The Chincoteague causeway forever changed the island town's relationship with the rest of the country, making it accessible to anyone with an automobile and making possible today's flourishing tourist industry.

Chincoteague will celebrate the centennial of the opening of the Chincoteague causeway and draw-bridge with a series of free public events Saturday, Nov. 12.

New wetlands project draws questions

BY STEFANIE JACKSON
Eastern Shore Post

Northampton citizens are concerned about the potential economic impact and precedent set by a wetland restoration project authorized by the county's planning department without the knowledge of elected officials or the public.

The project is being done for The Nature Conservancy on 26 acres of former farmland south of Exmore, east of U.S. Route 13.

Jim McGowan, a Nature Conservancy land protection manager, described the project during the Northampton planning commission's Nov. 1 meeting.

Non-tidal wetlands are being restored near Exmore to offset the unavoidable destruction of wetlands from land development elsewhere in Virginia's Atlantic Ocean Basin, which includes Accomack and Northampton counties and part of Virginia Beach.

Private company Resource Environmental Solutions acquired the land and is in charge of project design, construction, planting, and monitoring the wetlands for 10 years.

Accomack County extends Thanksgiving vacation

The Accomack County School Board voted to extend the Thanksgiving vacation by two additional days. All schools will be closed for all students and teachers starting on Monday, Nov. 21, and ending on Friday, Nov. 25. A regular schedule will resume on Monday, Nov. 28.

Wetlands

are handling permitting and providing project oversight.

When the wetlands project is complete, TNC will purchase the land from RES, and the wetlands will be placed in a conservation easement through the Virginia Eastern Shore Land Trust.

The 26-acre parcel will be worth 18 offset credits valued at $100,000 each, a total of $1.8 million. One credit offsets one acre of wetlands impacted by development.

Partial credits may be purchased, depending on a developer's wetland mitigation needs, and TNC will not profit from the sale, McGowan said.

Even though planning for the wetlands restoration began more than three years ago, many Northampton residents were unaware of the project and were taken aback when they drove along Route 13 past the construction site and saw topsoil being removed from acres of formerly active farmland.

An Army Corps of Engineers clerical error may partly explain why so many people, including members of the Northampton board of supervisors, were left out of the loop.

McGowan's report stated that the Army Corps of Engineers had issued a public notice about the project on March 4, 2020, followed by a 30-day public comment period.

The public notice can be found online in the archives of the Army Corps of Engineers' Norfolk district, to which the Eastern Shore belongs.

However, the listing for the public notice states the project is in Northumberland County, even though it provides links to documents showing the project is in Northampton County.

Furthermore, the Eastern Shore Post, a newspaper of record serving Accomack and Northampton counties and regularly publishing public notices from the Army Corps of Engineers, had no record of publishing the public notice for the Custis project, which was named after Phil Custis, the farmer from whom the land was purchased.

McGowan said the 26 acres were wetlands before they were converted to farmland, and Custis willingly sold the land because the soil was too wet and crops planted in it did not flourish.

The Northampton wetlands project was approved at the county level by Planning Director Susan McGhee, former Zoning Administrator David Dameron, and Development Inspector Julie Floyd; there was no public involvement in the decision.

This was a point of contention for citizen Ken Dufty, who spoke in opposition to the project. Chair Glen Anders interrupted Dufty and said that comments about planning department personnel were not relevant to the discussion of the wetlands project.

"How did this happen, Glen?" Dufty countered.

The primary reason for his opposition is the wetlands project is inconsistent with Northampton's comprehensive plan, which promotes the preservation of agricultural lands and the economic benefits they bring.

If the Custis property had remained farm land, it could have supported a home, barn, accessory buildings, personal and farm vehicles and equipment, all of which would have brought Northampton County tax revenue.

"You need to balance the economy with the environmental impacts," Dufty said.

Bliss, Finney vie for Onley mayoral seat on Tuesday

BY CAROL VAUGHN
Eastern Shore Post

Onley voters have a choice to make in the mayoral election this year. Election Day is Nov. 8 and early voting has begun.

With Mayor Matt Hart not seeking another term, the candidates for mayor are Ned Finney and Deborah Bliss.

The town is one of four in Accomack County with contested mayoral elections.

Each mayoral candidate in Onley answered questions posed by the Eastern Shore Post. Their responses, in alphabetical order by candidate's last name, are below.

■ Tell us a little bit about yourself, including your qualifications to be mayor.

Bliss: Born and raised in Waynesboro, Va.

Attended Longwood College and was awarded bachelor of science degree in mathematics.

Veteran, U. S. Army Infantry Board, Ft. Benning, Ga. Served for three years as mathematical statistician.

Command courier for NATO Land-southeast Headquarters, Izmir, Turkey.

U. S. Army Infantry School, Ft. Benning, OR/SA (Operations Research/Systems Analyst); completed graduate school.

High school mathematics teacher, Roanoke Catholic School, William Fleming High School and Breckinridge Middle School, Roanoke, Va.

K-12 mathematics coordinator and principal content specialist, Virginia Department of Education, Richmond.

K-12 Mathematics Supervisor, Loudoun County, Va.

Retired at age 60. Consultant for school divisions across Virginia.

My qualifications to be mayor of Onley evolve from a wide variety of experiences in leadership positions. The mayor should be a relationship builder, team player, emotionally mature, approachable, critical thinker, prepared, possessed of financial acumen (www.municipalworld.com). I have all these traits in my biography above and in my time living in Onley. I currently serve as the chairperson of planning commission, advisor to the police department on technology, member of the budget, community spirit, and sidewalk improvement committees, as well as the Board of Zoning Appeals.

Finney: I am 72 years old. I lived in Onancock most of my life. I moved to Onley in 1990 to a home that was my grandmother's residence since 1929. I am a contractor and have been a waterman. I enjoy hunting and fishing.

■ Why do you want to be mayor?

Bliss: To provide guidance to Town Council and the citizens in developing and implementing their mission statement, encompassing the ideas of communication, leadership, fiscal responsibility, and honor, and centered around the needs of the citizens of the town.

Finney: My main reason for running for mayor is to bring unity back to the governing body of Onley. It hasn't been really good for the last four years and it has been in shambles for the last year and a half.

