COVID-19 Delta Variant Identified on Eastern Shore, Cases Rise

By Carol Vaughn

The Eastern Shore for the past six weeks has been averaging around one case per day of COVID-19, according to a health department official.

The health department is closely monitoring an increase in cases seen over the past four days, said Jon Richardson, chief operating officer of the Eastern Shore Health District, on Monday.

As of Wednesday, the average had risen to five new cases per day.

The delta variant of the virus has been identified among cases on the Eastern Shore, which Richardson said is not surprising.

"The vaccines are still measuring pretty effective against this variant, which is good news. Given its higher level of transmissivity, the main concern would be amongst the unvaccinated," he said in an email.

There currently are four variants of concern in the United States. All four have been reported on the Eastern Shore.

The delta variant is now the most common variant in the United States. It is thought to be 40% to 60% more transmissible than the alpha variant, which itself is estimated to spread about 50% more easily than previous variants.

As of Friday, July 23, the Eastern Shore had reported 13 cases of the alpha variant; two of the beta variant; one of the gamma variant; and three of the delta variant.

A variant of the virus that causes COVID-19 is considered to be concerning when it increases the risk to human health, for example by spreading more easily or causing more severe illness, among other factors.

New COVID-19 cases in Accomack have been increasing for the past 30 days, according to the Virginia Department of Health. The number of new cases in Northampton has been decreasing.

Between June 20 and July 24, the Eastern Shore reported 29 new cases and one death.

Of the total cases, seven were people 19 or under; 10 were age 20-39; seven were age 40-59; four were age 60-79; and one was a person age 80 or over.

Eastville Inn Tenants Face Uncertain Future as County Moves to Month-to-Month Lease

By Stefanie Jackson

Louise Oliver, who runs a catering business out of the historic Eastville Inn owned by Northampton County, was surprised when she learned that the county was considering offering the lease to someone else to run a different type of business.

She was even more surprised that she first learned of the news from not a county official but the minutes of an Eastville Town Council meeting.

"My initial reaction when reading the Eastville Town Council minutes ... was one of shock and disappointment that I should be treated in such an unprofessional manner ..." Oliver said.

"As an excellent tenant of the Eastville Inn and successful business owner I would have expected to be treated with a modicum of respect."

Oliver has run her catering and weekly meal service, Kitchen Sync, out of the first floor of the Eastville Inn for the last six years, with the help of three regular part-time employees and her husband, Stuart Oliver, who has long-standing family ties on the Eastern Shore.

Louise Oliver has dozens of clients who order her pre-made meal items at the beginning of every week, which are picked up or delivered every Friday, ready to bake or freeze. The menu changes every week, blending casual and fine dining fare in what the Kitchen Sync website calls "inspired eastern shore dishes with an international flair."

Oliver, who is originally from Tasmania, Australia, is accomplished in the culinary arts. She has worked around the globe as a private chef and a manager for several large hospitality companies. Her travels and experience lend European and Asian influences to the dishes she creates. Her employees also bring Mexican influences to the table.

She has a long list of corporate clients, and more than 500 private clients, for whom she caters both off- and on-site.

Clients often choose the Eastville Inn for corporate events because it offers more privacy than a restaurant. The inn's most popular dining area is the Glass Room, a dining room enclosed by a glass wall and decorated, like the rest of the establishment, in the federalist colonial style of the late 1700s to mid-1800s.

The Olivers attribute the success of Kitchen Sync in part to its alternate business model, which stands out from its predecessors.

Previous businesses at the Eastville Inn have consisted mainly of restaurants that eventually faltered and were closed, including a restaurant operated by Tim Abraham, of Cape Charles.

Abraham later found success when he opened the restaurant Tim's Place, in Cape Charles, but it appeared that running a restaurant out of the Eastville Inn wasn't meant to be, even for the most aspiring entrepreneurs.

The Oliver's noted aspects of the Eastville Inn that are not conducive to the restaurant business.

The narrow, long kitchen is not convenient for servers delivering orders to guests in the main dining room, but the layout is ideal for preparing catered meals, Louise Oliver said.

There is little to no parking at the inn, and foot traffic in town is light. On a warm, sunny Friday afternoon, only one person walked past the inn in nearly two hours, she pointed out to a reporter.

The town's main street, Courthouse Road, once was part of the main road on the Shore, Stuart Oliver said. The construction of Route 13 divided many of the Shore's small towns, and now most traffic bypasses Eastville's historic courthouse green.

The Eastville Inn was built around 1724 to serve travelers passing through or stopping to do business at the Northampton County courthouse, which has been home to the oldest continuous court records in the U.S. since 1632.

Similarly, the Eastville Inn is thought to be the town's oldest surviving business establishment.

The Eastville Inn operated through the decades and centuries, but business dwindled in the 1960s and 1970s, perhaps due in part to the opening of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel in 1964, which enabled more through traffic via Route 13.

The Eastville Inn fell into a state of disuse and disrepair. The private establishment appears to have become public property around the time Northampton County obtained federal grant funding to restore the historic building, which was reopened in 2000.

Since then, the Eastville Inn has been home to a number of restaurants and also has endured periods of vacancy.

About 2015, Louise Oliver was looking for a commercial kitchen for her catering business that she had been operating for about four years. She discovered the Eastville Inn, which was vacant at the time. Northampton County offered the Oliver's a lease on the inn.

The lease worked well for the Oliver's, but after the initial lease expired, it was renewed on an annual basis, the couple said.

They were told the one-year lease gave more "flexibility" to the county, whose officials were concerned about the amount of rehabilitation the structure still needed.

(The second floor of the Eastville Inn remains empty and unused, except for limited storage, and is stripped down to the floors and framing, with no walls, ceilings, furniture, fixtures, or working utilities.)

A one-year lease agreement was not ideal for the Oliver's, but they carried on their business.

There was another unexpected turn of events when the lease came up for renewal in October 2020, in the middle of the COVID-19 pandemic: Northampton wanted the Eastville Inn open for lunch at least three days a week, primarily to serve county employees.

The Oliver's reluctantly agreed to the new lease terms. Louise Oliver began planning and occasionally purchasing equipment she would need for preparing food to order. She kept tabs on the COVID-19 pandemic through the Virginia Department of Health.

Oliver had settled on the opening date of July 6 to serve lunch every Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday, allowing Friday to remain as the weekly pickup and delivery day for her pre-made meals.

She displayed a sign on the front of the building announcing that Kitchen Sync would be opening soon.

Then Oliver read the minutes from Eastville's May 3 Town Council meeting, which stated that "Northampton County was considering a different direction for the Eastville Inn and possibly a new tenant."

The announcement was made by David Eder, who is both Eastville's police chief and its town administrator, a dual role of which the Oliver's are critical, citing a possible conflict of interest and the potential for corruption. "The lines are blurred," Stuart Oliver said.

The Northampton board of supervisors held a special-called meeting June 23, which consisted of a closed session for the discussion or consideration of the acquisition or disposition of public property – specifically, the Eastville Inn – and consultation with legal counsel on an unrelated matter.

The June 23 meeting minutes state that after the closed session, Supervisor John Coker made a motion to terminate the Eastville Inn's lease Sept. 30, at the end of its current term, and "allow the tenant to lease the property on a month-by-month basis if they so desire."

The motion was seconded by Supervisor Oliver Bennett and passed unanimously.

Through their ordeal, Louise and Stuart Oliver have been provided little explanation or guidance, except for one meeting with County Administrator Charlie Kolakowski.

Kolakowski wrote in a Jul. 29 email to the Eastern Shore Post, "The Eastville Inn is a unique and important asset. ... It is also an old structure that will need to be maintained and will require significant investment to keep it operating. ... The County will be advertising a Request for Proposals for the sale or long-term lease of the facility ... to properly provide for the long term preservation of the property and also provide a vibrant and contributing facility to enhance the Town and County."

Stuart Oliver disagrees with the idea of Northampton selling a piece of history and a public asset. He said selling the inn would "border on insanity" and not be in the county's best interest.

The Oliver's believe they have been good stewards of the inn and have sustained their business, even through COVID-19.

A restaurant may not have survived the pandemic, but Louise Oliver's meal delivery service went "through the roof" and approximately doubled due to new clients who could not or would not eat in restaurants.

The Oliver's serve clients from Exmore to Cape Charles and will deliver any order, whether it's a week's worth of meals for a family or a pint of soup for one person.

Stuart Oliver noted that even during the pandemic, the rent on the Eastville Inn was paid in full and on time every month.

He acknowledged that since Kitchen Sync is not a restaurant, it generates few food and beverage taxes for the town of Eastville. However, he and his wife have maintained the inn, and their business has not caused any trouble and "serves the community well," he said.

