Closing the books on a career among them

By Carol Vaughn

Cara Burton, the bridge-building, ever-smiling leader of the Eastern Shore's regional library system, is turning the page on her career.

The director of the Eastern Shore Public Library and the Shore's regional library system since January 2016, she led the library through the COVID-19 pandemic and the building of a new library in Parksley — the latter still ongoing.

The library board of trustees will begin the search for a new director as soon as possible, according to a press release.

Burton said she plans to continue living on the Shore after retirement and to volunteer and enjoy "the Shore life."

"Cara's contributions to our library system are invaluable. While we reluctantly accept her decision,

Northampton earns plum band grant

By Stefanie Jackson

Northampton teacher Brad Ford has done the improbable: Not only did he revive the middle and high school marching band, but on the first attempt he received a grant of more than $30,000 for musical instruments — even though some applicants spend years on the grant's waiting list.

Brad Ford

"In the band world, this is a very coveted grant many band directors dream of getting, and getting it on the first time is like hitting a bull's-eye from a half-court shot," Ford said.

Residents launch petition to ban menhaden fishing

By Stefanie Jackson

A petition to stop corporation Omega Protein from sending boats into the Chesapeake Bay to fish for menhaden has gained more than 1,000 signatures.

Christi Medice, of Silver Beach, where thousands of the small, herring-like fish washed up dead in early July following a net break, has been going out into the community raising awareness of the detriments of the menhaden industry and collecting signatures for the petition.

She also started an online petition that has more than 6,000 signatures and hopes the petitions will capture the attention of Gov. Glenn Youngkin.

Menhaden prefer to eat algae and plankton, and as filter feeders they generally are not caught for human consumption. Instead, menhaden caught through "reduction fishing" are reduced or processed into products such as fish oil health supplements, which provide omega-3 fatty acids, and fishmeal, a protein source for farm animals, inspiring the name "Omega Protein."

When menhaden eat algae, the fish help clean the bay by preventing the formation of algal blooms that cause problems like blocking sunlight needed by growing sea grasses. When algal blooms die, the decomposition process removes oxygen from the water, which other marine life needs.

Menhaden also are a major food source for fish like striped bass and birds such as osprey.

Medice is an administrator of the Facebook group "Menhaden - Little Fish, Big Deal!" whose members say that menhaden are being overfished in the Chesapeake Bay on account of Omega Protein, to the detriment of other marine life and the bay itself.

The Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission, formed by 15 states and chartered by Congress in 1942 to manage fishery resources, issued a press release Aug. 4 stating that the menhaden stock "is not overfished."

However, this assessment relates to the entire East Coast, from Maine to Florida, not for one specific region like the Chesapeake Bay.

State Sen. Lynwood Lewis called for a local study at an August meeting he had requested, which included Del. Robert Bloxom, Northampton County officials, and a member of the Virginia Marine Resource Commission, which manages the state's menhaden fishing industry as of 2020.

The Atlantic States Marine Fisheries Commission determined the total amount of menhaden permitted to be caught in the 15 states on the East Coast between 2021 and 2022 was about 194,000 metric tons.

According to ASMFC, nearly 79% of that quota, or around 151,000 metric tons of menhaden, was caught in Virginia waters, including the Chesapeake Bay.

The Theodore Roosevelt Conservation Partnership, which supports American hunting and fishing, states that the Chesapeake Bay acts as a nursery for 70% to 90% of all the striped bass on the Atlantic coast, and the diet of a striped bass consists of 30% menhaden.

TRCP and dozens of other conservation and recreational fishing groups signed a June 14 letter to Gov. Youngkin contending that menhaden are overfished, and that is why fewer striped bass are being caught by sport fishermen.

Sen. Lewis suggested menhaden regulations to VMRC such as requiring menhaden lost in fish spills to count toward annual quotas, prohibiting menhaden fishing less than a mile from shore, and requiring that fish spills are cleaned up within a designated period of time.

But those measures will not go far enough for at least 1,000 people who signed the petition to ban menhaden reduction fishing in the Chesapeake Bay.

Medice continues to seek more signatures for the petition and is recruiting volunteers on Facebook to help the cause.

we wish her the best in her well-earned retirement. We are glad she is staying on the Shore,” said Joyce Holland, board of trustees chairperson.

Circulation increased 29% during Burton’s tenure, although she said this week the modern library “cannot be measured by library card registration, as many of our services do not require the use of a library card; nor does circulation adequately measure success as using the library does not always involve checking out a print” item.

“The value of the library and the changes taken place are measured in other ways, such as the partnerships we develop, the improvement in the quality of life of our residents, and even just a better awareness of what the public library offers, to name just a few,” Burton said, adding, “I feel successful if someone is now less afraid to come to the library; that it is less intimidating, but rather more welcoming.”

A Shore native

Burton, a Northampton County native, was raised in Nassawadox. She is the daughter of the late Drs. William and Mary Ann Burton and a graduate of Northampton High School.

She attended the College of William & Mary and graduated with a bachelor’s degree from Syracuse University, where she also earned a Masters in Library and Information Science degree.

Burton was a public library director in the Syracuse, N.Y., area more than

Cara Burton

15 years and was executive director of the Danville Museum of Fine Arts and History in Danville, Va., prior to returning to the Shore to accept the library director position.

Burton became director soon after the town of Parksley initiated the process of purchasing a former grocery store, with plans for it to be renovated and expanded to serve as the new regional library, replacing the 1965 building in Accomac.

A 2009 study found the Accomac building met just eight of 24 state standards for public libraries and that it was half the recommended size for the population it serves.

In 2018, library trustees and Accomack County approved a memorandum of understanding that included providing for the county to contribute $2 million toward the new, $5 million library, which also was funded through $1.5 million in state funds, along with $1.5 million raised through a capital campaign, donations, and grants.

Ground was broken for the new facility Oct. 23, 2019, with hundreds of attendees and then-Gov. Ralph Northam among the speakers.

Initially expected to open in early 2021, the new facility’s completion has been delayed by pandemic-related and other issues. It is expected to be completed in October.

Burton said about the delay in opening the new facility, “I am sad that there are many ways we could have better helped the Shore if we had our new facility up and running when it was supposed to be, right before the pandemic.”

Still, she said, “I am very proud, however, that my staff and I have done fantastic things, despite the construction delays, that have improved the quality of life of our citizens.”

The new library will be 20,837 square feet, compared to the current 11,500 square-foot building.

The Accomac building will be transferred to Accomack County as part of the agreement.

A regional success

The library system, which celebrated its 60th anniversary in 2018, is among the longest-standing instances of regional cooperation between the Shore’s two counties.

