New Road Breaks Ground on Housing Project

The New Road Community Development Group held a groundbreaking Tuesday morning in Exmore for the first phase of its Legacy Project, so named because the construction of six new houses in the New Road community will honor the legacy of the group's former executive director, the late Ruth Wise.

Opening remarks were made by her daughter, Ava Gabrielle-Wise, who filled

Youngkin Inaugurated as Governor, Gets To Work Signing 11 Actions

By Stefanie Jackson

At the inauguration of Gov. Glenn Youngkin Saturday, Jan. 15, at the Virginia State Capitol in Richmond, the new governor outlined his vision for Virginia and, after a parade celebrating diverse groups and interests from across the commonwealth, he started work on his Day One agenda by signing 11 executive actions.

"Today we gather not as individuals ... nor as Republicans or Democrats, but today we gather as Virginians," Youngkin began his inaugural address.

The voters "sent us here on a mission to restore trust in government and to restore power to the people ...

entrusted to protect liberty, create opportunity, and build unity for the hard work ahead," he said.

A record of nearly 3.3 million Virginians, or about 25% more than previously, voted in the November general election in which Youngkin won the governorship.

He thanked former Gov. Ralph Northam and first lady Pam Northam for being "gracious and supportive during this transition."

"My fellow Virginians," Youngkin said, "the spirit of Virginia is alive and well, and together we will strengthen it. Together we will renew the promise of Virginia so it will be the best place

CHILDREN'S HARBOR OPENING SOON, DEDICATION POSTPONED DUE TO FORECAST WINTER STORM

By Carol Vaughn

A new child care facility is coming to Accomack County.

Children's Harbor Eastern Shore will be housed in a former restaurant at 20250 Fairgrounds Road near Onancock.

The building most recently was the location of Fairgrounds Restaurant.

A ribbon-cutting ceremony that was to have been held this week was postponed due to a forecast winter storm. A winter storm watch was issued Wednesday for the possibility of snow Friday and Saturday.

Children's Harbor is a nonprofit organization with four other centers in Hampton Roads.

The Children's Harbor board of directors in April 2019 asked Wayne Bell Jr., of the Eastern Shore, to serve as interim chief executive officer.

Ann Williams, who serves as a consultant on the Eastern Shore project, soon after that came to Bell with the idea of opening a Children's Harbor on the Shore, Bell said during a telephone interview Jan. 13.

"So I approached my board and said, 'Hey, I'm a resident of the Eastern Shore, so I love that area. They are in need of child care and I want to be able to give back — and I think it fits into Children's Harbor's mission,'" Bell said.

The board gave the go ahead to pursue the idea, but indicated financial resources likely would have to come from outside the organization.

Williams was very instrumental in working to find funds to make the facility a reality, according to Bell.

"She knew that there was a need. She reached out to the political powers," including Sen. Lynwood Lewis and Del. Rob Bloxom, he said.

Conversations at the state level resulted in then-Gov. Ralph Northam including $250,000 for the Eastern Shore center in the state budget, a measure the General Assembly approved.

"That's what really catapulted us to be able to secure the facility," said Bell.

The former restaurant was selected in part because it already had adequate parking and was close to several major employers, according to Bell.

The cost to get the center up and running is nearly $500,000, according to Bell, who said the playground alone cost more than $90,000.

In addition to the state funding, funds have been given to the project by the Perdue Foundation, the Eastern Shore of Virginia Community Foundation, and individual donors, according to Bell.

The organization also is hoping to qualify for a grant through a new Accomack County program.

The Accomack County Board of Supervisors last fall identified child care as one of its three priorities for spending the first of two installments of federal funds coming to the county as result of the American Rescue Plan Act.

The board set aside $600,000 of the first $3.1 million installment to expand child care in the county.

Children's Harbor plans to apply for a grant to help with costs associated the position of New Road's executive director after Ruth Wise died in 2017.

Ava Gabrielle-Wise noted that "a milestone in the history of this community" will be reached when the Legacy Project is complete, as all 30 acres of the New Road community will be filled to capacity with housing.

She felt "grateful to be here to ... carry the torch forward" for her mother and the rest of New Road's original members, of whom at least one is still living – Burley Rogers, who is 83 years old and was invited to the groundbreaking but could not attend due to illness.

Gabrielle-Wise briefly reflected on New Road's history and "the turmoil we had in the early years with the town and the county and the struggle over getting the infrastructure in," referring to the previous lack of indoor plumbing in New Road and the failure of local government to provide the historically African American community with public water and sewer service even though it was available elsewhere in Exmore.

Those issues drove the residents of

New Road to seek financial assistance and purchase the land they lived on from the absentee landlords who owned it.

"A lot of people don't realize that New Road ... was not a whole government project. We acquired our community, subdivided it, and sold it to ourselves," Gabrielle-Wise said, "and that was a new model that had not been seen yet at that point and hasn't been seen much since then."

"This project is not only about legacy, it's about innovation and progress," Gabrielle-Wise said.

The six new houses to be built in New Road "are not like the houses that you've seen in the past, and that's because we're trying to take the community forward into the future in housing development."

The homes will feature modern amenities and be built in a range of sizes to suit families with differing housing needs: two tiny homes, two two-bedroom homes, one three-bedroom home, and one four-bedroom home.

Gabrielle-Wise thanked the Virginia Department of Housing and Community Development for providing the New Road group Acquire, Renovate, and Sell funding in 2019, which was the catalyst for the Legacy Project.

She reserved special thanks for Chris Thompson, of Virginia Housing, who has been "a solid and steadfast partner through all of our troubles."

Gabrielle-Wise also thanked Warren Thomas, chief executive officer of RMT Construction and Development Group, of Richmond, and Chris Carbaugh, engineer, Atlantic Group & Associates, of Berlin, Md.

Exmore Councilman G.W. Adkins acknowledged that "in the old days" the Town Council had not acted as an advocate for the New Road community, "but we've gone beyond that and we are here, we have the back of everyone in New Road ... and we're here to stay."

Northampton County Administrator Charlie Kolakowski spoke on behalf of the Northampton County Board of Supervisors and Chair Betsy Mapp about all the public and private partners working on the New Road project:

"The level of cooperation and enthusiasm involved in this project is really, really encouraging. We all recognize the need for a significant cooperative effort to provide affordable and workforce housing on the Eastern Shore," he said, pledging supervisors' commitment to New Road and other groups in their efforts to build affordable housing in Northampton.

Thompson thanked everyone present "for bringing us along on this journey with you. ... It's about people, and at the end of the day, we're going to have six new families that are here. ... What I really like is that this is phase one, and so, there are big plans for phase two, there's phase three, there's more to come."

During phase two of the Legacy Project, housing will be built on the remaining undeveloped land owned by New Road. The land is adjacent to the New Road community on the west side of Route 13, intersected by Ruth Wise Road. This project phase will provide housing for 34 families in the form of a three-story, 18-unit apartment building and eight duplexes.

