Grateful Americans Honor Those Who Gave the Final Measure

By Stefanie Jackson

Commander Glenn Purvis, of the American Legion Northampton Post 56, led a Memorial Day ceremony in front of the Cape Charles War Veterans Memorial on Monday in remembrance and honor of all those who gave their lives in service to their country.

He recalled seeing five U.S. veterans, all Medal of Honor recipients, on television the previous evening and observed that "most of our Medal of Honor winners don't have a chance to stand up there because they died."

One posthumous recipient of the Medal of Honor was 2nd Lt. John Hunter Wickerhsam, who fell on the battlefield in France during World War I.

According to Wickerhsam's Medal of Honor citation, awarded in 1919, he was wounded in four places by the bursting of a high-explosive shell. Before he could receive aid, he tended to the wounds of another injured soldier, his orderly, and led on his platoon. His right hand was

Tyson Foods Offers Ride-Share Service to Employees

By Carol Vaughn

Tyson Foods recently initiated a ride-share program, called Commute with Enterprise, to help its employees have a low-cost way to commute to work.

The program began last year and has grown to include 26 Tyson facilities, including the processing plant in Temperanceville, where around 60 employees participate.

More than 1,000 Tyson employees in total participate, saving an estimated 4 million commuter miles, according to a press release.

In the Commute with Enterprise program, companies such as Tyson, among others, partner with Enterprise to offer the ride-share program to employees.

Enterprise, best known for its rental car service, works with each location to develop a vanpooling plan, grouping employees based on where they live and the shifts they work.

The program provides each group with a minivan, SUV, or passenger van, along with maintenance and insurance. The riders share responsibilities, including taking turns driving.

Participants can save money by sharing the cost of renting the vehicle and gas. It costs on average between $15 and $25 per week to participate.

"We're always looking for ways to create a better experience for our team members as many live and work in rural America and face long commute times," said Hector Gonzales.

lez, head of labor and team member relations for Tyson Foods.

“This program gives them a reliable way to work while also helping them save money. It also helps offset the impact of higher fuel prices,” Gonzalez said.

“I’m extremely grateful for the transportation program,” said Gesner Clermont, an employee at the Temperanceville plant. “It allows me to let my wife use our only vehicle while I’m at work, so I don’t have to worry about my family getting around. I also love that I can help other co-workers who cannot drive themselves,” he said.

“Before the ride-share program, my drive from Winston-Salem to Wilkesboro was about 54 miles, and I spent most of my evenings in the car,” said Hazel Tibbs, a Tyson team member in Wilkesboro, N.C. “Now I have more time to do things for myself and exhale from life while only spending $25 per week,” she said.

“The Enterprise service has given a lot of our team members that live on the Eastern Shore a reliable means of transportation,” said Daniel Hudson, Temperanceville Human Resources Manager.

“Since partnering with Enterprise, absenteeism has improved with the team members that have lacked a reliable source of transportation to work. We currently have 15 vans that are running, and these vans pick up about 60 team members and bring them to work daily,” Hudson said.

Some Tyson Foods facilities also are taking other measures to assist employees with transportation. Tyson’s facility in Eagle Mountain, Utah, created a car purchasing program by providing employees three installments of $500 each to help them buy reliable transportation.

Over the course of 90 days, $1,500 is paid directly to the dealership for the purchase.

Full-time and part-time hourly employees, management support, and temporary hires are eligible for the program.

According to the release, Tyson

Foods has invested more than $500 million in wage increases and bonuses for frontline workers over the past year. Additionally, the company is piloting subsidized and onsite child care, as well as having seven near-site health centers.

Tyson also provides legal and citizenship support for immigrant employees and the company recently announced it will provide free education assistance for all United States employees. An increasing number of Tyson production facilities are also offering more flexible work schedules for frontline workers.

wounded, so he continued to fire his revolver with his left hand until he became exhausted from blood loss and died.

Purvis shared an excerpt of a poem about a mother, which Wickersham wrote in “a muddy foxhole” some time before his death:

“And fellows, she’s the hero of this great big ugly war. And her prayer is on the winds across the flat. And don’t you reckon maybe it’s her tears, and not the rain, that keeps the patter on your old tin hat?”

The poem “was about mothers, but it could just as easily been describing the heartache of wives, daughters, or sisters. It could easily have been described as the anguish of a father, a son, a brother, or a husband, who have felt the loss of one of the million American heroes who have died for this country while serving in the wars from the American Revolution to the war on terror,” Purvis said.

“It is for these heroes that we are here today. Lt Wickersham made the supreme sacrifice in a war that America entered over a century ago. It was supposed to be the war to end all wars. Tragically, it wasn’t,” Purvis said.

A moment of silence was observed for all who died in defense of the nation.

During the Memorial Day event, Chaplain Chris Smith offered up prayers, Michael Flanagan led the singing of “God Bless America” and the national anthem, and Bill Carver played “Amazing Grace” on the bagpipes.

Purvis explained that according to U.S. flag etiquette, on Memorial Day, the flag remains at half staff until noon “to symbolize the remembrance and loss that all of our families and friends have suffered through the generations.”

He then announced it was time to raise the flag, “and we’re going to raise it because we are a great nation.”

Pulling the Pullman

The Philadelphia Star, a heavyweight Pullman car that hosted Winston Churchill and Franklin Roosevelt, rolls down Route 13 near Cape Charles Wednesday evening. The car, one of the last removed from the Cape Charles rail yard as tracks are being torn out, moves to its new resting place on a farm alongside Plantation Creek. Owners Robert and Merle Starer plan to refurbish the car, which is still certified and equipped to ride across the country on Amtrak lines. Because of its rear observation deck, the car always rides as the last passenger car. The roughly four-mile trip down Route 13 took only minutes at a top speed approaching 30 miles per hour. Preparations for the trip took three days, however, in part because of the car's extreme weight. When assembled with body and six-wheeled trucks (chassis), the car weighs 210,000 pounds. Crews reattached both trucks, which had been removed by a previous crew that tried unsuccessfully to move the car. Then, the team of railroad specialists from Roanoke moved the car, removed the trucks, and replaced them with special dollies with solid-rubber tires. Heavily escorted during the trip, the car was preceded by a pilot car sporting a high, vertical pole to ensure that the Philadelphia Star, which rode about a foot taller than standard tractor-trailer, would not snag utility lines. Watch for more photos of the rail car move in next week's Eastern Shore Post. Photo by Jim Ritch.

Pilot Speaks to Boys & Girls Club

Danny Johnson, an Eastern Shore native who graduated from Arcadia High School in 1989, spoke to a group of Eastern Shore Boys & Girls Club members recently, talking about his career as a Marine test jet pilot and a commander of a squadron that included 250 Marines and a dozen F-18 aircraft. During Operation Iraqi Freedom, Johnson led over 300 hours of combat missions. Johnson, who was nominated by the Marines to be a NASA astronaut, told the youth, "Hard work beats natural ability, and although you can not control the circumstances you were born into, you can control your attitude." Johnson told the club members that he didn't always have the best grades and sometimes failed at what he attempted, but those failures only made him work harder. Johnson brought his flight gear to the talk and let many of the members try it on. Johnson, the son of the late Parker and Gloria Johnson, spoke to the Eastern Shore Christian Businessmen's Association earlier that same day. Johnson now lives in Florida with his wife, the former Deanna Novack, of Wallops Island, and their two daughters. Photo by Bill Sterling.

