Cheriton Fires Police Chief

Mayor won't comment citing 'personnel matter'

By Stefanie Jackson

Cheriton Police Chief Marc Marshall's contract was terminated Wednesday night in a 5 to 1 vote by the town council at a special meeting called by Mayor Larry LeMond.

Council members discussed the personnel matter in closed session before returning to open session for the vote.

The motion as stated Wednesday night was "that the town of Cheriton terminate the employment of the Chief of Police Marc Marshall within the terms of the contract dated Oct. 9, 2017. This is an at-will contract of employment. As such, either party may terminate the contract at any time for any lawful reason by giving a 30-day notice. He is currently on leave with pay and will continue until Sept. 28, 2018."

LeMond had confirmed to the Eastern Shore Post Wednesday morning that Marshall was placed on paid administrative leave pending further investigation.

"This is a personnel matter and I will not and cannot discuss this issue further," LeMond wrote in an email Wednesday. Neither did he provide additional comment when he confirmed on Thursday that Marshall had been fired.

Councilman Wesley Travis, who cast the opposing vote, could not be reached for comment. Marshall did not return a reporter's phone call Thursday.

Northampton County Sheriff David Doughty confirmed the sheriff's department will continue to provide police enforcement in Cheriton until the town says otherwise, as the sheriff's department has done since before Marshall before became the Cheriton police chief. Marshall was the sole member of the police force that was formed last year.

Permits Ready for Island Jetty

By Linda Cicoira

Permits have been approved that would allow the Army Corps of Engineers to construct a $3 million seawall to help protect the western side of Tangier Island from storms. Work is set to begin in 2018 and be completed next year.

The news was brought to island officials and residents by Rep. Scott Taylor last Friday as he spoke at an outdoor pavilion on Tangier.

"The (six-year) federal permitting process is done," Taylor said. "It's approved. I bring good news. I understand how vital that is for you guys, for our way of life out here, for the waterman, for this working harbor."

"Very encouraging for the folks," said Mayor James "Ooker" Eskridge, who talked to President Donald Trump by phone about the issue in 2017 and later visited Washington for the effort.

"It's important to Tangier," the mayor said. "It's vital. It's our major concern out here. It's really some of the best news we could get. Protecting the island is first and foremost in everybody's mind. ... It's great. I think everybody will rest easier," Eskridge said.

Taylor said he expects Gov. Ralph Northam to visit the island soon and talk about "the state's share and that approval. We're going to get that jetty in now."

"What great news for our beautiful Island and it shows what can happen when all levels of government work together," was the statement on the island's Facebook page. "We appreciate Delegate (Robert) Bloxom and Congressman Taylor coming out to share the news with our residents. Would also like to thank the mayor, council members, and residents that took time out of their schedules to come. Also, we would like to thank Accomack County Sheriffs Department for always helping in getting people to the island" on the department's boat.

"I'm pretty sure the mayor has another project for me to start pushing," Taylor said. "We'll talk to the mayor for the next step."

Clarification

An article in last week's edition of the Eastern Shore Post stated that on Sept. 6, Cape Charles Town Council will attend a work session in which "the Vandeventer Black firm will brief the council on the town's annexation agreement with Brown & Root Inc. that made the area now known as Bay Creek part of Cape Charles."

Several annexation agreements were made prior to the annexation order dated Nov. 26, 1991. The area referred to as Bay Creek encompasses two tracts of land. The north tract originally was part of Cape Charles and includes the subdivisions of The Colony, Kings Bay, and Marina Village East, as well as Kings Creek Marina and other properties. The south tract includes golf courses and sports complexes along with other planned subdivisions.

Northampton School Division Wants To Build on SOL Successes

By Stefanie Jackson

Northampton Schools Superintendent Eddie Lawrence recently shared the “phenomenal” news that three of the four county schools are accredited, but, rather than rest on its laurels, the school board is seeking to build on that success and achieve accreditation across the entire division.

Northampton Middle School is currently the only public school in the county accredited with conditions. School board members agreed that improving Standards of Learning (SOL) performance and achieving accreditation at every school starts with better reading skills.

The reading intervention primarily used in Northampton schools is a computer program called Read 180, which uses nonfiction texts to help students improve their reading comprehension.

But Lawrence said research indicates a session with Read 180 must be at least 60 minutes long to be effective. The longest exercise in the Read 180 program is 52 minutes.

As a possible alternative to Read 180, Lawrence suggested the Leveled Literacy Intervention, designed for daily, small-group instruction. The system has seven levels targeted at struggling readers in kindergarten through 12th grade.

Whatever reading intervention is chosen, the key to success is ensuring it is “implemented and used with fidelity ... not two times a week every other week,” Lawrence said.

“We need to double our efforts to get that middle school across that finish line,” Lawrence continued. “This year’s the year ... it isn’t an impossible dream,” he assured the school board.

School board member Randy Parks said students’ attitudes toward their education play a role in their success.

He suggested principals may need a refresher course in what he dubbed “Scheduling 101.” Math and reading classes should be scheduled early in the day when students’ minds are fresh, Lawrence said.

Assistant Superintendent Annette Gray-Thomas said that by November of the current school year, work should begin on the master schedule for the following school year.

School board member Maxine Rasmussen said by the time teachers and students leave school for the summer, they should already know what they will teach and learn when they come back in the fall.

Early in the scheduling process, “non-negotiables” should be addressed, such as the 12 teachers shared by the high school and middle school, Lawrence said.

But first and foremost, the high school and middle school principals simply should “talk to each other ... that’s the part that’s missing,” he concluded.

Northampton Schools’ Cooperation with Area Church

The Rev. Russell Goodrich of Cape Charles Baptist Church thanked the school board for allowing 120 Impact Virginia volunteers to stay and use the facilities at Northampton High School for a week this summer.

Impact Virginia is a program sponsored by the Baptist General Association of Virginia for teens who donate their time and effort repairing homes of low-income families.

Goodrich also informed the school board of another program in which his church participates, Adopt-a-Block. It is a nondenominational program that seeks to build relationships with people in the community while meeting their needs.

Beginning Sept. 18, Adopt-a-Block volunteers will hold an after-school program at Cape Charles Baptist Church once a week from 3:30 p.m. to 6:15 p.m. for children who live in town and attend grades 1 to 3 at Kiptopeke Elementary School.

Children will participate in fun activities while learning core values and gaining “better attitudes towards life and education,” Goodrich said.

Impact Virginia will focus future repair efforts on the homes of participating children.

Students can ride the school bus to the church and their parents will be responsible to pick them up.

If the program is successful, it may be expanded to involve students in higher grades and churches in other parts of Northampton.

For more information, contact Cape Charles Baptist Church at 757-331-2110.

Readers Remember Favorite Teachers in Back-to-School Survey

By Linda Cicaira

When one looks back on former school days, a favorite teacher always seems to come to mind. These instructors are role models, mentors, nurturers, and listeners. They provide comfortable environments and look for signs of trouble.

For Terry Ewell, of Clam, that teacher was Emily Wescott at Parksley High School. "She taught English and it would take hours just to parse five sentences for homework," said Ewell in an answer to an email survey conducted by the Eastern Shore Post. "I ended up loving English grammar and I have a degree in communication and writing."

"Miss Wescott was such a character," Ewell continued. "When miniskirts came in fashion, she would pretend to swoon and hide her face behind a newspaper when a certain classmate minced up to the blackboard in her really mini-miniskirt. And sometimes, she would throw the window up and hang her head out the window until this girl finished and sat down."

"Miss Wescott was sooooo not politically correct and I'm sorry we don't have more people like her today who are not afraid to speak their minds, stand up for their beliefs," wrote Ewell.