Louise Oliver was recently notified that she will be permitted to lease the Eastville Inn through Jan. 31, 2022, enabling her to schedule events for the upcoming fall and winter holiday seasons.

Stuart Oliver will continue to attend Eastville Town Council and Northampton supervisors meetings to make his case to allow the business to continue in its current location and to enter a three-year lease agreement.

The couple also plans to submit a bid for the purchase of the Eastville Inn, even though they doubt the process will be fair.

Louise Oliver is also looking for another location with a commercial kitchen in case their efforts to purchase or continue leasing the inn fall through, even though commercial kitchens are hard to find, she said.

Either way, Kitchen Sync won't be sunk if the Oliver's have anything to do with it.

dividuals; three were Latino; and 22 were White.

One case was in a congregate setting.

The percent of positive PCR tests over the past seven days is 5.6% for the Eastern Shore Health District. The percent positivity has been on the increase in both counties over the past 23 days, according to the VDH.

Around 53% of the Shore's overall population has been vaccinated with at least one dose, and almost 50% is fully vaccinated.

Among adults only, 64% has received at least one dose of vaccine. The percent increases to 84% for Shore residents age 65 and older.

The statistics mean the Shore remains ahead, in terms of vaccination rate, of almost all comparable Virginia health districts — that is, other rural districts with similar socioeconomic profiles, according to Richardson.

Around 26% of Shore residents age 12 through 17 have been vaccinated.

As has been the case throughout the pandemic, Eastern Shore Rural Health is offering vaccine, including to that age group.

Anyone may call Rural Health to make an appointment for their child to be vaccinated, whether or not he or she is a patient there, at no cost.

The Centers for Disease Control in a briefing Tuesday announced updated guidance recommending vaccinated people wear masks indoors in public in certain parts of the country with substantial or high transmission of COVID-19. That includes almost two-thirds of counties in the United States.

Accomack as of July 24 fell into the high category for community transmission of COVID-19, according to the CDC definitions, which are based on county-level data for the number of new cases per 100,000 people and the seven-day test positivity rate. Northampton was in the low category.

In May, the CDC guidance was revised to say vaccinated people did not have to wear masks in certain situations. At that point, the delta variant accounted for only 1% of infections in the country. Now it represents 83% or more, according to the CDC.

The lower than hoped for vaccination rate in the country also likely is a factor in the CDC's revised guidance.

Unvaccinated people should continue masking until fully vaccinated — the same guidance the CDC previously gave.

The CDC COVID-19 county-level data tracker can be viewed at <https://covid.cdc.gov/covid-data-tracker/#county-view>

As of July 26, Virginia health and education officials announced school divisions can make local mask policies based on community conditions and public health recommendations, according to the Interim Guidance for COVID-19 Prevention in Virginia pre-K-12 Schools.

Below are the recommendations from the interim guidance for school divisions to adopt for the 2021-2022 school year:

- Elementary schools (including pre-K classrooms) should require students, teachers, and staff to wear masks indoors, regardless of vaccination status. This recommendation should stay until vaccination is available for children under 12 years old and there has been enough time for children younger than 12 years old to be fully vaccinated.
- At minimum, middle and high schools should require students, teachers, and staff who are not fully vaccinated to wear masks indoors.
- All schools may want to consider universal masking, regardless of vaccination status, for specific reasons as outlined by the CDC.
- All schools should be prepared to adjust local mask policies as local public health conditions change throughout the year.
- Masks must be worn on school buses, per federal order.

Since January last year, at least one in 11 people in Accomack County and one in 15 in Northampton County have been infected with COVID-19, according to the New York Times coronavirus tracker.

At least one in 703 in Accomack and one in 325 in Northampton have died of the virus.

Since the pandemic began, 2,907 cases in Accomack and 807 in Northampton have been reported.

In Accomack, 216 people have been hospitalized and 46 have died as result of the virus. In Northampton, 82 have been hospitalized and 36 have died.

At least one in 10 people in the United States has been infected and at least one in 543 has died during the same period, according to the New York Times.

Cape Charles Delays Zoning Vote for Potential Concrete Plant Expansion

By Stefanie Jackson

The Cape Charles Town Council voted 4-2 at its July 22 meeting to defer action for 30 days on two motions related to zoning that would potentially allow the local concrete plant, Coastal Precast Systems, to expand.

Expecting council members to make a quick decision to expedite a business deal would have been like “putting a gun to the Town Council’s head,” said Kevin Cosgrove, of Norfolk, an attorney who represents several of Cape Charles’ concerned citizens.

Coastal Precast had proposed a set of zoning text amendments that would allow the following by right on property zoned general business/light industrial: assembly and storage of products, and construction of buildings up to 75 feet high with 125-foot setbacks by conditional use permit. Other minor zoning text changes also were proposed.

Southport Investors, a company owned by Eyre Baldwin, had proposed rezoning a parcel adjacent to the concrete plant from harbor to general business/light industrial, so it could be sold to the concrete plant.

Citizens who spoke out on the matter during a July 13 joint public hearing of the Cape Charles Planning Commission and Town Council were concerned that a decision was being rushed without giving elected officials adequate time to study the potential long-term impacts of the zoning changes.

Many of those concerns were repeated during the public comment period of the July 22 meeting, but other speakers offered new perspectives or clarification of their previous statements.

Brandon Mowrey, an employee of Coastal Precast and a representative of Cape Charles Properties, provided more information about the concrete plant’s intended use of the parcel it seeks to purchase, tax map number 90-8-1A1.

Coastal Precast will be involved in the expansion of the Hampton Roads Bridge-Tunnel through leasing land to a contractor who will fabricate 21,000 tunnel liners for the $3.8 billion project.

The requested zoning changes will allow Coastal Precast to provide additional lay-down storage that may be needed for the tunnel liners.

The new zoning also would make Coastal Precast a more attractive potential business partner for renewable energy contractors, particularly those working with any of the 22 offshore wind farms on the East Coast, Mowrey added.

The concrete plant expansion could create 50 to 100 new jobs, he said.

Coastal Precast currently has around 160 employees, and only about 20% of them live across the Chesapeake Bay, Mowrey estimated.

He had previously indicated that Coastal Precast eventually may need to construct a building up to 75 feet tall for wind turbines.

Councilman Steve Bennett reminded everyone later during the July 22 meeting that even if the proposed zoning text amendments were passed, a 75-foot-tall building could not be built on the parcel currently under consideration for rezoning.

However, a building of that height could be constructed on an adjacent parcel zoned light industrial.

Many of the Cape Charles citizens who submitted public comments expressed a desire to see the town’s tourism industry grow, not the concrete plant.

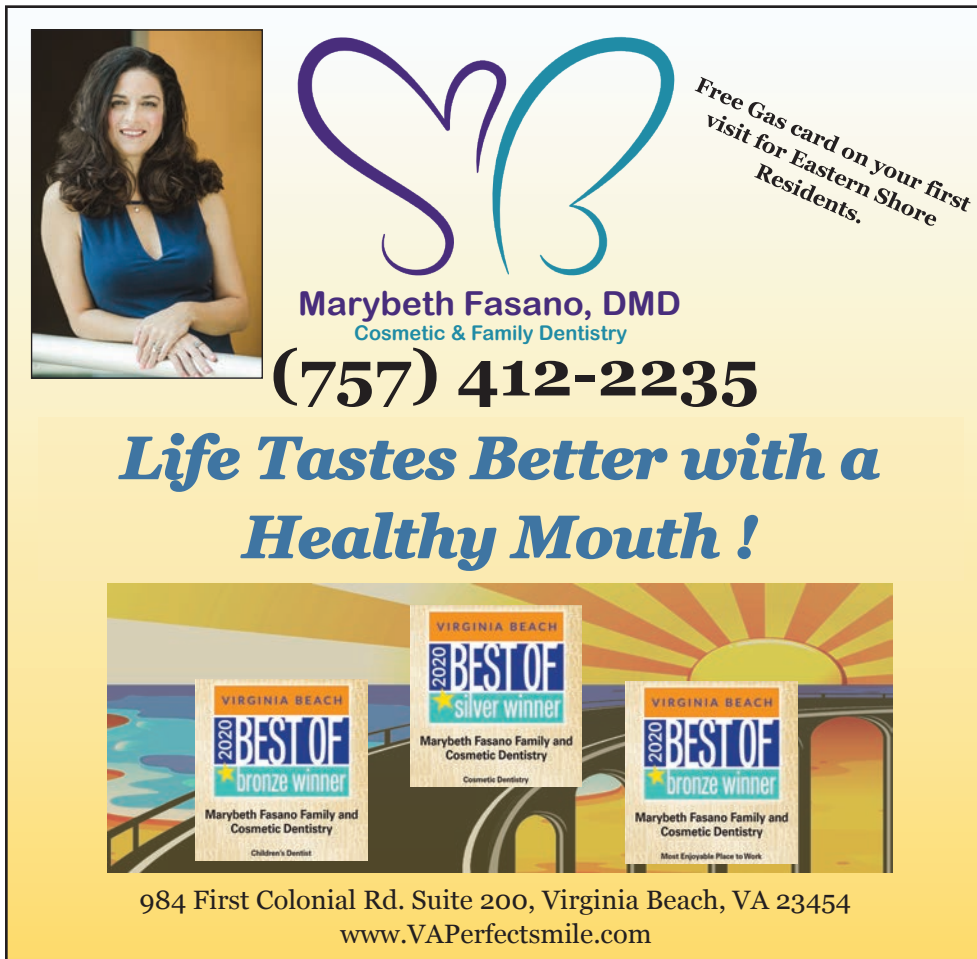

“Who do we want to be ... a charming, family-oriented historic town that appeals to people from all over our country, or a growing industrial complex?” a citizen asked.

