Sen. Kaine tours future rail trail

By Stefanie Jackson

Sen. Tim Kaine visited Cape Charles on Wednesday and walked half a mile on the future Eastern Shore of Virginia Rail Trail, for which he secured $2.5 million in federal funding.

He was confident asking his fellow U.S. senators to support the project because “we’ve seen how these rail-to-trail projects are doing so well all over Virginia” promoting the health of the communities they serve as well as tourism and economic growth.

The public trail will be where nearly 50 miles of railroad tracks once ran up and down the Eastern Shore, a paved surface ideal for bicycling and walking.

New project to bolster Cedar Island

By Carol Vaughn

Federal money will help pay for a project to restore and expand 217 acres of marsh along the southern part of Cedar Island.

The National Fish and Wildlife Foundation and the National Oceanic and Atmospheric Administration this week announced $7.7 million in new grants using funding from the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law and other sources to support ongoing natural infrastructure projects in seven states.

The Virginia Institute of Marine Science was awarded $310,300 for the Cedar Island project.

The grant will be matched by $253,400 for a total project cost of $563,700.

The goal is to enhance marsh and lagoon habitat on the landward side of Cedar Island, which should help protect nearby coastal communities against the impacts of coastal flooding and storm surge.

“The new funding is to move our team (VIMS, Stantec, Randolph-Macon College, George Washington University, and the A-NPDC) to the next stage of this project: final engineering design and permitting,” said Chris Hein, co-director of VIMS’ Undergraduate Program in Marine Science and principal investigator for the project.

Stanec is a coastal engineering firm working on design and hydrodynamic modeling for the project.

In addition to paying for permitting and design, the grant will pay to provide outreach to resiliency planning organizations and Shore residents.

The project was awarded a previous NFWF grant of nearly $250,000 in 2018.

Of the Shore's 13 barrier islands, Cedar Island was chosen for the project because it is among the most dynamic and because deterioration of its southern end poses a threat to the town of Wachapreague.

Additionally, the changes threaten navigation routes and could have adverse effects on the local economy.

Cedar Island is migrating landward at a rate of up to 15 meters per year, according to an article written by Hein and his colleagues and published in the journal Frontiers in Marine Science in 2021.

The hope is the approach used to build up marshland behind Cedar Island using material dredged from nearby channels could be applied to other localities to improve coastal resilience, according to the article.

"Maintaining and rehabilitating our coasts is critical for the health and economic well-being of coastal communities, especially in the face of impacts from climate change like flooding and extreme storms," said U.S. Secretary of Commerce Gina Raimondo about the grant awards.

"Thanks to funding from the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law, the Biden administration is making meaningful long-term investments that will strengthen coastal communities and allow them to flourish for generations," she said.

In addition to the Cedar Island project, grants will support the design and implementation of projects to enhance the resilience of coastal communities and improve habitat for fish and wildlife in Hawaii, Maine, New Jersey, Ohio, Rhode Island, and South Carolina, according to a press release.

"Climate-driven floods and storms threaten all coastal communities, and these locally driven projects are critical for developing effective natural infrastructure," said NOAA Administrator Rick Spinrad, adding, "By investing in local communities, we invest in our nation's resilience."

The eight grants will leverage more than $3 million in matching contributions for a total impact of $11.1 million.

The grants were awarded through the National Coastal Resilience Fund, a partnership between NFWF, NOAA, Shell, TransRe, and Occidental, with additional funding from the U.S. Department of Defense, the Bezos Earth Fund, and from the Bipartisan Infrastructure Law.

NFWF worked to award an early slate of grants in August, ahead of its standard annual award date, so communities experiencing increasing impacts from rising seas, more intense storms, and other coastal hazards would have funding to spend toward resilience projects, according to the release.

"As coastal communities face growing threats including coastal flooding and hurricanes, communities need resources immediately to help them reduce threats and increase resilience," said Jeff Trandahl, NFWF executive director and chief executive officer.

NFWF anticipates investing approximately $140 million in grants through the NCRF this year once additional awards are announced in November.

~ Sen. Kaine ~

Kaine's early evening hike took him from Rayfield's Pharmacy in Cape Charles, across the former railroad yard, to the Shanty restaurant at the town harbor, where he spoke briefly to citizens.

$2.5 million will cover most of the cost to build out the rail trail about 2.3 miles from Cape Charles to U.S. Route 13.

Kaine got the money through congressionally directed spending, formerly called earmarks. It's a way for Congress members to directly fund projects that benefit the people they represent.

Local organizations are spared the long and difficult process of completing grant applications, submitting them to federal government agencies, and waiting for approvals that may never happen.

Congressionally directed spending is an effective way to get money for small, rural towns and counties that can't compete with highly populated cities that are favored by federal funding formulas.

"We're able to go to bat for some communities that might not get funds under the traditional formula," Kaine said.

He is able to get support for projects like the rail trail by talking to senators from rural areas to "make a case not just based on what number crunchers would [consider] important. I can make a case on quality of life" and improving health in "a unique part of our state," Kaine said.

Recreational trails benefit communities not only by providing opportunities to improve public health, they promote tourism and economic growth.

For example, the Virginia Capital Trail, which Kaine also supported, has an estimated annual economic impact of $5 million. (The trail covers about 52 miles from Jamestown to Richmond.)

The Virginia Creeper Trail, a nearly 35-mile-long rail trail in southwestern Virginia, generates about $25 million in tourism revenues annually, according to the town of Abington, where the trail begins.

The Eastern Shore of Virginia Rail

Trail will reach as far north as Hallwood and as far south as Cape Charles, where it will connect to the Southern Tip Bike and Hike Trail that ends at the Eastern Shore of Virginia National Wildlife Refuge, a stone's throw from the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel.

Judge denies motion to amend bond in felony case

By Nancy Drury Duncan

A motion to amend the bond for Jalil Naheem Galloway, allowing him to attend in-person classes at a local high school, was denied by a circuit judge.

Galloway, 17, of Cape Charles, is charged with malicious wounding and two more felonies in an incident that took place at the Mary N. Smith Cultural Enrichment Center in January, said Commonwealth's Attorney Spencer Morgan.

The victim, a classmate of Galloway's, was shot in the chest after a Sweet 16 birthday party there. Galloway completed his junior year at Northampton high school online and hoped to attend classes in person when school opens. He was 16 years old at the time of the shooting.

