Ribbon Cut on 6 New Affordable Homes in Exmore

By Stefanie Jackson

The New Road community of Exmore hosted a ribbon-cutting July 15 for six new houses that make up the first phase of what the New Road Community Development Group calls its Legacy Project to honor the late Ruth Wise and others who formed the organization 30 years ago.

Ava Gabrielle-Wise, daughter of Ruth Wise and executive director of the New Road group, introduced its retired president, Burley Rogers, as one of the last living “members of the original team of folks who walked this neighborhood with just a dream. The dream that we could transform our very well-loved community ... loved for generations but in need – in need of some attention,” she said.

“It’s an honor and a privilege to stand here today,” Rogers said. “We went through a lot of stuff, but we made it,” he said of the decades-long journey that brought New Road to its present accomplishments.

Gabrielle-Wise thanked friends and partners who helped New Road realize its dream: the town of Exmore, represented at the ribbon-cutting by Town Manager Robert Duer and Director of Zoning and Utilities Taylor Dukes; the U.S. Department of Agriculture Rural Development, represented by area specialist Bobbie Jo Wert; the Virginia Department of Housing and Community Development, represented by Acquire, Renovate, Sell program manager Cheri Miles; and Virginia Housing, represented by Director of Strategic Housing Chris Thompson.

Gabrielle-Wise acknowledged the work of Northampton County officials, the McAuley Institute that provided the funding to purchase the New Road community about 30 years ago, and the members of the community.

Gabrielle-Wise also thanked the contracting firm RMT Construction, of Richmond, for its “unbelievable support.”

Nandua Graduate Nominated for Federal Judgeship

By Carol Vaughn

Jamar K. Walker, who graduated in 2004 from Nandua High School, where he was known for his scholarship, was nominated July 13 by President Joe Biden to serve as a judge in the U.S. District Court for the Eastern District of Virginia.

Walker was nominated to fill the seat of Judge Raymond Alvin Jackson, who recently retired and under whom Walker served as a clerk from 2011 to 2012.

Walker was among six new federal judicial nominees Biden announced last week.

“The President is announcing six new federal judicial nominees, all of whom are extraordinarily qualified, experienced, and devoted to the rule of law and our Constitution,” the announcement read, in part.

“These choices also continue to fulfill the President’s promise to ensure that the nation’s courts reflect the diversity that is one of our greatest assets as a country — both in terms of personal and professional backgrounds,” according to the announcement.

Sens. Mark Warner and Tim Kaine in March 2022 wrote to Biden recommending Walker to fill the vacancy following Judge Jackson’s decision to

"He is a current member of the Old Dominion Bar Association, the National LGBT Bar Association, the Department of Justice (DOJ) Association of Black Attorneys, and DOJ Pride. He was born and raised on the Eastern Shore of Virginia and considers Tidewater his home. Together, these experiences qualify Mr. Walker for this nomination and we are honored to recommend him," the letter read, in part.

Walker has been an Assistant United States Attorney in the United States Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Virginia since 2015, according to the White House announcement.

He was an associate at Covington & Burling in Washington, D.C., from 2012 to 2015.

Walker earned his Bachelor of Arts degree from the University of Virginia in 2008 and earned his law degree from the U.Va. School of Law in 2011.

Jamar in 2020 was recipient of the LGBT Bar's 40 Best LGBTQ+ Lawyers Under 40 Award, according to www.lgbtqbar.org

If confirmed, Walker will be the first openly LGBTQ Article III judge to serve in Virginia, according to the White House announcement.

Article III of the Constitution governs the appointment, tenure, and payment of Supreme Court justices and federal circuit and district judges. Article III judges are nominated by the president and confirmed by the Senate.

Walker, along with Assistant U.S. Attorney Stephen Anthony and Managing Assistant Randy Stoker, serves as a coordinator of the Committee on Race in Prosecution and Policing (CORPP) in the U.S. Attorney's Office for the Eastern District of Virginia.

According to the U.S. Attorney's Office website, <https://www.justice.gov/usao-ed-va/diversity-equity-and-inclusion>, the committee was established to address instances of police brutality; biases, implicit and explicit, in policing and prosecuting Black people and other communities of color; and other issues related to the intersection of race and law enforcement.

The announcement marked President Biden's 22nd round of nominees for federal judicial positions and his ninth slate of nominations in 2022, bringing the number of announced federal judicial nominees to 118.

Walker's nomination is pending in the Senate Judiciary Committee. He was contacted for this story but declined to comment.

Jaime Cole Brings Positive Approach to Northampton Superintendent Position

By Stefanie Jackson

Jaime Cole, who moved to the Eastern Shore from Arizona about a year ago, brings a fresh approach to her role as the new superintendent of Northampton County Public Schools.

“We really want to focus on strengths and use the strengths of the community to make the schools better. ... It’s going to have to take everyone being positive ... and bringing out the best in people,” Cole told the Eastern Shore Post on Monday.

Her goal of bringing out the best in people applies to both teachers and students.

Cole wants to move away from the deficit-based approach of assessing teacher performance, which was prevalent in the early 2000s after the No Child Left Behind Act was passed. (It was replaced by the Every Student Succeeds Act in 2015.)

Cole prefers an asset-based approach that seeks not to punish teachers for poor performance but to provide additional training and support to improve teacher performance.

To illustrate, Cole drew an x-y graph in which the x axis, the horizontal line, was divided between willingness and unwillingness, and the y axis, the vertical line, was divided between ability and inability.

Each of the graph’s four quadrants represented a different type of teacher: willing and able, willing but unable, unwilling and unable, and unwilling but able.

Teachers who are both willing and able to excel on the job are given leadership positions.

Those who are willing but unable are provided the additional training and coaching they need to be successful in the classroom.

Teachers who are both unwilling and unable also get additional training and coaching with the expectation that once they acquire the ability they previously lacked, they also will gain the confidence they need to become willing to use their new skills.

Only teachers who already possess the necessary skills but are unwilling to implement them are disciplined. Their administrators document their performance and provide directives to improve or face further consequences.

Sometimes the problem isn’t the teacher’s skill level but the age level of the students. Depending on a teacher’s personality, the teacher might have trouble managing middle or high school students but work well with elementary school students, or vice versa, Cole noted.

In this case, she will make a first-order change, in which only one employee is affected, instead of a second-order change, in which many employees are affected.

That is, Cole would look at unfilled teaching positions in the school division and determine which one would be a better fit for the teacher based on his or her strengths. Cole would not move high-performing teachers to create openings for other teachers.

If a teacher will be teaching a completely different subject or age group, the teacher must take a Praxis test (standardized testing for teachers seeking licensure) and obtain a provisional license.

The teacher will be given a time-frame in which he or she must complete the related college coursework and acquire full licensure.

The key is to strike a balance between support and accountability for teachers. Considering the current teacher shortage, it’s important to support teachers to encourage them to stay in the profession, Cole said.

Nationwide, there’s a huge number of teachers who leave their careers between their first and fifth year of teaching, she said.

Another way to support teachers is to provide them with instructional assistants.

In Northampton County, there is a full-time instructional assistant in every classroom in kindergarten through second grade. Grades 3 and 4 have two instructional assistants per grade level, and grades 5 and 6 have one instructional assistant per grade level.

Cole is interested in getting volunteers to go into classrooms and help out. For example, a retired kindergarten teacher could come in to conduct a small-group reading lesson, she suggested.

A volunteer would be required to be fingerprinted and pass a criminal background check before being permitted in a classroom, she noted.

Cole's approach of accentuating the positive also applies to student behavior.

"Behavior is just a form of communication," she said. Students communicate their needs through their behavior, and if one can identify and fill their needs, unwanted behaviors typically will stop.