■ What do you think are the top (one to three) priorities on which your town's officials should be focusing right now?

Bliss:

Open Communication

Make town council meetings accessible to more citizens by live streaming all meetings.

Construct a user-friendly town website.

Ensure documents on the town website are in a searchable format (i.e., Word).

Establish a voluntary email blast list of citizens to distribute information about Onley and ongoing projects in a timely manner (weekly or biweekly newsletter).

Monitor a town email address along with the town manager.

Strong Leadership

Conduct meetings in accordance with Robert's Rules of Order to establish and maintain decorum.

Increase efficiency of Town Council meetings.

Make Town Council meetings more accessible to citizens wishing to make comments by having a public comment period regarding agenda items near the beginning of the meeting as well as at the end of the meeting.

Supervise employees to ensure that the needs of Onley are met within the parameters of individual job descriptions.

Support employees in their jobs.

Maintain contact with committees and commissions appointed by Council.

Fiscal Responsibility

Monitor spending to ensure expenditures are within Onley's annual budget.

Provide research on proposed projects and advise council, as requested.

Monitor salaries/hourly wages for all employees.

Assist in the budget process annually.

Honor

Establish and maintain honesty, fairness, and integrity in all actions the town takes.

Help Onley regain its place on the Eastern Shore as a good, well-run town that accomplishes its goals.

Finney: I think our sidewalk project, and trying to get a handle on multi-family homes. In the future we will be addressing town sewage. I'm sure this will be much later but it will be a big issue.

■ What is your town's greatest asset?

Bliss: Onley's greatest asset is its citizens.

Finney: I think that our town's greatest asset is our financial stability. We are pretty much able to pay for things as we go.

■ What is the greatest challenge facing your town?

Bliss: Divisiveness between mayor and council, ongoing for several years. The next mayor needs to bring council and the citizens into a relationship with the mayor that is productive and forward-thinking, instead of vindictive and petty and personal.

Finney: I think I answered that (in question 3 [top priorities]).

■ Why should people vote for you in this contested mayoral race?

Bliss: If the citizens of Onley believe that the town is well-run now and in the past, then they should vote for my opponent. However, I believe that town management needs to change. We have no mission statement. Our website is not user friendly for our citizens. Our council meetings are not accessible in real time via the internet to our citizens. Our community deserves leadership with integrity, intelligence, and honor. I am that choice.

Finney: I think people should vote for me because I am familiar with town policies as a result of serving 12 years on the town council and 7 1/2 years as vice mayor. I also approach issues with common sense; I have many friends in the adjacent communities that I work well with. I have been endorsed by the Sheriff of Accomack County. I feel that if he has confidence in me so should the citizens of Onley. I cannot promise you a chicken in every pot but I can promise you that your issues will be addressed and that I will do the best job that I can according to our charter.

Eastville mayoral election pits two longtime residents

BY STEFANIE JACKSON
Eastern Shore Post

A Sturgis family member has been the Eastville mayor for the last 50 years but that is being challenged in this year's election.

Heather Marsh, who has lived in Eastville nearly her entire life and became Northampton High School's principal this year, is running for mayor against Jim Sturgis, who has held the position for the last 12 years and whose father was mayor for about 40 years before him.

She's "passionate" about involving citizens in deciding "how best the town of Eastville should move forward" and as mayor, she would work to make the town feel more inclusive.

That could include surveying residents about key issues. For example, Eastville's town park committee, of which Marsh is a member, recently used an online survey tool to ask residents if they were interested in getting playground equipment for the town park near the post office on Willow Oak Road.

Sturgis favors the project, which was originally estimated to cost $30,000. However, it could cost $60,000 "to do it right" and ensure the safety and well-being of guests by installing equipment such as a fence around the park and water fountains, he said.

Marsh would like Town Council meetings to be more accessible and is interested in live-streaming them so that citizens who cannot attend in person may still participate.

Sturgis noted he has not received any requests for live-streaming Town Council meetings but there are options for remote participation: some council members attended meetings via video conferencing during the COVID-19 pandemic, and residents are always encouraged to submit written comments to be read into the public record when in-person attendance is not possible.

Marsh also said she would continue the work Sturgis began for the improvement of the town's aging and deteriorating water supply lines.

Eastville's water system will need to be updated much like Exmore's was, Marsh said, and she will work with Town Manager Rob Stubbs to determine what needs to be done and identify grants the town could pursue to help pay for the project.

Sturgis noted that even though the water system dates back to around World War II, it is generally in good working condition and the cast iron water mains look like new. He said many of Eastville's water issues are individual connections that are in need of repair at older homes.

He also defended the Eastville Police Department's "tenacious traffic enforcement" and said that National Highway Traffic Safety Administration data shows Northampton County has a lower rate of traffic-related deaths per mile compared to Accomack County.

Marsh did not run for mayor with the intention of unseating Sturgis; he had not announced that he was running for re-election when she put her name on the ballot.

Sturgis said he had always intended to run and when he put his name on the ballot, he discovered that Marsh was his opponent.

The families of both candidates have lived in Eastville for a long time and are familiar with one another. Town Council member and retired teacher Douglas Coburn, who is Marsh's father, taught the government class Sturgis took in high school.

Marsh acknowledged she would experience a "learning curve" in taking on the role of mayor, but she is confident in her ability to balance that lead-

Eastern Shore Rural Health opened a dental clinic at Kiptopeke Elementary School on Oct. 14 to serve Northampton children ages six months to 18 years, the first dental clinic of its kind in the county.

"This is just the beginning and the continuation of our mission ... of Eastern Shore Rural Health to provide the best quality health care to all citizens no matter where they are or who they are on the Eastern Shore," said Betty Bibbins, president of the ESRH board of directors.

Sturgis said his opponent is "definitely capable" of doing the job.

"With me in office, we are trying our darnedest to keep taxes as low as we can ... to keep our water costs down ... and we're going to continue to try to keep costs to the consumers as low as possible," the longtime mayor said.

This is not his opponent's first attempt to become involved in town government. Marsh previously ran a write-in campaign for Town Council.