Defense attorney Thomas Northam said his client needed more help than online learning could provide.

On the witness stand, the 17-year-old victim testified about the difficulties she had in school after the shooting.

"I have no friends at school. They bully me. They attack me," she said.

She said Galloway's friends bumped against her in the halls and made her experience there difficult.

She told the court she attempted to transfer to Nandua High School in Accomack County but was denied admission there because she lives in Northampton County.

After hearing the evidence, Judge W. Revell Lewis III spoke directly to Galloway.

"You are 17 years old," he said. "You are charged with malicious wounding and shooting into an occupied vehicle. You were identified as the shooter by (the victim). I am not going to allow you to go back to the high school."

Galloway will remain on house arrest until his November trial.

Northampton schools will re-open with relaxed COVID-19 protocols

Contact tracing is no longer recommended as it 'unintentionally violated HIPAA rights'

By Stefanie Jackson

Northampton County Public Schools will handle COVID-19 mostly like other common illnesses, such as the cold or flu, when school starts next week.

Brittany Annon, NCPS nursing coordinator, said the school division will continue following COVID-19 guidelines provided by the Virginia Department of Health and the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention, which were updated Aug. 11.

Quarantining after exposure to COVID-19 is no longer recommended. Neither is contact tracing recommended, as it "unintentionally violated HIPAA rights," Annon said.

(The Health Insurance Portability and Accountability Act or HIPAA protects certain health information from being shared.)

For contact-tracing purposes, "I had to know and notify someone else (of someone's medical condition. It is no longer an acceptable practice," Annon explained.

The school division's updated health policy states any individuals entering NCPS buildings put themselves at "minimal risk" of exposure to conditions such as fever, sore throat, vomiting, diarrhea, head lice, rashes, pink eye, and now COVID-19.

Students with symptoms of COVID-19 should be kept home from school the same as if they had symptoms of any other illness.

According to Gov. Glenn Youngkin's COVID-19 recommendations based on VDH guidance, students who test positive for COVID-19 should isolate at home for five days before returning to school.

To protect student privacy, NCPS employees will not ask for a student's medical diagnosis but will use the "honor system" and trust parents to follow the COVID-19 isolation guidance and keep kids home when they have symptoms of any illness.

Annon reminded listeners that before COVID-19, a doctor's note excusing a child from school indicated the date the student could return to school, not the child's diagnosis.

She added that if the NCPS attendance policy is followed, a student will never become truant due to illness, which has been a concern of some parents.

Annon clarified that the updated health policy does not permit parents to send students with COVID-19 to school, but she acknowledged some parents flout the rules and send sick kids to school.

"We understand financial crises. We understand child care (issues). But the more you do to help us by keeping your child that is sick home, the faster they will get better," she told parents.

Annon noted that returning students to school too soon after an illness results in "exposing others to more germs, and it's going to get passed back and forth," increasing the chance of the same students getting sick again.

Northampton schools' COVID-19 mitigation strategies, in addition to staying home when feeling sick, include hand-washing, maintaining social distance as much as possible, and wearing masks when applicable.

Earmark to fund using dredged material to restore Tangier

By Carol Vaughn

Sen. Tim Kaine and Rep. Elaine Luria traveled to Tangier Wednesday morning, leaving from the Onancock wharf on the Joyce Marie II, the ferry piloted by Capt. Mark Crockett.

Kaine and Sen. Mark Warner successfully helped secure more than $25 million in the latest text of the fiscal year 2023 Senate appropriations bills for the Army Corps of Engineers' beneficial use pilot project on Tangier.

The project is among congressionally directed spending items, or earmarks, the senators requested in the fiscal year 2023 Energy and Water appropriations bill.

Additional funding recommended in the legislation for the Baltimore Harbor and Channels dredging project is to pay for "environmental coordination as well as plans and specifications to add Tangier Island as a beneficial use placement site for dredged material," according to an explanatory statement about the bill.

Once passed by Congress and signed into law, this funding would support efforts to help Tangier address loss of habitat and eroding shoreline issues caused by sea level rise, recurrent coastal flooding, and coastal storms, according to Kaine.

The money would go to pay for using dredge spoils from federal navigation projects near Tangier to help build up the island.

Kaine said Wednesday the challenge in getting federal funding for Tangier in the past has been due mainly to the town's small population.

"It was really the restarting of the earmark process" that made the funding for Tangier land restoration possible, he said, noting the project fits within an existing, authorized Army Corps program to use dredging material "in a productive way."

"The nice thing about earmarks is that you can kind of make the case to your appropriators that, hey, this might be a small number of people but this is ... on the national register of historic places. So you can kind of make your case to your colleagues," Kaine said, adding the senators submitted the funding for Tangier as an earmark as "our number one priority this year."

For the funding to become reality, the appropriations legislation must be approved by the Senate, then the House of Representatives.

Having the support of Rep. Elaine Luria "will be very helpful," Kaine said, noting, "I've got to have somebody on the House side who is going to battle for it as much as I am."

"We have a real good chance of getting it done. And the nice thing is, $25 million — that is a sizeable earmark," Kaine said.

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers estimates if action is not taken, Tangier could be basically uninhabitable within 50 years due to erosion, which is widely thought to be caused by sea level rise due to climate change. The island currently shrinks by some 15 feet each year, according to the Corps.

In a November 2021 article in the journal Frontiers, David Schulte and Zehao Wu said local sea level rise "has rapidly accelerated in recent decades" and predicted Tangier's upland landmass could be completely converted to wetlands by 2051.

"Being an offshore island, Tangier does not have a significant source of sand, unlike a barrier island," they wrote.

Among measures the authors recommended to increase Tangier's longevity is using dredged material to raise the elevation of wetlands and enhance vegetative growth, which they estimate will cost $5,000 to $10,000 per hectare.

The authors noted Poplar Island, an uninhabited Bay island in Maryland, was restored from five acres in 1993 to around 1,715 acres by using dredged material from the Baltimore Harbor shipping channel.

Northampton Public Schools update emergency crisis plans

By Stefanie Jackson

Northampton's public schools have updated their crisis plan to be more accessible and easier to use by teachers and staff preparing for or responding to any emergency, from severe weather to a bomb threat.