Gabrielle-Wise said she recently closed on an option to acquire another 30 acres near Occohannock Road, which would not be an extension of New Road but a new community with its own name and identity.

Gabrielle-Wise anticipates the design of a master plan for the new community will be completed this year so development can begin in 2023.

'I Am Going To Be A Professor'

"The ticket to my future success," says University of Virginia senior Shaw Matthews, "was Your Eastern Shore Community College." Forming his own future goals through influential instructors and supportive faculty and staff, Shaw said, "The help ESCC provided along the way made my goals a reality."

Home-schooled from kindergarten through high school, Shaw enrolled in ESCC in 2017. "ESCC wasn't my second choice or third choice," Shaw said, "it was my best choice."

One of his first and most influential instructors was Assistant Professor of History Barry Neville. Shaw explained, "Mr. Neville's interaction with students and love of history was a huge influence on forming my future plans. "I started to see me in a role where I, too, could influence young adults and nontraditional students and help them find their own paths to success."

ESCC's culture of YES! (Your Eastern Shore) is about hospitality and inclusion. Just as Shaw benefited from this culture, he contributed to making it flourish. Career Coach Debbie Daniels said, "He's a great example of a student finding what makes them happy and pursuing that dream with the support of all of us at the college."

With his associate degree in Arts and Sciences in Liberal Arts and help from ESCC advisors, Shaw easily transferred to the University of Virginia where he's closing in on his bachelor's degree next semester. He's already applying to graduate school to pursue a master's degree and then a doctorate.

Shaw's long game is to return as a professor at ESCC. He shared his story at ESCC's Advisory Board meeting last week. "I want to give back, to try, in some measure, to be as influential as those who helped shaped my life, my career, my future."

And he encourages his friends and neighbors on the Shore. "I truly hope potential students understand the benefits of attending ESCC, from the low cost, to the easy transfer to a four-year school, to rewarding jobs and careers."

Dr. Patrick Tompkins, ESCC vice president of academics, said, "At ESCC we can help. We helped Shaw, and he is helping others. For all of us, that's a YES!"

'You Can Be an IT Professional'

"The IT Industry is one of the few places where a certified professional can get a high-paying job without a four-year college degree," states Doug Fleming who instructs CompTIA Information Technology Fundamentals students at YOUR Eastern Shore Community College.

Fleming will be leading ESCC's next CompTIA class beginning March 15. He adds that "students will get a broad view of the IT industry and an understanding of the fundamental fields of emphasis where an IT Professional can focus their talents and abilities to build a successful career. Students will also learn how to manage computer-based testing, so they can pass a proctored exam to earn an industry certification."

CompTIA IT Fundamentals class provides that solid technology foundation for anyone entering the workplace — regardless of the industry.

CompTIA IT Fundamentals is a the basic course for other CompTIA classes offered by ESCC, including A+, Network+, and Security+.

Scott Hall, Workforce & Business Solutions Officer, added that ESCC offers tuition support for eligible students. "With the FastForward program," Scott said, "two-thirds of the tuition is automatically paid for by the Commonwealth of Virginia."

Additional sources of financial aid are also available to eliminate any out-of-pocket costs for the student. Hall adds that "CompTIA IT Fundamentals is an approved course of study for the Virginia Ready Scholarship. Upon earning their credential, students will receive a $1,000 scholarship to help as they continue their career journey."

Vice President of Academics Patrick Tompkins noted "you don't have to have any experience. If you're interested in IT, we can help."

with its new facility.

Guidelines for the county's child care startup and expansion grant program were approved by the board of supervisors at the board's Jan. 19 meeting, meaning grant applications will be available on the county website Jan. 28 and awards will be made in early April.

The maximum award per applicant is $150,000.

The organization's goal is to open Children's Harbor Eastern Shore sometime in late February, but the opening date will depend on how long it takes to obtain required licensure and other approvals, according to Bell.

The center has rooms for infants (6 weeks to 12 months), waddlers (ages 12 to 15 months), toddlers (16 to 24 months), 2-year-olds, 3-year-olds (also called preschool), 4-year-olds (or pre-K), and school-age children (ages 5 to 10).

At capacity, the center will be able to serve between 80 and 100 children, as determined by licensure.

Trina Cooper, Eastern Shore center director, said the center already has around 47 children on its waiting list and more than a dozen already have paid the registration fee.

"Our infant room is already full, so we are entertaining opening up a second infant room," Bell said.

Cooper, who earned a bachelor's degree and a master's degree in educational leadership from Wilmington University, has experience as a center director in Delaware and as an administrator for a Christian school in Georgia.

In addition to Cooper, the center has two assistant directors and each class will have a lead teacher and another teacher. Along with cooks and custodial staff, the center likely will employ around 18 to 19 people.

Children's Harbor uses the Frog Street curriculum, Bell said.

"What's very important to understand about Children's Harbor is, we don't consider ourselves day care.

We're actually an early childhood care education facility," he said.

The curriculum guides teachers on how to adequately train the children to meet the appropriate milestones before they enter kindergarten, Bell said.

Staff members are trained in first-aid and CPR certified.

Bell also spoke about security measures at the center, including security cameras, a buzz-in system at the entrance, and a secure outside playground.

Children will be served breakfast, lunch, and a snack, and infants will be provided formula, according to Bell.

to live and work and raise a family.”

He reflected on the impact of the COVID-19 pandemic on Virginia over the last two years. “Not a single one of us has escaped the tragic consequences of COVID-19. Today we lift up our prayers for the more than 15,000 Virginians whose lives have been lost. We pray for their families and we pray for those who have survived but who’ve lost jobs, lost an income or a business, or even lost hope,” Youngkin said.

But “we’re home to a resilient and courageous people – heroes who’ve inspired us: doctors and nurses who worked double shifts to save lives; grocers, truckers, postal workers who worked overtime to stock shelves and make deliveries; and neighbors who have taken care of the frail and elderly in our communities.

“Despite the continuing challenges posed by COVID-19, I see a path forward – not to some pessimistic ‘new normal’ but to a new and better day,” Youngkin said.

“Our common path forward is with the miracle of modern medicine. It’s given us vaccines, new therapeutics, and medical treatments. And our common path forward is also forged with a deep and abiding respect for individual freedom. ... Our common path forward protects both lives and livelihoods across this great commonwealth.”

“We must bind the wounds of division, restore trust, find common cause for the common good,” Youngkin said.

He outlined his top priorities as governor, starting with education: raising public education standards, increasing teacher pay, investing in school facilities, funding programs for students with disabilities, and creating charter schools within the public school system.

“We will remove politics from the classroom,” Youngkin continued, “and we will focus on essential math, science, and reading; and we will teach all of our history, the good and the bad.”