To her, what's important isn't the exact role she plays in the town government, it's making herself available to serve wherever she's needed.

"I'd like to help if I can," Marsh said.

There will be a ribbon-cutting at the Bridge Street fishing pier — the site of the old drawbridge — at the south end of Robert Reed Park at 2 p.m., followed by a presentation at the Museum of Chincoteague Island at 3 p.m. and the opening of an exhibit there, “Bridging a Century: 100th Anniversary of the Causeway.”

There will be a reception at the museum following the presentation, featuring food and music popular in the 1920s.

The exhibit will remain open for the rest of the season at the museum, where winter hours are Fridays and Saturdays from 11 a.m. to 5 p.m.

There are many stories associated with the causeway’s construction and opening — and the exhibit tells those stories.

For example, Miles Hancock, renowned Chincoteague decoy carver, at one time had a store on the causeway, where travelers could stop and buy a bite to eat.

Then, there are the stories of the first person to walk across the causeway, before it was open to vehicles, and of the first civilian, a woman, to drive across.

The exhibit will highlight the large cast of characters involved in the causeway’s construction and opening, including people like Solomon William “Aleck” Alexander, a larger-than-life character who helped supervise the causeway’s construction, according to museum director Cindy Faith.

If the causeway saga is thought of as a play and the people involved as the cast, “The lead is John Whealton,” said Faith.

John B. Whealton, often called Captain Jack, was born into perhaps the most prominent family on Chincoteague at the time.

He spent his younger years exploring the world at sea, including being shipwrecked; became a hero, rescuing a schooner crew off Cape Hatteras during a storm; lived and worked in Norfolk as a marine diver, engineer, and shipwreck salvage contractor; and ultimately became co-owner of a company in Tampa, Fla., that built roads and bridges in that state’s jungle-like wilds.

A May 17, 1918, Tampa Bay Times article said, “Capt. J. B. Whealton, known the length of the Atlantic Coast, has purchased half interest in the Tampa Shell and Sand Company which has done all the road work on the Key.”

It was when Whealton came home for Christmas in 1919 that he decided to help construct a bridge and road to connect his island hometown to the mainland, using the knowledge he had gained in Florida.

“He had this epiphany” — here he was, building roads and bridges in other places, while his own hometown did not have a road connecting it to the rest of the country, Faith said.

The causeway project was privately funded and Chincoteague people at the time called it “the toll road.”

“He was so enthusiastic and people believed in him so much that he got 70% of the funding” after just one pep rally-like fundraising event, according to Faith.

The construction project, innovative for its time, was written about extensively in newspapers in New York, Philadelphia, and Baltimore.

“It was big news,” Faith said.

After several years of work, including numerous setbacks, the causeway and drawbridge opened Nov. 15, 1922, to much fanfare, including ceremonies attended by the Virginia governor and other dignitaries.

“They had a big lunch, then a parade. The new school had just been built on Church Street. ... The governor had a big speech there. Then they had another dinner. And then, they are going to go (across the causeway),” Faith said.

Storm clouds had been gathering during the day and there was a torrential downpour, resulting in hundreds of cars that were attempting to cross the new causeway becoming mired in the mud and causing some people to label the opening day a disaster.

Still, after repairs were made, a solid, traversable roadway opened a few weeks later, connecting the island to the mainland and forever changing Chincoteague.

and Northampton schools is based on one between ESRH and Accomack schools, which has existed since 1995 and was recognized and used as a model for other community partnerships in dental care by the U.S. Department of Health and Human Services in 1997.

The permanent dental clinic at Kiptopeke was patterned after three in Accomack, which are at Metompkin and Pungoteague elementary schools and Nandua Middle School.

Like students of those three schools, Kiptopeke students who have their parents' permission may be taken out of class during the school day to visit the dental clinic on campus.

Parents taking off work to take their children to dental appointments is a "huge barrier" to care, said Kelsey Bundick, ESRH dental operations manager.

Tooth decay is the most common childhood disease and children with poor oral health are more likely to develop other health problems, have oral pain, and miss school or have poor academic performance.

School board Chair Charlena Jones emphasized the importance of oral health by quoting former U.S. Surgeon General Regina Benjamin's "Oral Health: The Silent Epidemic," which notes a possible connection between chronic oral infections and diabetes, heart and lung disease, stroke, premature birth, and low birth weight.

"In other words, oral health refers to the health of our mouth, and, ultimately, supports and reflects the health of the entire body," Jones read.

ESRH Chief Executive Officer Matthew Clay said there's a need on the Eastern Shore for about 115,000 dental visits, and ESRH is providing around 45,000 visits or approximately 40% of what is needed and is striving to do more and hire more dental care providers.

The Kiptopeke Elementary dental clinic will be staffed by one dentist, two dental assistants, and a business assistant, providing preventative and restorative care. Children with special dental needs will be referred to the dental services at Eastville Community Health Center.

Students at schools that currently lack permanent dental units may receive preventative dental care through the Traveling Oral Health Preventative Program or TOPs.

Any child or student age 18 or under in Northampton may receive care at the Kiptopeke dental unit.

Two more ESRH dental clinics are planned, one at Occohannock Elementary and one at the Northampton high and middle school complex.

PLANNING FOR THE HOLIDAYS

Give Mom and Dad the Lifestyle They Deserve

Shorter days and turning leaves bring memories of holidays past. Mom going all out with dinner. Dad bringing home the biggest tree. Kids running all over the house. These were festive (if not chaotic) times. But the kids are older now and our parents are too.

During the holidays we all deserve to be surrounded by family and friends: sharing stories, enjoying home-cooked meals, and having the peace of mind that comes with knowing you are loved.

This is what Commonwealth Senior Living communities offer during the holidays and every day. Our families are relieved to know that their loved ones are safe, happy, and enjoying the lifestyle they deserve.

THE PAPER'S POSITION

Tipping our caps to those not elected

Four nights from now, we should know who won the Nov. 8 elections.

It will be a proud and celebratory time for the winning candidates and their supporters.

However, we'd like to focus on those who don't win. The reality that they fell short will bring a tide of emotions.

Some will go gentle into the good night, which is the way candidates once conducted themselves.

