington.

Rigell told the gathering that Medicare, Social Security, and Medicaid are major drawdowns of federal funds. He noted that individuals 55 or older would not be affected by changes, but those who are younger would be. He noted that since people are living longer, the federal budget would be focused on providing for these services if nothing were done.

J.P. Stevens asked if Rigell supports the idea of continuing federal subsidies to oil companies. Rigell replied that while he is not opposed to taking away subsidies, doing so could reduce job opportunities when private businesses have less to invest.

Dave Kabler asked Rigell about his thoughts on reducing the country's dependence on fossil fuels. Rigell noted that at some point, the world will run out of oil and we will need to seek energy alternatives.

Following up on this, Rev. Robert Garrison expressed concerns over the rising cost of utilities for residents on fixed incomes. He asked if there were any federal restrictions on homeowners installing energy production devices, such as wind turbines, on their property. Rigell said he is not aware of any federal restrictions, but such measures more likely are up to localities.

Responding to a question by Jeff Walker, Rigell stated that he does not want any special privileges as a member of Congress. He said he will have reduced his own salary by $50,000 by the end of his two-year term.

Rigell Votes To Explore Va. Waters

Rep. Scott Rigell (VA-2) voted last week to reverse President Obama's Offshore Moratorium Act and reopen exploration for natural resources in deep waters.

In his newsletter to constituents, Rigell pointed to America's dependence on foreign oil as a key contributor to rising gas prices. Rigell said that increased demand, limited supply, and geopolitical uncertainty are the main factors pushing gas toward $4 per gallon.

Rigell voted in favor of the Restarting American Offshore Leasing Now Act, which requires the Secretary of the Interior to conduct four oil and natural gas lease sales in the Gulf of Mexico and offshore Virginia that have been delayed or canceled by the Obama Administration.

When It Comes to Star Wars, Which Side Are You On?

By Linda Cicaira

The majority of Accomack and Northampton folks don't want to travel across the galaxy to far-off planets. But those who do have definite dreams of going to the moon, orbiting around Earth and even doing a little "planet hopping."

In an e-mail survey conducted by the Eastern Shore Post, 56 percent of participants said they want to stay in their home planet's familiar atmosphere. The others have their hearts set on trips to Saturn, Jupiter, unexplored and undiscovered far-off places and fictional destinations they viewed on the television show, "Star Trek," including Boreth, the most sacred land for Klingons, and Xanthras III, the destination of the USS Enterprise-D.

Linda Mitchell of Pungoteague said her journey would be to "a habitable planet occupied by peaceful, uncorrupted people."

Lauren Seltzer of Painter would go up in a rocket "to see the rings around Saturn," while Jennifer Simpson of Exmore wrote, "Planet hopping would be a blast."

Nathan Metzger of Craddockville yearns to visit the outermost star in our universe.

Erin Hall of Cheriton said she would leave the final frontier for the astronauts. "I'll settle for traveling all over this world first," she wrote.

Tom Rakowski of Melfa said, "Just an orbit or two (around Earth) would be good."

Ann Stubbs of Chincoteague mentioned traveling with Richard Branson. He's the billionaire who announced in April that his "Virgin Galactic adventure is between 12 and 18 months away." Tickets are $200,000 each.

Jan Biber lives in Onley in the summer and Florida in the winter. "Outer Space, no. Space in my mind, yes," she wrote, adding, "Where the grass is always green and the sky is always blue."

Karen Simpson of Quinby said she's "not particularly" interested in leaving Earth. "It takes way too long" to travel light years "and would be exorbitantly expensive. I suppose it would be pretty spectacular seeing Venus' rings up close or visiting another friendly people on some unknown planet. But I'll watch the video when it comes out."

Vicki Weiskopf of Chincoteague said "no" to seeing other planets. "We love to stay home," she wrote.

Teresa Wimbrow of Greenbackville and Adelaide Hollandsworth of Onley both had two words on the subject. "NO WAY." Greg Bundick, previously of Tasley, agreed. He wants his final destination to be "heaven."

"There were a few cool planets on 'Star Trek' I'd like to go to," wrote Patrick Belote of Onancock. Fellow Trekkie Gary Callaway of Accomack was enthusiastic, too. He wants to visit pointy-eared vegetarians on the planet Vulcan.