Others supported the concrete plant but felt that two months was not enough time to gather public input and study the implications of the proposed zoning changes.

(The Town Council passed a resolution May 20 to advance the proposed zoning amendments to the planning commission, and over the next several weeks a public hearing was advertised, and the town’s interim zoning administrator, Katie Nunez, prepared a staff report that agreed with the proposal.)

Earl “Chip” Moore was the only citizen whose public comment appeared to favor

Accomack Considers Adding 24-Hour EMS Staff at Greenbackville

By Carol Vaughn

The Accomack County Board of Supervisors voted to hold two public hearings to receive comment about adding county positions to make it possible to staff Greenbackville Volunteer Fire Department 24 hours a day and to add positions for backfill staffing, a training coordinator, and human resources.

Greenbackville Volunteer Fire Department requested the county provide paid EMS personnel at the department 24 hours a day.

The department previously was approved to have paid staff Monday through Friday during the daytime.

Still, over the past year, the department has been fully staffed (with two paid county employees during the day on weekdays) only 35 days, according to Charles R. Pruitt, Accomack County director of public safety.

The county currently has three daytime vacancies, which along with employees being pulled out to do recruit training, 24-hour position vacancies, and personnel on extended leave accounts for the gap, Pruitt said.

Greenbackville Volunteer Fire Dept. spends around $24,000 a year of its own money to pay EMS personnel, according to Barry Outten, the fire chief.

Outten during the public comment period at the July 21 Board of Supervisors meeting asked the board to approve 24-hour staffing and said Greenbackville is agreeable to the idea of revenue sharing.

Colby Phillips, senior general manager of Captains Cove, the large community near Greenbackville, also spoke asking for 24-hour staffing.

"Response time is a matter of life or death," she said.

Greenbackville over the last year has not met the county standard of responding to calls within 20 minutes or less on 33 out of 192 calls, and 126 of those calls were handled by another agency, meaning its station reliability was 34%, compared to much higher percentages for other fire companies in the county, including Chincoteague at 94%, Saxis at 82%, Bloxom at 91%, Parksley at 97%, and Onancock at 96%, among others.

Pruitt proposed the county add 12 positions — seven full-time employees, three positions for backfill to cover for employees on leave and vacancies for three shifts, a training coordinator, and a full-time human resources position.

Benefits of instituting 24-hour staffing at Greenbackville include that the county's response-time benchmark would be met; another EMS unit would be added to the northern part of the county; the need for mutual aid from Oak Hall Rescue and Chincoteague Volunteer Fire Co. would be reduced; and likely improved employee recruitment and retention (because most fire and EMS personnel want 24-hour shifts).

At an estimated cost of $794,219, an EMS tax increase would be required in fiscal year 2024 to pay for the additional staff.

"We are very lucky in the county of Accomack that we have dedicated volunteers. We need those volunteers," Pruitt said, but said a training coordinator is needed to coordinate training for both career and volunteer personnel, as well as to train new recruits and provide continuing education.

Pruitt said it takes around nine months to train a new recruit.

The position would cost the county around $83,000 a year including benefits, according to Accomack County Finance Director Margaret Lindsay.

The human resources position is needed because the county since 2016 has added 15 full-time employees to the Department of Public Safety, as well as 10 more full-time employees in other county departments.

Staffing models say the county Human Resources Department should have 3.5 full-time equivalents, plus a director and a half-time administrative support position, Pruitt said.

The department currently has one full-time position, a .25% administrative support position, and a person who splits time between human resources, risk management, records management, and Freedom of Information Act duties.

The position would cost the county around $68,000.

Lindsay said a 2.5 to 3.5 cent hike in the EMS tax would be needed by fiscal year 2024 to pay for the initiative.

The initiative requires a public hearing before it can be instituted.

“You have previously advised us that this board will also need to consider increasing taxes next year because we are at the limit as far as making cuts and so forth,” said Supervisor Robert Crockett, directing the statement to Accomack County Administrator Mike Mason.

“We’re going to be faced with those next March and also be faced with this the following March, two consecutive years,” Crockett said.

Mason said the board could choose instead to increase both tax rates next year.

Crockett said he would like the board to look at the request as two separate items — first, Greenbackville’s request for 24-hour staffing and, second, the backfill, training coordinator, and human resources positions.

“I’d like to be in a position where I can vote on Greenbackville and vote on the others separately,” Crockett said.

He also said he would like staff to research the amount of revenue that could come from revenue sharing with Greenbackville.

“There is no doubt that something needs to be done,” Crockett said.

“Greenbackville deserves this. I think we need to do this,” said Supervisor Donald L. Hart Jr., noting the Greenbackville area’s growing population and its location in the far north-eastern part of the county.

Hart spoke about previous tax hikes to pay for EMS services.

“Not one time in my 40 years (on the board)...have I heard any citizens come and raise Cain about raising taxes for EMTs or fire,” he said, adding, “... I think the public will support it.”

“They came in and asked us to raise their taxes,” Supervisor Billy Joe Tarr said of past requests.

“I think it’s reasonable,” said Supervisor Paul Muhly. “This is probably the most important thing we do as a governing board, is to provide this service to our citizens.”

Other board members also supported the proposal.

Chairman Ron Wolff called the proposal “a first attempt” to address public safety needs.

“Right now, Greenbackville is sinking,” said Wolff, adding, “... We as the leaders of the organization, we can’t afford to have one member drown; everybody’s got to be afloat.”

Mason said the backfill positions are needed to make the plan work.

Broadband Project Areas Changed

The board approved changes to a memorandum of understanding with the Eastern Shore of Virginia Broadband Authority that replace areas already being served by another wired broadband provider with alternate areas where ESVBA will instead expand its fiber-to-the-home service.

The MOU was entered into in February and included around $866,000 in various projects.

It was found since then eight areas originally proposed for expansion are already being served by Spectrum, Accomack County Administrator Mike Mason told the board.

Areas removed from the MOU are on Chincoteague Road, Coal Kiln Road, Daugherty Road, Dogwood Drive, Greta Road, Hacks Neck Road, Redwood Road, and Hillsborough.

Replacing those areas will be projects on Stump Town Road, Justiceville Road, Parks Road, Horntown Road, Bloxom Road, and Holland Road.

The cost of the projects is approximately the same as for the ones originally listed.

The board also approved eligibility guidelines for a broadband installation assistance program offered through ESVBA. The board in February gave $50,000 towards the initiative to help low- to moderate-income residents pay for connecting to ESVBA’s network.

The proposed eligibility guidelines for the Internet Assist Program are:

1. Qualifies for the FCC Emergency Broadband Benefit program using the following criteria and applied at www.checklifeline.org using one of the following four eligibility rules:

a. Qualifies for FCC Lifeline benefits through participation in SNAP, Medicaid, Supplemental Security Income, Federal Public Housing Assistance, or Veterans and Survivors Pension Benefit;

b. Experienced a substantial loss of income since Feb. 29, 2020, due to job loss or furlough and has a total household income in 2020 at or below $99,000 for single filers and $198,000

Food and Beverage Tax

The board approved scheduling a public hearing about instituting a food and beverage tax of 5%, which if approved will affect around 68 businesses in unincorporated parts of Accomack County.

A public hearing must be held before the board can vote on implementing the new tax.

The tax is projected to raise at least $300,000 a year for the county, which could help offset the anticipated cost of a new state mandate to pay overtime wages, which county officials estimate will cost around $241,000.

Northampton County has a 4% meals tax, which raised $329,000 in fiscal year 2020, according to Mason.

Additionally, the towns of Onancock and Chincoteague each have a 5% meals tax, while Parksley and Onley have a 4% meals tax.

