DEQ Authorizes Funds for Citizen Water Monitors

By Linda Cicaira

The Virginia Department of Environmental Quality authorized $88,000 in grants to support citizen volunteer water quality monitoring. The monies could be used to purchase monitoring equipment, perform lab services, and more. The awards will range from less than $1,000 to $11,000. The deadline to apply is Aug. 30.

"In our latest report, over 3,600 stream miles, 41.5 square miles of estuaries, and nearly 30,000 acres of lakes were monitored by volunteer groups," said Jutta Schneider, DEQ's Water Planning Division director. "Their contributions are important and help the agency evaluate water quality on a wider area than ever before."

"Many citizen groups operate on budgets less than $5,000 a year," said James Beckley, a quality assurance officer with the agency. "This grant program helps these volunteer-based groups continue their water quality monitoring mission."

DEQ's Water Quality Program Director Liz Chudoba gave an example. "The Alliance for the Chesapeake Bay has been operating the RiverTrends Volunteer Monitoring Program for over 30 years and is dependent on grant funding to continue. The current DEQ grant helps us support 72 active monitoring sites throughout Virginia."

For more information about the grants or to get an application form, visit www.deq.virginia.gov/Programs/Water/WaterQualityInformationTMDLs/WaterQualityMonitoring/CitizenMonitoring/GrantOpportunities.aspx

Northampton Takes Step Toward Being 'A Different Type of School System for Discipline'

By Stefanie Jackson

The Northampton school board made a unanimous decision June 27 to research restorative discipline and how it may be implemented in the county's public schools, after school board member Nancy Proto and community members made the case that punishment does not change behavior.

"What we're doing is not working ... and also causing harm," said Arthur Carter, a retired obstetrician from Nassawadox.

When administrators suspend students, they essentially "withhold education ... as punishment for childhood behavior, perceived and real," he said.

Carter said restorative discipline, aka restorative justice, can "create a different environment in the schools. Kids look out for each other. It's about relationships, not ... punishment."

"We all agree there is a problem," said Elvin Hess, a Machipongo resident who has assisted with the Northampton schools' robotics program.

Hess said that kids are not being treated fairly when they're disciplined in school. His concern was based on student conversations he had overheard.

The issue is "highly suppressed," Hess said.

The students "were told exactly what we don't want to hear ... 'We'll take care of it, it's none of your business, everything is OK.'"

He referenced a news article stating that in Northampton, "two and half times as many students are suspended compared to the state average."

"I don't know what more we need ... to get our act in motion," he told the school board.

Adverse childhood experiences (ACEs) affect "brain development, which consequently impacts learning as well as behavior," Proto said. That's why punishments often don't work.

"Punishment is most effective for kids that need it the least," kids that come from loving homes and strong relationships, she added.

"We have a professional, ethical, moral responsibility to address this and do something differently."

Proto made a motion that a school/community multi-disciplinary committee be formed to research restorative practices in other school districts and make recommendations for implementation.

School board member Jo Ann Molera seconded the motion and reminded her peers that school discipline is a nationwide problem.

Some children have "so many strikes against them" that "the school system is going to have to be the one shot that they have for success," she said.

"I'm not saying that family members are not pro-kids but I think, unfortunately, the modeling that goes on in the home is less than adequate, which is precisely why we're having ... the issues that we are. ... It's not going to hurt us to look into this and research it and discuss it and model maybe for these kids ... what needs to go on a daily basis in the school setting," Molera said.

School board member Randy Parks noted that Northampton has a lot of first, second, and third year teachers who, due to lack of experience, "don't have a clue" what to do about the behavior issues and don't have a stable work environment with plenty of experienced teachers to advise them.

That stability is just as important to the students, Molera pointed out.

None of the Northampton students recognized last year for their service in school leadership positions planned to become teachers, because they didn't want to deal with the behavior issues, Proto said.

"More and more and more, society has placed the school system and the school teachers and the staff in raising and teaching kids everything they need to know," said school board chairman William Oakley.

"We are not the organization that can solve it all. ... It's going to take the community as a whole," he said.

Northampton schools began teaching social-emotional skills in the lower elementary grades this year, with plans to include higher grades in future years. The school division also plans to hire two social workers.

"We are moving toward becoming a different type of school system for discipline," said Superintendent Eddie Lawrence.

GENERAL ASSEMBLY ADJOURNS WITHOUT TAKING UP GUN PROPOSALS

By Linda Cicaira

None of the 50-plus gun safety bills and related proposals was acted upon when a special session of the General Assembly met Tuesday. After about 90 minutes, a majority of the House of Delegates and Senate abruptly adjourned until November.

Gov. Ralph Northam called for the session after a dozen people were killed at a government building in Virginia Beach May 31.

“I called legislators back to Richmond for this special session so we could take immediate action to address the gun violence emergency that takes more than a thousand Virginians’ lives each year,” Northam said Tuesday. “I expected lawmakers to take this seriously. I expected them to do what their constituents elected them to do—discuss issues and take votes.”

“An average of three Virginians die each day due to gun violence,” the governor continued. “That means hundreds of Virginians may die between today and November 18, the next day the legislature plans to work. It is shameful and disappointing that Republicans in the General Assembly refuse to do their jobs, and take immediate action to save lives. I expected better of them. Virginians expect better of them.”

Former Gov. Terry McAuliffe, who like Northam is a Democrat, climbed on the bandwagon on Twitter. “Republicans showed their cowardice today in the VA General Assembly. Ran away after 90 mins without taking a single vote. Elections matter. Vote them out on November 5th,” McAuliffe said.

Republican leaders said the session was politically motivated. They wanted the Virginia Crime Commission to look at the situation first.

Northampton Supervisors Say 'Yes' to New Wedding Venue

By Stefanie Jackson

Northampton County Board of Supervisors Chairman Spencer Murray threw one of the rules out the window Tuesday night at a public hearing on the event venue that John and Linda Cleaveland proposed for hosting weddings and other special events at their creekside home in Wellington Neck, a residential area of Franktown.

The chairman allowed members of the public all the time they needed to speak about the issue, beyond the usual three minutes per person. It was a decision he may have regretted when the speakers and audience became so loud and disorderly that he sprang from his seat, banged the gavel, and called them back to order.

But the one public comment that perhaps best summed up the opposition was neither loud nor disorderly. It came from Evelyn Witek, who commented on the nature of a typical wedding celebration as she approached the bench to hand Murray documents supporting her position.

"It's a happy occasion, but not if it's next door."

The decision whether or not to grant the Cleavelands a major special-use permit (SUP) to use their agricultural-rural business zoned property as an event venue ultimately lay in the hands of county supervisors.

The Northampton planning commission had recommended denial of the SUP, and Supervisor John Coker agreed with their decision.