"No," said Doug Buckley of Parkesley. "But my family is very NASA focused."

Jessica Long of the Dalbys area in Cape Charles said, "I'll stay below the upper stratosphere. I do want to travel to underwater thermal vents though."

Jessica Bonniwell of Willis Wharf said she'd go to the moon. However, Ginny Mueller of Keller was a little more specific. She'd "ABSOLUTELY" go to "the Dark Side of the Moon — just to be able to look back at the Earth in its entirety."

Onley Police Department

Four counterfeit $100 bills were used for food purchases at two pizza parlors last weekend, according to Onley police.

Chief Walter Marks said the bills were taken to a local bank where they were confirmed to be fakes. "It was easy to tell the bills were counterfeit," he said. Marks urged anyone with bills that they suspect as being counterfeit to contact the local police department or the Sheriff's Office immediately.

"It was clearly a counterfeit," said Onley Officer George Bennett, who is investigating the cases. "The paper wasn't right. The color was different."

He said Pan Pizzeria in Onley took in two of the bills: "one on a delivery to a house" and the other at the restaurant. Pizza Hut (just down the highway) had the same thing: two $100 bills as well.

Bennett said the businesses were not using markers to check the bills. The officer said those trying to pass counterfeit money, sometimes use a dirty yellow highlighter to mark the bills and then argue that the money was already checked.

Marks said "a lot of times when it happens, it's people passing through. About a year ago, we got a $50 bill."

Bennett said a bank worker told him that they usually see counterfeits following a busy weekend. He is continuing his investigation of the incidents.

Northampton Circuit Court

Johnifer Elizabeth Jackson was sentenced Monday in Northampton Circuit Court to 10 years in prison for a variety of credit-card and forgery charges for which she was convicted in 1998. According to court records, the 37-year-old former Painter woman didn't show up for sentencing nearly 12 years ago. She eventually was picked up in another state and extradited to Northampton.

Commonwealth's Attorney Bruce Jones said she was given 10 years on each of three counts of forging sales drafts and 10 years on three counts of passing bad sales drafts. She got five years for possession of a stolen credit card and five years for credit-card theft. All the terms were set to run concurrently, for a total of 10 years, with all but two years and eight months suspended.

Also in circuit court:

•Kelsey Elizabeth Bottone, 24, of Belle Haven pleaded guilty and was sentenced to five years for credit-card forgery and five years for credit-card fraud. The terms were set to run concurrently and all suspended.

•Angela Lynn Bennett, 37, of Townsend pleaded guilty to a third offense of larceny, as well as obtaining a prescription fraudulently and unlawfully possessing hydrocodone. The case was continued pending completion of a presentence report.

•Terry Myres Parker, 53, of Selbyville, Del., was sentenced to 2.5 years for possession of a firearm by a felon. Parker also had to forfeit the weapon.

•David C. Gillespie, 37, of Quinby was acquitted of a third offense of driving under the influence of drugs.

Former County Director Indicted
Former Northampton Building Director Mark E. Cline Sr. was indicted earlier this month by a county Grand Jury on charges of abduction, brandishing a firearm and use of a firearm in a felony in connection with a Dec. 11 2010, incident, according to court records.

Details were not released to the public with other indictments handed down May 6 when his arrest also was ordered.

Northampton Sheriff David L. Dougherty Jr. said Cline, 52, of Exmore was arrested May 9. He is being held in Eastern Shore Regional Jail without bond.

Cline was terminated from his job on March 14. "As this is a personnel issue, the county is not at liberty to disclose any further information concerning this matter," County Administrator Katie Nunez wrote in a press release.

~Redistricting~ (Continued From Front Page)

Wolff about change. "I think we did as well as we could."

Supervisor Sandy Hart-Mears of District 4 also was "satisfied."

Chairman Donald Hart of District 8 concurred. "I'm going to take the positive attitude that everyone" in the county is satisfied, he said.

Also a major change in the proposal is the elimination of two District 8 polling places, Quinby and Keller. If approved, Quinby voters will go to Wachapreague and Keller residents will vote at Pungoteague Elementary School.

