The Slammin' Clams Travel to Orlando for Special Olympics USA Games

By Carol Vaughn

The Slammin' Clams basketball team from Special Olympics Virginia Area 19, which includes Accomack and Northampton counties, participated in the Special Olympics USA Games in Orlando, Fla., in June.

It was the first time in recent memory that a team from the Shore was chosen to participate in the USA games, according to Sandy Taylor, Special Olympics Virginia Area 19 coordinator.

The team had been preparing for the USA Games since being informed a year ago it was selected.

The USA Games, held June 5 to 12, included more than 5,500 athletes and coaches from all 50 states and the Caribbean and 125,000 spectators during one of the country's most cherished sporting events.

Slammin' Clams team members joined athletes from around Virginia to travel to the games from Richmond by airplane — it was the first airplane trip for most of the Shore athletes, including Janie Pease, who coaches the team along with Jesse Maples.

"It was a really awesome experience," said Pease.

The team stayed at Walt Disney World's All-Star Sports Resort.

In addition to participating in the opening ceremonies on Sunday and playing basketball games, they spent an evening at Disney's Animal Kingdom, a day at the Magic Kingdom, and got to see the Harlem Globetrotters play at Orlando's Amway Arena, Pease said.

The Slammin' Clams placed fourth in the nation at the games, despite having fewer members than is optimal.

Their motto was "Never give up," Pease said, adding, "They played their hearts out."

The team has been playing together for around six years, although some members joined more recently.

In addition to the excitement of the team being selected for the USA

Captains Cove Residents Sue Townhome Developer

By Carol Vaughn

A group of Captains Cove residents filed a civil lawsuit June 21 in Accomack County Circuit Court against the company proposing to build a 140-unit townhouse development adjacent to the Captains Cove subdivision near Greenbackville.

The lawsuit alleges that past and proposed actions by the development company, CCG Note LLC, by virtue of having a controlling majority of its own representatives on Captains Cove's property owners association board of directors, "represent self-dealing in breach of its fiduciary duty owed" to Captains Cove property owners.

The plaintiffs are asking the court to declare their property rights, as established in documents related to the subdivision; to find that CCG Note controls the property owners association; to award damages against CCG Note, in an unspecified amount; and to enjoin the developer and the property owners association "from tak-

Games, team captain Art Lane, of Asawoman, also is featured in a Coca-Cola television commercial, which aired during coverage of the games.

The soft drink company is a founding partner and global sponsor of Special Olympics.

Lane traveled to Richmond in April for a video shoot for the commercial.

Team members who played at the USA Games are Lane, Kevon Drummond, Roger Hamilton, Walter Lankford, Juan Nottingham, Stephen Stratton, and Joe Gittinger, in addition to coaches Pease and Maples.

The team left the Shore Friday, June 3, for Richmond, where they joined other Virginia athletes to travel to Florida.

Slammin' Clams members received two sets of new uniforms for the USA Games, along with Nike tennis shoes, other apparel, roll-on bags, and other items as part of their selection for the games.

One of the highlights for athletes was trading commemorative pins with athletes from other states at the games.

Additionally, athletes at the games, through the Healthy Athletes program, were given the opportunity to get free health checks, including hearing, eyesight, and dental checks, according to Pease.

As result, five Slammin' Clams members are receiving new eyeglasses and prescription sports goggles and two received new hearing aids, all free of charge.

ing any actions that interfere with or damage” residents’ property rights as established.

“It is unfortunate that the residents of Captains Cove had to take legal action against CCG Note LLC; however, there is no other recourse for us to protect the assets and design of our community,” said Teresa Birkhead, chairperson of Concerned Citizens of Captains Cove, in an email Monday.

Birkhead said there are “five board members affiliated or associated with that company and (who) will reap economic benefits from using our private assets,” referring to members of the Captains Cove property owners association board of directors who are affiliated with CCG Note.

“Even after 53 years of inception of Captains Cove, the developer controls the Property Owners Association. That is not a flattering fact for any developer especially when most buildable lots are owned by the members of the community,” she wrote.

The residents are represented by attorney Douglas E. Kable, of the Chesapeake firm Basnight, Kinser, Leftwich & Nuckolls.

The lawsuit names seven Captains Cove residents, including Birkhead, as plaintiffs and CCG Note LLC and Captain’s Cove Golf & Yacht Club Inc. as the defendants.

Captain’s Cove Golf & Yacht Club is the property owners association for the residential subdivision and CCG Note LLC, a Maryland LLC, is the developer, according to the lawsuit.

CCG Note’s owners/members include Timothy Hearn, James Silfee, Rodger Holland, and Michael Glick, according to the lawsuit.

The 88-page lawsuit includes as exhibits several documents related to Captains Cove, including a declaration of covenant restrictions, property owners association board of directors results, plats, documents related to the community’s water and sewer utilities, a site plan for the proposed townhouse project, and proffers CCG Note made to Accomack County related to an application for a conditional use permit.

Among claims detailed in the lawsuit is that the developer, CCG Note, has a super-majority on the property owners’ association board of directors, resulting in CCG Note representatives controlling the association.

“(In) its capacity as declarant and through its control of the association, CCG Note owes the plaintiffs, and the other Captain’s Cove property owners, a fiduciary duty and an obligation not to engage in self-dealing in any manner that damages their property rights,” according to the lawsuit.

The lawsuit also says the developer’s plan to use Captain’s Corridor, a private street in Captains Cove, to access the proposed townhouse development violates the declaration of covenant restrictions for the subdivision.

Additionally, the lawsuit says that, according to the declaration, the sewer system that serves Captains Cove is not intended for public use and that use of numbered lots in the subdivision is restricted to single-family homes, but that lots were sold for sewer system use.

The lawsuit details the history of the sewer system, which CCG Note proposes to also use for the townhouse development.

In the lawsuit, the plaintiffs say the sewer system does not have capacity to serve both the townhouses and the platted lots in Captain Cove.

In a 1973 deed, the original developer, First Charter Land Corporation, conveyed all streets, parks, recreational facilities, and amenities to the property owners association.

In October 2014, Hearn, in his capacity as president of Captain’s Cove Utility Company Inc., signed an agreement to sell the sewer assets to Aqua Virginia Inc.

The agreement obligated Captain’s Cove Utility Company to convey to Aqua a 10-acre parcel, to be used for rapid infiltration basins for sewer treatment. The land at the time was not owned by the utility company but by the property owners association.

In February 2015, Hearn, as president of the utility company, signed a sales agreement for the 10 acres with the property owners association, which Hearn and other owners/members of CCG Note controlled at the time, according to the lawsuit.

Additionally, CCG Note or its affiliate, CCG Land LLC, sold “several numbered Captain’s Cove residential building lots” to the utility company, which in turn sold them to Aqua to be used for the sewer system, which the lawsuit says violated restrictions on use of the lots.

In December 2015, the property owners association, “while under the control of CCG Note,” also granted Aqua a permanent easement to access and use an area on the golf course for the sewer system. The easement crossed private areas that were supposed to be for exclusive use of property owners, according to the lawsuit.

The lawsuit also says a groundwater withdrawal permit for Captains Cove’s water system does not authorize its use to supply the townhouse development.

Additionally, the lawsuit says CCG Note’s proffer to donate land on Fleming Road to the Greenbackville Volunteer Fire Department violates covenant restrictions, which say numbered lots may only be used for single-family homes.