She agrees with Becky Bailey, author of the book "Conscious Discipline," who says, "Whatever you focus on, you get more of," Cole said.

For example, if a teacher constantly reminds a student to stop talking in class, that attention will actually reinforce the unwanted behavior.

But if a teacher draws attention to a positive behavior and says, "I like how so-and-so has their book open; they're ready to learn," the positive behavior will be reinforced (and other students may copy the behavior to seek the same affirmation).

Cole also believes that engaging students in team-based activities helps to reduce unwanted behaviors, and she plans to include a study of "Kagan Cooperative Learning" by Spencer Kagan in the orientation for all K-12 teachers.

Cooperating with parents also makes a big difference, and Cole has built more opportunities for parent engagement into the 2022-2023 school calendar.

Previously, parent nights were scheduled once every three months, but now they will be held once a month, always on a Tuesday. That was a strategic choice, as many local churches meet on Wednesday nights and few people are willing to attend school events on Friday nights, Cole said.

Another thing that Cole is approaching differently is the Northampton schools comprehensive plan, which has been updated every five years.

The plan was problematic because everyone was trying to work on all the goals all at once. Cole is now working on a strategic plan intended to avoid that pitfall.

Based on recommendations from school principals and others, she has drafted a list of the Northampton school division's top five values: teamwork, communication, parent and community partnerships, recognition, and respect.

Cole also is recommending the following goals: pursuing academic excellence, increasing two-way communication (between schools and parents), creating a positive school climate and culture, building family and community partnerships, and talent management.

She will present her ideas to the school board later this summer.

Cole is overseeing additional changes intended to help students recover from learning losses that occurred during the COVID-19 pandemic.

The school division is hiring a reading coach and a math coach who will model instructional strategies for teachers.

Principals and assistant principals will receive professional development once a month, and each of the remaining three weeks a month will be devoted to providing support for teachers in their first, second, and third years in the profession.

A lack of support is only one of three main reasons why teachers leave the profession. The other two are the affordable housing shortage and a lack of good jobs for teachers' spouses or partners, Cole said.

But the biggest change that needs to happen is to put students first. That means putting "political agendas" on the back burner.

"We need to put the focus back on children, and that's why we're here," Cole said. "It really does take everyone together, finding the best solution."

"I can't imagine growing up ... now, as a kid," she continued. "Everything that they're seeing and being told ... we would hope that the schools would be, you know, clear of all of that and just focusing on ... what is best for all students."

Cole said, "I think this community, honestly, is so beautiful. It has everything here to be successful. There's so much support we've got, and there's some really good teachers here."

"It has everything to be successful. It's just about working together ... to accomplish that."

Cape Charles, Onancock, Earn Main Street Accreditation

By Stefanie Jackson

The towns of Cape Charles and Onancock recently earned accreditation through the Main Street America program and are now part of just 25 Virginia localities to receive this “elite recognition,” according to a Cape Charles Main Street press release July 12.

Main Street programs are implemented in towns across America to revitalize their economies while preserving their history and character.

Not every town currently participating in a Main Street program is accredited; achieving accreditation signifies “exceptional commitment to preservation-based economic development and community revitalization through the Main Street approach,” according to the release.

The standards a town must follow to achieve Main Street accreditation include “fostering strong public-private partnerships, supporting small and locally owned businesses, and actively preserving historic places, spaces, and cultural assets.”

Projects Cape Charles Main Street has completed include:

- Branding the town as “Virginia’s

Cape,” which has appeared on various promotional items and multi-media campaigns, the official Cape Charles website, and the microsite www.capecharlesvirginiascapes.com

- Strawberry Street Plaza, which was designed with features such as benches, planters, and trash cans
- A public restroom trailer that was promoted as “clean, convenient and climate-controlled”
- Obtaining and administering grants such as the Small Business Recovery Grant totaling more than $895,000, which assisted 88 businesses in lower Northampton County to sustain them through and recover from the COVID-19 pandemic.

Onancock Main Street accomplishments include:

- Launching a town brand, “Onancock 1680,” a reference to the year in which the town was founded
- Creating the tourism website www.experiencingonancock.com
- Generating more than $190,000 in cash and in-kind services for downtown Onancock
- Commissioning a market study to identify new businesses that could come to town and fill empty storefronts

- Partnering with the town to administer $355,000 in COVID-19 recovery funds for small businesses.
- Benefits of Main Street accreditation include dedicated grant programs only for Main Street communities, additional grants, and special awards. Main Street accreditation also provides access to ongoing services such as organization development, market analysis and development, economic strategies, capacity building, and design assistance.

Main Street America programs have a reinvestment ratio of more than 19 to 1. For every dollar a community spends to support its Main Street program, it sees an investment return of $19.41, according to Main Street America.

In 2021, Main Street America towns experienced a total net gain of about 6,600 businesses and created about 30,400 jobs. Those towns also rehabilitated nearly 10,600 buildings.

Through approximately 1,200 programs, Main Street America communities reinvested $5.76 billion last year.

Tom and Juanita Godwin, of Cape Charles, stand by a bench they sponsored for Main Street Cape Charles recently. The bench is one of several installed at Strawberry Street Plaza to accommodate visitors. More benches are planned along Mason Avenue. Other donors include Marlene Cree, Kim Norris Abod, Anne Payne, Jim and Tammy Holloway, Metty Pellicer, Paul Strong, and Reginald and Eloise Widgeon. Not only did the firm make its services available to New Road during the shortage of materials and workers that began during the COVID-19 pandemic, but it has been “as honest and as reputable and as forthright as you can expect any company to be.

“They have been a friend to this community and this project,” Gabrielle-Wise said of the firm, which she believes will be a long-term partner for New Road.

Tammy Neale, chief of programs for Virginia Housing, said, “We certainly serve the entire commonwealth in ensuring access to quality, affordable housing, but I would say that we have a special heart for the work that is happening here in Exmore, the work with Ava that she has done to carry on the legacy of her mother and to support the community.”

Miles said she never met Ruth Wise, “but when you say the name ... you hear, ‘tenacious, stubborn, but boy, oh, boy, can she get a project done.’

“And I will say you are very much like your mother,” she told Gabrielle-Wise.

Cheri Miles said of Wise’s daughter, “She had an idea, she had a project. I had a program that fit with it, sort of, and we kind of put a round peg in a square hole, but we helped get it started, and I am just absolutely thrilled.”

Betsy Mapp, chair of the Northampton Board of Supervisors and representative of District 5, to which Exmore and the New Road community belong, said, “We’re delighted to see this project so far along and it’s just a real plus for Northampton County that this has come to pass.”

The ribbon-cutting was followed by tours of two of the six new homes.

The first home, where the ribbon-cutting took place, is a two-bedroom house with two bathrooms, one connecting to the main bedroom, and an open-concept living room and eat-in kitchen area.

The second house is a “tiny home” of nearly 500 square feet that opens into a living and dining area and features a compact galley kitchen, one bathroom with a stand-up shower, and one bedroom.

All the new homes were designed to be economical without lacking curb appeal and include features such as brick foundations, vinyl siding, and porches – the two-bedroom home has both a front and back porch.

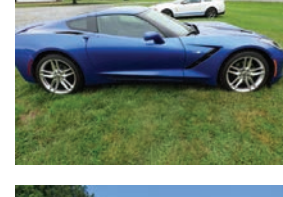

The next day, Saturday, July 16, the commemoration of the 30th anniversary of the New Road Community Development Group continued with a Community Day celebration, awarding of scholarships, and home tours that were open to the public.

Onancock Adding Murals to Three Downtown Buildings

By Carol Vaughn

Onancock's downtown will be getting some new outdoor artwork in the coming months.