He read from section 154.2.082 of Northampton's zoning ordinance, which states the purpose of an agricultural-rural business zone is to allow agricultural and agritourism activities.

Events are allowed that "are usual and customary at Virginia agricultural operations."

"I don't think weddings ... rock concerts, and all that are customary Virginia agricultural operations," Coker said.

He also read from section 2.2.2.1, letters "A" to "F" of Northampton's comprehensive plan, which state land uses in rural, agricultural areas may include "traditional and innovative agricultural uses, and rural uses that complement and support farming."

He stopped before letter "G," which allows "non-agricultural low-impact uses that are complementary to agriculture and open-space preservation."

Supervisor Dave Fauber, who was in favor of granting the SUP, said that statement is "the one that I hang my hat on."

But Coker disagreed that an event venue is a "low impact" use of the land. It would be a high-impact use that would cause "neighborhood destruction," he said.

He believed the event venue would pose a threat to public health, safety, and welfare, and he deemed Wellington Neck Road – on which guests would have to travel to reach the event venue – "treacherous."

The secondary road is 14 feet wide – narrow enough to be considered a single-lane road – and it's "turtle-backed," meaning the road surface is higher than normal in the center.

A 2% downward slope on either side of a road's center line is standard to allow stormwater drainage. Wellington Neck Road slopes about 8% on either side, said traffic engineer Betty Tustin, of Berlin, Md.

The Cree family, who share a driveway with the Cleavelands, had safety concerns about hundreds of vehicles accessing what they called a dirt road that becomes muddy and often impassable when it rains.

Many neighbors were concerned that loud music would be played until as late as 10 p.m., as permitted in Northampton's existing ordinance.

About 50 neighbors had signed a petition stating their opposition to the proposed event venue.

Supervisor Robert Duer asked, "If one of these 57 homes became a short-term rental, what would they need to do? ... How many guests can I have? ... I could have a short-term rental and do anything I want to do. ... I can have a rock band, right, as long as it's not too loud?"

"If your point, Mr. Duer, is that on a short-term rental, you can have a whole lot of people over and raise a lot of hell, you got it," Murray said.

Duer added that short-term rentals are permitted by right, "with no citizen comment whatsoever. That's my point," he said.

He indicated it would be difficult for him to say no to an event venue that would draw more business to the motels, restaurants, and other establishments in the district he represents, which includes the town of Exmore.

"Northampton County has eleven letters and we can't get by the first two," Duer lamented.

Coker pointed out that the comprehensive plan states, "new non-agriculturally based industrial and commercial uses" – like an event venue – "are discouraged in rural areas."

Murray disagreed that the proposed event venue is a commercial use because "a commercial business operates 365 days a year," but any special event hosted on the Cleaveland property will last one day, including the temporary use of portable equipment such as tents, signs, and outdoor toilets.

Neither did he believe that event venues should be permitted only in commercial zones, otherwise, "they'll all be on Route 13 and we won't have any weddings on the Eastern Shore," he said. "If we don't want event venues, then take them out!" he later asserted.

Coker asked if Murray had no consideration for the neighbors. "You know better than that, Mr. Coker," Murray answered.

"No supervisor ever enjoys having to take a position on a crucial vote when the neighbors are at odds," Murray said.

He added that he continually struggles to strike a balance between the rights of property owners and the rights of adjacent property owners.

"If in Northampton County, neighbors alone ... can prevent the legal use of property by an owner, then none of our property rights are safe."

Murray made an amended motion that supervisors approve the SUP with the following 11 conditions:

- Events are permitted between May and October on weekends only.

- No more than 15 events are allowed per year.
- No more than 200 people are allowed per event.
- No amplified music is allowed after 10 p.m.
- No use of the dock on the property is permitted during an event.
- All activities must occur outside the Chesapeake Bay Resource Protection Area (RPA).
- Police must be present before, during, and after the event.
- Noise must be buffered by vegetation or curtains.
- Signs must be used to direct traffic to the event.
- The airstrip on the property is limited to private use.
- The permit will expire upon the sale of the property.

No condition was made regarding the Cleavelands' shared, private driveway that Linda Cleaveland has said is not "dirt" but a sand and clay mixture, specially formulated to create a road that is more stable than one of sand or clay alone.

If a wedding at the Wellington Neck home turned into a "mud bath," Murray said, "the Cleavelands are going to have a bigger problem with the bride and groom ... and, frankly, given the world of social media, I doubt very seriously that they'll ever have another one."

Coker said he could not support Murray's motion, because he believed the SUP should be rejected with no conditions.

Fauber seconded Murray's motion, and it passed in a 3-2 vote. Supervisor Oliver Bennett, who wanted the number of events restricted to 10 per year, voted "no" with Coker.

Linda Cleaveland, who has said, "I love weddings," had not expected her dream of hosting Eastern Shore weddings to come true. She was pleasantly surprised by the decision in her favor. Win or lose, "I put it in God's hands," she said.

Born Feb. 6, 1934, in Birdsnest, he was a son of the late Charles Lee Smith and the late Esther Louisa Buehler Smith.

Mr. Smith spent his formative years in the Philadelphia area, where he met the love of his life, and began on a journey that would eventually take him home to his native Eastern Shore, where he and Marion decided to raise their family. Man Indicted for Threats; 13 Others Indicted

A local tattoo artist was indicted Monday in Northampton Circuit Court on two counts of making written death threats to an Eastville area woman last April.

Robert "Buddah" George, 44, of Rogers Drive in Nassawadox, is accused of writing in a message to Teena Odom's niece, "You may or may not want to warn your aunt. I have been given clearance to euthanize her at will. It would be best for her to disappear. If I see her, I have to do what I've been asked and I am not in a good mood."

Another threat made through the niece stated, "Means when I see her Imma drop her where she stands. That's twice she has run her mouth about me and other people throwing names around." The messages were received April 22 and 23.

George told police said he sent the messages "because he was angry." He said Odom was mad because he wanted to charge for tattoos after doing some for free.

According to the court record, Odom told authorities George was at her house giving tattoos. He "grabbed her by the neck and asked her if she wanted to die. She stated at the time she didn't think anything of it. She said he grabbed her neck pretty hard but she was able to reply 'Go ahead then and do it.' She stated that he then let go of her. ... He did not leave any marks on her neck."

Deputy Chris Feltes, of the Northampton County Sheriff's Office, investigated. George was also charged with misdemeanor assault and battery. A trial date has not been set.

In another case, Juliet Beach Black, also known as Julie Beach and Julie Black, 36, of Randolph Avenue in Cape Charles, was indicted on a total of 10 felony charges that occurred in November 2018. The indictments include two counts of stealing property valued at $500 or more that belonged to Ronald Keith Lewis, burglarizing a building belonging to Lewis, intentionally destroying or damaging property belonging to Lewis, using Lewis' identification to defraud, and four counts involving the use or theft of his credit cards. Investigator Barry Randall, of NCSO, gave information to the grand jury about the case.