According to the plan, polling places will be at Chincoteague Community Center in District 1; Atlantic and Greenbackville firehouses in District 2; Arcadia High School in District 3; Bloxom Town Hall, and Parksley and Saxis firehouses in District 4; Kegotank and Metomplin elementary schools in District 5; Tasley firehouse and Tangier Combined School in District 6; Onley firehouse and Onancock Town Hall in District 7; Melfa and Wachapreague firehouses and Pungoteague Elementary School in District 8; and Painter firehouse in District 9.

How We Handle Bullying As a School District

In response to the recent suicide of a Northampton High School student, Superintendent Dr. Richard Bowmaster issued the following statement.

*By Dr. Richard J. Bowmaster
Superintendent of Northampton County Public Schools*

This week, one of our high school students committed suicide. It is never easy to accept death, and even more difficult when it is a child or adolescent. Often we want to blame someone or something for the suicide. It is our human nature to want an answer to help us cope with such a tragic event.

During the week, I have received many inquiries about the type of bullying program offered in our school district. It is important for the community to know how we handle bullying.

The elementary guidance counselors at each school have an anti-bullying component within their curriculum. The counselors conduct lessons across all grade levels to help children understand: how to deal with teasing and bullying, how to report to an adult when something happens that makes them feel teased or bullied, how to use assertive language to tell the aggressor to back off, to always report physical threats immediately, how to handle emotions, how to avoid listening to rumors, and to know the difference between "snitching" and reporting. The high school handles cases on an individual basis. Our Student Code of Conduct addresses bullying across the district.

At all schools, when a student reports an incident, the principal investigates and talks with students who may be involved or who may be witnesses. The principal may determine if the guidance office can provide interventions to help resolve the situation. Often times, friends may have a disagreement and simply need the assistance of an adult.

In cases where teasing or bullying may be more intensive, the school administrator involves the guardians of the children having the conflict. Often we find a situation that started in the neighborhood carries over to the school. In some severe cases, the principal may suspend the bully or aggressor. All reports are taken seriously and discipline varies according to the age of the child, prior discipline referrals, and the level of teasing or bullying displayed.

The issue of bullying does not lie solely at the schoolhouse door. Through coordinated efforts with our faith community leaders, law enforcement and social service agencies, local clubs and organizations, and our local community leaders, we can provide community outreach programs, conduct parenting classes on anger management and effective communication skills, bring in community speakers and create public service announcements which promote a return to civility.

There are many additional community resources for all of us to use: the Eastern Shore Coalition Against Domestic Violence, the Community Services Board, the Department of Juvenile Justice, and local counselors.

As a school district we will continue to play a vital role in facilitating these activities on behalf of all children on the Eastern Shore.

Teacher Benefits Discussed

By Ron West

The Northampton County School Board this week reviewed the employee benefits package including policies regarding unpaid leave and the insurance program.

Currently, school system employees are in a separate insurance plan from other county employees. The Board of Supervisors has recommended that all county employees, including school employees, be covered under the same plan. By combining the two groups, the cost and benefits for both would need to be adjusted. School Board member Ann Terry strongly suggested that this be looked at closely before making any change that would adversely affect the school staff. She noted that with the low salaries offered, insurance is one of the few fringe benefits offered. The board agreed to survey the current and retired staff members who are on the system for their views and any concerns.

Operations Director Chris Truckner announced that it will be necessary to increase the price of meals by 5 cents to cover cost increases. Finance Director Brook Thomas noted that school systems across the region are finding the need to do the same thing.

The Shared Services Committee reported that it has worked out an agreement with the county to share the fuel distribution system at the bus garage in Eastville. Thomas noted that the county currently has 117 vehicles in addition to those operated by the schools that could be using the system once the agreement is approved.

The School Board agreed to support the application for a grant that would help cover the cost of using Edison Learning Company to assist in improving test scores for Kiptopeke Elementary School.

Proposed Beach Use Raises Concerns in Cape Charles

By Ron West

Efforts to improve recreational opportunities at the beach in Cape Charles drew criticism from one resident who voiced concerns over a new volleyball court.

Stefanie Hadden said she was worried about possible damage to the sand dunes from the volleyball court. She further contended that there is not enough area on the beach for the volleyball. Additionally, Hadden warned it could cause additional traffic and parking issues across the street from nearby Bay Avenue residents. She suggested that the town relocate the volleyball court to another site.

