Community gathers to memorialize Eastern Shore residents who died of COVID-19

By Carol Vaughn

Family and friends of Eastern Shore residents who died of COVID-19 gathered Saturday at a community memorial service at Exmore Town Park.

Names of those who died were read aloud during the service, which included prayers, scripture readings, and a song performed by Elizabeth Wolfe, of St. James Episcopal Church.

Signs with each person's name were scattered around the lawn, with family and friends sitting near the sign bearing their loved one's name.

Family members had an opportunity to speak about their loved ones during the service.

Among those who spoke was Robin Lynne Heath, who read a letter she wrote expressing her love for her mother, Ida Ellen Culver Costin, 82, of Capeville, a resident of Heritage Hall nursing home who died May 11.

Minister Karen Downing read a letter from Gov. Ralph Northam to attendees, who received copies of the letter.

Onley Mayor Takes to Court His Beef With Town Council Over Censure

By Carol Vaughn

Onley's mayor and attorneys representing the town appeared in Accomack General District Court Tuesday, where a judge presiding via videoconference heard testimony and arguments about an injunction Mayor Matthew Hart filed against the town council after it voted to censure him in June.

In a statement attached to Hart's petition, he alleged town officials did not follow proper procedure under the state Freedom of Information Act in calling a special executive session May 19, where the censure apparently was discussed.

Hart asked the court to enjoin the town council from engaging in similar behavior in the future and to order that the resolution of censure be set aside, as well as for the town to pay court costs and fees for attorneys.

Judge Sam Daniel Eggleston, of the Amherst General District Court, heard the case via videoconference after Judge Gordon Vincent, who lives in Onley, recused himself.

Eggleston had not issued a ruling in the case by the press deadline.

Hart's attorney, David Rowan, said Hart declined to attend the May 19 meeting after he and council members were informed about it via a May 14 email from the town manager.

Hart believed the meeting was in violation of the FOIA, "so he declined to attend" and had his attorney send an email to the town council before the meeting saying that, Rowan said.

The stated reason for the executive session was to discuss personnel matters and included mention of parliamentary procedure, decorum, and professionalism — language which Rowan said does not fit into any of the categories the FOIA allows for a closed meeting.

"This motion starts off okay, then it goes off the rails," he said, alleging the motion "doesn't tell the public anything about what's going on in this case."

The council at the next regular meeting June 1 passed a resolution censuring Hart, with four members approving it and two abstaining.

"The only way this resolution could have been created" was through what went on in the closed session, according to Rowan.

"What we do know is no one has any idea what went on in that closed session," he said, adding, "... So the public has been left completely in the dark about a subject that should have been in open session."

Rowan also argued the statements in the resolution "are all conclusory statements without evidentiary support."

The resolution says Hart created a hostile work environment for employees and contractors, used profanity and abusive language, and repeatedly failed to follow parliamentary procedure, among other allegations.

Rowan said the resolution has been "personally embarrassing" to Hart.

"It has injured his standing as the mayor ... and it has injured his constituents who voted for him," Rowan said.

Attorney Lynwood Lewis, representing the town, said the closed session was appropriate and argued Hart's petition is not specific enough as to the shortcomings of the procedure used to call for the session.

"There had been some increasingly erratic ... behavior" by Hart prior to the meeting being called for at the request of four council members, Lewis said, citing a section of state law that allows for governing bodies to discipline members.

The FOIA allows closed sessions to discuss personnel matters including demotion, performance, or discipline, Lewis said.

Additionally, Lewis said no Virginia case law substantiates voiding the censure resolution vote taken in the June 1 meeting.

Hart and Town Manager Jayme Salazar testified at the hearing.

Hart said Salazar did not consult with him before sending the email notifying officials about the May 19 special meeting and that he "felt at the time that this wasn't important enough" to hold an in-person meeting during a time when the COVID-19 pandemic was at its height.

Salazar testified that she has worked for the town 11 years and is the town's FOIA officer.

She said she drafted the motion to go into closed session.

“Pam and I continue to keep all residents of the Eastern Shore in prayer and in thought as our community goes through this period of grief,” Northam wrote.

“...You are not alone in your grief and I know that we will get through this together. Our community is strong, caring, and hopeful. We know the importance of extending one’s hand to those in need of help and the significance of lifting each other up,” the letter went on to say.

A diverse coalition of clergy from several area churches participated in the service, which also was translated into Spanish.

As of Monday, 1,740 Virginians have died of COVID-19.

On the Eastern Shore, 14 Accomack County residents and 28 Northampton

County residents have died.

“As of today...42 souls have been snatched from their families, friends, and neighbors,” said the Rev. Rick Willis during the service.

“One of the main reasons we are gathering here is these beloved folks are so much more than numbers,” he said.

Willis also recognized and thanked essential workers for their work during the pandemic.

There have been 1,039 cases and 71 hospitalizations reported in Accomack County and 269 cases and 39 hospitalizations reported in Northampton due to the pandemic.

Of the total, 849 cases, and 103 among healthcare workers, are associated with 10 outbreaks on the Eastern Shore.

Each family at the service received an azalea plant donated by David’s Nursery to plant in memory of their loved one.

The opening welcome was given by the Rev. Willie Justis. Scriptures were read by Pastor Jo-Ann McCrary and Bishop David Sabatino. Translation and the reading of the names of the deceased was by Marisa Sanchez.

Sarah Morgan designed the logo for the service — a map of the Eastern Shore flanked by two white lilies.

Members of the planning committee were: Betty Mariner, Karen Downing, Maegan Smith, Marisa Sanchez, Pedro Agostini, and Rick Willis.

Onancock Approves Fees, Market Street Change, and Business Grants

By Carol Vaughn

The Onancock Town Council after holding a public hearing approved a $25 zoning permit fee starting July 1 to help the town recuperate costs associated with the permits.

The council held a public hearing about a proposal to increase from $125 to $250 the fee applicants pay for special use permit applications. The proposal included that the applicant also must pay for required legal advertisement.

Interim Town Manager Lisa Fiege said Accomack County charges $400 for its special use permit applications and said advertisements cost between $100 and $250, depending on the size.

The council did not vote on the proposal.

The council also did not vote on a proposal to impose a $5 assessment for each criminal or traffic court case to help pay for an electronic summons system for the police department, after a hearing was held.

The system likely will be mandated by the state in the future, Fiege said.

No one from from the public spoke at the hearings.

The council adopted a town budget for fiscal year 2021.

The budget includes no cost-of-living adjustment for staff and an almost 5% health insurance premium increase, according to Fiege.

Several revenue items in the budget were decreased due to the COVID-19 pandemic, Fiege said.

Those include local sales tax, business license fees, meals tax, traffic fines, transient occupancy tax, and wharf-related fees and sales.

The budget also includes a 5% increase in water and sewer fees. Additionally, the trash collection fee will increase from $4 to $8 a month.

Close to $200,000 had to be cut from the budget due to effects of the pandemic, according to Fiege.

The council also voted to adopt an effective tax rate increase — while the rate remains the same, at 32 cents per $100 of assessed value, the vote was needed because of increased assessed property values in Accomack County's recent assessment.

The council, at the Accomack-Norhampton Planning District Commission's request, also adopted a resolution of support for the Market Street road diet (lane reduction) project, which if funded by the highway department, would result in reconfiguring traffic lanes on Market Street coming from Route 13 into town, going from the current four lanes to two travel lanes and a center turn lane, along with bicycles lanes on each side of the street.

"I have been approached by quite a few people in the community that are very much in favor of the road diet," said Councilwoman Catherine Krause.

Application for VDOT's Smart Scale program are due in August.

The meeting was held at Onancock Volunteer Fire Department's fire station to allow for physical distancing.

In an update, OVFD deputy chief Jeremie Buyea said the fire department has made 112 fire engine runs and answered more than 500 ambulance calls so far this year.

"Thankfully, it seems that our COVID cases have been on the decline lately," he said, but added that due to the pandemic the fire department's expenses "are quite high."

Buyea noted the fire department had to cancel fundraising events because of the pandemic.