Others will rage against the dying of the light, which is how some contemporary candidates respond to not getting enough votes.

Either way, we'd like to thank them for trying. Their efforts — even in losing — are vital to our democracy.

Running for an elected office isn't easy. It takes chutzpah. It takes self-confidence in your ideas and in your ability to enact them. Further, challenging a popular, entrenched politician can be an intimidating, uphill battle. But challenging the status quo with new ideas is a hallmark of our country.

Having a second candidate — or even more — in any given election helps enable a full airing of issues. It gives voters a choice. It allows debate and discussion to reach full flower. It permits our system of government to work.

Running for office also means you might lose. That's a difficult possibility to face after investing time, resources, and your good reputation in an unsuccessful election.

Many dream of running for office but never act on their impulses. Others campaign and win, and we wish them the best.

But we extend our utmost gratitude to those who tried but fell short. Our community is better because of your participation in it. Even in losing, you made a difference.

Young GOP supporter didn't do homework

To the editor:

While I applaud young Parker Boggs' involvement in our electoral process (guest column, Oct. 21), it appears he hasn't done his homework on the candidates for District 2 for the U.S. House of Representatives.

Boggs states in so many words that U.S. Rep. Elaine Luria has essentially given up on the Eastern Shore. Really?

I am an ardent supporter of many of the initiatives, efforts, accomplishments, and improvements Luria has achieved for all of District 2, and specifically the Eastern Shore. In the last two years alone she has secured more than $23 million for important improvements like our 911 call center upgrade and our Rural Health system, just to name two of the many.

Jen Kiggans, meanwhile, cast a vote to spend $70 million of our state funds for a pointless audit of the 2020 election. And she still refuses to state the election was fair and legal.

Guest columns and letters

The Eastern Shore Post welcomes your letters and guest columns. Letters have no more than 350 words. Guest columns have no more than 500 words.

Letters and columns must include a phone number and a town of residence for verification. They must not have been submitted to or published by any other media.

Letters and guest columns may be edited. It is preferred that letters and guest columns refer to Eastern Shore Post content or Eastern Shore of Virginia issues. No more than one letter or column per person will be printed during a 90-day period.

Luria has been and will continue to be a tireless advocate for our greater good even while she sits on a committee that is working to protect our very Constitution and our liberties — liberties for all, not just a select few.

Boggs clearly did no personal research perhaps beyond asking people in his orbit.

This is most disconcerting as it is the behavior that has driven a large portion of our electorate to swallow the lines that the 2020 election was stolen.

Sorry, but facts are facts. If people choose to believe something other than the facts of record (not innuendo or falsehoods that seek to divide, not unite) that is a clear lack of objective thinking. It is short-sighted and self-interested — just what this country does not need in its leadership or electorate.

This is a dire time for our democracy. Please don't be swayed by party or self-interest now. We, the citizens of the United States of America, are the country — each one of us. We need to dig deep and begin again to regard each other with that in mind.

Please cast your vote for America and vote Luria.

Front-page sticker advertisement stuck with some readers

One of the Eastern Shore's valuable pieces of real estate is the front page of this newspaper.

Like other valuable real estate, we allow businesses, organizations, and political candidates to buy a sign on it for their marketing purposes.

Ted Shockley

We recently heard from readers who were disappointed about the front-page political advertisement sticker on last week's edition. The same sticker is on the front page of today's edition.

Those who contacted us thought the newspaper was collectively endorsing the candidate who bought it.

We are not. Our newspaper has not and will not endorse a candidate. Further, any candidate could purchase the front-page sticker advertisement, although our printer allows only one sticker per edition.

But the issue created an opportunity for me to write about the difference between news and advertising.

Advertising is part of our job at the Eastern Shore Post. Some members of our staff are professionals at finding creative, effective marketing and advertising solutions. We take that job seriously.

Other members of our staff are professionals at reporting about local news, people, and issues in an effective, readable, even-handed way. We take that job seriously, too.

But those jobs don't intermingle — one of the basic tenets of journalism is that advertising does not dictate news coverage or content.

People get upset when they believe news objectivity has been compromised. That's why professional journalists don't take political sides. They maintain an arm's-length relationship with anyone seeking to influence the news.

Professional journalists like those at the Eastern Shore Post don't have campaign signs in their yards or political bumper stickers on their cars. They strive to be objective and independent in their reporting.

However, our newspaper will eagerly help any candidate — or person, business, or organization — who wants to pay for our promotional, marketing, and advertising services.

Whether you are selling a home, advertising an oyster roast, or promoting a political candidate, we specialize in getting your message in front of everyone on the Eastern Shore and beyond at a reasonable price.

There's a big difference between advertisements, (which can be purchased) and news content, which cannot be bought or sold. And while I understand those who argue for the sacredness of the front page, all advertisements ensure our print publication remains free. We have to pay the print bill somehow.

Editorials and opinions

Our newspaper also has a newly revamped editorial section. It is where we print your opinion letters and guest columns.

We also write each week a paper-position editorial — essentially the opinion of the newspaper and its leaders.

These paper-position editorials can do many things — give congratulations, encourage community action, promote critical thinking, or offer an opinion that acts in the best interest of the Eastern Shore and its people.

If you agree or disagree with one, please feel free to write a letter to the editor and keep the community discussion going.

The majority of letters in recent months have centered on the U.S. House of Representatives race. That election is Tuesday.

It is my hope that, after Tuesday, our letters to the editor section returns to being a place to debate even more local issues.

Writer has reasons why he is voting Republican

To the editor:

Here are the reasons I am voting Republican:

We have Democratic majorities. They are directly responsible for the mess we are in.

I farm. My expenses more than doubled this year. It is not just the $2.29 fuel the public saw go to $5, but other inputs like fertilizer potash, which went from $238 per ton to $750 per ton, a 231% increase. This is just one example.

I have served for more than 20 years on the board of directors of A&N Electric Cooperative. The supply chain is in a crisis, bucket trucks must be ordered two to three years in advance, and the Democratic energy policy has made your bill go up.