The Northampton County Sheriff's Office collaborated with the school division to simplify and improve the document.

Northampton Middle School Principal Ron Yorke said his school's crisis plan originally had 131 pages.

Northampton was one of many Virginia school divisions that had overly long crisis plans, which likely happened in an attempt to include all the related Virginia laws in one manual, he explained.

One major change in Northampton's crisis plan is that plain English is now used instead of color codes to describe various emergencies.

For example, instead of saying "code blue" for a weather emergency, administrators will announce that "there is a weather emergency" and specify the weather event, said Kiptopeke Elementary School Principal Fred Eng.

The new plan is user-friendly and provides step-by-step instructions on handling any potential crisis.

If a school employee answers a phone call from someone making a bomb threat, the crisis plan tells the employee exactly what questions to ask the person making the threat.

The school employee gathers the needed information and turns it over to the principal, who then gives the information to law enforcement officers.

New additions have been made to the crisis plan, including a section on death and suicide.

"It's sad that we have to include this, but it's just where we're at right now in our society," Yorke said. "We need to know ... if that traumatic event happens ... the steps that we need to take to be there for our community."

Another new section of the plan concerns media relations: who may or may not talk to reporters during a crisis and how to respond to a reporter who asks a question of a school employee who is not permitted to answer.

The crisis manual also includes a list of emergency phone numbers, from the electric company to local news organizations.

Every teacher receives a digital copy of the crisis plan, and bound hard copies also will be made available.

"That Poplar Island is being restored as a wildlife habitat, and is not intended for permanent human settlement, while the continuing decline of Tangier Island and its Town proceeds, is a source of much consternation in the Town populace," the authors wrote.

Kaine in 2017 pushed for Tangier to be included in a pilot program for beneficial use of dredged material, but the island ultimately was not selected.

It also took years to get public funding for a $3 million stone jetty to protect Tangier's harbor. After funding finally was obtained, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers awarded the contract to build the jetty in May 2020.

The jetty is designed to help limit wave action in the channel and harbor where watermen have crab sheds. Limiting wave action helps reduce the risk of damage to the sheds and boats during storms, according to a 2020 press release from the Army Corps.

Northampton's TECH Center gets new brand: QUEST

By Stefanie Jackson

Northampton's alternative education program, the TECH Center, is getting a new name that reflects its purpose of preparing students to return to the regular classroom after a long-term suspension or other discipline issues: QUEST or Quality, Unique, Educational, Student Transition.

"We want to provide an environment that encourages not only academic growth but personal growth," said Laura Lembke, science teacher and TECH Center coordinator.

She said the name TECH Center — an acronym for "Teach Every Child Holistically" — has a bad connotation because of its longtime use as a disciplinary placement.

The new name, QUEST, emphasizes the program's goal of transitioning students out of the alternative education environment and back to their home schools.

The QUEST program operates on a level system. Students who attend regularly, stay in class, are passing with at least 70% accuracy, follow redirection the first time, and have three or fewer minor referrals in a nine-week period are "on level."

Students whose performance is higher are "above level" and students whose performance is lower are "below level."

Students on or above level get perks such as extra recreation time, attending special events, and going on field trips. Students who are below level receive no perks.

Starting in October, for six weeks, the Community Services Board will hold weekly 90-minute sessions of its youth resiliency program, which Lembke described as a form of social-emotional learning.

Other enrichment opportunities will include weekly visits from a behavior intervention specialist, school social worker, and school resource officer.

School board member Liz Jones commended Lembke and her colleagues for transforming the alternative education program into one that addresses "the whole child" and doesn't label students as "troubled kids."

Lembke said the QUEST program gives students the tools they need to manage the challenges of a mainstream school setting.

School board Chair Charlena Jones offered praise for the program's emphasis on preparing students to return to their home schools.

Lembke's plan is that within two years, the alternative education center can accommodate parents who request their children's participation in the QUEST program. Currently, students who have had long-term suspensions or chronic discipline issues are placed in the program at the discretion of administrators.

She has been busy visiting students at home before school starts. There are seven Northampton students who will begin the school year in the program.

Lembke said it was "fabulous" to visit one student who greeted her with a hug.

She said, "These kids have my heart, and they know that I am there to help them through whatever it is they need to get through in order to get back to their homeschool campus, because that is the ultimate goal."

SERVING VIRGINIA'S EASTERN SHORE

THE PAPER'S POSITION

New school plan is unaffordable

Northampton County cannot afford an $84 million improvement project for its high and middle school. And it is time for someone to say so.

Yes, the students and teachers deserve it. But let's be realistic.

The tax ramifications of a publicly funded, $84 million project in a county with 12,000 people would be a bitter pill.

An article in last week's paper reported that the low bid on a renewal project for the Eastville school was $84 million. The high bid was $85 million.

Extraordinary prices and extraordinary conundrums call for an airing of all ideas and suggestions.

For that price, the county should just build a brand-new school for pre-kindergarten through 12th grade students, and convert the two modern elementary schools into apartments for much-needed workforce housing.

The high bids are the latest wound in a snakebitten process of building and renovating the Eastville school.

Fifteen years ago a study of the Eastville school showed poor architectural conditions. Just four years ago the estimated price tag for remodeling was $24 million.

The maximum the county is willing to spend on the project is $65 million, which even seems a bit pricy for a school system with 1,300 students and a declining enrollment.

Will the entire Eastville school project be scrapped? Will it be postponed until the prices of construction materials drop? Will county leaders go back and scale down the project?

Taxpayers are waiting to find out.

Don't thank Luria — thank your children

To the editor:

In your Aug. 5 issue you reported on U.S. Rep. Elaine Luria's announcement of $1 million for Northampton County.

It's no coincidence that she comes to the Shore during election years with money bulging from her pockets.

But before we get all weak-kneed and giddy about our good fortune, consider who is paying the bill.

Don't thank Luria — thank your children and grandchildren.

Luria just voted for the "Inflation Reduction Act," another bloated tax-and-spend act that even the mainstream media announced as a "major healthcare and climate bill."

What happened to inflation reduction?

More concerning is the inclusion in this bill of $80 billion for 87,000 new Internal Revenue Service agents to fill job postings.