According to the library website, Northampton and Accomack officials voted in 1958 to create the regional Eastern Shore Public Library system, with both counties sharing operating costs, after the library was initiated the previous year as a demonstration project by the state.

The first library was in the town of Accomac’s community hall.

Construction then started on a new library in Accomac, built at a cost of $60,000.

In 1965, after eight years of fundraising, the Accomac library opened. An addition was completed in 1984.

A bookmobile was added in 1971.

Cape Charles Memorial Library, which started in 1919, joined the regional system in 1979, followed by Chincoteague Island Library, which opened in 1995, and Northampton Free Library, in Nassawadox, which opened in 2006.

Burton said her retirement “has been long in planning,” adding, “That is why I returned to Virginia in 2013. There are many things I want to do yet while I am still young and active. The responsibilities of this position do not allow me to be on vacation for extended periods nor take a sabbatical. My retirement allows new leadership to carry forth the board’s plans with new energy. It has truly been a privilege to return to my home place to help lead the building of a new regional library and work to bring the library up to modern standards.”

Accomplishments during Burton’s tenure include fiscal accountability improvements, increased library visibility and activity in the community, increasing the awareness of the value of libraries and literacy in the community, and developing staff capacity, according to the release.

Additionally, Burton was involved in the Eastern Shore Regional Library and Heritage Center capital project and assisting the Eastern Shore Public Library Foundation with fundraising.

Belle Haven man pleads guilty to 2019 murder

By Nancy Drury Duncan

A Belle Haven man charged with first-degree murder in connection with a drug deal has reached a plea agreement with prosecutors in Accomack Circuit Court. Nyxavier Riekiem Snead, 20, pleaded guilty to the lesser charge of second-degree murder of Alvin Lee “Derek” Rogers Jr.

Snead pleaded guilty also to attempted robbery and use of a firearm in the murder. He was 17 at the time of the incident.

A felony firearms charge was not prosecuted in accordance with the agreement. The agreement recommends a total of 11 years of active prison time with more time suspended.

Last month, co-defendant Bronta Ames, 26, of Melfa, pleaded guilty to first-degree murder also in a plea agreement.

Judge W. Revell Lewis III said he would delay accepting that agreement until seeing the results of a presentence investigation report. Ames is set to be sentenced in November. If accepted, the agreement recommends a total of 28 years in prison.

On May 29, 2019, police were called to a Boggs Road address in the Painter area for a report of gunshots. The police found Rogers in his van dead with gunshot wounds in his neck and torso.

Accomack Commonwealth’s Attorney Spencer Morgan told the court that Rogers was called to that address to make a marijuana sale. Rogers was shot by Ames, who was in front of the vehicle and fired through the windshield as he backed out of a driveway.

Morgan said he believed Snead also had a gun and was standing beside the driver’s side door.

A suspect from the beginning, Snead denied any involvement when first questioned about the crime. His co-defendants implicated him and he finally admitted to his participation in the crime. He is set to be sentenced in December.

Army Corps looking at strategies on Chincoteague flooding

By Carol Vaughn

An Army Corps of Engineers team visited Chincoteague Aug. 19 and heard a presentation about a planned study of the inlet off the southern end of the island, according to Chincoteague Town Manager Mike Tolbert.

Tolbert spoke about the visit during Monday's Town Council meeting.

The team included Col. Brian Hallberg, commander of the Corps' Norfolk District, along with Chief of Planning and Policy Michelle Hamor and others.

The visit was to see firsthand effects resulting from the widening of the inlet.

The team toured Mariner's Point, which overlooks the inlet, and neighborhoods affected by flooding.

The study is to understand the inlet's recent changes and ultimately to come up with strategies to address erosion and flooding on Chincoteague's southern end.

Representatives from Chincoteague National Wildlife Refuge and NASA Wallops Flight Facility attended to add input from Chincoteague's federal neighbors, Tolbert said.

The locality is required to provide half of the $3 million cost of the federal study. That match was approved by the General Assembly in the fiscal year 2023 budget.

The Corps plans to submit the study for funding in its fiscal year 2024 budget, Tolbert said.

Chincoteague water supply

Tolbert during a quarterly meeting with NASA Wallops Flight Facility officials was told funding to relocate Chincoteague's wells was dropped from NASA's current funding request.

"Since then, I've had discussions with staff members of Rep. Luria's office and I had a conversation with a staff member from Sen. Warner's office, who are trying their best to still get it included this year," Tolbert said.

"Barring that, they will be looking for a legislative vehicle for next year," Tolbert wrote in his report to council.

"I also related to them that we were very interested in extending the time frame from five to 10 years" for developing a new water supply, "as well as making the language more general to include desalinization as well as well relocation," Tolbert said Monday.

The proposed legislation would provide up to $14 million to relocate wells that supply the town's water, after per- and polyfluoroalkyl substances (PFAS) were found in the water several years ago. The wells are located on NASA property.

Since then, NASA installed a filtration system for the town's water supply.

ARPA projects update

Chincoteague received nearly $3 million in federal funds as result of the American Rescue Plan Act.

Of that amount, the Town Council has approved three projects, according to Tolbert: purchase of new firefighting air compressor equipment for the Chincoteague Volunteer Fire Company, at a cost of $53,750; a local match for a grant to buy an ambulance for the fire company, at a cost of $90,000; and water line replacement on Cropper Street, at a cost of $128,000.

That leaves around $2.7 million for other projects.

A committee appointed by the Town Council to recommend projects for funding "has discussed at length using the remaining funds for acquisition of a limited capacity sewage plant and design and construction of a collection and conveyance system for that plant," according to Tolbert.

The funds must be obligated by Dec. 31, 2024, and spent by Dec. 31, 2026.

Old firehouse rentals

The town made a small profit last year by renting spaces in the former firehouse, which it now owns.

In fiscal year 2022, the town received $32,085 in rental income and spent $20,302 to operate and maintain the building.

Only one space, the former ambulance bay, is not currently rented.

~ Band ~

The Mr. Holland's Opus Foundation is named after the 1965 movie ("Mr. Holland's Opus"), about a composer who becomes a high school music teacher and finds a new purpose in life.

The film's composer started the foundation to support the future of music education, and the grants for musical instruments are highly sought-after.

Over the last four years, the Northampton marching band "exploded" in growth, according to Ford, reaching 100 members.

Ford recognized the need for new equipment. There were more students than instruments, so some high school students had to share instruments with middle school students, passing the instruments along in school between classes or on the athletic field between performances.

Furthermore, 17% of the instruments had sustained irreparable damage from years of use.

The application process for the Mr.

Holland's Opus Foundation instrument grant was competitive. Only 49 schools received a grant last year, Ford said.