Northampton High School Neighbors Question Use of Subdivision Lots

By Stefanie Jackson

Eastville property owners publicly aired grievances with the Northampton school board on June 23 concerning Northampton High School and its impacts on adjacent land, with one citizen warning the school board that legal action would be pursued if the issues brought forth were not addressed.

Northampton High School is on an approximately 20-acre parcel in Eastville, and its parking lot occupies an adjacent parcel of about 10 acres.

The Northampton school board also owns five lots of about one acre each next to the high school parking lot.

These small lots are part of the Selma Farm subdivision, named after the historic plantation house that was built on the land around 1785 and added to the National Register of Historic Places in 2006.

The Northampton school board acquired the Selma Farm lots in 2021 by deed of gift from the Northampton board of supervisors, which had purchased the land in 2010 for future school needs.

The deed of gift was made and delivered to the school board in 2014, but due to an oversight, the deed did not become a part of Northampton County's official court records until 2021.

Grover Hill, who owns lots adjacent to the school board's five Selma Farm lots, raised concerns during the public comment period of the June 23 school board meeting.

He and his wife bought their historic Selma Farm home 11 years ago, along with the additional lots adjacent to the school board-owned lots.

A homeowners association document stated Hill's new property was part of a residential area, but "obviously, that information was wrong, because the school expanded into Lots 6 through 10," he said.

Hill reported hearing about plans for the high school property to expand also onto Lots 3, 4, 11, and 12; two for geothermal wells and two for tennis courts.

However, plans he obtained from the Northampton County planning and zoning office showed the wells on Lots 9 and 10 and the tennis courts on Lot 6.

Furthermore, Superintendent Eddie Lawrence had said there would be no access to the school property from nearby Jan Hall Road, but the plan indicated otherwise, Hill contended.

He had photos of soccer goals overturned in the easement and displayed a torn piece of soccer net he found on his property, dubbing it trash.

Hill said he and his neighbors are entitled to know how all the lots will be used. He asked to be included in meetings about the upcoming school improvements and requested a privacy hedge along the property line.

Granville Hogg, who owns land bordering Lot 10, one of the possible locations for the high school's geothermal wells, also voiced concern.

He said that three minutes, the amount of time allotted to each speaker during a public comment period, was insufficient to address his concerns, and he welcomed an invitation to a separate meeting on the matter.

"If you decide not to hear my concerns," he told the school board, "the next thing will be potential legal challenge, so let's turn around and work together instead of against one another."

Hogg said that when he was a member of the Northampton board of supervisors, he made many concessions for Lots 6 through 10 to be incorporated into the county instead of being a part of the town of Eastville.

He also was concerned that the lots belonged to a residential area.

"There are restrictive covenants that cover these properties, and ... you may have to abide by them," Hogg told the school board.

"I'm sure that if we take it to the letter of the law, it will be more expensive for the taxpayers of Northampton County," he said.

Chair Charlena Jones told both speakers that the superintendent would contact them to discuss their concerns.

Onley Town Council Members Meet to Discuss Mayor's 'Behavior'

By Carol Vaughn

No action was taken on the issue at a special meeting Onley Town Council called to discuss Mayor Matt Hart's behavior.

Several council members called for the meeting, held Monday, June 27.

On the agenda, in addition to other items, was "discussion of recent behavior of an elected official."

Hart has been a member of the Onley Town Council since 2014. He was elected mayor in 2018 and was elected again in 2020.

The meeting was attended by Onley residents but did not include a public comment period.

Council members were given three minutes each to comment, with Hart responding to some criticisms.

Town Attorney Carl Bundick also was in attendance.

"If council has something they want to air out to the public, I have no problem with that. I've always believed in full transparency," Hart said.

Jamye Salazar, who was appointed interim town manager at this meeting, said the first three council members who emailed calling for the meeting were Brian Corbin, Woody Zember, and Rose Pierson.

Councilwoman Billye D. Custis spoke first, saying members were told they could not call the town attorney without the mayor's approval.

She also said some emails go only to certain council members and said town employees "won't talk to us."

Additionally, Custis spoke about hiring and firing of town employees "without council having a clue what's going on."

She said the mayor's role "is to concentrate on the meeting process over issue content," citing a handbook for Virginia mayors and council members.

Hart responded to Custis' comments, saying officials agreed years ago to follow the procedure about contacting the attorney, noting the town pays for his work.

"It's never been that somebody came to me and I said no. I've always said go right ahead, no problem. It's just a checks and balances," he said, adding the mayor should be brought in on any legal issues.

Hart said not sending all emails to all council members is "not intentional" on his part, but could be an occasional oversight.

He said hiring and firing is done according to the town charter, asking Bundick to confirm that.

"It is our practice," Bundick said.

Hart said he doesn't release names of some new hires because they have not yet given notice at their old jobs, noting he always includes in emails to contact him if a councilperson wants more information.

Other council members commented about some of the same issues.

Zember said he "would like to see emails going to everybody" and more structured meetings.

Councilman Bill Ferguson said he thinks "we need to throttle back on Facebook."

Councilwoman Claudia Harmon said if she has "an issue with the mayor" and wants to talk with the town attorney about it, it puts her in an awkward position to have to first clear it with the mayor.

Harmon and Pierson also said they would like to know more about new hires.

Corbin commented on a statement Hart made on social media, alleging Hart "said some disparaging things about residents of the town."

Corbin cited a comment Hart made about a former vice mayor, who is seeking election as mayor, having voted to spend $117,000 on a set of plans for a town office "that can not be used."

Hart said, as a council member at the time, he himself did not vote to spend the money.

This is not the first time Onley's mayor and council have been at odds.

The council in 2020 voted 4-2 to censure Hart, with the resolution saying he created a hostile work environment for employees and contractors, used abusive language, and failed to follow parliamentary procedure, among other allegations.

Hart then filed an injunction in Accomack County General District Court, alleging council members did not follow proper procedure under the Freedom of Information Act when they called a special executive session where the censure apparently was discussed and asking that the censure be set aside.

Judge Sam D. Eggleston III ruled against Hart.

Hart on June 20 on his mayoral Facebook page said he does not plan to seek another term.

Still, two days later, he said he had been asked by many people to reconsider.

“I will put it like this. If you all want to write me in, and enough people do it to re-elect me, I will serve two more years. I am not campaigning, I did this job for free and I will continue to do it for free.”

Hart in another post said the special meeting likely was called “to attack me on the issue” of parking at the Onley Post Office, but said the council “made up a bunch of bologna instead because the media was present.”

According to Hart, a safety hazard has been created as result of a parking area next to the post office, which traditionally has been used by post office customers, being blocked off by tenants of Onley Baptist Church, which owns the property.

“This is to me a safety issue, the town attorney agrees with me on this issue as a safety issue,” Hart wrote in a June 25 Facebook post.

The council voted at a previous meeting to take no action about the matter, he said.

The council did take action Monday on other agenda items, including voting to donate $4,500 to Lighthouse Ministries and appointing Salazar, who previously served as town manager, as interim town manager, at an annual salary of $60,000.

The council also voted to set the town office hours as Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Cape Charles Passes FY 2023 Budget

By Stefanie Jackson

The Cape Charles Town Council has passed the town's fiscal year 2023 budget, including a general fund of more than $4 million, in a unanimous vote June 16.