Guest columns and letters

The Eastern Shore Post welcomes your letters and guest columns. Letters have no more than 350 words. Guest columns have no more than 500 words.

Letters and columns must include a phone number and a town of residence for verification. They must not have been submitted to or published by any other media.

Letters and guest columns may be edited. It is preferred that letters and guest columns refer to Eastern Shore Post content or Eastern Shore of Virginia issues. No more than one letter or column per person will be printed during a 90-day period.

It's no coincidence that the IRS already possesses over 4,000 firearms and 5 million rounds of ammunition.

So what did Luria really give us?

Over $700 billion in additional debt that will be collected from our children and grandchildren.

They will either pay up or risk a visit from the IRS stormtroopers.

Just say "no" and send Elaine Luria to the unemployment office on election day.

Wishart's Point is historic, significant

To the editor:

I recently learned that Wishart's Point, Accomack County, was the site of a Civil War skirmish ("Emerging Civil War" blog post by Erik-Jon Gilot).

I had visited Wishart's Point not long ago, but before I knew of its historical significance. I found the immediate area in deplorable condition and strewn with trash and rubble.

It deserves better.

For Oak Hall man, it's always a good time for veggie tales

Santiago Urbina, of Oak Hall, couldn't lift the two massive watermelons by himself. But he wanted to show the folks at the local newspaper what he'd grown in his yard.

Ted Shockley

So a neighbor helped him load them into a pickup truck, and chock them against the side with sticks of firewood so they wouldn't roll around.

I stepped outside the office to see for myself. The temperature in the Four Corner Plaza parking lot was hotter than young love on a park bench. Urbina's watermelons looked thirst-quenching and delicious.

Urbina, commonly known as "Sandy," pointed and smiled. The heaviest weighed more than 60 pounds.

"All by hand," he said. Urbina meant that he owns no tractors or rotary tillers.

He has some garden tools. And a lot of gumption.

As long as there have been newspapers, there probably have been proud gardeners bringing into the newsroom all manner of newsworthy fruits and vegetables. Sometimes it is a big watermelon. Sometimes a russet potato bears a striking likeness to Lyndon B. Johnson.

Unfortunately, a lot of reporters in our country are not worldly and cultured enough to appreciate and report a good veggie tale.

I have a theory that U.S. newspapers are failing, in part, because editors and reporters in pursuit of Really Big Stories don't make time for the guy who grew the conjoined cantaloupes and can't wait to show them off. It is a sad state of affairs.

They're missing some great people — like the 69-year-old Urbina, who grew up in Mexico and learned agriculture from his father.

"He plowed by hand with the mule," he said. "We had no tractor."

His dad taught him how to coax crops from seeds and soil. He's never forgotten the lessons.

"I keep it here, always," he said, pointing to his head.

In 1973, Urbina came to the United States by swimming across the Rio Grande. He knew no English.

He first came to the Eastern Shore as part of a labor crew to pick tomatoes. Then he worked in construction.

For 25 years now, Urbina has worked at the Tyson Foods Inc. plant in Temperanceville, first trimming chickens, now as a floor man.

Urbina has no grass in his yard — it is all a garden, filled with cantaloupes, sweet corn, Mexican squash, and more.

But the master of the melon doesn't keep any for himself. He gives those away.

"I'm not supposed to be eating too much watermelon," he said with a smile.

Seacrets' potential impact on Chincoteague Island is no secret

BY DEBORAH ULLMAN

Special to the Eastern Shore Post

I write in response to the announcement in last week's Eastern Shore Post that Seacrets intends to open a new location on Chincoteague Island.

As a Chincoteague homeowner and taxpayer — who is also a Maryland attorney who has done criminal work in Ocean City, Md. — this announcement should raise alarms for all property owners and taxpayers on Chincoteague, not just those on the south end.

If it is like the Seacrets in Ocean City, the Chincoteague location will adversely impact the quality of life for all on the Island.

After being appointed to represent people charged through the Maryland Office of Public Defender, I have personal knowledge of the criminal behavior of Seacrets' intoxicated patrons.

These interactions result in police involvement, arrests, and prosecutions. I do not wish for my taxes to be increased to pay for more local police, county prosecutors, and possibly the need for a Chincoteague courthouse to subsidize Seacrets' business model.

Search "Seacrets Ocean City" on the internet and read for yourself some of the stories that have included Seacrets.

Seacrets operating on Chincoteague is not a done deal. The company will be required to obtain many permits and licenses so there are many things that residents can do.

Stay informed, write letters or send emails, and attend any permit or licensing hearings, whether at the town, county, or state level, and let your voice and concerns about this business be heard by public officials.

Contact your elected town council and request that an ordinance be drafted to cap the present size of the Chincoteague police force, and only increase the size based upon an increase in the number of full-time residents of the Island. If businesses increase crime on the Island, increase their taxes, not the taxes of law-abiding citizens.

Contact your town council and request it draft an ordinance that links the number of nuisance violations a business entity receives or the number of crimes committed on the business's property with suspension or revocation of its business license.

Contact your town council and request funding a planning department director so Chincoteague has a comprehensive plan to limit businesses such as this and keep them away from residential areas.

Contact the town and review the present zoning ordinances for your area of the island to see if the land-use decisions that have been made in the past conform to your desires for the future.

Our present zoning laws would have allowed Seacrets to locate diagonally across Main Street from the high school. My prior complaints about this zoning problem remain unheeded.

If locals and new arrivals who love and respect this community work together, we can stop Seacrets. We do not want Chincoteague, a truly family friendly vacation town and gateway to a pristine national seashore and wildlife refuge, to become Ocean City South.

The writer lives on Chincoteague Island.

Why animals are so strong, even without exercising

Let's say there's a 100-pound chimpanzee that has been lounging around for a few years, eating Twinkies (banana flavored), and getting zero exercise.

David Lozell Martin

You, meanwhile, are 200 pounds of well-toned muscle, eating a healthy diet, exercising daily. What would happen if you entered the ring with the chimp?

You'd lose. Chimps are twice as strong as humans. The key to that strength is the composition of muscle fiber and how those muscles are controlled.

Compared to chimpanzees, humans have more muscle neurons, each of which serve fewer muscles. This gives us our fine motor skills, able to sew, pluck guitar strings, perform delicate surgery.