Onancock Main Street was awarded a grant from Virginia Main Street, which will pay for the first phase of a mural project downtown.

The first phase, murals on three downtown buildings, is to be completed by spring 2023. OMS is taking applications from professional mural artists, with a July 29 deadline.

Additional grant funds are being sought to expand the project to other downtown buildings.

The goal of the project is "to create a positive experience for visitors and residents in the downtown district," ac-ording to an update from the nonprofit organization.

Cindy Holdren, of OMS, is heading up the mural project.

Holdren spoke with a Post reporter this week about the project.

"We do want to emphasize Onancock's assets, which to us are the natural environment and water activities; the arts and music; the food and restaurants; the history; its people, past and present; and, finally, the theater, cinema, (and) arts district," Holdren said.

The three buildings to be decorated in the project's first phase are the Foggy Place coffee shop (23 Market St.), on the patio side; the old Ford building (20 Market St.), and the former Wise's Drug Store (53 Market St.).

One idea is to have a mural of a native shorebird, "with kind of a wing effect, kind of taking off on the angel wings" popular with visitors to other areas, who like to take selfies posing with the wings behind them, Holdren said.

For 20 Market St., the concept is to paint three faux windows on the upper story on the right side of the building, where windows now have plywood covering them.

The ground level also would be painted, possibly with a silhouette of someone walking a dog or the like.

For Wise's Drug Store, which has new owners, the decorative mural likely will be a design printed on a banner, hung on the North Street side, which hopefully would last several years or until the owners make whatever exterior renovations they decide on, according to Holdren.

Other Virginia towns that have decorated their downtown districts with murals include Gloucester, Hopewell, and the Virginia Beach VIBE district, among others.

Plans for additional artwork in a future phase include the Ames Street side of North Street Playhouse, Holdren said.

"We are interested in attracting more business and more customers into town, as well as additional businesses, and just increasing the enthusiasm that people view the town with, both residents and visitors," she said.

ACCOMACK COUNTY STUDENTS SHINE ON NATIONAL STAGES

By Stefanie Jackson

Accomack County Public Schools career and technical education students have been busy with summer activities and achievements, Director of Secondary Education Karen Taylor told the school board Tuesday night.

Nandua High School had six students who attended this year's state conference for Family, Career and Community Leaders of America, and the following students won awards:

Nicholas Brown competed in sports nutrition and won a silver medal, a $1,000 scholarship from the Art Institute of Virginia in Virginia Beach, and a $500 renewable scholarship from Johnson and Wales University in Charlotte, N.C.

Kayana Smith and Zion Payton competed as a team in the category Focus on Children and each won a bronze medal.

Ky'Lek Robinson received the Outstanding Leadership Award.

The Nandua Middle School FCCLA was the only club in the state to win the New Chapter Award; the team also received a $300 grant and a trophy for outstanding community service for running a clothes closet in the family and consumer science classroom.

Accomack schools had nine students who participated in the SkillsUSA national competition in Atlanta. Students from both Arcadia and Nandua high schools competed in the automotive, cosmetology, and welding categories.

All the automotive and welding students placed 26th or higher in the nation. One automotive student placed sixth out of 13 in the first round; the top five competitors advanced to the next round.

One welding student narrowly missed placing in the top 10 when his time expired during competition.

Accomack's Quiz Bowl team of four students lost in the early rounds of competition to teams from New Jersey and Kentucky, who won the gold and silver medals.

Sarah Schmidt, a junior from Arcadia High School and a nontraditional automotive student (so-called because automotive students typically are male) placed sixth in the Facilitathon, a competition that tests a student's ability to thrive in a facility management environment.

Sarah is the first student in Accomack's history to reach the top 10 at the national level for SkillsUSA.

This year, Arcadia High School student Alex Like earned the highest score in the state on the Microsoft Excel test and competed in the 2022 Microsoft Office Specialist U.S. National Championship in Dallas.

Alyse Justis, a culinary arts teacher at Arcadia High School, is attending the annual Virginia Association for Teachers of Family and Consumer Science conference this week, and she will be recognized as the 2022 Outstanding New Teacher of the Year for the state.

Nandua Middle School Principal SuCora Owens announced that the school's Beta Club attended the organization's national convention in Nashville, Tenn., and won the Beta Together Award for exemplifying Beta Club's ideal of academic excellence.

Owens thanked the school board for providing transportation to the convention and said the students were excited to travel to Tennessee and learn from the other students who competed against them.

In another matter, Superintendent Chris Holland reported that the Accomack school division will provide bus transportation to its schools on Chincoteague for students who live in military housing in Wallops Island.

Previously, the school division required students who lived in Navy housing to attend mainland schools, Holland noted.

Chairman Ronnie Holden pointed out that there is a state law that gives "school choice" to students who live in military housing.

Virginia Code 22.1-7.2, enacted in 2018, states students residing in military housing must be allowed to enroll in "any school" in their school division upon the request of their parents, provided the school has space available for the students.

Holland added that the families who live in military housing are in the same voting district as Chincoteague residents.

About 20 students will be affected by the policy change.

"The military has sacrificed enough. ... It's the least we can do," Holland said.

The 2021 Virginia Crime Report is available online at the Virginia State Police website at <https://vsp.virginia.gov/wp-content/uploads/2022/06/CrimeInVirginia2021.pdf>

Following last week’s article on crime statistics reported by the counties and state police, sheriffs from both counties offered comments.

“The safety of the citizens in Accomack County is my number one priority,” said Accomack Sheriff Todd Wessells.

“Based upon the statistics from 2020, I observed an increase in crime within the County and approached our Board of Supervisors, asking for four (4) new law enforcement positions to help combat that increase,” he wrote in an email to the Post. “Effective July 1, 2022, the Board of Supervisors so graciously provide us with those positions. We are currently in the recruitment process to fill the positions.

“I’m also very concerned about the safety of students within our school system so I’m currently working with the Accomack County School Board to find adequate solutions,” Wessells continued. “Unfortunately, within the past three (3) years legislators have enacted laws restricting law enforcement officers from proactive policing. I encourage citizens to contact their local representatives to voice their opinions on legislation that restricts proactive policing.”

Northampton Sheriff David Dougherty wrote in an email message, “Since the beginning of the Pandemic, law enforcement agencies all across our Country have seen an increase in crime. Compared to 2019 and 2020, the overall crime rate was down in 2021 in Northampton County. ...We are blessed to have the men and women who wear the badge and uniform every day to protect our communities to help see that we all have a safe place to live, work, and raise our families.”

Accomack Adopts EMS Recommendations

By Carol Vaughn

The Accomack County Board of Supervisors Wednesday voted 6 to 3 to implement four recommendations made by Director of Public Safety Charles R. Pruitt about how to improve fire and rescue services in the county.

The board during a budget work session in February asked Pruitt to provide recommendations.

The four items “are not all-inclusive but rather the most significant in terms of impact on the existing service level and safety,” according to Pruitt.

The sticking point for the three supervisors who voted against the measures — Donald Hart, Harris Phillips, and Paul Muhly — was the second recommendation, to consolidate county fire medics by “strategically staffing core stations” with DPS personnel: including one 24/7 unit at Greenbackville; two each at Oak Hall, Parksley, Onancock, and Painter; and daytime staff only at Tangier.

That takes DPS staff out of Bloxom and Melfa, which now have them.

The move could increase safety on fire and EMS scenes and would provide more personnel in high call areas, according to Pruitt.

Pruitt noted there were 536 calls dispatched for motor vehicle crashes in Accomack in 2021, adding crash scenes would be safer if a firetruck were there as well as ambulances.

Two additional full-time positions are needed to implement the recommendation, at a cost of $171,000 to hire two fire medics and convert four daytime staff to 24/7.