The department is proposing a block-party-style clam and oyster roast in October to raise funds, with 500 tickets to be sold.

The council approved using $106,333 of CARES Act money allocated from Accomack County's share of the federal funds in the following ways:

- $40,000 for town expenses related to COVID-19
- $66,333 to offer two grants.

One would be up to $5,000 each for businesses in town that were closed due to executive orders. The amount would depend on the number of applicants.

A second grant program would give businesses that were deemed essential and not closed but that lost revenue due to the pandemic money to help cover their losses. Businesses have to show at least 20% loss of revenue from April to June 2020 over the same period in 2019. The grant would pay up to one-third the amount businesses that had to close get, or up to the amount of revenue lost.

The council approved creating a committee to review and approve the grants. Chaired by Bob Bloxom, additional members are Richard Freeman and Haydon Rochester.

All businesses in town limits with a 2020 business license are eligible to apply.

The council appointed Shyreka Riley to fill the council seat vacated by Matthew Spuck when he accepted the job of town manager.

Riley will serve the remaining two years of the term.

State To Provide Rent and Mortgage Relief with CARES Act Funding

Gov. Northam also asked circuit court judges to extend moratorium on evictions

By Carol Vaughn

Virginia will use $50 million in federal CARES Act money to help residents with rent and mortgage payments.

The new Virginia Rent and Mortgage Relief Program was set to begin Monday, June 29, Gov. Ralph Northam said in a June 25 press briefing.

He said the program will have “an equity lens” to ensure fairness for communities of color.

A statewide moratorium on evictions was declared in March because of the COVID-19 pandemic. The moratorium ended June 29.

Northam asked circuit court judges in Virginia to extend the moratorium as is appropriate in their localities and said the administration is confident the new program will help.

“Virginians are facing a number of difficulties, but having a safe and stable place to call home shouldn’t be one of them,” Northam said.

Eligible households must demonstrate an inability to make rent or mortgage payments due to the COVID-19 pandemic. Monthly rent or mortgage must be at or below 150% Fair Market Rent, and eligible households must have a gross household income at or below 80% of area median income, according to a press release.

To identify the local organization administering the program and to conduct a self-assessment for eligibility, visit www.dhcd.virginia.gov/eligibility or call 211 VIRGINIA by dialing 2-1-1.

Visit www.StayHomeVirginia.com for additional information and resources.

Additionally, Northam said federal funds will be used for one-time payments to help people pay their energy bills.

The Virginia Department of Social Services will open the one-time energy assistance program in mid-July and will give details soon, he said.

Northam also announced an additional 90-day extension for certain DMV transactions, including license and registration renewals, noting DMV offices are open only by appointment.

Chief of Staff Clark Mercer commented on the state’s school reopening guidelines, saying the final decision for what reopening will look like in each school district lies with the local school board.

Mercer said the administration has received numerous questions about school reopening guidelines the state released a few weeks ago.

The guidance is “intended to inform the discussions happening at the local level, but it does not mandate any one particular approach — guidance is not law,” he said.

The guidance document recommended three phases of reopening — the third phase is starting July 1 for both businesses and schools.

Phase Three recommends all students be served in person, with consideration for mitigation strategies, such as physical distancing, that may trigger altered schedules.

“All of this ... is predicated on doing so responsibly and making sure that that graph we see with the infection rate stays steady or declines. We do not want to see Virginia in the position of several other states that are seeing sharp increases. That’s the worst thing that can happen,” Mercer said.

He noted people ages 18-29 are now the group with the fastest increasing rate of positive COVID-19 cases.

“We have plenty of teachers and faculty and staff ... who are in that age set where they would be very susceptible to COVID,” Mercer said, adding,

“As anyone that has children knows, once something starts spreading in a school, you will get it at home — and we expose our family members, our grandparents, our aunts and uncles, and folks throughout the community.”

“It’s important to note that Phase Three is not the end state for our schools,” he said.

Future guidance beyond Phase Three is being discussed now with education and public health experts, but will include “a path to getting every student in school every day and increasing opportunities for athletics and activities, while remaining vigilant about the health of our students and staff,” Mercer said.

Northam said a General Assembly special session later this summer, in addition to addressing budgetary changes related to the pandemic, needs to include discussions about racial injustice and police reform.

“I have had conversations with lawmakers about potential legislation and I will continue to meet with them and others as we shape this reform agenda,” Northam said, adding, “I am committed to continuing this work and making meaningful change.”

Northam said Thursday’s briefing would be his last regularly scheduled briefing related to COVID-19, but he will continue to hold briefings as needed.

The governor and others in the administration have held 47 pandemic-related press briefings since March 4, he said, thanking the press for covering them.

“A free press is essential to a functioning democracy,” he said.

Bar Seating in Restaurants Prohibited Under Phase Three Reopening

Staff Report

Gov. Ralph Northam announced June 30 that bar seating will remain prohibited in restaurants as the commonwealth moves July 1 into Phase Three of reopening the state after the initial coronavirus restrictions.

In a press release, Northam said key health indicators in Virginia are improving, but made clear that he is taking a cautious approach and is prepared to implement tighter restrictions if needed.

The restriction comes on the wake of large coronavirus outbreaks traced to bars in other states.

To reduce the likelihood of patrons gathering in bar areas without observing social distancing guidelines, bar seating and congregating areas of restaurants will remain closed except for passing through to other areas of the establishments. Restaurants may use non-bar seating in the bar area, as long as a minimum of six feet between tables is provided.

The order also allows re-establishment of self-serve food in restaurants, such as at a buffet, but restaurants must provide hand sanitizer at food lines and require the use of barriers (e.g., gloves or deli paper) when employees or patrons touch common utensils. Food lines must be monitored by trained staff at all times of operation, and serving utensils must be changed hourly.

Restaurant employees must continue to wear face coverings.

“I am watching what is happening in other states — we are taking a cautious approach as we enter Phase Three and maintaining the current restrictions on bar areas,” said Northam in a press release. “In Virginia, our hospitalization rates have fallen, our percentage of positive tests continues to trend downward, and we are conducting more than 10,000 tests each day. We want these trends to continue, but if our public health metrics begin moving in the wrong direction, I will not hesitate to take action to protect the health and safety of our communities.”

Virginia is averaging more than 10,400 tests per day and hospitals continue to report ample supplies of personal protective equipment, according to the release.

The percentage of positive tests has dropped to 6% from a high of 20% in mid-April. The number of Virginians hospitalized with a positive or pending COVID-19 test has declined significantly over the past several weeks, and more than 1,200 contact tracers are currently working throughout the commonwealth.

Despite these positive trends, Northam is monitoring increases in several states and taking proactive steps to limit the spread of COVID-19 in Virginia. Northam also continues to remind Virginians that they are safer at home, especially if they are high risk or vulnerable. All Virginians must continue to comply with the statewide face covering requirement in indoor public spaces, and Virginians are strongly encouraged to:

- Continue teleworking if possible.
- Wash hands regularly.
- Maintain 6 feet of distance when outside of home.
- Get tested immediately if you have COVID-19 symptoms.

Executive Order 67 and Order of Public Health Emergency Seven are available at <https://www.governor.virginia.gov/executive-actions/>. The document provides sector-by-sector guidance for Phase Three reopening.

Northampton School Board Won't Respond to Former Member's Charges

Board declines to issue response to allegations by former board member Nancy Proto that it acted improperly in its evaluation of Superintendent Eddie Lawrence

By Stefanie Jackson

The Northampton school board declined to respond to recent accusations that it had acted improperly for fear of engaging in an unending “war of words,” as Superintendent Eddie Lawrence called it.

It was the rush to renew the superintendent's contract without strict adherence to state law that led former school board member Nancy Proto to criticize the school board's actions in an opinion published in the Eastern Shore Post June 26.

On May 28, at 10:30 p.m. or “the 11th hour,” according to Proto, the school board “slid by the public eye” its vote to issue Lawrence a new two-year contract. The late-night action did not conform to Virginia Code 22.1-60 because school board members had not received 30 days of notice that a vote on the superintendent's contract had been scheduled.

