Governor Eases Some COVID-19 Restrictions in Time for Easter

By Carol Vaughn

Gov. Ralph Northam announced Wednesday an additional easing of pandemic restrictions, including on social gatherings, entertainment and wedding venues, sporting events, and commencement ceremonies.

Northam said the statewide percent positivity for COVID-19 testing is now 5.6%, down from 17% in early January; he noted Virginia is seeing fewer hospitalizations and ICU admissions than anytime since October.

Additionally, one in four Virginians has been vaccinated.

Virginia received more than 500,000 vaccine doses this week and is averaging around 50,000 doses given per day.

Mass vaccination clinics opened last week in Petersburg, Va., and Danville, Va., and another opened Wednesday in Prince William County.

Some localities, including the Eastern Shore, have moved into Phase 1c of vaccination, which includes additional essential workers.

With lower case numbers and higher numbers of people vaccinated, "we can consider how to slowly and safely ease some of the mitigation measures we've had in place for the last year," Northam said during a press briefing.

Starting April 1, social gatherings may have up to 50 people indoors or 100 people outdoors.

Indoor entertainment venues may operate at 30% capacity, or up to 500 people total.

Outdoor entertainment venues may operate at 30% capacity, with no cap on the number.

Cherrystone Campground Sold in $9.8M Deal With National RV Resort Co.

By Stefanie Jackson

After nearly 57 years as a family business, Cherrystone Family Camping Resort, in lower Northampton County, was sold by owner Chad Ballard III to Sun RV Resorts, a division of Sun Communities Inc.

"Since 1964, Cherrystone Family Camping Resort had provided a beautiful space with exceptional amenities for generations of families to make memories on Virginia's Chesapeake Bay," Ballard said in a March 9 press release.

"We're excited to see how that is continued and improved upon with Sun RV Resorts," he said.

The Cherrystone resort, with more than 700 camping sites, covers more than 300 acres just north of Cape Charles and west of Cheriton. The portion that was sold had been owned by the Ballard family since 1938, according to public records.

The property did not become the Cherrystone Family Camping Resort until about 26 years later, when the campground opened on Mother's Day, 1964.

Ballard sold approximately 218 acres to Sun RV Resorts on March 4 for

Rapturous Over the Raptor

An eagle was returned to the wild Wednesday, taking flight over the 516 acres of Mutton Hunk Fen Natural Area Preserve after a four-month convalescence for a broken wing. Wildlife officer Darin Dick, of the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, found the injured bird in November and with help from the local nonprofit Wildlife ER and a team of other volunteers, rescued the raptor and transported it to The Wildlife Center of Virginia, in Waynesboro, Va., for rehabilitation. Spectators allowed at athletic events will increase to 100 for indoor events and 500 outdoors.

Commencement ceremonies may have up to 5,000 in attendance, or up to 30% of the venue's capacity, outdoors. Indoor ceremonies may have up to 30% of the capacity or 500 people.

Weddings may have up to 100 people outdoors or 50 indoors.

Northam called vaccines "the light at the end of the tunnel — but only if we take them."

He said vaccinating children once clinical trials show vaccines are safe and effective for them, likely starting in fall for older children, will play a role in reaching vaccination numbers that will provide "herd immunity" for society.

He said Virginians need to continue to wear masks, wash hands frequently, and maintain social distancing.

"To be very clear, we're not throwing the doors open," he said.

Virginia still will maintain its "Saf-er at Home" strategy, with continued mitigation strategies like physical distancing, teleworking, and universal mask requirements.

Dr. Norman Oliver of the Virginia Department of Health in answer to a question at the briefing said the VDH has recorded "somewhere around a couple hundred cases" of virus variants, noting the true number is likely much higher.

The VDH has begun surveillance and is doing genomic analysis to track several variants known to be in Virginia.

Riverside Marks
100,000th Vaccine Given

Riverside Health System on Monday administered its 100,000th COVID-19 vaccine, according to a spokesperson.

The number includes first and second dose vaccinations to employees and patients throughout the Riverside system, which includes Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital and doctors' offices on the Eastern Shore.

"This past year has been an extreme time for everyone, and we're incredibly grateful to serve our community in this capacity," said Dr. Mike Dacey, president and chief operating officer of Riverside Health System, in a press release.

"It's inspiring to see all of the progress we've made so far thanks to our team's amazing advance preparation and dedication on the ground, and we look forward to continuing to vaccinate more community members in the coming days and weeks," he said.

Riverside continues to vaccinate those eligible for the vaccine, as determined by the Virginia Department of Health, through community-based clinics and at its care facilities. more than $9.8 million.

"It was not a decision that was made lightly, but one I'm confident was the right one," Ballard said.

"Finding someone to put the same dedication and care into the park that we have in the past was at the top of our priority list, as well as someone who was committed to caring for the employees and guests," he said.

Blue Water Hospitality, of Ocean City, Md., will partner with Sun RV Resorts to manage the campground and "ensure Cherrystone continues its storied history of hospitality excellence and employee satisfaction," the release stated.

Ashley Forbes, general manager of Cherrystone campground, said she looks forward to working with Sun RV Resorts and Blue Water Hospitality, and "they have a tremendous reputation in the campground industry and share the same values that Cherrystone has."

"We are very excited about what this partnership will bring to Cherrystone in the future," she said.

Cherrystone Family Camping Resort "has positioned itself as an exceptional campground not only on Virginia's Eastern Shore, but on the East Coast," the release stated.

Cherrystone claims a high rate of guests who repeatedly return to the resort to enjoy the location and amenities, including the beach, five swimming pools, four fishing piers, three playgrounds, a dog park and beach, a bait and tackle shop, a cafe with a lounge and arcade, and a general store.

Cherrystone offers water activities including boat rentals and charter fishing. Additional activities include mini golf, volleyball, cornhole, horse-shoes, and shuffleboard.

Holiday events are held throughout the spring and summer, from Easter to Labor Day, as well as theme weekends such as "Shipwrecked" and "Wild Wild West."

Cherrystone campground also prides itself on "the employees that make (guests') vacations so memorable with their genuine smiles and unmatched work ethic."

Sun RV Resorts rents RV sites, tent camping sites, and cottages and cabins at about 150 locations nationwide, with an emphasis on the southeastern region.

Its parent company, Sun Communities, is a publicly traded company that has invested in manufactured housing and recreational vehicle communities across the U.S. and in Canada since 1975.

Sun Communities owned, operated, or had a financial interest in 432 communities and nearly 146,000 individual sites in 32 states and Ontario, Canada, as of Sept. 30, 2020.

Blue Water Development was founded in 2002 and its portfolio includes campgrounds, hotels, and attractions from Maine to Florida.

According to the press release, the Ballard family looks forward to enjoying Cherrystone campground as guests and will continue to own and operate the neighboring Cherrystone Aqua-Farms, which specializes in cultivating and harvesting clams and oysters.

Chad Ballard said, "we are confident we have found the right person to continue to operate and invest in Cherrystone, its people, and the Eastern Shore community."

Accomack County Hearing Offers Budget With No New Taxes or Fees

By Carol Vaughn

No one from the public spoke at a March 22 public hearing to receive comment on Accomack County's proposed fiscal year 2022 budget and tax rates.

No increases to any tax rates or fees are proposed.

The county's real estate tax rate ranks 13th (highest to lowest) in its 19-member peer group of similar counties. The last tax hike was in 2016 — that was a 3-cent increase to pay for expanding emergency medical services.

There has been no tax increase to support services paid for by the county's general fund since 2014.

Any impact from the next county-wide assessment of real estate values will not be felt until calendar year 2022, Accomack County Administrator Mike Mason said.

The proposed $64.4 million budget represents a 0.2% increase over last year's budget.

It includes nearly $4 million in capital expenditures — including $1.3 million for closure of a cell at the northern landfill and money toward constructing a new cell — and $56.6 million in the operating budget, along with $3.8 million for debt service.

Just over 41% of local tax dollars goes to the public school district, which according to a longstanding formula would receive an additional $468,000 from the county next year.

The budget as proposed includes a 2% pay raise for county employees and state-funded positions such as constitutional officers and targeted salary increases for public safety employees starting Aug. 1. Pay raises were removed from the 2021 budget because of financial concerns related to the pandemic.