Meredith Parlett, of New Church, said Earl Major was her favorite teacher. "When I didn't understand something, he took the time to help me individually."

Her children are excited about going back to school next week. "My oldest is a senior this year." My youngest said he "is ready to start learning again."

Parlett "loved biology and was actually an EMT at 15. I also thought I wanted to be a stockbroker or in business. After working as a paramedic for several years, I now work in accounting, so I kind of got to do both." Her youngest child's favorite subject is math. Her oldest prefers history, science, and automotive.

Amber Evans, of Machipongo, said her favorite teacher was Mrs. Christine Tankard. "She made learning fun with her songs," Evans explained. Tankard taught math at Northampton High School.

Shirley Christian, of Melfa, said Sister Cecilia was her pick for best teacher. "She taught math and I loved it," Christian said. Math and music were her favorite subjects. "Loved to do both."

Christian's great-granddaughter is looking forward to returning to school. "She loves to learn and meet friends." Christian said the girl's favorite subject is probably "playtime."

Stefanie Jackson, of Pungoteague, said Mrs. Kuntz, her third-grade teacher, was her favorite. "She was very kind and was never mean or raised her voice to the class."

At first, Jackson said spelling was her top choice "because it was my best subject. I always got a 100 on my spelling tests. Then spelling was no longer its own subject and I was sad. English became my new favorite subject because I always loved to read and write stories."

"If I had to guess, I would say my daughter prefers reading, because she loves books, too. I would say my son likes science. He loves learning about how things work and how animals live and grow and survive."

"The only thing that really excites my kids about going back to school is seeing their friends," Jackson said. "My daughter pretty much likes all her teachers."

Angie H. Crutchley, of Exmore, had several favorite teachers. "Mrs. Murphy bought my first piece of art for $5. It was a clay frog. Ms. Annis was a straight shooter and hilarious. Ms. Miracle just brought me a picture this year of me from 1st grade. Ms. Haynes taught me how to multiply and had fun ways of teaching. She later became my neighbor. Also a neighbor, Mr. Smaw was my art teacher and I loved that he would give us Mentos. But my favorite teacher of all was my mommy. She was a teacher, now retired, and I never had her in the classroom, but her lessons have kept me alive for 39 years.”

Crutchley said she “liked journalism and English. I’ve had some affiliation with a newspaper (on and off) for 25 years or more. I was even in the newspaper club in middle school. I liked writing so that was a legitimate outlet where I could find a job, and I did.”

“My stepdaughter, Devon, liked music (piano) and she was great,” Crutchley added. “She also enjoys psychology.”

“I played extracurricular basketball and did gymnastics as a kid,” Crutchley said. “I got 3rd place in the Elks Hoop-Shoot Contest. I was more of a nerdling. The only letter I ever got was in academics.”

Connie Morrison, of Onancock, credits her fourth grade music teacher, Mrs. Haynes, at Jefferson Elementary in Norman, Okla., for her love of music. “She taught us songs that were popular and songs that were useful. I can still recite all 50 states in alphabetical order because she taught us ‘50 Nifty United States.’ I’ve won some bets with that skill,” she said. The down side is “song lyrics, like ‘Do You Know the Way to San Jose?’ occupy about 92.3 percent of my brain capacity at the expense of important things like my co-workers’ names.”

She also remembers sixth grade teacher, Mr. Lynn, at Newell Elementary just outside Charlotte, N.C., for the life lesson, “Nothing is free. Somebody has to pay for it.”

Her own children’s interests are varied: physics, supply chain logistics, and psychology are the fields of her oldest three. Her youngest, Meg, is a senior at Nandua High and plans to study musical theater in college.

Denise Bowden, of Chincoteague, has three favorites — Joan Bull, Missy Holland, and Sue Nelson Matthews. “The best of the best!” Bowden’s favorite subject was “history because the first time my parents took me to Williamsburg and I touched a chair that George Washington sat in, I was hooked.”

She was also involved in softball and volleyball. “Loved every single second of it,” she said.

Sam Serio, of Melfa, said his kid is “ec-static” about going back to school. The teacher he is most looking forward to seeing is James Lawrence who teaches marketing. “He challenges him,” Serio said.

Serio’s favorite teacher was Ken Steiner. “He shamed me into achieving higher grades.” His favorite subjects were “English literature and composition. I had a knack for it.” His son favors “sports marketing.” Both he and his son were involved in sports.

Kimberly Perry, of Greenbush, picked Deborah Rouse as her favorite teacher. “She was also so sweet and caring, even outside of the classroom.” Perry liked math. “I enjoyed using equations, etc., to figure out problems.”

Robert Doughty, of South Chesconessex, said Nick Savage, a biology teacher at Bayside High School, in Virginia Beach, was his favorite and was voted No. 1 in the area a few times. “Also Professor Earnest Epley taught me physics in college. He had previously worked on the Manhattan Project. They both had a way of teaching that held your interest and gripped your imagination.”

“My kids are out of school,” wrote C.L. Marshall, of Pocomoke, Md. “My wife is a teacher. I’m very excited school is back in.” He said he loved band camp.

So long, summer!

Our office will be closed Monday, Sept. 3, in observance of Labor Day. Have a safe and happy holiday.

Mechanical Fire at Parksley-Area Poultry House

By Linda Cicaira

A mechanical shop positioned at the end of a row of poultry houses on Christine Street north of Parksley was fully involved with fire when firefighters arrived at the scene last Saturday afternoon, according to Chief Willie Kirkpatrick of Parksley Volunteer Fire Company Inc.

An estimated 30,000 to 35,000 gallons of water was used to battle the blaze, Kirkpatrick said. Firefighters from Parksley, Bloxom, Tasley, Onancock, Melfa, Atlantic, and the county department of public safety responded. Oak Hall Rescue also came to the scene.

Kirkpatrick said there were no injuries and none of the nearby structures was damaged.

It took approximately 45 minutes to control the fire. Firefighters were at the site until about 5 p.m. The cause has not been determined.

Rocket Launch Set for Sept. 7

By Linda Cicaira

The ASPIRE, Advanced Supersonic Parachute Inflation Research Experiment, is scheduled to launch between 9:30 a.m. and 12:30 p.m., Sept. 7, at the NASA Wallops Flight Facility and then splash-down in the Atlantic Ocean about 40 miles from Wallops Island, according to the agency.

The mission, ASPIRE 3, is a Black Brant IX suborbital vehicle. Backup dates for the launch are Sept. 8-15. The payload is from NASA's Jet Propulsion Laboratory in Pasadena, Calif.

The payload carrying the parachute test article is expected to reach an altitude of 32 miles at about two minutes into the flight. It will be recovered and returned to Wallops for data retrieval and inspection, according to the website.

The payload is a bullet-nosed, cylindrical structure holding a supersonic parachute, the parachute's deployment mechanism, and the test's high-definition instrumentation -- including cameras -- to record data.

The NASA Visitor Center, on Route 175, will open at 7 a.m. on launch day for viewing the flight. Live coverage of the mission is scheduled to begin at 7:30 a.m. on the Wallops Ustream site. Launch updates also are available via Facebook and Twitter sites.

NORTHAMPTON SUPERVISORS NOT SURE THEY CAN MEET BROADBAND DEADLINE

By Stefanie Jackson

Northampton supervisors were handed a mixed bag by Eastern Shore of Virginia Broadband Authority Executive Director Robert Bridgham on Monday night.

ESVBA plans to run more fiber optic cable over the next two years to give about 70 percent of Eastern Shore residents hardline access to high-speed broadband internet, which is currently available to about 25 percent of people in Northampton and Accomack counties.