In May, Black was indicted on 18 counts of theft, forgery, fraud, and obtaining money by false pretense, in connection with incidents that occurred between July 1 and Dec. 1, 2018, and involved property belonging to Bolton Barron Downing III. Randall also investigated those charges.

Fred Kennedy Kellam Jr., 30, of Ochonock Neck Road in Exmore, was indicted on two counts of endangering the life of a 5-year-old child and a count of a willful act of omission in the care of the child "that was so gross, wanton and culpable as to show a reckless disregard for human life." The incidents occurred in March. Investigator Tara Leckel, of NCSO, investigated.

Alexandria Colburn Settle, 35, of Exmore, was indicted on three counts of willful acts of omission in the care of children who were 9, 12, and 14 years old on April 5. Settle crashed her PT Cruiser on Cemetery Road with the children in the car. She tested at .18 grams per 210 liters of breath. The legal limit is .08. Court records stated that the youngest child "showed signs of a possible concussion." Deputy Jacob Foisey, of NCSO, investigated.

Helen Monique Collins, 31, of Myrtle Street in Exmore, was indicted on a count of forging a check belonging to Arthur Harmon on Jan. 25. She is accused of changing her paycheck from $225 to $825 and of taking financial records when she left the employment of A&E Auto and Truck Repair, in Machipongo. Collins had been in charge of payroll at the business. "She admitted to changing the amount to pay her electric bill," court records stated. Randall investigated.

Charles Alan Lewis, 51, of Pine Meadows in Exmore, was indicted on a count of unauthorized use of a Silver Dodge Durango, valued at $500 or more, belonging to Amy Riggin. The vehicle was allegedly taken April 30 without Riggin's consent and in her absence. Deputy Montego Johnson, of NCSO, investigated.

Jamel Anthony Norwood, 26, of Mandrian Loop of Virginia Beach, Va., was indicted on a count of possession with the intent to distribute between a half-ounce and five pounds of marijuana. The incident occurred March 26. Sgt. Steve Lewis, of NCSO, investigated. According to the court record, Norwood said, "he knows it looks one way, but he smokes a lot. Not trying to sell."

Jose Ortiz, also known as Jose Ortiz-Alvarado, 42, of Trailer Circle in Cheriton, was indicted on a count of possessing between $500 and $600 worth of cocaine April 2. Johnson investigated.

John William Reid, 46, of Cheapside Drive in Cape Charles, was indicted on a third or subsequent offense of petty larceny, which is a felony. The charge involves stealing merchandise valued at less than $500 from Food Lion in Cape Charles. Randall investigated.

Christopher Alan Trace, 25, of Reflections Drive in Virginia Beach, was indicted on a count of possession of a firearm by a violent felon on March 30. According to court records, Trace was stopped in Northampton for going 73 mph in a 55 mph zone. Deputy Sidney Adams, of NCSO, noticed a strong odor of marijuana. The vehicle was searched and a loaded handgun was found underneath Trace's seat.

Christian Ruffin, 34, of Merrick Boulevard in Jamaica, N.Y., was indicted on counts of conspiring to commit credit card fraud and obtaining credit cards belonging to Larry Giddens Jr. and Sharon Lee Blackwell without their consent. The incidents occurred April 18 and 19. Officer Greg Rippon, of Exmore Police Department, gave information to the grand jury about the charges.

Amy Gladden Sturgis, 38, of Locust Lawn Drive in Marionville, was indicted for attempting to obtain property, valued at $500 or more. Her car had been towed to Exmore Auto Body and she had a bill for the service. Records state Sturgis took the vehicle from the lot March 22. Chief Angelo DiMartino, of the Exmore Police Department, gave information to the jury.

Skeylin Joseth Sanchez-Lopez, 22, of Fairview Street in Chesapeake, Va., was indicted on a count of possessing cocaine on March 11. Officer Shelly Beasley, of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel Police Department, investigated.

12 Accused of Felonies

Twelve people were accused of felonies over the Independence Day weekend including a Maryland man whose blood alcohol level was four times the legal limit.

Kiamestric L. Anderson, 38, of May Drive in Salisbury, was charged with felony DUI because he's been convicted of the offense at least two previous times within the last five years, according to records filed in Accomack General District Court.

Anderson was arrested July 5 by Deputy K.A. Reese, of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office, after the officer observed him "driving in the middle of Route 13 and swerving between the median and shoulder." His blood alcohol level was .32 grams per 210 liters of breath. The legal limit is .08.

The file stated that during a hearing, Anderson told an officer "he sold weed and crack." Anderson is being held without bail. A preliminary hearing was set for Sept. 16.

In another case, two people were charged with arson and animal cruelty.

Terrance Baines, 37, of Fisher Circle in Melfa, is accused of arson of a dwelling and animal cruelty of a companion dog that caused death in connection with incidents that occurred July 5. He was arrested July 7.

Dorothy Payton, 31, of Chester Street in Mapps, Va., was charged with making a bomb or burn threat, arson of an occupied dwelling, and cruelty to a companion animal causing death, also on July 5. She was arrested July 6.

Accomack Sheriff Todd Godwin said the fire on Coldkall Road was reported at around 2 a.m., July 5. When deputies arrived they discovered "two camper trailers sustained a significant amount of fire damage and the owner's dog was killed in the fire. Further investigation conducted by the Accomack County Sheriff's Office and the Virginia State Police involving the burning of the trailers led to the arrest of two suspects on multiple charges."

Preliminary hearings were set for Sept. 16.

Doretha King, initially identified as Doretha Nadd, 50, of Fleming Road in Horntown, was accused of the July 7

CAPITAL LETTERS

By Del. Rob Bloxom

This is a special edition of my capitol report covering this week's special session.

The governor called for this session to enact gun control measures within four days of the murders (in Virginia Beach), before the funerals and memorials were even completed and when the investigation was in its earliest stages.

We convened July 9 to accept his gun control bills, along with dozens of other proposed bills from both Democrats and Republicans. The bills were referred to the appropriate committees, as are all bills. At that point, the committees re-referred all the proposed legislation to the Crime Commission. The Crime Commission is a bi-partisan committee consisting of delegates, senators, representatives appointed by the governor, and a representative from the attorney general's office. It is a commission staffed with four full-time, nonpartisan state employees.

This commission staff will take all the proposed legislation and do a complete analysis and comparison to states that have enacted similar legislation. They will also analyze the entire police report when it is finished. The commission will meet later this summer in order to hear the staff's report and will also hold public meetings. This is a very similar approach that Tim Kaine took, when he was the governor, after the Virginia Tech tragedy.