Mason said he is working with Finance Director Margaret Lindsay and plans to bring a proposed budget amendment to the board at its next meeting to bring the raise up to 5% for all staff, other than those receiving higher targeted salary increases, in accordance with the approved state budget, which includes funding for a 5% increase for state-supported local positions.

In a departure from recent budgets, the proposed budget all but eliminates the planned contribution to the rainy day fund, which puts an indefinite hold on the board's goal of increasing the balance to 16.7% of revenues by 2024.

Instead of adding $980,000 to the rainy day fund, the proposed budget adds just $114,000.

The board set its next meeting for Monday, March 29, when members could vote to approve the budget, after the legally required seven-day waiting period after the public hearing.

Most Accomack County Employees Vaccinated

All county employees who had indicated they were willing to receive a COVID-19 vaccine had been vaccinated as of March 12, Mason said.

Over 70% of county employees are expected to be fully vaccinated within a month.

Grant Applications Authorized

Supervisors voted March 17 to authorize the county's application for planning grants for two projects: the Mary Nottingham Smith Cultural Enrichment Center and housing improvements in East Horntown.

The county typically has had only one Community Development Block Grant active at a time, but there is nothing prohibiting having two other than having enough staff resources to manage both, according to Mason.

Due to staff limitations, the county typically contracts with the Accomack-Norhampton Planning District Commission to manage these grants, Mason said, but he noted he was told the A-NPDC does not have sufficient resources to manage both grants at one time.

The board approved Mason's recommendation to apply for both grants and to enter into a management services agreement with the A-NPDC for the Horntown project.

For the MNS grant, the MNS alumni association agreed to do the grant application package and, if the grant is awarded, to procure grant management services.

Mason noted the MNS project "has a lot of community support."

Karen Downing of the MNS project management team said the team will be adding additional members to help with planning efforts.

After several community meetings were held as part of a grant-funded preplanning process, "there were persons who had signed up who wanted to assist us with this next phase," she said.

Additionally, the group is creating committees to work on fund development, historic designation, and marketing, she said.

ESO STAYS IN THE SWING DURING PANDEMIC

Like many arts organizations during the pandemic, Eastern Shore's Own Art Center in Belle Haven found itself struggling after Gov. Ralph Northam declared a state of emergency March 12, 2020.

All classes, including ballet, with more than 100 enrolled students, had to stop. Performances were postponed, and the building was disinfecting in hopes of opening after the two-week mandatory closure. It soon became apparent the closure would last more than two weeks.

Newly hired Executive Director Ashley Aigner Antunes began looking for ways to keep the organization financially solvent and to continue delivering classes and performances.

In September, ESO launched Patreon, an online platform for bringing the arts to participants in their homes for a monthly fee, as a way to replace some of the revenue lost from class fees and other programs ESO offers.

ESO received a grant from the Richard and Caroline T. Gwathmey Memorial Fund for $35,000, along with some CARES Act funding, but one advantage of Patreon is that it creates a monthly revenue stream for the nonprofit. Members pay a $10 monthly friends rate or a $25 family rate.

Members have enjoyed many performances, online classes, interviews, and other benefits since the Patreon launch. The highlight for members in 2020 was full access to the 30th annual production of ESO's Nutcracker, directed and choreographed by ESO ballet instructor Dana Floyd. It was an unprecedented version of "Nutcracker Swings," combining current students who had returned to classes under COVID-19 regulations and video clips of performances from the past 30 years. The production, normally performed in the Nandua High School auditorium, was filmed in the large ballet studio transformed into a stage.

For more information about ESO's Patreon subscription service, go to www.patreon.com/esoartscenter For information about other activities at the center call 757-442-3226 or visit ESO's Facebook and Instagram pages.

Cape Charles Area Businesses Can Still Apply for COVID-19 Relief Funds

By Stefanie Jackson

Small businesses in Cape Charles and the surrounding areas still may apply for COVID-19 relief funds from an $845,000 Virginia Department of Housing and Community Development (DHCD) grant that has been only about half spent and expires Oct 1.

“Certainly, the last thing we want to do is return the money or to let it go if we have businesses that are in need,” said Karen Zamorski, director of Cape Charles Main Street, the nonprofit administering the grant.

Businesses do not need to be located in the town of Cape Charles to be eligible.

Small businesses in the following ZIP codes qualify: Cape Charles, 23310; Cheriton, 23316; Eastville, 23347; Capeville, 23313; and Townsend, 23443.

Neither must businesses have a brick-and-mortar presence; owners of home-based small businesses also qualify.

The maximum amount an individual may receive from the DHCD grant is $15,000.

Small business owners who have received federal Payment Protection Program or PPP funding also may receive DHCD grant funds, but the money cannot be used to cover the same types of expenses, Zamorski noted.

PPP funds were mainly provided to cover payroll, but the DHCD grant is provided to reimburse business expenses such as rent or mortgage payments and the cost of technology or retooling businesses to be compatible with COVID-19 guidelines.

For example, the money could be spent on cleaning and sanitation supplies, plexiglass barriers, face masks, and touchless point-of-sale systems.

Businesses must have been established before March 12, 2020, and expenditures to be reimbursed must have been made after April 1, 2020.

Qualifying expenses include up to six months of rent or mortgage payments for the business.

Home business owners whose homes are mortgaged can be reimbursed for up to 25% of their principal and interest for six months.

Any business that is run from home instead of a store or an office building – such as landscaping – is considered a home business.

Watermen may apply to receive relief on their home or boat mortgages and slip fees, Zamorski added.

An applicant requesting reimbursement for rent or mortgage payments must supply a copy of the current lease agreement or six months of mortgage statements and canceled checks or other proof of payments.

An applicant must supply the business’ Dun & Bradstreet (DUNS) number, a nine-character number issued by the major business credit bureau of the same name, which gives a business a unique identifier.

Any small business owner who doesn’t have a DUNS number can get one online in minutes, Zamorski said.

The process is explained in the list of frequently asked questions accompanying the application, and Cape Charles Main Street staff members are available to answer any additional questions.

Cape Charles Main Street has simplified the application process to be accessible to everyone.

Completing an application is “really is as easy as it comes,” said

Chris Marshall, owner of Cape Charles Brewing Company.

He noted the application is “a couple pages,” unlike other grants that may require 10, 50, or even 100 pages of paperwork to be completed.

Some of the big-ticket items on which Cape Charles Brewing Company spent its grant funds included picnic tables and patio heaters, which enabled the restaurant to adhere to COVID-19 distancing guidelines and serve diners outside throughout the winter.

“When something like this happens, you’ve got to figure out a new way of doing business,” Marshall said.

Kathleen Glaser, owner of Alyssa House Bed and Breakfast, admitted that when she first heard about the COVID-19 grant opportunity, she ignored it because she believed “it’s going to be one of those things that takes like three days to fill out the paperwork.”

But her neighbor, Cape Charles Town Councilman Paul Grossman, encouraged her to look at the application, which took only two hours to complete, Glaser said.

She had one question about the application, which Zamorski answered promptly.

Glaser was thankful the town made the effort to help its small businesses during the COVID-19 pandemic and that town officials were “proactive” about making sure she applied for the grant.

She filled out the application

ESVA Chamber Hires New Director

A Farmville college dean has been hired to be the new executive director of the ESVA Chamber of Commerce and the Eastern Shore Tourism Commission.

Robert Sabbatini, who serves as dean of students at Hampden-Sydney College and already owns a home on the Eastern Shore, was chosen as “the best candidate from a talented and diverse pool of applicants,” according to the chairman of the chamber board.

He replaces Robie Marsh, who has served the chamber since 2017 and accepted a position with A&N Electric Cooperative.

“I am ecstatic Robert and his family have accepted our offer,” said Board Chairman Will Russell. “Not only are we getting an extremely qualified candidate, we are also bringing a young family to our area.

“I know Sabbatini will continue to build on the great work done by outgoing Executive Director Robie Marsh.”

Sabbatini was chosen by a joint hiring committee composed of directors from the chamber and tourism commissioners.

As dean, Sabbatini oversaw all facets of student life at the liberal arts college. He was born in New Orleans, but at a young age his family moved to southwest Virginia.

“The charm of the Eastern Shore, its people, and the landscape are what drew our family here,” said Sabbatini.