The county tax would not apply within town limits.

Opioid Settlement Dollars Coming to Accomack

Accomack will receive a portion of money coming to Virginia as result of settlements and court orders related to opioid lawsuits.

The board approved a resolution approving the Virginia Opioid Abatement Fund and a settlement allocation memorandum of understanding.

Accomack's share is calculated to be .348% of funds in the state's Opioid Abatement Fund, calculated based on opioid-related deaths, emergency room visits, and prescriptions.

The board passed a resolution approving the Virginia Opioid Abatement Fund and a settlement allocation memorandum of understanding with the state.

At least an estimated $107,000 should come to Accomack as result of the initial settlement, with additional settlements likely in the future, according to Accomack County Attorney Jan Proctor.

Attorney General Mark Herring in a press release said Virginia is expected to receive more than half a billion dollars from opioid distributors McKesson, AmerisourceBergen, and Cardinal, and opioid manufacturer Johnson & Johnson as result of a multiyear investigation into the role opioid manufacturers and distributors played in creating and prolonging the opioid crisis in Virginia and across the country.

In total, McKesson, AmerisourceBergen, Cardinal, and Johnson & Johnson will pay $26 billion that will go toward prevention, treatment, and recovery efforts in communities across the country.

Most of the up to around $530 million Virginia is expected to receive will go toward Virginia's opioid abatement authority.

"The roots of the opioid crisis began in the marketing offices and board rooms of pharmaceutical companies like Johnson & Johnson and ran straight into the homes and medicine cabinets of Virginians. Distributors like McKesson, AmerisourceBergen, and Cardinal spread billions of doses of highly addictive opioids throughout our communities, helping to fuel a crisis that has killed hundreds of thousands of Americans and upended the lives of Virginians in every corner of our Commonwealth," Herring said, adding, "No dollar amount will ever be able to bring back the Virginians we have lost to this devastating epidemic, but we can at least dedicate our time and resources to preventing further loss through prevention, treatment, and recovery. Throughout my time as attorney general, one of my top priorities has been to go after the pharmaceutical and marketing companies that created and prolonged the deadly opioid crisis, and I will not stop until all those involved are held accountable."

Tall Grass Ordinance Proposed

The board voted to ask state elected officials to pursue adding language to state law that would allow the county to require residential property owners in the agricultural district to keep their grass cut.

The law would not apply to active farming operations.

"It seems like a big step to take for a fairly small problem, but if that's the only recourse we have, I would like to do this," said Supervisor Harris Phillips, who made the motion.

Supervisor Crockett asked Phillips to amend the motion to include consulting with the sheriff first to seek information about the sheriff's office's ability to enforce the law if the General Assembly passes it.

Accomack Will Help Pay for State Police Equipment for Crash Investigations

The Board of Supervisors voted to pay $5,500 towards the cost of equipment the Virginia State Police uses for crash investigations.

Supervisor Billy Joe Tarr said he, Chincoteague Town Manager Mike Tolbert, and VDOT representatives spoke with a state police official about the need for the equipment.

The Chincoteague causeway after a recent fatal crash was closed for six hours as police processed the scene.

Police told the officials they could have accomplished the task much more quickly if the proper equipment had been available.

Making 'A Tremendous Difference': Group Seeks To Reduce Feral Cat Population

By Carol Vaughn

Leaders of an Accomack County nonprofit group are working to improve the lives of community cats — and to reduce their numbers — by organizing trap-neuter-return events.

After holding its first Neuter Scooter event in June, in which 31 cats were spayed or neutered, the group, Northern Accomack Community Cats, held a second event July 21 in Bloxom.

The Bloxom Volunteer Fire Co. allowed the group to house the cats in a building on the fire station property during the event.

This time, 11 male cats were neutered and 10 females were spayed.

Virginia Beach SPCA employees made the long drive to the Shore for the event.

Margie Spangler and Rebecca Dinger-Tedder are co-chairs of the grassroots organization, which they started in 2019 to address the health and welfare of “community cats,” the preferred term used to describe outdoor, unowned, free-roaming cats, as well as the needs of their caregivers.

For the first six months, they focused on fundraising and getting word out about the organization, before starting TNR efforts in earnest.

To date, the group has spayed or neutered 267 cats, fostered and placed to adoption 38 kittens, and made more than 150 referrals for service for people who are outside the group’s operating location, have kittens they need re-homed, or need services the group does not provide.

Trap-neuter-return is the most humane option for community cats and the healthiest option for humans around them, according to the group.

Trapping and relocating feral cats, rather than neutering them and releasing them back to their original location, does not work in the long run, according to Dinger-Tedder.

Relocation creates a vacuum effect in the area from which the cats were taken, allowing other feral cats to move in.

In contrast, a colony of neutered or spayed cats will keep out other feral cats.

A female cat can come into heat as young as four months old. It is estimated one female cat and her kittens will produce 100 more cats in a seven-year lifespan.

There are around 50 million free-roaming cats in the United States, according to the group.

Northern Accomack Community Cats covers a large area, from the county’s border with Maryland down to Onley, and east to Wattsville.

The group has held two large, three-day TNR events at Trails End, a large community in Horntown.

In addition to the larger events, the group works regularly with Poconoke Animal Hospital twice a week, and on some Saturdays, to get more cats neutered.

They also work with others in the region.

“We don’t stop,” Spangler said.

Northern Accomack Community Cats works with the people who take care of outdoor cats in their neighborhoods, lending them traps and charging just $25 per cat for spay/neuter and a rabies vaccination.

“We teach the caregivers how to trap,” Spangler said.

“If they can, we prefer for the cat caretakers to do the trapping, for two reasons: first off, it lets us get more done because then we don’t have to be on the ground doing it, but also, a lot of the caretakers, their cats know them,” making the trapping process easier, according to Dinger-Tedder.

Laura Chuquin-Naylor and Rhudy Naylor were among those who brought cats to the event in Bloxom.

From a colony that at one time had around 40 cats, the Naylor brought five to be neutered this time.

“It has really made a tremendous difference,” said Chuquin-Naylor of the group’s efforts.

A cat sits in a humane trap as it awaits a veterinarian’s services during a trap-neuter-return event held in Bloxom Tuesday, July 20, by the nonprofit organization Northern Accomack Community Cats. Photo by Carol Vaughn.

Libby Williams, another caregiver, who brought six cats from Deep Creek to the event.

“This is the ending to the situation, because if you get them all spayed or neutered, then eventually...they’ll pass away,” she said.

Ignoring the issue of unowned, free-roaming cats “doesn’t make it go away,” Spangler said.

Dinger-Tedder said TNR is a good solution for both cat lovers and people who don’t like cats roaming their neighborhood.

“I understand the objections to TNR. It’s a difficult problem. This is the most humane, the most useful, solution we have right now,” she said, adding, “The goal of people who don’t like cats and the goal of people who do TNR is the same — we don’t want any more cats to be outside — but it’s a process. It’s going to take concentrated effort. It’s going to take funding. It’s going to take people being on board, whether you love or hate cats, and then we can all get what we want.”

The organization is never without a waiting list and easily could do three times the work being done now if funding and more providers were available, Dinger-Tedder said, adding, “The need is great and the avenues are few on the Shore.”

WHAT IS AN ESTATE "TAG" SALE?

Estate sales take place because someone can no longer keep their stuff, while a garage sale or yard sale is held when people no longer WANT their stuff. There's a big difference.

Our company stages the items in the home to be liquidated, places a price tag on these items and offers them for sale to the public. You come into the home and buy items on the spot. We discount the prices as the sale progresses. Some sales are held over a 2 day weekend & others are a one day sale with prices reduced at the second half of the day. Our goal is to sell everything.

the concrete plant over tourism.

He said Cape Charles can't handle the tourism growth it has recently experienced, with many businesses searching for employees, and restaurants having wait times of an hour or more for service.

"I would rather hear a safety alarm than deal with a rental house full of loud, obnoxious vacationers. I would rather pass a licensed commercial truck driver on the street versus a drunk tourist or a child driving a golf cart," Moore wrote.

He suggested that most of the dust coming from the area of the harbor was due to vehicles driving too fast through a parking lot to the Shanty restaurant and the marina, and some of the noise of heavy equipment could be due to construction at Bay Creek.

Councilman Andy Buchholz made a motion to approve the zoning text amendments, and Councilman Paul Grossman seconded the motion to open a discussion.

Grossman, who is also a planning commissioner, was at odds over the zoning proposal. The concrete plant's planned activities were no more "dramatic" than any by-right use currently allowed in the zoning ordinance. However, Grossman was not comfortable moving forward without seeing a site plan or other specifications from Coastal Precast.