Cape Charles Main Street Announces Tourism Grants

By Stefanie Jackson

Cape Charles Main Street stated in a press release earlier this month that it partnered with four other organizations and businesses in town to apply for and receive nearly $23,000 in Virginia Tourism Corporation (VTC) Marketing Leverage Program grant funding, an average of $4,550 each.

Gov. Glenn Youngkin announced a total of more than $2.7 million in VTC grants for 259 local and regional tourism marketing programs throughout Virginia.

“These grant funds provide an important opportunity for communities across the Commonwealth to accelerate recovery efforts and continue with their best-in-class marketing initiatives to attract new travelers,” said Rita McClenny, president and chief executive officer of VTC.

The Virginia Tourism Corporation was established by the General Assembly in 1999 to advertise Virginia’s tourist attractions and coordinate public and private efforts to promote tourism.

The five Cape Charles organizations and businesses that received funding were:

- Cape Charles Main Street was awarded $5,000 to promote Festive Fridays, special events held every Friday during the winter holiday season to attract visitors to Cape Charles’ shops, restaurants, entertainment venues, and other businesses.

The nonprofit was established in 2018 and is a member of the Virginia Main Street program that revitalizes downtown commercial districts while preserving the history and heritage of communities.

- Citizens for Central Park, another nonprofit, received nearly $4,600 to support its Harbor for the Arts summer concert series.

- Buskey Cider received $5,000 to promote the Cape Charles Craft Trail. Cape Charles’ Buskey Cider on the Bay is an outpost of the Buskey Cider production facility and tasting room in Richmond.

- The Local-ISH Art Gallery/Live Local-ISH received around $4,300 to launch a new website. The ISH in Local-ISH stands for Inspire Shore Hospitality and the gallery features one-of-a-kind creations designed to evoke memories of the Eastern Shore. Live Local-ISH provides concierge services to Cape Charles homeowners such as listing vacation properties online, cleaning, and repairs.

- Drizzles received nearly $3,900 to revitalize its brand and website. Drizzles is a gourmet store selling olive oil, balsamic vinegar, and other products and gifts.

“All of these organizations contribute to the fabric of our community and help to boost the town’s tourism related revenues, which allows us to maintain the infrastructure that ultimately benefits everyone,” said Cape Charles Town Manager John Hozey.

Chincoteague Chamber Announces Annual Awards

Submitted Article and Photos

The Chincoteague Chamber of Commerce recognized and honored business leaders and community servants May 24 at its annual awards ceremony held at Island Theatre. Attendees helped celebrate the 75th anniversary of the theater, an art deco treasure known and loved by so many islanders. Channel Bass Inn catered the event sponsored by Axient, Seaside Vacations & Sales, and Pico Taqueria.

The highlight of the event was the announcement of the Citizen of the Year and Business Person of the Year awards. A committee appointed by the Chincoteague Chamber of Commerce board of directors reviewed all nominations and carefully chose the candidate who the board thought demonstrated excellence in professional and community leadership and exhibited the highest moral and ethical standards. The candidate must also make significant contributions to the welfare of the community through involvement and participation in civic, social, educational, charitable, or business activities.

The Chincoteague Chamber of Commerce 2022 John White Shields Citizen of the Year Award was presented to Billie Ann Bowden in recognition of her selfless contributions to volunteer organizations in addition to assisting friends and family when needed. She is a member of Chapter #62 Order of the Eastern Star and Chincoteague Volunteer Fire Company Auxiliary. Bowden donates many hours each week to Christ United Methodist Church Opportunity Shop and Manna Café, provides rides to doctor appointments and food to sick or bereaved families, and helps fellow citizens. It has been said she will take on tasks that others can't or won't do, not for any gain in return, but because she is a "giving, caring, engaging citizen," according to her nomination ballot.

The Chincoteague Chamber of Commerce 2022 Leonard "Buddy" Burton Business Person of the Year Award was presented posthumously to Rick Watson of Watson Gas Inc.

The Chincoteague Chamber of Commerce 2022 Leonard "Buddy" Burton Business Person of the Year Award was presented posthumously to Rick Watson of Watson Gas Inc. Watson's family poses with the award.

Watson served on the Seafood Festival committee for many years, even before the Chincoteague Chamber of Commerce became the organizer in 2011, providing free gas for the event and spending untold hours on the grounds the week before and day of, making sure all fryers and cookers were working properly. He is respected for the quality of service Watson Gas has always provided, but he is most remembered for his kindness. The nomination ballot states, "The Rick Watson family is the epitome of how all businesses should be. They are an asset to our chamber and an asset to our island."

Outgoing board member Rebecca Hudson was thanked for her recent service to the board and given a plaque of appreciation. Chamber staff updated the audience on upcoming advertising campaigns to reach drive markets in Hampton Roads, Richmond, Northern Virginia, Maryland, and Delaware.

Billie Ann Bowden is the John White Shields Citizen of the Year for her many community contributions. With Bowden are her son, Jack Bowden, and his wife, Beverly, and their daughter Samantha.

Random Facts About ... Lipstick, Its Appeal and the Names We Give It

By David Martin

When we opened our internet tubes this week, all kinds of fun and enticing names came out. It took us a moment to figure out they were names of lipsticks.

Historians say that ancient Sumerians were the first to wear lipstick some 5,000 years ago, but undoubtedly women were coloring their lips all the way back to the cave days. A cavewoman might have noticed that whenever she ate red berries and got the juice all over her lips, the cavemen would look at her and say, in cavepeople talk, the equivalent of "hubba-hubba."

In 2018, the global lipstick market was valued at $11.5 billion, accounting for nearly 900 million lipsticks. To get the exact shade of red to mesmerize Roman emperors, Cleopatra would crush carmine beetles and ants into a mixture with beeswax. Today, most lipsticks have three basic ingredients: wax, oil, and pigment. Wax makes the lipstick spreadable while oils such as lanolin or cocoa butter provide moisture. And pigment, of course, is the color — what made cavemen grunt hubba-hubba and enticed Caesar and

Mark Antony to go ga-ga.

At various points in history, only prostitutes wore red lipstick or, in some cases, were forced to wear red lipstick to signify their status. In prudish 1770 England, lipstick and other cosmetics could make a woman persona non grata. One law said a woman who used cosmetics to seduce a man into matrimony could be tried for witchcraft.

But with actresses and feminists declaring their independence by wearing red lipstick, the practice spread so widely that by the 1950s more women in America were regularly wearing red lipstick than were regularly brushing their teeth. Women in the suffrage movement wore red lipstick to public events to shock men and bring attention to their cause. Rachel Felder, who wrote a book about lipstick and feminism, said red lipstick became the symbol of feminism, "... because it's not just powerful, it's female."