Last year, the Town Council added three new categories for revenues and expenditures to create more transparency and accountability in the budget, bringing the town's total number of accounting funds to seven.

In addition to the general fund of $4 million, the balanced budget includes the following funds and their approximate totals for FY 2023: public utilities, $2.6 million; capital projects, $2 million; harbor, $1.2 million; special activities, $900,000; sanitation, $440,000; and general debt service, $250,000.

The Town Council also passed a resolution authorizing the town manager to manage the budget funds once a budget has been passed and the funds have been appropriated.

Due to dramatically rising property reassessments, the Town Council has responded by lowering property tax rates to help offset the increased costs to taxpayers.

Cape Charles' real estate tax rate has been lowered nearly 10 cents for a total charge of $0.2159 per $100 of assessed value.

Cape Charles' property tax rate has been cut by 50% for a total charge of $1 per $100 of assessed value.

The only service provided by the town with a price increase is trash collection, which has risen $1.60 for a total monthly fee of $18.28.

Even though Cape Charles indisputably does more tourist business than any other incorporated town in Northampton County – the only one with a public beach – less than one-third of Cape Charles' general fund revenues are tourism-related taxes, according to Town Manager John Hozey,

The general fund is supported 44% by real estate taxes, 18% by meals taxes, 13% by transient occupancy taxes, and 3% by personal property taxes.

Four construction projects have been identified as top priorities for spending capital funds in FY 2023:

- Cape Charles' Community Trail, Phase III, south of Peach Street.

- Design and engineering for a new town hall and upgrades to the library.
- A new public restroom in a permanent structure to be built on south Mason Avenue and renovation to the public restroom at the beach.
- A family games area in Central Park.

During the public comment period, the Town Council heard one objection to building a new town hall, from Cape Charles citizen Loraine Huchler.

"A new town hall project is pure expense; it doesn't generate revenues or attract visitors or improve the quality of life for residents ... and I don't think it's in the best interests of stakeholders," Huchler said of the estimated $4.5 million project.

She was concerned that the Town Council was considering expanding the existing contract for the early stages of the town hall project to include architectural engineering and bidding services.

"I was surprised that the town wasn't going to have a competitive bid for that large of a contract ... to receive the best value," Huchler said.

She raised further concern over the town's wastewater treatment system and "the risk of partially treated sewage being discharged into the bay due to the continued failures of the membranes at the wastewater plant."

Huchler was referring to components of the plant's "membrane bioreactor," a term for technology that treats wastewater through a combination of microfiltration and bacteria that break down harmful substances into nontoxic compounds before releasing the treated water into a water body, in this case, the Chesapeake Bay.

She recalled a discussion from the May 26 Town Council meeting about the severe deterioration of some of the wastewater treatment membranes and suggested replacing them.

Not addressing the issue will increase the risk of releasing toxic substances into the bay and receiving environmental health violations.

Huchler told the Town Council, "I believe that this has broad interest by stakeholders, not to pollute the bay and risk the tourism and the beach."

Accomack School Board Approves Policy on Sudden Cardiac Arrest

By Stefanie Jackson

The Accomack school board at its June 21 meeting unanimously approved a policy on preventing student-athlete sudden cardiac arrest, which had come up for review for the first time since the related state law was adopted in 2020.

According to an information sheet provided by the school division, which is consistent with information from the American Heart Association, sudden cardiac arrest “is when the heart stops beating, suddenly and unexpectedly.”

Cardiac arrest is related to a heart attack, but the two conditions are not the same. A heart attack is caused by a blockage that stops blood flow to the heart, which can lead to cardiac arrest. However, cardiac arrest also can occur suddenly in an apparently healthy person with no blocked arteries.

Sudden cardiac arrest can result from a structural or electrical disease of the heart which predisposes a person to have an abnormal heart rhythm. These conditions in children are typically inherited.

Sudden cardiac arrest also can be caused by a blunt-force injury to the chest or the use or abuse of recreational or performance-enhancing drugs or energy drinks, the document continued.

Sudden cardiac arrest is the leading cause of death in the U.S. for both adults and student athletes. Every year, there are about 300,000 cardiac arrests that occur outside of hospitals and about 2,000 people under age 25 die from sudden cardiac arrest.

Warning signs of sudden cardiac arrest include: unexplained shortness of breath, dizziness, extreme fatigue, chest pains, racing heart, and fainting or seizures during exercise.

Sudden cardiac arrest is often fatal and must be treated quickly. Emergency responses to the condition include immediately calling 911, administering CPR, and using an automatic external defibrillator.

The symptoms of sudden cardiac arrest “can be unclear in athletes, since people often confuse these warning signs with physical exhaustion,” but ignoring the signs can be catastrophic, leading to permanent brain damage or death.

A student athlete who exhibits signs or symptoms of sudden cardiac arrest before, during, or after activity must be removed from play – all athletic activity. The student may return to play after being evaluated by a licensed physician, certified registered nurse practitioner, or cardiologist, and receiving clearance in writing.

One strategy for minimizing the risk of sudden cardiac arrest is requiring every student athlete to undergo an annual sports physical examination conducted by a doctor.

The policy information sheet emphasizes the importance of parents and guardians accurately answering the personal history and heart health questions on the student athletics parental consent forms provided by the Virginia High School League.

The document advises parents to be aware of anyone in the family who has been diagnosed with certain heart conditions, had an unexplained sudden death before age 50, or died suddenly during physical activity, during a seizure, or from SIDS (Sudden Infant Death Syndrome) or drowning.

Warning signs of potential heart issues include a family history of heart disease or cardiac arrest; a history of high blood pressure; fainting or seizures from physical activity or emotional excitement or distress; dizziness, lightheadedness, extreme fatigue, shortness of breath, or chest pain from exercise or other physical exertion; and heart palpitations.

Anyone with any of these warning signs should be further evaluated by a doctor.

Before an Accomack student may participate in extracurricular physical activity, the student and the student’s parent or guardian must sign an acknowledgment form that will accompany the physical exam form.

By signing, the student and parent acknowledge that Virginia Code section 22.1-271.8 requires that they annually review the information provided by their school division on the symptoms of sudden cardiac arrest, and a student removed from play for signs of sudden cardiac arrest may not resume the physical activity without an evaluation and written clearance from a licensed health care provider, who may be a volunteer.

Safe Boating Tips From U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary

Submitted Article

This week touches on storms and clouds as part of the weather safety tips series.

This week's focus is on summer thunderstorms. Summer thunderstorms are predictable. They occur when a cold front moves under a warm front. The cold front pushes warm air into the upper atmosphere. There the warm air cools into towering cumulus clouds cresting unstable air.

As this happens, the wind will pick up and large dark clouds will form. This can occur somewhat quickly, as cold fronts move rather fast. The clouds will extend very high. As the atmosphere cools, it becomes more and more saturated until rain occurs. The clouds will have flat bottoms and may have an anvil shape.

This can develop into a strong visible squall line and has the potential for lightening, thunder, and very strong winds. If you feel a sudden temperature drop and wind pick up as the sky darkens, it is time to either head for home or a harbor of refuge to ride out the storm. You do not want to get caught out in the middle of the bay in a summer squall in a small boat. So keep an eye to the sky for safety.