The largest debate we encountered July 9 concerned the actual rules. Republicans felt there was a need to include a discussion on other important issues concerning gun violence, mainly the area of mental health. Democrats wanted to limit the issue to gun control without any consideration of other outside factors.

As I am sure you have read in the news, Gov. Northam has admitted more than once that none of his gun related proposals would have prevented what happened in Virginia Beach. For this reason, it sickens me that politics had more to do with this trip to Richmond than anything else. It is my hope that the Crime Commission brings viable solutions back to us, solutions that will help prevent tragedies such as what happened to our Virginia Beach May 31.

I will keep you updated on future developments concerning this issue.

malicious wounding of Loreka Hollonan with intent to maim disfigure, disable, or kill. Hollonan was stabbed six times. There were wounds to her black, chest, arms, and behind her ear. The victim was taken by Oak Hall rescue to Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital, in Onancock, where she was treated and released.

King, a farm worker from Florida, was arrested July 8. A Sept. 16 preliminary hearing was set. King is being held without bond. Deputy C. Hodgson investigated.

Christopher Shawn Marshall, 44, of Metompkin Road in Parksley, was accused of possessing a Schedule I or II drug on July 4, after arriving at the Chincoteague Firemen's Carnival to pick up a family member. Secured bond was set at $3,000. Officer David Gladding, of the Chincoteague Police Department, investigated. No hearing date was set.

George Louis Valentin, 26, of Houston Street in Exmore; Chelsea Frisby, 22, of Fairview Road in Cape Charles; and Christine Laverne Johnson, 69, of Toms Lane in Eastville; were each charged with stealing more than $500 worth of property from Walmart, in Onley, June 16.

An unsecured bond of $1,000 each was set. Preliminary hearings for Valentin and Frisby were scheduled for July 24.

Johnson's hearing will be Sept. 16. Deputy N. Kugler, of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office, investigated. It was unclear from the record if the three were together when the crimes took place.

Ryan Francis Zoltwoski, 26, of Stoney Hill Lane in Mt. Laurel, N.J., was charged with possession of a Schedule I or II and possession with intent to distribute between a half-ounce and five pounds of marijuana on July 3. Zoltwoski was arrested the same day. A bond hearing was set for July 24 with a preliminary hearing scheduled for Sept. 30. Trooper J.M. Boone investigated.

Kevin Leigh Taylor, 47, of Annis Street in Parksley, was accused of felony eluding on July 9. Cpl. C. Hodgson, of ACSO, wrote in the file that he attempted to pull over Taylor for speeding. He said Taylor then ran a traffic light and did not stop for five miles. A preliminary hearing was set for Sept. 16.

Michael Ryan Miller, 40, of Tasley, and Amber Dawn Putman, 31, of Movilla Drive in Berlin, Pa., were each charged with possession of heroin and cocaine on July 7. Putnam is also wanted in Pennsylvania for meth-related charges, according to the court record. Reese investigated. Preliminary hearings were set for Sept. 30. Miller and Putman are being held without bond.

THE EASTERN SHORE OF VIRGINIA IS RICH IN CIVIL WAR HISTORY

By Linda Cicoira

The Battle of the Monitor and the Merrimack, also called the Battle of Hampton Roads, occurred on March 9, 1862, during the Civil War, and was history's first duel between iron-clad warships.

The battle began a new era of naval warfare. And a report about it was sent to Washington, D.C., from Cherrystone, in Northampton County, 157 years ago.

According to "True Tales of the Eastern Shore," by the late Kirk Mariner, in the early months of the war, communication between leaders, in Washington, and servicemen at Fort Monroe, in Hampton, and the Norfolk Navy Yard, in Portsmouth, was slow "because dispatches had to be sent by boat up the Chesapeake to Annapolis or Baltimore, then overland by telegraph."

"Among some military planners the need for a telegraphic link was a leading motive for the occupation of the Virginia Shore," Mariner wrote.

These are among the facts visitors to Accomack and Northampton counties could learn once the area becomes part of a Civil War trail program. So far, narrative signs are being planned for Onancock and Parksley.

Before the war, the two counties were like many other rural farm communities. There was no U.S. Highway 13 back then. There was no railroad. Bay-side and seaside roads were dirt. Barrels were used to ship potatoes. Slave ownership and free blacks were recorded. Hundreds of people, black and white, "were working the land, chopping the wood, gathering and storing the ice, fishing the waters, cooking the meals, spinning the yarn, and providing the peaceful hum of profitable industry that supported the good life on the Eastern Shore of Virginia in 1850," the late Doris Alder, wrote in her book, "The Neglected Decade: The 1850s on the Eastern Shore."

Within a month after the Union army occupied the two counties, plans for a telegraph line were finalized. Construction began from Wilmington, Del., Jan. 15, 1862, "and proceeded rapidly for the Union's Signal Corps could string wire about as fast as a man ordinarily walks," Mariner wrote.

This rendering is of the two iron-top warships, the Merrimack (left) and the Monitor, that battled during the Civil War.

Workers passed through Accomack, which was then called Drummond-town, on Feb. 4. They reached Eastville a few days later. By Feb. 13, the line was 158 miles long and landed at Cherrystone. Union commanders began sending their dispatches by steamer to Cherrystone instead of to Maryland. "What before had taken overnight could now be transmitted in less than two hours," Mariner reported.

From Cherrystone, "the most daunting part of the task still lay ahead" as the rest of the line was set to pass 20 miles under the Chesapeake Bay from Cherrystone to Back Creek, in Hampton. A light cable was the only thing available and it was feared it would only last a few months. At a cost of $300 per mile, it was shipped from New York and was put in place in three weeks.

The amount is equivalent to about $7,459 per mile today or a total of $149,180.

Meanwhile, the Union abandoned Norfolk and Portsmouth, after setting fire to the Navy Yard to make it useless to the rebels, Mariner wrote. The Confederates were able to salvage the Merrimack, which had burned to the deck. They rebuilt the boat and plated everything above the waterline with iron. It "tore into the wooden ships of the Union fleet anchored near Newport News easily sinking the 'Congress' and the 'Minnesota.'"

"The news reached Washington on March 9. ... (W)as there a single Union vessel which could withstand the iron-clad? What was to keep the 'Merrimack' from sailing up the Potomac and bombarding Washington itself?" Mariner asked.

Then the Union's new warship entered

Coast Guard Warns Against Unlicensed Charters

By Linda Cicoira

Unlicensed boat charters are both illegal and unsafe for consumers, according to the Coast Guard, which is investigating such offerings.

"Hiring an unlicensed charter is dangerous because it may not have the proper emergency safety gear, may not have the proper navigation and communication gear, and may not have undergone the proper license exams and inspections, which are put in place to ensure passenger safety," according to a Coast Guard report.