Buchholz spoke in support of Coastal Precast and noted that when he moved to Cape Charles in 2004, the concrete plant (then Bayshore Concrete) was "100 times" louder than it is now.

He did not understand the public complaints about dust coming from the concrete plant and noted that a wind study, which was conducted for the town's breakwater project, showed the wind generally does not blow from the south into town (the concrete plant is on the south side of the Cape Charles harbor).

Buchholz said the local economy must be diversified if the town of Cape Charles is to survive. "We've got to learn how to live together ... all of us," he said.

Councilwoman Tammy Holloway shared Grossman's hesitation to make a decision without more information from Coastal Precast, but she agreed that "a balance of our industry is critical."

Councilwoman Ellen O'Brien observed that many citizens have lost trust in the Town Council. One step in rebuilding that trust would be for Town Council members to listen to their constituents and delay a decision on the proposed zoning changes.

She agreed with Councilman Andrew Follmer's suggestion to defer voting on the matter for 30 days.

A motion to defer the vote passed 4-2, with Bennett and Buchholz voting "no."

The Town Council will revisit the zoning proposals at its Aug. 19 meeting.

OBITUARIES

Athena Anemogiannis

A gentle soul and free spirit, Ms. Athena Evangelia Anemogiannis, 30, died Tuesday, July 20, at her home in Atlanta.

Athena was born Feb. 1, 1991, in Atlanta. Her affinity for nature and experiential learning was very much nurtured at Academe of the Oaks, the high school from which she graduated in 2009.

Athena's gentle presence was soothing to others. Through her years of managing her health problems, she acquired much wisdom. She gave others peace, happiness, and support. No matter how poorly she felt, she was always available to others to help them talk through their own problems and sufferings. Athena was kind and compassionate, qualities she demonstrated in her empathetic care of others, especially her great-grandmother, who died in March 2020. Athena embraced and utilized the healing gifts of nature.

Athena had a natural eye for design and beauty. She loved shopping at junk stores and consignment stores and finding small treasures. She also had an extraordinary ability to bring order to chaos, a gift that was appreciated by those around her who benefited from her organizational skills. No task was too big for her to tackle. In fact, she alone organized and categorized 75 years of accumulated contents from her grandmother's home to support the family's disposition of the property following the death of her great-grandmother.

She was equally proud of her Greek and Southern heritage. Her favorite foods were fresh creamed corn, her great-grandmother's green beans and fried chicken, tyropita, keftedakia, tzatziki, karpouzi, grilled lamb, and almond macaroons. During the summers of earlier years of her life, she enjoyed snorkeling up and down various beaches in Greece where her family vacationed, looking for gifts from the sea – a beautiful stone, a tiny shell, or a lost piece of jewelry. She was a beautiful person in every regard and will be missed by all who knew her.

She is survived by her parents, Kathy and Manos Anemogiannis, of Atlanta; a brother, Alexander Anemogiannis, and Lucy Chen, of California; grandmother, Charlotte Nunnally, of Onancock; and many aunts, uncles, and cousins.

A funeral was held Monday, July 26, at the Greek Cathedral, 2500 Clairmont Road, Atlanta. The family received visitors on Sunday, from 5 to 7 p.m., at the chapel of A.S. Turner funeral home, 2773 N. Decatur Road.

Court Postings By Nancy Drury Duncan

Accomack Circuit Court

Antone Mohammad Beverly, 24, of Philadelphia, pleaded guilty to felony eluding, as well as to charges of reckless driving and driving without a license.

In November 2020, Beverly was driving a Toyota Corolla northbound on U.S. Route 13 near Exmore. An officer attempted to pull him over by activating his lights and siren. Beverly did not pull over and the chase continued into Accomack County at speeds between 100 and 130 mph, said Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Michael Baker. He said Beverly repeatedly changed lanes and passed other vehicles on the road. He was finally stopped in Temperanceville.

Judge W. Revell Lewis III ordered that a presentence investigation report be prepared and set sentencing for Oct. 14.

Jeffery Lee Bromley, 46, of Crisfield, Md., was sentenced to five years for destruction of property and 12 years for larceny, second offense. All that time was suspended. He was ordered to be on good behavior for 10 years.

Bromley broke into outdoor vending machines at T's Corner and at a car wash and took items. He told the court he had had a drug problem but began to seek treatment after he committed those crimes. He said he had not used drugs since a week after the February 2020 incident. He has also paid the $3,150 in restitution.

"Congratulations on your progress," said Judge Lewis.

Ervin Jose Diaz Gramajo, 23, of Parksley, who was convicted in August 2020 of 10 counts of carnal knowledge of a 13-year-old girl was sentenced to 10 years on each count with all but three years and four months suspended. Both the 13-year-old victim, who is a relative, and the defendant told police the acts were consensual, said Commonwealth's Attorney Spencer Morgan at the trial.

Robert Knowlton Bradley, 42, of Horntown, was sentenced to three years with all but time served suspended for possession of cocaine.

He has a long and troubling criminal record, mostly as a juvenile and a young man said defense attorney Tucker Watson. He said his client suffers from mental and physical health issues.

In September 2019, the Eastern Shore Drug Task Force received a tip about Bradley from a person at Trail's End campground. When members of the task force arrived, they saw Bradley leaving. They followed him to Fleming Road where they saw him throw something out of his car and into the parking lot at Dublin Farms. When the item was recovered and tested, it was found to be a glass smoking device containing cocaine residue.

Judge Lewis order him to be on supervised probation for four years and 10 months to run concurrently with probation already begun for another conviction of cocaine possession. He is to be on good behavior for 10 years.

Accomack Electoral Board Appoints New Voter Registrar

Submitted Article

The Accomack County Electoral Board has appointed Angel Shrieves as the next registrar/director of elections for the remainder of the current unexpired term through 2023.

Shrieves will take her oath of office and begin her term Monday, Aug. 2.

The electoral board advertised the position after Patricia White announced her retirement earlier this year.

All applications received were reviewed by the electoral board earlier this summer and interviews were conducted last month.

Shrieves is an Eastern Shore native, graduating from Nandua High School and Eastern Shore Community College, before earning her Bachelor of Science degree from South University, Savannah, Ga., in health care management.

Shrieves has been employed by the

Angel Shrieves

Eastern Shore Community Services Board since 1999 and held a variety of positions within the organization, the most recent being health information management and administrative coordinator.

Dog Stolen in Car Theft Found Safe in North Carolina

By Carol Vaughn

An Eastern Shore family is thankful to have its dog back safe and sound, after a car theft in Onley Monday led to a harrowing couple of days.

The Lewis family's Subaru Outback was stolen from the Walmart parking lot in Onley, with their 8-year-old Lab/dachshund mix, Piglet, inside.

"Everybody was upset. Of course, we were. We just knew she was gone," said Caroline Lewis, of Accomac.

The car was found Tuesday, damaged and stuck in deep mud at a construction site near Greenville, N.C. — a nearly four-hour drive from Onley — but the dog was not there.

Piglet was spotted tied up outside a grocery store in Greenville.

"I never expected to have her home again," Lewis said in a Facebook post

Wednesday.

Shrieves will assume her new position and along with the current staff in the registrar's office will be ready for early voting which starts on Friday, Sept.

Wednesday.

"She was tied in front of a Food Lion store in Greenville for about three hours. A nice young lady saw her and thought 'Something is not right.' She called animal control and we received pictures and confirmed it was Piglet," Lewis wrote, adding, "...We are extremely grateful to all involved in locating Piglet, especially Onley town police and the law enforcement in Greenville."

The Lewises headed to North Carolina right away to pick up the pup, arriving back home in the early morning hours Wednesday.

Caroline Lewis in a telephone interview Wednesday thanked Onley Police Chief Charles McPherson and officers in North Carolina for their efforts to find the dog and the car.

17, for the Nov. 2 gubernatorial election.

Additional information related to Virginia elections can be found at: <https://www.elections.virginia.gov/casting-a-ballot/>

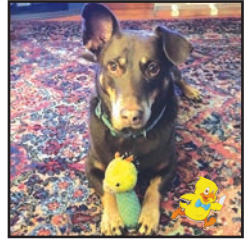

"The Onley police have been really wonderful, very professional," Lewis said.

A Greenville animal control employee who met them when they came to pick up Piglet even texted Lewis afterward to make sure they arrived home safely.

"How many people would have done that?" Lewis said.

She also wants to thank her daughter-in-law, Missy Lewis, who drove with her to North Carolina to retrieve the beloved pet.

Additionally, Lewis' neighbor, Karrie Williams, even brought over a gift bag "full of little treats" for Piglet.