Volunteer fire company representatives from Bloxom, Melfa, Parksley, Sax-is, Tasley, Wachapreague, and Onancock spoke during a public comment period.

Corey Michael Dean, of Greenbackville, president of the local firefighters union, said 26 DPS employees left in the last five years, mainly for better pay. Dean said he himself is leaving DPS to work for Salisbury, where he will get a raise.

Pruitt “has the full support of the union,” he said.

The first recommendation is to establish a minimum volunteer training standard, which would apply to all volunteer firefighters.

No additional costs would be incurred because the training could be accomplished through the existing fire academy, which is in the public safety department budget.

The standard would result in firefighters from different stations having the same training, which could improve safety on the scene, according to Pruitt.

The third recommendation is to align DPS employee pay with the salary of sheriff’s deputies, which Pruitt said would help recruit and retain employees.

“We’re not paying our fire medics enough,” he said, noting the department lost seven since January.

“Our competitors are actively seeking” Accomack fire medics, he said.

Pay bands are to be adjusted to align with new Virginia Compensation Board pay scales for deputies that take effect Aug. 1.

In a second, unanimous vote, on a motion by Hart, the board directed Pruitt to provide in August information about implementing the pay adjustment “immediately,” rather than waiting for next year’s budget.

Hart noted there is a $5 million balance in the county EMS fund, saying, “We need to give every one of our EMS their pay increase now.”

Supervisor Robert Crockett asked County Administrator Mike Mason to explain the balance, which Mason did, saying the fund “is structurally imbalanced, so we are going to use the $5 million” in future years.

“Taxes are not bringing in enough money” to pay for DPS positions the board has approved, Crockett said.

The fourth recommendation is to standardize certain equipment among volunteer fire companies. That could include ambulances, EMS equipment, personal protective equipment, and self-contained breathing apparatus, among other items.

That will lessen frustration of career personnel having to learn multiple types of equipment used by different companies and result in safer and more efficient scene management, according to Pruitt.

“Providers make quick decisions while providing patient care (and) should not be hindered by different equipment,” Pruitt wrote in the presentation.

A work group will be assigned by the board of supervisors to develop and implement standards for equipment and training.

Parksley Church Holds 'Christmas in July' Fundraiser

By Carol Vaughn

Members of Grace United Methodist Church, in Parksley, transformed the church into a winter wonderland for the church's first Christmas in July event, a fundraiser inspired by the donation of a large collection of Christmas decorations.

The event, held July 14 to 16, featured vendors selling Christmas items, caroling, children's craft activities, and — the highlight — a hall filled with decorated Christmas trees and tables.

Each tree and table was judged by a committee and the decorators of the top three trees and the top table were awarded a donation made to their designated charity in their name. The top prize was $500, given to the SPCA in the name of Stacy Robbins, who decorated two of the three prize-winning trees.

"A lot of times nonprofits have a lot of money to come in around the end of the year. This is going to be a little shot in the arm to raise awareness at this time of year," said Lisa Lewis, an organizer.

Each child who attended the event received a gift, including a Christmas ornament, a coloring book, and a new book.

"Yesterday, we had a little girl, ... she was probably three or four years old, and she had come down the steps and when she rounded the corner, she just stopped," Lewis said, adding, "Her eyes, they were as big as saucers. She just stood there for a minute and she said, 'This must be the North Pole.'"

All funds raised will be used for missions and outreach programs of the church.

Experimental Film Virginia Hosts 10th Annual Film Festival

By Adolphus Ames

Experimental Film Virginia returned to the Eastern Shore Monday, July 18, to host its 10th annual film festival. This year's event welcomes 30 international artists and will produce 15 short films in and around Cape Charles.

EFV is a two-week artist-residency that fuses elements of dance and cinema to tell stories through movement on the movie screen. It was started in 2013 by Renata Sheppard, who also serves as the program's artistic director. Sheppard created the program to fulfill her desire to attend a collaborative, peer-supportive in-depth exploration of what film could do for dance and what dance could do for film. Sheppard also wanted to create a space for artists to push themselves.

Artists from various backgrounds, including filmmakers, choreographers, visual artists, writers, actors, singers, musicians, and dancers, participate in the festival. There are also opportunities for local talent and volunteers to collaborate and network with the artists.

One of EFV's feature events is Art in a Barn, a community gathering event inspired by the local tradition of gathering in barns. It will take place Saturday, July 23, at Bluff Gardens, a private residence overlooking the Chesapeake Bay, and feature live music by Guava Jam Band, food, and alcoholic and non-alcoholic drinks.

The festival will conclude Saturday, July 30, with the Reel & Raw film premiere, a screening of the short films produced during the artist-residency. It will take place at the Historic Palace Theatre on Mason Avenue in Cape Charles. Doors open at 7 p.m. and the screening will begin at 8 p.m. A dance party will be held afterward and will include a performance by iDox, a band of international musicians.

OBITUARIES

Harold Everett Armsey

Mr. Harold Everett Armsey, 94, entered the loving arms of his heavenly Father on July 17, 2022. He departed this world from the comforts of his home, in Onancock, surrounded by his family.

Harold was born on Dec. 19, 1927, in Chillicothe, Ohio, to George and Florence (Greisheimer) Armsey. At the age of 8, Harold learned the value of hard work and saving, stocking and delivering groceries for his hometown grocery store. He really learned the lesson of attention to detail after missing a bag of groceries and having to deliver it by bicycle 10 miles round trip.

Harold developed a love of music as a young man, playing clarinet and b flat tenor saxophone in his high school band. Following high school, Harold attended University of Kentucky on a full musical scholarship. In addition to a weekly radio show, he played gigs on the weekends for his spending money. He graduated from the University of Kentucky with a Bachelor of Science degree in commerce and then completed a graduate program for public utility executives at the University of Michigan. In the decades following college, Harold met many of the jazz contemporaries of his day and continued to play the saxophone, frequently crossing paths with many nationally known jazz musicians.

As Captain Armsey, Harold served as an infantry company commander in the U.S. Army Reserves, with a total of 12 years of service to his country. His career contributions included 45 years of service in the electric utility industry, working as general manager for Kentucky Utilities based in Norton, Va. His civic contributions included serving as chairman on the Mountain Empire Community College Advisory Board, founding member of Mountain Empire Community College Foundation, member of the Virginia Economic Bridge Initiative, chairman of the Norton Industrial Development Authority, vice chairman of the Duffield Development Authority, vice chairman of the Southwest Development Corporation, board member of the Virginia State Chamber of Commerce, director of Black Diamond Savings Bank, president of the Kline Foundation, and cofounder and board member of Hospice and Palliative Care of the Eastern Shore and Hospice Choice in Southwest Virginia.

Following retirement, he remained active in numerous civic organizations and causes, enjoyed golfing well into his 80s, and traveled between his homes on the Eastern Shore and in Florida.

Harold is survived by his wife of 33 years, Betty Armsey, of Onancock; his children, Becky Puleo and her husband, Steve, of Knoxville, Tenn., Jennifer Armsey and her partner, Wendy, of Clearwater, Fla., Lynne Lindsay, of Fernandina Beach, Fla., Karen Davis and her husband, Chris, of Onancock, Kimberly Williams, and her husband, Keith, of Jacksonville, N.C., and Karen Armsey-Keene and her husband, Rob-

In addition to his parents, he was predeceased by his first wife, Joyce Armsey, in 1987.

A gathering to celebrate and honor Harold's life will be held at the Eastern Shore Yacht & Country Club on Tuesday, July 26, 2022, at 6 p.m.

Harold's motto was, "God is greater than any problem."

The Osprey-Eyed Reader Contest

Last Week's Runners-Up

You're asking: who is that angel? It's Chelsea Mapp, of Exmore, who was pictured spreading her wings on a recent trip to Panama for her 40th birthday.