The school board took corrective action June 11 when it voted unanimously to waive the 30-day notice and voted 5-1 for Lawrence to continue as superintendent for two more years, with school board member Charlena Jones opposed.

But the school board did not take corrective action on its apparent violation of another state law, Virginia Code 2.2-3712, on closed meeting procedures.

Before the May 28 vote on the superintendent's contract, the school board conducted a closed session to discuss his annual performance evaluation.

All school personnel matters are private, and a closed session to discuss a performance evaluation was appropriate, but the closed session agenda should have disclosed the topic of discussion and it did not.

The May 28 closed session agenda made a general reference to “discussion of consideration of employment, assignment, appointment, promotion, performance, demotion, salaries, disciplining, or resignation” of employees. It did not specify the superintendent's performance and contract would be discussed.

Virginia Code 2.2-3712 states that “a general reference to ... the subject matter of the closed meeting shall not be sufficient to satisfy the requirements for holding a closed meeting.”

Since May 28, the Northampton school board has held three meetings during which closed sessions were conducted; all three meeting agendas lacked specificity on the topics to be discussed in the closed sessions.

The public was not made aware that the superintendent's evaluation and contract would be discussed, meaning the public had “no opportunity for public input” before the vote, Proto said.

Her comments were not heard until the June 25 meeting, which included further criticism of school board members for not evaluating the superintendent based on the goals they approved.

For example, improving writing test scores was a goal for this school year, but when benchmark tests were administered in the fall, Northampton students underperformed.

About 87% of Kiptopeke Elementary School students, 77% of Northampton Middle School students, and 66% of Northampton High School students were on the bottom two performance levels for writing, Proto wrote.

“What about reading? What about math? Did anyone ask? Who's watching the store!?” she asked.

“This evaluation is a joke,” Proto continued. “It appears to be a copy and paste from last year” and a “token action by the Board under the pretense of exercising due diligence to justify the action of renewing the superintendent's contract when, in fact, it had already been predetermined.”

“This Board failed in its responsibility to the public to conduct a comprehensive, professional evaluation of the instructional leader of this district,” Proto said.

Cathy Buyrn, of Cheriton, wrote, “The method for accepting and reading public comments into the record is not working. My first opportunity to make a public comment about the meeting is today; almost a full month after the meeting. This lag in public access and participation is unacceptable.”

She also criticized school board member comments on the continuation of public education during the coronavirus pandemic.

“I was sickened by the discussion of the May 28th school board meeting where Ms. (Jo Ann) Molera suggested sending the police or social services to the homes of students who had not completed packets during the spring.

“That seems beyond tone deaf given the current state of tensions in the country and Mr. (William) Oakley’s suggestion that there was a need to ‘hunt them down’ was astounding,” Buyrn wrote.

Northampton’s school board and superintendent defended the school district during a June 30 work session.

Lawrence called Proto’s mention of falling test scores “unfortunate.”

Reading test scores began dropping statewide around 2008, which Virginia Superintendent of Public Instruction James Lane attributed to the elimination of school support staff during the Great Recession, Lawrence said.

Northampton schools’ math scores have shown some improvement, “but we can’t get excited when they tick up some, and we shouldn’t get so upset when they tick down some, because they’re going to do that as this testing program the state has adopted changes,” he said.

Chair Maxine Rasmussen said, “It isn’t just about test scores, and we need to see our students as more ...”

The school board ultimately decided not to respond to recent accusations in writing. They opted instead to stay “positive” and write a summary of the top achievements of Northampton schools and students from the last year.

The decision was not reached without contention.

Rasmussen asserted that school and student achievements happen because of leadership “at the top” by the school board and superintendent.

“That’s not true,” Jones said.

School board member Randy Parks said Lawrence recommended several actions the school board has taken.

“No, he didn’t,” Jones said.

“Yes, he did,” Parks shot back. “The behavior therapist? How do you think he convinced the rest of us about a social worker?”

Rasmussen seemed to agree that Lawrence influenced tough decisions to hire additional staff. “For every person that we add ... it means that the rest of the teachers don’t get raises ... it means somebody else is going without,” she said.

The school board also explained its seemingly rushed decision to renew Lawrence’s contract.

Vice Chair William Oakley said if the school board intended to quietly renew the contract, unnoticed by the public, “I think we would have done it sometime in February or March. We wouldn’t have waited for the last minute before the bell rang, fight’s over.”

Since January or February, Lawrence’s contract was brought to the attention of the school board three or four times, but a vote was delayed due to circumstances of the coronavirus pandemic, Rasmussen said.

The final vote was taken June 11, a little more than two weeks before the contract was set to expire June 30.

School board member Randy Parks added, “They expect us to change leadership in the middle of a pandemic? Come on, it doesn’t make any sense.”

He also noted that the superintendent’s power is limited. “We have to remember, as part of our government, is he does nothing, basically, unless we approve,” Parks said.

And once a vote is taken and an action is approved “it’s ours as a board,” Oakley added.

Virginia Department of Education guidelines state that once a school board passes a motion, each member should publicly support the decision whether he or she voted for or against it, Oakley said.

Jones confirmed Oakley was correct. “We don’t go out in the community and say, ‘Well, I didn’t like it, but they voted for it,’” Oakley said.

The Northampton school board agreed to write about the accomplishments of schools and students instead of the alleged failures of the superintendent, but not without comment from Parks, who warned that the school board’s silence could be interpreted as confirmation that the school district has a “lousy superintendent.”

WALLOPS ISLAND COMPANY GRANTED $75,000 FOR UNMANNED AIRCRAFT DEVELOPMENT

Sentinel Robotic Solutions (SRS) has been named one of 30 Commonwealth Research Commercialization Fund (CRCF) award recipients and has been granted $75,000 for further development of its unmanned Sentinel Aerium aircraft.

Administered by Virginia's Center for Innovative Technology (CIT), CRCF invests in priority research and commercialization activities and businesses. This award looks to advance economic and technical expansion in Virginia through investing in small technology-based businesses that receive funds for projects in clean energy, cybersecurity, data analytics, life sciences, and unmanned systems.

The grant will help SRS fully commercialize Sentinel Aerium and includes funding for design engineering, purchase of materials, construction, research, and marketing. Positive economic impacts will be brought to the Eastern Shore by commercializing Sentinel Aerium through expanding innovation and manufacturing in an area known for its poultry and agriculture.

"I am pleased to extend well-deserved congratulations on the CIT Commonwealth Research Commercialization Fund (CRCF) award to the Wallops Island-based Sentinel Aerium team," said Ed Albrigo, CIT president and CEO. "Sentinel is playing a pivotal role in developing the burgeoning unmanned systems industry in Virginia. The Commonwealth is committed to maintaining its leadership position in drone technology research and commercialization. We are thrilled to recognize and support this disruptive flight endurance technology and its Virginia innovators."

The Sentinel Aerium is an American-made, Class I, fully-autonomous unmanned aircraft system boasting a winning flight time and high-weight payload. Originally designed and prototyped on Wallops Island, the Sentinel Aerium has gone on to impress professionals from the private sector, the military, and the U.S. Department of Defense. Through the additional funding received from this award, SRS is in a position to help further stimulate economic development and job creation on the Eastern Shore.

"We are proud to be part of the dynamic and growing Eastern Shore," said SRS CEO Peter Bale, "and we are humbled to receive this award. Through these strategic investments, the state of Virginia, once again, finds itself separating from the masses and working towards creating a state eager to welcome and invest in new business and the Unmanned System industry."

"These entrepreneurs and innovators are on the front lines of bringing new products and technologies to market, while driving job creation and supporting Virginia's economic recovery efforts," said Gov. Ralph Northam. "I am pleased that the Commonwealth is able to support these growing companies as they develop high-potential solutions in emerging industries and build businesses from research started right here in Virginia."

Coast Guard and VMRC Rescue 2

Staff Report

The U.S. Coast Guard and Virginia Marine Resource Commission rescued two people in Horntown Bay near Chincoteague early Sunday.

Watchstanders at Coast Guard Sector Virginia's Command Center received a report that a 57-year-old woman and a 3-year-old boy went missing at 1:50 a.m. Sunday. They went missing while riding a personal watercraft.