“I am very happy to be a part of the opportunities the Chamber of Commerce and Tourism Commission bring to the people and businesses of the Shore, and I am excited to advocate and promote for them.”

Sabbatini and his wife, Donna, have two children and will relocate to the home they own here. He will begin in late April.

“The Tourism Commission looks forward to leveraging Robert’s broad experience to continue the outstanding relationship the Tourism Commission and the Chamber have developed in order to drive more tourism opportunities into our two counties,” said Tourism Commission Chairman John Coker, who also served on the hiring committee.

Russell thanked board members of the chamber and commission for their work during the hiring process.

“We feel Robert is the right person to continue the partnership between the two organizations that help promote the Eastern Shore’s businesses and tourism opportunities efficiently and responsibly.”

Onancock Applies for Block Grant for Neighborhood Improvements, Adopts Logo

By Carol Vaughn

Onancock is applying for a $978,000 Community Development Block Grant which, if awarded, will pay for improvements to the town's northeast neighborhood.

Eric Luchansky of the Accomack-Norhampton Planning District Commission presented an overview of the project to the town council at its March 22 meeting.

Improvements would include demolition of six abandoned structures, rehabilitation of 10 occupied homes, lighting and drainage improvements, debris removal, and installation of sidewalks from Kerr Street to Boundary Avenue and Pine Street to Market Street.

The last CDBG project in Onancock was in 1989, when 29 homes were rehabilitated.

No one commented at a public hearing about the grant application.

The application is due April 1, and the town should hear whether the grant is awarded within three to five months, according to Luchansky.

Onancock Logo Adopted

The town council voted to adopt the Onancock brand and logo developed over a year of work by Onancock Main Street, working with Otto Design + Marketing of Norfolk.

A grant awarded to Onancock Main Street paid for development of the brand and logo.

Onancock Main Street is a volunteer-driven, nonprofit organization that works to develop and sustain the historic downtown as a vital economic, cultural, recreational, and residential center for the community.

Gov. Ralph Northam in September 2020 announced Onancock's designation as a Virginia Main Street community.

Being in the program means the town will receive intensive services, administered by the Department of Housing and Community Development, to strengthen and revitalize the downtown.

Services include market analysis, marketplace development, capacity building, design assistance, organization development, economic strategies, and façade renderings for redevelopment projects.

Karin Rush-Monroe of Onancock Main Street said the colors chosen for the logo are meant "to invoke our natural environment" and prominent inclusion of the town's founding date, 1680, pays homage to the town's history, while the font is contemporary.

The logo includes the tagline: "A little slice of nowhere else."

"We pulled together a foundation of attributes of Onancock, based on a lot of feedback we got from the community," she said.

A stakeholder team of 17 people representing various parts of the community gave input to help develop the brand.

"This is a logo for the town," Rush-Monroe said, adding that trademark and copyright are being pursued and guidelines for the logo's use are being developed.

"We'll be rolling that out as a package so that people have the right camera-ready art, they know how to use it," she said.

"This is exactly what Onancock needs," said Councilwoman Catherine Krause, who seconded a motion made by Joy Marino to approve the logo.

American Rescue Plan

The American Rescue Plan approved by Congress includes direct allocations of funds to towns, Town Manager Matt Spuck told the council.

The town is expected to receive around $1.1 million in federal funds, with "very broadly stated" restrictions on their use, Spuck said.

The American Rescue Plan is a $1.9 trillion economic stimulus bill passed by Congress and signed into law by President Joe Biden on March 11 to speed up the nation's recovery from adverse effects of the COVID-19 pandemic.

Uses allowed for the funds given localities include helping impacted businesses and nonprofits; offering essential workers incentive compensation; offsetting lost revenue for the town; and making investments in water, sewer, and broadband infrastructure. Onancock is beginning to develop a list of eligible projects for which the funds could be used.

Spuck said one potential use is to give additional help to the town's businesses.

"We've already issued well over $100,000 in grants to our small businesses, but this gives us the ability to really bridge the gap for any downturn in revenue" from 2019 to 2020, Spuck said.

He also recommended looking "very, very carefully" at the town's water infrastructure needs, saying he made a list of 14 items "just sitting in my office today."

The town's sewer system will soon transition to ownership by the Hampton Roads Sanitation District, so sewer expenditures likely will not be considered for use of the federal funds.

He asked council members to brainstorm uses for the money, half of which will be issued soon, with the other half allocated 12 months later. The deadline to use the funds is 2024.

"Strategically, how would you see using those monies?" Spuck asked council members to consider.

Krause and Onancock business owner Bill Burnham recommended talking with business owners about their needs that could be addressed using the funds.

"Having some sort of a roundtable where we're talking to our business owners and seeing how maybe we can help support them from an infrastructure perspective, that might be something that would really show our businesses how important they are to us," Krause said.

The town additionally recently paid out $45,000 in small business recovery assistance grants made possible by a CDBG grant. Two more businesses have submitted applications for $19,200 and seven additional businesses are preparing applications to receive assistance.

The town was awarded a $495,000 CDBG grant for small business recovery.

Spuck said there is a team in place to answer businesses' questions about applying for assistance.

2022 Budget

The town council will hold a public hearing April 22 on the proposed $1.8 million fiscal year 2022 town budget.

No tax increase is proposed. It is proposed to eliminate the town vehicle decal and instead add the fee to the personal property tax bill. The budget also proposes to lower water rates for low-volume users and high-use businesses and to have the town cover on-line credit card payment fees.

Other Onancock News

The town office currently is open by appointment to facilitate physical distancing.

All town employees who chose to receive COVID-19 vaccination have received them.

Onancock recently hired a police officer and a grounds and landscaping employee. The town is working to hire another police officer. There are two finalists being considered for the position, according to Spuck.

A water leak on Jackson Street was scheduled to be repaired Wednesday.

Improvements to the boat ramp at the wharf will be underway soon and should be completed by mid-May.

Cape Charles Honors Former Councilman for 25 Years of Service

By Stefanie Jackson

The Cape Charles Town Council honored former Councilman Chris Bannon's 25 years of service in a proclamation read by Mayor Smitty Dize during the March 18 Town Council meeting.

According to the proclamation, Bannon and his partner Jim Wells moved to Cape Charles in 1988 and purchased a house that they transformed into the town's first bed-and-breakfast, the Sea Gate.

The business attracted visitors and future Cape Charles residents and prompted the opening of additional bed-and-breakfast businesses in town.

Bannon began his public service career four years later, July 1, 1992, as a member of the Cape Charles Town Council.

He served 25 years with only one break, from July 2002 to June 2006, and was vice mayor for 12 years, from 2006 to 2018.

Bannon was a member of the Cape

Charles Memorial Library board, the Friends of the Cape Charles Memorial Library, and Citizens for Central Park.

He also volunteered for the Eastern Shore of Virginia Tourism Commission at the Eastern Shore of Virginia Welcome Center at the northern end of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel.

In his volunteer role at the welcome center, Bannon was one of the "best cheerleaders" for Cape Charles, and as a town councilman he strove "to make Cape Charles a better place to live and dedicated his efforts for the best interest of the community," said Dize, reading from the proclamation.

Bannon resigned from the Town Council March 4. The town planned to petition the Northampton County Circuit Court to hold a special election coinciding with the next general election, Nov. 2, to fill the vacancy.

Bannon's term was set to expire June 30, 2022.

In another matter, the Town Council will hold a public hearing April 15 regarding a zoning application submitted by Suzanne Baker, owner of a new business coming to Jefferson Avenue, Suzy's Old Fashioned Frozen Custard.

Baker is seeking the rezoning of two parcels, 303 and 309 Jefferson Avenue, from Residential-1 to Commercial-1, allowing her to further develop the business.

She would like to add a drive-thru service window for golf carts and provide additional outdoor seating.

The property previously was home to a similar business, Kool EatZ Ice Cream and Sandwich Shop, from 2015 to 2020.

For about 50 years before that, the property was a barbershop, which set the precedent for Kool EatZ to be granted a zoning variance in September 2015 to operate in the residential area.

Kool EatZ had about 10 indoor seats and some outdoor seating; Baker proposes eliminating the indoor seating, expanding the outdoor seating, and adding the drive-thru.