Fishing from the Shore

By Bill Hall

Fishing remains pretty good, in spite of the high water temperatures. Cobia fishing has fallen off slightly, which is typical for this time of year. Big red drum have made a surprise appearance in the surf, something that we do not normally see during the summer months. The speckled trout bite is also starting to pick up in the shallows of the lower shore.

Upper Shore – Captain Matt Abell, at Sea Hawk Sports Center, reported flounder fishing has been productive from the waters just inside Gargathy Inlet, Metompkin Inlet, and Wachapreague Inlet, as well as over the rail cars off Chincoteague Island. He added, triggerfish and spade fish were caught on the inshore wrecks, with flounder coming from around the shallow water wrecks. On the Chesapeake side of the peninsula, Abell said there were still some speckled trout around. He commented that the striped bass bite has improved now that the season in Maryland has closed. Cobia fishing off the upper shore was described as hit-or-miss, but he said the latest Spanish mackerel action was only okay.

Chincoteague – Jimmy Vasiliou,

at Captain Steve's Bait and Tackle, confirmed there is good flounder fishing on the wrecks, with some nice-sized black sea bass also being boated. Captain Joe, on the Rod Buster, had limits of flounder while fishing on the wrecks. Spanish mackerel have been caught by trolling Clark spoons as well as by casting small metal lures to surface-feeding schools. Closer to shore, some large red drum have been beached using fresh cut bait, with some large sharks and rays prowling the same waters, as well as in the deeper water of Assateague Channel and the inlet. In the back bay, a mixture of species, such as kingfish (whiting), spot, pigfish, ribbonfish, croaker, and flounder can be found.

Donna Rae Roeske, at Captain Bob's Marina, reported good flounder fishing is occurring around most of the bridge structures. In the inlet, the canal, and in Chincoteague Bay, croakers, whiting, and pompano catches join the flounder catches. Roeske added, 4- to 6-foot sharks are being caught from the inlet out to Turner's Lump. The subway cars on Blackfish Banks are producing limit catches of large flounder with bonus sea bass catches. Red drum, sharks, whiting, and croaker catches have come from the surf. The shop registered red drum release citations for Renee Ramirez (48 inches) and Greg Arcuri (51 inches).

Wachapreague – Amanda Manzel-la, at the Wachapreague Inn, reported good numbers of flounder are being taken inside the inlet, while limits of larger flounder have been taken daily by guests fishing the Parramore Reef.

Captain Lindsay Paul, of Trident Tackle, reported anglers were catching plenty of flounder inside the inlet during the incoming tide. A lot of the fish are undersized, but limits of keepers are being caught. In addition to the flounder, there are plenty of small croakers, added Paul. He described the flounder fishing on the reef as iffy, with some sea bass also being caught.

Lower Shore – Dez Louie, at Oceans East – Eastern Shore, said that the cobia fishing has tapered off some, as chumming for fish out of Cape Charles yielded a mixed class of fish this week. He blamed the slow down on fish entering the spawning cycle. He said that he expects the action to pick back up post-spawn. Louie said the spadefish bite continues around the islands of the bridge-tunnel and up at the Cell. He recommended chumming with Conch Candy chum to help improve the action. Spanish mackerel have been feeding on surface schools of baitfish and Louie said that the mackerel and ribbonfish are eagerly hitting Gotcha Plugs, Rat-L-Traps, and Clark Spoons. In the shallows, trout fishing has shown signs of picking up with catches made of popping corks and jig/grub combinations.

Jeb Brady, at Bailey's Bait & Tackle in Cape Charles, said flounder fishing around the pilings of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel has been really good over the past week, with anglers reporting limits on 20-inch (and larger) fish using Gulp with cut bait. He said anglers trolling spoons around the big pods of Spanish mackerel off Cape Charles have enjoyed success.

Spadefish and triggerfish action was also described as really good around the fourth island, the Cell, and Plantation Light. He characterized the cobia fishing as good for sight casters and bottom fishing. The lower bayside creeks are starting to produce speckled trout, with fish hitting both live bait and artificials.

Bill Hall was the first Eastern Shore resident to achieve Virginia Salt Water Master Angler Status. He has been named Virginia Saltwater Angler of the Year and Virginia Saltwater Release Angler of the Year and is a Virginia Press Association award-winning sports columnist.

Random Facts About ... Hot Dogs — Conspiracies, Origins, and Overeating

By David Martin

Whenever we open our internet tubes for cleaning, we don't have to look far to find a conspiracy, but we were surprised to find one involving hot dogs and buns. Hot dogs usually come in packs of 10 while hot dog buns are traditionally sold in packs of eight. Is the hot dog conglomerate trying to get you to buy two extra dogs even though you need only eight to insert in the number of buns you have? Or is the bun syndicate forcing you to buy an extra pack of eight buns to cover those two leftover dogs? Did the buns and the dogs get together to cook up this deal?

Turns out, the packaging choices were reached independently and for logical reasons and without the bun colluding with the hot dog nestled within. Meat has traditionally been sold by the pound and it takes 10 normal-size hot dogs to make a pound. Bread products are sold by the count and buns traditionally have been baked in pans with multiple slots of four, so packages of eight and 12 are usual.

This month, Heinz, the condiment giant, is making a big deal out of trying to resolve the dog-bun disparity by sponsoring a Change.org petition to make hot dogs and buns both available in packages of 10. Meanwhile you can buy an eight-pack of bun-length hot dogs. In the classic hot dog-bun situation, the hot dog is shorter than the bun, leaving room for ketchup, relish, and whatever strange concoctions people in Baltimore put on their dogs. But when the hot dogs are larger (bun length), they are bigger so fewer of them make up a pound and you get an eight-pack of bun-length hot dogs that match an eight-pack of buns.

How the classic German sausage, which was created in the 1600s, morphed into the iconic American hot dog is a story with more twists and turns than your lower intestine. At some point in the mid-1800s, German immigrants brought with them to America sausages that they served with bread rolls and sauerkraut. These were called dachshund sausages because they resembled those long, round poches. The food, because you could hold it by the bun, became convenient to eat at ball games and vendors would call out, "Get 'em while they're hot!" Around the turn of the 20th century some crazy college kids were referring to the sausages-in-buns as "dogs" and it wasn't long before "hot dogs" was born.

On the Fourth of July in 1916 (this is one of those, as legend would have it stories), four recent immigrants to America were at Nathan's Famous hot dog stand in Coney Island, N.Y., talking about how they could show their patriotism for their new country. What occurred to them? Show you are true, blue American by eating the most hot dogs! And thus was born the Nathan's Famous hot dog eating contest. The contest has been on the record since 1972. People have 10 minutes to stuff down as many hot dogs as they can, ketchup and mustard optional. Most contestants dip the dog and bun in water to make consumption faster and easier. This year's contest was won by repeat champion Joey "the Jaws" Chestnut. Do you even want to know how many he ate to win? A men's world record: 76 hot dogs and their buns, more than 16 pounds. This year's women's winner was Michelle Lesco, who downed 30.75 hot dogs, well short of the women's world record (48.5) held by Miki Sudo.

If you really want to go off your feed, you should read about competitive eating contests governed by the International Federation of Competitive Eating. Let us peruse the menu of some Major League Eating records:

Osprey-Eye Contest: Using Chicken Puns Should Not Test Your Hen-durance

Last Week's Contest: Diet Hazard: Cake Ahead

The hint was, finding the traffic cones would be as easy as one, two, three — because that's how many qualified cones (those with four red stripes) we had hidden: three, on pages 21, 22 (the one in the middle), and 27. Almost no one was fooled by the disqualifying cones with two red stripes, and of the 62 people who found the right cones, Melissa Sample-Wharton, of Nassawadox, was randomly chosen to win her choice of a Becca's Smith Island cake.

This Week's Contest: Winner, Winner, Chicken Dinner!

In recognition of this week's sponsor, we have hidden little chicks. We're not giving an example, but you can't miss the little cluckers because each one is wearing a blue bow tie and holding an egg. We're also not telling how many chicks are hidden but here's the hint: B-o-j-a-n-g-l-e-s. From among those contestants who find and identify all the chicks by page number and location on the page, one lucky reader will be randomly selected to win the Super Tailgate dinner from Bojangles in On-

ley. See sponsor box on this page.

The rules:

- To become a contestant, find the chicks and tell us where you found each one (page number and location on the page). Send this information to david@easternshorepost.com.

- You can start sending your entries now. Entries MUST have your first and last names and your town.

- Entries will be accepted until noon on Monday, Aug. 2. Entries arriving after noon on the 2nd will not be entered in the contest.

- Do not submit multiple entries.

- Include a photograph if you choose to submit one and tell us a little something about the picture.

- Anyone submitting a photograph must have taken the picture or have permission to use it.