At least 65% of a school's student population must be economically disadvantaged to qualify for the grant, and Ford had to fill out a 21-page application and complete a two-hour interview.

After about a month of waiting, Ford received an email notifying him of the grant award.

The Northampton marching band will get 18 new instruments: four trumpets, four clarinets, three flutes, three alto saxophones, two trombones, one baritone saxophone, and one double French horn, a retail value of nearly $31,000.

Goals of the Mr. Holland's Opus Foundation grant include giving economically disadvantaged students access to school music programs, reducing instrument sharing to give students more practice time, and replacing old and irreparable instruments to enhance student engagement.

The foundation states that students who learn and play music have better attendance records, higher academic achievements, higher graduation rates, and fewer suspensions compared to their school's total student population.

Belle Haven man wins Publishers Clearing House

By Stefanie Jackson

Holland Howard Wilgus Jr., of Belle Haven, enters the Publishers Clearing House Sweepstakes every day but was still surprised when the Prize Patrol showed up at his house on Thursday with a check for $10,000.

"I play every single day and I never expected to win," Wilgus said. His advice for anyone in doubt that real people win PCH prizes is "just keep playing."

His husband, Robert Bash, who works at Walmart in Pocomoke City, Md., was sitting on a tractor getting ready to cut grass when he saw three vehicles pull into the driveway.

As soon as he saw a man approaching carrying a big certificate with the recognizable gold PCH emblem, Bash went inside to fetch his partner without giving away the surprise at the front door.

Wilgus won his choice of a trip for two to New York City or the cash value of the trip, $10,000. He didn't have to think long before he decided to take the money and said he could use it to fix his car.

"This is killer," he said.

Howie Guja, of PCH, who awarded the prize, said every prize winner he has visited has opted for the money, because the winner can spend it on anything and doesn't need the funds upfront to pay the taxes on the prize.

Wilgus said he enters the PCH drawings online every day on his phone, and he once won an iPod Touch, but this is his first time winning a Weekly Grand Prize.

Now that he has won a big prize, he doesn't have to stop playing. He can continue to enter the PCH Sweepstakes every day and try to win more prizes, Guja said.

Publishers Clearing House was founded in 1953 as a magazine subscription agency, but today it's an interactive media company that offers a broad range of products, services, and digital entertainment.

Anyone can enter to win the PCH Sweepstakes every day by visiting its official website, www.pch.com

PCH also has an app with games to play and more chances to win prizes.

Prizes are funded by PCH company revenues and the drawings and games are always free. PCH never asks winners to pay money to claim prizes.

More than 2.2 million people follow

PCH on Facebook to stay updated on sweepstakes news and watch winning moments like Wilgus's.

Town Council approves cigarette tax, updates meals tax

By Carol Vaughn

The Chincoteague Town Council Monday unanimously approved an ordinance imposing a tax of 40 cents per pack on cigarettes sold in the town.

No one spoke at a public hearing about the tax.

The tax, which takes advantage of a new state law allowing localities to charge a tax on cigarettes, goes into effect Jan. 1, 2023.

The town will join the Chesapeake Bay Cigarette Tax Board, which for an administrative fee of 5% takes care of collecting the tax, enforcing the ordinance, and other administrative functions.

Accomack County recently enacted a cigarette tax of 10 cents per pack and joined the Chesapeake Bay Cigarette Tax Board.

Nine of the 10 current members of the Chesapeake Bay Tax Board charge the maximum the state allows, 40 cents, with Accomack County being the exception, Town Manager Mike Tolbert told the council.

The council also approved an ordinance change related to the meals tax.

The ordinance requires a minimum of 10% of all meals tax collections to be dedicated to tourism each year.

For the past several years, that requirement has been satisfied by giving 5% to the Chincoteague Center and 5% to the Chincoteague Chamber of Commerce, as recommended each year by the mayor's meals tax committee.

In fiscal year 2022, distributions to the chamber of commerce were halted in March because revenues exceeded the amount budgeted for the line item, according to a memo from Tolbert to the Town Council and mayor.

At its Aug. 11 meeting the ordinance committee proposed the ordinance be revised to eliminate the meals tax committee and to codify that 5% of meals tax collections be distributed to the chamber of commerce and 5% be distributed to the town's Center fund, which helps pay for operation of the Chincoteague Center.

THE PAPER'S POSITION

Schools, parents bring us hope

There has been much hand-wringing about the state of education. Test scores show remote school caused by the coronavirus pandemic stunted academic growth. In some places, academic content is under fire as politicians voice displeasure over suspected ideological agendas in classrooms. And just about everywhere, there are not enough teachers.

But there is so much about the first day of school that brings us hope. There is hope in the new beginning for students, the freshly waxed hallways in schools, and the smell of notebook paper and erasers. There is hope in the faces of children as they discover — because education, by and large, is a process of discovery.

Parents, too, should view the start of a school year as a time to recommit to the important and necessary role of the attentive parent. For that we are hopeful, as well.

Parental involvement is critical to a child's academic success. These days, "taking back our schools" is a familiar mantra among parents who disagree with subject matter and want to be more involved. But parents and teachers always should be on the same team and not on opposite sides of an issue as important as education.

The most important parental involvement, however, takes place every night when children are asked about their homework. The most important parental involvement involves helping children study for tests. The most important parental involvement happens when school work and school discipline are reinforced at home.

Parents and other family who are active in the lives of school-aged children can help our students make advances even as public education faces challenges. It will take a premium level of involvement. Our children deserve no less.

Reads the Post in the bathtub

To the editor:

I wanted to let you know how much I appreciate the Eastern Shore Post and your dedication to giving readers a wonderful communication tool.

It has actual paper that can be touched and turned by the hands, rustling pages that can be heard by the ears, a unique smell that can be inhaled by the nose, and printed words and photos that can be gazed upon by the eyes.

I've always read it, page-by-page, even legal ads. And I can read it in the bathtub without fear of destroying some expensive device.

I also wanted to express my disappointment about the Osprey-Eyed readers contest being discontinued.

I know the new owners are revamping and creating a new look, and I hope they will give us even more news about our local government and what's going on in our communities.

Guest columns and letters

The Eastern Shore Post welcomes your letters and guest columns. Letters have no more than 350 words. Guest columns have no more than 500 words.

Letters and columns must include a phone number and a town of residence for verification. They must not have been submitted to or published by any other media.

Letters and guest columns may be edited. It is preferred that letters and guest columns refer to Eastern Shore Post content or Eastern Shore of Virginia issues. No more than one letter or column per person will be printed during a 90-day period.