To prevent further learning loss and development setbacks, children must stay in school five days a week, he said.

Later, the new governor added, “Parents should have a say in what is taught in schools ... because in Virginia, parents have a fundamental right to make decisions with regard to their child’s upbringing, education, and care.”

To offset the increased cost of living, Virginia’s recent gas tax increase will be suspended for one year, its grocery tax will be eliminated, and the income tax standard deduction will be doubled, Youngkin said.

“We will ... rein in skyrocketing income tax and provide the largest tax rebate in Virginia’s history.”

Taxes on military veterans’ retirement benefits also will be cut, he said.

Additional economic boosters will include reducing regulations, investing in job training, and making it easier for businesses to access capital, “and we are going to get all Virginians back to work,” Youngkin said.

He pledged that 400,000 jobs and 10,000 new businesses will be created over the next four years.

Youngkin also said Virginia will stop “conceding corporate relocations” to neighboring states like Maryland, North Carolina, and Tennessee. “We will compete and we will win.”

Law enforcement will be fully funded, including higher salaries, better training, and updated equipment. Qualified immunity for law enforcement officers will be protected, the new governor said.

“And we will invest in community policing programs to build trust between law enforcement and the communities they serve and protect.”

“What we can do together is truly limitless,” Youngkin said. “We must set our eyes on the common values and common future that unites us, to work every day to strengthen the spirit of Virginia and redeem the promise of our people. My fellow Virginians, it’s Day One – let’s get to work.”

Later that afternoon, Youngkin signed 11 executive actions:

- Executive order one ends the use of “divisive concepts,” such as Critical Race Theory, in public education.
- Executive order two allows parents to decide whether or not their children will wear face masks in school.
- Executive order three focuses on restoring “integrity and confidence” in Virginia’s parole board.
- Executive order four concerns the opening of an investigation of wrongdoing in Loudoun County.
- Executive order five creates the position of Commonwealth Chief Transformation Officer to make “government work for Virginians.”
- Executive order six declares Virginia “open for business.”
- Executive order seven focuses on stopping and preventing human trafficking and providing support to survivors.
- Executive order eight establishes a commission to combat anti-Semitism.
- Executive order nine withdraws Virginia from the Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiative.
- Executive directive one concerns cutting “job killing regulations” by 25%.
- Executive directive two concerns rescinding the COVID-19 vaccine mandate for all state employees.

Court Postings By Nancy Drury Duncan

Accomack County Circuit Court

David Joseph Fisher, 25, of New Church, who pleaded guilty to burglary and malicious wounding in October 2021, was sentenced to five years in prison.

In February 2021, a deputy was called to the Pine Ridge mobile home park in Melfa. The man there reported that Fisher came inside, attacked and stabbed him. He said the woman there was formerly in a relationship with Fisher.

The defendant entered through a window over the kitchen sink and found a knife nearby, said Commonwealth's Attorney Spencer Morgan. The man and woman hid in the bathroom but Fisher got to the man and stabbed him repeatedly. He was taken to a hospital with serious injuries, Morgan said. He said Fisher's wallet was found at the scene.

"This was a violent offense," said Judge W. Revell Lewis III. "You broke in in the nighttime, picked up a knife, and stabbed a person numerous times." He sentenced Fisher to 10 years for the burglary, with eight years suspended, and 10 years for malicious wounding, with seven years suspended. The sentences are to run concurrently for a total of five years. He ordered Fisher to be on supervised probation for three years and to be on good behavior for 10 years. He was ordered to have no contact with the victim.

Robert Elmer Johnson III, 38, of Atlantic, who pleaded guilty to felony shoplifting and trespass late last year, will serve no more jail time. He has made efforts to deal with his substance abuse issues since his arrest on these charges, said defense attorney Tucker Watson. He said his client had completed a drug treatment program and was doing well.

"He has struggled and has had a rough go of it," he told the court. He said Johnson has had no new larceny convictions since this arrest on these charges. "The Walmart theft was not well thought out," Watson said.

Watson said Johnson had the cash in his pocket to pay for the stolen $40 bottle of cologne. This theft was charged as a felony because of earlier shoplifting convictions. "It would no longer be considered a felony," Watson said, referring to the change in Virginia law.

"It is fantastic he sought out help," said Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney William Fox.

"You have a record of not following the law," said Judge Lewis. "But the court notes what you have accomplished since your Nov. 4 guilty plea. Congratulations on turning things around." He sentenced Johnson to three years, with all but time served suspended, for shoplifting and to six months, all suspended, for trespass. He ordered him to be on supervised probation for two years and on good behavior for five years.

Barbara Annette Powell, 49, of Accomac, who pleaded guilty to obtaining a controlled substance by fraud, will spend no time in jail.

In November, Powell entered a guilty plea to the charge in an agreement with the commonwealth. Powell was employed as a home health care nurse when she took prescription medicines assigned to patients.

Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Michael Baker said the reason for the plea agreement, which contained a recommendation for a suspended sentence, was because no patients were harmed by her actions.

"She has been receiving treatment since this occurred," said defense attorney Tucker Watson. Judge Lewis sentenced her to three years, all suspended, and ordered her to be on supervised probation for two years and to be on good behavior for five years.

How to talk to Mom and Dad about Senior Living

Mom may have had a hard time recalling names when you spoke with her over the phone the last few times, but you weren't prepared for what you found during a recent visit. While you were happy to finally be able to see her again, you were concerned. It was clear the carpets needed vacuuming and the bathrooms had not been scrubbed in some time. Most worrisome, however, was Mom's appearance. She looked like she'd lost a lot of weight.

For many families, sheltering in place due to COVID opened their eyes to the side effects of isolation. You may wonder what is happening when you aren't there. Is Mom safe? Is she happy? Now is the time to make a plan and find a senior living community that you would both feel comfortable with, rather than being forced to make a choice in an emergency.

Here are some tips for discussing your concerns with your loved one:

- Remind Mom or Dad that you love them and are worried about their wellbeing.
- Ask them what would need to happen for them to decide it was time to move.
- Discuss their concerns about senior living and what they would like to see in a community.

While this can be a very difficult time, there is a myriad of support available to you. Commonwealth Senior Living has been guiding families on this journey for almost 20 years. Our caregiver support groups can connect you with families who are experiencing the same challenges and will provide useful tips for ensuring that your loved one gets the attention and support they deserve.

Northam Reflects on Governorship

By Carol Vaughn

Virginia's 73rd governor, Ralph Northam, in an interview with the Eastern Shore Post last week looked back at his administration's accomplishments and talked about what comes next.

Northam, only the second Eastern Shore native to serve as Virginia governor, handed over the keys to Virginia's Executive Mansion to Gov. Glenn Youngkin, who took the oath of office Saturday.

Northam thanked Eastern Shore residents for their support over the years.