An academic paper written by Debra Merskin and published in 2007, offered this mouthful regarding lipstick names: "The findings show, beyond simple color names, that most of the lipsticks are named after food, beverages, sex, and romance ... Understanding how meaning is constructed through lipstick naming is an important step toward apprehending the role of cosmetics in conflating femininity, self-esteem, and body image with the goals of patriarchal hegemony."

Or, as a patriarch might say, lipstick names are fun: Red Abandon, Tomboy No More, Little Red Wagon, Jungle Red, Crimson and Clover, Ruby Woo (unofficial lipstick of the 2016 Women's March), Russian Red, Reddy Set Go, Forbidden Apple, Unicorn Blood, Chilled Brandy.

And if a woman needs a reason beyond suffrage and sex appeal for wearing red lipstick, she might consider this: Adolf Hitler absolutely despised red lipstick.

Safe Boating Tips From U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary

Submitted Article

This column has covered measures to avoid grounding and how to mitigate the effects of grounding events.

A key element to avoiding and recovering from a grounding is to know your water, preferably with a chart. Many recreational boaters have electronic charts accessible through an app or a chart plotter, but it is always good to have a paper chart of the area.

Paper charts can be expensive and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration will be phasing out traditional paper charts. However, NOAA is offering free downloads of paper chart booklets that can be print as needed.

The booklets are available online at <https://www.nauticalcharts.noaa.gov/charts/noaa-raster-charts.html>

- Select the link to the "Chart Locator" on the right side of the page.
- Select the tab for "Paper Products" to the left of the menu block.
- Enter and select either the chart number or place name.

- Then select "BC" for booklet from the available product menu on the lower right.

The auxiliary and Flotilla 12-02 perform a service to identify potential grounding hazards. To assist the Coast Guard, the auxiliary conducts on-water surveillance of the local aids to navigation. Some recent auxiliary observations have resulted in local aids notices and updates to the navigational light list. When observed, the auxiliary provides a report to the Coast Guard, which will generate the appropriate aids update.

The auxiliary also receives reports from local watermen of issues with aids and obstacles they observe while performing their duties

NOAA Forecast: Above Normal Atlantic Hurricane Season

By Connie Morrison

It's going to be a busy hurricane season for Atlantic Ocean waters and coastlines if a recent forecast holds.

The National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration is forecasting 14 to 21 named storms — those with sustained winds of 39 mph or higher — and six to 10 of those could become hurricanes (sustained winds of 74 mph or higher), and of those, three to six are forecast to be major hurricanes. The ranges have a 70% confidence, according to NOAA.

“The increased activity anticipated this hurricane season is attributed to several climate factors, including the ongoing La Niña that is likely to persist throughout the hurricane season, warmer-than-average sea surface temperatures in the Atlantic Ocean and Caribbean Sea, weaker tropical Atlantic trade winds and an enhanced west African monsoon,” according to a section of the forecast released May 24. “An enhanced west African monsoon supports stronger African Easterly Waves, which seed many of the strongest and longest lived hurricanes during most seasons. The way in which climate change impacts the strength and frequency of tropical cyclones is a continuous area of study for NOAA scientists.”

Tropical cyclones are named alphabetically and are pulled from a predetermined list each season. This year's tropical cyclone names are Alex, Bonnie, Colin, Danielle, Earl, Fiona, Gaston, Hermine, Ian, Julia, Karl, Lisa, Martin, Nicole, Owen, Paula, Richard, Shary, Tobias, Virginie, and Walter.

Gov. Glenn Youngkin on Wednesday urged Virginians to prepare. “I want to encourage Virginians to take the time and prepare now for this coming storm season,” he said. “This includes not only our coastal residents but inland Virginians as well. History has proven that our inland communities are just as susceptible to hurricane impacts like flooding, tornadoes, and high winds.”

For comprehensive information on preparedness, response, and recovery activities, please review the Virginia Hurricane Evacuation Guide, which not only includes evacuation information, but also highlights actions to take in the event of tropical weather.

The guide and other emergency preparedness resources can be found at www.vaemergency.gov/media-assets/

“Preparedness is all about being ready before a storm or disaster even develops,” said Shawn Talmadge, state coordinator at the Virginia Department of Emergency Management. “... Just a little bit of planning goes a long way in ensuring the safety and welfare of you and your family.”

TANGIER COMBINED SCHOOL GRADUATION 2022

Story and Photos by Stefanie Jackson

For the first time since the COVID-19 pandemic began more than two years ago, Tangier Combined School returned to tradition with its 2022 graduation ceremony held in the Swain Memorial United Methodist Church. Because Tangier's graduating class is always so small, each graduate may have the opportunity to speak. The students' remarks are unlike typical commencement addresses and usually include a few words of inspiration to their classmates, maybe an anecdote or two about their school days, and thanking parents, grandparents, brothers, sisters, and other family and friends for their support through the years, telling them, "I love you." Laughter and tears fill the church sanctuary as each graduate shares his or her personal story. This year, special words of thanks and love were reserved for Principal Sharon Haynie, who is retiring after decades in education. In another tradition dating back to 1985, established by Pamela Eskridge, a slideshow about the graduates was shown, including baby photos, class photos, and senior photos, while the song "Goodnight Kiss" by Steve and Annie Chapman was played.

The TCS Class of 2022 is valedictorian Samuel Parks, salutatorian Kevin Thomas, Jacob Crockett, Benjamin Eskridge, Bridgette Riley Mariano, Collin Parks, Richard "R.J." Parks Jr., and Michael Trent Pruitt.

Luria Submits 15 Community Projects – 6 Local – for Federal Funds

By Carol Vaughn

Rep. Elaine Luria submitted 15 community project federal funding requests for Virginia's Second Congressional District next year, including requests for more than $7 million for six projects on the Eastern Shore.

"Community Project Funding invests in the most pressing needs of our Coastal Virginia communities, and I was proud to secure more than $18.5 million for seven projects last fiscal year," Luria said, according to a press release.

She added, "These 15 projects will create good-paying jobs, support local government, improve infrastructure, combat climate change, spur economic development, and lead to further growth and opportunities throughout Hampton Roads. CPF projects are good government at work that improve the lives of Coastal Virginians."

The project requests for the Shore include $250,000 for the Eastern Shore Coalition Against Domestic Violence's Hope Harbor. The money would be used to help renovate the three-building property in Onancock and to hire additional staff.

A second request is for $447,600 for the Eastern Shore Mobile Food Distribution Project for the Foodbank. The money would be used to purchase a vehicle, hire staff, and secure food. The mobile project would allow the Foodbank to deliver food to residents in remote parts of the Shore.

A third request is for $3 million for the Exmore sewage collection system. The money would be used to rebuild and expand the town's sewer collection system.

A fourth request is for $3 million to dredge the federal waterway of the Little Machipongo River to provide access to Willis Wharf.

A fifth request is for $214,416 to expand broadband in the Mt. Nebo and Bailey Neck areas, near Onancock. The money would be used to construct 8.16 miles of broadband network, passing 117 additional homes.