But in defense of the contest, I know it caused folks to actually read more of the paper and become more engaged. Perhaps consider a monthly contest instead of the weekly one, and give those gracious sponsors a break in providing the rewards.

With or without the contest, I will remain a faithful fan.

Luria has willingness to help Shore

To the editor:

In Don Ruthig's letter to the editor ("Don't thank Luria — thank your children," letters, Sept. 2) he criticized U.S. Rep. Elaine Luria for supporting the Inflation Reduction Act because he thinks it will increase the national debt. However, all the reports and analyses state that it will reduce debt by $100 billion over next 10 years.

This will be accomplished by reducing Medicare cost for some drugs, increasing taxes on certain incomes of companies with over a $1 billion in income, and increasing tax collections, but most likely not with armed agents! And if you pay

Remembering Stewart Custis and a performance for the ages

More than 29 years ago, Stewart Custis had the best individual pitching performance I've ever seen.

The afternoon was hot and airless — and as humid as an armpit — when Broadwater Academy traveled to Isle of Wight Academy on May 18, 1993, for the first round of the independent school playoffs.

Broadwater was supposed to lose to the heavily favored home team. Custis didn't let it happen.

He pitched 11 high-pressure innings — the seven scheduled innings and four extra frames. He allowed only eight hits and just one run against the second-ranked team in the state.

Broadwater scored three times in the top of the 11th to break a 1-1 tie, and Custis closed out homestanding Isle of Wight in the bottom of the inning.

I was covering the game. I think of it and Custis every time I see a stellar pitching effort.

"It might have been a great job, but it wasn't as good as Stewart Custis that day in '93," I always say.

Custis died unexpectedly last month at the age of 46. He was an accountant and lived in Wilmington, N.C.

Custis had a lot to be proud of — a great family, a wonderful wife and children, a successful career, and a degree in accounting and finance from the University of Richmond.

His obituary in last week's Eastern Shore Post also mentioned his accomplishments as an athlete, and that's how I remember him.

Tall and long-limbed, Custis was a big contributor on some talented Broadwater basketball teams. He was an excellent outside shooter and well-schooled in many other facets of the game.

His high forehead and furrowed brow gave him an aura of intensity and seriousness — almost a scowl — on the court.

But he left his mark on my memory with his ability on the baseball diamond.

Custis was finishing his junior year 29 years ago when Broadwater's baseball team was finishing its best season in school history.

The Vikings qualified for the state tournament when the team swept a doubleheader from Ryan Academy. Travis Fulk spun a two-hitter to get the win in the first game and Neil Gillis earned the win in relief in the second game.

Then it was Custis' turn in the playoff opener. Eleven innings is a lot for any pitcher, but the late Kenny Collins, who coached Broadwater, always put players first and made sure his pitcher was feeling good as the game increased in length.

In the taut, tense extra frames, the tall Custis seemed to stand even taller, rising above the situation and competition.

He kept going out to the mound inning after inning to finish what he started.

In the bottom of the eighth inning, Custis worked out of a two-on, two-out jam. In the ninth inning, with the bases loaded and two outs, he struck out the next batter.

In the top of the 11th, Scott Taylor drove in David Elliott and Ben Willis with a two-out triple, giving Broadwater the lead for good.

Custis and batterymate Matt Stamm then held Isle of Wight scoreless for the final three outs.

It was exquisite, well-played baseball and a delight to see unfold — a memorable pitching effort and a game for the ages.

Days later, Broadwater's baseball team lost in the state final four, played at Old Dominion University. It had a final record of 14-5, and Custis led the Eastern Shore with seven wins.

Several years ago Custis sent me a copy of the article I wrote about his great game and we exchanged notes about it. It was meaningful for me to communicate with him about the game, years later.

Like many others, I was crestfallen to hear of Custis' passing. And his athletic accomplishments pale in magnitude to the pain and sorrow of his death, which is a tragedy in full.

Stewart Custis died too young. A remarkable and gritty pitching performance almost three decades ago is left to speak for him.

To me, it will always speak loudly.

your taxes, as most of us do, no worry about getting caught.

Now you are quite right, this act does little or nothing to reduce inflation, and the title is misleading. The politics of naming bills and adding many layers is common practice on both sides of the aisle. Luria would do well to be clearer about that.

A worthy comparison of this act would be to the 2017 Tax Cuts and Jobs Act. It will increase the debt by $1-2 trillion! It has some tax breaks for the middle class families but it provided the most help to those with annual incomes of more the $1 million and will eventually increase the tax debt for those making less than $75,000. Children and grandchildren not so safe from that one.

Luria's announcement of the grant of $1 million for Northampton for the purchase of emergency vehicles and repairs to school air conditioning: Of course she is using it to show how she has an awareness of and willingness to help the Eastern Shore. You're saying Delegate Robert Bloxom doesn't remind his constituents of how he has helped the Eastern Shore at election time?

'Look where we are today'

To the editor,

It is very sad how far we have come in the wrong direction in this country ("Don't have 'blindness' about others' rights," letters, Aug. 26). Our high schools and colleges have been completely infiltrated by humanism and secularism.

John Dewey and the Humanist Manifesto in the late 1930s have accomplished their goals. Remove God from the public domain, send out teachers from Columbia College (University) and elsewhere, and teach evolution (a fundamental tenant of Humanism).

We now have around 60,000,000 fundamentally illiterate people in this country (cannot read or write past the fourth-grade level). U.S. History and the constitution have been so twisted and lied about that people can say whatever they feel about such things.

The First Amendment does not say "separate church and state." It says "Congress shall make no laws respecting the establishment of religion or prohibiting the free exercise thereof.

At least four of the colonies had established religions and all had guidelines regarding taxes and religion regarding the subject when the Constitution was adopted. It was the federal legislature that was restricted in their dealings with religion.

Go back and read what the colonies wrote about as they were formed. It was required that they profess their belief in God and Christianity when seeking office. Every charter as every state became a part of the United States thanks God and goes on from there.

It wasn't until 1962, when the Supreme Court removed prayer from our public schools, that the First Amendment became twisted around from its intent. The next year the Bible was removed.

Look where we are today.

The dirty, durable internal combustion engine

If the internal combustion engine is such a dirty creation, poisoning the environment and warming the planet, why is this 200-year-old technology currently powering 2 billion vehicles (cars, trucks, trains, ships) worldwide, representing 99.8% of global transportation?

David Lozell Martin

Answer: So far, there's no alternative that matches all the benefits of the ICE (internal combustion engine).

The ICE is durable, long-lasting, and fueled by gasoline that packs more stored energy per pound than any other fuel.