Interim Planning and Zoning Administrator Katie Nunez recommended denial of the application on the basis that rezoning the two parcels in a residential neighborhood "opens up the property and the neighborhood to all of the uses allowed by-right in the Commercial-1 district," her report stated.

The zoning application also has received open criticism ahead of the public hearing scheduled for April 15.

Two public comments referencing on the application were read into the record during the March 18 town council meeting.

Jim Granger said a residential neighborhood is not compatible with commercial zoning, which the Cape Charles zoning ordinance states is characterized by "heavy traffic, noise, and congestion of people and passenger vehicles and by large retail establishments."

Ellen O'Brien noted that additional outdoor seating and a golf cart drive-thru are not necessary to the operation of the business.

She also asserted that the golf cart drive-thru could pose a hazard to pedestrians and bicyclists walking and riding along the two-way street and crossing at the corner.

The Cape Charles Town Council will not make a decision regarding the zoning application until both the Town Council and the Cape Charles Planning Commission hold public hearings on the matter.

Gloria Ann Larson

Mrs. Gloria Ann Larson (nee Peno), formerly of Cape Charles and Eastville, passed away in Bethesda, Md., Feb. 12, 2021.

Gloria was born May 21, 1931, at the family home in St. Albans, Vt., to William, a railroad worker, and Helena (Mayo) Peno, a homemaker. As a child, everyone knew her as "Honey," but as the years passed and grandchildren came along, she was more commonly known by the nickname, "Gigi" (Grandma Gloria). She graduated from Belkows Free Academy in St. Albans, where she excelled in academics and led the high school basketball team to the state championship.

Ten years younger than her twin sisters, she was often enlisted to babysit, but also relished annual shopping trips to New York City each year with her mother. Summers were spent at the family camp at Lake Champlain, while winters provided the opportunity to drive across the lake to Upstate New York. She moved to Washington, D.C., after high school and worked as a debriefer for the Voice of America when it was under the auspices of the United States Information Agency.

According to legend, she had a roommate in Washington who talked incessantly into the late-night hours, so Gloria learned to sleep with her eyes open. Perhaps it was this skill that led her to become known for her artful and uncanny winking ability. During this time, she met Leon Morris Larson, a University of Missouri School of Journalism graduate heading to Hong Kong on government assignment (no doubt smitten by the wink). The couple married in 1954, celebrating two wedding anniversaries each year – one on the date she was legally married to Leon by proxy in Washington and another on the date the couple subsequently wed in Hong Kong.

Gloria was determined to complete their family by the time she was 30, which was accomplished four days before that mile marker with the birth of her fourth child. After marrying, her life's work focused on family and raising four daughters who were born in quick succession within five years.

She was a tireless homemaker who made lifelong friends wherever she ventured. She loved jade plants and African violets, rearranging furniture, and The New York Times crossword puzzles. She also loved to make everyone feel at home, and to pamper her children and spoil her grandchildren. A cancer survivor, Gloria was a determined woman of formidable strength. She could be as proper as a debutante and as salty as a sailor, often in the same moment. This skill exuded charm and elicited both envy and respect from anyone who happened to be in her presence, usually while enjoying some Pete Seeger, Joan Baez, Johnny Cash, or Edith Piaf on the old Garrard turntable.

The family moved often as her husband's career took them across the country and around the world. Some of the places she called home before she and Leon retired to Virginia's Eastern Shore included not only Hong Kong, but also Zama, Japan; Corte Madera, Calif.; Central Missouri; Alexandria, Arlington, and Virginia Beach, Va.; Canton, S.D.; and Omaha, Neb.

After the death of her husband in Cape Charles in 1992, Gloria relocated back to Washington, D.C., until serendipity led her to return to Hong Kong, where she and Leon began their journey. It thrilled her to see the changes of those past 40 years, as well as to once again enjoy the peak-top views of the harbor from above the clouds.

Gloria returned to the states more than a decade later to be nearer to her daughters and grandchildren. Most recently, she had resided at a ManorCare home since 2013, where she enjoyed holiday visits with family in the area and daily visits year-round.

In addition to her husband, Gloria was predeceased by her parents; sisters, June Stearns (Walla) and Janice Massa (Angelo); niece, Mary (Massa) Myers, her husband, Steven, and their children, Jade and MacAlister. She is survived by four daughters: Tina Larson, of Fort Walton Beach, Fla., Laura Mulcahy (John), of Alexandria, Va., and Hong Kong, Ceri Danes (Mark), of Clive, Iowa, and Wendy Larson Carnermark (Jonas), of Bethesda; 11 grandchildren; four great-grandchildren; three nephews and one niece.

The family wishes to express its sincerest gratitude to the staff of ManorCare Potomac for their years of dedication to Gloria, especially during the most challenging days of the pandemic. While a lockdown of long-term care facilities across the country prevented regular visits during her last months – a fact that is recognized with deep awareness and heavy hearts – the family appreciates those charged with her care and especially the video chats they facilitated.

Details of a memorial service in Cape Charles will be announced once it is safe to gather. Arrangements are being made by Fox Funeral Home in Temperanceville. Memorial contributions can be made to Steven A. Myers and Mary Myers Scholarship Fund Trust, c/o Mark Massa, 7130 Old Farm Road, Littleton, CO 80128, or in the form of PPE to HCR ManorCare Potomac, 10714 Potomac Tennis Lane, Potomac, MD 20854.

Re-Entry Program Helps Inmates Connect to ESCC and Prepare for Jobs After Release

Re-entry commencement exercises were conducted by the Northampton County Sheriff's Office at the Eastern Shore Regional Jail Friday, Feb. 26.

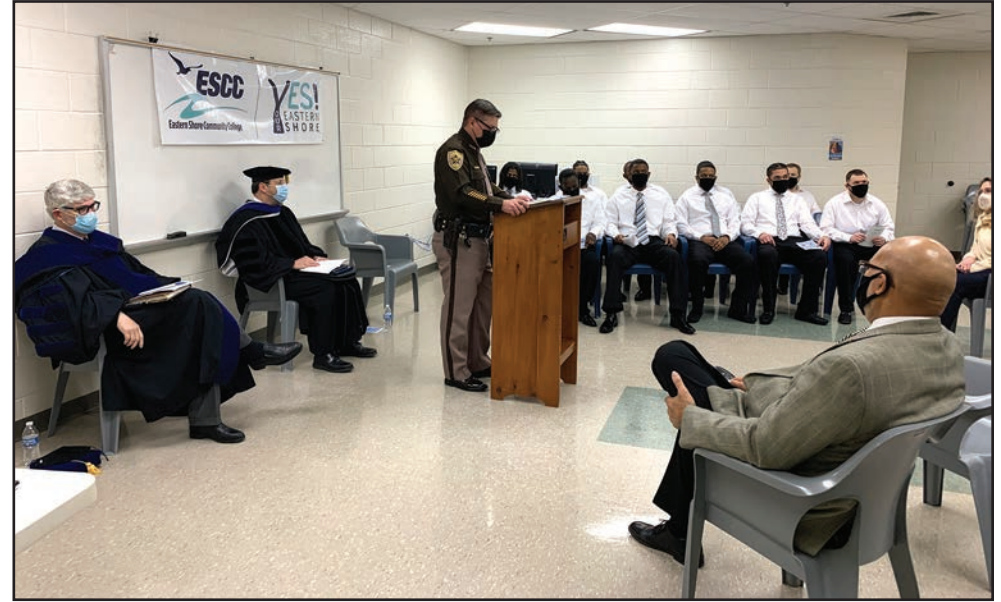

Presentations for three female inmates and 10 males were overseen by Sheriff David Doughty and Captain Roger Kennedy, with participation from Eastern Shore Community College and Eastern Shore Community Services Board. Both partnered with ESRJ to create the re-entry program and provide skills and knowledge to prepare individuals for success as returning citizens.

Standing in for the director of the re-entry program, Chaplain Kelvin Jones, was the program coordinator, the Rev. Vincent Thomas, who provided the scripture and invocation, followed by greetings and acknowledgements by Sheriff Doughty. Both programs included reflections by a graduating class member, followed by the keynote speaker, ESCC President James Shaeffer. ESCC Vice President Patrick Tompkins oversaw the presentation of successful participants, while special presentations were made by program instructors, Cheryl Rein, Amy Shockley, Lynn Wajda, and Chrystal Roughton, ESCSB peer recovery specialist. Captain Kennedy provided closing remarks to the successful participants. More than 50 family members and friends attended the event virtually.