Aids to Navigation

Samuel D. Outlaw Memorial Blacksmith Shop Opens July 3

By Adolphus Ames

The Samuel D. Outlaw Memorial Blacksmith Shop is scheduled to host its grand opening Sunday, July 3. The memorial honors the life of local blacksmith and entrepreneur Samuel D. Outlaw.

Gerald Boyd, co-owner of Peaceworks Center for Well Being in Exmore, played a significant role in reviving the blacksmith shop. “I’m interested in history and preservation on the Shore,” Boyd said. “I was drawn to Outlaw’s story because he seemed to be a service-oriented individual that was well-respected by his community.”

Outlaw, a person of African-American descent, was born in Merry Hill, N.C., at the turn of the 20th century. In 1925, he graduated from the Hampton Normal and Agricultural Institute and, in 1927, moved to Onancock where he built his blacksmith shop on Boundary Avenue. He served farmers, watermen, and households throughout the community until poor health forced his retirement in 1991.

Outlaw also served as the clerk for the Bethel AME Church for 46 years, was Sunday school superintendent for 58 years, and was a member of the Eastern Shore Building & Loan Association.

“One of the most fascinating things about Outlaw is the fact he was able to establish a business that thrived and become a community leader during Jim Crow,” said Boyd. “I don’t know firsthand his experiences, but I imagine he encountered discrimination because it was very hard for African Americans during that era. He most likely succeeded with persistence, resilience, and optimism, three spiritual principles that remain useful in 2022.”

Inside, the memorial shop contains all of Outlaw’s handmade and purchased tools, farm equipment, and information panels depicting various periods of his life.

“There have also been discussions about offering tours of the shop to middle and high school students,” said Boyd. “Those would include demonstrations of the blacksmithing trade for those who are interested and would like to learn.”

For more information on Samuel D. Outlaw and the blacksmith shop visit www.outlawblacksmithshop.org

Accomack Circuit Court

Frederick Marvin “Ricky” Barnes Jr., 35, of Exmore, pleaded guilty last week to the murders of his mother, 75-year-old Brenda Barnes, and of Dean Reid, 53, and the attempted murder of Barnes’ sister, Christina Green.

On July 3, 2021, Green was hosting a birthday cookout for a nephew. The party started in the late afternoon. “Everyone was feeling great,” testified Green at Barnes’ preliminary hearing. She said she set out nine bottles of liquor, including Fireball and 100-proof vodka along with beer for the guests. As the afternoon wore on, some began to show signs of having drunk too much, she said. “Frederick was getting louder, cursing, and acting stupid. He was drunk.” Green testified she went to Barnes’ mother and told her Barnes needed to be taken home. “My brother told him he would drive them home.”

Green said Brenda Barnes had trouble getting around and brought both a cane and a walker to the party. She told Green her son would be angry if she told him she wanted to leave. She was correct. Testimony was that Barnes did not want to leave and became very angry. Parksley resident Reid was nearby helping load plates of food in the car that was to take Barnes and his mother back to their Exmore home when Barnes got into an argument with Green’s nephew, C.J. Byrd. He hit Byrd and threw him to the ground. Reid got between them, trying to stop the fight. Green said she got her phone to call 911 when “Ricky turned around, pulled out a gun, and shot Dean in the chest. He fell to the ground and Ricky shot him two more times in the back.”

Green said Barnes then turned to his mom and said, “I am tired of taking care of your ass,” and shot her twice in the head. She said the woman was on her back with her eyes closed, gasping for air. Green said she began running away. “I looked back and saw him reloading. She said he began firing at her. “The bullets were whizzing by me.” Green wept as she told her story at the preliminary hearing. “He is my brother,” she said. “You don’t expect your brother to do that.”

While running away, she told the 911 operator that Barnes had more guns at home. “He is going to come back and kill us all,” she said. An EMT testifying at the preliminary hearing said he arrived at 8:30 p.m. and found two patients dead of apparent gunshot wounds. A deputy testified he stopped Barnes’ car on Merry Branch Road at 9:45 p.m. He noticed Barnes’ leg was bloody and called an ambulance. Barnes told him it was a gunshot wound. It was surmised Barnes may have accidentally shot himself in the leg while taking his gun out of its holster or putting it back in.

According to the terms of the agreement, Barnes pleaded guilty to two counts of second-degree murder and one count of attempted murder and three firearm charges. Other charges not prosecuted according to the terms of the agreement include brandishing, recklessly handling a firearm, and carrying a concealed weapon while under the influence of alcohol. “What this case lacks in premeditation, more than makes up in malice,” said Commonwealth’s Attorney Spencer Morgan. Barnes’ sentencing is set for Nov. 10.

what that means, and how to correct it in your yard. Introduction to Gardening is a class to give the novice gardener all the basic information necessary to begin the most popular U.S. hobby to date: gardening.

Photography 101: Beginner to Intermediate is a class that will teach one how to use any type of camera a student has. Photography 101 takes on average 17 hours to complete, with 16 lessons and 24 exams and assignments throughout the course. One will learn about several examples through the course to show the range of photography options available. Learners will also read about camera lenses, exposure, and lighting.

Universal Class can be accessed through the Libby App, which also offers e-books, e-audios, and digital magazines. # ESVA Chamber Celebrates 69th Year With Awards and New Officers, Board Members

Submitted Article

The Eastern Shore of Virginia Chamber of Commerce celebrated its 69th year in front of a sold-out crowd of businesses and community members on Thursday, June 23. The venue for this year's meeting was the Eastern Shore Yacht & Country Club.

During the evening's opening welcome, chamber Executive Director Robert Sabbatini thanked members of the board of directors for their hard work and dedication throughout the year. "The board of directors' leadership and guidance has been invaluable to the ESVA Chamber of Commerce," remarked Sabbatini.

Jennifer Annis swore in new board members Deborah Cooley, J.T. Holland, Phil Custis, Matt Clay, Jerry Sink, Bill Floyd, David Fluhart, and Tom Mapp.

Sandra Johnson thanked outgoing board members George Bryan, Andre Elliott, and Jeannette Edwards for their unwavering support during their tenure. Outgoing ESVA Chamber of Commerce Chairman Will Russell said, "The ESVA Chamber of Commerce was always ready to roll up its sleeves and get to work." The crowd acknowledged with long applause.

Del. Robert S. Bloxom Jr. was presented the 2022 Chairman's Award by Will Russell. "Bloxom owned and operated four businesses with one recently celebrating 100 years in business," Russell said, adding, "Rob Bloxom has devoted his life to being a small-business owner and civil servant to the Eastern Shore. And while this award is not because of his service in Richmond, the fact that he is a small-business owner has led to generational investments in our area including the Hampton Roads Sanitation District coming here, and very hopefully soon a natural gas pipeline. These two investments alone will be major improvements for the business climate, both for large and small operations." Bloxom's son, Brant Bloxom, was on hand to accept the award for his father.

Jeannette Edwards received the coveted Distinguished Service award for her tireless service to the Eastern Shore of Virginia. Russell commented that "Jeanette and Tony built Edwards Seafood from scratch, at one time boasting a very successful restaurant, which always had the cream of the Shore's high school kids working there, which they recently sold last year, to my great joy, to another local married couple." Russell further stated that "Jeannette in many ways has been a mentor to me. Someone I had to call on several occasions and simply to ask, what in the world do we do now?"