Town Manager Heather Arcos replied that the volleyball league had been using the beach prior to this year and that the dunes would not be affected. Town Planner Tom Bonadeo added that the court and bleachers would be taken down at the end of summer.

Harbormaster Smitty Dize reported that the 48 new floating slips would be operational by the weekend for boats to use. The first tall ship to visit the town harbor, the Kalmar Nyckel, out of Lewes, Del., will visit the first week of June and be open for visitors and tours.

Arcos told Council that the FY 2012 budget had been worked out without having to raise the tax rate, though there would be a $6 rate hike (based on the monthly minimum) on the water/wastewater fee.

Council conducted a public hearing on a request to operate a home-based bakery business at 548 Madison Ave. Bonadeo reported that Miriam Wagner-Elton's bakery would not increase traffic and is not opposed by neighboring homeowners. Council voted unanimously to support the request.

In a related matter, Bonadeo announced that several construction projects are underway, including a renovation of Cape Charles Hotel. Once completed, the hotel is expected to be renamed Hotel Cape Charles and have 16 guest rooms.

Prior to concluding the meeting, town consultant Bob Panek provided an update on the status of the town's new wastewater facility, which is expected to be operational in late 2011. Panek, who recently was selected to serve as chairman of the county's Public Service Authority (PSA), briefly discussed its progress with regards to grants and planning. The northern node — designed to provide wastewater service to the Exmore-Nassawadox area — and the southern node — to service Cheriton and Cape Charles — have seen little progress as they still are awaiting funding.

Shore Native Leads NCOs in Afghanistan

By Spc. Jennifer Spradlin

More than 66 years after then 2nd Lt. Audie Murphy was awarded the Medal of Honor for his actions in Holtzwihr, France, during World War II, his legacy continues to influence the professional development of non-commissioned officers at Army installations across the United States, and now even in Afghanistan.

The Sergeant Audie Murphy Club, first established in 1986, was created to recognize non-commissioned officers who are dedicated to professionalism, integrity, leadership and strong moral values.

Eastern Shore native Sgt. Maj. Ruby Murray, 7th Sustainment Brigade future operations sergeant major, is the new chapter president at Kandahar Airfield in Afghanistan.

Murray first became interested in the SAMC in 1997, after belonging to the Sergeant Morales Club, a similar organization for soldiers in United States Army Europe.

"It's very important for non-commissioned officers to continue setting goals. We don't like to accept failure. Failure is a no-go to us," said Murray, a 21-year Army veteran with previous deployments to Somalia, Kuwait, and Iraq. "[SAMC] is about building leaders. Not tearing them down, but building them up so that they can see the full spectrum of what it is to be a non-commissioned officer."

In 2007, Murray deployed to Kuwait and became the SAMC president of the chapter there. During her tenure, she tripled the SAMC membership.

Residents on the Eastern Shore who felt the earth shake earlier this month, haven't gotten a definitive answer about what occurred on the evening of May 10. But they will tell you it rattled them and their surroundings from the southern tip of Northampton County to Assateague in northern Accomack.

Many say they heard what they thought was something blowing up. I was driving from Painter to Onley at the time and was totally unaware of the phenomenon. My car didn't sway. And I wasn't playing the radio too loud because it hasn't worked since October.

When I got back home a short time later, there were e-mails waiting for me. Postings filled the social network Facebook about the "BOOM."

"A while ago I heard a loud explosion, so did my two neighbors," wrote Natalie Rinker Good of Seaview. "Then our houses shook, I mean really shook. I thought something hit the roof. Did you feel anything up your way???"

Natalie said her immediate feeling was that a nearby propane tank had blown up. But that wasn't it. The chamber was intact.

People in Exmore and Wachapreague felt it. It rattled homes in Hacks Neck, Onley, Gargatha, Locustville and Painter and well everywhere else in the two-county area. A Keller woman said she thought "something was coming to get me."

There was speculation that "it was the gates of hell slamming behind Bin Laden." I doubt there will be much argument with that hypothesis.

It was pointed out that a fault line runs along the Eastern Shore, actually the whole East Coast, a crack in the Earth's crust where tectonic plates butt. When the plates move, earthquakes occur. Don't take my word for it, go to ask.com and look for yourself.