Last Week's Contest and Winner

We usually have a failure rate of 10 to 15% but not last week. With only one or two hiccups, 56 people qualified as contestants by coming up with these answers to the four questions: Niko is from Virginia Beach, Page 22; $6,969 is the average credit card debt in Virginia, Page 32; for $19,994, you can buy a Volkswagen, Page 24; and the letters IIMC can be found in the seventh row of the Magic Maze, Page 27. Anne Gregory, of Belle Haven, was randomly selected to win the $25 gift certificate to Panzotti's Pizza in Onley. Gregory is represented by this beautiful flower.

Debbie Thornton, of Hallwood, has an aunt Margaret who is from England — as this photograph with tea and flag plainly show.

What do you do when relatives visit in the summer? If you're Laurie Paschall, of Cape Charles, you line them up in and on the LOVE sign.

First-time player Mike Atkins, of Crisfield, Md., celebrated his son Adam's 23rd birthday last December with a ride and an Island House lunch.

Gracie put herself in jail but Beth McHenry, of Parksley, still hasn't found out why this self-incarceration was necessary.

When the in-laws got together on Mother's Day down at Guard Shore, Shannon Evans, of Modest Town, decided it was a perfect time for a pic.

In memory of the Crusty Crab in Greenbackville shutting down recently, Arline Curtis, of Greenbackville, sent this picture of one of the CC's windows.

We'd love to publish a photo of you, your children, your pets, your friends, your hobbies, and your life on the Shore. We have room for only a few photos each week, but please feel free to send a picture along with your osprey-eyed entry.

This Week's Contest: Give Us Some Space!

In honor of the James Webb Space Telescope being up and running, this week we are hiding this definitely-not-a-space-telescope telescope. Remember, the clues can be larger, smaller, or turned every which way but they are all versions of this sample, which you can count in your total. And what is that total? We're hiding a telescope. Tell us the page number and where on the page you found each telescope. From among those who find all the telescopes, one lucky person will be randomly selected to win a $25 gift certificate to Sage Diner in Onley. See sponsor box on this page.

The Rules

1. Find the telescopes and tell us on which page, and where on that page, you found each telescope.
2. Entries MUST have first and last names and your town.
3. Send this information to david@easternshorepost.com.
4. Deadline is noon Monday, July 25.
5. No multiple entries.
6. Anyone submitting a photograph must have taken the picture or have permission to use it.

Random Facts About ... Little Things That Might Bite You This Summer

By David Martin

When we opened our internet tubes this week, a furry little piece of fluff came out that looked so cute we wanted to touch it — but a reader had warned us. Danger! The puss caterpillar might look like an inch-long piece of fur from a pussy cat but touching it will fill you with pain and regret.

Our correspondent reported she had been stung by one while cutting grass. "It felt as if a red-hot cast-iron pan was on my bare skin. The swelling, intense pain, and burning was severe for 24 hours. Slowly it subsided, but the bite lasted for about two weeks."

The puss caterpillar is the larval form of the southern flannel moth. The caterpillar's "fur" is actually venomous spines that make the little devil one of the most poisonous bugs in America. As tempting as it might be, if you see an inch-long fluffy caterpillar, don't pick it up or allow children to touch it.

The adult flannel moth is also small (an inch to an inch and a half) and has a fluffy coating but it is not poisonous. If you see an adult moth, that probably means the dangerous little caterpillars are also present. The puss caterpillar's poisonous hair-like spines can stick into the skin by simply brushing against you, and the venom those spines pump into you will be excruciating. It's best to treat the puss attack immediately by getting the spines out of the skin, using tape, for example.

Here are some other bugs that will make you want to stay inside all summer:

Unlike a bee, which has a barbed stinger that sticks into you and renders the bee a one-shot attacker, yellow jackets' stingers are not barbed and can stick you multiple times, injecting venom with each sting. Yellow jackets also have rage issues, especially in the fall when they begin starving to death. Typically, the entire colony of yellow jackets, except for a new queen, will die off in the cold weather.

Thank goodness black widow spiders are not aggressive like the yellow jacket, but the black widow's venom is more powerful than that of a rattlesnake — so if you get bitten by a black widow, prepare for a major ouch that could be life-threatening.

The kissing bug's bite is more gross than painful. It gets its name from the fact that it is attracted to the carbon dioxide in your breath and therefore tries to get close to your mouth where its bites are often located — as if it had been trying to kiss you. The gross part is that after the kissing bug bites you, it defecates. In that poop is a parasite that, if it enters your body through your mouth, eyes, or nose, can cause Chagas' disease. The condition is relatively rare in the United States but, really, who wants to get something from being kissed-bitten by a bug that poops on your face?

Fishing from the Shore

By Bill Hall

Cobia action has slowed for the second week in a row. Theories for the decline include the high water temperatures and the fish entering the spawning season. Flounder fishing on the seaside remains steady, both inside the inlets and on the ocean wrecks. A monster 11-pound, 6-ounce flounder caught out of Oyster last weekend is the largest flounder registered in the Saltwater Fishing Tournament so far this year. The fish was caught over an ocean wreck by Jim Prendergast while fishing with Greg Harman.

Upper Shore/Chincoteague – Captain Matt Abel, at the Sea Hawk Sports Center, told me cobia in the upper bay may have been a little better this week over last week, but remains slow compared to earlier in the season. Most fish were caught by chumming and bottom fishing. Speckled trout numbers remained low, though the average-sized fish has increased. Sheepshead have moved into the southern waters of the Maryland portion of the bay and are being caught around pieces of structure.

The upper bay Spanish mackerel population has increased to the point that they can be successfully targeted by trolling. On the seaside, flounder fishing has been good from lower Queen Sound south to Quinby. Most of the action has occurred on the last of the incoming tide to the first of the ebb. Flounder fishing on the ocean wrecks has also been productive, according to Abel. Offshore, tuna fishing has slowed, with a few yellowfin, bigeye, and mahi caught in the Washington Canyon.

Wachapreague – Captain Lindsay Paul, at Trident Tackle, told me the flounder fishing out of Wachapreague remains “very good,” with anglers returning with limit catches during periods of good water visibility. A few small croaker are also being caught. Captain Paul described the offshore action as being on the slow

Amanda Manzella, at the Wachapreague Inn, also said flounder fishing was good both inside the inlet and on the ocean wrecks. She added that croakers and spot catches have also been made.

Lower Shore – Dez Louie, at Oceans East — Eastern Shore, told me the cobia fishery continues to be on the slow side compared to earlier in the season. Louie theorized that the fish may have entered the spawning season, while combined with the high water temperatures, may have impacted the feeding cycle. Sandbar shark hookups are outnumbering the cobia bites.

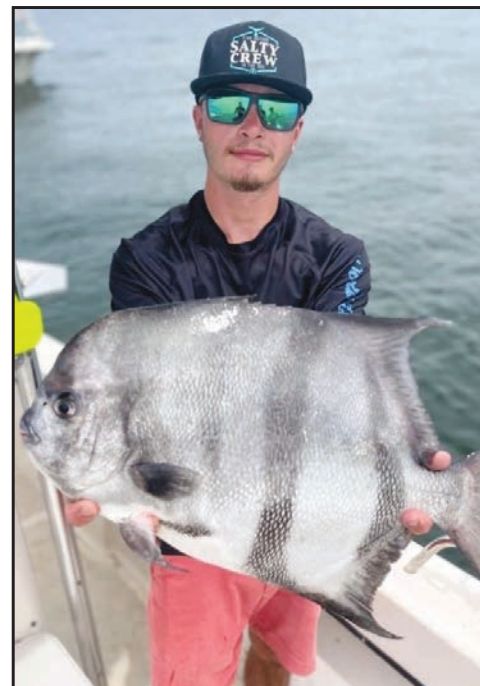

Spadefishing has been excellent with lots of fish coming from the fourth island of the bridge-tunnel as well as Plantation Light. The shop continues to weigh in lots of citation sheepshead from the bridge-tunnel and the concrete ships. Spanish mackerel catches are being made by high speed trolling with 0- and 00-sized Clark Spoons when the water is not too grassy. Spanish mackerel catches are coming from the bridge-tunnel to the waters north of Cape Charles. Flounder fishing has improved with the area around the high-rise section of the bridge-tunnel as well as the in-shore wrecks producing keeper-sized fish. Catches from the Kiptopeke Park Pier have included croakers, sand mullet (whiting), small flounder, and ribbonfish.