John W. Morrison was presented the 2022 Citizen of the Year by Ashley Morrison and Eileen Lee. More affectionately referred to as "Johnny Mo, the musical chef," Morrison is a strong supporter of the Food Bank, Onancock Fire Department, ESVA Chamber of Commerce, local and state police departments, and all branches of the military. Johnny Mo thanked the group with a very heartfelt speech after receiving the award.

Tony Robinson and Jahiem Fisher, of Wave Riders, received the Young Entrepreneur of the Year award. Tony and Jahiem recently celebrated their second year in business and are ready to expand. The duo handles a broad range of transportation services and their positive attitude is contagious.

Hunt Addison and Pete Henderson of Eastern Shore Events and Rentals were presented with the Small Business Person of the Year Award. Pre-sending the award was Will Russell. "Their professionalism is unmatched when conducting their business. Hunt and Pete have shown remarkable initiative, spirit, and resilience in not only starting a local event rental company from scratch, but persevering through the most difficult stretch for the industry in our lifetime," Russell said.

A new slate of board leadership will take the helm starting in July. Ace Seybolt will chair the board for the ESVA Chamber of Commerce. Seybolt's message at the gathering was well-received and the excitement for the ESVA Chamber of Commerce, its businesses, and communities will continue for many years.

The Shore Little League major girls softball team traveled to Virginia Beach Wednesday, June 29, to face the 2-1 Virginia Beach team in the Virginia District 8 Championship Tournament. The Shore team walked into the matchup with a 2-0 record, having previously defeated Virginia Beach 6-4 in the opening round. The Shore team won this matchup 6-2 to win the District 8 Championship. The team will travel to Bridgewater to play in the state tournament Wednesday, July 13.

The same evening, the Shore major boys baseball team faced Fleet Park. The Shore team entered this game 2-0, but lost 13-0. The team played again Thursday, June 30, against Aragona Pembroke.

Random Facts About ... Marvelous and Misused Names of Eastern Shore Towns

By David Martin

We were excited when our internet tubes revealed that the name of our hometown was used prominently in a major motion picture. In "The Man From Toronto," starring Kevin Hart and Woody Harrelson, Hart's character decides to take his wife on a weekend vacation to ... yes ... Onancock! When they arrive in "Onancock" (you'll see the reason for the quote marks shortly), the name of the town fills the entire screen. Unfortunately, except for spelling Onancock correctly, this movie gets everything wrong about the town.

The characters mispronounce the name as "Own-an-cock" instead of "O-nan-cock." When a piece of paper showing an Onancock address is flashed on screen, it shows the ZIP code for Chesapeake, not Onancock. And second worst insult of all, when the couple arrive in "Onancock," the movie town doesn't resemble the real town. The "Onancock" scene was filmed at the Heart Lake Conservation Area in Brampton, Canada, where a set was built lakeside. Hey, Hollywood, Onancock is not on a lake!

Early in the film, going to Onancock is a big deal and it is in Onancock where an identity mix-up occurs that sets up the movie's entire premise. With all this focus on Onancock, you'd think the producers could've at least sprung for a drone aerial shot of the real town, regardless of where the scene with actors was shot.

Which leads us to the worst insult: the adolescent, potty-mouth, snickering reason Onancock was chosen. According to one reviewer: "Fate puts both men in Onancock, Virginia, a real-life location obviously chosen for its name, because it's 'funny.'" Another reviewer agrees, saying that Hart's character takes his wife "... on a relaxing vacation to Onancock, Virginia, no doubt chosen for the bathroom humor possibilities inherent in its name."

Really? We wonder if the producers were considering other "hilarious" location names such as Pee Pee Island, which at least has the advantage of being in Canada where the film was shot. Onancock comes from an Algonquin word, "auwannaku," for foggy place. Originally called Port Scarborough, the town, founded in 1680, is one of the nation's oldest communities settled by Europeans.

The Shore is blessed with many fascinating town names. Ryan Webb, from Machipongo, has a master's degree in applied linguistics and a website explaining some of those names:

"The Matchipungoes were one of the larger native tribes on the Eastern Shore and established several villages here. One village was near Wachapreague and another was near Brownsville in Northampton. The word now spelled as Machipongo means fine dust and flies and was the Algonquin name for Hog Island. ... The name Pungoteague comes from an Algonquin word meaning sand fly river. ... In 1668, Saxis was originally called Sikes' Island. It was so named after Robert Sikes, the first person to own the island entirely."

Reaction to "The Man From Toronto" has ranged from lukewarm to downright hostile. Rotten Tomatoes gave the movie a 45% audience score and only 26% based on reviews. In the words of one reviewer, the movie is "stale, annoyingly busy, and altogether unfunny." Regarding the movie's handling of Onancock, we echo the sentiment: boo, hiss, boo.

The Osprey-Eyed Reader Contest

Last Week's Runners-Up

Here's the elusive Silk. According to Anne Beatty, of Exmore, "Silk's favorite game is playing peek-a-boo with me!"

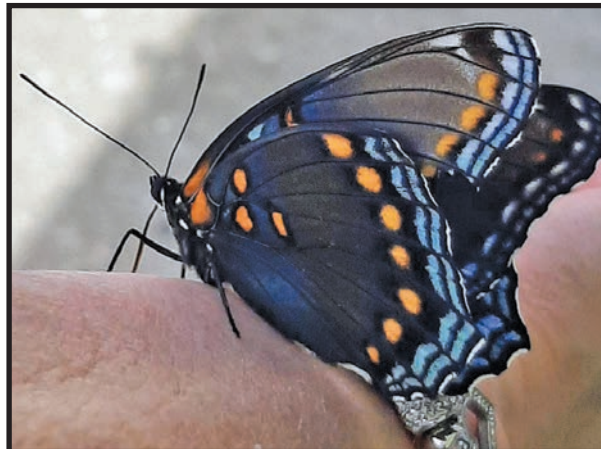

James Lamberth, of Cape Charles, has to watch his every step. "No one ever told me these guys will follow me around like puppies."

Anabel Beatty, of Silver Beach, is proud of her "grandson Christopher graduating from Norfolk Collegiate pictured with my daughter Lynn."

"There have been many of these ibises around our neighborhood lately," said Laurie Paschall, of Cape Charles. "Lovely birds."

A butterfly on your arm often means you have a tattoo. But John Bell, of Onley, captured this real butterfly on his wife's arm.

Last Week's Contest and Winner

Last week's contest was for everyone who complained that the contests were too easy. Only about a third of our usual number of entries qualified as contestants. People found question three especially vexing: Where can you find the name of Remus' twin brother? Romulus and Remus were the mythical twins who founded ancient Rome, so you were looking for Romulus, which was one of the answers in last week's crossword results, Page 31. Question one's answer was zero, Page 31; the answer to question two was "to hell in a handbasket," Page 47; question four's answer was Harbor for the Arts sponsors, Page 2. Deloise Carter, of Exmore, was among the elite 25 who qualified, and she was randomly chosen to win the Super Tailgate dinner from Bojangles in Onley. Here she is with her daughter, "enjoying the warm weather."

Get ready to sing "The Dock of the Bay." Teri Collins, of Bloxom, sent in this photo of "my handsome boys Killer and Bubba on the dock of the bay."

It's been a while since we checked in with Karter. Delane Brown, of Philadelphia, assures us Karter is, as always, ready to pose for a pic.

This Week's Contest: Put a Ring On It!