"Vessel operators who skirt the regulations undercut legitimate licensed operators and put their passengers at risk," said Capt. Scott Anderson. "Paying customers can play a key role in keeping our waters safe by asking to see a license before departing, and they can ask to see the inspection sticker if vessels are carrying more than six passengers."

the Chesapeake Bay. The Monitor was also coated in iron “but smaller and swifter and a much more difficult target.” Soon, the Monitor and the Merrimack were in battle near Newport News. The same day, the telegraph link was completed and carried news that the Merrimack had damaged the southern ironclad.

“From that day until the end of the war, many of the Union’s most important military dispatches were routed through Cherrystone,” wrote Mariner. “Though geography had dictated that the Eastern Shore of Virginia would be out of the direct line of action, its proximity to one of the most important theatres of the war gave it a vital role to play in the conflict.”

Community Agencies Partner on Long-Range Planning for Shore

Submitted Article

Community Partners of the Eastern Shore (CPES) and Eastern Shore Community Services Board's Office of Prevention Services (ESCSB) held their day-long strategic planning event Wednesday, May 15, at the Eastern Shore Community College. This event was called "Healing Systems of Care" and was attended by 55 participants who represented the 35 member agencies of CPES as well as other agencies serving the Eastern Shore.

Mike Ellyson was the keynote speaker. Ellyson is from Danville and is a Certified Peer Recovery Specialist (CPRS) and Trainer. He spoke on how systems of care affected his childhood while growing up in Virginia's foster care system. Mr. Ellyson also spoke about using his life experiences to join the systems of care by becoming a Certified Peer Counselor for Addiction Recovery and then becoming PRS trainer.

Through its 2011 needs assessment and data updates, CPES has identified five priority areas of need on the Eastern Shore: housing, transportation, education, healthcare, and employment. Participants were divided into five priority need discussion groups where they discussed current initiatives addressing their priority need. They used the Hive-mind model for brainstorming and to form action plans for new initiatives. Everyone was enthusiastic about their experience and left inspired to help address community needs on the Shore.

Doctor Addresses Agencies on Opioid Abuse

Submitted Article

The Eastern Shore Community Services Board and the Community Partners of the Eastern Shore held the Second Annual Eastern Shore Medical Opioid Symposium June 3 at the Eastern Shore Community College.

The evening event featured dinner and the keynote address by Stephen Loyd, MD. The purpose of the annual symposium is to raise awareness in the Shore's medical and human services community about the current opioid crisis and how it is affecting our two counties.

Loyd's address, "Addiction is Not a Moral Failure," centered on three content areas: addiction's effects on the brain and what the brain needs to recover; how adverse childhood experiences (ACEs) affect the growing brain and how addiction can evolve from ACEs, and third, the role of the pharmaceutical industry played in creating the current opioid crisis.

Loyd is a premier national expert on the treatment of addiction disorders and currently the medical director at Journey Pure at the River in Murfreesboro, Tenn.

Independently Owned & Operated

THE DO DROP INN TO HOST PAUL PESCO

By Stefanie Jackson

The historic Do Drop Inn restaurant and lounge, one of the oldest continuously owned and operated African American businesses on the Eastern Shore, invites the community to a celebration with musician Paul Pesco on July 13 and July 26-27.

Pesco has worked with well-known music artists including Madonna, Jennifer Lopez, Whitney Houston, Mary J. Blige, Alicia Keys, Hall & Oates, and more.

Also performing at the event are Pesco's friends Geoff Daking, Seth Glassman, and Junior Wilson and Chatty.

Lloyd Giddens opened the Do Drop Inn in Weirwood on July 18, 1967, early in the post-civil rights era, when blacks were still excluded from many venues.

The Do Drop Inn was and continues to be a safe, family-friendly environment for all ages to enjoy good food, music, dancing, and recreation.

In honor of the Do Drop Inn's 50th anniversary, three individuals with close ties to the establishment were interviewed live on the WHRO radio program, "Another View," in September: Jane Cabarrus – Giddens' daughter and the current owner of the Do Drop Inn – Joan Wilson, whose father supplied the jukebox, and regular performer Black Elvis.

The Do Drop Inn was known for showcasing such musical talents as Arthur "Big Boy" Crudup, the Crudup Brothers, Black Elvis, J. Plunky and Oneness, Burleigh Strand & the All Stars, and others.

It has also served as a musical platform for local groups like Melinda & the Benders and groups from nearby localities like Anthony Rosano & the Conqueroos, from Virginia Beach, Va.

The Do Drop Inn will continue its tradition of offering popular music acts when Paul Pesco and friends take the stage this month.

Tickets are $10 at the door and the venue will open at 7 p.m. July 13, 26, and 27.

For more information, call Jane Cabarrus at 757-442-2139 or 804-513-0532.

The Do Drop Inn is located at 8204 Bayford Road in Weirwood.

Saltworks Opera to Present ‘Dialogues of the Carmelites’

Cast members of the Saltworks Opera production of “Dialogues of the Carmelites” rehearse at the Franktown United Methodist Church.

Story and Photos by Stefanie Jackson

Saltworks Opera founder Anna Sterrett has announced the company’s fifth production, “Dialogues of the Carmelites,” based on a true story of the French Revolution in which 16 nuns from the Mount Carmel order were sentenced to the guillotine for refusing to abandon the order.

The events of the story took place 10 days before the fall of French politician Maximilien Robespierre and the end of the Reign of Terror.

The central theme of the opera is fear: “the danger of fear” and “overcoming fear,” Sterrett said.

In 1794 France, organized religion was looked down upon and the taking of religious vows was made illegal.

Yet the Carmelite nuns faced their fear and stood firm in their faith and their religion. They unanimously agreed to become martyrs rather than abandon their order and the Catholic church as they knew it.

The protagonist is aristocrat Blanche de la Force, the daughter of a marquis, who seeks to escape the outside world and find peace in the sisterhood. But she learns that it’s the nuns who protect the order, not the other way around.

The huge cast of 25 is filled by performers from the Eastern Shore and beyond.

The role of Blanche is shared by sopranos Claire Galloway, of Maryland, and Victoria Erickson, of North Carolina.

Soprano Soojin Shim came all the way from Seoul, Korea, to portray young Sister Constance, who befriends Blanche.

Blanche’s father and brother, the Marquis de la Force and Chevalier de la Force, are played by baritone Jared Hiscock, from Nebraska, and tenor Matthew Greenblatt, from New York.

Three locals star in the opera: baritone Richard Williams plays a dual role as Thierry, a footman, and the second commissioner. Mezzo-soprano Jo Ann Molera is Sister Mathilde and contralto Marilyn Kellam is Mother Jeanne.