The energy in gasoline was created millions of years ago. The gasoline is simply storing this energy. For an electric vehicle, energy must be both created and stored. It's that electric battery storage that takes up so much space and weight.

A gallon of gasoline weighing 6 pounds will supply about 120,000 Btu of energy. To supply this amount of energy, the modern lithium-ion battery would be 100 times larger in volume and weight.

The average range of a modern electric vehicle is 230 miles; the average ICE car has a range nearly double that. If your ICE vehicle runs out of gas, you can walk to a gas station or call a roadside service, get a couple gallons, and be on your way. Your electric car out of power will have to be towed.

Also, the recharging infrastructure is primitive compared to gasoline availability. You can jump in your gas jalopy and drive across the U.S.A. with little thought of where or how to refuel. In an electric vehicle, you will have to plan carefully to make it from charging station to charging station, will have to avoid out-of-the-way places with no charging stations, and will have to wait from half an hour to 12 hours to get your car recharged.

Another concern with electric vehicles is the lithium, cobalt, and other precious metals needed for the batteries. Many of these metals are mined in ways that destroy the environment and exploit workers in remote areas.

And talk about sticker shock! The average price for a new gas-powered car hit an all-time high of $48,000 this year, but to buy an electric vehicle, you would have to pony up an additional $18,000.

Still, it's a certainty that electric vehicles will replace ICE vehicles. Government mandates will force the issue.

California has already passed rules banning the sale of ICE vehicles by 2035. A dozen or more states are following suit, including Virginia, which passed a law last year linking Virginia's emission standards (and electric car sales targets) to those enacted by California.

This means that in just 13 years, you will not be able to buy a gas-powered car in Virginia. The state's governor, Glenn Youngkin, calls the ban on gas-powered cars "ridiculous" and pledges to change the law. On a national level, President Joe Biden has passed an executive order aiming for 50% of all new vehicles sold to be zero-emissions by 2030.

These goals are ambitious considering that electric vehicles make up only 1% of this country's 250 million vehicles. Similar world-changing transformations have occurred when going from horses to cars or from an analog world to a digital one. But those changes occurred organically, following market-driven and technology-enabled evolutions. The phase out of ICE vehicles starting in 10 to 15 years will change the world by mandate.

While no one knows how this will turn out, one thing seems inevitable: Goodbye, vroom, vroom.

Groups host program at college for drones

Three organizations teamed up to teach students with disabilities about aerospace careers, specifically uncrewed aircraft systems and uncrewed aerial vehicles, commonly called drones.

The Virginia Department for Aging and Rehabilitative Services (DARS), Eastern Shore Community College, and Sentinel Robotics Solutions established needs, goals, and guidelines for a weeklong program that launched in July to provide a basic understanding of drones.

Students were able to operate drones of their own and receive an FAA Recreational USA Safety Test completion certificate, which allows them to operate drones recreationally.

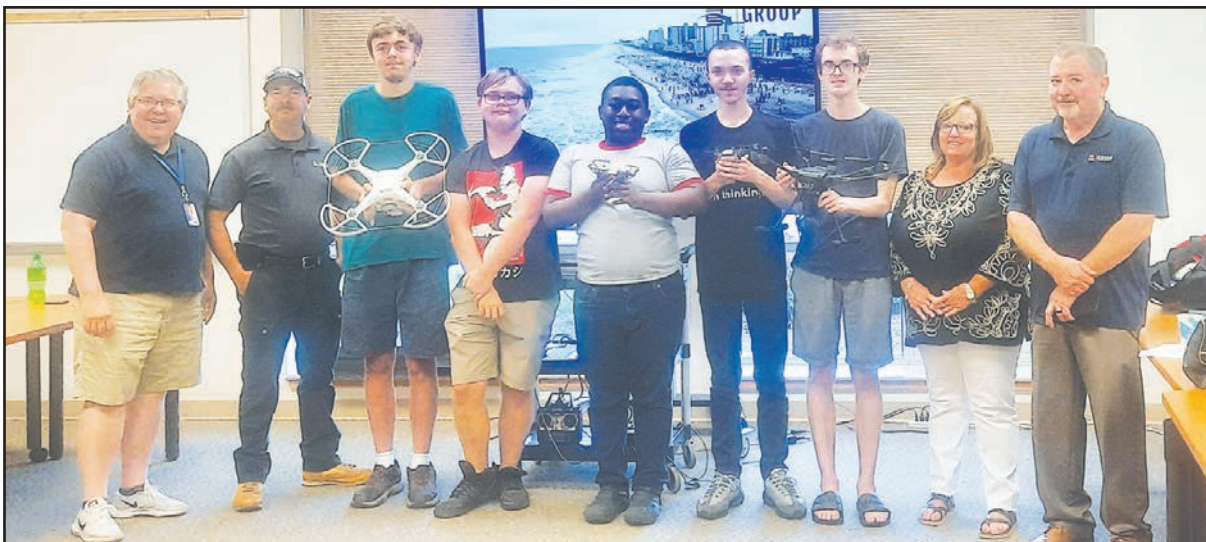

DARS Vocational Rehabilitation Counselor Robin Sexauer said, "I approached SRS because I had so many students interested in 'gaming' careers and saw a lot of potential for transfer-able skills that could create future jobs in drone operation."

Students learned how drones are used in the workforce. The students explored careers such as insurance agents, realtors, photographers and videographers, linemen, wind tunnel operators, emergency/rescue personnel, law enforcement, and medical transporters.

A&N Electric Cooperative talked to students about how they use drones at work and potential job opportunities.

Peter Bale, chief executive of SRS,

said, "This partnership with DARS and ESCC came together very well and our Director of Aviation Programs Jason Taylor did a magnificent job of designing and delivering the program to the students."

INCOME TAX COURSE CAN PROVIDE DAYTIME EMPLOYMENT

Over the 60+ years in existence, H&R Block has taught thousands of people to prepare income tax returns and then earn money as income tax preparers. H&R Block, the world's largest income tax preparation service, offers its Income Tax Course starting September 8, 2022. Both local instructor-led and virtual classes are available.

The Income Tax Course teaches the basics of income tax preparation. Students receive hands-on experience in preparing individual tax returns. Students also learn how to handle increasingly complex tax situations as the term increases, and they learn which tax strategies can save them the most money. The course is ideal for homemakers, retirees, teachers, military spouses and for anyone who wants to increase his or her tax knowledge. Many graduates of the course have gone on to rewarding careers in income tax preparation with H&R Block.

Graduates of the H&R Block Income Tax Course receive Certificates of Achievement and continuing education units (CEUs). While enrolling and taking the course is neither an offer or guarantee of employment, qualified graduates may be offered job interviews with H&R Block.