The goal of ESRJ's re-entry program is twofold: increase public safety and reduce the rate of recidivism. A primary focus of re-entry is to reduce barriers to successful re-entry so motivated individuals can learn skills leading to jobs, acquire stable housing, support their families, and strengthen the community.

The partnership reflects Your Eastern Shore Community College's YES! culture of hospitality, inclusion, and accountability. Tompkins commented, "We are grateful to ESRJ for including the college in this program." Shaeffer added, "Our adult education staff and instructors are devoted to this program, its values, and its outcomes."

All participants in the program are also an ESCC cohort and are enrolled students of the college. Upon their release, they will be connected with an ESCC success coach so they can continue their educational and career pathway at ESCC.

5% Pay Raise in Northampton Budget

By Stefanie Jackson

Northampton Finance Director John Chandler presented the county's proposed expenditures for fiscal year 2022 to supervisors March 23, totaling nearly $35 million from the general fund.

Chandler noted the county is positioned to have a balanced budget based on the FY 2022 projected revenues he reported previously and the proposed expenditures he reviewed Tuesday night.

Among the highlights of the proposed expenditures, Northampton plans to give county employees a 5% raise in the upcoming fiscal year.

Virginia's budget includes a 5% raise for constitutional officers and other positions funded by the state compensation board, and Northampton plans to provide an equivalent pay increase for its regular county employees.

The 5% raise for regular employees will consist of a nearly 2% cost of living adjustment and two step raises of 1.5% each, at a cost to the county of about $500,000.

When preparing the budget, county staff have remained focused on providing "equitable pay for all employees," Chandler's report stated.

Supervisor John Coker asked if that meant the county intends to pay its employees living wages.

County Administrator Charlie Kolakowski called the living wage an "ill-defined term" but said the county has been implementing the recommendations from a compensation study done last year, and it's progressing toward "people getting paid what they deserve."

He noted all county employees are paid more than the federal minimum wage of $7.25 per hour.

Chandler added that the state minimum wage will be $8.50 per hour starting May 1, and it will increase to $11 per hour in January 2022.

Northampton will save about $88,000 on its contributions to the cost of employee health insurance "because our rates actually went down, which is awesome," Chandler said.

The county must contribute at least 80% of the cost of individual employee health insurance.

Northampton will save money on employee health insurance and individual costs will remain unchanged.

Chandler explained the individual costs will stay the same because employees in the wellness program pay only one penny for single employee health insurance, so the cost cannot drop any lower.

That price is for the cheapest health insurance plan that has a $1,000 deductible, Chandler said.

Northampton will spend about $4 million more from its general fund in FY 2022 because it will receive more revenue, he pointed out.

The county will receive $2 million in state funding to improve the former Northampton Middle School building, which supervisors are interested in converting into a community center.

About $1.2 million in additional revenue will be generated by a new sales tax.

Northampton citizens voted in November 2020 to approve an additional 1% sales tax that will raise capital funds for building improvements and new construction at Northampton's middle and high school complex.

The harbor improvement fund also is expected to increase $463,000 due to anticipation of the receipt of two Virginia Port Authority grants, one for $475,000 for a parking lot at the Oyster harbor, and another for $54,000 for a restroom at Morley's Wharf.

The Eastern Shore Regional Jail's operating budget will increase by about $135,000 or more to contract housing for inmates from Bristol, Va. About 20 inmates are expected, but if more are housed, the budget will be amended accordingly.

Chandler adjusted the FY 2022 revenue projections he had made in a previous presentation to include an additional $2.8 million, including the $2 million for the old middle school.

Based on year-to-date tax collections, he projected that in FY 2022, Northampton would receive not 95% but 97% of all real estate taxes owed, giving the county an additional $513,000 in revenue.

Likewise, Chandler projected that the county will receive not 82% but 87% of personal property taxes owed, providing more than $148,000 in additional revenue.

He also projected $50,000 more in sales taxes and $25,000 more in police fines.

Court Postings By Nancy Drury Duncan

Accomack County Circuit Court

A man who was remanded to jail last week for admitting to a judge he would test positive for drugs that day has opted to participate in the state's first offender program.

Walter Leon Ayres III, 22, of Parksley, pleaded guilty last week to possession of oxycodone in a plea agreement with the commonwealth. He told Substitute Judge Joseph Canada he had a drug addiction problem. The judge revoked his bond, continued the case, and ordered Ayres to jail.

In court again this week, defense attorney Thomas Northam said his client wished to participate in the first offender program. Judge W. Revell Lewis III explained the program to Ayres and told him to return to court on March 17, 2022. He told Ayres he will not be convicted of a felony if he successfully completes the yearlong program.

Kelly Waneta Fowler, 41, of Melfa, will spend one year in jail after having been convicted in a December 2020 bench trial of two counts of distribution of cocaine.

A confidential informant known to Fowler made two drug buys on the same day. The drug buys were audio and video recorded by the Eastern Shore Drug Task Force and shown at Fowler's trial.

Fowler's mother testified her daughter was needed at home to take care of her three grandchildren as the children's mother had recently been incarcerated. She said she also needs her help with her own health issues. Defense attorney Kenneth Singleton asked that his client be given a suspended sentence. "They are all relying on each other with very little income."

"This is a very serious matter," said Judge Lewis. He sentenced Fowler to six years on each count with five years suspended. The sentences are to be concurrent. He ordered Fowler to be on indefinite probation and to be on good behavior for five years.

Lisa Ann Villareal, 46, of Atlantic, pleaded guilty to possession of cocaine.

In November 2020, a deputy saw the defendant sitting in a Ford van late at night with headlights off at an intersection in Mappsville. When he approached the vehicle, he saw Villareal reaching around the seat. She told him she was having car problems.

The officer noticed a metal crack pipe on the seat and placed her under arrest, said Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Michael Baker.

"She told him she had a drug problem and needed help," said defense attorney Carl Bundick.

Villareal is set to be sentenced June 3.

Corey Nequan Reid, 29, of Eastville, will spend one year and six months in jail for violating the terms of his probation.

"He has tested positive for cocaine and THC and has new criminal charges pending," said Commonwealth's Attorney Spencer Morgan.

"He went to all his probation appointments and did not abscond even when he knew he would test positive," said defense attorney Kelly Vasta. "He needs help to do the right thing."

He was ordered to be on indefinite supervised probation and five years of good behavior.

As people increasingly read and listen to books on their smartphones or tablets, they are discovering one of the best resources is the local public library.

Registered Eastern Shore Public Library users can access a wide selection of popular e-books, audiobooks, and e-magazines free anytime during the day or night from anywhere with internet access. With a library card, members of the community can borrow from ESPL's digital collection by downloading the free Overdrive app, called "Libby," from www.libbyapp.com or your smartphone device's app store.

Libby seamlessly connects first-time users and experienced readers with the ESPL's digital collection. Listening to audiobooks is a great way to "read" after a long day of staring at a computer screen. Due to budgetary constraints, ESPL has decided to move away from print magazines. The Library of Virginia has subscribed to 2,400 digital magazines, which are available to borrow on Libby, including the latest issues.

Before purchasing a magazine, consider using Libby first, which could save you money. Digital magazines also let you easily take a screenshot of articles, which is great for collecting recipes and home improvement tips. Random Facts About ... Perfume, Ambergris (Whales Again!), and Subtlety

By David Martin

When we opened our internet tubes this week, a bouquet of smells came out: springtime blossoms and Lysol cleaning spray.

With days warming, flowers blooming, and the sense-of-smell-robbing coronavirus on the decline (fingers crossed), maybe it's time to consider the history of perfume. People have been creating it for thousands of years for hygiene, for ceremony, for romance, to distinguish social rank, and for the joy that a pleasing scent gives. Archeologists have discovered evidence of perfumes dating back 4,000 years, and the first recorded evidence, a cuneiform tablet from 3,000 years ago, shows Tapputi, a Babylonian, as the first known perfumer. She is also the earliest known chemical engineer, and her references to a still, used in perfume making, are the first in recorded history.