The project would cost around $8 million. ESVBA intends to fund the project with about $3 million of its capital reserves and borrow the other $5 million, which it would pay back over 10 years.

ESVBA is applying to the Virginia Resource Authority for a $5 million bond. If the application process is successful, the deal would be closed on Nov. 14 and the funds would become available shortly thereafter.

But the deadline for Northampton and Accomack to approve the application is Sept. 21, in just three weeks.

Northampton County Board of Supervisors Chairman Spencer Murray told Bridgham, who was out of town but participated in the Aug. 27 supervisors meeting via conference call, that the county would have little time to conduct a legal review of the paperwork and he could not guarantee a vote approving the VRA application at the next meeting on Sept. 11.

Northampton and Accomack counties may be responsible to pay back a portion of the $5 million bond with taxpayer money if ESVBA defaulted on its debt.

Bridgham assured supervisors that ESVBA could pay back the debt using existing revenue sources, even "if we didn't receive a single additional customer," since most of the broadband authority's existing contracts are long-term.

The real challenge for ESVBA would be offsetting the initial cost of taking on an extraordinarily high number of new customers, for example, "if we were suddenly to get 90 percent signatures in all the areas," Bridgham said.

The Virginia Resource Authority is not ESVBA's only possible source of funding for its service area expansion project. The broadband authority will also consider traditional bank loan offers.

Bridgham's vision is that "every incorporated town on the Eastern Shore would have 100 percent coverage of fiber so that way, everybody in those towns could all get access to high speed broadband."

He also wants to expand ESVBA's service to 36 additional areas, nearly split evenly between Northampton and Accomack counties. Bridgham mentioned Smith Beach and Silver Beach among the areas in Northampton to be included in the expansion beyond the incorporated towns.

In Northampton, ESVBA recently began serving residential customers in Nassawadox and Eastville. It plans to reach Exmore, Belle Haven, Cheriton, and Cape Charles by the end of the year.

Murray is concerned for the roughly 30 percent of citizens who will still be left without access to fiber optic broadband after ESVBA's next major expansion.

"I have to answer the question of, 'OK, you guaranteed the $5 million and they built it out ... half a mile from me and I can't get it. Are you going to guarantee another ... $5 million so they can bring it to me and the other people?'"

"That certainly is heard very loudly and clearly," Bridgham answered. "The broadband authority is trying to take large steps to remedy that gap."

Proceeding with the next expansion and "putting us at nearly three-quarters of the Shore having coverage, I think those are monster steps forward for a community that really is going to have an asset ... compared to many other communities," he said.

"We're a shining example of what can be done when an organization is run well and the community is working with us to accomplish a pretty hard goal. ... As a rural community, it's very expensive to do this" because "there's not a lot of density. But we know that this is sustainable."

Man Convicted Of Attempting to Kill Deputy

A former Painter man was convicted last week in Accomack Circuit Court of the 2016 attempted capital murder of Accomack Deputy Eric Nottingham.

De'Andre Breshon Ayers, also known as De'Andre Breshon Ayres and Deondre Brashaun Ayers, 30, of Hanson Avenue in Norfolk, Va., was also convicted of using a firearm in the attempted murder, possession of a firearm by a felon, and shooting from a vehicle. Ayers was taken back to Accomack Jail to await sentencing. A pre-sentence report was ordered.

On Sept. 26, 2016, Accomack officers were notified that Maryland police were looking for a silver Chevy Malibu in connection with a robbery at PNC Bank in Pocomoke, Md. Maryland authorities said three people threatened to blow up the bank, but did not display weapons or explosive devices to tellers. Afterwards, they were seen getting into the Malibu, which had Virginia tags.

Just after hearing the alert, Nottingham said he saw the vehicle near Temperanceville. He followed and when it ran a stop sign, he attempted to pull car over.

"The vehicle was acting like it was stopping," Nottingham testified. It rolled to about five to 10 miles per hour "and then floored it and went up to 80 to 90 mph." The deputy said the car suddenly jammed on the brakes. That's when he saw an arm come out of the driver's window with a gun pointed toward him.

"It started popping off," he said. "I heard metal clanking around. I just heard a whole bunch of shots." Nottingham put the squad car in reverse and the Malibu took off again. The deputy tried to chase it but his car quit running. "Three bullets struck my vehicle, one of them hit the transmission core," he continued.

Man Faces Child Pornography Charge

A Tasley resident was arrested last week and charged with two counts of possessing child pornography in connection with an incident in which he is said to have shown fellow workers a film of "a very young girl performing oral sex on an adult man."

Sejour Richerson, 43, of Daugherty

Road, is accused of knowingly possessing the pornography on July 14. One record states Richerson had the material on July 14 while another document stated the offenses occurred Aug. 18. He was arrested Aug. 23 and is free on an unspecified bond.

"The investigations division of the Accomack County Sheriff's Office received a complaint from Perdue Farms in Accomack," according to a warrant. The employee allegedly possessed this video on a large black cellular device and showed it to two other workers.

Investigator Aaron Turner spoke to Richerson, who had been reported by two witnesses. "Sejour also produced a small gray Samsung mobile device which he stated also contained pornographic material," Turner wrote. Data from the devices was seized in accordance with a search warrant.

In another case, Jameson Raheim Abbott, 25, of Homeplace Drive in Bloxom, was charged with hit-and-run and failure to report an accident with more than $1,000 worth of property damage. The crash occurred Aug. 26. Abbott was released on an unsecured bond of $2,500. Trooper P. Glenn Neal investigated.

Accomack Man Acquitted of Felony

An Accomack County man was acquitted Monday in Northampton Circuit Court of possessing a gun after being convicted of a felony in the last 10 years and misdemeanor eluding police, according to court records.

Elwood Edward Miles Jr., 40, of Church Street in Onancock, was accused of the June 28, 2017, crimes that were dismissed.

In another case, Marvin Q. Howell, 44, of Lipton Circle in Suffolk, pleaded guilty to threatening to burn or bomb on Dec. 5, 2017. He was given a three-year suspended sentence.

Holly Marie Johnson, 41, of Adron Street in Exmore, was convicted of embezzling property from her job at Yuk Yuk & Joe's restaurant in Eastville, between Oct. 1, 2017, and Feb. 28, 2018.

A count of abduction by force was not prosecuted against Nicholas Gerard Wilson, 24, of Larkfield Lane in Charlotte, N.C. He pleaded guilty to assault and battery in connection to an April 27 incident at Sunset Beach Resort. Wilson was sentenced to 12 months in jail with all but two months suspended. He was also fined $250.

Kid Gets 4 Years For Robbery

Shawndele Anthony "Noot" Fletcher Jr. was 16 years old when he robbed a pizza delivery worker near his Parksley area home in 2017.

Last week, Fletcher pleaded guilty to the crime in Accomack Circuit Court where he was tried as an adult. He was committed to the Department of Juvenile Justice until he is 21 years old with a review hearing scheduled in two years. A charge of larceny was not prosecuted.

Fletcher could have been sentenced to the maximum term of life in prison. His brother, Vincent Lavette Stoudmire, 18, of Logan Road in Onley, previously got five years for his part in the incident.

The victim, Yuuji Yagami, said an order was placed at Roma Pizzeria in Nelsonia. When he went to the home to deliver the food, he was held at gunpoint while food and money was taken. He was also hit in the head.

In another case, bond was denied for Ronald Lee Hess Jr., 18, of County Road in Parksley. He is being held in Accomack Jail on counts of abduction, strangulation, and assault of his girlfriend, Mehreen Awan. She "had multiple marks across her face, head, chest, neck, and back that appear to be consistent with an assault," according to court records. The woman told police Hess assaulted and choked her multiple times. "He would not let her leave his residence although she asked to leave several times," the document reported.