"To represent the Shore in the Senate for six years was a tremendous privilege and now to represent them as governor," he said.

Many of his friends and extended family, including his 97-year-old father, live on the Shore and Northam said he looks forward to spending more time with them.

Northam, a pediatric neurologist with a practice in Norfolk, told his wife, Pam, he was taking Sunday off and would head back to his job Monday morning. He also is on the faculty at Eastern Virginia Medical School.

"We've had a good team and I think when we turn over the keys on Saturday we are leaving Virginia a lot better than it was when I started four years ago. Our economy is doing well and we are, I think, a much more open state, so I'm proud of the work that my team has done," Northam said.

Among the accomplishments of which he is proud are steps taken to improve the health of the Chesapeake Bay.

Concern about the bay was "one of the reasons I ran" for the Virginia Senate, he said, noting, "The bay was literally my backyard growing up on the mouth of Onancock Creek. I watched the demise of the bay."

Serving as chairman of the Chesapeake Executive Council, which includes the governors of Delaware, Maryland, Pennsylvania, New York, Virginia, and West Virginia, the mayor of Washington, D.C., the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency administrator, and the Chesapeake Bay Commission chairperson, was a highlight, according to Northam.

He noted more than $1 billion this year is being invested in improving the bay's health.

"To make that healthier, not just for us, but for our children and grandchildren, I really think people will look back and say that was a good initiative," Northam said.

He also cited other accomplishments, including efforts to develop renewable energy and resiliency measures against sea level rise, among others.

The development of offshore wind power, in particular, "is really going to transform Hampton Roads and, I think, all of Virginia — provide a lot of jobs, is good for the environment, and it's also really good for the economy," Northam said.

Although no one knew when he took office that Northam would oversee Virginia's response to a pandemic, health care also was a priority of his administration.

Expanding Medicaid in a bipartisan way is something of which Northam is proud.

"Now, during COVID, over 600,000 Virginians have access to health care that didn't back in 2018. It's a really important time for people to have access," he said.

Northam also mentioned the G3 (Get a Skill, Get A Job, Get Ahead) program, a tuition assistance program in Virginia community colleges for students who qualify for state financial aid, with a household income less than $100,000. G3 is available for select programs in five of Virginia's most in-demand industries.

The program "really helps folks on the Eastern Shore that want to go to community college. They don't have to pay any tuition and it helps with wrap-around expenses like transportation and child care," he said.

Also in the education field, Northam noted the inclusion of a cost-of-competing adjustment for Eastern Shore K-12 public schools in his final budget. The adjustment is intended to help school districts attract and retain teachers by being able to offer more competitive salaries.

Additional accomplishments likely to have positive impacts on the Shore include efforts to attract Rocket Lab to locate its Neutron rocket facilities in Accomack County, as well as major investments in broadband expansion.

“By 2024, everybody will have access in Virginia to broadband — that will really be good for the Eastern Shore,” he said, noting this year the state invested just over $2 billion in broadband, compared to $4 million a year when he took office.

Land conservation is another area where the Shore will see benefits, according to Northam.

Finally, his team’s response to COVID-19 “has saved thousands of lives” in Virginia, Northam said, noting, “We had a lot of challenges with COVID on the Shore and we had a really good response and good relationship with both Perdue and Tyson’s when the virus was spreading; and I think because we have been able to follow the science and data and make decisions that keep Virginians healthier, we are at a much better place than a lot of our other states with both the number of cases and deaths.”

Northam credited Eastern Shore Rural Health and Riverside Health System for the Shore having good health care options, especially compared to some other rural areas.

“They are to be commended for the work they have done,” he said.

Asked what “breaks his heart to think he didn’t get done,” Northam said, “You know, I don’t have a broken heart over anything. We hit the ground running four years ago and I had the advantage of having served in the Senate for six years and then as lieutenant governor for four. I knew the politics of Richmond. I had good relationships. I think that has really worked to my advantage.”

Having a Democratic majority in both the House of Delegates and the Senate for a time also helped get things done, according to Northam.

If he could run for a second term — Virginia governors can not run for a second consecutive term — a priority would be universal early childhood education, Northam said.

He also would keep working to improve the bay’s health, “because, while it has improved, we still have a lot of work to do.”

In his post-politics life, Dr. Northam was scheduled to see 10 patients Monday, a slight break from his normal schedule of 18 to 20 a day.

“They’re going to give me a break and start me off slow,” he said.

The last four years will inform the next part of Northam’s life, he said.

“With my experience, I’ll certainly be a better doctor and also probably a better teacher, being able to bring my perspective on being governor into both practicing medicine and teaching. I look forward to that.”

Northam said being a candidate for elected office again is not in his immediate plans.

“I’ll pay attention and certainly help people if they seek my help, but I don’t think you will see my name on a ballot any time soon,” he said.

Northam said he is proud that over the last four years “we have proven that we can be progressive in Virginia; we can take care of our workers; we can embrace diversity and be stewards of our environment, while at the same time having a strong economy.”

He noted Virginia’s economy “is as strong as it has ever been,” noting the commonwealth now has a surplus of $2.6 billion and has been ranked as the number one state in which to do business for three consecutive years.

His administration announced at the end of December revenue was up 20% from the previous December — “that’s despite COVID-19,” he said.

What gives Northam hope?

“Virginia does — the people. ... I’ve traveled around and been welcomed in all corners, in all areas of Virginia. Virginians are good people. They are hardworking; they follow our guidelines for COVID for the most part, so we’re in a good place there. We have a really talented workforce. We’ve put investment in K through 12 and early childhood (education), so I think we have really laid the groundwork to move Virginia in a more positive direction,” he said.

“I don’t have any regrets,” Northam said, adding, “When we turn the keys over on Saturday, I really think that Virginia is a better place than it was four years ago and the governor-elect will have a tremendous opportunity to build on our progress — and also a responsibility at the same time.”

MLK/Unity Day Celebrations Keep ‘Spark of Love’ Alive on the Shore

By Stefanie Jackson

The Eastern Shore celebrated Community Unity and Martin Luther King Jr. Day virtually again this year with two events, one online and another on the radio, organized by the Eastern Shore NAACP, Citizens for a Better Eastern Shore, and Northampton County Public Schools.

Jane Cabarrus, director of the Eastern Shore NAACP, opened the online event Friday, Jan. 14, featuring presentations and music by Shore citizens and students. Teacher Cheryl Fender-son was the master of ceremonies.

Joshua Weeks, a freshman at Salisbury University, delivered the keynote address.

He shared one of his favorite Martin Luther King Jr. quotes: “Darkness cannot drive out darkness, only light can do that. Hatred cannot drive out hatred, only love can do that.”

“Love is the only way,” Weeks said. “Love is the only way to defeat darkness. Love is the only way to turn an enemy into a friend.”