Filling out the cast are contralto Lisa Hogan as Madame de Croissy, mezzo-soprano Suzanne Oberdorfer as Mother Marie, soprano Heather Sreves as Madame Lidoine and Mother Marie, tenor Christopher Swanson as the chaplain, tenor Brent Hartigan as the first commissioner, and baritone Adam Piper as the jailer – all from Virginia.

The company will perform the Francis Poulenc opera in English. It was written in French and originally performed in Italian.

Anna Sterrett founded Saltworks Opera in 2014.

Its debut performance, “Lucia di Lammermoor,” sold out. The company was incorporated in March 2017 and held its first competition in Cape Charles.

Saltworks Opera’s first performance since its incorporation was “Romeo and Juliet,” which opened in February 2018.

By that time, Sterrett was living in Durham, N.C., but she continued to pursue her passion long-distance.

From concept to finished product, it takes about two years to put a show together, but with a professional cast and crew, the staging, rehearsals, and performances can be done within 10 days to two weeks. Sterrett likes “any excuse to come home to the Shore” and stays with family during that time.

Sterrett said “rural communities can be really underserved when it comes to the arts,” and she’s pleased to be able to give young and old alike the opportunity to interact with classical music.

But she couldn’t do it without “the help of a few good friends” like Richard Williams, Jo Ann Molera, and Joe Betit and ACES, the Arts Council of the Eastern Shore.

Prepare to Laugh a Lot at Monty Python's "SPAMALOT"

By Connie Morrison

When Monty Python's "Spamalot" opens July 18 at the North Street Playhouse in Onancock, expectations are bound to be high. Based on the cult classic movie "Monty Python and the Holy Grail," the production will have to balance between audience members who know every line from the movie and those who have never seen the movie or musical.

That balance is on the mind of cast member Peej Mele, who debuted at North Street Playhouse in "Young Frankenstein" as Igor. "You want everyone to go, 'Oh, I love that line', but at the same time, you want to be very fresh."

"I want this to feel almost like a welcome home" for people who know that material already, he added. "I want to do them proud. For those who don't know the movie, I hope they find it as funny as I did 15 years ago" when he saw "Spamalot" on Broadway. Mele has multiple roles, including Sir Lancelot and the guard who hurls insults over the castle wall at King Arthur and his company of knights.

"To me, 'Spamalot' is like when we tackled 'Young Frankenstein' in 2017," said choreographer and production stage manager Mary Stiegelbauer. "I hope that the audience trusts us to bring in the talent on and offstage to do justice to the material and the specific brand of humor, just like we did for 'Young Frankenstein.'"

Jordan Jones (Fred Graham/Petruccio in "Kiss Me, Kate"), who portrays King Arthur, has never seen the movie or the musical. Without that context, he relies on the director and other cast members to alert him about when and how certain gags must land. "I'm trying to make it my own but also meet it half-way," he said.

The cast was hand-picked by Stiegelbauer from actors who worked on previous North Street summer productions. She presented her dream team list to director Sara Stuart for her approval, then approached the chosen actors. "Everyone said 'Yes!' That never happens," she said.

Other returning professionals include Rori Noguee (Elizabeth Benning in the North Street Playhouse production of “Young Frankenstein”), as the Lady of the Lake; Will Stanley (Dr. Frederick Frankenstein in “Young Frankenstein”), in multiple roles, including Sir Galahad and the Black Knight; Cat Yudain (Lois Lane/Bianca in “Kiss Me, Kate”), in multiple roles including Not Dead Fred and Prince Herbert; and Jimmy Wencel (Gremio/featured dancer in “Kiss Me, Kate”). Tara Britton (“The Remarkable Voyages o’ Molly Reed”), Ashley Aigner Atunes (Mona Kent in “Dames at Sea”), and Hannah Hampton (“The Remarkable Voyages o’ Molly Reed”) return as featured dancers. Stanley, Yudain, Wencel, Britton, Atunes, and Hampton have appeared in multiple North Street Playhouse dance and theater productions.

Emily Jane Price (choreographer for “Dames at Sea”) returns as tap choreographer, and A.J. Jackson debuts at North Street as a featured dancer. Local actors Jim Szablewicz and Cliff Murden round out King Arthur’s traveling troupe. Local actors and interns make up the ensemble cast.

Jones said the kindness and collaboration of everyone involved contribute to an ideal community theater setting. “I like that every person here seems to be the best example of whatever they are doing,” he said. “I love that communal feeling. It’s nice to be in that world for a while.”

It’s the right formula for Noguee. “There is joy surrounding the process,” she said. “To come back to a place that is doing theater just because they love it makes you remember just how much you love it.”

The tournament began on Saturday morning when the boys earned a victory over Tuckahoe with a final score of 10-2. Tyler Greene, Zykeese Davis, and Everett Savage led the team offensively. Greene and Savage each had two hits, giving four RBIs to Greene and two to Savage. Davis was 3-for-4 at the plate and drove in two runs. Dylan Marshall and Armonte Dickerson also batted in one each.

Cade Williams earned the win on the mound, lasting two innings with four strikeouts and allowing one run on one hit.

close out the game. Ross recorded the last five outs to take away the win.

With the boys being placed into the winners bracket, they would face-off against Wise to see if they could pull off another win. Central secured its second victory Saturday afternoon, allowing the team to advance in the tournament.

After two days of waiting to play due to flash flooding, the team was back in action Tuesday morning, ready to play its third game. It was a close one between Central and the opposing team, Coles, with the boys just barely finishing with a win with a score of 1-0.

Williams earned the win on the mound, lasting just over six innings with four strikeouts and allowing zero runs on four hits with one walk.

Central's four hits were tallied by Ross, Greene, Parks, and Savage. Marshall grounded out, scoring the only run of the game.

The boys dominated their next game later Tuesday evening, putting up 20 runs and giving them a guaranteed spot in the championship game.

Jacob Meilhammer, Marshall, Dickerson, and Williams each had a perfect offensive appearance and batted in a combined total of six. Parks and Ross each had three RBIs and Adamos had two. Landon Fuller, Dustin Nelson, Davis, and Greene also drove in runs. The final score was 20-12, and the boys were heading into the championship game undefeated.

It was another close game Wednesday evening as both Central and Wise remained scoreless. That was until the fifth inning when Parks singled, allowing Fuller to score. Wise answered during their next at-bat, and the boys were trailing by one in the top of the sixth inning.

Greene, Marshall, Dickerson, and Parks dominated their at-bats, all hitting singles, allowing four runs to score. This gave Central the late lead, with the final score 5-3, making them the undefeated state champions.

Greene pitched a little over five innings, earning the win, surrendering only one run and retiring four batters.

The senior boys will head to Safety Harbor, Florida, for the Southeast Regional tournament beginning July 20.