A staggering array of ingredients have been used in making perfumes through the years: Grasses, blossoms, spices, fruits, roots, frankincense and myrrh (tree resins that are two of the three gifts of the Magi), and — in modern perfumes — a list of petrochemicals that you'll never see in one of those barefoot-beauty-inan-evening-gown perfume commercials.

Clearly the strangest ingredient used in perfumes is ambrein, an odorless liquid distilled from ambergris, which is produced by sperm whales as a byproduct of their digestive systems dealing with beaks and other indigestible parts of the squid they eat. And here's where it gets strange: Ambergris, once thought to be hardened sea foam, which it resembles, exits the whale either by the front or back door (that issue is still being debated) and then floats on the ocean sometimes for years, becoming whiter, less stinky, and purer with time. The purity has to do with the ability of ambergris (or, more accurately, the ability of ambrein distilled from ambergris) to fix a perfume's scent and make it last longer. In January, the New York Post reported that a 15-pound piece of ambergris found on a shoreline in Thailand was estimated to be worth $230,000. In 2016, a much larger chunk of ambergris (176 pounds) was dragged in by fishermen from Oman who were offered $2.8 million by a Saudi trader. There are many similar stories of beachgoers from England finding carry-home pieces of foul-smelling ambergris that they ended up selling for anywhere from $10,000 to $50,000.

Because whales are endangered and because no one wants to encourage the killing of whales to try getting ambergris before it makes its exit and because ambergris substitutes can be produced in the lab, the possession and trade of ambergris are banned in many parts of the world.

Now that you have purchased or been given a nice bottle of ambergris-free perfume or cologne, how do you wear it, as they say in the trade? On the pulse points so that the warmth of your blood will excite the aroma — inside your wrist, at your throat, behind your knee, even on your ankle. Should you dab the scent on the inside of each wrist and then rub your wrists together like a hod carrier about to tackle a brick wall? Oh non ma chérie, you will bruise the scent. Once it descends upon the skin, it must not be fussed with but allowed to breathe and yield its gift to the world. Do not wear the same scent several days in a row so that you become too accustomed to it and unappreciative of its subtleties. You love that delightful bottle the perfume came in but the qualities of the scent will last longer if the bottle is kept somewhere cool and dark. The main advice for wearing a scent: BE SUBTLE! Just a hint, a note, a whisper. Your perfume or cologne should not march in with you like a brass band announcing your presence but should be barely noticed and then linger when you depart, a faintly recalled memory.

Employees have been fired for refusing to stop wearing scents that have bothered their co-workers, and employers are trying to figure out how to accommodate workers who are either irritated by the perfumed products of their colleagues or actually allergic to those products. Allergies to fragrances can be a disability under the Americans with Disabilities Act.

To avoid action under the ADA, we stick with cheese and moldy bread, a combination pleasant to all fragrance palates.

Last Week's Winner

As proof that Carol Wehner, of Belle Haven, loves challenging puzzles, here she is with one that had 1,000 pieces. The osprey-eyed contest typically has only six clues but Wehner said she enjoys "the challenge of the Post Osprey puzzles, too." We hope she also enjoys the $25 gift certificate to C.D. Marsh Jewelers in Onancock that she was randomly selected to win.

Runners-Up

At 96, Dorothy White, of Onancock, not only solved the puzzle but showed up at the Post's office to verify her entry in person with Post editor, Connie Morrison.

Runner-up Richard Marshall, of Atlantic, is proud of his daughter, Annalise, on her first day of soccer.

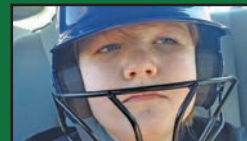

That's Brooke Byrd-Joynes, of Wachapreague, in the bunny suit, at the Island House restaurant in the pre-pandemic world of 2019.

Runner-up Domonique Custis, of Cape Charles, had the perfect caption for this happy pileup – she called it, "My everything."

Marion Basford, of Alum Bank, Pa., said with warmer weather, "I can come down and enjoy my get-a-way property on the Eastern Shore of Virginia."

Master Naturalists Plant Wax Myrtles in Expanded Magothy Bay Preserve

Above: Wax myrtles wait to be planted.

Right: Tractors with augers attached are ready to dig holes for the wax myrtles.

Submitted Article and Photos

The Magothy Bay Natural Area Preserve has recently been expanded by the Department of Conservation and Recreation's acquisition of 125 acres.

Led by DCR's Eastern Shore Region Steward Dot Field and DCR's Coastal Operations Steward Richard Ayers, Eastern Shore Master Naturalists have planted about 75 acres of the newly acquired land with native, southern wax myrtles (Morella cerifera).

As part of the DCR's habitat restoration efforts, the fragrant wax myrtles will provide additional food and habitat for migratory temperate and neo-tropical songbirds on the Lower Delmarva Important Bird Area.

As the plants grow, goldenrod and other native wildflowers will naturally establish in the fields among the shrubs and provide habitat for butterflies and other pollinators. Resident birds will have year-round shelter and food in the fall. Migratory songbirds will be able to stop, rest, and feed on the wax myrtle berries during fall migrations.

For those seeking easy hiking and a restoring, relaxing experience of nature, Magothy Bay preserve has mown trails through the songbird habitat into a maritime forest onto an old dike along the extensive salt marshes. Barrier islands are visible beyond the marsh and the lagoons. Numerous birds are often encountered along the trails, including hawks, bald eagles, herons, egrets, ibises, gulls, and terns, as well as frogs, turtles, and butterflies.

For more information, see the DCR/Natural Heritage website at www.dcr.gov/natural-heritage or the Eastern Shore of Virginia Master Naturalist website at www.masternaturalistesva.com

Even Exchange by Donna Pettman

Each numbered row contains two clues and two 6-letter answers. The two answers differ from each other by only one letter, which has already been inserted. For example, if you exchange the A from MASTER for an I, you get MISTER. Do not change the order of the letters.

PUZZLE CARD

PUZZLE CARD: Postman Pete challenges you to draw the above envelope using one continuous line that never crosses itself at any point.

TWO QUICKIES! (1) The gym teacher wanted the boys and girls to line up as follows: Behind each boy would be a girl and behind each girl would be a boy. What is the smallest number of children needed to do this? (2) What two-digit number is equal to twice the product of its digits?

Answers: (1) Two. One girl and one boy standing back to back. (2) 36. The product of its digits (3 times 6) is 18. Two times 18 equals 36.

ANIMAL PAIRS: In the diagram at right we have 14 words that we want you to pair to form seven two-syllable words of varying lengths. The words on the left provide the first syllable and the ones on the right the second syllable.

A good way to start is to take the top word at the left, find a compatible word at the right and draw a line connecting the two. Move to the second word, etc.

Vikings Say Farewell to Seniors, Win Big Over Kenston Forest

The Broadwater Vikings defeated Kenston Forest from Blackstone, Va., last weekend, March 20, in Exmore. Senior Day for the Vikings honored 10 seniors who found the end zone eight times in the game. Seniors Tucker Arcos, Brant Bloxom, Cole Celli, Caleb Floyd, Jonathan Graham, Gunnar Gustafson, Miles McIntyre, Reade Nicolls, Cain Taylor, and Clay Wardius have been playing football together for seven years and have completed their final game in Exmore victorious. The large senior class is one of the factors that had the Vikings switch to the eight-man league. With 24 players on the roster, the most players the program has had in recent years, the roster will be cut almost in half as the 2021 class departs.

Four of the Viking seniors are coming off Broadwater's first boys basketball metro conference championship and have helped guide the Vikings to a 3-0 start. All-state player Gunnar Gustafson leads a team that averages almost 50 points a game with 16 total touchdowns. He set a season record Saturday running, catching, and throwing the ball for the Vikings, finishing the game with six touchdowns.

The Vikings opened a high-scoring first quarter with Brant Bloxom putting the ball right in the cradle of Gustafson's arms for a 31-yard touchdown pass. Their 2-point attempt fell short and the Vikings took the lead 6-0. The Kavaliers quickly responded with a touchdown of their own after a missed tackle allowed a quarterback keep to go for a 26-yard score. Quinton Hawkins then ran the 2-point conversion giving the Kavaliers the lead 8-6. Broadwater then responded with a senior-to-senior connection when Bloxom hit all-state Clay Wardius for a 51-yard catch and run to the house. The two teams then traded touchdowns throughout the first quarter as offense efficiency was high before a shift to defense in the second quarter.