“What kind of generation do you guys want to be?” he asked any students who were listening.

“Do you guys want to use love as a source to defeat darkness? Or, do you guys want to use hatred as a source to defeat darkness? You guys know which one is going to win,” Weeks told the kids.

“Do not let anyone tell you that love is a weakness. Love is a strength. Love is the most powerful force in the universe,” he said.

“And you might be asking, ‘How do I use love in my everyday life?’ ... Let’s say that someone is bullying you or calling you names or picking on you. What do you do? Do you call them names back? Do you push them around?”

Instead, “give them kind words, give them encouragement,” Weeks advised. “Go get a teacher to help you, but do not ever retaliate.”

“Keep the spark of love within you and use it wherever you go.”

Other participants who made remarks or recited historical facts or quotes of King included Northampton schools Superintendent Eddie Lawrence, Congresswoman Elaine Luria, and students Abby Zodon, Ashley Zodon, Derick Hill, Samrit Kaur, James Thomas Applegate, Kiptopeke Elementary School kindergarten and pre-K students, and KES Principal Subrina Parker.

Musical performances included “The Star-Spangled Banner” by ninth grader Autumn Buckley, the African American spiritual “Wade In the Water” by KES students, and a rendition of “Amazing Grace” by the Northampton High School and eighth grade marching bands and the NHS chorus, led by music teacher Brad Ford.

The celebration resumed on Martin Luther King Jr. Day, Monday, Jan. 17, on local radio station WESR, in place of the annual Community Unity Day breakfast normally held at NHS, which was canceled this year due to COVID-19.

Participants included Northampton County Sheriff David Doughty, Eastern Shore Area Agency on Aging/Community Action Agency Executive Director Donna

Sample Smith, retired registered nurse Joan Wilson, Virginia Organizing member Karen Downing, financial advisor Willie Randall, and Camesha Handy, member of the Living Word Church in Parksley.

Tracy Giddens-Jarrett, director of LifeNet Health, announced the recipients of the 32nd annual Martin Luther King Jr. Community Service Awards: Donna Sample Smith, ESAAA/CAA; Andre Elliott, executive director of the Eastern Shore YMCAs. The post-humorous recipients of the Trailblazer Awards were William “Bill” Allen, a retiree of Northampton County Parks and Recreation, and Berkley Ashby, retired administrator and college professor.

The program closed with words by the Rev. Felton Sessoms and King’s famous speech, “I Have a Dream,” in which he envisions the day “when all God’s children – black men and white men, Jews and Gentiles, Protestants and Catholics – will be able to join hands and sing in the words of the old Negro spiritual: ‘Free at last! Free at last! Thank God Almighty, we are free at last!’”

Accomack Superintendent: Division Schools Will Continue To Require Face Masks

By Stefanie Jackson

Accomack County Public Schools will not comply with Gov. Glenn Youngkin's executive order two, which allows parents to decide whether or not their children will wear face masks in school, Superintendent Chris Holland said in a recorded message sent to parents via phone Wednesday night.

Face masks will continue to be required inside Accomack schools for all teachers, staff, students, and visitors until further notice, in accordance with the Virginia General Assembly's Senate Bill 1303, Holland said.

The bill became state law in 2021 and requires public schools to offer in-person learning and follow, to the maximum extent practicable, the COVID-19 recommendations for schools as provided by the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention – which include wearing face masks.

But executive order two does not prohibit schools from setting mask mandates; it allows parents to exempt their children from the mask mandates and prohibits schools from enforcing such policies.

The executive order states that parents “may elect for their children not to be subject to any mask mandate in effect at the child's school or educational program” and those children “should not be required to wear a mask under any policy implemented by a teacher, school, school district, the Department of Education, or any other state authority.”

When the school board opened its public comment period Tuesday night, only one parent spoke with concern related to the executive order.

Tonya Young, of Parksley, asked the school board to consider retaining its mask mandate to protect students like her 15-year-old daughter, who is immunocompromised and also has asthma.

Young was concerned that without the protection of face masks, other students could cough or sneeze near her daughter, who could become sick, and in her immunocompromised state, “that could be a very bad situation for her.”

Young said her daughter has had health issues since age 5 and on several occasions required medical care at a children's hospital.

“I think that it's very important for our children to continue to wear these masks. I'm hoping that you all will consider this ... for all children,” Young said.

“We don't want our kids to be sick, and as parents, we make that decision for them.”

Executive order two will take effect Monday, Jan. 24. Senate Bill 1303 will expire Aug. 1.

Coordinator of Student Health Services Tonya Martin reported that as of Jan. 18, Accomack had 59 new cases of COVID-19 and a seven-day average of 111 new cases per day, according to the Virginia Department of Health.

Martin shared a statement from Jon Richardson, chief operating officer of the Eastern Shore Health District: “We are still in a surge, and it's really too early to know if we have reached the peak, but we should know in the next couple of weeks.”

As of Tuesday, Accomack schools had approximately 160 cases of COVID-19:

more than 20 teachers, about 20 school staff members, and nearly 120 students.

Martin clarified that those numbers did not include individuals who were in quarantine for exposure to COVID-19. “The quarantine numbers are high, the amount of positives are not,” she said.

Martin said a school division task force is still reviewing the new CDC guidelines – which include reducing the COVID-19 quarantine period from 10 to five days – but recommendations to the school board are forthcoming.

Superintendent Chris Holland said in-person learning will continue in Accomack schools for now. “Our teachers want to teach in person, and our students want to be in the buildings,” he said.

However, due to the number of COVID-19 cases in schools, Northampton County Public Schools scheduled virtual learning days for Friday, Jan., 21, and Monday, Jan. 24, and also will retain its mask mandate, according to its website.

Accomack Board Approves Child Care Grant Guidelines, Hears RV Concerns

By Carol Vaughn

The Accomack County Board of Supervisors Wednesday approved guidelines for a child care startup and expansion grant program.

The program will award up to $150,000 each to child care operations, using a total of $600,000 set aside from federal American Rescue Plan Act money given to the county.

Accomack County Administrator Mike Mason said the guidelines were vetted by the Department of Social Services.

Three major changes were made from a draft version of the guidelines previously presented to the board.

A requirement for an applicant to submit a formal business plan was dropped and replaced with a requirement to provide estimated revenue and expenses for the first year of operation, along with fee structure.

A requirement was added requiring an applicant for a grant to expand services to provide services to at least 10 additional children from what they now serve at the location.

The original condition that grants be used primarily to improve access to childcare for people in communities disproportionately negatively impacted by the pandemic was changed to align with final U.S. Treasury rules. Funds now must be used to improve access to childcare for those negatively impacted by the pandemic, which is broader in reach. The federal rule considers low- and moderate-income households to have been negatively impacted by the pandemic.