Jawyne Kente Coston, 28, of Beacon Road in Melfa, was sentenced to three years with all but 45 days suspended for distribution of cocaine on March 23, 2017.

Bernard Wendell Wynder, 58, of Cheriton Crossroads in Cheriton, was sentenced to a total of 10 years with all but 18 months suspended for two counts of felony shoplifting at Walmart in Onley in April 2017. Good behavior was ordered for the rest of his life.

Israel Juan Francisco, 26, of Dreamland Avenue in Accomack, was sentenced to two years with all but 30 days suspended for possession of cocaine and 12 months with all but 10 days suspended for DUI in connection with May 2018 incidents. He was also fined $100 for driving without a license and $50 for having an open container. Good behavior was ordered for five years.

Sean Douglas Hall, 25, of Savage Circle in Painter, pleaded guilty to eluding and driving with a revoked license in connection with an Oct. 26, 2017, incident. The case was continued until December.

Sharon Szymankiewicz, 31, of Turkey Run Road in Mears, was sentenced to three years with all but 60 days suspended for receiving stolen property in January 2017. Good behavior was ordered for five years. Indefinite supervised probation was ordered.

Northampton Woman Charged With Violence

A Northampton woman was charged last week with malicious wounding according to records filed in the county's general district court.

Jasmine Shanaye Blake, of Machipongo, was accused of the Aug. 24 crime. She was arrested the next day. Blake was also accused of misdemeanor destruction of property. Deputy Daniel Bell of the Northampton County Sheriff's Office investigated.

In another case, Daniel Gunter Randall, of Exmore, was charged with robbery in connection with a July 28 incident. Randall was arrested the next day. Officer G. J. Rippon of the Exmore Police Department investigated.

Both suspects are being held in the Eastern Shore Regional Jail in Eastville.

State Police Urge Motorists To Use Seatbelts

The Virginia State Police are urging motorists to buckle their seat belts to prevent traffic deaths over Labor Day Weekend.

Four of seven people who died across the state in the past week were not restrained. Despite a nine percent decrease in total fatalities during the first eight months of 2018 compared to the same period in the previous year, fatalities involving unrestrained drivers or passengers are on pace with last year, according to preliminary data. Of 493 killed in 2018, 220 of them were not wearing a seat belt. More than 25 percent of those were people between the ages of 21 and 30.

"It takes just three seconds to buckle up, and the choice you make could be the difference between a life saved and another tragic statistic," said Colonel Gary T. Settle, Virginia State Police Superintendent. "We need your help to prevent fatalities on our roads and continue driving these alarming fatality numbers down. As you travel for the Labor Day holiday, whether it's across the state or around the corner, buckle up every ride, every time."

NEW LANDING PAD ALLOWS NIGHTINGALE TO MAKE LIFE-SAVING FLIGHTS IN ALL WEATHER

County EMS staff, Nightingale crew members, Northampton Medical Services Foundation board members Martina Coker, H. Furlong Baldwin, foundation director and secretary/treasurer John Coker, who is also vice chairman of the county board of supervisors, and foundation CEO Spencer Murray, who is also the chairman of the county board of supervisors, Eastern Shore Rural Health CEO Nancy Stern, Andy Dickinson of the Sentara board of directors, foundation donors, and community members gather to celebrate the new Instrument Flight Rules (IFR)-enabled landing pad to Campbell Field in Northampton County, allowing the Nightingale helicopter to land in all kinds of weather.

Submitted Article

David and Linda Rogers are among a group of Eastern Shore donors to the Sentara Foundation – Hampton Roads, who seized an opportunity to support development of Instrument Flight Rules (IFR) capability for Nightingale. In less than a year, the partnership between Eastern Shore residents and Sentara brought a new IFR-enabled landing pad to Campbell Field in Northampton County. A celebration was held to honor contributors who made it all possible.

Rogers almost died on Dec. 30, 2006. He woke up at his home in Machipongo and told his wife, Linda, he needed to go to the hospital. Then he collapsed with what turned out to be a burst abdominal aortic aneurysm, a deadly condition.

Local EMS volunteers called for the Nightingale Regional Air Ambulance, but bad weather prevented the helicopter from flying. Under the limitations of visual flight rules, they had to be able to see where they were going. A trip by ground ambulance across the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel would take hours. Time was running out.

As luck would have it, the skies began to clear in about 30 minutes. The Nightingale crew called back to report they had just enough visibility to make the life-saving flight. After a six-hour surgery, David Rogers spent the first 100 days of 2007 in the hospital. He lost his left leg and kidney in the ordeal, but he considers himself lucky to be alive.

“If Nightingale hadn’t gotten me to skillful people who could move me forward that day, I wouldn’t have made it,” Rogers asserts. He goes on to say that Nightingale is needed in all types of weather to ensure ready-access to emergency medical care.

“I don’t expect to use Nightingale again,” Rogers predicts, “but it’s a wonderful resource for the community.”

“Sentara is committed to the Shore, but if Nightingale can’t fly, we’re out of luck,” says Spencer Murray, chairman of the Northampton County Board of Supervisors and a personal donor to the IFR program. “This gives us a tremendous opportunity to get to the hospital during ‘the golden hour’ for a trauma, a stroke, or heart attack, even if the bridge-tunnel is closed.”

Remembering Mama-Girl: The Virginia Folklife Program

By Jon Lohman, Virginia Folklife Program

With profound sadness, we mark the passing of one of Virginia's most beloved folk artists, Eastern Shore painter, sculptor, and pastor Mary "Mama-Girl" Onley, at age 64.

Well into adulthood before she attempted her first whimsical paper sculpture, Mama-Girl (a name bestowed by her grandmother) produced a dizzyingly prolific body of work, filling the world around her with her colorful and fanciful creations. Her muse was the voice of a spirit she had heard since childhood, during days spent picking vegetables in the fields with her parents and extended family.

"I have no idea how to make this art," she once explained. "Really, I have no clue what I'm doing. I just do whatever the spirit tells me to do." Often the spirit led her to create dreamlike and fanciful figures: flying green pigs, pink polka-dotted hounds, young ballerinas dancing upon a globe, or angels with watermelon slices for wings. At other times Mama-Girl was inspired by everyday moments: a young mother cradling her child, a farmer milking his cow, a group of young brothers and sisters sharing a bubble bath. But regardless of subject matter, the single most defining characteristic of Mama-Girl's work is its joyfulness—"happy art"—as she liked to call it. Her pieces can't help but make us smile, leaving us longing to wander further into the fantastical forest of her imagination.

Yet the magic of the art was equaled by the magic of its creator. Mama-Girl never sold her work in galleries or online, preferring to do so in person, setting up her tiny booth in arts and crafts shows and farmers' markets across Virginia's Eastern Shore and beyond. She was most in her element when framed by the splendor of her own colorful creations, where any divisions between the artist and her art ceased to exist. Like her beloved sculptures and painted images, Mama-Girl radiated joy, amusement, wisdom, compassion, gratitude, and tenderness. She was also generous, sometimes refusing payment for a piece if she felt that the admirer was meant to have it. Many people over the years were struck by her uncanny perceptiveness—the way she always seemed to know exactly what piece caught someone's eye, or the way she seemed to anticipate someone's next thought. On a number of occasions I witnessed her remove a piece from display and begin to wrap it, accurately sensing that it would be chosen by a stranger arriving moments later. This foreknowledge, Mama-Girl would tell you, was also with her since childhood, and she credits the spirit for this gift as well.