Defenses began to pick up in the second with Bloxom throwing two interceptions and Kenston Forest leading most of the quarter. The senior redeemed himself toward the end of the half on defense picking off Kendall Thorne deep in Kavalier territory to set up Gustafson's 10-yard touchdown carry that gave the Vikings the lead 36-32, at the half.

Catch me if you can: Gunnar Gustafson runs in his sixth touchdown of the game in the fourth quarter.

Senior Day brought out the best in the Vikings' seniors as they strung together a tremendous second half both offensively and defensively. The Vikings' special teams began the half recording a turnover on the opening kickoff. Broadwater then converted defense into offense with another 5-yard rushing touchdown from Gustafson. Senior Reade Nicolls came up frequently by the game announcers as Nicolls powered through the Kavaliers' offensive line, making contact and applying pressure to the backfield. The Vikings' defense was firing on all pistons as it wrapped up and tackled in numbers taking away all the Kavaliers' momentum in the half.

Broadwater would find the end zone two more times with a Cole Celli 14-yard touchdown reception and another Gustafson rushing touchdown. The Vikings allowed only one more touchdown and outscored the Kavaliers 20-8 as Broadwater cruised to a 56-40 win, giving the Kenston Forest its first loss of the season. The Vikings will be on the road for their last game of the season as they travel to Powhatan March 27 for a 2 p.m. kickoff against Blessed Sacrament-Huguenot.

Senior Brant Bloxom gets it done on the ground with a 46-yard quarterback keep in the fourth quarter.

Jackets Sweep Broncos in Back-to-Back Games

Charlotte Henderson delivers a kill from the middle in the second set. The junior finished with nine total kills in the games against the Broncos.

This year's team is young with several sophomores in rotation and is highlighted by a strong serve game that overpowered the Franklin Broncos in back-to-back games. "If you can battle through the first three servers, then you have a very good receiving team," said Doughty of her Jackets. Northampton first faced off against Franklin on their home court March 17. Northampton defeated the Broncos in three straight sets (25-19, 25-6, 25-19). Jacqueline Santos Maldonado led the team in kills with six and served three aces, while Lyeric Brickhouse and Charlotte Henderson followed with five kills each. Senior Emily Kellam led in serving with five aces followed by Mallory Hook with four.

The Lady Jackets then squared off against the Broncos on their homecourt in Eastville, March 22, on Senior Night. Seniors Cassidy Chapman, Jada Giddens, and Emily Kellam were all honored and recognized before the start of the game. Coach Doughty spoke highly of her

This season is unlike any other for the Lady Jackets volleyball team as the team is now on the backside of its mini season. Head coach Cathy Doughty has held a positive outlook on the season and her team this year as Northampton is the only school outside of Broadwater to hit the volleyball court. "Got to hand it to my principal, Mike Myers, Athletic Director JT Edney, and our Superintendent Lawrence for allowing the players to participate," said Doughty. "Kids are so excited to have an opportunity to play. Attitudes have been great." The Jackets are now 3-3 and currently sit in fifth place in Region A behind Matthews High School.

senior class. When asked what will be missed most, Doughty said, "Their character. Great kids to be around." She spoke about the team spirit of player Jada Giddens, the injured senior who has been sidelined due to a basketball injury last year but still came out daily to work the books. She mentioned how Cassidy Chapman thanked her after every practice and how rare it is to have players do so. Doughty also talked about how Emily Kellam is a unique athlete as well in how little direction she needs and how likes to lead by example.

The Jackets defeated the Broncos on Senior Night for the second time in three straight sets (25-10, 25-11, 25-15). Jacqueline Santos Maldonado led the team in serving, assists, and digs with six aces, 14 assists, and five digs while also adding three kills. Jada Crockett led the team in kills with six, and Peyton Sayers got five.

They'll be back on the court for the final game of the regular season at Southampton, March 31.

Eastern Shore Swimmers Are a Success

Eastern Shore YMCA swimmers had a successful performance at the Upper Southeast Regional YMCA

Championships in Goldsboro, N.C., March 11-14. To address COVID-19 protocols, the meet was swum simultaneously at two locations, Goldsboro, N.C., and Duncan, S.C. The results were combined for the final standings. Points were awarded for top 16 finishes. The four ESY swimmers scored a combined total of 100 points across individual events and relays. The ESY team placed 21 out of 32 YMCA teams across Virginia, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee.

Grace Bentley (15), Sarah Elizabeth Bentley (12), Emma Cathey (14), and Meya Charnock (14) competed in four relays in the 15 and over division at the meet. In the 200 free relay, they placed 14th overall, and they placed 13th overall in the 400 medley relay. In the 400 medley relay, Grace Bentley swam the backstroke leg of the relay, Sarah Bentley swam the breaststroke leg, Sarah Elizabeth Bentley atop the first place podium for 200-yard Breaststroke (2:54.31).

Emma Cathey swam the butterfly leg, and Meya Charnock swam the freestyle leg.

In individual events, Sarah Elizabeth Bentley placed seventh in the 50-yard breaststroke, 11th in the 100-yard backstroke, 13th in the 50-yard backstroke, 10th in the 100-yard breaststroke, 11th in the 100-yard individual medley, and fourth in the 200-yard breaststroke. In Goldsboro, Sarah registered the top performance in the 200-yard breaststroke and was recognized at the meet for first place at that location.

The girls would like to thank the Eastern Shore Family YMCA for their support. ESY provided the lane space for the swim team to safely follow the COVID-19 protocols and practice through the fall and winter five days a week.

A Smokin' Good Fundraiser

Shore Little League volunteers set out to raise $5,000 Saturday, selling smoked pork and seafood to diners who traveled as far as Allen, Md. Proceeds will help the Little League provide free registrations and improved facilities. The league operates out of Randy Custis Memorial Park, in Nassawadox, and held the fundraiser at the adjoining Northampton Fire & Rescue. Photos by Jim Ritch.

Top: Head cook and smoker-owner Ken Blair, left, of Davis Wharf, and assistant Ben Willis, right, of Franktown, check the temperature of pork butts. Blair, a childhood friend of park-namesake Randy Custis, fired up the smoker at 5 a.m. and cooked through about 8 p.m. Custis died in spring of 1978 on a family vacation, the victim of a drunken driver. To this day, the park remains an alcohol-free environment.

Eastern Shore Wildlife Rescue Team Reunites for Eagle Release

Story and Photos by Jim Ritch

Eagle 20-3608 returned home Wednesday, taking flight over the 516 acres of Mutton Hunk Fen Natural Area Preserve after a four-month convalescence for a broken wing.

“He probably has family. We like to say, ‘he’s going home,’” said wildlife rehabilitator Jodie Sokel, of the non-profit Wildlife ER, which helped rescue the eagle.

The eagle’s odyssey began Nov. 20 deep in the woods off Mason Road near Bloxom when Darin Dick, wildlife officer with the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, saw the injured bird on the ground during a routine patrol.

The bird tried to run away, but didn’t travel very far.

“He was not at all happy with my presence,” said Dick.

Dick called Sokel and asked her to join him with a cage, net, and gloves to catch the bird as the two have done before many times.

“This eagle is so lucky; it was way far back in the woods. I don’t know what would have happened to him” without the rescue, said Sokel.

One approached the bird from the front to distract it, while the other used a long-handled net to cover it.

The short wrestling match that ensued was a good sign for the bird’s survival.

“The more fight there is in them, the better their chances,” said wildlife rehabilitator Gay Frazee, also of Wildlife ER.

The first stop for the bird was the Painter clinic of Eastern Shore Animal Hospital and veterinarian Dr. George Marble, who wrapped the bird to stabilize the wing and prepare it for a long, four-hour drive the next day.

The bird rested overnight in a special building at the home of Sokel before traveling to The Wildlife Center of Virginia, in Waynesboro, Va. Licensed wildlife transporter Thum Allen drove up from Hampton to pick up the bird.

When the eagle arrived, a veterinarian saw the broken bones in an X-ray, but described the eagle as depressed and prescribed another night of rest before surgery.

Then, a team of two veterinarians set the broken bone and pinned the pieces together.