SPORTS SHORTS

Onancock Bay Challenge

Presented by the Eastern Shore of Virginia Anglers Club, the 2019 Onancock Bay Challenge will take place this year Saturday, Oct. 12. Now in its 29th year, the popular event emphasizes families and youths angling for the diverse fish species available on the Eastern Shore. Proceeds will go to fund scholarships for Accomac and Northampton County young people to attend environmental education/adventure/discovery camps at the Chincoteague Bay Field Station.

More than $6,500 in cash and merchandise prizes will be presented to registered participants in awards and drawings at the weigh-in, where there will also be musical entertainment and light snacks.

Youths 15 and under are eligible to fish for free in the Onancock Bay Challenge; entry fee for all others is $25. Adult plaques, youth trophies, and gift certificates will be awarded for the largest and second-largest entries in eight categories: spot, bluefish, flounder, gray trout, speckled trout, sand mullet, striped bass (from 20 to 28 inches long), and red drum (18 to 26 inches long).

Other sponsored awards include $600 (each) for best adult-caught fish, best catch by angler's club member, and best catch by a youth.

All participants will be entered into drawings for dozens of valuable fishing-related prizes, leading up to the Grand Prize drawing worth more than $300.

Anglers must register prior to the event, and all people fishing from the same boat must be registered for the event. Fishing is with rod and reel or hand line only, and begins at 6:30 a.m. Anglers have to present their fish to be weighed in at the Onancock Wharf by 5:30 p.m. and are encouraged to release anything that they will not eat or enter in the event. Oct. 13 is the bad-weather day.

New this year are performance fishing shirts featuring Mark Susinno's original artwork of striped bass. These shirts will be available at the weigh-in site. Bay Challenge rules and registration forms are available at Sea Hawk Sports Center, Seaworthy Marine, K&E Marine, and the Onancock Town Office. Fishing from the Shore

By Bill Hall

Anglers split their time over the weekend watching the weather radar apps on the cellphones and catching fish. Fishermen that were able to dodge the several rain cells passing through the area were rewarded with good catches on both the Chesapeake Bay and the Atlantic Ocean.

Lower Shore — Chris Snook, at Chris' Bait and Tackle, reports that the cobia bite was "great" over the weekend, with fish caught from off Cape Charles down to the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. Both bait fishing and sight casting have been productive, but bait fishermen are encountering a lot of sharks and rays. Spadefish are now being caught at both the third and fourth islands of the bridge-tunnel, while flounder are being caught by jigging along the pilings of the high-rise section. Flounder catches are also coming from inside the ditch and out of Oyster. Croaker numbers have improved, especially off 262 and outside the concrete ships. The waters off the concrete ships are also producing small gray trout and sea mullet. Good catches of sea mullet have also been made just off the Sunset Beach Resort. Spanish mackerel have been caught trolling spoons and casting Got'cha Lures, especially just outside the bridge-tunnel and off buoy 36.

Jeb Brady, of Bailey's Bait and Tackle in Cape Charles, described the cobia fishing as "consistent" over the weekend, with anglers reporting keeper-sized fish both bottom fishing and sight casting. Some sight casters reported seeing hundreds of fish in a day's time from their towers. Nice-sized spadefish were caught around the Plantation Light and the fourth island. The Spanish mackerel bite has been decent with some larger fish mixed in the catch. Sea mullet (whiting) has been the primary catch from the Cape Charles Fishing Pier.

Wachapreague — Captain Lindsay Paul, at Trident Tackle, reported that the flounder fishing was "still pretty good" inshore and on the wrecks. Spadefish were also being caught off #10 and over the wrecks. Spanish mackerel have been landed outside the inlet. Further offshore, Lindsay said the Heat Wave and the Teaser brought in nice catches of bluelined tilefish, some of which qualified for Virginia Saltwater Fishing Tournament citations. Out in the canyons, trollers found a few yellowfin tuna, mahi, and blue and white marlin. The shop is gearing up for the upcoming billfish release tournament, hosted by the Eastern Shore Marlin Club (ESMC). For tournament registration information, call 757-710-0128 or write to the ESMC, P.O. Box 138, Wachapreague, VA 23480.

Chincoteague — Donna Rae Roese, at Captain Bob's Marina, reported that the flounder fishing has really turned on early in the week, with keeper-sized fish coming in the area between Daisey's Dockside and Captain Bob's. Legal fish have also come from the town pier and even in the surf. Live minnows, 4- and 5-inch Berkley Gulp Swimming Mullet (pink and white), smelt, and flavored squid strips have all put fish into the cooler, with the better catches occurring on an ebb tide. A wide variety of small fish are being caught in the surf, including kingfish (whiting), croaker, spot, and a few pompano, plus a variety of sharks, skates, and rays. The waters around the inlet are producing Spanish mackerel, kingfish (whiting), and sharks. The railcars on Blackfish Banks are holding flounder, triggerfish, and black sea bass. Larger sea bass are coming from the Parking Lot wreck. Offshore of the Parking Lot out to the canyon, blue water anglers are encountering dolphin (mahi) and yellowfin tuna.

Upper Shore — Allan Ring, at the Seahawk Sports Center, reported the flounder fishing continues to be productive, especially near the inlets. He recommended minnows, silversides, Berkley Gulp, Ottertails, and Fish Bites for baits. Ring said that Spanish mackerel fishing in the Chesapeake Bay has been steadily improving, with bluefish also showing up in the catches for anglers fishing Clark Spoons behind small planers and inline sinkers. Allan reported that cobia fishing had slowed from what it was, but fish are still being caught. Rockfish are being caught in the lower Maryland portion of the Chesapeake Bay. Casting crankbaits and suspending twitch baits over structure has been productive in the deeper water, while paddle tails and top-water baits have been producing inside the creeks, especially at dawn and dusk. Perch fishing has been good in deep pockets inside the creeks and along the marsh edges for anglers using bloodworms for bait.

Bill Hall was the first Eastern Shore resident to achieve Virginia Salt Water Master Angler Status. He has been named Virginia Saltwater Angler of the Year and Virginia Saltwater Release Angler of the Year. Bill is an I.G.F.A. International Committee Representative and a longtime member of the Virginia Saltwater Fishing Tournament Committee. He is the Virginia Recreation Fishing representative on the ASMFC Striped Bass Management Panel and is a past recipient of the CCAVA Virginia Outdoor Writer Conservation Leadership Award.

CAPE CHARLES JULY 4 PARADE

A patriot decked out in red, white, and blue displays the Stars and Stripes from the bed of a pickup truck.

The Cheriton Volunteer Fire Company shows off its hook and ladder truck.

The Lucas family, who owns a vacation home in Bay Creek, celebrate the July Fourth holiday alongside dozens of other families on Mason Avenue.

A golf cart being driven around town with a large inflatable beach toy on the roof is not necessarily an uncommon sight during the summer in Cape Charles.