In recognition of this week's sponsor, we have hidden rings in the Post. Remember, the clues might be larger or smaller or in a different orientation, but they will be copies of this exact ring:

You can include that example in your total. A ring like this is often needed for a w-e-d-d-i-n-g. Tell us the page number and where on the page you found each ring. From among those who find all the rings, one lucky person will be randomly selected to win a $25 gift certificate to C.D. Marsh Jewelers in Onancock. See sponsor box on this page.

The Rules

1. Find the rings and tell us on which page, and where on that page, you found each ring.

2. Entries MUST have first and last names and your town.
3. Send this information to david@easternshorepost.com.
4. Deadline is noon Monday, July 4 (happy Independence Day).
5. No multiple entries.
6. Anyone submitting a photograph must have taken the picture or have permission to use it.

Fishing from the Shore

By Bill Hall

Cobia are still the most targeted species along the Chesapeake Bay side of the Eastern Shore with fish being caught from the mouth of the Chesapeake Bay north to Maryland's Tangier Sound. Flounder fishing remains steady on the seaside with anglers having to cull a lot of undersized fish to get their limits.

Upper Shore – Captain Matt Abell, at the Sea Hawk Sports Center, said the flounder are hitting both inside the inlet as well as over the inshore wrecks. He fished inside on Monday and Tuesday, with his clients catching limits on both days. There has been a major influx of small croakers on the seaside, where a variety of shark species are prowling the waters inside the inlet. The inshore wrecks are starting to produce flounder, triggerfish, spadefish, and ribbonfish.

Offshore fishing was described as being “only fair” with some tuna and mahi catches, according to Abell, with deep dropping for tilefish after a day of trolling, salvaging a lot of offshore trips. On the Chesapeake Bay, Abell said that his customers have been catching cobia from the Smith Island, Md., target ship south to the mouth of the bay by casting bright-colored jigs and bottom fishing with cut bunker. A “handful” of speckled trout have been caught in the shallows, but that fishery appears to be slowing down in the waters of southern Maryland.

Chincoteague – Jimmy Vasiliou, at Captain Steve's Bait and Tackle, reported a variety of panfish, including small croakers, spot, pigfish, and perch, are being caught inside Chincoteague Bay. The bay is also supporting a healthy population of sharks. Larger sharks have been beached in the Assateague surf, as well as a red drum, which was caught after sunset. The shop has a supply of fresh bunker for cobia and shark baits. Over the railcars, larger flounder, triggerfish, and spadefish have been caught. Steve Shoemaker boated a 26.5-inch flounder. Mahi and a few tuna have been caught by blue water trollers. Black sea bass catches remain good over the offshore wrecks.

Wachapreague – Debbie Shrieves, at Trident Tackle, reported the shop weighed in a 5-pound, 8-ounce speckled trout for Hayden Williams.

Amanda Manzella, at the Wachapreague Inn, said the flounder numbers are still good inside the inlet, while a red drum catch was made at the inlet.

Offshore anglers are catching blue-line tilefish and black sea bass while deep-dropping. The vessel Final Verdict limited out on black sea bass and boated several tilefish on a recent trip.

Captain Lindsay Paul reported the flounder bite was decent in clear water. Paul added that sea bass fishing is good on the offshore wrecks and offshore fishing has produced a few tuna and white marlin.

Lower Shore – Jeb Brady, at Bailey's Bait & Tackle, told me cobia remained the most sought after species over the last week, with anglers enjoying success with both bottom fishing with bunker baits and sight casting live eels. A mixture of keeper-sized fish and lots of undersized fish measuring 34 to 38 inches kept anglers busy. Flounder action was described as “pretty consistent.” The largest weighed in at the shop tipped the scales at 6 pounds, 3 ounces and was landed out of Cape Charles by Pat Perdergrast.

Brady mentioned the Ditch and along the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel as productive flounder locations. Spadefish action continues to improve, with some larger fish coming from around the fourth island. Spadefish catches have started to come from the vicinity of the cell and plantation light. Bluefish and Spanish mackerel are hitting trolled spoons in the lower bay. Sand mullet (whiting) catches are coming from around the concrete ships and over the cabbage patch, while small gray trout and croaker have been the primary catches from the piers.

Dez Louie, at Oceans East – Eastern Shore, confirmed cobia action remains “very good.” Fish weighing up to 60 pounds have been caught chumming and bottom fishing over 9-foot shoal, buoy 16, and buoy 36. Sight casters targeting cobia that are cruising the surface are running into large schools of big red drum that are also receptive to their cast bucktails. Spadefish populations are good at the third and fourth islands, with fish also coming from the cell and plantation light. Sheepshead are being caught along the bridge-tunnel pilings and along the concrete ships on live fiddler crab and sand flea baits rigged on bottom sweeper jigs. Ribbonfish, bluefish, and Spanish mackerel are hitting trolled Clark Spoons and cast Got-Cha Plugs. Catches from the Kiptopeke Pier have included ribbonfish, croakers, and sand mullet (whiting).

Health Matters New Marijuana Regulations Passed by the General Assembly

Courtesy of Eastern Shore Community Services Board

With the laws on marijuana changing in the Commonwealth of Virginia, people get confused over the terms “decriminalization” and “legalization” of marijuana. Decriminalization is the process of removing criminal sanctions against an act, article, or behavior. Decriminalization of cannabis means it would remain illegal, but the legal system would not prosecute a person for possession under a specified amount. Instead, the penalties would include no penalties at all, civil fines, drug education, or drug treatment. Legalization of cannabis is the process of removing all legal prohibitions against it. Each state in the United States would then have individualized legislation around use, sale, and possession. Cannabis would then be available to the adult (21 and older) general population for purchase and use at will, similar to tobacco and alcohol. Legalization allows each state to regulate and tax marijuana use and sales according to its specific legislation. Federally, marijuana is still categorized by the U.S. Drug Enforcement Administration as a Schedule 1 drug, which means 1) it has no currently accepted medical use, and 2) it has a high potential for abuse.

In Virginia, some use of marijuana has been decriminalized and legalized. The Eastern Shore Community Services Board was directed by the Virginia Department of Behavioral Health and Developmental Services recently to conduct a Marijuana Use Community Readiness Assessment. The purpose of the report was to capture community attitudes, perceptions, and knowledge of local marijuana use, the partial decriminalization and the 2024 legalization of recreational marijuana in Virginia. This assessment report was prepared by the Planning Council and can be found at <https://escsb.org/resources/>

What is legal in the Commonwealth of Virginia?

According to www.cannabis.virginia.gov, medical marijuana was legalized in 2017 and the current comprehensive laws on its use were put in place in 2020. Medical marijuana is currently only available at a state-registered pharmaceutical processor. Patients must have a doctor’s referral to get a medical marijuana card and then apply to the state board of pharmacy to receive the card.

As for recreational marijuana use in Virginia, its laws are evolving. On April 7, 2021, the Virginia General Assembly legalized the possession and/or consumption of up to 1 ounce of cannabis sativa for recreational use by adults 21 years and older on private property, and the home cultivation of cannabis plants (up to four plants per household) for adults 21 years and older. Retail sales are scheduled to begin Jan. 1, 2024, giving the state a three-year timeframe to create comprehensive regulations. As such, it is currently illegal for any person or business to sell or distribute marijuana, marijuana seeds, clones, flower, or any other part of the marijuana plant for recreational use in Virginia before 2024.