Chimps have fewer motor neurons that control larger masses of muscle, which gives them massive strength, but don't ask a chimp to stitch up your appendix incision.

Also, most of the chimp's muscles are fast-twitch fibers that contract quickly and with great power. Most of a human's muscles are slow twitch, which contract more slowly but have greater endurance.

The baffling question is why can animals lounge around, never exercising, and then transition immediately from this sedentary state to performing incredible feats of strength and endurance?

According to www.science.org a researcher found that the bar-headed goose did nothing to prepare for its nearly 2,000-mile migration from Mongolia to India. Even more surprising, the geese's fitness, as measured by heart rate and temperature, were the same when they began their migration with no prior exercise and when they ended their migration over the Himalayas.

According to www.newscience.com, an experiment was conducted in which caged songbirds with no exercise are subjected to daylight changes that signal an approaching migration season. The birds are then put in wind tunnels where, without any physical preparation, they fly nonstop for 10 hours.

The barnacle goose becomes fitter (stronger heart, bigger flight muscles) as the time for migration approaches even though the geese are not exercising. Black and brown bears can lie around, literally, for months during their hibernation and then emerge with the same muscle mass they had when they were in peak shape entering hibernation.

Falling temperatures or a change in food availability can trigger the release of blood compounds that strengthen and enhance the muscles in bears and some migratory birds without a single hour in the gym.

Lucky animals.

And tragic for you if you do get into a battle with an adult chimp. In multiple reports of chimpanzee attacks on humans, the result is the same: the chimpanzee bites off its victim's facial features, fingers, and genitals. Think of that the next time you see a cute baby chimp holding hands with a celebrity. At around age 6, that animal (the chimp, not the celebrity) will be too powerful and aggressive to be allowed around humans and will have to be separated and confined for the remaining 30 years of its life.

Unlucky chimp.

Wallops Navy base holds change of command

A career Navy officer was installed Aug. 26 as the leader of Surface Combat Systems Center, Wallops Island, the Eastern Shore of Virginia's largest military base.

Cmdr. Jason Flanagan is the new commanding officer of the center, which includes administrative offices on Atlantic Road and several buildings on Wallops Island.

There are roughly 80 sailors stationed at the center, which employs approximately 60 civil servants and almost 300 contractors. The center supports testing and training for Navy combat systems, according to its website.

Flanagan takes over for Cmdr. Anthony C. Holmes, who was to be promoted to captain at a ceremony this week in Texas — with his mother pinning on his captain's insignia.

Holmes transferred to Naval Surface Warfare Center Port Hueneme Division, Port Hueneme, Calif., after a three-year duty tour at Wallops.

The change of command ceremony took place at the NASA Wallops Flight Facility. The guest speaker was Rear Adm. Seiko Okano, who leads the Naval Sea Systems Command Program Executive Office for integrated warfare systems.

The traditional Navy ceremony was a symbolic transfer of total responsibility and accountability to the new commanding officer. It included the center's color guard and sideboys, and a speech by Kristen Collins, the center's executive director.

Flanagan was commissioned through the Navy Reserve Officer Training Corps and graduated from North Carolina State University with a Bachelor of Science degree in aerospace engineering and a minor in military Studies.

He earned a Master of Science degree in astronautical engineering from the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, Calif., and has served on several sea tours aboard ships including the aircraft carrier USS Harry S. Truman.

A reception at the Rocket Club, the on-base NASA bar, followed the ceremony with on-site catering provided by Liv's Cafe & Deli in Exmore.

In brief remarks Holmes said he had worked to "eliminate barriers" to efficiency and productivity. He also welcomed Flanagan and the new commanding officer's family.

Holmes personally thanked Karen Cherrix, his outgoing executive assistant, for her hard work and caring for sailors at the center. The change of command ceremony was held on Cher-rix's last day with the Navy before she began work at NASA.

Cmdr. Richard Zabawa, executive officer of the center, was the master of ceremonies. Accomack County Supervisor Ron Wolff, whose district includes the center, also attended the change of command.

Wolff said later he has never missed one, dating to Capt. Eric L. Washam's 1990 change of command ceremony, which transferred the command to Capt. Ronald B. Moore.

Prior to arrival at the center, Flanagan's most recent assignment was completed at the Missile Defense Agency's Sea-Based Weapon Systems Program

Office in Dahlgren.

Flanagan is the 14th commanding officer at the center.

The Wallops Navy base also hosts a Navy Gateway Inn and Suites to support personnel and leisure guests.

It also is one of the few places on the Delmarva Peninsula with a Real-Time Automated Personnel Identification System, or RAPIDS, which issues common-access cards by appointment or for walk-ins.

The RAPIDS station enables active-duty military, family members, Department of Defense civilians, contractors, and military retirees to receive CAC or military identification cards.

Shore Library promotes National Library Card Sign-Up Month

Off the Shelf: News From Eastern Shore Public Library

Eastern Shore Public Library just changed its look. The traditional seagull logo has been replaced with a design that matches the modernization of library services. The rebranding of the ESPL system reflects the changes that have taken place in the past five years as the system has introduced new services and programs, responding to community needs.

The rollout of the rebranding is timed to promote library card registration with September being National Library Card Sign-Up Month. A core function of library services is to promote reading and provide access to online resources, many of which require an ESPL library card. Staff members want the new library card design to inspire reading and increase use of library resources.

Patrons may ask for the new card, whether replacing their existing one or setting up a new account, by visiting any of the four Eastern Shore of Virginia public libraries in Accomac, Cape Charles, Chincoteague, and Nassawadox.

Patrons who decide to get a new card to replace their current card should be sure to update the barcode number in any of the library's online resources that are used. This includes ShoreCat, Librista, Libby/Overdrive, Freading, HelpNow, JobNow, Universal Class, Rocket Languages, and Peterson's Career Prep.

Many of the library's online resources require a PIN, but if unsure of the current PIN, simply ask to reset the PIN while registering for the new card. For questions, call 757-787-3400 between Monday through Friday, from 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Nandua blanks 'Hannock

BY TED SHOCKLEY
Eastern Shore Post

If the first game is any indication, playing Nandua's football team could be a difficult task this season.

The Warriors overwhelmed Rappahannock High School on Friday night, 33-0, in the small Northern Neck town of Warsaw.