But to bang a hole in the earthquake contention, the U.S. Geological Survey, which monitors such things, says there wasn't one in the area on May 10. At 7:31 p.m. and 51 seconds on that day, an earthquake was measured with a magnitude of 5.2 on the Richter scale on Loyalty Islands in the Pacific Ocean, thousands of miles away.

Of course, my husband has his theory on the subject, and I have my expert opinion.

Lloyd says it was probably an Aurora spy plane that caused a sonic boom. He based this, in part, on the fact that while someone in Onancock felt the vibration at 7:19 p.m., those reporting it in the Hampton Roads area say it was a minute later.

Whew, that was a fast moving vessel! I'd probably go to Virginia Beach more often if I could swing it that quickly.

According to an online encyclopedia,

"The U.S. government has consistently denied such an aircraft was ever built ... evidence supporting the Aurora is circumstantial or pure conjecture." Hmmm.

The rumors about the plane started in the mid-1980s. In 2006, Bill Sweetman, who has written 50 books on military aviation, said, "Years of pursuit have led me to believe that, yes, Aurora is most likely in active development, spurred on by recent advances that have allowed technology to catch up with the ambition that launched the program a generation ago."

I usually don't have a problem believing cover-up stories. We all know that UFOs pass through the Shore all the time and that the government tries to keep us from meeting the travelers. I say the BOOM that caused this ruckus was a family of Martians visiting their cousins in Pungoteague. Mystery solved.

Snoop and Scoop, writer cats from the Eastern Shore Post, say it was that Wachapreague panther pouncing on a mouse.

Was it an earthquake? Was it a meteor? No, it was a Superman!

PASSS Committee Grateful for Support

Dear Editor:

Northampton High School PASSS (Parents Active with Students for Safe Socials) would like to thank everyone who assisted in making our after-prom party a success. All the businesses, churches, artists, craftsmen, and individuals who contributed to our general fund-raising and the Oyster Roast/Auction in February enabled us to raise enough funds to provide our students with a successful 2011 after-prom party that included $6,000 in prizes.

A special thanks to the NHS Art Department and students who did an outstanding job on murals with our theme, "NHS Under the Sea." With the combined efforts of 34 parents, teachers, and volunteers who chaperoned, we provided an exciting, fun-filled, drug- and alcohol-free night of food, games, and prizes for 145 students.

The PASSS Committee consisted of 14 very hard-working parents, who would like to extend an invitation to all Northampton County parents to become involved in this very rewarding endeavor. We also would like to thank the following people who volunteered and do not have a child at NHS: Linda Ashby (food), Sandra Taylor (games), Ron West (Casino), Mr. and Mrs. Bassette, and Kelsey Gaskins.

Mary Floyd, 2011 PASSS President

Deputy Was Right To Shoot Dog

Dear Editor:

I lived on Chincoteague Island from 2003-07. I miss the place so much I read the news and whatever information I can access via the Internet.

I cannot remain silent about the legal problems that Deputy Chuck Graham of Northampton County is experiencing. I have read articles about the incident and I have to ask, "Am I missing something?"

Unless there is some information that I am lacking, is it a crime to protect your livestock and property from vicious intruders? He only used a pellet gun. Where was his shotgun? He should have used that to rid his property of the threat and saved his neighbor, Bill Heath, a vet bill. Was the deputy required by law to allow dogs illegally on his property to kill and destroy his chickens, or to risk his own well-being from unknown dogs without taking actions to insure his protection?

Perhaps there are some details discovered in the trooper's investigation that have not been disclosed to the public. I just know that political correctness is not infiltrating the Shore. I know that the idea that the lives of animals are more important than human life and property interests is not being spread from the city to the Shore. Mr. Heath you should submit to your conscience and call the Trooper to have him drop the charges against Deputy Graham. Mr. Heath, you also should contact the deputy to see how much compensation you owe him from his lost wages as a result of his suspension without pay and immediately send him a check for his losses. But, how will you compensate him for the public embarrassment and injury to his reputation with his employer? The man was only protecting himself and his property, and is being persecuted by the commonwealth's attorney and the State Police. I only can hope that Deputy Graham has had several offers from attorneys to take his case just to have the chance to file suit against all the parties involved in this injustice.

Phil Banks, Hanover, Pa.