The art world often defined Mama-Girl as an "outsider artist," meaning that her work emerged not from a particular artistic community or cultural tradition, but rather from her own spiritual visions, eccentricities, and the creative depths of her mind. Much of this is true. Yet while those who were fortunate enough to have met her likely thought of her as one of the most unique and interesting people they ever had the opportunity to meet, “outsider” is probably not a word any of them would use to describe her. Mama-Girl was deeply connected to those around her—her children, grandchildren, and extended family; the tiny congregation who attended her sermons in the makeshift church she built in her art studio; the hundreds and thousands of folks across the Shore and the region who passionately supported her work; and the residents of the tiny town of Painter, who always knew that Mama-Girl Onley was someone they could count on in a time of need.

Although we often say it on these sad occasions when we must say goodbye to another dear friend and brilliant artist whom we were blessed to know and work with, Mama-Girl was truly one of a kind. There simply has never been anyone like Mama-Girl before her, and there never will be one after. Her life was a gift to us all, and she left us her vision for a loving world in the thou-

Details Released in Bridge-Tunnel Crash

By Stefanie Jackson

The Chesapeake Bay-Bridge Tunnel has released details on a double fatal accident involving a tractor-trailer and a van on the bridge last month.

On July 27, at approximately 6:30 p.m., Jervone Rakeem Hall, 33, of Millsboro, Del., was driving a tractor-trailer southbound on the bridge-tunnel, in the right lane near the 13-mile post, when his vehicle struck the rear of a Dodge Caravan, also in the right lane, driven by Alicea Angel Luis Cruz, 53, of Allentown, Pa.

The tractor-trailer forced the van into the guardrail on the west side of the bridge. The van bounced off the rail, hit the rear axles of the tractor-trailer, and spun clockwise. The van came to a stop, blocking the right lane and part of the left lane. The tractor-trailer crashed through the guardrail and into the Chesapeake Bay.

Both vehicles were totaled. Neither Hall nor his passenger, 29-year-old Christopher Ikee Fenner, survived. Cruz and three other passengers in the van were injured and were treated at the scene and released.

At the time of the accident, there was heavy rain on the bridge-tunnel and the speed limit had been reduced to 35 mph. The van was traveling at 35 mph. The speed of the tractor-trailer is unknown.

The crash report stated that Cruz took no improper action, but Hall was following too close. Cruz was not distracted or under the influence of alcohol or drugs. CBBT Police are still waiting to receive the results of the autopsy and toxicology reports on Hall.

William Jones, of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel police force, investigated.

Accomack Welcomes 37 New Teachers To the Shore

By Stefanie Jackson

The Accomack schools annual new teacher academy does more than help newly hired teachers get ready for the upcoming school year – it introduces them to the unique experience of living and working on the Eastern Shore.

As school board member George Waldenmaier recently said, “It’s so important to start these people off on the right foot and make them feel at home so they’ll put down some roots ... this is such a unique place.”

So far this year, Accomack has hired 37 new teachers, 28 originally from the Delmarva area.

A total of 17 new hires are first-year teachers.

Accomack’s new teacher academy took place over the course of six days earlier this month under the direction of Division Teacher Mentor Julie Evans.

The group visited The Nature Conservancy’s Brownsville Preserve in Nassawadox and took a boat to the barrier islands.

Virginia Coast Reserve Director Jill Bieri led the tour, with a stop at Hog Island for the teachers to explore and study the land and wild-life and learn how to incorporate the Eastern Shore’s natural assets into their lesson plans.

The group observed fish and grasses they caught in nets, handled non-stinging jellyfish, and studied oyster reefs.

The teachers also learned how to test water salinity and did some geocaching – outdoor “treasure hunting” using GPS coordinates.

Back at Nandua Middle School, the new teachers participated in a poverty simulation led by Pungoteague Elementary School Assistant Principal Ruth Tankard.

The poverty simulation was a Ruby Payne teacher training activity used to encourage teachers to get to know their students and understand the different socio-economic situations Shore families may encounter.

Teachers were given a variety of scenarios and “they had to develop, as working groups, what they were going to do – how they would help their particular students in their

Shore Native Returns for Dream Job Directing Coastal Research Center

Anheuser-Busch Coastal Research Center Site Director Cora Johnston is tasked with pointing the lab in the right direction as it continues studying the Virginia coast and barrier islands and doing community outreach.

*Story by Stefanie Jackson
Submitted Photos*

On a little corner of the Eastern Shore, a bit out of the way even for some longtime residents to find, there's a research facility where scientists study what has been called one of last natural coastlines in the world.

Cora Johnston recently joined the team at the Anheuser-Busch Coastal Research Center in Oyster as the lab's new site director.

Raised in Wachapreague, Johnston is a true shore girl who says she probably learned to drive a boat before she learned to drive a car. Her father was a waterman for a time and when she was in high school she would borrow his boat and take her friends to see the barrier islands.

She credits her high school science teacher, George Waldenmaier (a current member of the Accomack county school board), with inspiring her to embrace science as her calling.

Johnston once briefly considered pursuing a theater major, but Waldenmaier told her, "Don't even kid yourself, you're going into biology," she said.

Her secondary education culminated in a doctorate degree in biological sciences from the University of Maryland College Park.

Johnston has traveled across the country and beyond to study creatures and habitats from woodpeckers in the marsh to lizards in the desert, but she was more than happy to return to the Eastern Shore and settle in her dream job at the Oyster lab where she hopes research will continue for decades to come.

The University of Virginia began the long-term ecological research project and study of the barrier islands in the mid-1980s, funded by the National Science Foundation.

The project, named Virginia Coast Reserve Long-Term Ecological Research, was established in collaboration with The Nature Conservancy.

At the Oyster research center, scientists study the entire coastal system, from coastal forests and salt marsh to mud flats and seagrass meadows, all the way to the barrier islands. They learn a lot by paying close attention to the physical processes of how waves, wind, mud and sand shape the landscape.

For example, only 1 percent of marsh erosion happens during major storms, Johnston revealed. During a major storm, water rises over the marsh. The water is calmer at the bottom, and the marsh impedes wave action. An average day with a light breeze and the waves lapping against the marsh is actually the ideal situation for erosion, Johnston explained.

What does this mean for the community? The knowledge gained by the Oyster researchers can be used to make decisions about the location of preserved lands, for one.

Flood prevention is another useful application of the work being done. Johnston would like the Oyster lab to contribute information to The Nature Conservancy for further development of the Coastal Resiliency Tool the conservancy makes available online.

Johnston is excited to continue to grow the facility's efforts in community education and outreach.

One program already in place is the Art and Ecology weekend workshop for teachers, which counts toward their recertification. The workshop combines the study of salt marsh ecology and drawing, which complement each other well because "research begins with observation and so does art," she said.

Students in elementary school through high school can study oyster nurseries right in the classroom. Schools that participated in the program last school year include Broadwater Academy, Cape Charles Christian School, the Montessori Children's House of Franktown, Kiptopeke and Metompkin elementary schools, and Arcadia High.

Johnston is interested in creating new programs that give more diverse student populations access to the coast and inspire more young women to pursue careers in science and math.

One of her former schools had a program called Girls Day In the Lab where middle school girls did activities like observing fish behavior and extracting and studying marine DNA.

In the winter, visitors don't go out on the boats and the labs are empty, presenting the perfect opportunity for educational experiences for students and community members.

Johnston also would like to hold "science pubs." Instead of hosting a seminar at the lab, talks could be done in more casual settings like local restaurants, making events more accessible to the public.