Beat the Peak means we don't have a great excess of electricity. It has been totally crazy to destroy the fossil fuel industry by subsidies with taxpayer money, put millions out of jobs, think we can double the number of power plants, rebuild the electric grid, rewire buildings, and buy five essential elements from China, which has 85 percent of the world's supply.

I rest my case. I have no other choice but to vote Republican.

Liz Cheney one of the 'few' Republicans with 'morals'

To the editor:

I have been reading the letters to the editor for the past couple of weeks and agree with most of them.

I am a Democrat and voted for President Joe Biden and Vice President Kamala Harris. I'm not impressed with the job they have done.

I've also noticed that some of these people who write letters to the editor only tell half the story.

It is the worst recession in 40 years — that is correct. In 1982, Ronald Reagan was president. Do your research and deliver the facts.

In the last 100 years, we have had 20 recessions. Thirteen of them a Republican was in the White House. I did like Reagan and Vice President George H.W. Bush. I wasn't crazy about President Jimmy Carter.

If Liz Cheney ran in 2024, it would be the first time I voted Republican. She's one of the few who has any morals.

As far as the border, that's been a mess for at least 50 years — and, yes, it has gotten a lot worse. But neither party has a solution. I'm all ears. Don't complain. What is the solution?

Regardless of who is in the White House in a couple of years, this mess isn't going away anytime soon. There are too many whackjobs with nuclear weapons. It's just a matter of time.

As my wife says, "It's all in the Bible."

I just feel sorry for our grandchildren.

Luria has served the Eastern Shore well

How the cold chain works to keep our food safe and delicious

Imagine you are a green bean.

Your seed has sprouted, your plant prospered under bright sunlight and drenching rains, you flowered and began to grow. (You didn't need bees to pollinate your flowers because you are self-pollinating, and the less about that, the better.) You've grown into a mature bean, chock full of moisture, nutrients, vitamins, fiber, and other good things.

David Lozell Martin

Then you're plucked.

Your deterioration begins immediately. On the vine you were 90% moisture but you quickly lose water and 10% of your weight. Micro-organisms held at bay while you were still attached to the vine begin growing. Within a few hours, you go from being fresh as a daisy (or fresh as a green bean) to starting a journey with a final destination that is unappetizing, mushy, and lacking in nutrients.

Fear not. Cold chain to the rescue. According to ScienceDirect: "The cold chain is a term applied to food handling and distribution where the product is maintained at suitable temperature conditions all the way from harvesting, through the cooling or freezing process to the point of sale. This requires transport, various kinds of storage and display. The nature of the cold chain varies from product to product."

The cold chain in the U.S. is so effective that you, as a green bean, might be picked in a northern state, get processed, be trucked to the South, and still never spend more than two hours at temperatures above 45 degrees.

Most of that above-45-degree time was spent rushing you from the field to a super-cooling process. Simply putting you in a fridge would not be enough.

It might take 10 hours for you to lose your field heat and get down to a temperature low enough to stop deterioration. Super-cooling using cold water baths or icy air blown over you will bring your temperature down to safe levels within two hours.

Once you are at the proper low temperature, the transportation and distribution systems take over. If you're in a truck, you're kept cold. If you are stored while waiting for the next stage of the journey, that storage room is kept cold.

And finally, you are brought into a supermarket, which continues to monitor your temperature until you are sold to a consumer who buys a green bean at 2 p.m. that is essentially as fresh as one picked at noon.

The world without a cold chain, such as in Rwanda, is quite different.

Much of the food in that country is grown on small farms and then transported to markets on bicycles or in unrefrigerated trucks.

According to a New Yorker article by Nicola Twilley, farmers in Rwanda will carry fresh milk in pails to a nearby road and will pour that milk into steel cans with a capacity of about 13 gallons — fixed to a bicycle pedaled by the local milk collector.

Twilley writes that, globally, "1.6 billion tons of food are wasted every year" and nearly a third of that could be saved by the cold chain. That's enough to feed almost a billion people.

And in Rwanda, "where fewer than one in five infants and toddlers eat ... the minimum acceptable diet, such wastage is a matter of life and death."

about funding going to where the need is greatest.

The best example of this is the $8,245,000 grant awarded to replace a worn-out 911 communications system here on the Shore. This, by the way, was the largest single grant in the country.

Another much needed project is the New Road Legacy project for which Elaine Luria was instrumental in securing $500,000 for Phase II.

The $2,500,000 award for the Eastern Shore Rails to Trails Project will open up countless possibilities for tourism, one of the Shore's greatest industries, impacting the local economy in myriad ways.

These projects are three among many that Luria has stepped up and supported — projects that help residents of the Eastern Shore in very real ways.

Speaking of the 911 Communications grant, Accomack County Administrator Mike Mason said in this publication on April 22, 2022, that in his 31 years with the county, "I have never, ever received as much independent support from the congresswoman or any federal legislator, and her staff as we received on this project — and it really makes a difference here and will make a difference going forward."

She has worked tirelessly for her constituency here, therefore I urge all who live on the Shore to cast your ballot for Luria so that she can continue her service to you.

Luria has worked hard to help the Eastern Shore

To the editor:

U.S. Rep. Elaine Luria has been a very effective representative for us for two terms. We need to keep her in Congress.

Google "Elaine Luria Eastern Shore Post" for a fuller description of the things she has done for us all.

Some include funding a state-of-the-art regional public radio system to improve communication with first responders and law enforcement and phase two of the legacy project providing affordable housing on the Eastern Shore.

She also has supported the Eastern Shore Rails to Trails project, works to strengthen Social Security and Medicare, and works to keep funding for a continued Chesapeake Bay cleanup.

Luria wants to make coastal Virginia a leader in clean energy, voted to increase the federal minimum wage, and wrote and passed legislation that provided a pay increase for disabled veterans.

She introduced the Chincoteague water well replacement act, which is now in committee. She sponsored the Veterans Compensation Cost of Living Adjustment of 2022, which became public law on Oct. 10 of this year.

She works for and supports our military and for strengthening our national defense.

Research these and her many other accomplishments and satisfy yourself that we need and want Luria as our congresswoman.

Luria works hard for us on the Eastern Shore and the entire 2nd District. Please vote for Luria on or before Nov. 8.