"A three-and-a-half hour drive," said first-year Nandua head coach Dennis McCall.

The win, he said, "made it nice coming back."

Tristan Williams scored three touchdowns to pace the Warriors (1-0), and the Nandua defense put together a shutout on the road.

Nazere Blake scored on a pass from quarterback Issac Stodghill and Zyreion Jackson scored the season's first touchdown on a three-yard run.

Stodghill's pass to Jason Ye on the first scoring drive set up the first touchdown and "got the drive going," said McCall.

McCall also saluted Keron Matthews, a two-way lineman who "did a great job for us on offense."

Defensively, twins Dahleal and Derrick Harmon, each playing defensive end on opposite sides of the line, had good games for Nandua.

Ye helped preserve the shutout with an interception at the end of the game during Rappahannock's final drive.

Nandua received a challenging early-season test Thursday when it hosted King William High School, the defending Class 2 state champions.

Arcadia's football celebrates after defeating Windsor, 42-31. The Firebirds won their first game of the season.

Arcadia gridders win at Windsor

BY TED SHOCKLEY
Eastern Shore Post

New season, new team, new focus, new result.

Arcadia High School's football team matched last year's win total in its first game of the season, downing home-standing Windsor, 42-31.

It was a cleansing victory for the Firebirds, who had a tough 2021 campaign marked by pandemic-related difficulties.

"Things are changing for the better," said fifth-year coach Alan Hall. "Last year was hard. COVID was bad."

Nazir Dorsey had three touchdowns for the Firebirds (1-0), and Hall credited the team's hard work during summer practice as a reason for the victory.

"We conditioned hard this summer," he said. "We were conditioned and ready."

Cooper Brock hauled in a touchdown pass from Bradley Hall, and Austin Farrow recovered a fumble in the end zone for a touchdown. Zuan Tull also had a touchdown for Arcadia.

Dorsey had 172 yards rushing and Brock had 126 yards on the ground for the Firebirds, who do not play this week.

Tony Dickerson had one sack and three tackles for loss, and Jacob Hall had two sacks, a fumble recovery, and three tackles for loss.

"It was a good game," said the coach.

Trey Fisher makes his next pitch in sports management

Every time Old Dominion University graduate Trey Fisher left the bullpen and stepped on mound for the Monarchs' baseball team, he had feelings of excitement and anxiousness.

Adolphus Ames

"After I threw a couple pitches and took some deep breaths, it was just me and the hitter," he said.

After completing his high school baseball career at Chincoteague High School, Fisher enjoyed a successful tenure pitching for ODU.

Fisher, son of Chuck and Kim Fisher of Temperanceville, played first base and outfield throughout middle and high school baseball. He was named player of the year for his district and conference in 2017.

Trey Fisher

"Around age 15 or 16 I realized I was better at pitching and switched to pitching in travel ball," he said.

Fisher's first year pitching at ODU was a learning experience.

"I learned a lot about myself freshman year and worked hard that summer," he said. "I transitioned from being a straight-over-the-top lefty by throwing in some sidearm and mixing up my looks."

ODU's pitching coach Michael Maron provided Fisher with a lot of information about proper pitching mechanics and training.

One of Fisher's favorite performances happened one weekend during his sophomore season. In a game at University of Texas at San Antonio, he came in on relief and pitched two hitless innings. The following night, he closed out the game again. A couple days later, the Monarchs traveled to Virginia Commonwealth University and he saved that game as well.

"I had three saves in four days," he said. "That was probably the best three-game stretch of my career."

Fisher is drawn to the competitive nature of the sport. "It's just me versus the hitter," he said. "I can decide the outcome of the game based on my performance."

He enjoys the mental aspects of the game, too.

"Baseball makes you think," he said. "Your mentality and how you carry yourself impacts how you play."

Fisher is pursuing a master's degree in sports management and working as an operations coordinator at the Hampton Roads Soccer Complex.

"I want to take a step away from baseball because it's all I've known and I want to experience life without baseball," he said.

"Eventually, I would like to work for the MLB as a players' manager or a manager of gameday operations. That's the ultimate end goal."

Vikes fall to Covenant

BY ADOLPHUS AMES

Eastern Shore Post

Broadwater Vikings eight-man varsity football returned to Exmore on Saturday, Aug. 27, but fell to Covenant, 36-18.

The first quarter was scoreless. In the second quarter, Broadwater quickly fell into a 14-0 hole.

A trick pass play by the Vikings led to a touchdown by Rufus Abbott right before the end of the half. In the second half, the Vikings continued to fight hard, but were unable to gain the lead.

Caleb McIntyre had two strong defensive plays in the third quarter, a blocked touchdown pass and an interception near the goal line.

Willie Petka had several good runs against Covenant's defensive line, including a rushing touchdown and a long carry that set up a rushing touchdown by quarterback Logan Hickman.

Hickman showed poise and good decision-making in the pocket all afternoon.

Hickman threw a touchdown pass to Petka near the end of the game.

Pompano catch is largest in state so far this year

A 4-pound, 8-ounce pompano caught by Annie Parks, of Winterville, is currently the largest of its species registered in the state in 2022. Parks was fishing for speckled trout in the Pocomoke Sound shallows, when the large silver-sided fish hit a piece of peeler crab.

Bill

Parks was fishing with Capt. Robert Marshall. The trophy-sized fish was weighed and registered for a Virginia Salt Water Tournament Citation Award at Captain Steve's Bait and Tackle on Aug. 21. Once the paperwork has been received and approved by the tournament office, the fish will easily exceed the current pompano state leader, a 3-pound, 13-ounce specimen caught in the surf off the Sandbridge section of Virginia Beach by Angel Villalpando.

Chincoteague

Captain Steve's Bait and Tackle reported that fishing has been good inside of Chincoteague Bay, with numerous flounder exceeding the 4-pound mark.

In addition to the flounder, small- to medium-sized croakers have been abundant. A larger class of flounder, sea bass, spadefish, triggerfish, and lots of small dolphin (mahi) are being caught over the ocean wrecks.

The shop weighed in a 52-pound citation wahoo for Bret Scull. Mahi catches have been made around the lobster pot and sea bass pot buoys. Sand mullet (whiting) spot, croakers, sharks, skates, and rays are among the species landed from the Assateague Island surf.