For more information on the work and outreach being done at the Anheuser-Busch Coastal Research Center, contact Cora Johnston at 757-620-7016 or coraj@virginia.edu or Donna Fauber at 757-331-1246 or dhf4k@virginia.edu

EASTERN SHORE SPORTS

VARSITY FOOTBALL PREVIEW

By Krystle Bono

The Northampton Yellow Jackets have been working hard this summer, with hopes of making it to playoffs again this season. Last year, the club reached post-season play for the first time since 2008 under first-year head coach John Edney, after putting up a 38-35 win over the Arcadia Firebirds, also grabbing the team their first district championship since 2009.

Now in his second season leading the Yellow Jackets, Edney, has the largest football squad this year across the Shore high schools. Northampton has already faced some challenges together off the field. One of their own, senior Patrick Williams, who took Hamilton Field as a defensive end and wide receiver, underwent surgery to remove a brain tumor Aug. 17, and many of Williams' teammates and coaches showed their support by shaving their heads during their Aug. 16 practice.

With 17 seniors lining the deep roster, the anticipation from "Jacket Nation" for an exciting football season is buzzing. Edney has already seen some improvements from last season, and plans to keep pushing his guys to build on the team's success.

"A lot of guys have played a lot of football. We battle through adversity a little better. Hopefully, we come out ready to play. Having 17 seniors is huge, and we have a lot of young kids that are actually playing for us – we have two freshmen who are starting on varsity right now."

The team traveled for two scrimmages earlier this month in preparation for their season opener on the road last Friday, in which the Yellow Jackets earned a 28-6 win over Mathews.

"From last year, probably a step above where we were last year at that point. We did well defensively. We gave up less than 100 yards total. That was good. Offensively, we blocked very well, we just didn't do what we needed to in the backfield to put up a lot of points, but we ended up taking care of it," said Edney.

To earn the win over Mathews, Dustin Splawn rushed for a 12-yard touchdown in the first quarter, Carlton Smith rushed for a 1-yard touchdown to score in the second quarter, Splawn rushed for a 10-yard touchdown and Smith with the 2-point conversion to put up points in the third quarter, and Kasai Clark rushed for a 13-yard touchdown and scored on the 2-point conversion seal the deal in the fourth.

Carlton Smith, who rushed 1052 yards with 11 touchdowns last season, earning him the title of Eastern Shore All-District Athlete of the Year, will return as a senior. Corey Smith is also back in action after a successful junior season rushing 890 yards with nine touchdowns.

Other seniors Josh Splawn, Cameron Glennon, and Gary Peart will be back on the field and are considered by Edney to be strong contenders on the gridiron for the team.

"They are all big players for us on the defensive side of the ball and are on the offensive line, and [they] helped us get that rushing attack last year."

Senior Trip Wescoat is taking on the quarterback position.

A second playoff showing is everyone's goal, and Edney reflects again on the steps they are taking to get there again, but with a longer run.

"It was good to get there, didn't go quite like we wanted, but it was good to get there. Defense got a lot better, but we still gave up too many points a game, so that's a big emphasis on us is to get better than we were."

The boys will defend Hamilton Field from Northumberland for the first time this season tonight (Friday) at 7 p.m. in Eastville. Northampton is also celebrating alumni night, inviting all past football and cheerleading squad members to come out and enjoy the game for free, with special honors at halftime.

The Broadwater Vikings are under new direction this year, but by a name not unknown to the Viking community. Eddie Spencer, who has coached the middle school team for 20 years, and heads the varsity boys basketball team, will be wearing the head coaching hat, with assisting help from Reid Hall and Connor Hennessey. Spencer takes the varsity team under his guidance from Noble Palmer, who coached the club for six seasons.

The Vikings are sporting a 17-man roster with three seniors: quarterback Finn Kelly, tight end Matt Albertson, and offensive guard Brian Drummond.

Assistant coach Hall said there are a lot of changes all the way around for the club. The Vikings faced Blessed Sacrament last Saturday for the team's home season opener, and although they posted a 51-34 loss, the guys have already pushed the envelope from last season.

"Over half of our team are sophomores. We are running a whole new playbook this year. Our first match up, we thought was a great match up. We put more points up that game than we did in a game last season.

We are expecting a lot from the offense. We are still working with our defense. Still working on our size as well," states Hall.

Hall, who is the defensive coordinator for the team, also says the biggest asset the boys have is their sense of family.

"Their team chemistry [is their strength]. Family is their motto this year. They really wanted to emphasize that this year. Everyone clicks with everyone."

The Vikings are back in action again in Exmore to host Quantico on Saturday, Sept. 1, for a 2 p.m. kickoff.

More coaching changes have swept through the Arcadia Firebirds varsity team, which is now led by Alan Hall and assisted by Dan Macca as defensive coordinator.

The Firebird roster is a junior-heavy squad, with six seniors this season. Brydan Bibbons, Chris Beasley, and Shy'Keam Jacobs are returning seniors, who have stepped up to the plate to take leadership roles.

Macca states among the staffing changes the team is seeing this year, they are seeing changes on the field as well.

"Last year, the offense and defense was completely different. This year, offense is way more dynamic, and defense is way more aggressive."

Arcadia also traveled to play two pre-season games, and Macca states despite the outcome, there were some definite positives they were able to take away from the experience.

"The kids did really well. We went down our first game against First Flight. They were very good, very well coached football team. But it was 21-20 by halftime. We have a small team. We had dressed some J.V. players hoping they would get some playing time. That team was pretty big, so safety before anything. It was a beautiful thing to see, because they were right there."

Macca also emphasized that the team is focusing on being a well-rounded athlete, both on and off the field.

"The message this year is 100 percent discipline and to respect others. Discipline on the football field, discipline to the position, and self-respect. The goal is, they've worked so hard, and hopefully they understand that hard work will pay off. We want them to do their best to win."

He continued, "These kids are dynamic, and that's the coolest thing to watch. One of the mottos we've had, that I think the kids have a lot of pride in, is this is iron man football. This is not, okay this is offense, and you go out and you talk to the coach and you get your Gatorade. This is iron man football. Buck up, get a quick hit of water because you're playing both ways; you're on special teams, too. So, we're blessed that of some of the ones that are not starting, we've got good kids that can fill in on special teams, too, so you get to play."

"You need to fail to succeed. Fail, learn, don't fail again, and try your hardest. If you don't fail, then you don't know what's wrong vs. what's right."

The Firebirds will host Stephen Decatur tonight (Friday) for their home opener in Oak Hall at 7 p.m.

Sinjin Jones bested Jeff Shield 3-and-2 in men's play to claim his first club championship. Jones, 24, works in the Accomack County Department of Assessment office and plays to a handicap of 2. Shield is a 16-time club champion who has now reached the finals the past two years.

Susan Duer won her second club championship by outlasting Margie Byrd in 20 holes. The two competitors played each other three times in the double elimination competition. Byrd was the defending champion. Duer is a retired educator.

Eastern Shore Kings Overcome Obstacles to Kickoff 2018 Season

The Eastern Shore Kings are going into their fourth season as a semi-pro football team. The organization was the brainchild of Eastern Shore native Jermaine Scarborough. Scarborough had a vision of accumulating all the talent the Shore had to offer to make a super team to dominate the east coast of the semi-pro league. This of course, did not happen, as there were over 60 verbal commitments to join the Kings' team, but, when it came down to practice time, out of the original committed team he had mind, zero showed up.

Scarborough stayed the course and for the next three to four weeks, he continued to show up at the Mary N. Smith Cultural Center practice field location with hope. One-by-one, young men started showing up and coming out to practice just weeks before the season started. Scarborough managed to put together a football team to compete in the Extreme East Football league "XEFL" in less than four weeks.