A sixth request is for $3.09 million to bring public sewer service to Wachapreague, including constructing a sewer line connecting the town to the Hampton Roads Sanitation District system and a pump station.

Luria testified May 25 about the projects before the House Appropriations Subcommittee on Transportation, and Housing and Urban Development, and Related Agencies.

Under Appropriations Committee guidelines, each House of Represententatives member may request up to 15 community project funding proposals for fiscal year 2023, although all may not be funded.

Only state and local governments and eligible nonprofit organizations are allowed to receive the funding.

This year, Congress awarded more than $18.5 million for seven community projects in the district, including around $11.2 million for three Eastern Shore projects.

The awards were announced in March.

An award of $8.2 million will help pay for upgrades to the public safety radio communications system on the Shore. The award was the largest single amount awarded for a community project in the nation.

An award of $500,000 was made for the second phase of the Legacy Development Project at New Road, in Exmore, which will provide affordable housing.

An award of $2.5 million was made for construction of the first phase of the Eastern Shore Rail Trail in Cape Charles.

Court Postings

By Nancy Drury Duncan

Lee Judson Edwards, 37, of Tangier Island, originally set for a jury trial, pleaded guilty to five misdemeanors. In exchange, a charge of obstruction was not prosecuted and two felonies reduced to misdemeanors. All jail time would be suspended but for time served.

Edwards served six and a half months in jail, said Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney William Fox.

The first incident took place on Feb. 21. Two men were riding in a golf cart when they saw a crashed motor scooter. One recognized the scooter as belonging to his cousin and rushed over to it. He found Edwards there on the ground drunk. Edwards became combative, striking the men several times. They hit him several times while trying to subdue him. One man was able to hold Edwards down until help arrived. Tangier fire chief Michael Parks and other members of the fire company came to assist. All attempted to restrain Edwards.

He assaulted the fire chief and others, Fox told the court. "He spit at them, blew his nose at them, and kicked Mr. Parks," Fox said.

When a deputy arrived from the mainland, he arrested Edwards and charged him with assault and battery of a firefighter and grand larceny, both felonies.

On the night of Tangier High School's prom in August 2020, Edwards showed up very intoxicated and was asked to leave. He took a 1993 Ford truck parked outside and crashed it into a golf cart and a scooter. When bystanders took him out of the truck, he ran away on foot. When officers came to his home to arrest him, he became combative. He threw himself into the water when they attempted to get him into their boat, forcing the officers to go into the water after him.

It was an alcohol issue, Fox told the court.

"He has been wearing a SCRAM bracelet for 15 months," said defense attorney Garrett Dunham.

Fox said the bracelet detects alcohol use and alerts authorities if any is ingested. He said Edwards had done well on bond and there were no instances of using alcohol since wearing the SCRAM bracelet.

Judge W. Revell Lewis III accepted the plea agreement and sentenced Edwards to 12 months with all but time served suspended on each of three assault and battery charges and two counts of petty larceny.

Fox said he had spoken with all the victims in the case and all were satisfied with the terms of the plea agreement.

Edwards was ordered to be under supervision of Community Corrections for one year, to continue wearing the SCRAM bracelet, and to be on good behavior for five years.

The Osprey-Eyed Reader Contest

Last Week's Runners-Up

Cats always seem camera-ready, and Beth McHenry, of Parksley, identifies this cool-cat photograph with a cool caption: "Jake strikes a pose."

Last Week's Contest and Winner

We made a mistake the previous week. Our winners that week were William and Latanya Rogers (not Roberts). Meanwhile, last week's contest bounced back with 43 players qualifying as contestants by answering four questions: what's going from 7 cents to 5.9 cents (Chincoteague real estate tax rate, Page 12); why is Scott Bakula in the paper (last week's puzzle answers, Page 27); when the prices of the Captains Cove houses in the Long & Foster ad are subtracted from the prices of the Onancock houses in that ad, what's the remainder ($201,200, Page 3); and where does 3:19.99 appear (Layla Jones 800-meter time, Page 30). Ann Weber, of Onancock, was randomly selected to win the Super Tailgate dinner from Bojangles in Onley. She sent us this "gorgeous sunset Memorial Day weekend on the bay."

We love to run pictures of our first-time players and introduce them to the world. World, please meet Patricia Rogers, of Tasley.

Joyce Broadnax, of Cape Charles, has an inspirational message for all: "Thanking God for blessing me each and every day."

This is the time of year for pretty flowers and we get bouquets of them each week. These beauties are from Linda Robinson, of Parksley.

Maybe one of our readers can identify the moth in this picture sent in by James Lamberth, of Cape Charles. We call it OMG Big Moth.

Orangutan is Malay for forest person. This young forest person from the Tampa Zoo in Florida was photographed by Jimmy Nickerson, of Parksley.

When you have a beautiful car and give it a name (Raven), you want to pose it with a sunset, so that's what Jeanette Bell, of Onley, did.

This Week's Contest: We're Going To The Dogs!

You have to find versions of this exact hot dog:  You can count that one. How many total? H-o-t-d-o-g-s. Of those who find all the hot dogs, one lucky person will be randomly selected to win a $25 gift certificate from C.D. Marsh Jewelers in Onancock. See sponsor box on this page.

The Rules

1. Find the hot dogs and tell us on which page, and where on that page, you found each hot dog.
2. Entries MUST have first and last names and your town.
3. Send this information to david@easternshorepost.com.
4. Deadline is noon Monday, June 6.
5. No multiple entries.
6. Anyone submitting a photograph must have taken the picture or have permission to use it.

Vikings Conclude Softball Season

Submitted Story

After a very successful 9-9 softball season from the Broadwater Lady Vikings and first-year head coach Dale Wright, the team earned its way into the VISAA state tournament.

The Vikings defeated Portsmouth Christian in the Metro-Conference semifinals and then faced Atlantic Shores Christian in the Metro-Conference Championship game. The Vikings finished second in the conference tournament and then headed to Sutherland, Va., to play Kingston Forest in the quarterfinals of the state tournament.