Jeb Brady, at Bailey’s Bait & Tackle, confirmed the cobia fishing has been slow over the last week. Sight casters have reported seeing some large fish cruising the surface, but the fish have shown little interest in eating. Bottom fishermen have not fared much better with some keeper-sized fish. Sheepshead fishing remains excellent around the pilings of the bridge-tunnel. Spadefish action remains good around the bridge-tunnel, Plantation Light, and up at the Cell.

Flounder fishing was described as “decent” in the Ditch and around the Fisherman Island Bridge. Flounder and triggerfish catches are coming from the inshore ocean wrecks. The shop weighed in a huge flounder weighing 11 pounds and 6 ounces for

Drew Sturgis caught this speckled trout on the upper bayside. Photo provided by the Sea Hawk Sports Center.

Pat Prendergast. Prendergast caught the doormat on a jig tipped with a Berkley Gulp while fishing over an offshore wreck. Spanish mackerel schools are now established in the lower bay, with Latimer Shoal singled out as a productive area. Catches from the Cape Charles Pier have included ribbonfish, small gray trout, and spot.

How Meghan Chaffins' Athletic Success Led to her Dream Career

Local athlete and track and field coach Meghan Chaffins hopes to recruit athletes from the Shore. Submitted photo.

By Whitney Metz

Meghan Chaffins, a former student athlete at Holly Grove Christian School, recently graduated from Randolph College after competing in both volleyball and track. Chaffins is now the assistant track and field coach at Regent University and plans to help put the Eastern Shore on the map at the collegiate level.

“Many people I have come in contact with since going to college have no idea where the Eastern Shore is or the talent that competes in the local high schools,” she said.

Chaffins hopes to recruit more athletes from the area, while she builds her career as a track and field coach. She shows a great deal of passion for the sports she has competed in as well as a strong commitment to helping local athletes reach their dreams like she did.

Chaffins is driven by her own experience in sports. In high school, she played volleyball in the fall, cheered in the winter, and ran track in the spring.

“I loved volleyball and cheer because of the overall team aspect, which track didn’t necessarily have,” she said. “I loved that all team members had to physically work together as a unit in order to reach the common goal.”

Track, especially at her school, was more about the individual aspect due to the fact that there was no conference for the sport and therefore the school was unable to compete as a team for a conference championship.

Coming from a small private school located in a small town limited her ability to gain access to recruiting. “I wasn’t outright recruited by any college,” Chaffins said. “But I took time to reach out to college coaches personally through online questionnaires.”

Chaffins first hit was coach Bill Cooper at Randolph College, who told her that he could take her talent to the next level. After a great meeting with Cooper, she decided to attend Randolph College to compete for both track and volleyball.

The connection between her and the coach happened almost immediately, which greatly impacted her decision. It was then she realized track and field could be more of a team sport than what she had seen in high school and was able to build a family within the school between teammates and coaches.

Chaffins said that she had a great experience at Randolph College and there were many impactful people that she met along the way, which guided her to where she is now. She originally planned to major in business and hoped to attend cosmetology school after graduation. In September of her freshman year, her dreams changed after her former high school coach died.

“He was like a second father to me, a true mentor and best friend,” she said. “Dr. Gregory helped me realize my potential in high school. Without him I would never be where I am today.”

Not long after the coach died, Chaffins decided to take a sports and exercise studies class, which made her rethink her entire future. She believed that sports were her calling and that she could continue coach Gregory’s legacy through coaching the sport they loved. Once she learned she could make a career out of the sport she was most passionate about, the rest was history. Chaffins decided she was ready to help young athletes achieve their dreams and make an impact both on and off the field.

In 2022, Chaffins graduated from the Master of Arts program in coaching and sport leadership at Randolph College. After a successful collegiate run, Chaffins now dedicates her time to coaching and hopes to eventually coach at the D1 level.

One of Chaffins’ biggest takeaways from her experience is that it is important for young athletes to find a place where they feel at home. “When choosing an institution, you should feel that you can be happy there for four years and make an impact that you want while accomplishing all of your athletic and academic goals,” she said.

“Any young athlete that wants to play at the next level should do everything they can to put themselves out there: send emails, send film, make contact. Most importantly keep working hard throughout the entire process and don’t stop once the deposit or commitment is made because at that point it is just the beginning.”

Chaffins is a genuine success story from the Eastern Shore of Virginia and is an example of how you can achieve any dream with hard work, passion, and dedication.

Shore Softball Team Competes at the State Little League Tournament

By Whitney Metz

The 2022 major softball team from Shore Little League competed in the state tournament in Bridgewater, Va., from July 14 to 16 after winning the District 8 championship.

The tournament started with pool play for the first two days, which determined the teams seeding. Shore was unable to pull out a win during pool play and started the tournament 0-2. The team fought hard but lost in the first round of the state tournament.

Lela Lusk continued to show her talent in the circle for Shore throughout the tournament, recording a total of 14 strikeouts in 10.1 innings of work. At the plate, Caroline Caison led the team going seven for nine with three RBIs. Manager Justin Webb reported that most of the players on the squad are young for the majors age group and will be returning next year, where they hope to repeat as District 8 Champions and compete in the state tournament.

Shore Little League major softball team members, Ava Webb, Brynna Travis, Caroline Caison, Corrin Burrell, Hayden Cornish, Isabella Bono-Evans, Jordan Rae Lewis, Keely Castaneda, Kylie Vergara, Lela Lusk, Lily Scott, Ruby Buck, Rayleigh Caison, and Miranda Smith had a great season.

Your Complete Guide to the 2022 Pony Penning and Swim

After 2-Year Hiatus for COVID-19, Pony Penning Returns for 97th Year

By Carol Vaughn

Pony Penning events will be held live next week for the first time in two years, after a hiatus resulting from the COVID-19 pandemic.

Pony Penning, held the last week in July, draws thousands of visitors to Chincoteague annually.

New this year is an online auction going on simultaneously during the live pony auction Thursday.

In 2020 and 2021, the pony auction was held only online due to pandemic restrictions on gathering.

“Right now we have 65 foals and 10 of them will be buybacks,” said Chincoteague Volunteer Fire Company spokesperson Denise Bowden. “Expecting a few more to be born but they may not be born before next week!”

The pony-related events this year begin Saturday, July 23, with the south herd roundup starting at 8 a.m.

This is the first major event before the pony swim. The Saltwater Cowboys ride out to the southern end of Assateague Island to herd in to the southern corral the more than 50 wild Chincoteague ponies, including adults and foals, that live in that part of the island.

The public is invited to see the ponies’ arrival at the southern corral on Beach Road.

They will remain in the corral Saturday through Tuesday, available for photographs and viewing.

The northern herd is rounded up Sunday morning, but the public is not allowed in that area, where around 100 to 150 ponies live.

The highlights of the week are the pony swim, Wednesday, and the pony auction, Thursday.