Operation Blue Wave results in area arrests

From Oct. 20 to Oct. 21, local law enforcement collectively conducted Operation Blue Wave in an effort to boost police presence and to focus on specific areas of operation, which included traffic patrol and enforcement, service of outstanding warrants, adult and juvenile probation initiatives, and jail cell safety.

Those who participated in this operation were the Virginia State Police, Northampton and Accomack County sheriff's offices, the Eastern Shore Drug Task Force, the Adult Probation Office, Virginia Marine Police, the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel Police, Pre-Trial Services, Juvenile Court Services, the Eastern Shore Regional Jail, Accomack County Jail, as well as local police departments to include Bloxom, Cape Charles, Chincoteague, Eastville, Exmore, Onancock, Onley, and Parksley.

Seven jail cell searches were conducted, 21 arrest warrants were served, three on-site arrests were made, and 80 home visits were completed.

Through various checkpoints, increased patrol on the highway, as well as in local towns, and via commercial vehicle inspections, 374 summonses were issued, 213 of those being speeding violations and one DUI.

There were a total of 17 checking details and DUI checkpoints performed.

Festive Fridays light up Cape Charles

Cape Charles Main Street has raised enough funds through an appeal to corporate-level sponsors to light up the town for Festive Fridays this year.

This series of family-friendly free Friday night events will be better than ever with professionally installed twinkle lights on almost all the trees lining Mason Avenue in historic Cape Charles, according to event co-chairs Julie Crouse and Tara Ashworth.

"This year's events on Nov. 25, Dec.

2, 9 and 16 from 5 to 8 p.m. will be the best yet," Crouse said.

"The committee is working hard to create Cape Charles Candy Cane Lane to delight residents and visitors."

Children can meet and talk to Santa and Mrs. Claus and send letters to the big man at the Cape Charles Memorial Library on select Fridays. There will be face painters and balloon twisters for the youngsters, and live music, shopping, and dining specials for adults.

Teresa "Tita" deGavre

Mrs. Teresa "Tita" deGavre died peacefully at her home, Deep Creek Plantation, on Oct. 1, 2022. She was 108.

Tita was born in May 1914 in Oxford, England, the daughter of Gordon McLeod Cameron, a highly decorated officer in the Royal Navy, and Theresa Knowles Cameron. She grew up in Hayling Island in the south of England, sailing and exploring the island's marshes. At an early age she became what would be termed today "a naturalist," perhaps a tomboy, with salt-water flowing through her veins.

Oliver Thompson, an officer with the Royal Sussex Regiment. She had first met him in 1928 on leave from India at his family home at Castlegarde in Ireland. They settled in Fairford in the Cotswolds and had two children, Timothy born in 1938 and Robert in 1940.

Following declaration of war in 1939, Oliver was sent to Northern France where he was badly wounded and evacuated through Dunkirk. Tita hoped that his war was over, but that was not to be. In 1943, he was ordered to North Africa as commander of a battalion of the East Surrey Regiment. A year later, now in Italy, Lt. Colonel "Tommy" Thompson led his soldiers in a bloody cross-river assault on Monte Cassino. He was awarded Britain's second highest medal, the DSO (Distinguished Service Order), which was later personally given by King George VI to his son, Timothy, in Buckingham Palace.

In early June, he was killed in action near Rome. In recent years, Tita would recall the agony of coming downstairs at her home in Fairford and seeing on the dining room table a yellow telegram from the Ministry of Defense.

The war years were tough. Rationing made it difficult to feed her two boys. She joined laborers in the fields harvesting vegetables.

In 1946, Tita met Chet deGavre, a colonel in the U.S. Army, at a dance at a British military base. Chet was smitten and in the days that followed searched the nearby towns for the "widow Thompson." One Sunday afternoon he appeared at her Fairford home bearing a gift, a miniature shorebird that he had carved.

Chet totally captivated Tita and in 1949 they were married near his home in New Jersey. As an Army wife, Tita lived in many locations. She remembered most fondly her years in Ethiopia – exploring, hunting, and camping in remote parts of the country. Tita painted, rode a donkey for days to the sunken churches of Lalibela, collected Coptic Christian crosses, fed her pet gazelles, dazzled the diplomatic parties, and dismissed the machine guns and mortars set up in her yard when the Ethiopian Army revolted.

In 1959, Tita purchased Deep Creek Plantation at auction. Deep Creek became her home and a dream realized. After Chet – now a brigadier general – retired in 1963, they both threw themselves into its restoration. Tita painted, wall-papered, embroidered, and created a magnificent garden of roses and flowers. Recognized for her experiments with organic gardening and the propagation of plants, she was awarded the coveted Horticulture Award of Merit from the Garden Club of Virginia. The president of the Garden Club later wrote that "her striking beauty is something seen from the inside out."

Chet – besides pursuing his carving of waterfowl miniatures – built book cabinets and reproduction antique furniture and moved dilapidated ancient barns and dwellings onto the property and restored them. Deep Creek Plantation became the star attraction of the annual Garden Week tour. And squeezed among these busy days was time spent on the water boating, raising honeybees and sheep, enjoying their grandchildren, and worshipping at St. James Episcopal Church where Tita served for many years as its Warden. These were very fulfilling times for both of them. And Chet and Tita adored and greatly respected each other.

As the years passed, Chet's health and mobility declined. His hands could no longer paint his miniature waterfowl carvings. In 1993 Chet passed away.

Many years later, she re-met Don Paradis whom she and Chet had known in Ethiopia. He nurtured Tita's intellect and love for classical music. She moved into his retirement home in Collington, Md., in 2005, returning one week each month to her beloved Deep Creek. Five years later Don passed away and Tita promptly returned home.

In June 2018, Tita injured her hip and subsequently was confined to bed at Deep Creek. A group of exceptional ladies lovingly cared for her. Though physically diminished, she attracted universal warmth and respect. As Tita's minister wrote, "I so loved (her) clarity, her self-critical and inquisitive mind and such a passion for the life she inhabited, even as it has been in these later years."

Tita remained to the very end an original. It has been a God-given privilege for all who met her to have known her.

She is survived by her two sons, five grandchildren, a step-grandchild, and eight great-grandchildren.