On June 1, the Virginia General Assembly approved the 2022-2024 budget. In it were laws clarifying marijuana possession. The penalty makes it a misdemeanor offense to possess more than 4 ounces of marijuana, adding a lower-level offense before the felony charge that can come with possession of a pound or more. The language specifies the possession limits don’t apply to marijuana stored at home, clearing up some of the confusion created by the state legalizing home marijuana grows of up to four plants, enough to potentially put someone over the possession limits depending on how much the plants produce and how the law is interpreted.

More on the new legislation can be found online at <https://budget.lis.virginia.gov/>

2021 Annual Drinking Water Quality Report — Town of Cape Charles Waterworks PWSID No. 3131120

INTRODUCTION

This Annual Drinking Water Quality Report for calendar year 2021 is designed to inform you about your drinking water quality. Our goal is to provide you with a safe and dependable supply of drinking water, and we want you to understand the efforts we make to protect your water supply. The quality of your drinking water must meet state and federal requirements administered by the Virginia Department of Health (VDH).

For information pertaining how you may participate in decisions regarding your water supply you may contact:

Scott Neville
Town of Cape Charles
2 Plum Street
Cape Charles, VA
757-331-1018

GENERAL INFORMATION

The sources of drinking water (both tap water and bottled water) include rivers, lakes, streams, ponds, reservoirs, springs, and wells. As water travels over the surface of the land or through the ground, it dissolves naturally occurring minerals and, in some cases, radioactive material, and can pick up substances resulting from the presence of animals or human activity.

Contaminants that may be present in source water include:

- Microbial contaminants, such as viruses and bacteria, which may come from sewage treatment plants, septic systems, agricultural livestock operations, and wildlife;
- Inorganic contaminants, such as salts and metals, which can be naturally occurring or result from urban storm-water runoff, industrial or domestic wastewater discharges, oil and gas production, mining, or farming;
- Pesticides and herbicides, which may come from a variety of sources such as agriculture, urban storm-water runoff, and residential uses;
- Organic chemical contaminants, including synthetic and volatile organic chemicals, which are by-products of industrial processes and petroleum production, and can also come from gas stations, urban stormwater runoff, and septic system;
- Radioactive contaminants, which can be naturally occurring or be the result of oil and gas production and mining activities

Drinking water, including bottled drinking water, may reasonably be expected to contain at least small amounts of some contaminants. The presence of contaminants does not necessarily indicate that water poses a health risk. More information can be obtained by calling the Environmental Protection Agency's Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

In order to ensure that tap water is safe to drink, the EPA prescribes regulations which limit the amount of certain contaminants in water provided by public water systems. Food and Drug Administration regulations establish limits for contaminants in bottled water, which must provide the same protection for public health.

MCLs are set at very stringent levels by the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency. In developing the standards EPA assumes that the average adult drinks 2 liters of water each day throughout a 70-year lifespan. EPA generally sets MCLs at levels that will result in no adverse health effects for some contaminants or a one-in-ten-thousand to one-in-a-million chance of having the described health effect for other contaminants.

Some people may be more vulnerable to contaminants in drinking water than the general population. Immuno-compromised persons such as persons with cancer undergoing chemotherapy, persons who have undergone organ transplants, people with HIV/AIDS or other immune system disorders, some elderly, and infants can be particularly at risk from infections. These people should seek advice about drinking water from their health care providers. EPA/CDC guidelines on appropriate means to lessen the risk of infection by cryptosporidium and other microbiological contaminants are available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline (800-426-4791).

SOURCE OF YOUR DRINKING WATER AND TREATMENT

The Town of Cape Charles water system receives its water from 2 wells (165-558 East and 165-387 West) located within 100 yards to the East and West of the WTP. Your water is treated with chlorine to preserve water quality.

The Virginia Dept. of Health conducted a Source Water Assessment of the Waterworks in 2001. The well was determined to be of low susceptibility to contamination using the criteria developed by the state in its approved Source Water Assessment Program. The assessment report consists of maps showing the Source Water Assessment area, an inventory of known Land Use Activities and Potential Conduits to Groundwater utilized at Land Use Activity sites in Zone 1, Susceptibility Explanation Chart, and Definition of Key Terms. The report is available by contacting your waterworks system owner/operator at the phone or address included in the CCR.

WATER QUALITY RESULTS

Contaminants in your drinking water are routinely monitored according to Federal and State regulations. The EPA requires that Table 1 reflect monitoring results for the period of January 1st 2016 through December 31st, 2020. The state allows us to monitor for some contaminants less than once per year because the concentrations of these contaminants do not change frequently. Some of our data, though accurate, may be more than one year old. Only the most recent sample results from the prescribed period are reported. The table lists only those contaminants that had some level of detection. Many other contaminants have been analyzed but were not present or were below the detection limits of the lab equipment.

DEFINITIONS

In this report you will find many terms and abbreviations you might not be familiar with. The following definitions are provided to help you better understand these terms:

- Non-detects (ND) – Lab analysis indicates that the contaminant is not present.
- Parts per million (ppm) or Micrograms per liter (mg/l) - One part per million corresponds to one minute in 2 years, or a single penny in $10,000.
- Parts per billion (ppb) or Micrograms per liter – One part per billion corresponds to one minute in 2,000 years, or a single penny in $10,000,000.
- Action Level (AL) – The concentration of a contaminant which, if exceeded, triggers treatment or other requirements which a water system must follow.
- Maximum Contaminant Level (MCL) – The highest level of a contaminant that is allowed in drinking water. MCLs are set as close to the MCLGs as feasible using the best available treatment technology.
- Maximum Contaminant Level Goal (MCLG) – The level of a contaminant in drinking water below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MCLGs allow for a margin of safety.
- Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level (MRDL) - The highest level of a disinfectant allowed in drinking water. There is convincing evidence that addition of a disinfectant is necessary for control of microbial contaminants.
- Maximum Residual Disinfectant Level Goal (MRDLG) - The level of a drinking water disinfectant below which there is no known or expected risk to health. MRDLGs do not reflect the benefits of the use of disinfectants to control microbial contaminants.
- Treatment Technique (TT) – A required process intended to reduce the level of a contaminant in drinking water.
- Level 1 Assessment - An evaluation to identify the possible presence of sanitary defects, defects in distribution system coliform monitoring practices, and (when possible) the likely reason that the system triggered the assessment.
- Level 2 Assessment - An evaluation to identify the possible presence of sanitary defects, defects in distribution system coliform monitoring practices, and (when possible) the likely reason that the system triggered the assessment in a more comprehensive investigation than a Level 1 assessment.

- Sanitary Defect - A defect that could provide a pathway of entry for microbial contamination into the distribution system or that is indicative of a failure or imminent failure in a barrier that is already in place.