Applicants must complete an application and meet other requirements, including submitting two letters of support from the community on official letterhead.

The application will be available on the county website Jan. 28. The deadline to apply is March 18. Awardees will be selected by April 8.

Costs incurred between March 3, 2021, and June 30, 2023, can be claimed under the grant.

School Superintendent Report

Accomack County School Superintendent Chris Holland told the board the school board decided to continue requiring mask wearing despite Gov. Glenn Youngkin's executive order ending the mask mandate in schools.

The school board's decision was in compliance with SB 1303, he said, adding, "They need to wear a mask in school."

Holland said administrators in August created the Return to School Task Force, noting, "Our schools were open when many schools were not."

The school district began the year with 4,359 students and as of Jan. 11 had 4,824, he said.

Sixty students are enrolled in the Virtual Virginia program.

The district has 958 employees.

The district last summer had a "rigorous" summer school program and plans are in the works for a "Learning on Wheels" program, with two special education buses — one for the northern part of the county and one for the southern part — being outfitted to take technology and other resources into communities.

The program is planned to operate all year long, including weekends, according to Holland.

Additionally, the district purchased 400 hotspots for students needing internet access and 76 Chromebooks for instructional assistants.

The district is also doing maintenance and making improvements to its facilities, including installing metal roofs on three schools, a "facelift" at Tangier Combined School, and new HVAC equipment at three schools.

No Vote on Proposed RV Ordinance

The board postponed until February a vote on proposed changes to the zoning ordinance that would affect the use of recreational vehicles as residences.

Planning staff last fall, at the request of the board of zoning appeals, began work on amendments to the ordinance to limit extended habitation in travel trailers.

The current ordinance allows people to live in travel trailers by special use permit issued by the BZA.

The proposed change would limit that use to one year unless the BZA permits it to be extended.

Most of the recent cases before the BZA relate to people living in a travel trailer on the property during construction of a home, resulting in the planning commission recommending tying long-term habitation in travel trailers to construction of a residence and that the travel trailers must be licensed and inspected for safety.

The current ordinance also regulates short-term use of travel trailers (keeping an RV on property for camping) in the agricultural and residential districts by special use permit — no changes to that part are proposed.

RVs in RV parks or campgrounds would not be affected.

Three people spoke at a public hearing about the ordinance.

Ace Seybolt said he was speaking as a property manager and trailer park owner.

"The inference in this proposed ordinance change is all travel trailers not associated with new residential construction are not permitted," he said.

The special use permit process costs around $1,000, he said.

"All housing expenses, speaking as a property manager, have greatly increased over the past few years. We need to encourage homebuilding and not create restrictive ordinances that increase costs for new home construction," Seybolt said.

He also cited the lack of affordable housing in the county.

"The proposed ordinance does not address the majority of existing occupied travel trailers by those who can not find affordable housing, who are living in poverty with nowhere else to live," he said.

He recommended the board table the ordinance change "if you can not determine the extent of those who could be impacted, especially those who lack affordable housing and a travel trailer is their only means for accommodation."

If the amendments are approved, Seybolt asked the board to consider providing exemptions for family hardship, caregivers, and agricultural workers.

Steve Mallette, of Locustville, also spoke against the changes, noting the two Eastern Shore counties "have the dubious distinction of having poverty rates of over 30% over the last 40 years."

Mallette said of the proposed ordinance, "I think you're missing the point."

He suggested when someone applies for a building permit, they should have the option to have a travel trailer on site for two years, without the added expense of having to go before the BZA for a permit.

Additionally, Mallette said many people are living in travel trailers "because they've got no other place to go to."

He also asked how much additional cost the county will incur by hiring people to enforce the ordinance and what the cost will be for economically challenged families who are displaced.

Glen Smith, of Onancock, said he favors hiring additional county employees to enforce the existing regulations.

"Travel trailers and sheds are not intended to be lived in," he said.

He said he knows of at least four locations where people are living illegally in a travel trailer behind a business.

"You folks are here to protect the residences of the county," he said.

Smith, a 41-year firefighter, cited safety concerns with people living in travel trailers.

Rich Morrison, deputy county administrator of building, planning, and development, said the BZA heard 14 requests related to living in travel trailers from 2011 to June 2021, eight of which were tied to home construction.

"They were granting these permits and people were not doing the work in the time allotted," he said.

The BZA asked for support through an ordinance to "strengthen their ability to review and kind of hold the line on these things," he said.

Robert Wayne Cherrix

Mr. Robert Wayne “Captain Bobby” Cherrix, 77, of Wachapreague, passed away at his daughter’s home in Melfa Tuesday, Jan. 11, 2022, surrounded by his loving family. Born June 5, 1944, in Tasley, he was the youngest and only son of five children born to the late Layman Albert Cherrix and the late Bertha Virginia Gardner Cherrix.

Bobby was a graduate of Onancock High School, class of 1962. Though he held many titles throughout his career, each was centered on his love for the water. As a young man, he began working as first mate to Captain Ray Parker, whose mentorship guided him to becoming captain of his own boat, the Sea Fox. After 40 years on the water, Bobby hung up his charter hat, and started working in emergency maintenance for the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel, where he retired after 11 years.

Bobby’s dedication to his family, along with his civic involvement and hobbies, kept him busy off the water. Over the years, he served his community as a member of the Wachapreague Guide Association, Wachapreague Volunteer Fire Co., and Central Shore Lions Club, and was a longtime member of Ocean View United Methodist Church, having attended Broadway Baptist Church in recent years. He was a diehard Redskins fan, never missed a NASCAR race when Richard Petty was on the track, and western shows were his favorite pastime. Of his many talents, Bobby was an exceptional singer and could build just about anything. His later years were filled with joy and adventure, as he spent a lot of time traveling with his fiancée, Margaret, and every spare second in between spoiling his grandchildren, all of whom were the greatest loves of his life.

Survivors include his fiancée and best friend of more than a decade, Margaret Baine; his loving children, Jenny Cobb and her husband, David, of Melfa, and Robbie Cherrix and his wife, Kahlana, of Accomac; sister, Nancy Shorter, of Newport News; grandchildren, Heather Vinnie (Kane), Tiffany Paul (Keith), Hayley Cherrix, Bobby Cherrix (Sam), and Austin Cherrix (Laura); great-grandson, Kai Cherrix; as well as several nieces and nephews. In addition to his parents, he was predeceased by his sisters, Margaret Thornes, Helen Carmine, and Mildred “Mickey” Carmine; one niece; and one nephew.

Funeral services were conducted from the chapel of the Williams-Onancock Funeral Home Monday, Jan. 17, 2022, at 2 p.m., with the Rev. Michael Harrington officiating. Interment was held in the Wachapreague Cemetery.

Though Bobby was well-loved and cared for by all, his family would like to extend their gratitude to David Cobb, who cared for him limitlessly over the last two years, as well as special thanks to Lori Tittermary and the staff at Riverside Shore Hospice.