An Air Station Elizabeth City helicopter crew was launched along with a boat crew from Coast Guard Station Cape Charles to search for the missing people.

Sector Virginia's Command Center also coordinated the rescue with two marine units from VMRC who launched in the local area and guided the helicopter crew to the personal watercraft's last known position.

The crew from the helicopter located the personal watercraft with the woman and child still on board and directed a VMRC boat to the scene. The people were transferred back to shore and evaluated by local emergency medical personnel.

Boaters are reminded that the best way to get help if danger arises on the water is to have an effective form of communication.

Marine radios that can broadcast and receive transmissions over VHF-FM CH-16 are the best way to let the Coast Guard and other mariners know you're in trouble.

Additionally, boaters should always wear Coast Guard-approved life jackets, be familiar with the area they're boating in, take a boating safety course, file a float plan so someone on shore knows where they are going and when they will be back, and never operate a boat under the influence of alcohol, drugs, or impairing medication.

"With the upcoming 4th of July weekend, people should check over their gear and plan for the weather," said Petty Officer First Class James Morrison, a watchstander at Sector Virginia's Command Center. "People should have fun and enjoy the water, but being safe should be everyone's number one priority."

For more safety recommendations and education, boaters are encouraged to visit <https://www.uscgboating.org/recreational-boaters/index.php?m=rb> and seek out their local Coast Guard Auxiliary unit.

The Coast Guard Auxiliary, state, and local agencies also provide boating safety courses.

In the late '50s she returned to Parksley and began her career in the clerical division of the Accomack County Health Department. After her retirement 25 years ago, she worked for several years at the Eastern Shore Coalition Against Domestic Violence.

Grace United Methodist Church in Parksley has always been her church. She was baptized there 73 years ago. She was married there. She once taught Sunday School there, was a member of the choir, was active in the Women's Society of Christian Service, later the United Methodist Women, and faithfully attended and supported whatever the church did.

Evelyn had been a member of the Business and Professional Women (BPW), the Woman's Club of Accomack County, and several local bridge clubs.

Ms. Ray

She loved to travel and accompanied friends on many road trips, north, south, and west. She traveled the rivers of Europe, the coasts of Alaska and Canada, and crossed the Atlantic on the Queen Elizabeth II on its final crossing.

Besides her parents, Evelyn was predeceased by her son and only child, Dale Parker Ray, who died in 2017. In addition to several cousins, survivors include a multitude of friends. Evelyn had friends whom she had known since childhood, friends she made when living at the Y in Wilmington, friends she met at work both at the health department and at the coalition, friends she made while taking physical therapy, and of course, friends from Parksley. Evelyn had a close friend, whom she had known since elementary school. She and Pat Culliton remained friends until Pat died last year.

A private interment will be held at Liberty Cemetery and a Celebration of her Life will be held later at Grace United Methodist Church. Should friends desire, memorial contributions may be made to Grace United Methodist Church, P.O. Box 156, Parksley, VA 23421; the Eastern Shore Coalition Against Domestic Violence (ESCADV), P.O. Box 3, Onancock, VA 23417; or the Eastern Shore Public Library, P.O. Box 360, Accomack, VA. 23301.

graduating in 1942, and was a member of the Sigma Chi fraternity. Vic worked in New Jersey as a wildlife biologist and in 1955 was employed by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service serving in various administrative positions in Boston, Mass., Atlanta, Ga., Albuquerque, N.M., and Washington, D.C. He received the Department of the Interior Distinguished Service Award. He retired in 1976 as the assistant to the director of the Department of the Interior.

Doris Allen Southern

Mrs. Doris Allen Southern, beloved wife of George Southern, passed away suddenly at her home in Oyster, on June 23, 2020. Friends are invited to gather outdoors at her home from Sunday, July 5, from 3 to 5 p.m., at 6567 Broadwater Circle.

Known to all her friends as Dorie, she and her husband had recently returned to Oyster for the summer after wintering at their home in West Palm Beach, Fla. The family wishes everyone to know that following a full examination, medical authorities found no evidence of COVID-19.

In addition to her husband, Dorie

is survived by her children, Gabriel Southern and his wife, Sophie, of San Jose, Calif., Kimberly Southern, of Oyster, Kelly Williams and her husband, Matt, of Arlington, Va., and Kristina Southern, of Arlington; brothers John Outten, of St. Cloud, Fla., and David Outten, of Duluth, Ga.; sisters Janet Beatty, of Kailua Kona, Hawaii, and Carol Hinkle, of Denver, Colo.; and grandchildren, Georgia and Graham Williams.

Mrs. Southern

Dorie was born Aug. 27, 1952, in St. Louis, Mo., the daughter of Nancy and Burnet Outten. She was retired from the U.S. Department of State, where she oversaw the supply of china and silverware to the more than 200 diplomatic missions worldwide. Earlier, along with her husband, she worked at U.S. embassies and consulates in Guadalajara, Mexico, Bridgetown, Barbados, Pretoria and Cape Town, South Africa, and Brussels, Belgium.

Dorie loved to garden and to work outdoors, even insisting on always mowing the grass herself. She always had a project underway, and recently along with her daughter Kim purchased a house from Hog Island that had been brought to Oyster many years ago. Restoration of the house was underway at the time of her passing. She was also devoted to the ideal of social justice, both for people and animals. Her favorite charitable organization was Farm Sanctuary, accessible at www.farmsanctuary.org

No formal service is planned, but in keeping with social distancing guidelines, the family hopes to visit with as many of her friends as possible Sunday, July 5, from 3 to 5 p.m., in her garden behind her home.

Margaret Williams

Mrs. Margaret Ann Watkinson Williams, 74, beloved wife of the late John Robert "Bobby" Williams Jr., passed away Friday, June 26, 2020, at her home in Greenbush. Born Sept. 29, 1945, in Nassawadox, she was the daughter of the late Robert Watkinson and the late Ruth Fitchett Watkinson.

Married for more than 55 years, Margaret and Bobby spent every day until his passing adoring one another as if they were still lovesick teenagers. For decades, they worked alongside one another as co-owners of Williams Seafood, in Greenbush. Throughout her younger years, Margaret was a legendary athlete, whose talent and passion for any and all sports was relentless. Later, she began coaching softball for Accomack County Parks and Recreation, and for the next 30 years, she faithfully gave her time and support to countless young girls throughout the community. A life defined by unwavering selflessness and dedication to sharing her love of sports with all, Margaret happily put the needs of others above her own. She will be greatly missed but forever remembered and celebrated.

She is survived by her children, Bobbie Jo Williams, Matthew Wessells, and John Wesley Williams; brothers, Robert Watkinson and his wife, Della, and Benny Watkinson and his wife, Janice; grandchildren, Dallas C. Williams, Alysia Wessells, Cabe Williams, and Colton Williams; nieces, Lizabeth and Jean C. Watkinson; and a nephew, Joe Watkinson.

Funeral services will be private; however, you may honor Margaret's life and love for all with a donation in her memory to the Accomack County Parks and Recreation Department, P.O. Box 134, Accomac, VA. 23301.

Memory tributes and condolences may be shared with the family at www.williamsfuneralhomes.com

Pet Memorials

In loving memory of Milo "Bear" Hall

Oct. 27, 2011–Oct. 18, 2018
"They Will Not Go Quietly"

They will not go quietly, the pets who've shared our life. In subtle ways they let us know, their spirit still survives. Old habits still can make us think we hear them at the door, or step back when we drop a tasty morsel on the floor. Our feet still go around the place the food dish used to be, and sometimes coming home at night, we miss them terribly. And although time may bring new friends and a new food dish to fill, that one place in our hearts, belongs to them only...and always will.

There are no words that could express the pain in our hearts we feel knowing we will never see that goofy face you made, looking behind us and you are not there following our every footstep. There is that one special place for you where you left an indent on our hearts forever and you are missed beyond words everyday that passes. You will never be forgotten. Until we meet again, rest easy our friend, our companion, and our family. We love you so much!