All the ponies swim the channel between Assateague and Chincoteague, “except babies that are less than a month old and mares that are about to give birth,” Bowden said. “We trailer those over but the rest swim over.”

The first foal to come ashore during the swim is named King or Queen Neptune. It will be given away in a raffle drawing at the carnival ground bandstand at 7 p.m. The ticket holder must be present to win.

Tickets are sold nightly at the carnival and while people are waiting for the swim.

Additionally, the Chincoteague Volunteer Firemen’s Carnival will be open starting Friday, July 22, from 7 to 11 p.m., and will run nightly through Saturday, July 30, except Sunday. A fireworks display will happen Saturday, July 30, at 10 p.m.

For a full schedule of Pony Penning/pony swim events, see Page 31.

A calendar of other events on the island is on Page 37.

PONY SWIM SHUTTLE GUIDE AND MAP

1. Shuttles start at 5 a.m. from Chincoteague Municipal Center at 6150 Community Drive. This service is free.

2. All visitors riding the Pony Shuttle will be taken to Veteran's Memorial Park. This is not the pony landing site. Those wishing to go to the landing site will need to walk from Veteran's Memorial Park to Pony Swim Lane. Seating is not provided at either location. The pony landing site is marshland.

3. A large Jumbotron will be located in Veteran's Memorial Park with a live feed of the swim.

4. Volunteer guides are available on the buses. Other Pony Shuttle volunteers will be available to assist at various locations.

5. Be prepared for hot and humid conditions on swim day. Bring plenty of water, sunscreen, and insect repellent. No seating is provided. The swim area at Pony Swim Lane is marshland so wear proper shoes. Flip-flops are not recommended.

6. Parking for persons with disabilities is available at the Chincoteague Municipal Center ONLY. There will be a bus to transport to Veteran's Memorial Park. Parking is very limited. No handicap parking will be available at Veteran's Memorial Park. See a Pony Shuttle volunteer for assistance.

7. Parking: Day visitors should use Chincoteague Municipal Center. Turn left at the stoplight at the foot of the bridge. Proceed to Chincoteague High School and turn right onto Hallie Whealton Smith Drive. Continue as directed by town officials. There may be some parking available at the Chincoteague Carnival Grounds, 3648 Main St. Shuttle stops in front of the carnival to go to the swim and returns behind the carnival grounds. There is no parking at other pickup points.

8. Remember where the car is parked. Parking Lot A (municipal center), Parking Lot B (elementary school), Parking Lot C (Island Nature Trail), Parking Lot D (Donald Leonard Park/high school), or carnival.

9. The shuttles will leave the municipal center and pick up at locations along Maddox Boulevard and Main Street. Look for the Pony Shuttle signs. There are no stops south of the carnival.

10. DECISION TIME! Immediately after the swim, two lines will form in the front of Memorial Park (where viewers were dropped off for the swim). One line is for transportation to the carnival (where the ponies are going) and one line is for transportation to the municipal center, motels, and other locations. Passengers going to a motel will first be transported to the municipal center where connections can be made to lodging.

11. Visitors must be in line to get shuttle transportation at Memorial Park. Be patient after the swim. Thousands of passengers are transported before the swim; it will take a while to accommodate thousands immediately after the swim. Those who paid to park in the Memorial Park area will need to walk back to their cars as there are no stops at the park after the swim site is empty (approximately one hour after swim).

12. Walking from the swim site to the carnival after the swim is recommended. The distance is approximately 1/2 mile. The walking route is available on the Pony Swim Shuttle Stops poster (right).

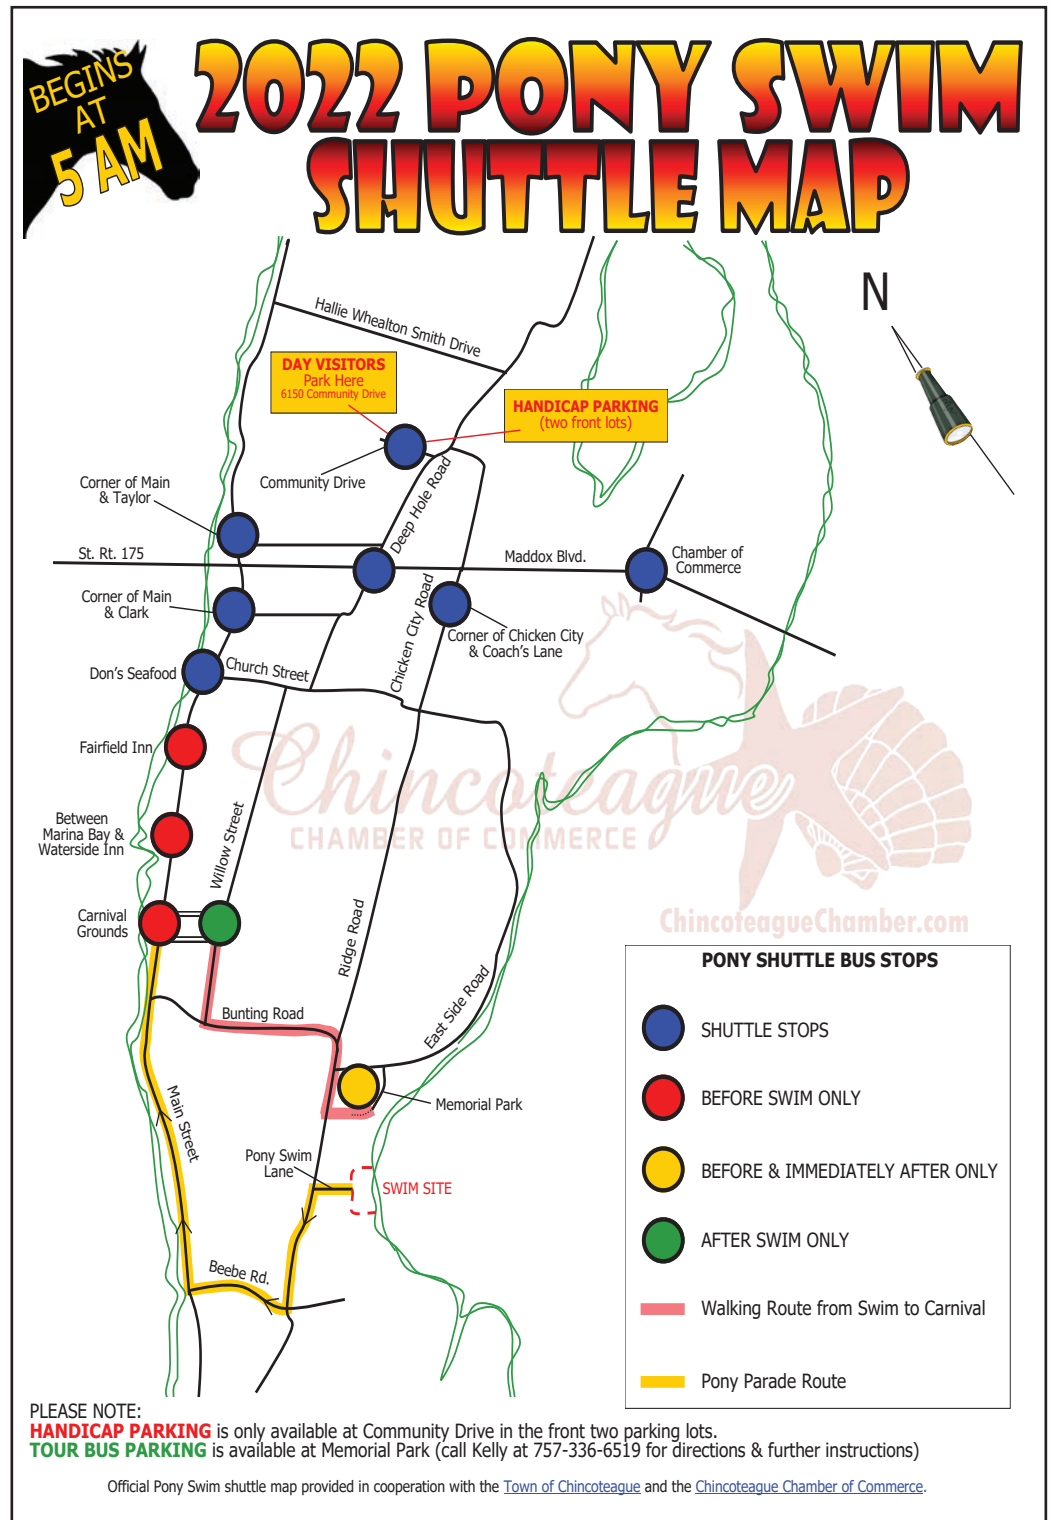

13. Those who walk from Memorial Park to the pony landing site must be back to the front of Memorial Park within 30 minutes of the ponies coming ashore.