Four-legged friends strut their stuff in the parade, too.

Story by Alexander Hightower

Veterans' News

Bill eliminating VA loan cap signed into law: In 2019, the VA Home Loan cap was raised from $454,000 to $484,350, allowing veterans to purchase more without any money down. On June 26, President Trump signed into law the elimination of VA Loan Cap for Veterans. The move comes after a decades-long fight for veterans to receive health care benefits for diseases related to Agent Orange exposure, according to www.military.com, which said the bill would "fast-track disability compensation" for as many as 90,000 affected former service members. National Association of Realtors President John Smaby said, "This vital tool encourages private lenders to offer favorable home loan terms to qualified veterans and provides a much-needed resource to those who have sacrificed so much for this country. It's important to remember veterans must still qualify for the amount of home they wish to buy. Moreover, this new law will take time to manifest throughout the financial system."

Veterans Experience Action Center brings all VA services to one location for Veterans in North Carolina: The Cary North Carolina Veterans Experience Action Center (VEAC), led by the Winston-Salem VBA Regional Office and hosted by Cary American Legion Post 67 along with staff, veteran service organizations, community service providers and other government partners will be providing services, resources, and information directly to veterans and military families in their community on Sept. 13 to 15. This event will be held at the Herb Young Community Center, 101 Wilkinson Ave., Cary, NC 27513. There will be plenty of parking in the parking deck and some just outside the main door for handicap parking. Wheelchairs will be available if needed. Scheduled to come are 30 VA administrators and 15 Veterans Service Officers (VSO) on staff to assist veterans with existing or new claims with the VA. Each veteran will be issued a number for the day, so when that number is called, you will proceed to a VA or VSO representative. Contact your fellow veterans and let them know of this event. Post 67 does not guarantee any claims will be resolved as that is up to the VA administrators, but in the past, we had great responses from veterans departing the event. Bring all necessary health records, your DD-214, and other records that may be of use in submitting a claim or upgrading an existing claim. Start times is 9 a.m. until a cut off has been established for the day. Those that have numbers assigned will receive priority the next day. For further details, contact Post 67 at 919-481-4811 or 919-270-2136. Remember this a first come, first served event.

Before the premiere, architectural historian Carl Lounsbury will provide insights about Virginia's history of dealing with prisoners and he will answer audience questions afterward.

When it was determined the 1914 Northampton County jail could not be saved, the society looked for ways to retain its history. The film covers a history of Northampton jails and punishment, a booming economy that influenced early 20th century changes in Northampton and the construction of the 1914 jail, and how the 1914 jail functioned for close to a century. There is no charge to attend this event. For more information, go to www.northamptonhistoricpreservationsociety.com

By Linda Cicaira

Things happen that are totally unexpected and they always seem to happen to me.

The friendly dog I photographed and then met just before the Independence Day parade in Accomac last week decided to lick the lens of my camera.

I quickly wiped it off with the bottom of my shirt and examined the smear. I rubbed some more and became a little anxious at the thought that the pictures I would make would look as though they were taken from inside a house during the monsoon season. The man with Hunter said the dog's ploy was to make sure his picture was the best I would get that day.

I pondered that because it was human nature to want to be number one, and all the dogs I know consider themselves to be in our species.

In the end, all was well. I got the pics and was too caught up in the heat to think about Hunter's reasoning. I went about my quest, which was to get back to air conditioning as soon as I possibly could. I am not a lover of heat waves. It was nearly 100 degrees. That is no exaggeration. The thermometer in my car marked 98 degrees.

I got the vehicle cooled down and drank a bottle of water. I hadn't given a thought to the little bit of dog slobber that was on me. Of course, hours and hours later, when I got home, another pup accused me of being unfaithful. Dogs know things. They really are very smart.

The website www.livescience.com says dogs are as smart as two-year-old humans. When you think about the learning potential there, that's pretty clever. The website bases its theory on language skills. They say the average dog can learn 165 words including signals and gestures. The top dogs, 20 percent, can learn as many as 250 words.

The pup

at my house knows at least 10 names of people, out, in, no, good, bad, up, down, tree, get, go, paw, shake, stop, treat, cookie, biscuit, potato chip, cat, Little Bit (the cat's name), water, good stuff (which is what comes in a doggie bag), medicine spray, bath, truck, garbage, his name (Bandit), dog, ice cube, sock, socks, ball, toy, toys, nite-nite, and wet paper towels, which means he is going to get his face washed. He loves that.

That's only 45 words so I'm guessing he knows a lot more of what I'm saying than I realize — 120 words more at the least.

According to www.quora.com, the average IQ of a two-year-old child is 100. "A normal 2-year old's brain is designed to suck up as much information as it can so it can get a handle on things like food, shelter, love, safety, etc.," the website stated. "It's constantly processing input from its surroundings. I would hasten a guess and say that your IQ may be higher as a 2-year old than as a fully developed adult."

That is very interesting. It means dogs are smarter than most people.

"Pigs are actually considered the fifth-most intelligent animal in the world—even more intelligent than dogs—and are capable of playing video games with more focus and success than chimps," says www.mercyforanimals.org

Web sources say pigs are as smart as a 3-year-old human. After humans, the website listed intelligent beings in order as chimps, pigs, dolphins, parrots, whales, dogs, octopus, elephants, squirrels, cats, owls, rats, falcons, rhesus monkeys, horses, raccoons, sheep, crows, pigeons, orangutans, sea lions, baboons, ants, spiders, and squid.

The website Mother Nature Network (www.mnn.com) had a different list but some of the same animals were included. It said some of the cleverest creatures include ravens, dolphins, rats, pigs, bonobos (cousins to the chimpanzees), ducks, elephants, cows, bees, and squirrels.

And that proves there is a reason to talk to everyone. And don't squish spiders. Put them outside if one is found in your house. Yippee!

Thanks to Atlantic Fire Co. for Hospitality

Dear Editor:

Tampa Miller, Phyllis Thomas, and I spent June 11 at the Atlantic Volunteer Fire Co. station, one of the many locations used for voting in Accomack County. We wish to thank the volunteer men and women of this fire company for the way they make our election officials' job easier.

Arriving at 5 a.m. on the day of any election or primary, we find tables and chairs already set up for us and paper products replenished in the bathrooms. We are invited to use their coffee and tea supplies, as well as the bottled water in the refrigerator. And of course we can leave our lunches in that same refrigerator.

In short, these fire men and women make our 15-hour day a much more pleasant one. Sometimes we even hear the alarm go off and then watch as the volunteers hustle in, don their fire gear, and race out to face whatever awaits them.

It is a privilege to serve as election officials, especially with the courtesies extended to us by members of the Atlantic Volunteer Fire Company fire house.