The staff at Mary N. Smith Cultural Center and Mr. West have been working very close with the team and helping in anyway possible. Accomack County Parks and Recreation has also been a very vital part of the Kings, especially Wayne Burton, one of the main reasons Scarborough started the program, because the way Burton has helped the Shore's youth, and people in general, and he was and is a great role model for the community.

Former athletic director Gary Reese and Principal George Parker were also very vital to the Kings' first season. The opposition came going into this season, but the team has the most talent they have ever had, and has gone from a roster of 23 young men to 53 spanning across Eastern Shore from Cape Charles to Chestertown, Md., and Milford Del., with a couple of players signed out of New Jersey.

Trying to find an alternate field for the 2018 season has been trying, with all the opposition and hurdles, so the team will be utilizing the cultural center, as well as a football field in Camden, Del. The Eastern Shore Kings will open up their home schedule Sunday, Sept. 2, at 24577 Mary N. Smith road Accomack, 23301. Kickoff will be at 2 p.m.

He boats and fishes as often as possible on Chesapeake Bay, mid-Atlantic coastal bays, and in the Atlantic Ocean. His talk will focus on light-tackle shallow-water fishing for striped bass, speckled trout, red drum, and early spring flounder.

The public is invited to attend, and new or prospective members are welcome.

Free Kid's Fishing Day

The Eastern Shore of Virginia Anglers Club will hold a free fishing event for children on Sunday, Sept. 23, at the fishing pier in Saxis. The club will provide equipment, and members will teach and assist young anglers from 1-2:30 p.m., followed by a cookout. Registration begins at 12:30 p.m. Kids ages 3 to 15 are welcome to attend, accompanied by an adult. Rods and reels will be provided to the first 50 children. For more information, call 410-957-0198.

Sponsored by the Eastern Shore of Virginia Anglers Club, the 2018 Onancock Bay Challenge will take place on Saturday, Sept. 8. Now in its 28th year, the popular event emphasizes families and youths angling for the diverse fish species available on the Eastern Shore. It is broadly supported by Eastern Shore businesses, with proceeds going to fund scholarships for Accomack and Northampton County youth to attend environmental education/adventure/discovery camps at the Chincoteague Bay Field Station.

Over $6,500 worth of prizes will be presented to registered participants in awards and drawings at the Onancock Wharf weigh-in, where there will also be musical entertainment by Thelma and Erika Peterson, plus light snacks supplied by Janet's Cafe.

All participants will be entered into drawings for dozens of valuable fishing-related prizes, leading up to the Grand Prize drawing worth more than $300.

Anglers must register prior to the event, and all people fishing from the same boat must be registered for the event. Fishing is with rod and reel or hand line only and begins at 6:30 a.m. Anglers have to present their fish to be weighed in at the Onancock Wharf by 5:30 p.m., and are encouraged to release anything that they will not eat or enter in the event. Sept. 9 is the bad-weather day.

New this year are performance fishing shirts featuring Willie Crockett's original artwork of a spotted sea trout. These shirts will be available at the weigh-in site. Bay Challenge rules and registration forms are available at SeaHawk Sports Center, Seaworthy Marine, the Onancock Town Office, and on the Angler's Club website.

Fishing from the Shore

By Bill Hall

The red drum and cobia bite continues in the lower bay while Spanish mackerel are being caught from the oceanfront all the way up into the Maryland waters of the Chesapeake Bay. A good white marlin bite developed on Sunday with boats fishing to the north of us returned to port averaging 2-6 white marlin releases.

Upper Shore — Captain Matt Abell, at the Sea Hawk Sports Center, reported that he and his staff were finding good red drum action south of the entrance of Nassawadox Creek, with several release citations registered this week. Cobia were still mixed in with the drum, though the majority of the cobia are undersized. Abell said that the Spanish mackerel have extended their range northward into Maryland waters, with nice catches reported from the Kedges Straights. Small speckled trout have made an appearance in the bayside shallows. Flounder and lots of triggerfish were coming from the in-shore wrecks off Chincoteague with spot and baby black drum being caught in the Assateague surf.

Chincoteague — Donna Rae, at Captain Bob's Marina, said that surf fishermen were finding a mixture of large whiting/kingfish, small croakers, small bluefish, and a mixture of shark species. The same species of fish and sharks were also inside the inlet between buoy 11 up to 21. Larger sharks have been released in Four Mouths, in Cackle Creek, and down near Wallops Island. Flounder catches were reported near the entrance of Assateague Channel near buoy 14 as well as off Mariner's Point, where at least one fish exceeded four pounds in weight. Kingfish to 16 inches and a few pompano were caught off the Tom's Cove shellfish grounds. Small pan fish action, with a variety of pan fish, is occurring in Chincoteague Channel, north to the Marsh Island exit. Sharks were the main quarry on both sides of the Queen Sound bridge. The structures on Blackfish Banks are still producing keeper flounder, triggerfish, and black sea bass, plus an occasional gray trout. Dolphin (mahi) catches have come from the Big Finger, east of the Parking Lot. In the Washington Canyon, a few wahoo and yellowfin tuna were reported along with a blue marlin release.

Jimmy Vasilou, at Captain Steve's Bait & Tackle, reported a recent surf fishing trip produced a mixed bag of spot, kingfish, small black drum, and snapper bluefish. Sharks, skates, rays, and pompano have all been recent catches in the suds too. In the bay, a mixture of spot, kingfish, and croaker have been the primary catches. Cobia have been sighted off the beach following schools of menhaden. Spanish mackerel have also been in the same area. Flounder catches are still being made on the wrecks where an occasional mahi is a welcome bicatch. Twenty to 25 miles offshore, trollers have found false albacore, king mackerel, and dolphin. Some nice catches of dolphin have come from the Washington Canyon, where a barracuda was also landed.

Wachapreague — Captain Lindsay Paul reported that the offshore fishing was still slow but there were signs that things may be improving. 21-Mile Hill, 26-Mile Hill, and Sam's Hill were producing a few dolphin, lots of false albacore and at least one wahoo hook up. Dolphin were also found further offshore, around the lobster pot buoys. Deep droppers were finding tilefish. Paul said there were a "few" flounder on the wrecks. Inside the inlet, and anglers were finding mostly small croakers and an occasional flounder for their efforts.

Lower Shore — Chris Snook, at Chris' Bait & Tackle, said the spade-fish bite was still occurring around the fourth island of the Chesapeake Bay Bridge-Tunnel, where flounder were also being taken. Anglers bouncing jigs around the bridge pilings were also catching flounder. Late afternoon, evening red drum action remained strong from Kiptopeke up to Nassawadox. High-speed trollers were catching nice sized Spanish mackerel on small Drone and Clark Spoons pulled on long leaders behind inline sinkers and small planers. Cobia were still cooperating, with a 52-pounder weighed in at the shop over the weekend.

Jeb Brady, of Bailey's Bait & Tackle, reports that the Spanish mackerel bite has been "on fire" over the last week, with some nice bluefish mixed in with the macks. The cobia bite has slowed a little, while the red drum bite has gotten even hotter. A few boats have released double-digit numbers of red drum in a single evening. The Cape Charles pier has seen some spot and croaker catches for anglers soaking bloodworm baits. Speckled trout have begun to show in some of the bayside creeks and along shorelines, though most are undersized.

Bill Hall was the first Eastern Shore resident to achieve Virginia Salt Water Master Angler Status. He has been named Virginia Saltwater Angler of the Year and Virginia Saltwater Release Angler of the Year. Bill is an I.G.F.A. International Committee Representative and a long-time member of the Virginia Saltwater Fishing Tournament Committee. He is the Virginia Recreation Fishing representative on the ASMFC Striped Bass Management Panel and is a past recipient of the CCA-VA Virginia Outdoor Writer Conservation Leadership Award.