Contributions in Bobby’s memory may be made to the Parkinson’s Foundation, 200 SE 1st St., Suite 800, Miami, FL 33131 (www.parkinson.org), or to the PAN Foundation, P.O. Box 716408, Philadelphia, PA 19171 (www.panfoundation.org).

Random Facts About ... Where the Sun Apparently DOES Shine

By David Martin

When we open our internet tubes for cleaning, we never know what will come tumbling out and, this week, hoo boy, a couple of doozies.

Georgia Institute of Technology researchers, who might have too much time to kill, have found that mammals above the size of a rat take about the same time to empty their bladders: 21 seconds. These scientists (no quotes around that but we were tempted) filmed 34 different species of animals peeing, some at the Atlanta Zoo and supplementing that field study with watching YouTube videos of mammals peeing, to come up with their golden rule: Whether it's an elephant with a 40-gallon bladder or a beagle with less than half a gallon in its bladder, both animals take on average 21 seconds to empty their bladders. Bigger animals have bigger urethras that carry the bigger urine loads as quickly as smaller animals with smaller urethras carry their smaller loads. This might seem obvious to you or to us, but the researchers say their insight has ramifications for engineers working on issues such as draining flooded areas. (Smaller mammals, such as mice, don't empty their bladders in streams; their urine drips out.)

If you think all of that is crude, you might want to skip the rest of this column, which we're going to try to complete using as many euphemisms as possible. Social media influencers (we're already rolling our eyes) are hyping a practice that goes by several names. One is perineum sunning. This involves going outside on a sunny day, getting completely naked, lying on your back, hooking your hands behind both knees, and pulling back to let the sunlight shine on an area of the body where, we had been previously assured, the sun don't shine.

You probably should avoid doing this on the Cape Charles beach or in your backyard if you have nearby neighbors. But why would you do it even if you had the privacy to embarrass only yourself?

Influencer Ra of Earth (yes, we know) claims that the practice keeps that area "healthy" and free of germs. Another influencer says that 30 seconds of this practice gives "a direct sunlight injection to the anal orifice ... equivalent to being outside in the sun all day!" Another one says it helps her sleep better and regulate her hormones. Metaphysical Meagan explains she discovered perineum sunning by studying Taoism and has now replaced her morning coffee with a sun-shot of vitamin D to her, uhm, private area.

Health experts caution against the practice, saying that the skin in that area is sensitive and vulnerable to UV rays. Sunning your, well, that area should be limited to 30 seconds at best and five minutes at most. But better to avoid the practice completely.

We're going to follow the health experts' advice and just taint going to do it at all.

The Osprey-Eyed Reader Contest

Last Week's Runners-Up

Tommy McCready, of Sanford, explains this happy photograph: "My grandson excited about sitting on a firetruck."

Last Week's Winner

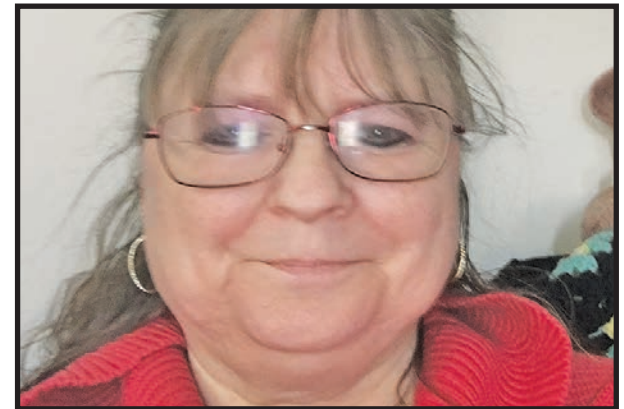

Last week, 69 readers correctly answered our four questions based on content in that edition of the paper. Christy Manzella, of Melfa, was among those osprey-eyed contestants. She was randomly chosen to win her choice of a Becca's Smith Island cake. Representing her in the winner's circle is this haunting tree photograph Manzella took in Williamsburg along the James River.

Sometimes a photograph captures the essence of something as this one, from Kit Fechtig, of Pungoteague, does. Duck.

Here's the picture of anticipation: Brodi waiting for Mom to take him outside to play with his ball — from Nykki Kellam, of Exmore.

We always like to see and show pictures of our osprey-eyed players, so please meet Melissa Potter, of Exmore.

Mayson, daughter of Anne Beatty, of Exmore, just turned 15. This is precious Mayson from back in the day.

Nothing cheers up a winter's day like an orchid. This one, in full bloom, was grown by Donna Sparrow, of Capeville.

The Shore is famous for sunsets but this one is also stunning. Virginia Manzione, of Exmore, calls it, "End of a fishing day on Lake Anna."

Last Week's Contest: We Have Questions!

We asked four questions last week. The answers were on page 23 (rock bands of the '70s); two on page 24 (Wolf Moon is the full moon in January and fish heads is the cat food that companies don't offer); and page 25 (Polar Duck Dip). Christy Manzella, of Melfa, got all the answers right and was randomly chosen to win her choice of a Becca's Smith Island cake.

This Week's Contest What's Up, Pussycat?

We have hidden eight cat silhouettes in this edition. Tell us the page number and the location on the page where you found each cat. Here's what the cats look like and you can count this one as one of your eight: Of the contestants who find all eight cats, one lucky osprey-eyed reader will be randomly chosen to win a $25 gift certificate to the Blue Crab Bay Company. See sponsor box on this page.

The Rules

1. Find all eight cats. For each cat, tell the page number and location on the page where you found the cat.
2. Entries MUST have first and last names and your town.
3. Send this information to david@easternshorepost.com.
4. Deadline is noon Monday, Jan. 24.
5. No multiple entries.
6. Anyone submitting a photograph must have taken the picture or have permission to use it.

Photos

We'd love to publish a photo of you, your children, your pets, your friends, your hobbies, and your life on the Shore. We have room for only a few photos each week, but please feel free to send a picture along with your osprey-eyed entry.

Northampton Hosts Fred Diem and Scott Miles Wrestling Tournament

By Whitney Metz

On Jan. 15, Northampton High School hosted its annual Fred Diem/Scott Miles Wrestling Tournament. A total of eight teams participated including local high schools Nandua, Northampton, and Arcadia. Each team sent players to the podium to receive medals for their successes while Nandua topped local schools with a second-place team finish.

Three wrestlers from Nandua placed first in their weight classes. After an impressive undefeated tournament, David Gastelum, in the 182-pound weight class, and Colin Ford, in the 145 weight class, both took home gold medals. In addition to Nandua's first-place winners, Brandon Ad-amos defeated his opponent in the championship, taking first place in the 285 weight class.