In loving memory of
"JR" Aguirre-Hall

Dec. 26, 2018–June 24, 2020

Please do not be sad, for I am not gone.

When you hear the wind, you will hear my song. When you think of me, I will be there. When you need me to listen, I'll hear your prayer. I am not gone. I am not past. Grieve no more, make this tear your last. Remember the happiness, the fun that we had. Remember the good, forget all the sad. Please do not mourn, please do not cry, for this my dear is but a short goodbye.

("A Short Goodbye" by Stephanie Laird)

You are loved beyond words...today we not only lost a friend we lost our family. Rest in peace until we meet again.

"I'll wrap these treasured memories in a blanket of my love, and keep them for my best friend, until we meet again." (Unknown)

NEW LAWS EFFECTIVE JULY 1

Submitted Article

Gov. Ralph Northam highlighted new laws that took effect July 1 as Virginia begins a new fiscal year. According to the press release, the governor worked closely with members of the General Assembly to take forward-looking and historic steps to protect vulnerable Virginians, increase equity, and position the commonwealth for future growth and success.

New laws include gun safety measures, worker protections, improvements to voting accessibility, criminal justice reforms, and measures that advance the rights of women and the LGBTQ community. Northam also signed legislation that removes discriminatory and racist language from Virginia's Acts of Assembly and includes actions to fight climate change and boost Virginia's renewable energy production.

"I am proud of the bold legislation we championed with the General Assembly this year," said Northam. "From protecting civil rights, to expanding voting access, to supporting workers, we have made generational progress on some of the most critical issues of our time. With these new laws, Virginia will be an even better place to live, work, visit, and raise a family."

Key measures from the 2020 General Assembly Session that go into effect July 1 include:

- Advancing historic justice and equity with new laws that give localities authority over Confederate war memorials, remove discriminatory language from the Acts of Assembly, and establish a commission to study slavery in Virginia and subsequent racial and economic discrimination. New measures also ban discrimination because of hair.
- Enhancing worker protections with measures that increase the minimum wage, ban workplace discrimination, and combat worker misclassification and wage theft.
- Gun safety laws that reinstate the restriction on handgun purchases to one per month, implement background checks on all firearm sales, require the reporting of lost or stolen firearms, and establish an Extreme Risk Protective Order.

- Criminal justice reforms that include decriminalizing marijuana, raising the felony larceny threshold, and permanently ending the practice of driver's license suspensions for unpaid court fines.
- Expanding access to the ballot box by allowing early voting 45 days prior to an election without a stated excuse, extending in-person polling hours, and making Election Day a state holiday by repealing Lee-Jackson Day.
- Accelerating Virginia's transition to clean energy with the Virginia Clean Economy Act and measures to advance offshore wind and solar energy sources, establish renewable portfolio standards, and enter the commonwealth into the Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiative.
- Increasing protections for LGBTQ+ Virginians with the Virginia Values Act, which prohibits discrimination based on sexual orientation and gender identity in housing, employment, public spaces, and credit applications. New laws also ban the practice of "conversion therapy" for minors, increase protections for transgender students in public schools, expand the definition of a hate crime, and make it easier for LGBTQ+ individuals to obtain a birth certificate that matches their gender identity.
- Restoring reproductive rights by repealing medically unnecessary restrictions on women's healthcare. The Reproductive Health Protection Act repeals Virginia's mandatory ultrasound law and 24-hour waiting period prior to abortion and rolls back politically motivated "TRAP" restrictions on women's health centers.

Northampton Appropriates $30.5M for FY 2021 Budget

By Stefanie Jackson

The Northampton County Board of Supervisors passed a resolution June 23 to appropriate nearly $30.5 million for the general fund in its fiscal year 2021 budget.

More than $18.5 million of county revenue, or about 60% of the general fund, will come from real estate and personal property taxes.

The largest departmental expenditures from the general fund are about $6.5 million for public safety, around $3.6 million for public works, and about $2.5 million for county administration.

Operating funds for other entities, including Northampton County Public Schools, social services, and the Eastern Shore Regional Jail, are separate.

It will cost around $19 million for the school division to operate this year, including about $12.6 million for teacher salaries and benefits and $1.6 million for administration, attendance and health personnel.

Roughly 80% of the school division's operating budget pays school employee salaries and benefits.

More than $9 million of the school division's budget is funded by the county.

There is a separate fund for Northampton's school food service program, which is run like a business and is not normally subsidized by the county. That program is budgeted at approximately $1 million.

Supervisor John Coker reported that the school division has applied for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Community Eligibility Provision program and all Northampton public school students should get free breakfasts and lunches throughout the upcoming school year.

Northampton County social services will operate at a cost of about $2.6 million, and the jail will operate at a cost of about $4.2 million.

Northampton will pay nearly $2.8 million on its general debt and $1.375 million on school debt in FY 2021.

Finance Director John Chandler also presented a budget amendment of about $27 million for FY 2020, representing money the county has borrowed for a major repair and construction project at Northampton High School. Supervisors voted Oct. 9, 2019, to approve the funds.

Of the $27 million, a little more than $21 million will go toward construction costs, and $1.75 million will pay for construction management.

The school building design and engineering phase, which supervisors have authorized, will likely cost $2 million.

The money borrowed includes more than $2 million in interest.

Supervisors recently learned the county may need to borrow another $10 million to finish the high school project, which could cost $35 million.

A one-cent sales tax rate increase could help pay for the project.

When Northampton County citizens go to the polls on Election Day this November, a majority must vote "yes" for the sales tax before it can take effect.

In 2019, Halifax County, Va., passed a one-cent sales tax increase to fund school construction, and Halifax officials invited Northampton officials to a June 24 online meeting to learn how it was done.

Northampton supervisors also adopted tax rates for 2020, which remain largely unchanged from 2019 rates.

Real estate taxes will slightly increase from 83 cents to 83.5 cents per $100 of assessed value. Personal property taxes will stay the same, $3.90 per $100 of assessed value.

Supervisor Betsy Mapp asked why the tax rate for boats was only 99 cents per $100, less than the tax rate for farm machinery and equipment of $1.20 per $100.

Coker said some counties charge a boat tax of just one cent per $100 of assessed value. "The reason they do that is they want boats to come there and dock and, you know, spend money there."

The higher the boat tax rises, "the more you drive boats out of your county," Coker explained.

Coker said he knows people from Cape Charles who move their boats every winter so they don't have to pay Northampton's 99-cent boat tax rate.

Virginia boat tax rates are based on the vessel's location on Jan. 1.

The Osprey-Eyed Reader Contest

For last week's contest, we put some names in backward: Cape Charles as Charles Cape on page 16, Belle Haven as Haven Belle on page 36, and our poor editor Connie Morrison as Morrison Connie on page 39. Stephanie Bailey put everything straight and won the $25 gift certificate from Da Vinci's Italian Kitchen in Onancock.

For this week's contest, we have put a kaleidoscope (the actual name for a bunch of butterflies) of butterflies and moths throughout the newspaper. The reader who finds all or most of them will win a $25 gift certificate from the Blarney Stone Pub in Onancock. The Blarney Stone is open Monday through Thursday from 11 a.m. to 8 p.m., Friday and Saturday from 11 a.m. to 9 p.m., and Sunday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. The pub has inside and patio seating and takeout orders, 757-302-0300.

The rules this week are a little different:

- Count the total number of butterflies or moths you find throughout the newspaper in editorial pages, ads, classifieds, margins — anywhere and everywhere except your imagination.
- Along with that total, submit the page numbers where you found butterflies and moths along with the locations on the pages where you found the cute little bugs.

- Send that total count along with the page numbers and locations to editor@easternshorepost.com.
- The contest is open between noon Friday, July 3, and noon Monday, July 6. Any entries arriving in the editor's email box before noon on Friday or after noon on Monday will not be considered. When two or more entries have the same winning high number of butterflies/moths, the earliest entry will get the gift certificate.
- Anyone sending more than one entry will be disqualified. You know who you are. And as much as we love your cute little dogs and kittens, photographs of your pets don't get in the paper as runners-up unless you submit an entry that was a winner but wasn't first, hence a runner-up.