A memorial celebration of her life will be held Friday, Nov. 11, 2022, at 11 a.m., at St. James' Episcopal Church in Accomac.

Tita asked that if friends wish to make a memorial gift in her name, please consider the Eastern Shore SPCA, P.O. Box 164, Onley, VA 23418.

Memory tributes may be shared with the family at www.williamsfuneralhomes.com

Arrangements are by the Williams-Onancock Funeral Home.

Corey Monroe Salmon

Mr. Corey Monroe Salmon passed away on Friday, Oct. 28, 2022, at Chesapeake Regional Medical Center. Corey had been a resident of Chesapeake, Va., since 2003 but still considered the Eastern Shore and the town of Parksley "home."

Corey spent his life helping others in many different ways. As a teen, Corey began serving in the Parksley Volunteer Fire Department. He spent years helping people during their greatest time of need, as both a first responder for fire and EMT calls, and through his work as a 911 dispatcher. Corey's work in Chesapeake, while very different, was just as rewarding for him. He worked as a charter bus driver, and later as a safety manager for both Fun Tours and Venture. This work allowed Corey to travel, spend some time on the road, and meet so many people.

To know Corey was to love Corey and to always laugh. Corey had a great sense of humor and loved a good joke and an even better prank. He was affectionately known by friends on the Eastern Shore as "Flounder." Many may remember his time as a radio DJ and sports reporter, "Flounder, the Sports Dude." Corey's love of sports, especially baseball, led him to coach for many years at Nandua High School and for a travel ball team. He LOVED the sport of baseball and cheering for his beloved Atlanta Braves. Corey enjoyed so many things — golf, NASCAR, pulling those slot machine handles at any casino, and placing bets on the horses.

Corey's greatest love and accomplishment was his family. His move to Chesapeake led to marriage and starting a family. Corey is survived by his wife of 17 years, Tina; his 16-year-old son, Noah; and his loyal yellow lab, Brody. His favorite thing was time spent with Tina and Noah, just doing the simple things — an afternoon drive to grab ice cream, watching "Christmas Vacation" to start the holiday season every year, driving around nearby neighborhoods to look at Christmas lights, and vacationing in the Outer Banks every summer. Corey loved introducing Noah to what he called "good music" which included Pink Floyd, Journey, and the Eagles.

Corey is also survived by a brother, Christopher Contreras. He was predeceased by his mother, Anne Hope Contreras (Shreaves); stepfather, Luis Contreras; and grandparents, Irving and Audrey Shreaves.

A service to celebrate Corey's life will be held at the Parksley Volunteer Fire Company on Sunday, Nov. 6, 2022, at 2 p.m., with George Fulk officiating.

Contributions in Corey's memory may be made to the Parksley Volunteer Fire Company, P.O. Box 14, Parksley, VA 23421.

C. M. Williams Jr.

Mr. Carlisle Mister “C. M.” Williams Jr., a native of the town of Painter on the Eastern Shore of Virginia, passed away early on the morning of Oct. 28, 2022, at his home in Falmouth, Stafford County, Va.

Mr. Williams

A “baysider” born on his grandparents’ farm, his family moved from Painter to Onancock when he was 12. C. M. graduated from Onancock High School in 1955, and from East Carolina University in Greenville, N.C., where he attained a B.A. in business administration in 1960.

An Eagle Scout, he lived by the morals and values of scouting his entire life. We all heard many stories of attending the Boy Scout Jamboree in California with his brother Johnny in 1953, crossing the country by train. He was a lifelong Methodist and member of Fredericksburg United Methodist Church.

C. M. served as Accomack County’s first administrator from 1966 to 1983, moving on to what he termed the “high woods” of Stafford County, serving there as county administrator from 1984 to 2003.

He was not one to seek recognition but received many accolades throughout his professional life including Goldey-Beacom College Distinguished Alum, and Doctor of Humane Letters Degree from Mary Washington College and the Monroe Medal, both in 2003. He considered one of his greatest accomplishments, joining with others to acquire George Washington’s Boyhood Home “Ferry Farm” so current and future generations would have access to an important segment of our nation’s history.

He was integral in bringing the long envisioned 1,000-foot runway extension at Stafford Regional Airport to fruition and having Stafford County’s Government Island placed on the National Register of Historic Places and the Virginia Landmarks Register. His commitment to not only the present and future of his county but the past as well was evident in his being responsible for the installation of a history wall at Stafford Hospital depicting Stafford County history and his encouragement of the Stafford County Historical Society to have a museum in which to showcase the county’s rich history.

While he did not possess the need to be recognized for accomplishments throughout his life, perhaps sharing the following would be most important to C. M.’s legacy: his wish of wanting us all to be kind, honest, and always striving to do our best.

His survivors include his wife, Barbara Schuyler Williams; his son and daughter, Carlisle Mister “Carl” Williams III and his wife, Kim, of Mechanicsville, Va., and Valerie Taylor Williams Smith, of Onancock; a sister, Carla Lynn Williams Lloyd, of Onancock; two brothers, John Tankard “Johnny” Williams, of Parksley, and Brian “Craig” Williams, of Onancock; sisters-in-law, Maxine Turlington Williams, of Glen Allen, Va., and Dawn Elisabeth Engen and her husband, Gunnar, of Chesapeake, Va.; two stepsons, Andrew Downs Henderson III, and James Tarleton “Jim” Henderson and his wife, Tisha, all of Stafford, Va.; grandchildren, Brittany Taylor Biggers (Chad), of Minneapolis, Minn., Paige Spencer Smith, of Fredericksburg, Va., Taylor Williams Murphy (Patrick), of Mechanicsville, Schuyler Custis Henderson, of Arlington, Va., Carlisle Mister “C. J.” Williams IV, of Mechanicsville, Jackson Cole Henderson, of Pasadena, Md., and Wyatt James Henderson, of Stafford; the mother of his children, Dolly Taylor Williams, of Onancock; and several nieces, nephews, cousins, and their families.

C. M. was predeceased by his parents, Carlisle Mister Williams and Evelyn Hickman Williams; a sister, Evelyn “Lorraine” Williams; a brother, Thomas Wayne “Tommy” Williams; and a sister-in-law, Peggy Gray Williams.