Many other Eastern Shore wrestlers were rewarded second and third place in the tournament. From Arcadia High School, Winchino Veriedu, 106 weight class (second); Michael Settle, 160 (second); William Rantz, 220 (third); and El-Clifton Thurman, 285 (second).

Northampton's only wrestler competing this weekend, Gavin Brittingham, came in third place in the 152 class. The Nandua winners were Joseph Prendergast, 126 (second); Brantley Smith, 126 (third); Ben Stodghill, 132 (second); Ben Gutierrez, 135 (third); and Hunter Rippon, 220 (second).

Warriors Take Down Firebirds

By Whitney Metz

Rivalry basketball is back in action on the Eastern Shore. Tuesday night the Arcadia Firebirds hosted the Nandua Warriors in their first match-up of the season. The Firebirds came out hot with a 16-8 lead behind Anthony Taylor who scored 8 points in the first quarter. Nandua continued to fight to keep it a close game, but trailed at the half 27-20.

Both teams came out with intensity to start the second half, with Nandua applying pressure on the Firebirds with tough defense. Arcadia could not maneuver through the aggressive Warrior defense and the team was only able to score 6 points in the third quarter. Nandua's Jeremiah Riley took control of the game on offense for the Warriors during this time recording 12 points to help take the lead over Arcadia 38-33.

As the final quarter began, fans from both teams were on their feet ready for an ending to the back-and-forth competition. Nandua took advantage of its full-court press on defense and Arcadia was unable to respond to the pressure. The tough defense, combined with another 9 points from Riley, allowed the Warriors to start pulling away. Arcadia wasn't ready to fold yet, and a couple of 3-pointers late in the game brought Arcadia back within reach, but time ran out. Nandua took the victory in Oak Hall with a final score of 54-49.

Nandua's Jeremiah Riley recorded an impressive game-high of 30 points. Kevin Cropper Jr. from Arcadia led his team with 18 points and Anthony Taylor Jr. followed with 13. These two teams will meet again Jan. 27 at Nandua High School.

Warriors Battle Yellow Jackets in Wednesday Night Double-Header

By Adolphus Ames

The Nandua Warriors girls varsity basketball teams hosted the Northampton Yellow Jackets Wednesday, Jan. 19. The first half was a close game, but in the second half the Warriors pulled away, outscoring to gain the win with a final score of 48-24.

Following the girls game, the boys varsity teams had a tense matchup that came down to the last eight minutes. The Warriors led the entire game until early in the fourth quarter when a series of 3-pointers by Jaylen Anderson helped give the Yellow Jackets a comfortable lead that they never relinquished. The Yellow Jackets won 73-58.

The Northampton varsity boys will play again Saturday, Jan. 22. They will host Franklin, who they defeated 55-52 earlier this season, at 6 p.m. The Northampton girls varsity team is scheduled to travel to Oak Hall to face the Arcadia Firebirds Tuesday, Jan. 25. CAPITAL LETTERS

By Del. Rob Bloxom

As the 2022 General Assembly opens, we convene with what is called “Split Government.” This means Republicans control the governor’s mansion as well as the House of Delegates. The Democrats hold the majority in the Senate. My hope is that this brings Virginia back to the middle ground with our policies.

While some would say that great progress was made over the past two years with a single party in complete control, I differ with that opinion in believing big swings in government policy either way by either political party are a bad thing, because they are unsettling for business and for society as a whole. However, as my father told me, the pendulum will always swing back-and-forth.

The speaker has assigned me the same committee assignments as last year, with the addition of one new one. I continue to serve on the appropriations committee, the agriculture, Chesapeake and natural resources committee, and the privileges and elections committee. By remaining on the same committees, my seniority increases as does my influence. Additionally, I have been appointed to be on the transportation committee.

The last topic I will touch in this first report is the outgoing budget introduced by Gov. Northam. The state revenue, boosted by all the federal stimulus, is at an all-time high. If I had been Gov. Northam, I, too, would have allocated every dollar. He sprinkled a lot of money through his outgoing budget for the Eastern Shore. While this is wonderful at face value, there are a couple of problems with this. First, he has left office and neither he nor his staff are around to defend his allocation of the proposed projects. I wish he had shown a preference for us in his first budget, but unfortunately that was not the case. Secondly, when a person gets too much in the budget, the old adage applies: the fat pig gets slaughtered first.

Neither Sen. Lewis nor I can defend all the allocations Gov. Northam included in his budget. A more realistic allocation is required. Sen. Lewis and I will prioritize the allocations and hopefully be successful with much needed state support to complete projects on the Eastern Shore.

I welcome you to visit me in Richmond as we are holding the 2022 Virginia General Assembly in person. The bills that are being considered during the 2022 Virginia House of Delegates session can be viewed at <https://lis.virginia.gov/> You can also stream the committee and floor sessions at <https://virginiageneralassembly.gov/hv>

As always, I welcome you to contact me with any questions or concerns at my district office at 757-824-3456, my Richmond office at 804-698-1000, or email me at delrbloxom@house.virginia.gov.

Village Development Not Suited to Captains Cove

Dear Editor:

“Village development” is new terminology for Eastern Shore planning areas, but the term is not new to urban development. The characteristics of village development include mixed uses, but not all mixed-use areas are a village.

There are more characteristics to village development areas. Today’s villages should look more like a suburban development that includes several housing options with plenty of social opportunities; therefore, they should be located where there are libraries, parks, schools, work opportunities, offices, walking and bike paths, and day-care centers. The key is to allow walking and transportation opportunities.

A good example of a village is Chincoteague. People from everywhere are drawn to Chincoteague and enjoy getting around on foot or by bicycle. This eclectic mixture of housing, businesses, eateries, public buildings, offices, churches, and parks of Chincoteague work together to celebrate the aquatic and equine life of their island.

Eastern Shore has an opportunity to evolve into a peninsula of distinct villages, but we need to plan responsibly. I challenge Northampton and Accomack County officials to create village development districts and allow public input to which current town would like to embrace the distinction. Each town must meet all characteristics of a village, and projects must enhance that community. With the rails-to-trails project, this would be an exciting time to look at towns located on U.S. Route 13. Not only would it help those towns, but it would be attractive when traveling through Eastern Shore.

We should not haphazardly approve village development areas. Captains Cove is a private community that is opposing village development within its community, mostly because it does not enhance the community’s goals, property owners association rules, and amenities. The proposed village actually threatens and works against the services paid by POA fees of their residents. Villages must enhance a community and meet the criteria set within the current zoning and planning codes, but I challenge our officials to create Village Development districts to responsibly enhance the Eastern Shore.

Stores Should Require Masks

I don’t see the daily stats about COVID-19 online locally for omicron. I think they should be out there along with a huge push for mask mandates in stores and elsewhere.

I, for one, would be much more likely to shop where everyone was masked. I don’t get it. We owe it to our first responders and humanity in general, I think.