Those interested in more information about the H&R Block Income Tax Course may contact H&R Block by calling at 855-847-1040 or by visiting a local H&R Block Office.

~ Drones ~

Students practiced basic flight controls, operating systems, and hands-on operation using various drone equipment and flight simulators and learned basic UAS operations, mission planning, and FAA drone rules.

At the end of the week, parents and workforce partners attended a demonstration as students showed off their new drone skills and shared what they learned about this career path.

James M. Shaeffer, president of ESCC, said, "We are so pleased to host this one-of-a-kind drone program. I had the pleasure of watching the students learn to fly the drones and it was amazing how quickly they learn to master the drone. It is simply wonderful to see the excitement and satisfaction the students felt."

Scott Hall, ESCC workforce and business solutions officer, said, "One of the most impressive aspects of this program is that we are not just removing barriers, but creating opportunities for the students to develop tangible skills they can take into the job market. They can even leverage these drone operation skills to earn their pilot's license and start their own business flying drones on a contract basis."

Additional programs are scheduled for this fall. This was the first program developed for high school students with disabilities at ESCC and was funded by DARS.

ANEC elects new directors, addresses future initiatives

Submitted Article

A&N Electric Cooperative members elected two of their peers to serve on the cooperative's board of directors during A&N's 82nd Annual Meeting, held on Aug. 25.

More than 1,600 cooperative members participated in this year's election of directors through designated proxy. The election process was overseen and certified by the cooperative's Credentials and Elections Committee, which is independent of the board.

- In District 1, Mark A. Hickman was elected. This district covers the northern areas of Accomack County from Parksley's northern border to the Virginia/Maryland state line and includes Tangier and Smith islands.
- In District 3, Addison W. Nottingham Jr. was re-elected. This district covers the area just north of Nassawadox, in the south, to just above Melfa, in the north.

Both Hickman and Nottingham were unopposed in their elections to the board. Board members serve three-year terms.

The cooperative held its annual meeting at Eastern Shore Community College's Workforce Development Center. The meeting was broadcast live on WESR for co-op members who were not able to attend in person.

In addition to the election of directors, the cooperative provided its members reports on its end-of-year financial status, updates the cooperative continued to response to COVID-19, and what's ahead for the future of the co-op.

The cooperative announced at the meeting that it was seeking candidates in district 1 to fill the unexpired term of the late Robert L. Nock. The deadline to submit the required paperwork is Sept. 30.

Chairman's Report

Nottingham, chairman of A&N Electric Cooperative's board, gave a report on the cooperative's ongoing member satisfaction surveys that help drive the company's community focus.

"We appreciate all the members who take part in the survey and I want to assure you we are listening to your valuable feedback," Nottingham said. "I'm happy to report our satisfaction scores continue to rise. This is a direct reflection of the comments we receive from members and the cooperative's active response to those issues."

Nottingham reminded members that the board recently voted to return $2.79 million in capital credits to the membership. Nearly all members receive capital credits in the form of a bill credit, which was applied in June.

The cooperative has retired more than $31 million in capital credits to the membership since 1981.

Nottingham, who also serves on the Members Helping Members Board, reported the nonprofit raised more than $56,000 in funds and was able to assist 210 cooperative members with paying their electric service bill in 2021.

"On behalf of the Members Helping Members board I'd like to thank all the members who continue to support this valuable program," he said.

On the topic of safety, Nottingham was pleased to report that in the past four years the cooperative has experienced only one lost time incident, attributing the feat to employees' "unwavering commitment to safety."

Nottingham took the opportunity to highlight the work of the cooperative's employee nonprofit organization, Lighting the Way, which logged more than 225 volunteer hours, donated more than $2,900 to local causes, and partnered with the American Red Cross to host two successful blood drives at the cooperatives Tasley headquarters.

President's Report

A&N Electric Cooperative President and CEO Butch Williamson reminded members of the ongoing challenges presented by COVID-19 and the cooperative's response to assist members. The cooperative was able to assist more than 2,000 of its members through special billing arrangements and relief funds.

More than $652,000 was applied to applicable members' bills through CARES Act funding and Members Helping Members during the pandemic.

The cooperative continues to assist the USDA 504 Loan/Grant program, which helps low-income and elderly members with much-needed repairs and improvements to homes.

Williamson addressed the cooperative's relatively new prepaid metering program, which allows members who sign on, the ability make account payments for their future energy use. The program eliminates deposits and late fees. More information on the program and other services can be found at www.anec.com or by contacting a member services representative at the cooperative. The cooperative also offers free home and basic commercial energy audits for members who would like a detailed assessment of their home's energy use.

Williamson also alerted the membership of industrywide supply chain issues, which are affecting specialized and traditional equipment. Lead times are increasing, and costs are rising for these items.

"I tell you this not to scare you, but to let you know that we are working to make sure we minimize any potential impacts," Williamson said.

In regards to renewable energy options, Williamson informed members that several options are available through the cooperative and that large-scale industrial solar initiatives continue to grow around the region. Currently, A&N has more than 165 residential, commercial, and government accounts that have installed solar or subscribed to Cooperative SunShare.

The cooperative is currently evaluating an electric vehicle charging station network across the Eastern Shore. In addition, Williamson announced a pilot EV rate offered by the cooperative. EV owners are encouraged to contact the cooperative to learn more.

Williamson also addressed the rising cost of energy generation and methods the cooperative's power supplier is using to mitigate those impacts.

"With the volatility in the markets, power supply costs at other utilities around the country have seen increases as high as 50% or higher," Williamson said. "As a member of Old Dominion Electric Cooperative and because of its hedging strategies, A&N's members have seen an average of 15 to 30% increase in electric supply costs. The open energy market has seen increases two to three times this."

Special Recognitions

Nottingham later presented resolutions to three longtime board representatives. Resolutions were presented to Yvonne Nock, widow of the late Robert L. Nock, who served as director of district 1 for 17 years. Nock recently served as the board's secretary-treasurer.

Nottingham also presented a resolution to Edward Parks for his 18 years of service to the cooperative and its board. Parks announced earlier in the year that he would be stepping down as a director in district 1. Nottingham thanked Parks for his dedication to the cooperative's membership and for his work on the Members Helping Members board.

Cooperative attorney Henry Custis Jr. was also presented a resolution for his 15 years of service as the cooperative's council. Custis will step down from his post later this year.

"We will miss Henry's wisdom and guidance," Nottingham said.

Immediately following the annual meeting, the board held officer elections, reelecting Nottingham as its chairman, Christopher Bott as its vice chairman, and Ralph Dodd as the board's secretary-treasurer.