The winner and as many runners-up as possible will get their photographs in the paper. If you don't want to use your own picture, you can submit a photo of your child or a pet — or a fully loaded hot dog, your spouse on a jog, or even a Big Foot inhabited bog. Just no feet.

We thought we were oh-so-clever mixing disqualifying traffic cones (two red stripes) with the three legitimate traffic cones (four red stripes) on the theory we would fool tons of people. We didn't. Sixty-two readers sorted out the right traffic cones and became contestants. Melissa Sample-Wharton, of Nassawadox, was randomly chosen to win her choice of a Becca's Smith Island cake.

BUFFALO SOLDIER

Book, Music and Lyrics by Bruce Craig Miller

Created in association with the Virginia Historical Society

Based on the true story of our nation's longest-surviving Buffalo Soldier and veteran of the Spanish-American War, this dramatic play with music tells the heroic story of the brave soldiers of the 9th and 10th Cavalries, who served our country well with little of the recognition they deserved. In 1996, Buffalo Soldier was one of twelve plays selected as the Best American Plays for Young Audiences and has been performed at the Pentagon in honor of African American History Month. Buffalo Soldier was written by our Founding Producer, Bruce Craig Miller, and developed with support from Lila Wallace-Reader's Digest New Works for Young Audiences, a program of the Lila Wallace-Reader's Digest Fund.

Sailing Regatta Heads to Cape Charles Aug. 14-15

By Matthew Yoder

Sailboat enthusiasts will have the opportunity to witness a collection of vessels from several viewpoints when the 18th annual Leo Wardrup Memorial Cup passes by Cape Charles Aug. 14 and 15.

Hailed by Chesapeake Bay Magazine as the Chesapeake Bay's best regatta, the two-day race features more than 90 sailboats and over 450 sailors navigating a route crossing the bay from Cape Charles to Hampton.

The race is a function of the Chesapeake Bay Yacht Racing Association, and the event is presented locally by the Broad Bay Sailing Association. The goal of both groups is to promote sail training and sailboat racing on the southern Chesapeake Bay.

During the past eight years, $45,000 in proceeds from the race has been donated to Sail Nauticus. Based out of Norfolk, Sail Nauticus is a nonprofit organization which focuses on instructing children in the Hampton Roads area on the merits of both sailing and maritime sciences.

The late Leo Wardrup, for whom the race is named, was a retired navy captain, an avid sailor, and a representative in the House of Delegates.

The race kicks off Saturday, Aug. 14, at 10 a.m., at the north side of the Thimble Shoal Channel, and finishes that day at the Cape Charles entrance buoy. The following day, sailors embark at 10 a.m. from Cape Charles to a completion point off Buckroe in Hampton.

It's the hope of Broad Bay Sailing Association's Bob Magoon that people will come out for the impressive spectacle from a series of vantage points and increase the exposure of the event.

"We have had people on the Shore watch the boats particularly as they come out of Oyster Farm lined up the channel. As we come out, it's a pretty neat parade of boats. We are also down at the city dock so we would welcome more local awareness," said Magoon.

Sailboats compete in the 2019 Leo Wardrup Memorial Cup, an annual regatta benefiting Sail Nauticus, a nonprofit that teaches children about nautical sciences and how to sail.

Safe Boating Tips From U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary Flotilla 12-02

Submitted Article

Virginia conservation police officers patrol the vast and diverse geographical expanses of the commonwealth.

Conservation police officers are fully certified law enforcement officers whose primary role is to enforce the laws related to hunting, fishing, and boating.

Virginia conservation police officers work closely with the U.S. Coast Guard and other marine law enforcement agencies to enforce boating laws and regulations as well as promote safe boating. Conservation police officers help promote safe boating simply by being on the water. They also check fishing and hunting licenses and creel limits, investigate boating accidents, work with other agencies conducting search and rescue operations, and promote boater safety through education programs.

The Virginia conservation police remind everyone that life jackets save lives: They are designed to float; you are not.

Mariners are advised that a crane barge and tug will be conducting emergency repairs to the pier 9 fender system of the North Channel bridge at the southbound span of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel. Repair operations are expected to be conducted during daylight hours through Aug. 2. Captain of the vessels will be monitoring and can be contacted on VHF channels 5, 13, and 16.

These boating safety tips are a public service of Flotilla 12-02 of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary. The auxiliary needs new members — maybe that is you. For more information, call Russell Vreeland at 757-442-7029.

Remember: A boat can take only 30 seconds to sink. Wear your life jacket at all times to keep yourself afloat.

Art League Provides Enrichment for Eastern Shore Students

After setting them up with supplies, Carol Barylski prepares the students to try out new paints on small sheets of practice paper. Submitted photo.

By Adolphus Ames

The Eastern Shore Art League held an art enrichment day this past Saturday at the Historic Onancock School. The event was funded by United Way and divided into two sessions. One from 10 a.m. to noon for high school students ages 12 to 14 and another from 1 to 3 p.m. for students ages 15 to 17.

“We wanted to try something new,” said Carol Barylski, ESAL secretary and event organizer and instructor. “We used to host annual student art exhibits featuring work students completed in their high school art classes. COVID prevented that from happening last year. So, we decided to switch things up and offer an enrichment day for the kids instead.”

During both sessions, Barylski walked students through various painting techniques, including how to double load colors and properly use rubber cement. Then the students created their own artwork using these techniques.

“I really want the students to see that painting is all about the process not the product,” she said. “Creativity doesn’t come when you are overthinking things or overly neat.”

Barylski, a New Jersey native, has had a love affair with painting since her early youth. “I’ve been painting since my mom put a crayon in my hand,” she said. She attended Rutgers University and studied art history and studio art and then worked as an art teacher in Medford, N.J., before moving to the Eastern Shore 30 years ago.

Dottie Troxler, another ESAL member and Chincoteague resident, also developed an interest in art early in life. “Although I’ve always been interested, I didn’t take any art classes in school,” she said. “Truthfully, I have only been painting for 15 years and joined the art league in 2008. I paint a lot of landscapes and practice in plein air, which is sort of like painting outside in the moment.”

Troxler sells her work to venues such as Lemon Tree Gallery and the Eastern Shore Yacht & Country Club. She and Barylski, like the rest of the art league, are dedicated to promoting the visual arts throughout the Shore. Since the league was formed in 1977, its goal has been to welcome artists of all skill and experience levels and form a network of people interested in creating and learning about art.

The rich network was one of several factors that convinced April Flory, graphic designer and former art league president, to move from

New York to the Eastern Shore nine years ago.

“We loved the beauty of the Shore and noticed there was an active art scene, so we knew we could make a home here,” Flory said. “Being in this type of environment motivates and inspires you creatively.”

The league frequently hosts paint-outs, exhibits, workshops, presentations, and holiday luncheons for its members in and around Onancock. There have been discussions of hosting more events that are beneficial to the general public, including a weeklong art camp that focuses on a specific medium such as sculpting.

“We really want to bring art to the Shore and particularly bring it to the attention of the youth and foster their creativity,” said Barylski. “Members of rural communities often don’t have proper access to the artistic networks found in more urban areas. We certainly want to change that.”

Bocce, Chess in Play as Citizens Shape Central Park Plan

By Jim Ritch

A bocce court in Cape Charles Central Park is being rolled out as part of planned improvements next year.

“Now we’re focused on the last remaining space in the park. What’s missing is games for adults,” said Hank Mayer, chairman of Citizens for Central Park.

The plan is being unveiled after a summer of capital improvements focused on the children’s playground and gazebo, with more work planned on the formal fountain this fall.

To entertain adults, the group proposes to add a bocce court, two concrete chess/checkers tables with seats, two corn hole courts, picnic tables, benches, and shade trees.

The games would be located in the one undeveloped portion of the park that remains toward the southeastern corner, Mayer said.

The courts would take up a considerable amount of space.

The bocce court would measure 12 feet wide by 60 feet long; the two corn hole courts, 10 feet wide by 40 feet long each.

The group estimates the project cost at between $30,000 and $40,000, some of which will be raised by donations.

Visitors to the group’s popular Saturday series of open-air concerts will notice renewed margarita cocktail sales and online appeals as the Citizens for Central Park ramps up its fundraising.

The group is seeking public input in coming weeks before sending its proposal to the town council.

This year, the town funded through its capital improvements budget more than $30,000 to redesign and repair the park’s formal fountain at its western end.

The fountain will be replaced with a more participatory water display, including water jets in which children may play and cool down.

Parts for the project, including an in-ground water tank are on back order, but work is hoped to be completed before the end of the year, Mayer said.

The town also gave $10,000 toward the group’s summer concert series, which has become an increasingly popular tourist draw.

This year’s July 4 concert attracted between 700 and 800 people and is believed to be the largest opening concert the group has held, Mayer said.