Wachapreague

Capt. Lindsay Paul, at Trident Tackle, reported "very good" flounder fishing out of Wachapreague. The best action continues to occur during the last of the flood (incoming) tide through the first of the ebb (outgoing) tide, when the water is at its coolest and clearest.

Berkley Gulp and live minnow combinations continue to be some of the most productive baits. The offshore wrecks have been producing only a "few" flounder and black sea bass, but lots of peanut dolphin (small mahi). Bluewater trolling action remains on the slow side, but deep dropping for tilefish and sea bass has been productive.

Amanda Manzella, at the Wachapreague Inn, told me that flounder and croaker fishing inside the inlet has been "great."

She said that customers have recently found some large flounder and mahi while fishing on the ocean wrecks.

Lower Shore

Dez Louie at Oceans East – Eastern Shore told me that even though we have just a couple more weeks left in the 2022 cobia season, the cobia bite seems to be on the increase.

Lots of fish are staging around the pilings of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel, as well as around the lower bay and inshore ocean buoys. Dan Bell recently registered a 59-inch cobia release for a citation.

Red drum are abundant west of Cape Charles and around the 9-Foot Shoal area of the bridge-tunnel.

Anglers fishing the submerged structures in the lower bay have found a mixed bag of sheepshead, tautog, and black drum. The majority of larger spadefish appear to have departed from the bay waters, but a population still resides around the Chesapeake Light Tower.

Small bluefish and Spanish mackerel are still being caught by trolling Clark Spoons as well as casting Got-Cha plugs to surface-breaking fish.

Keeper-sized flounder have been hitting Berkley Gulp Swimming Mullet along the Concrete Ships as well as under the little bridge. Puppy drum have been caught with peeler crab baits suspended under popping corks along the edge of the marshes on the seaside, while speckled trout and a few puppy drum have been caught inside some of the lower Shore bayside creeks.

Recent catches from the Kiptopeke State Park Pier include small croakers, spot, pinfish, sand mullet (whiting), ribbonfish, and small gray trout.

Jeb Brady, at Bailey's Bait & Tackle, said that the recent run of excellent sheepshead fishing continued to dominate the action through the week.

He added that anglers have been rewarded with fish weighing up to 13 pounds. Productive sheepshead locations included the Cell, the Cabbage Patch, and the bridge-tunnel. Holly Hubbard registered a 12-pound, 3-ounce sheepshead for a citation.

Red drum fishing was described as "solid" for anglers targeting the large fish during the evenings from buoy 42-A down to 38-A. Brady said that the cobia fishing has slowed, but he expects more fish to be seen as they migrate down the bay.

The most productive recent cobia action has resulted by casting live eels to fish on the surface. Speckled trout action is improving on the bayside from Hungars to Plantation Creek, as well as on the seaside out of Oyster. Both casting artificials and fishing live baits have been producing fish.

Richard Lee Hubbard recently weighed in a 5-pound, 8-ounce speckled trout for a citation. Recent catches off the Cape Charles Pier have consisted mostly of spot and ribbonfish.

The writer was the first Eastern Shore resident to achieve Virginia Saltwater Master Angler status. He has been named Virginia Saltwater Angler of the Year and the Virginia Saltwater Release Angler of the Year. He also has won Virginia Press Association awards for his columns.

Born Feb. 10, 1976, he was the oldest son of William S. and Lola Ruediger Custis, of Onancock. Stewart graduated from Broadwater Academy, then attended the University of Richmond where he received a B.S. degree in accounting and finance. ## Carol Beth Kaiser

Mrs. Carol Beth Kaiser, 67, beloved wife of Brian Kenneth Kaiser and a resident of Onancock, on the Eastern Shore of Virginia, passed away Saturday, Aug. 20, 2022, at Sentara Norfolk General Hospital in Norfolk.

Born Jan. 27, 1955, in Philadelphia, Carol was the daughter of the late Edward S. Bartlett and the late Elizabeth Farrell Rambo. Carol was a long-time resident of Chalfont, Pa., before relocating to Virginia in 2016. She was a registered nurse for 42 years, and her career included working at the Albert Einstein Medical Center in Philadelphia, and most recently at the Doylestown Surgery Center, Doylestown, Pa. In addition to caring for others, she created and maintained a loving home for her family. She was the center of so many worlds and quietly touched many hearts.

Carol enjoyed gardening, boating, the beach, baking, reading, and wine tasting. She loved dogs and was talented at perceiving and understanding their minds and needs. Carol enjoyed sunsets, especially those over the water seen from her home with Brian by her side. Sunsets, she would say, “are no two alike,” and she would share pictures of them with her family and close friends both near and faraway. She was a quiet, kind, and gentle person, always giving of herself whether it be a friend or a stranger, never asking for anything in return.

In addition to her husband, she is survived by her two children, Krystin Leah Conklin and husband, Matt, of Howell, N.J., and Matthew Brian Kaiser and girlfriend, Alex Sharer, of Philadelphia; two grandchildren, Ben and Aubrey Conklin; her sister, Leslie Herman, and husband, Buck, of Brookville, Pa.; brother, Edward Bartlett, of Agoura, Calif., and brother, Scott Bartlett, and his wife, Karina, of Clinton, Wash.; her mother-in-law, Barbara Ann Kaiser, of Warminster, Pa.; several nieces and nephews; and Brian’s extended family. In addition to her parents, she was predeceased by her father-in-law, Kenneth A. Kaiser.

A private celebration of Carol’s life will be held in the future, both here on the Shore and in Pennsylvania, with information shared at that time.

The family asks friends to show their appreciation of Carol by supporting her caring and passion for dogs, by donating to Dogs Deserve Better at <https://www.dogsdeservebetteresva.org/donate>

Douglas Merle Stiles

Mr. Douglas Merle Stiles, 51, a resident of Cape Charles, passed away Friday, Aug. 26, 2022, at Riverside Shore Memorial Hospital, Onancock.

Not all men take the same path in life. For some, the way may be simple and peaceful. For others, they may find the path will rise and fall throughout their lives. And yet for some, life is a series of challenges and of perpetual hope, with peace of mind and heart seemingly always just out of reach.