More information on the programs and initiatives highlighted at the annual meeting can be found at www.anec.com

'Johnny Mo' is United Way fundraising chairman

Submitted Article

Johnny Morrison has been named chairman of the 2022 United Way of Virginia's Eastern Shore fundraising campaign.

"Johnny Mo," as he is known, is the owner and chef of Mallards Restaurants, Catering and Entertainment. Morrison organized the first "Music for the Hungry," which raised donations for the Food Bank. He continues to serve on the bank's advisory board.

"The list of agencies on the Shore who have benefited from his generosity is endless," the United Way of Virginia's Eastern Shore said in a press release.

Since 1991, the United Way of Virginia's Eastern Shore has raised almost $7.9 million to improve the quality of life for the residents of the Eastern Shore.

Sponsorships from businesses and individuals are essentials in keeping the cost of the campaign to a minimum. This United Way has only one part-time employee and donated office space. Volunteers are a large part of the United Way.

Contributions can be designated to a nonprofit of one's choice or be added to the Community Impact Fund. The Community Impact Fund is created through workplace campaign contributions and individual donations. Awards are determined by the allocation committee, which is composed of 10 volunteers from diverse backgrounds. The group reviewed grant applications and budgets before making recommendations for allocation of the funds.

"These organizations work for the betterment of the communities we serve; focusing on health, education and financial stability," Wayne Parsley,

Board member and past Community Impact Chair of the UWVES, stated in a news release. "Together we are making an impact, one grant at a time."

"We are proud to be entrusted with these funds to invest them on behalf of our community," UWVES Board President Kim Savage said. "We're honored to be able to support the community-based organizations who [are acutely aware of] the obstacles and opportunities for our neighbors. When we as a society make sure everyone can reach their human potential and fully contribute, we all benefit."

BOATING SAFETY

Handling waves, weather

BY JERRY PHILLIPS

Special to the Eastern Shore Post

This month's safe boating topic is waves and rough water. I will present some brief discussions of wind and waves, wave types, wave height, and storm surge.

Most waves are caused by wind and continue to grow from it. The stronger the wind, the higher the waves it will cause. It doesn't require hurricanes, storms, or gale force winds to cause dangerous wave conditions.

Up to a point, the longer the wind blows from a constant direction and the greater the uninterrupted expanse over which the wind blows (called fetch), the higher the waves will build and, in some cases, can cause rough water conditions for boaters.

Eventually the waves reach a maximum height for the given fetch and wind speed, at which point the seas are said to be fully developed.

Dangerous wave conditions are reported over marine VHF radio stations 1 thru 10, over TV and internet sites such as the Weather Channel.

These boating safety minutes are a public service of Flotilla 12-02 of the U.S. Coast Guard Auxiliary. If you have time to become a better boater and help your Coast Guard, call Russell Vreeland at 757-442-7029.

Remember a life jacket is your on-water safety belt. Wear it whenever you're afloat.

Pony gridgers outlast Vikings

BY TED SHOCKLEY

Eastern Shore Post

It was a football game that resembled a track meet.

"We were up and down the field like it was Ping-Pong," said Broadwater coach Eddie Spencer.

"Defense is a big challenge in eight-man football," said Chincoteague coach Wyle Maddox.

When the dust settled, the Ponies (1-1) managed to outscore the visiting Vikings (0-2) and take the win, 54-42.

Chincoteague quarterback Jordan Harper completed 20 of 27 passes for 329 yards and six touchdown passes in a contest between the Eastern Shore's two eight-man football teams.

"Usually the games are pretty high-scoring," said Maddox of the eight-man teams.

For Broadwater, Will Petka scored four touchdowns and Rufus Abbott had two more.

"Logan Hickman played very well at quarterback," said Spencer.

For Chincoteague, Jake Harper had seven receptions for 143 yards and three touchdowns and Marcello Rosanova had eight catches for 101 yards and two touchdowns.

Jonathan Holloway had two receptions for 62 yards and one rushing touchdown for the Ponies, and tight end Austin Adams had a scoring catch.

For Doughty, volleyball coach nonpareil, it's still a pleasure

Almost everyone who has walked the halls of Northampton High School knows Cathryn Pfund Doughty. Over the Yellow Jackets' varsity volleyball team.

This fall marks her 33rd season as volleyball coach. Throughout her career, she has led the Yellow Jackets to district and conference titles and has been awarded district coach of the year and conference coach of the year awards.

Doughty, raised in Michigan, be-the last few decades, she has distinguished herself as a physical education teacher and as a coach.

She has coached varsity field hockey, soccer, and one season of junior varsity softball, but she is most known as the head coach of came attracted to sports and coaching early in life. Growing up, she participated in swimming, soccer, softball, volleyball, gymnastics, and cross-country.

"I had several coaches in my life who helped shape my love for sports and the relationships that are built in a team setting," she said.

Doughty started coaching through teaching swimming lessons, gymnastics, and ice skating to younger kids in her community.

Doughty graduated from Michigan State University, where she majored in physical education and exercise science and minored in health, coaching, and communications.

In 1990, she accepted the health and physical education position at Northampton.

During the winter season of 1990-91, she became the first coach of the Yellow Jackets' volleyball program when it launched.

"We had some really good athletes my first season, including an exchange student from Japan who was amazing," she said.

"We were in the Bay Rivers district then and made it to the playoffs. The first several seasons were great."

Doughty loves the momentum of volleyball.

"A team can be ahead or behind 2 sets to 0 and it can still be either team's match to win or lose," she said.

"It is also the most densely populated sport with a team of six players on a 30-foot by 30-foot square court — so communication and chemistry are vital to success."

Coaching high-school sports is a time-consuming job.

"The biggest challenge with coaching is trying to balance my time and energy," Doughty said, "not only as a coach but also as a teacher, a wife to my very understanding and supportive husband David, a dog mom, a family member, and as a friend. It can be difficult during the season to manage it all." Doughty's husband is Northampton Sheriff David Doughty.

But those challenges do not outweigh the connections volleyball has built between Doughty and others in the community.

"What I like most about coaching is building and maintaining relationships with players and their families," she said. "I've had the pleasure to coach long enough to coach some of my former players' daughters. It's rewarding to see and hear a new generation being brought up under my wing. It's kind of a circle-of-life thing for me."

The Northampton Yellow Jackets bounced back from their season opening loss against Bruton last Thursday night by defeating Charles City, 41-12.

Corey Ardrey scored the first touchdown for Northampton, rushing from midfield. Charles City responded with a touchdown of its own, but failed on their two point conversion attempt. On the next drive, Ardrey had another good run that set up the Yellow Jackets near the goal line. Shortly afterward, Colin Hopper scored on a quarterback sneak to extend the lead 14-6.