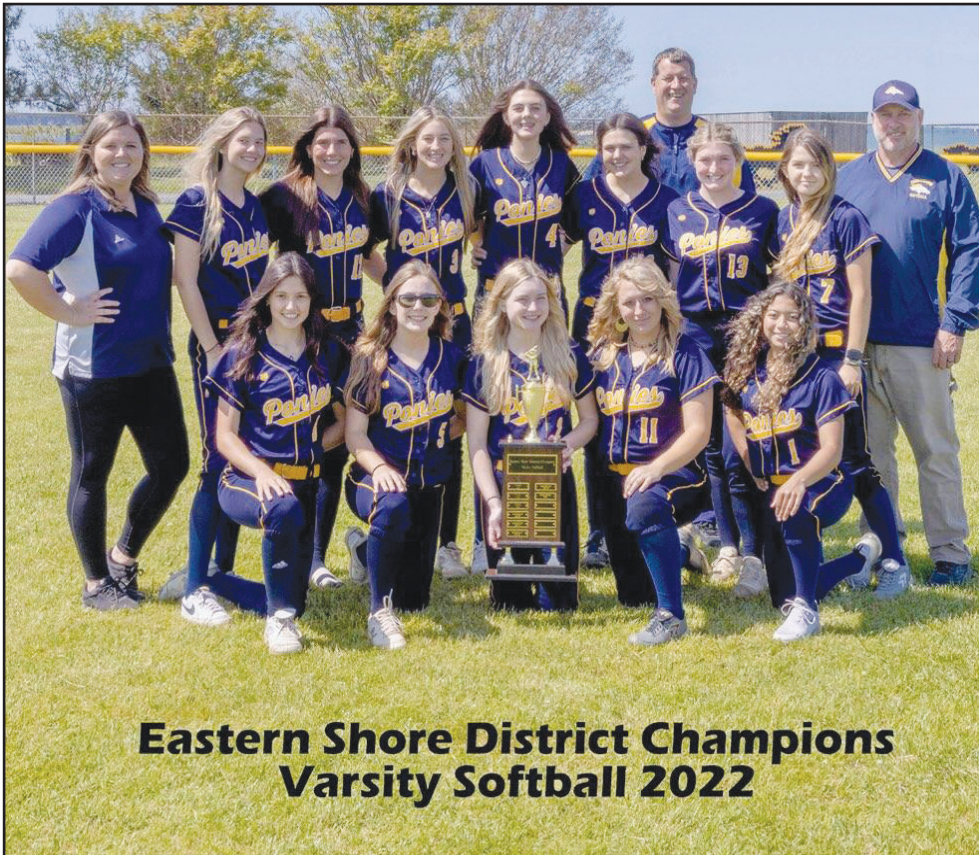

The Vikings fought hard but lost 11-3. Hard work would pay off however as the Lady Vikings earned several Metro-All Conference First Team awards. Taylor Leland, Chloe Hall, Kacee Ford, and Ramsey Revell all earned first team honors for outstanding pitching, hitting, and defensive play this season.

Leland led the team and was second in the conference with a .539 batting average and also finished second for player of the year. Hall and Ford shined on defense all year and Ford, an eighth grader, did damage at the plate as well batting over .360 for the season. Revell, a freshman pitcher, was solid all year with a 2.50 ERA in conference play. The team had solid hitting all year from Harlin Johnson and Suzanna Long.

Defensively, Molly Brown, Sophie Galivan, and Haley Nalls each had a successful year. The Lady Vikings are a young squad and will return seven starters next year, looking to improve on this year's success.

Also recording hits for the Warriors were Tyler Greene, Ben Stodghill, Robbins, and Martin Savage. Nandua earned the 5-0 win and advanced to the regional semifinals.

In the semifinals, the Warriors faced off against Randolph-Henry at home Tuesday, May 31. Nandua went down early in the game and despite a hard fight in the final innings, the team was unable to respond. The Warriors took the loss with a final score of 9-7.

Tyler Greene started the game on the mound and threw 2.2 innings of work. Greene allowed four runs on three hits with three walks and three strikeouts. Ripken Robbins came in for relief, throwing 4.1 innings against a tough offensive team. Robbins recorded eight strikeouts and allowed five runs on five hits.

The Warriors were hot on offense during the sixth inning as Aiden McIntyre and Brandon Adamos each hit home runs. Adamos led the team going 3-for-4 at the plate with two RBIs. McIntyre followed going 2-for-4 with three RBIs. Ben Stodghill, Robbins, Savage, Brandon Smith, and Jacob Meilhammer all collected a hit in the loss as well.

Nandua concluded its season after the loss with a final record of 16-3 on the year and were honored as the Eastern Shore District Champions.

Fishing from the Shore

By Bill Hall

been caught. Kingfish (whiting) catches were made in the waters between the inlet and Memorial Park. Kaleigh Leager caught and released a 25-inch citation speckled trout in Chincoteague Bay.

Wahapreague – Captain Lindsay Paul, at Trident Tackle, commented that the flounder fishing out of Wachapreague has not been exceptional. He said he has not seen or heard of many flounder catches during the week. Captain Paul said some black drum catches were coming from the inlet. Black sea bass catches have come from over the offshore wrecks. The first boats ventured offshore in search of tuna on Memorial Day.

Amanda Manzella, at the Wachapreague Inn, described the recent fishing as “decent, once the winds subsided.” Manzella said anglers were finding flounder inside the inlet and black sea bass offshore. She reported Captain Tom Watts had flounder weighing up to 5 pounds.

Lower Shore – Jeb Brady, at Bailey’s Bait & Tackle, said anglers were targeting a variety of species over the Memorial Day weekend. Black drum action was encountered by anglers soaking clam and crab baits near buoy 13 and on Latimer Shoal. Large red drum were still being found outside the barrier island surf. Cobia have started entering the bay with anglers reporting catch and releases by bottom fishing with bunker and sight casting with eels.

Brady said the cobia fishing will improve with the warming water temperatures. The flounder bite has improved with catch reports coming from the Fisherman Island Bridge and inside the Ditch. Squid and Berkley Gulp were the top-producing flounder baits. Sand mullet (whiting) catches are coming from the concrete ships and in the waters off Cape Charles.

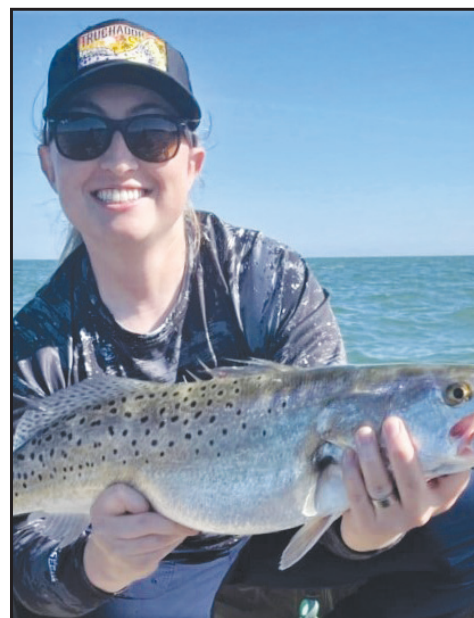

Dez Louie, at Oceans East – Eastern Shore, told me cobia have arrived in the lower bay and are hitting cut bunker baits fished Spadefish and cobia have made their seasonal appearance in the lower Chesapeake Bay. Cobia, however, are illegal to possess until the legal season opens June 15. A recreational permit is also required for an angler to keep a cobia. The permits are free and available from the Virginia Marine Resources Commission website <https://mrc.virginia.gov/>

Upper Shore – Captain Alan Ring, at the Sea Hawk Sports Center, told me his flounder fishing customers were enjoying success on both minnows and silversides, while fishing out of Chincoteague, Gargathy, Metompkin, and Quinby. The key to successful catches was finding clear water during light winds. Ring said rockfish and speckled trout catches have been made in the Chesapeake Bay shallows, as well as over submerged structure. Most of the fish were caught by anglers casting lead jig-heads with paddletails and crank-baits such as Rapala 10s. There have been a few red and black drum catches also coming from the bay’s shallow waters. Catfish and black perch catches have been made by anglers fishing with bloodworms on top and bottom rigs in the Pocomoke River.