14. If you take a shuttle to the carnival, you will not be able to reload on a shuttle until the swim site (Memorial Park) is emptied.

15. Buses will begin to load after the ponies arrive at the carnival. Service from the carnival will continue until approximately one hour after the ponies arrive.

16. Vehicle travel will be extremely heavy in the carnival area and throughout the island after the swim. Several of the roads from the swim site to the carnival will be closed until after the ponies arrive. (See road closures on Page 33). Please do not attempt to go back to your car then drive to the carnival. You will hold up traffic!

17. A long single-file line will form behind the carnival immediately after the ponies arrive. The end of the line is to the south of the corral. You must get to the end of the line and work towards the buses. Be sure everyone in your party is counted for loading. The line moves quickly as buses become available.

18. After the swim area is cleared, there will be no further stops at Memorial Park. Buses will only be available behind the carnival on Willow Street.

19. The last bus leaving from behind the carnival on Willow Street will be approximately one hour after the ponies arrive at the carnival.

20. Please do not carry large coolers, large strollers, yard/porch chairs, or large umbrellas on the buses. Bring only what will fit in your lap.

21. The Pony Express, the Island's trolley system, will run on Pony Swim day, from 8 a.m. until 1 p.m., across from the main entrance of the carnival grounds on Main Street. The fare is 50¢ per person. View trolley brochure and schedule at www.chincoteaguechamber.com/trolley-schedule/

22. Shuttle buses will run on WEDNESDAY ONLY.

Tips for the Pony Auction

Courtesy of the Chincoteague Chamber of Commerce and Certified Visitor Center

The annual pony auction raises funds for the Chincoteague Volunteer Fire Company and for the veterinary care of the ponies. The auction also serves to help control the pony population on Assateague Island. Foals will be auctioned at 8 a.m. on the carnival grounds, and winners will receive certificates of purchase from the Chincoteague Volunteer Fire Company.

Buybacks are returned to Assateague to replenish and upgrade the herd. Buyers are photographed with the buybacks and will receive official registration papers, although any offspring of buybacks will belong to the fire company.

Online Bidding

Participants MUST preregister to bid online at <https://liveauctions.tv/auction/1815/detail> Bidding will take place simultaneously with in-person auction.

In-Person Bidding

1. Be there early if you wish to bid on a pony. The crowds are huge and you will want a space as close to the front as possible.

2. Wear a sun hat and sunscreen. Bring plenty to drink. A pencil and paper are always useful. A camera is nice. A folding chair is a great idea since there will be no bleachers available due to insurance restrictions.

3. You do not have to register for the in-person auction. If you raise your hand during the auctioneer's chant, you are making a bid.

4. Your transportation home for your new foal (a horse trailer) must be approved by the pony committee. Ponies must be picked up by 5 p.m. Friday.

5. The only acceptable forms of payment are Visa, Mastercard, and cash. The Chincoteague Volunteer Fire Company will not accept checks.

BOUNDING MAIN EYE-BEFUDDLER

IT'S been shown time and time again that we can't always believe what we see. In the sailing scene at left, for instance, it would seem that each of the parallel horizontal lines veers either up or down.

But, if you sight these lines at eye level from the side, you will find that all are straight and parallel.

This is an adaptation of one of the oldest and cleverest of optical illusions.

ESLC Utilizes Donations

The Eastern Shore Literacy Council, with $2,500 in support from the United Way of Virginia's Eastern Shore Community Impact Fund and gifts from individuals and businesses who supported the United Way of Virginia Eastern Shore 2021 Community Campaign, will soon be upgrading learning resource materials for its English to Speakers of Other Languages (ESL) program. These funds will be used to purchase new editions of dictionaries, activity books, and tutor guides from the Side by Side Plus learning development program.

The program focuses on life skill roles. A student-centered learning approach, learners practice in pairs or with a tutor, working together to develop language skills "side by side." With its student-centered approach, learners can study outside of class with anyone and if they need to "stop out" briefly, they have the materials to continue learning.

The ESL provides adults, with the very lowest literacy levels, one-on-one tutoring through adult basic education and ESL.

Accomac Primary Part of Town's Rich Architectural History

By Christopher Newman

The renowned architect, Louis Kahn, once said, "The sun never knew how great it was until it struck the side of a building."

The painting above illustrates this thought of the afternoon sun shining on an antique-orange brick building. The background blue sky touches the beautiful, classic portico with its six Doric columns. This decorative addition to the building provides a stunning visual focus on the school and fits in well with the historical and antebellum age of Drummondtowne, re-named to Accomac in 1893.

The painting depicts the Accomac Primary School in 1932. (The composition and angular placement of the school, encircled by foreground shadows, came from an old black and white photograph, photographer unknown.) The four sycamore trees, not shown, were planted later and now in 2022 may be nearly as old as the school.

The school still maintains its architectural integrity and many of us consider it a historical building, sitting only yards away from Bayly Memorial Hall, built in 1870. The hall was previously Drummondtowne Baptist Church; it was moved to its present location, on School Street, in 1912.

In 1982, most of the town of Accomac was designated a Historic District by the Virginia Historic Landmarks Commission and the U.S. Department of the Interior. Approximately 160 buildings are listed as historic in Accomac; only Williamsburg, Va., has more historic architecture.

The old adage, "A picture is worth a thousand words," is true. I trust that the watercolor painting of the school, completed in June of this year, will indeed speak volumes to the thousands of children who attended the school and the hundreds of teachers who taught there. Learning to read and write; learning about our history and our great heritage as Virginians; learning about the challenge and importance of arithmetic, science, and geography; learning to listen, to speak — all would help shape the minds, hearts, dreams, and character of the children who attended the school. Art, music, and Bible reading would round out this classic American approach to education which existed through much of the school's history.

For those of us who believe that art and architecture are important parts of our lives and our history, we hope that the Accomack County School Board and District Supervisors will consider this as they decide the future

The proposed choices include demolition of the building, replacing it with something "new and shiny," including a large parking lot. The parking lot would sit directly in front of where the school's portico now stands. This would probably necessitate the removal of the four sycamore trees which have gracefully framed the building for many decades.

Inclusive in the March study, conducted by DJG Inc., of Williamsburg, was a specific focus on the possibility of renovating the interior of the school while preserving the present facade, portico, and hopefully, the landscaping. The cost of both demolition and a new building versus preservation and renovation of the present building were about the same: $5,500,000. There are other options as well — another site, the soon to be vacant Accomac Library building, for example.

Leonardo da Vinci, in referring to art in all of its forms, said, "Beauty perishes in life, but is immortal in art."

Christopher Newman is a resident of Accomac and serves on its town council.