Time healed the wing, and the eagle graduated to a 100-foot flight pen, where it proved its flying ability and endurance.

Edward Clark Jr., president of the Wildlife Center, carried the bird to Mutton Hunk Wednesday and told a group of about six local wildlife officials that this bird “best exemplified teamwork,” because of the many individuals who had a hand in helping it.

Clark gave Sokel the honor of removing the hood over the eagle’s eyes, then held the bird for a few moments to let it adjust to its surroundings.

When he lifted the eagle into the air and its wings unfurled, it started a trip of only about 7 miles to the spot where it had been found, presumably near its home.

Father Ed Hunt Reflects on the Resurrection of Hope This Easter

By Carol Vaughn

As Christians around the world prepare to celebrate Holy Week and Easter, the new rector of Holy Trinity Episcopal Church in Onancock reflected on the past year, ravaged as it was by the COVID-19 pandemic.

“We’ve experienced Lent for an entire year. ... So, yes, we’re ready, I’m ready, for resurrection, ... for new life, ... lack of fear,” said Father Ed Hunt.

“So I think our ‘Easter,’ when it comes — whether it’s June or July or whatever — there’s going to be a lot of making up for stuff. There’s going to be all kinds of people gathering and food and barbecues,” he said, referring to the time when it will be safer again to get together as more people are vaccinated and adhere to safety protocols.

“We ... didn’t really realize just how important that was until we couldn’t do it anymore,” Hunt said.

Lent, the 40-day period leading to Easter, traditionally is a time of solemn reflection and sacrifice during which Christians remember the events leading up to and including the death of Jesus Christ.

People often speak of what they will “give up” for Lent. Since the World Health Organization declared COVID-19 a pandemic in March 2020, among the most difficult things people of faith had to “give up” was gathering together — and for much longer than 40 days.

Bishop Susan B. Haynes, Diocese of Southern Virginia, of which the Eastern Shore is part, put it this way in her Feb. 16 Lenten message: “Over the past year we have given up so much — our church buildings, our familiar forms of worship, our frequent face-to-face contact with each other.”

Haynes went on to say, “In this state of exhaustion, we are mindful of our own deep need and longing to be restored and reconnected. And perhaps that’s what this Lent should be — a season of restoration and reconnection.”

Hunt spoke about the connection between Easter’s message of hope and what people have been experiencing during the pandemic — and of a way to think about moving forward in these days.

“There is a theological concept — and it was what Paul and his community wrestled with, especially the Galatians,” which seems particularly applicable this year as Christians prepare to celebrate Christ’s resurrection, he said.

Many of the Galatians, once they embraced Christianity, stopped working and lived it up because they believed Christ’s return was imminent.

But Paul in his epistle to the Galatians called their actions foolish and told them not to stop living and working responsibly in this world while they waited for Christ’s return.

“There’s a concept called ‘the already, not yet.’ The idea of the Resurrection and that Jesus died and rose from the dead and has taken away the sting of death is a reality; it doesn’t mean that there is no longer any death or any suffering. It happened already, but it’s not yet fulfilled,” Hunt said.

Coping with the pandemic at this juncture can be thought of similarly.

“We’re already there — we have a vaccine; we have the means — but we’re not there yet. And it just requires a lot of patience. At a time when our patience is gone, our energy has been sapped, we just have to stay the course — and that’s where community comes in. That’s where people need each other, to encourage each other to keep going,” Hunt said.

Hunt, his wife, Mary, and Mary’s father, Sonny, moved to the Eastern Shore last month from South Dakota.

They may be among the few ministers’ families who arrive who don’t think of the rural Eastern Shore as being off the beaten path.

Hunt’s title during his more than three years in South Dakota was superintending presbyter of the Pine Ridge Episcopal Mission, located on one of the three largest Indian reservations in the United States.

The mission includes nine congregations that were under his care, spread over an area the size of Rhode Island and Delaware combined.

Before the COVID-19 pandemic struck, Hunt would travel 1,500 miles a month to minister to the congregations.

“That was my parish,” Hunt said.

Before moving to South Dakota, Hunt, a 2002 graduate of the General Theological Seminary in New York City, served parishes in New York and Alabama.

Before going to seminary, he taught English literature at the high school and college levels.

He and his wife have two grown children.

There’s a historic explanation, dating to the mid-19th century, for why the Episcopal church had a major presence in South Dakota’s Native American lands.

Vast swaths of the American West were “kind of carved out through President Grant’s missionary initiative,” Hunt said.

Certain denominations were charged with doing missionary work in certain areas — the Episcopalians were assigned the upper Midwest. The church in the 1850s had started sending missionaries to what was then called the Niobrara district, in what is now Nebraska and South Dakota.

The Episcopal church thrived there, likely because the church’s values mesh fairly well with traditional Lakota ideas about spirituality.

“For example, there is baptism in the Episcopal church; (among the Lakota) there’s a naming ceremony after a child is born and the elders come together and they have a big feed and they say prayers. It’s a lot like welcoming them into the household — which is almost exactly what we (Episcopalians) say ... we welcome you into the household of God,” Hunt said.

Similarly, the Lakota coming-of-age ceremony in ways mirrors the church’s confirmation, and there are similarities with other rites, including marriage and funerals.

Lakota culture includes a major emphasis on family. “You can’t let your family down,” Hunt said.

“It was a society which strove for balance — balance with the land, balance with each other. ... The destruction of that culture is just tragic,” he said.

COVID-19 struck Pine Ridge hard, making cherished cultural traditions problematic — especially traditions surrounding the death of a loved one.

“In the culture, when someone dies, there’s a two- to three-day wake before the funeral. ... It’s part of the honor that you do someone,” Hunt said.

The gatherings include taking meals together, praying and singing together, and sleeping in the same space — activities not deemed safe during the pandemic, even as it resulted in more funerals than usual.

“You don’t judge; you honor the culture; you try to learn the language; and don’t try to change anything,” Hunt said.

Pandemic restrictions also affected Eastern Shore congregations in sometimes heartrending ways over the past year, as funerals were postponed or restricted, among other loss of traditions.

The Holy Trinity congregation has not yet been able to host for the Hunts welcoming events churches typically have for a new minister — coffee hours, potluck dinners, and the like.

Worship services until this past Sunday have been recorded and posted online, with the bare minimum of in-person participants, in accordance with the bishop’s safety guidelines.

It is encouraging that the church is to be able to open for in-person worship for Easter, with safety protocols in place. Last Easter, that was not possible.

And, if there is a bright spot in the changes churches have had to make because of the pandemic, it may be that recorded or livestreamed services online are reaching people wherever they are, even when they are not able or willing to come into the church building.

“I am committed, and the church is also committed, to having online worship, even when all of this is over,” Hunt said.

Living through a pandemic no doubt will have lasting effects on the church as well as on society at large. Some of those effects no doubt are as yet unforeseen, as we work to figure out what the “new normal” will be. Will we shake hands again? Will we hug?

Still, the message of Easter, as it has been for more than two millennia now — is with us. There is hope — the hope of “the already, not yet.”

Work Detail Helps With Roadside Trash

Dear Editor:

In response to the “ditch garbage” letter to the editor (“Trash Pollutes Our Treasure,” March 12), the previous sheriff offered a trash clean-up work detail for inmates. I was fortunate to be part of that program in which we averaged 600-1,000 pounds of roadside garbage a day.

I look forward to the same type of program with the new sheriff, Todd Wessells. It truly benefits all of the residents of Accomack County.

Remember, it’s our county. Don’t trash it.

Watson Was Helpful

Dear Editor:

I read your story about attorney Paul Watson IV (“State Bar Revokes Eastville Attorney Paul Watson’s License to Practice Law,” March 6, 2020) and wish that you can publish my comments about him.

Mr. Watson provided desperately needed representation to my nephew that certainly saved my nephew’s life when he was charged and held without access to his insulin shots.

Mr. Watson was able to get him instant access to his medicine and his subsequent efforts resulted in the dismissal of the charges. My nephew might have died while awaiting representation, as at the time Mr. Watson was the only attorney available to represent him. It is a great disservice to the community and to potential clients who will go unrepresented in this community that he has been disbarred.

I hope that justice will be served by a public outcry for the restoration of Mr. Watson’s bar license.

Isaac Sonsino, Westport, Conn.