Chincoteague – Jimmy Vasiliou, at Captain Steve’s Bait and Tackle, reported that sharks have arrived, much to the delight of the tourists. The shop was selling their custom shark rigs as fast as they could make them. There was a good run of black drum in the Assateague surf on Monday. Anglers using smaller hooks and baits enjoyed success with sea mullet (whiting), small croakers, and bluefish weighing up to 5 pounds. Some blues were caught by anglers casting artificial lures such as Z-Mans. In Chincoteague Bay, flounder and a few speckled trout have made their seasonal appearance and have started biting small clam baits. Flounder catches have come from inside the Ditch. Bottom fishing with Fish Bites, squid strips, and/or shrimp is producing whiting (sand mullet), spot, and croakers. Anglers casting Got-Cha plugs off the Kiptopeke Pier have caught gray trout and ribbonfish.

D.A.R.E. Day Is Culmination of Program To Discourage Drug Use

By Carol Vaughn

Fifth grade students from Accomack County Public Schools and Kiptopeke Elementary School in Northampton gathered on the grounds of Nandua High School Tuesday for the annual D.A.R.E. Day celebration.

D.A.R.E., which stands for Drug Abuse Resistance Education, is a program that teaches students good decision-making skills to help them lead safe, healthy lives.

The program on the Eastern Shore is conducted by the sheriff's offices of Accomack and Northampton counties.

Deputy Jason Campbell, of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office, is D.A.R.E. coordinator for Accomack County schools.

Deputy Jennifer Scott, of the Northampton County Sheriff's Office, is D.A.R.E. coordinator for Northampton County schools.

The D.A.R.E. curriculum is taught in thousands of schools in the 50 states and in United States territories, as well as in more than 50 other countries, reaching more than 1.5 million students annually, according to www.dare.org

Campbell kicked off the celebration, followed by comments by Accomack County Sheriff Todd Wessells.

Wessells thanked Campbell and the public school district and its teachers for allowing the sheriff's office to conduct the D.A.R.E. program.

"You are moving on to middle school," Wessells said to the students, adding, "Think about life choices. The choices you make can affect you years down the road."

Campbell and Wessells awarded the trophy for the winning D.A.R.E. essay to Brian Toussaint, a student at Metompkin Elementary School.

A food drive was conducted in connection with the D.A.R.E. program, with the food collected going to the Foodbank of the Eastern Shore.

Students collected a total of 2,129 pounds of food.

Leslie Parker, Foodbank branch coordinator, awarded trophies to the three schools that collected the most food for the drive.

Tangier Combined School was awarded the trophy for collecting the most food, 1,755 pounds, with Metompkin Elementary School taking second place, and Pungoteague Elementary School coming in third.

The celebration included a K-9 dog demonstration, tours of a Virginia Marine Police boat, games including soccer and foursquare, inflatable slides and a bounce house, and food.

Stodghill Named Club Manager

Bill Sterling

Chris Stodghill needed no introduction to the club or its members when he was recently named the general manager of Eastern Shore Yacht & Country Club. Stodghill, 43, and his wife, Maggie, with their three sons live on the fourth fairway of the golf course and have been active and energetic members of the club for the past six years.

“My family and I love this place and all it has to offer,” said Stodghill recently, at his office after a quick game of pickleball that morning. “We use the pool, the tennis courts, play golf, and enjoy the restaurant. The opportunity to serve the members and guests of the club was just too great to pass up.”

As a member of the club, Stodghill was active, serving as chairman of the pool and activities committee and implementing new events from Topgolf on the driving range to a variety of live entertainment and events in the clubhouse, including teen pool parties and video game tournaments.

He did all that despite frequent travel involved as site director and community relations director with the National Counseling Group. “I enjoyed my career immensely, and my wife and I talked about it and also prayed over the decision to leave NCG.” Indeed, Stodghill speaks fondly of the career and co-workers he just left, mentioning the late Sharone Bailey, in addition to Marion Long, Wayne Bell, Shelia Turner, and David Richardson.

Stodghill said it came down to time with his family. “I was driving to Virginia Beach and Norfolk quite often, and here I am just around the corner at a place where I already spend a lot of time. My boys are active in all sorts of sports, and I coached Pop Warner League football for three years and have coached Little League baseball for just over 10 years. So it just was a good fit, but the important thing is it allowed me to continue to do what I love: determine the needs of a community and then provide service to fulfill those needs.”

Stodghill has an athletic background. Born in Oklahoma City, Okla., he was raised in San Diego, Calif.,

from the age of 8 and then came east to play quarterback at Chowan College in North Carolina after two years at a junior college. Graduating with a degree in psychology, Stodghill played well in a Division III college all-star game and impressed a coach, who convinced him to play semi-pro football with the Virginia Ravens in Richmond. He was named an all-conference quarterback in the Mason-Dixon Football League in 2004 and 2005, as well as being the second team punter in 2005. The Ravens won two Mason-Dixon league championships and an East Coast National Championship in Stodghill’s time with the Ravens.

He met his wife when answering an ad in the Richmond Times-Dispatch for a door-to-door sales position. She was the trainer. Raised on the Eastern Shore, Maggie is one of five daughters of Dr. Frederico and Jo Ann Molera. “I married into a wonderful family,” said Chris, whose parents and two siblings are scattered from North Carolina to Missouri to Arizona.

Maggie sells real estate and arranges floral creations in her shop in Onancock. Both parents are often at a ballfield with one of their three sons. The oldest, Benjamin, is a senior at Nandua High School and will be attending Hampden-Sydney College next fall, planning to play baseball and possibly golf. The middle son, Issac, is a sophomore at Nandua High School and plays baseball. The youngest, Lucas, is a sixth grader at Montessori School in Franktown and will attend Nandua Middle School next fall. The Molera family has been instrumental in the formation and operation of the Montessori Children’s House of Franktown, and it was Maggie and a childhood friend who worked to reopen the school after she moved back to the Shore with Chris so their children could experience the same educational start she and her sisters had.

Relationships are important to Stodghill. He praises the work of course superintendent Andrew Howard, who with a staff of seven maintains the course. “We have the original greens from over 60 years ago when the course opened, and they are in excellent condition, thanks to the work of Andrew and his staff,” he said. “This job would be overwhelming if it wasn’t for Blake Johnson running the food operation with the help of Dana Floyd, who has known my wife’s family forever because of her directing ‘The Nutcracker’ for many years. Amaris Mazziott, our business manager, has helped me to get up to speed in this job. The pro shop staff, led by Harper Matthews, have also been great to work with,” said Stodghill, who had an early meeting with the golf committee the morning of this interview.