The largest concert of the series tends to be the last concert, which will be held on Labor Day weekend and feature “The English Channel.”

Improvements to the children’s playground, located in a fenced and mulched area along the northern side of the park, included a heavy duty zip line, along with a three-foot high, roughly circular pit for GaGa Ball, which Mayer described as a version of kickball.

The improvements were also underwritten by a $10,000 gift from Paul and Maria Henderson, of Cape Charles.

Volunteers organized by Jen Lewis of the Town of Cape Charles helped reduce the costs by assisting with installation.

Donations to the group may be made through its Facebook page, which is listed under Cape Charles Citizens for Central Park.

Your poem to me:
"Not a Typical Eastern Shore Day"

It all began at sunset on July 21, 2020, at Smith Beach.
On a magical day in the Chesapeake Bay
I swam with a friend.
A storm came near and she looked at me in fear and wanted to go in.
I asked her to wait, it was a beautiful day and I expected Mother Nature to shine.
The lightening was bright, clearly insight but the thunder held still.
She was by my side and it growing harder to hide the attraction of it all.
Little did I know, as it started to blow the hair from her eyes that this was the day.
A day like none before as God started to lure her heart towards mine.
A heart like no other. It would take me much further than others before.
I often wonder why there was no thunder from the bolts and the light.
Then the answer was clear ... the only noise did I hear was the pounding of my heart.
*Happy One Year Anniversary to you + to me.
I love you Mr. Happily-Ever-After.
And the answer to your question is YES YES YES. Pop the champagne because I'm changing my last name.*

Future Mrs. Happily-Ever-After

Our children need you now more than ever.

NOTICE OF A PUBLIC HEARING

THE ACCOMACK COUNTY BOARD OF SUPERVISORS WILL HOLD A PUBLIC HEARING ON WEDNESDAY, AUGUST 18, 2021 AT 6:30 p.m. AT METOMPKIN ELEMENTARY SCHOOL CAFETERIA, 24501 PARKSLEY ROAD, PARKSLEY, VIRGINIA TO AFFORD INTERESTED PERSONS THE OPPORTUNITY TO BE HEARD OR TO PRESENT WRITTEN COMMENTS CONCERNING THE FOLLOWING:

A. Ordinance Amendments pertaining to the Flood Hazard Overlay District.

Proposed amendments to the Accomack County Zoning Ordinance pertaining to the Flood Hazard Overlay District provisions. The proposed amendments are specifically for Ordinance Section 106-352, Section 106-364 and Section 106-366.

The proposed amendments address two necessary changes by bringing the provisions of the Zoning Ordinance in line with the changes to the Building Code that were implemented in 2019 (Sections 106-352 and 106-364). This will also clarify language with respect to the freeboard requirement, making it clear that it applies to machinery and equipment (Section 106-366).

B. Ordinance Amendment to Appendix A - Schedule of Fees to add Electrical Permit Fees.

Proposed amendment to the Accomack County Ordinance to add a fee schedule for Electrical Permits. Accomack County is issuing electrical permits and performing electrical inspections. The residential electrical inspections will be completed by a 3rd party contractor, and the addition of fees will allow the County to recover funds.

Public hearing related materials are available for review at the Accomack County Planning Department, 23296 Courthouse Avenue – Room 105 – Accomack, Virginia and on the County's website at <http://www.boarddocs.com/va/coa/Board.nsf/Public> on the Friday prior to each meeting date.

Many Shore Families Worthy of Remembrance

Dear Editor:

I'd like to thank both Mr. Payne and Mr. Landis for their letters in recent editions of the Eastern Shore Post. They each bring a broad and helpful perspective to events on the Eastern Shore of Virginia, both from the past and the present and ideally, they will inform the future.

I agree with Sunday voting. Heck, why not internet voting? Under secure and controlled conditions (one vote for each person, no more, no less) is something our Founding Fathers would smile upon. Too many people do not make it to the polls to express their personal opinions and sentiments. That is just wrong! Too many heroes, among them, Abel Upshur, died in the name of this country and to neglect to use one of the fundamental rights they have fought for, and died for, is disrespectful, and frankly, un-American.

I am a fan of the founding fathers. They unfortunately lived in different times. Slavery is a fact, and it has flourished throughout time and remains to this day. "Free your mind from mental slavery," Bob Marley once sang proudly. Jefferson believed in the profound right of the individual to do whatever they wanted, provided it did not disadvantage or dispossess another of the same.

Abel Upshur, A.T. Carter, Thomas Savage, Lucius Kellam, the Laughing King of Accawmacke, Robert Bloxom, Sr., Senator Fears, Gov. Wise, Duers, Prettyman, Thomas, White, Baldwin, Eyre, Judge Lankford, Capt. Walker of Nassawadox, Gertrude Whitehead, Thomas Scott, Burleigh Tatum, and countless others — Revells, James, Robins, Horsey, Northam (yes, Northam), Joynes, Booles, Godwins, Gibbons, Kellams, Outtens, and Arnolds, etc. — have built and still live on this Eastern Shore.

We love it, work to preserve what's good, improve and fix what is wrong, and live together for the good of ALL.

I propose we honor Abel Upshur, one of the most distinguished citizens of the Eastern Shore with a new memorial. Name the new Eastern Shore Public Library and Heritage Center after him, and all the heroes of the Shore. Erect a statue in both Parksley and Nassawadox, close to his home at Vaucluse Shores.

My family and the Lipman Family have made a pledge that totals $25,000 in honor of our families for this worthy cause. Have you done your part? A donation of any amount is welcome.

Join us, please, as we close the gap and build not only a library, but a testament to the sturdiest people in Virginia. The tide is rising in many ways here, and my roots here go back many years, my wife's family even further. Many of you even more.

Thank you for reading this. God Bless the United States of America, our Armed Forces, our governments and most of all where it all starts. Our people. All of us.

Ron Matthews, Little Hell

Crime Details Insensitive

Dear Editor:

I am appalled at the article written by your crime writer concerning Brian Daley. The public didn't need to know the intimate details surrounding his death. The family knew the whole story and wouldn't have wanted their grief and privacy invaded and shared with the general populace. The article did not honor and respect the deceased and his loved ones. The Post in my opinion has sunk to the low level of a tabloid with this article. I find it disturbing that the editor did not ask for a more sensitive rewrite. I believe the Post should print an apology to the family and public for this disgraceful article.

Feral Cats Present Risks

Dear Editor:

We were shocked to read the reply from "Alice Burton, of a northern Virginia animal rescue group," when responding to Chincoteague residents' concerns regarding the ongoing release of stray and feral cats into the community. Ms. Burton's response was, essentially, "deal with it."

Stray and feral cats present a number of risks to Chincoteague's residents, including people, pets, and wildlife. In addition to property damage and general nuisances, cats also pose a disease risk. For example, cats are the top source of rabies among domestic animals in Virginia. From 2001 to 2019, cats accounted for 72% of all confirmed rabid domestic animals in the commonwealth. There were nearly eight times more rabid cats than rabid dogs. Just like our pets, stray and feral cats must be vaccinated initially and then given regular boosters to maintain current rabies vaccination. Anything less puts the community at risk.

Of course, stray and feral cats are also a nightmare for wildlife. Scientific studies estimate that cats annually kill 2.4 billion birds in the U.S. and are the top source of direct, human-caused bird mortality in the U.S. and Canada. Studies in Virginia have shown that cats are major predators of wildlife, and a Wildlife Center of Virginia study showed that even with cutting-edge veterinary treatment, over 80% of birds attacked by cats died.

To hear Ms. Burton's comments that concerned residents should just build a fence or employ other deterrents on their property unjustly places the burden on local residents for the behavior of groups that release cats onto the landscape. Instead, it should be the responsibility of these groups to keep the cats contained, ensuring that both cats and the community stay safe.

Roberta Kellam, Franktown and Grant Sizemore, American Bird Conservancy

Dear Editor:

Those residents of northern Accomack County who are disturbed by the Navy's carrier landing practice operation (FCLP) over their homes and families, particularly late into the night, should call:

- Navy Noise: 855-628-9247
- Wallops Flight Facility Operations: 757-824-1250 (airfield manager)
- U.S. Congress (Rep. Elaine Luria): 757-364-7650
- County Supervisor (Ron Wolff): 757-824-0383

These are all public (our) servants. It is inappropriate, abusive, and dangerous for the U.S. Navy to operate, and Wallops to host, the intensive carrier low-level landing practice over these communities of hundreds of families and homes, much less our gracious natural environment, when the Department of Defense has hundreds of thousands of sequestered operational aerodromes in the surrounding mid-Atlantic region.

This is your government, correct it.