Speaking of photographs, anyone submitting a picture must have taken the photo or have permission to use it. We try to publish photos of as many runners-up as space allows. If you don't want to use your own picture, you can submit a photo of your spouse, your house, a mouse, or a grouse. No feet, however.

WINNER!

Helen Putre was a runner-up this week, represented by Shorty, an SPCA resident.

Random Facts About Butterflies

By David Martin

When we opened our internet tubes for cleaning this week, butterflies came out! Wow. Who doesn't love butterflies? The smallest butterfly in this country is the western pygmy blue, which is about half an inch across and lives in deserts and salt marshes in the western U.S. and from Mexico to Venezuela. Owl butterflies, which have spots that resemble owl eyes, can grow nearly a foot across. They're found in Mexico and Central and South America.

The story of the caterpillar changing into a moth or butterfly is amazing enough from the outside, but when you learn what goes on inside the cocoon or chrysalis, it's downright bizarre. The transformation is not a matter of changing a caterpillar's body to a butterfly's body. Instead, after encasing itself, the caterpillar dissolves into goo. Within this liquid are groups of cells that the caterpillar has carried in its body since birth. Each group of cells determines a different part of the butterfly's or moth's body — and from the liquid goo, the cell groups start growing their butterfly or moth parts, legs or wings or antennas.

You probably know the differences between moths and butterflies, although both of these insects are from the order Lepidoptera and might have overlaps: moths active at night, butterflies during the day; moths make silk cocoons, butterflies create hard chrysalises; moths at rest tend to hold their wings straight out horizontally, butterflies hold theirs more upright, vertically; moths have shorter feathery antenna, butterflies have longer, club-like antenna.

Ready for a cute attack? Butterflies kiss away the tears of turtles. When turtles become sad about being stuck in a shell all the time and start crying, butterflies come along and... Actually, butterflies in portions of the Amazon crave salt and minerals that are not readily available in the region's soil and rainfall. Sodium and other minerals are, however, available in the tears of turtles and other reptiles, which is why butterflies can be seen flocking at the eyes of these animals. And, to ruin the Disney moment completely, if an animal urinates, the butterflies will also flock at those puddles to collect the salt and minerals they need to survive.

A Community Mourns

Nandua High School Principal George Parker died June 18 of brain cancer.

Former students, parents, and colleagues came together June 27 for a vigil in the school parking lot to share memories and honor his legacy of kindness, leadership, and love for his students.

Wendy Pruitt, mother of three students who attended Nandua High School, said sharing her concerns for her children with Principal George Parker was like “talking to Dad.”

Eric Parker recalled how his brother used to ask him, “Can you see your eyebrows?” It was a reminder that people can see good qualities in others that others can’t see in themselves.

A little girl sits on the roof of a car to get a better view of each person who shared a memory of George Parker.

Former student Clifton Marshall called George Parker an “amazing man” who always reminded him to “keep smiling.”

Fishing from the Shore

By Bill Hall

Local fishing action has settled into its summer time pattern, as some of the better shallow-water action has started to occur early in the morning and just before sundown. Incidentally, that is also the most desirable time to avoid the burning rays of the hot sun – that may have something to do with catch effort! Look for Spanish mackerel to enter the mid-Chesapeake Bay waters soon for hopefully a repeat of last year's great Spanish season.

Both the cobia bite on the bayside and the yellowfin tuna bite in the offshore waters have remained strong through the week.

Chincoteague – Donna Rae Roeske, at Captain Bob's Marina, said that the hot location for flounder this week has been the waters out in front of Tom's Cove Campground up to and beyond Etta's Restaurant. Other productive locations have been the Asateague Channel, Chincoteague Channel (between buoys 17 and 25), inside the canal, and on the north side of Queen Sound Bridge. Whiting/kingfish are abundant between buoy 14 and the mouth of the inlet. Sharks have been bothersome in the same area as the whiting. The Marine Electric wreck has been producing nice-sized black sea bass. Closer inshore, flounder, tautog, and smaller sea bass are hitting over the structure on Blackfish Banks. The offshore canyons are producing yellowfin tuna.

Jimmy Vasiliou, at Captain Steve's Bait & Tackle, reported that spot kingfish (whiting), hake, and a few flounder have been caught in the surf. A 22-inch red drum was caught earlier in the week. Large sharks are also cruising the surf line. Vasiliou said that there have been a few flounder caught in the back bay and kingfish were being caught around the inlet. Over the trolley cars, spadefish and triggerfish have been caught and a few cobia have been seen. Offshore trips are producing yellowfin tuna and white marlin. The shop registered five white marlin release citations this week, according to Vasiliou.

Wachapreague – Flounder fishing remained good through the week with the best action occurring on the incoming tide. Live minnows or large silversides fished with pink Berkley Gulp Swimming Mullet have been effective on the flatfish. Offshore trips have produced decent catches of yellowfin tuna, some white marlin releases, and at least one blue marlin release.

Amanda Manzella, at the Wachapreague Inn, reported that flounder fishing had remained good through the week with the area in front of the old Coast Guard Station being one of the most productive locations.

Lower Shore – Jeb Brady, at Bailey's Tackle Shop in Cape Charles, reported that the good cobia fishing continues. Most of the recent keeper-sized fish have measured 40 to 45 inches long, with a lot of fish under the 40-inch minimum. Spadefish action has been good at the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel and up at the Cell. Some croaker have started to mix in with the gray trout and sand mullet (whiting) along the Concrete Ships off Kiptopeke. Flounder fishing has been on the upswing recently at the bridge-tunnel and in the "Ditch."

Upper Shore – Capt. Matt Abell, at Sea Hawk Sports Center, said cobia fishing has been good from Onancock all the way down to the bridge-tunnel. Fish have been abundant with lots of keepers mixed in. Bayside speckled trout and red drum fishing has subsided some, but there are still fish to be caught. Captain Abell said that triggerfish and spadefish were on the inshore wrecks, while yellowfin tuna have been found from inshore of 30 fathoms out to the canyons.

Bill Hall was the first Eastern Shore resident to achieve Virginia Salt Water Master Angler Status. He has been named Virginia Saltwater Angler of the Year and Virginia Saltwater Release Angler of the Year and is a Virginia Press Association award-winning sports columnist.

*Get Up and Go GuideSmaller Parades, Private Fireworks Keep July 4 Spirit on Display*By Jim Ritch

Fireworks at private campgrounds in Saxis and Cape Charles, plus a golf cart parade in Cape Charles and outdoor concert in Onancock, will be the marquee events this Fourth of July weekend.

COVID-19 has curtailed traditional celebrations across the peninsula because of state restrictions on events that attract crowds.

FIREWORKS

Although the best viewing positions for fireworks will be on private property and unavailable to the general public, displays may be visible over the trees or from the water near Tall Pines Harbor Campground in Saxis. The campground is located at 8107 Tall Pines Lane, Temperanceville.

In Cape Charles, Cherrystone Family Camping Resort will hold its annual fireworks display, starting at 9 p.m. The resort is at 1511 Townfield Drive, Cape Charles.

GOLF CART PORCH PARADE

At 10 a.m. on July 4, Cape Charles will start an amended version of its annual parade. Limited to golf carts only, the parade will follow a serpentine route through almost every avenue of the town. Viewing will be excellent from almost any front porch in town, which organizers hope will encourage social distancing.

Only the busiest portion of Mason Avenue, where the largest crowds traditionally gather to watch, will be avoided.

The revised route is similar to one followed earlier this year honoring high school graduates. That route took about 40 minutes to complete.

Participants are asked to line up in their golf carts at 9:15 a.m. on Mason Avenue near Fig Street.

OUTDOOR CONCERT

On Friday, July 3, Mallard's at the Wharf, in Onancock, will host Independence Jam 2020, an outdoor concert. The three-member Irie Tree Band will perform from 9 p.m. to 12:30 a.m.

CHINCOTEAGUE FLEA MARKET

The Chincoteague Kiwanis Club will hold a flea market from 8 a.m. to 4 p.m. for three days, July 3-5. The market will be on South Main Street across from the carnival grounds.