WATER QUALITY RESULTS (Detected Contaminants Only)

Contaminant (units)	MCLG	MCL	Level Found	Violation	Date of Sample	Typical Source of Contamination
Gross Radium (pCi/L)	0	5	0.4	No	2021	Erosion of natural deposits

DISINFECTION AND DISINFECTION BY-PRODUCTS

CONTAMINANT (units)	MCLG or MRDLG	MCL or MRDL	Level Detected	Range	Date of Sample	Violation	Typical Source of Contamination
Chlorine (ppm)	4	4	0.47	0.01-1.74	2021	No	Water additive used to control microbes
HAA5 (ppb)	60	60	9	1-8	2021	No	By-product of drinking water chlorination
TTHM (ppb)	80	80	53	5-46	2021	No	By-product of drinking water chlorination

LEAD AND COPPER CONTAMINANTS

CONTAMINANT (units)	MCLG	Action Level	Level Detected	Range	# of samples above AL	Date of Sample	Typical Source of Contamination
Copper (ppm)	1.3	1.3	0.117	0.038 – 0.179	0	2020	Corrosion of household plumbing systems. Erosion of natural deposits. Leaching of wood preservatives.
Lead (ppb)	0	15	4.07	ND-6.03	0	2020	Corrosion of household plumbing; Erosion of natural deposits

A note about lead in drinking water: If present, elevated levels of lead can cause serious health problems, especially for pregnant women and young children. Lead in drinking water is primarily from materials and components associated with service lines and home plumbing. This Waterworks is responsible for providing high quality drinking water, but cannot control the variety of materials used in plumbing components. When your water has been sitting for several hours, you can minimize the potential for lead exposure by flushing your tap for 30 seconds to 2 minutes before using water for drinking or cooking. If you are concerned about lead in your water, you may wish to have your water tested. Information on lead in drinking water, testing methods, and steps you can take to minimize exposure is available from the Safe Drinking Water Hotline or at <http://www.epa.gov/safewater/lead>.

A note about fluoride in drinking water: Some people who drink water containing fluoride in excess of the MCL (4 ppm) over many years could get bone disease, including pain and tenderness of the bones. Fluoride in drinking water at half the MCL or more may cause mottling of children's teeth, usually in children less than nine years old. Mottling, also known as dental fluorosis, may include brown staining and/or pitting of the teeth, and occurs only in developing teeth before they erupt from the gums.

Additional Nonregulated Monitoring Results

Analyte (units)	Level Detected	Range	Date of Sample	Typical Source of Contamination
Sodium (ppm)	203	NA	2020	Sodium occurs naturally in groundwater. However, sources such as road salt, water softeners, natural underground salt deposits, pollution from septic systems as well as saltwater intrusion due to proximity to the ocean are often causes of elevated levels in drinking water supplies.

Sodium was detected in your water sample. There is presently no established standard for sodium in drinking water. Water containing more than 270 mg/l of sodium should not be used as drinking water by those persons whose physician has placed them on moderately restricted sodium diets. Water containing more than 20 mg/l should not be used as drinking water by those persons whose physician has placed them on severely restricted sodium diets.

Planning Commission Listens to Residents

Dear Editor:

As a public body, the Northampton County Planning Commission believes that listening to the citizens of the county is important to addressing issues related to zoning, the comprehensive plan, short-term rentals, workforce housing, etc. If receiving recommendations from the citizens of Northampton County is a “rare move,” it shouldn’t be.

Ken Dufty’s claim that he was “singled out” is an incorrect statement. Dufty presented his views as a citizen of the county during our public comment period. Anyone may speak before the planning commission at this time. I did ask Mr. Dufty to send me his recommendations, but I have not received any of his recommendations to date.

There are many issues that need to be addressed by the planning commission and solutions are better when the public brings forth ideas and suggestions so that the planning commission can consider all points of view.

Glen Anders, acting chair
Northampton Planning Commission
Council Needs Makeover

Dear Editor:

It’s time for a change. The town of Onley needs a good makeover. Elections are coming up this November and we need an entirely new council.

It is very sad that only a few people come to the meetings. I can understand why. The meetings are long and drawn out and very little gets accomplished. The council members vote on things, forget that they voted on a subject, and months later vote again on the same topic that was already voted on.

It is 24 years later and our town still does not have a town hall. How sad and embarrassing for our town. Councilmen Brian Corbin and Woody Zember both told me that Councilwoman Billye D. Custis is the main reason we don’t have a town hall and why this town has not moved forward. She objects to everything. They both stated that Councilwoman Claudia Harmon follows and votes 90% of the way Custis does.

Corbin has gone back on everything he ran for when he ran in 2020. He puts himself on too many committees and gets nothing accomplished. Zem-

Following a letter from a reader, we invited commentary on the House Select Committee’s Jan. 6 hearings. Those letters are printed below.

What Didn’t Happen

Dear Editor:

I have no doubt that the Jan. 6 Select Committee will detail the actual truth about what happened that fateful day. As important as what happened on Capitol Hill, far more important to America, is what did NOT happen in the Oval Office that day.

On the afternoon of Jan. 6, 2021, President Donald J. Trump held the entire nation in the palm of his hand. It would have been very easy for him to go on national television and in 30 seconds use the power and authority of his office to declare the start of the Second American Revolution and then to order his millions-strong supporters to take up arms to reclaim America and to set it right again. At that moment America would have been plunged into civil war; a civil war already happening inside the Capitol Building itself.

What happened on Capitol Hill was important. Utterly eclipsing that importance is what didn’t happen in the Oval Office that day.

Brian Bloedel, Accomac

ber has changed his mind on so many topics, makes untrue statements, and really should throw in the towel along with Custis, Harmon, and Corbin.

Please get out and vote and make a difference this November. We need new council members, who are running for the right reasons. We need honest, decent, and respectful people on our council. We need council members who remember they work for us, all the citizens of Onley, not themselves. We don’t need to vote in previous council members. They were voted out for a reason. Re-

Dismay and Hope

Dear Editor:

I thank the Post for publishing the letter from Sam Norton. Of all the noise about what happened on Jan. 6, I have never heard or read a more reasoned, thoughtful, or unbiased observations about what we are facing.

Regarding the hearings, I was dismayed to learn that the then-president was repeatedly told by people working closely with him and people in the same political party that he had lost the election, that there was little or no fraud involved. Unfortunately, the ensuing assault on the integrity of elections could cast a shadow over future elections and distract and divide us even more in the future.

That many Republican officials played a key role in avoiding a political disaster gives hope that our two party system will survive and grow stronger and more united having survived a grave threat to our democracy.

John Bulette, Accomac

Kangaroo Court

Dear Editor:

The Jan. 6 Select Committee is in-member why they did not win last time.

I understand we have a previous vice mayor running for mayor and a citizen who was never on council before also running for mayor. Look at these two individuals and see if you truly think that either one will be good for our town. My opinion is no. Our present mayor may not be perfect but he has done the best he could with the present council. In my opinion he has done a decent job and he truly cares about Onley. Remember this when it is time to vote.

Richard Evans, Onley

deed a select one — selected by House Speaker Nancy Pelosi to ensure a third-world-style kangaroo court. Knowledgeable Republicans were refused participation. Thus the presentation of this waste of taxpayer funds was one-sided and distorted, indeed shameful in a democracy. Further, no mention has been made of the Jan. 6 prisoners secluded and harassed without trial by the Washington, D.C., jail functionaries.

The mail published by the Eastern Shore Post (June 17, Page 51) from a seeming Navy retiree was also shameful. The author must be a Democratic party activist, trying to shore up the weak 2022 campaign of the ill-informed and without judgment Congresswoman Elaine Luria, who is almost as much of a useless embarrassment as the current occupant of the White House, whom she devotedly supports.

The Post has given Luria substantial press without balance, perhaps trying to emulate the Washington Post instead of being an honest newspaper. The editorial decisions of the paper constrain me from subscribing.