Stodghill knows golf and the needs of golfers firsthand. A mid-iron shot from his house sits the fifth green, where he has aced the 174-yard par 3 hole twice, one year and a day apart. “I know I will be playing golf this year on Sept. 11,” said Stodghill, who explains it was on that date in 2020 he made a hole-in-one on the fifth hole. And then on Sept. 12 the following year, using the same hybrid 3 club, he duplicated the shot. “It was a different ball,” said Stodghill, a 15-handicapper who noted that neither time did he see the ball go into the hole, thinking it went just over the back of the green. His wife was in the foursome for the second hole-in-one, making it that much more special.

But the relationship Stodghill credits most for his new position was the one he had with the former general manager, Monika Bridgforth. “What Monika did here has been simply amazing. Membership at one time after the fire destroyed the clubhouse had dipped to below 200, and now it stands at 487. It’s a daunting task to try to fill her shoes, but at the same time she has established so many programs and built such a strong foundation that I just need to tweak it as the need develops. I worked with her closely as a volunteer at the club, and when she realized she would be leaving to spend more time with her family, she talked to me about this job and piqued my interest to the point I had time to think about it. She was very encouraging.”

Another note of encouragement came from the first president and founder of the club, George McMath, in the form of a letter Stodghill has pinned on the wall, where he can easily see it from his desk. McMath, who as a young man in his 20s in the early 1960s, gathered community leaders and started the process to form a country club even before there was land available, wrote to Stodghill, saying the position he has now assumed is about “serving the community while providing recreation and entertainment for its members.”

“That sums up exactly what I want to do here,” said Stodghill.

Maya Lin at Virginia MOCA: Marbles and Memories

*By Martha Wessells Steger
Special to the Eastern Shore Post*

I hadn't given thought to marbles since my mother handed me a fistful to keep me occupied at the ages of 5 and 6 while she helped my grandmother pack strawberries at the edge of the field between Onley and Melfa. Children of the berry-pickers and I had a field day casting the tiny, shiny orbs into the Eastern Shore's sandy loam while our parents worked.

Fast-forward several decades to other layers of meaning in rough-textured industrial marbles used by sculptor, architect, and artist Maya Lin in "Marble Chesapeake & Delaware Bay," the most striking component of her installation, "A Study of Water," at the Virginia Museum of Contemporary Art in Virginia Beach.

Lin has channeled 23,000 marbles into an expansive map of the bays flowing across the main gallery's extended floorspace (interior walls removed), up the side walls and onto the ceiling. The visitor who doesn't recognize her name would never associate the Lin revealed here with the controversial — now beloved — Vietnam Veterans Memorial, dedicated in 1985 in Washington, D.C., which brought her to international prominence when she won the public competition as a Yale undergraduate student.

As I walked around the map of marbles, light from above hit them, shifted as I moved, and hit the marbles again, creating a ripple like the pure water seen by early 17th century Europeans when they sailed across the Chesapeake Bay from Jamestown to the Eastern Shore. Industrial these marbles might be, but transparent like those I played with in the dust, they offer a fitting tribute to a bay whose watershed still sparkles despite toxic runoff channeled into it by 150 major rivers and streams and more than 100,000 smaller tributaries. The bodies of water run through six states in the watershed, which stretches from Cooperstown, N.Y., to Norfolk.

Silver, Wood, and Plaster

Just as water is commonplace for the 8 million people living within the watershed, everyday materials such as wood, plaster, and silver take on new meanings in Lin's work. She crafted a sparkling wall piece in the exhibition — the 42-inch-long "Silver Chesapeake" — from recycled silver, which had lived another life before becoming museum-worthy art. The sculpture calls to mind two very different things: Its free-form shape resembles a piece of ginger root, Lin has said in connecting the work to her Asian heritage; but a Chesapeake Bay fisherman might see in it the silver-sided shad, a species now under threat.

The opposite of any sparkle is the 35-foot-long wood sculpture, "Flow," depicting waves in crests and troughs with 10,000 two-by-fours cut to varying lengths, set vertically on end. The wood is a reminder of deforestation, according to Melissa Medina, guest curator of the show — the loss of forests contributing to ice melt, coastal flooding, and quickening sea level rise.

While You're There

MOCA's ARTlab offers interactive stations for all ages as well as a book list related to the exhibition and a meaningful time-lapse video.

“Imagining Iceberg,” a plaster sculpture resembling a large, unopened oyster shell, suggests rising sea level with half of the shell submerged. Despite the visual allusions, Lin hasn’t used the exhibition to point fingers; she’s focused on natural materials’ beauty and harmony in ways that open visitors up to new ways of seeing them.

“What Is Missing?”

She’s chosen as her memorial the theme of resilience, creating a website — www.whatismissing.org — which shows images and memories of disappearing species, and references conservation efforts directed at a turnaround. Residents and visitors to Hampton Roads communities can view “What Is Missing?,” jot down their thoughts about losses they’ve witnessed related to the Chesapeake Bay, and tape written examples of resilience they’ve seen onto a designated wall.

The website and wall reflections serve as a monument to the extinction of plant and animal species worldwide, though Lin has written of bodies of water as “living, unified organisms.” Alison Byrne, the museum’s deputy director of exhibitions and education, and a native of Ireland, relates to the installation as “greater appreciation of where I live and how we can do better, as individuals and as organizations working together — the way the museum worked with the Chesapeake Bay Foundation for this exhibition.”

Extinction vs. Resilience

“We are experiencing the sixth mass extinction in the planet’s history,” Lin wrote on a wall at the museum, “and the only one to be caused by the actions of a single species — mankind. On average, every 20 minutes a distinct living species of plant or animal disappears. At this rate, by some estimates, as much as 30 percent of the world’s animals and plants could be on a path to extinction in the next 100 years.”

cedes ago, talking of runoff resulting in too much nitrogen and phosphorus endangering the bay’s population of crabs and oysters as well as the critical habitat of bay grasses. Seagrass — my piece jotted down for “What Is Missing?”

Lin has paternal memories, too — playing with marbles in her father’s studio when he was creating ceramics as well as teaching art at Ohio University in Athens, Ohio, where she grew up.

She visited the VMOCA in mid-April for three days to tweak the show, attend a few private events, and deliver a lecture (which visitors can see on video at the museum). “The Chesapeake Bay — which is why I’m so excited to be here,” she said, “has played a very large part” in her museum sculptures. “From an ecological point of view, it is one of the most critically important bodies of water in this country.”

Health Matters Skin Cancer Awareness

Courtesy of Centers for Disease Control and Prevention

Overexposure to ultraviolet (UV) rays causes most cases of melanoma, the deadliest kind of skin cancer. To lower your skin cancer risk, protect your skin from the sun and avoid indoor tanning.

Summer is full of outdoor activities. You probably put sunscreen on yourself and your kids when you go to the pool or the beach. But do you know you should protect your skin with more than just sunscreen anytime you're outside?

Sun protection is important all year round, and it's best to use several different kinds. When you're working in the yard, watching a ballgame, or taking an afternoon walk, make sun safety an everyday habit so you can avoid getting a sunburn and lower your chance of getting skin cancer.

What's In Your Tote Bag?