COMMUNITY PARADE

A community parade for "your car, your bike, your golf cart, your four-wheeler." Meet at 11:45 a.m. at the Lighthouse Little Library near 20397 Saxis Road on Saxis Island. Following the parade, Sherrye's Snack Shack will serve free ice cream to children who participate in the parade. The ice cream will be funded from the Saxis Island Event Fund. The public is invited to purchase a Saxis apron to support the fund.

SILVER BEACH DOO-DAH PARADE

The 10th anniversary Silver Beach Doo-Dah Parade begins at 4 p.m. This year's theme is "Through the Decades."

Cape Charles Summer Concert Series Gets the Green LightBy Jim Ritch

Gov. Ralph Northam has given a green light — spotlight, that is — to the Harbor for the Arts Summer Festival.

The Eastern Shore's only summer concert series will go on as scheduled under the Phase Three COVID-19 restrictions announced by the governor.

"The light is at the end of the tunnel," said Hank Mayer, newly elected chairman of the Citizens for Central Park, which organizes the concerts and is working out the logistics of social distancing.

From his initial review of the Phase Three guidelines, he believes that with changes and monitoring, "we will be able to do all the things that we usually do," he said.

That means, in part, that food and drink would be served, but the vendors will probably be moved from the entrance closer to the center of the park to avoid crowding.

Few, if any, special accommodations will be needed for the artists because of large size of the gazebo where they perform.

V o l - u n t e e r s w o r k e d through the winter to book nine bands, the first of which will open on July 11 at Central Park in Cape Charles. Signing of the contracts happened from November through February.

Funding, too, was finalized.

Of the roughly $19,000, about 40% comes from the Town of Cape Charles; 20% from Northampton County, and 40% from nine businesses and individuals.

Hank Mayer

And just as the final details were fixed, the COVID-19 quarantines began.

"It has been nerve-racking. We had everything in place, but it's been the big, big question whether we could continue," said Mayer.

Phase Three guidelines will permit the concerts to continue at 50% of the capacity of Central Park, which he estimates can hold between 1,000 and 1,500 people within its five acres.

Half this amount roughly equals 600 people, the largest single-night crowd attracted to the concerts in their nine-year history.

Usually, the concerts attract 400 to 500 people, he said.

Predicting the number of people to prepare for is difficult, he said.

He believes that COVID-19 could reduce rentals and the number of visitors to Cape Charles and the Eastern Shore.

However, people could be more motivated to attend outdoor concerts.

"We think there will be a lot of people who will want to come out of their homes and listen to music," he said.

The concert dates and performers are:

- July 11, J and The Band
- July 18, The Bobby Blackhat Band
- July 25, Bennett Wales and The Relief
- Aug. 1, The Air Force Rhythm in Blue
- Aug. 8, The U.S. Navy Pops
- Aug. 15, Vinyl Headlights
- Aug. 22, Southside Little Big Band
- Aug. 29, Good Shot Judy
- Sept. 5, English Channel

The final concert, scheduled for Labor Day weekend, will also feature a 10th anniversary celebration. The evening will include a potluck dinner and "Love Fest 2," a costumed event celebrating the 1960s and Summer of Love.

Cheriton Blood Drive Attracts 26 Donors

Story and Photos by Jim Ritch

To meet an urgent need for blood, American Legion Northampton Post 54 organized an extra blood drive recently. Twenty-six donors answered the call to give blood.

In a normal year, the post hosts teams from American Red Cross four times a year. Blood demand has increased because of COVID-19 and the restarting of elective surgeries.

A new service to donors is free COVID-19 antibody testing. The Red Cross now tests each unit of donated blood for the antibodies. Positive results indicate that plasma can be used as treatment for the disease. The Red Cross shares the test results with donors.

(1) Chris Merritt, of Cheriton, donates blood recently at the American Legion Northampton Post 54 in Cheriton. “I don’t like needles, but I don’t mind them to help someone else,” said the retired Bay Shore Concrete worker. Corey Ballard, of Hampton, checks Merritt’s arm. (2) Kelly Driscole, of Cape Charles, donated her 16th unit of blood. She enjoys knowing that every unit helps three individuals when units are broken down into red cells, white cells, and plasma. (3) Amanda Budenos, owner of Heavenly Scent Cleaning Services in Cape Charles, came to give blood for her third time. (4) Townsend resident Larry McCluskey, historian of American Legion Northampton Post 54, has donated 114 units of blood. “It’s a simple way of taking care of yourself” that keeps iron levels and the risk of heart attack lower, he said. (5) Etta Robins, of Cape Charles, has been donating blood for 40 years because she “likes helping people who need it,” she said. (6) Suzanne Baker, right, of Cape Charles, came to give her 10th unit of blood. With her is her husband, Darin Alperin. (7) Wilson Leggett, right, chaplain at American Legion Northampton Post 54, and his wife, Dianne, volunteered to take temperatures and check in donors.

Cape Charles Holds Comfort Station Dedication

Tammy Holloway, member of the town council and president of Cape Charles Main Street, wields the scissors with Town Manager John Hozey. Watching from left are John Coker, District 1 Northampton County supervisor; Clarice MacGarvey, member, Eastern Shore of Virginia Tourism Commission; and Andy Buchholz, member, Cape Charles Town Council and vice president, Cape Charles Main Street. The new restrooms will return the total number of public restrooms in Cape Charles to six, including two near the beach and two portables behind the public library, which the town installed previously. COVID-19 has forced the temporary closure of the library, rendering two indoor restrooms inaccessible.

The town maintains restrooms near the beach. The permanent structure there was built as a Boy Scout project.

Enough is Enough: Preachers

The Eastern Shore Diverse Coalition of Preachers held two marches this past weekend – one in Accomack County Friday, June 26, and one in Northampton County Saturday, June 27. Led by the Rev. Quintavion Washington, over 13 clergy came together to “promote equity, social change, the eradication of systemic racism and social oppression in our communities,” according to the mission statement.

Before the march Friday evening, educational booths were set up at Macedonia AME Church for census, restoration of civil rights, NAACP, and voting information.

Testing is offered at no charge, the fee will be billed to test participants' health insurance with no copay. For those without insurance, there is no charge. Results are typically available in a few days – Eastern Shore Rural Health will contact those tested with the results. Since many people infected with COVID-19 have no symptoms, participants do not have to be experiencing symptoms to be tested. Those being tested do not have to be an ESRH patient to be tested.

Those interested in receiving a test can call to schedule an appointment. For the Atlantic Community Health Center, call 757-824-5676; for the Eastville center, call 757-331-1086; and for the Onley center, call 757-787-7374. ESRH patients also can request an appointment via the Patient Portal.

This testing has been made possible through a partnership with the Virginia Department of Health, the Virginia Department of Emergency Management, and the Virginia Community Healthcare Association.

Walmart Testing

Walmart is playing a vital role by offering COVID-19 testing at the Onley Walmart located at 26036 Lankford Highway. The drive-thru site is open Mondays, Wednesdays, and Fridays, from 7 to 9 a.m., weather permitting. Those getting tested are required to stay in their cars at all times, and there is no out-of-pocket cost to the individual. The site will use a self-administered nasal swab observed by a trained medical volunteer to ensure the sample is taken correctly. Sign up to get tested at www.DoINeedaCOVID19test.com

Since the public-private partnership was announced on March 13, 2020, Walmart have been working closely with lab partners, HHS, and state and local officials to select testing sites in areas of need.

Harris Speaks to ESCSB

Charlene Harris, front left, who has served as a missionary in Africa for the past 36 years, spoke to the Eastern Shore Christian Businessmen's Association June 23 at the Island House Restaurant. Harris grew up in Painter and was a graduate of Central High School before earning her bachelor's degree in theology. She currently resides in Bukavu in the Republic of Congo and also works in Kenya and Tanzania. Harris said most Africans live in poverty and share close quarters but have great resiliency. She once was part of a mission that traveled across the continent and spoke in tents that held 34,000 people, but now she works with smaller groups and also reaches people through a daily radio show that teaches the word of God. At right is CBA member Fred Dassler, who introduced Harris, and at rear is CBA president George Bryan.