Douglas had a life filled by some of those challenges, but he was always surrounded by a family who loved him without judgement or pause. His laughter, quick wit, and joy of cooking will be missed by all who knew and loved him, most especially by those of his caring family, Loretta, Jim, Nicole, DJ, Mimi, Brock, Karen, and Scott. Douglas is now in a place where he has finally found peace and happiness; where he is free at last.

A Celebration of Life service will be held at a later date. In lieu of flowers, memorial contributions may be made to NAMI Coastal Virginia, 291 Independence Blvd., Suite 542, Virginia Beach, VA 23462-2977, or at <https://www.namicoastalvirginia.org>

Online condolences may be sent to the family at www.doughtyfuneralhome.com

Arrangements are made by Wilkins-Doughty Funeral Home in Cape Charles.

Chess association looks for help across the board

The Eastern Shore Scholastic Chess Association (ESSCA) is seeking coaches and mentors for school students as it restarts after-school chess clubs and plans further expansions into adjacent counties and through community organizations. The restart follows a long hiatus due to COVID-19 shutdowns.

The ESSCA evolved from a club formed at Nandua Middle School about 12 years ago. Its purpose is to have a prepackaged chess program for school-age students. The program and curriculum are consistent across the schools and clubs in resource-thin areas such as the Eastern Shore.

Anyone who can read can easily teach beginners how to play chess from the guides on the ESSCA website. The secure, online, self-paced www.Chesskid.com (created for students by www.Chess.com) is central to the effort. It provides many of the lessons supporting the ESSCA curriculum. It also gives opportunities for playing chess against students worldwide at any time, and in online tournaments.

Accomack Public School District adopted the program late in 2018, setting a goal of a club in each of its 11 schools. Nandua and Arcadia middle and high schools and Kegotank Elementary School had clubs formed and operating when the pandemic shut down all such activities. The Melfa Monarchs Club, at Eastern Shore Community College (ESCC), is also a part of the system.

Each club must have a faculty sponsor from the host school or community organization. A second coach for each club is generally needed to develop the skills of those who are no longer beginners. If the club cannot provide that coach, ESSCA must develop the resources to do so.

“Further expansion means we must grow the supply of coaches, especially for kids above the beginner level,” said Alan Silverman recently at the Mary N. Smith Cultural Enrichment Center. The Eastern Shore Boys & Girls Club has formed a chess group under the sponsorship of board member Javon Smith, with material and coaching support from ESSCA. Similar after-school programs are at the Pocomoke City, Md., YMCA and the Davis Center in Parksley. Expansion into Northampton County would also require coaches from that area.

Coaches receive stipends to compensate for the time they invest in teaching chess to youth.

ESSCA continues to be supported by the Landsberger Foundation and the Accomack County School System. The Eastern Shore Scholastic Chess website states the school system “recognizes the academic and social benefits of chess to the student, and the consistency of life-skills learned in chess with both STEM and Virginia Employment Readiness Skills educational objectives.”

For more information about becoming a coach for kids, email execdir@easternshorechess.org or go to www.easternshorechess.org

Health Matters Hurricane preparedness starts now

Courtesy of Virginia Department of Health

It is best to prepare for a hurricane well before the start of hurricane season, which runs from June 1 to Nov. 30. Here are several steps to take to keep safe this hurricane season.

- Have an emergency kit prepared with supplies for home and vehicle. Review the extra items to pack in the kit and other considerations due to COVID-19 at <https://www.cdc.gov/disasters/hurricanes/covid-19/prepare-for-hurricane.html>

- Download the FEMA app to receive alerts and use a NOAA weather radio to stay informed.

- Know your zone. Evacuation zones designated A through D are in place across coastal Virginia. In the event of a storm or other emergency, residents may be directed to evacuate depending on tides, storm intensity, path, and other factors.

Understand weather terminology

Hurricanes are classified into five categories based on the predicted wind speed and the potential to cause damage:

- Category One: winds 74-95 mph
- Category Two: winds 96-110 mph
- Category Three: winds 111-129 mph
- Category Four: winds 130-156 mph
- Category Five: winds more than 157 mph

During hurricane season, storms may be tracked at <http://www.nhc.noaa.gov/>

Hurricane Warning: A hurricane warning is issued when a hurricane with sustained winds of 74 mph or higher is expected. Because hurricane preparedness activities become difficult once winds reach tropical storm force, the warning is issued 36 hours in advance of the anticipated onset of tropical-storm-force winds. The warning can remain in effect when dangerously high water or a combination of dangerously high water and waves continue, even though winds may be less than hurricane force.

Hurricane Watch: A hurricane watch is issued when storm conditions appear possible in the warning area within the next 48 hours. The hurricane watch is issued 48 hours in advance of the anticipated onset of tropical storm force winds.

Check the emergency supply kit

Before hurricane season begins, check the contents of the emergency kits in the car and home and replace items that may have expired. A supply checklist for supply kits is available at <https://www.vdh.virginia.gov/content/uploads/sites/6/2016/01/DisasterChecklist-1.pdf> Don't forget to prepare pets for an emergency.

Reduce outdoor hazards

Debris, such as signs, roofing material, siding, and small items left outside, can cause injury and damage property due to strong winds from a hurricane. Before the storm be sure to:

Bring in lawn furniture, garbage, recycling carts, and other items that are not tied down and could become airborne.

Have trees and shrubs professionally pruned before a hurricane approaches to reduce the risk of flying debris during a storm.

Make an evacuation plan

Before a hurricane, it is important to know the evacuation routes in the area should evacuation become necessary due to flooding or a storm surge. Discuss the evacuation plan with loved ones, especially if family resides in a low-lying area or within the greatest potential path of the storm. It is important to find out if the area that may be prone to flooding due to storm surge.

Mandatory Evacuation Order: Imminent threat to life and property exists. Individuals must relocate and seek refuge in an inland, non-evacuation area.

Voluntary Evacuation Order: A threat to life and property may be imminent. Evacuation is not required, but would be advantageous, particularly for tourists, the elderly, and those with special needs.

If a hurricane warning is issued for the area or residents are directed to evacuate the area:

- Take only essential items.
- If there is time, turn off the gas, electricity, and water.
- Disconnect appliances to reduce the likelihood of electrical shock when power is restored.
- Make sure an automobile's emergency kit is ready.
- Follow the designated evacuation routes — others may be blocked — and expect heavy traffic.