Here's a tip to help make sure you and your family stay sun-safe. Get ready for summer with a tote bag full of different ways to protect your skin. Keep the tote bag handy so you can grab it whenever you head out for summer fun!

Some important things to pack:

- a lightweight long-sleeved shirt or cover-up
- a hat with a wide brim that shades your face, head, ears, and neck
- sunglasses that block both UVA and UVB rays
- sunscreen with SPF 15 or higher and both UVA and UVB (broad spectrum) protection.

Fast Facts About Skin Cancer

- Skin cancer is the most common cancer in the United States and includes different types.
- Unprotected skin can be damaged by the sun's UV rays in as little as 15 minutes.
- Even if it's cool and cloudy, you still need protection. UV rays, not the temperature, do the damage.
- Anyone can get skin cancer, but some things put you at higher risk.
- The most common signs of skin cancer are changes on your skin, such as a new growth, a sore that doesn't heal, or a change in a mole.

Sun Safety Tips for Employers

The Occupational Safety and Health Act requires employers to minimize risk of harm to workers. Employers may be required to provide workers' compensation to employees who get skin cancer because of sun exposure on the job.

ers' productivity. Every year, Americans lose more than $100 million in productivity because of restricted activity or absence from work due to skin cancer.

Providing sun protection for outdoor workers helps create a healthy and safe workplace. It can also increase productivity, which saves money. Some of the tips below protect outdoor workers from heat as well as sun exposure.

- Encourage sun safety among your employees and provide sun protection when possible.
- Use tents, shelters, and cooling stations to provide shade at worksites.
- Schedule breaks in the shade and allow workers to reapply sunscreen throughout their shifts.
- Create work schedules that minimize sun exposure. For example, schedule outdoor tasks like mowing for early morning instead of noon, and rotate workers to reduce their UV exposure.

To learn more about skin safety, go to <https://www.cdc.gov/cancer/dccp/resources/features/skincancer/index.htm>

Reapply sunscreen at least every 2 hours and after swimming, sweating, or toweling off.

MIKE PEIRSON HONORED BY CBES AS 2022 SUZANNE WESCOAT AWARD RECIPIENT

A version of this article was originally published in ShoreLine, a publication of Citizens for a Better Eastern Shore.

By Donna Bozza

Mike Peirson is an unassuming man who played a vital part in the establishment of a what is now a leading Shore industry — aquaculture. He committed decades to volunteer work, even instituting with his wife a college scholarship. And when Citizens for a Better Eastern Shore, a grassroots nonprofit created in 1988, was very close to folding, he provided the lifeline.

These are just some of the reasons CBES is giving the Suzanne Wescoat Award to Michael “Mike” Peirson at the CBES June 5 picnic.

The award is named in honor of one of the founders and the first president of CBES, Suzanne Wescoat, who was an ardent community supporter and longtime Northampton County supervisor. CBES presents this award not annually but when it believes there is an opportunity to recognize a citizen who has uniquely impacted the Eastern Shore and who stands as an exemplary example of community service.

“I was a country boy born in Philadelphia, so this was my chance to get to the country,” said Peirson on why he was attracted to the Eastern Shore. He and wife, Lee, moved to the Shore in 1972 having followed his aunt, uncle, and then his parents, who had all recently left New Jersey. Mike Peirson’s father bought a general store, Pappy’s Corner, at the intersection at Harbor-ton and Hacksneck.

In 1972, Peirson got a grant-funded position at VIMS in Wachapreague as a technician, making $4,000 a year. He stayed there two years, until the grant ran out, then moved back north for employment. Lee Peirson was then eight months pregnant and got a job researching pesticides.

Feeling underemployed, Mike Peirson went back to college and earned his Ph.D. in marine biology in 1983 from North Carolina State University. His hopes for doing environmental research for a large chemical company like DuPont or Exxon were banished by massive industry layoffs.

But fate was about to team Peirson with a visionary seafood business owner who was intrigued by an unproven concept for the region — farming clams. Peirson met Carol Chadwick Ballard, whose lucrative family operation had been harvesting wild clams since 1895.

“He was about 67 at the time and could have just sat on his money and been fine,” said Peirson of Ballard. “Instead, he invested in a thing that no one was making money at and took a chance. And he was the one that took the chance,” though Peirson’s part in the success can’t be denied because much of the operation had to be started from scratch.

Peirson visited what was considered the top aquaculture operation at the time in Charleston, S.C. Peirson and Ballard copied the onshore growing process, but there was no hatchery. Both thought they could do better and set a goal of growing 5 million clams a year. Peirson invented nearly every aspect of the business as he went — designing saltwater plumbing for all the tanks, designing and building all the original buildings with his uncle, Jack, and Lee Peirson pitching in to sew sandbags for clam beds.

By the time Mike Peirson retired from Cherrystone Aqua Farms in 2010, the business was selling 70 million clams a year. CAF was the largest clam business of its kind, able to provide a stably priced, consistently sized clam that was available year-round. It changed the aquaculture business from clams being available only seasonally and at summer resort restaurants to clams being available all year long at big-name grocery store chains — providing much needed revenue and jobs for the community, not to mention helping keep local waters clean.

Instead of relaxing after retirement, Peirson increased his volunteer hours. He served on the Virginia Eastern Shorekeeper Board starting in the early 2000s and acted as treasurer in the later years of the organization. He is also the treasurer for CBES and has been active on the board for 11 years.

In 2015, when CBES continued to struggle with the loss of the revenue once provided by the now-defunct Cary Trust, to the point where the doors nearly shut, Peirson provided time for CBES to stabilize and grow to a full-time organization by providing a $50,000 lien on the CBES office building.

Peirson never forgot how his education provided him opportunities to enhance his and his family’s, as well as his community’s, quality of life. At his alma mater, North Carolina State University, Mike has served on the board of visitors for eight years and on its foundation board for almost 26 years. He also established the Dr. and Mrs. Michael Peirson Dean’s Scholarship, Solomon Scholar Program, a substantial merit-based scholarship awarded to outstanding students in the NCSU College of Sciences.

CBES dedicates the 2022 Suzanne Wescoat Award to Mike Peirson for his contributions to the Eastern Shore community and especially for his steadfast loyalty, assistance, and support of the CBES mission to make the Eastern Shore a better place for all.

Filibuster Blocks Gun Control

Dear Editor:

I’d like to address a touchy subject: guns in the USA.

With gun tragedy after gun tragedy, the majority of Americans demand something be done about gun violence, yet all reasonable (meaning a negotiated, compromised position where no one gets everything they want) gun control legislation never sees the light of day. Why?

The Senate filibuster allows the vocal minority to kill otherwise useful bills dead in their tracks. This hurts everyone in our country. Democracy is fundamentally majority rule and though there are times when a minority opinion is crucial we must rewrite the filibuster rules to not allow a vocal minority to halt vital legislation like thoughtful gun control.

Our country is a melting pot of ideals and we need to find common ground when dealing with issues as important as keeping our children safe from guns. This is not about taking everyone’s guns away; it’s about finding a compromise that does not sacrifice our innocent children in the exchange.

Talk to your senators about fixing the filibuster.