Community Notes

New Library Rules

With the improved community health conditions because of the COVID-19 prevention measures, Eastern Shore Public Library will expand services starting Monday, July 6, at the Accomac and Nassawadox libraries. Library visitors must wear masks to enter the building and follow the library's health prevention measures, available on the library's website, www.espl.org, and at the entrances. The library's goal is to provide access to in-house services, but to minimize prolonged occupancy in the building and allow staff time to clean surfaces. CDC guidelines state that individuals are more likely to contract COVID-19 infection with prolonged contact with others infected with the virus who may not show any symptoms.

The following Eastern Shore Public Library services will be in place starting Monday, July 6:

- Curbside pick-up of books and DVDs will continue by appointment from Monday to Friday, 9:30 to 10 a.m.
- Patrons may enter the buildings for express checkout with a time limit in the building of one half-hour Monday through Friday, between 10 a.m. and 5 p.m. No appointment is necessary.
- Computers may be used for one hour by appointment 10 a.m. to noon.
- Computers may be used for express service for one half-hour, by appointment, 1 to 5 p.m.
- Copiers, fax machines, and notary services are available.
- E-books, e-magazines, free online courses, online local history and genealogy resources, and other virtual library services are available for free 24/7 at the library's website, www.espl.org

Individuals can sign up for a library card without going to the library. The online form is available on the ShoreCat online catalog home page by going to www.espl.org

For more information or to make a library appointment, call ESPL at 757-787-3400.

Gift Cards For Good

The David Landsberger Family YMCA is partnering with Manna Café to launch a "Gift Cards For Good" Program.

The program will assist food-insecure residents of the Eastern Shore, as well as locally owned restaurants—both of which have been severely impacted during the COVID-19 crisis.

Donations of gift cards from local eateries will be gathered through the YMCA and distributed by the Manna Café during its home deliveries of lunches on Mondays, as well as through the Café's weekly Mobile Food Pantry Distribution.

Thanks to generous donations, the program will initially assist 100 households in the community. Additional donations are needed to sustain the program. Donations of gift cards to restaurants that deliver are preferred (but not required), as recipients may be homebound and unable to travel to obtain their meal.

Those interested in donating to the program, may contact Katie O'Shea at koshea@ymcachesapeake.org.

Special Olympics Clothing Donations

Special Olympics Virginia, Eastern Shore Area 19, appreciates the generosity in donating clothing to help support local athletes. To help the volunteers stay safer when handling these donations, they ask that donations be placed in a 13-gallon kitchen trash bag, as the larger black bags are too heavy to manage. They ask that the donations continue.

Broken Chain

We knew the morning that God was going to call your name
In life we loved you dearly, In death we do the same.

It broke our hearts to lose you, you did not go alone;
for part of us went with you, the day God called you home.
You left us peaceful memories, your love is still our guide;
and though we cannot see you, you are always at our side.
Our family chain is broken, and nothings seems the same;
but as God calls us one by one, the chain will link again.

CELEBRATING OUR HERO.

WE LOVE AND MISS YOU,

YOUR DAUGHTERS AND GRANDCHILDREN

Mural Not Offensive

Dear Editor:

I read with great interest Mrs. Lee Jordan-Anders letter about the offensive and presumably sexist depiction of the female form in the mural at the Pearl Market at Latimer Siding.

Being a person who has always been an aficionado of the female form in all its depictions, I took it upon myself to personally investigate and critique it in an up-close and personal manner.

First of all, I was expecting it to be much more lewd, as it has obviously drawn the attention of the perpetually offended. The description of the figure as wearing a string bikini is absolutely incorrect. I saw much more flesh displayed in line at Brown Dog Ice Cream.

The placement of the hands was inaccurately described as being intentionally portrayed in a gratuitous and erotic manner. Rather, the placement was an obviously awkward attempt by an inexperienced artist to hide her hands from view. Hands are notoriously hard to realistically render.

The cast shadowing in the neck and face were not handled in a manner which would create and/or enhance form. The rendering and color of the face and neck were not consistent with the rest of the figure. This could be explained by the artist having to work from a shaky, elevated platform. In general, it was a pleasant and light-hearted portrayal of the subject matter.

The seafood and produce were competently portrayed, though I would have preferred that the crabs were portrayed in a more realistic manner instead of the cartoonish and anatomically incorrect manner that was depicted. Yes, it is fun. But the other items were rendered in an extremely accurate and realistic manner.

My biggest problem with this mural is the half empty baskets. The artist missed a perfect opportunity to fill them to the brim in a horn-of-plenty manner, which is something I think this project was striving to achieve.

A quick web check of Mrs. Lee Jordan-Anders reveals that she is primarily a music professor at Virginia Wesleyan University (my alma mater) who does teach an art class or two.

She should be aware that throughout art history ripe fruit has had obvious sexual connotation as well as shellfish, eggplant, cucumbers, etc. Under the doctrine of signatures, it is highly appropriate, and not surprising, that a fruit and shellfish stand be mildly sexualized.

Wear Your Mask and Get Out and About

Dear Editor:

As summer comes upon us here on the Eastern Shore, it is yet a different way of life for all of us amid the COVID-19 virus. Change is something we as humans either accept or do not. The Eastern Shore Post staff have done an outstanding job with the weekly newspaper production and distribution.

A firm reminder to the local Cape Charles folks who seem to be in a bubble of their own: Please practice proper social distancing, keeping your mask with you, and don't be afraid to use it or when businesses require it. Remember rules are made to be followed, not broken. We are all grown; keep that in mind. Additionally, make sure the children and young adults are complying as well.

For us folks in the lower area of Cape Charles, it was nice to see the new Pearl Market open this past Saturday with so many great choices. The atmosphere is very serene as it sits in a small wooded area, which borders farm fields. It is picture perfect and just right after a nice walk along the nature trail. Much respect to the owners and great job bringing such a much needed and wanted market to the lower Shore.

As someone who lives close by, I would encourage the community to go out and see for yourselves. Develop your own opinions; do not thrive off what you may read from others. Comments esoteric in nature will always be there in attempt to stray a people away from the good.

Keep that in mind and be your own judge, folks!

Parker Connected With Students

Dear Editor:

I was very sorry to learn of the passing of George Parker, and I'm writing to describe his unusual gifts as an educator, what we have lost, and what we need to find as a replacement.

After many years in what my school-teacher dad would call "the groves of education," I've had the opportunity to see many teachers and administrators in action. George ran a good school, and we can be proud of the Nandua High School that he has left us.

He had one special ability which I've never seen, certainly not to such a degree, which is worth mentioning. He was definitely on the front line of the discipline at a big, busy high school. He was always around, always moving, admonishing, correcting students. But unlike almost any other disciplinarian I've seen, he never lost his connection with the students in the process, as if to say, "The law is the law, and we're going to follow it, but I'm with you all the way, and this is our way, together, of improving our school."

Thinking about his remarkable ability to stay connected to his students, we can only wonder what the presence of his attitude would be in the matter of law enforcement in general, and what benefits we could all derive from his wonderful example.

Rest in peace, George Parker. We and your school will miss you.

Kiptopeke Should Enforce Social Distancing Measures

Dear Editor:

Fishing at Kiptopeke yesterday, we were very distressed that folks were totally ignoring social distancing guidelines. We were endangered by many who just chose to walk right up to us attempting to start a conversation. While most respected our wishes, it was quite disturbing that they hadn't even considered the restriction. And there also were a significant number of folks who exhibited anger when we asked them to keep their distance.

And the responses were very distressing. One guy told us he had a degree in biology and knew better than us because he reads all the scientific papers. He demanded we get an education like he did. Another gentleman, probably in his 40s who appeared to be leading a group of teenagers, was a bit shocked by us asking and said he didn't care. We said we did. He went away muttering "fake news." A great role model for the youngsters. A few teenage girls looked like they felt we had some nerve asking them to keep their distance. And on and on. What is wrong with these people?!

Why doesn't the state park administration put up signs saying something like "Practice Social Distancing" at the entrance and other strategic locations? That would certainly help, especially with rude individuals.