A funeral service to celebrate his life and faith will be held Saturday, Nov. 5, 2022, at 3 p.m., from Fredericksburg United Methodist Church, 308 Hanover St., Fredericksburg, VA 22401, with a reception following.

A graveside service will be held Sunday, Nov. 6, 2022, at 1 p.m., from the Fairview Lawn Cemetery, Hill Street, Onancock, VA 23417, with a reception to follow.

Memorial donations in C. M.’s memory may be made to Fredericksburg United Methodist Church, 308 Hanover St., Fredericksburg, VA 22401, or to Micah Ecumenical Ministries, 1013 Princess Anne St., Fredericksburg, VA 22401.

Memory tributes may be shared with his family at www.williamsfuneralhomes.com

TANGIER

Drug-treatment program funded by federal opioid settlement

BY CAROL VAUGHN
 Eastern Shore Post

The Accomack County Board of Supervisors approved an agreement with the Eastern Shore Community Services Board to use funds from a nationwide legal settlement with opioid manufacturers and distributors to pay for drug treatment for Tangier residents.

The one-year pilot program includes three new full-time positions, roundtrip air transportation from Tangier to the mainland Eastern Shore for Tangier residents seeking substance abuse treatment, and purchase of computers and other equipment.

The county will contribute $116,675 to the program, with the money coming from settlement funds it receives.

The total annual cost for the program is expected to be $247,031, with $130,356 coming from the ESCSB.

The ESCSB is to provide the county progress reports and a monthly accounting of expenditures.

The ESCSB will contract with an independent pilot to provide air travel to and from Tangier.

Treatment will be provided at a mobile clinic set up at Eastern Shore Community College, near the Melfa airport.

The goal is to offer high-quality treatment to Tangier residents so that they can participate “actively and regularly” in outpatient treatment, according to the program narrative.

The funds may be used for other opioid treatment in the county if demand for services on Tangier is less than anticipated.

ESCSB Executive Director Mimi Sedjat said in August the organization currently is providing drug treatment services to six Tangier residents.

A federal judicial panel in 2017 consolidated all federal opioid-related litigation into a single piece of litigation, described as the most complex civil case in the nation’s history.

A memorandum of understanding between the commonwealth of Virginia and cities and counties allocated funds from the settlement to each locality.

Early Detection is Key!

The earlier lung cancer is detected the easier it is to treat.

Lung cancer is the second most common form of cancer for both men and women in the United States. More people die of lung cancer than breast, colon and prostate cancers combined.

Screen for Lung Cancer with Low Dose CT (LDCT)

LDCT screening finds lung cancer sooner, before you have any signs or symptoms.

Performed annually, LDCT is used to detect lung cancer at an earlier stage when it is easier to treat. A LDCT scan is for individuals who have no symptoms but are at high risk because of their smoking history and age.

This screening only takes a few minutes and is not painful.

Talk to your health care provider if:

- You are between 50 and 80 years old
- You have smoked an average of one pack a day for 20 years AND
- You are currently smoking or quit less than 15 years ago

EASTERN SHORE FISHING REPORT

A portion of the speckled trout population has begun to leave its late summer hangouts inside the creeks and marshes and has moved into the open waters of the bay and seaside inlets.

This early segment of the fall migration should take a couple of weeks to complete, depending on how quickly the water temperatures decline. Anglers are hoping the predicted warm temperatures of early November will delay the trout migration to more southern waters, at least until the arrival of the trophy striped bass into the Chesapeake Bay from the more northern waters.

Bill Hall

Offshore, wreck fishing still takes center stage as black sea bass fishing continues to be very productive over some of the lesser-fished wrecks.

Chincoteague

Jimmy Vasiliou, at Captain Steve's Bait and Tackle, said the first trophy striped bass action in the surf began early in the week, as a 48-inch rockfish was released off Assateague Island on Monday. Recent surf action has been good with catches of large kingfish (whiting) and bluefish.

Angling action inside Chincoteague Bay has been mostly for flounder, while catches of tautog have come from the around the bridge pilings and over rough bottom.

The offshore wrecks are producing catches of large seabass, while the inshore wrecks hold small- to medium-sized seabass, tautog, and a few remaining ribbonfish.

Wachapreague

Captain Lindsay Paul, at Trident Tackle, said there were a "few flounder still around," but most of the recent flatfish have been short of the legal size limit. He said that speckled trout and puppy drum were still around, but the fishing pressure has been on the light side. Paul added that the offshore wrecks are still producing some "nice-sized" black sea bass. He summed up the state of fishing out of Wachapreague as "fishing pressure is slowly fading as it is getting to be that time of the year."

Chincoteague

Dez Louie, at Oceans East – Eastern Shore, reported the inshore fishery continues to garner most of the local anglers' attention. Speckled trout, puppy drum, flounder, and small striped bass have begun making their way out of the creeks and marshes and are now being found in the Chesapeake Bay and seaside inlet waters.

Anglers are still reporting lots of undersized speckled trout, a few slot-sized puppy drum, and some legal-sized striped bass in the mix of available species. Anglers fishing soft artificials slowly and close to the bottom are also picking a few keeper flounder. Anglers targeting flounder specifically are enjoying some success by slowly drifting live minnows along the bottom.

Structure-loving tautog and sheepshead are still available around the islands and pilings of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel, as well along the concrete ships off Kiptopeke.

Offshore, the black sea bass fishery continues to provide limit catches of medium to large seabass, especially from deep water wrecks that have not received substantial fishing pressure. Louie specifically mentioned the Triangle Reef as a recently productive site. Lower Shore anglers are eagerly awaiting the arrival of the catch-and-release trophy striped bass fishery, but the arrival of the larger fish does not typically happen before the week of Thanksgiving.

Jeb Brady, of Bailey's Bait & Tackle, admitted that last week's weather was not great, but he added that determined anglers were still able to get out in pursuit of speckled trout and puppy drum.

The bite continues to slow with the falling water temperatures and anglers using soft plastics and Mirrolures were still able to find some keeper-sized fish along the Chesapeake Bay beaches from Cape Charles to the bridge-tunnel.