The Yellow Jackets (1-1) outscored Charles City 27-6 throughout the remainder of the game. Wide receiver Braden Justice caught a touchdown pass before the half. In the fourth quarter, Jeremiah White threw a touchdown pass to Tywone Sebastian and Mekhi Spady had a punt return for a touchdown.

The Vikings dominated the entire game, winning the first set, 25-10, the second, 25-14, and the third, 25-8.

The Vikings were led offensively by Chloe Hall who had four kills, three aces, and two digs. Molly Brown earned three kills and two digs.

Leah Smith had two kills, two aces, and four digs. Taylor Leland, Elizabeth Price, and Hope Celli each had one kill.

The Vikings now have a 4-0 record and seek to advance to 5-0 Friday, Sept. 9, when they travel to Newport News to face Denbigh Baptist Christian School.

It's never easy to play the defending state champions, and the Nandua Warriors fell to King William last Thursday night, 44-0.

Despite the Warriors' lack of touchdowns, there were still several positive aspects of the Warriors' game.

"Isaac Stodghill ran and threw the ball well," said head coach Dennis McCall. "Nazere Blake and Tristan Williams ran the ball hard. Jason Ye caught the ball and tackled well."

The Warriors play again Friday,

Sept. 9, at home against the Arcadia Firebirds.

Two recent local catches climb atop state leader board

For the second consecutive week, the waters surrounding the Eastern Shore have produced some of the largest catches of the year for the state of Virginia.

Bill Hall

Captain Steve's Bait and Tackle registered a 52.2-pound golden tilefish for Clint Baker. Once approved, Baker's catch should replace the current species leader, a 50-pound golden tilefish caught by Spencer Capps, of Virginia Beach.

Baker was fishing with Captain John Chenault aboard the Close E Nuff.

Not to be outdone, or out-fished, Jason Brimer boated a 9-pound, 8-ounce Spanish mackerel, which will replace the current state leader of that species, an 8-pound, 8-ounce mackerel caught by Max King, of Richmond.

Brimer's fish was weighed in at Oceans East – Eastern Shore.

Chincoteague

Jimmy Vasiliou, at Captain Steve's Bait and Tackle, said the island enjoyed a very productive week of angling opportunities.

Offshore, dolphin (mahi) action has been good for anglers trolling in the canyons as well as chunking around lobster and bass pot buoys.

Small dolphin have also been hanging over the offshore wrecks, sometimes just a few miles off the beach. Flounder, triggerfish, and black sea bass catches have come from the same submerged structures.

Inside Chincoteague Bay, catches have included flounder, ribbonfish, spot, and croaker. Catches in the Assateague surf have consisted mainly of kingfish (whiting), spot, and croaker.

Wachapreague

Captain Lindsay Paul, of Trident Tackle, said the flounder fishing inside the inlet remains very good, with lots of limit catches being made.

Catches of small croaker have been mixed in with the flounder. Live minnows combined with Berkley Gulp remain the most productive flounder baits.

Paul said that a few flounder and "plenty" of peanut (small) dolphin catches are coming from the ocean wrecks. Bluewater fishing has been slow in general, but several wahoo have been recently boated.

Amanda Manzella, at the Wachapreague Inn, echoed the "great" flounder and croaker fishing inside and added that customers who fished the offshore wreck boated some larger flounder and small mahi.

Lower Shore

Dez Louie, at Oceans East – Eastern Shore, reported the majority of the cobia population have departed the Chesapeake Bay and most of what are left are staged around the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel and nearby buoys in preparation for their seasonal migration.

The 2022 Virginia Cobia Season closes Sept. 15.

Sight casting live eels to the structure-hugging fish offers anglers one of their last shots at hooking a 2022 cobia.

Anglers bottom fishing for cobia have released more red drum than cobia, Louie added. The most productive locations for the late afternoon red drum bites have been around buoy 36A, the 9-Foot Shoal area, and the high-rise bridge.

Keeper-sized flounder catches have been made around the high-rise section of the bridge-tunnel. High-speed trolling as well as casting plugs have produced catches of Spanish mackerel and bluefish. Sheepshead and tautog remain around the bridge pilings. Speckled trout and puppy drum catches have come from along the shorelines and creeks on the Chesapeake Bay side.

Good trout numbers are being made on artificials, while the largest trout catches have been made by angler fishing live baits. Peeler and soft crab baits have worked best on the puppy drum. The Kiptopeke Pier has produced catches of croakers, spot, gray trout, and bluefish.

Jeb Brady, at Bailey's Bait & Tackle, said the sheepshead fishing has dominated the angling action most of the week with good numbers of the large, tasty fish boated.

The Cell, Cabbage Patch, and the Cherrystone Reef were mentioned as productive sheepshead-producing sites. Spanish mackerel action was also described as being productive, with large schools of mackerel and bluefish being reported. Recent cobia action has been limited to sight casting with eels. Big red drum catches are still occurring in the evenings for anglers soaking cut bait from buoy 38A south.

Brady added that the speckled trout and puppy drum fishing will continue to improve as the water temperatures decline. Catches have been reported in the bayside creeks and out of Oyster on the seaside. Catches of ribbonfish and small spot have come from the Cape Charles Pier.

The writer was the first Eastern Shore resident to achieve Virginia Saltwater Master Angler status. He has been named Virginia Saltwater Angler of the Year and the Virginia Saltwater Release Angler of the Year. He also has won Virginia Press Association awards for his columns.

Pear Valley lecture set by Preservation Society

Historian Dr. David Scott will present new research findings at a Lecture on the Lawn at Pear Valley on Sunday, Sept. 18. It is sponsored by the Northampton Historic Preservation Society.

Previous Pear Valley lectures have been well-attended because Pear Valley is such a unique and important landmark in Northampton County and Virginia.

The home was constructed about 1740 and belonged to one branch of the Eastern Shore Nottingham family. Pear Valley is the only remaining example of a middle-class mid-1700s home in Northampton County. There is reason to believe that there was an earlier structure where it stands that was home to a few generations prior to 1740.

Scott will discuss the history of this house, including its significant architectural features as examples of 18th century construction.

He will also discuss the Nottingham family that owned Pear Valley for several generations.

Registration or advance tickets are not required but a donation ($10 per person) is suggested. This will be an out-of-doors lecture (please dress comfortably and bring your own folding chair) and the interior of the house will be open for viewing.

Please refer to <https://www.northamptonhistoricpreservationsociety.com> for directions, more information about NHPS, and to view a video tour of Pear Valley.

The NHPS website will also provide a notice should weather on that day be unfavorable.