Photo Courtesy of Chris' Bait & Tackle Spanish mackerel fishing has been productive along the entire length of the Eastern Shore, from the oceanfront to the Maryland portion of the Chesapeake Bay.

Author's Year on Tangier Provides Intimate Insight Into People and Perspective

By David Martin

Earl Swift stood in front of people he had written about in intimate terms—their daily lives, their hopes, and most especially their fears for an uncertain future, including whether their entire town might someday sink below the surface of the Chesapeake Bay. The day was Aug. 11, and Swift was in a school auditorium to do the first reading from his newly published book, “Chesapeake Requiem—A Year With the Watermen of Vanishing Tangier Island.”

Two weeks later, Swift gave an exclusive interview to the Eastern Shore Post and was asked if the people of Tangier were put off by a book that so openly examined their lives.

“No,” he said. “These people appreciate the truth even if it’s uncomfortable. Better the truth than the legends.”

Swift said the question-and-answer period following his reading was the “most amazing experience of my life. It was testimony about the book and about me.” He said the event was “almost like a church service with tears in the audience and tears in my eyes.”

Tangier made the news this week when Rep. Scott Taylor traveled there to announce the approval of the federal permitting process for a seawall to protect the island’s western side. The people of Tangier have been asking for this seawall and, in fact, seawalls all around the island for decades. Swift is hopeful it will happen but said, “This is not the first time people on Tangier have heard that a seawall will be built. The need for it was known back in the 1970s, and it has been actively discussed since 1992. We need to take this latest announcement in the context it deserves.”

The intimacy of Swift’s 14-month experience living on Tangier Island, starting May 2016, is readily apparent in “Chesapeake Requiem.” He obviously loves the island. He also loves and celebrates the people of Tangier Island for being self-reliant, hardworking, family oriented, and pious, but he doesn’t sugarcoat their shortcomings. In the 1920s, the town cop was murdered and no one was charged. In that same decade, a shirt factory was burned down apparently because the men of the island resented the independence that good jobs gave their wives and daughters. No one was charged with the arson. In the 1940s, a church split resulted in criminal vandalism that included spreading feces where people worshipped. More recently, a married couple who did enormous good for the island had to leave town after they were ostracized for protesting, as a violation of the separation of church and state, a religious cross being painted on the town’s water tower.

The watery island of Tangier from the northwest. The most critical challenge facing Tangier Island is that it’s disappearing with two-thirds of the island having gone under the bay since 1850.

Asked about this conflict, how people can be so welcoming to a stranger like Swift and so selfless in braving storms to help their neighbors can also be so—there's no other word for it—hateful, Swift said, "They are a combination of choirboy and pirate. More choirboy than pirate in my opinion but the mix is still there. I think the pirate part arises from working on the water and being in challenging situations that constantly require them to be self-reliant and steely."

Through a combination of erosion, sea level rise caused by global warming, the land subsiding, an older population dying off, and younger residents leaving, Tangier has lost two-thirds of itself—two-thirds of its land and of its people. The land has shrunk from 2,163 acres in 1850 to 789 acres a few years ago. And the population has gone from a high of 1,300 to around 460 today. The loss of population might do the town in before the bay has the chance.

"Chesapeake Requiem" does an inspired job of explaining all of this, including everything from erosion versus sea level rise to history and geography and what has happened to other islands in predicaments like Tangier's.

But the science never bogs down the narrative, and the reader is never more than a few pages away from some fascinating aspect of the island that Swift encountered daily.

- A behind-the-scenes look at how the kitchen at the Fisherman's Corner restaurant operates.
- A pulse-pounding story of how the Henrietta C. sank with father and son crabbers aboard, the father, Ed Charnock, drowning and his son, Jason, being rescued from the cold waters of the bay.
- The Islanders' unique accent that renders "hard" as "howard" and "island" as "oyalind."
- Details about the life and industry of harvesting blue crabs, including who earns how much from what kind of crabs.

Swift is a longtime journalist who worked for the Virginian-Pilot and now is a residential fellow of Virginia Humanities at the University of Virginia. He says each time he boards a boat to go to Tangier, an abiding sense of calm overtakes him. "The highest compliment the people of Tangier paid me was to treat me like an Islander."

James "Ooker" Eskridge is a lifelong waterman, a central figure in "Chesapeake Requiem," and the mayor of Tangier, which is 45 minutes by boat from Crisfield, Md., and 75 minutes (in the summer) to Onancock.

Cape Charles

The Harbor for the Arts Summer Festival will feature a performance by mellow rock blues ensemble Solacoustix, Saturday, Sept. 1, from 7 to 9 p.m., at the Historic Palace Theatre.

The Delmarvelous Dolls, a 1940s Andrews Sisters vibe band, will play Sunday, Sept. 2, at 7 p.m., at Central Park.

Northampton County High School (NCHS) Alumni Association will display a 67-year history of pre-public and public secondary level education for black residents Saturday, Sept. 22, from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m., at the fellowship hall of First Baptist Church of Cape Charles, 501 Nectarine St. Items from the pre-public school era of Tidewater Institute (1903–1935) and the public school era beginning in 1935 (NCHS at Machipongo) will be on display. This exhibit will demonstrate the pathway to enhanced educational and job opportunities for black residents as a result of public high school education. NCHS hosts will be available to serve as information guides and to answer questions relating to the exhibit. Call 678-5935 or 331-8366 for additional information.

Chincoteague

The Chincoteague Cultural Alliance and Chincoteague Island Arts Organization will host a performance of Shakespeare's comedy, As You Like It, Sunday, Sept. 2, at 7:30 p.m., at the Robert Reed Waterfront Park.

The Brown Box Theatre Project's production will transform the park into the Forest of Arden, where a motley cast of characters finds themselves banished from the court. Misdirection, desire, and serendipity unite to form a tangled web of identity and love that could only be possible in this pastoral haven, where gender roles, politics, and expectations are turned upside down.

The Chincoteague performance is supported by generous local business sponsors: Chincoteague Resort Vacations, Poseidon's Pantry, The Art Garage, H&H Pharmacy, Harbour Rentals, Refuge Inn, Sundial Books, and Taylor Bank, and by the Town of Chincoteague, Virginia Commission for the Arts, and National Endowment for the Arts.

Seating is on the lawn, so bring a chair or blanket. In case of rain, the production will move to Christ United Methodist Church Hall.

Adding to the Shakespearean atmosphere, enjoy treats like Devonshire gingerbread and Shrewsbury cake from the Elizabethan Bake Sale, along with soft drinks and fresh popcorn. The proceeds will support free theatre in the park.

Onancock

Onancock International Films will present "The Insult," at the Roseland Theatre, Thursday, Sept. 13, at 8 p.m. The film begins after an emotional exchange between a Lebanese Christian and a Palestinian refugee escalates. The men end up in a court case that gets national attention. In today's Beirut, an insult blown out of proportion finds them in court. From secret wounds to traumatic revelations, the media circus surrounding the case puts Lebanon's mixed population through a social explosion, forcing Toni and Yasser to reconsider their lives and prejudices. The Insult is optimistic enough to leave the door open to hope but realistic enough to only leave it ajar.

The Eastern Shore Bird Club will present "The Cape May Raptor Banding Project," Tuesday, Sept. 11, at 7:30 p.m., at the Hermitage, 23610 North St. The program will highlight the story of raptors captured and banded during fall migration. There will be lots of close-up photographs. The guest speaker will be Paul Napier, president of the Cape May Raptor Banding Project.

A class is being offered to learn how to grocery shop for diabetic patients. The seminar will be Tuesday, Sept. 11, at 10 a.m., at Food Lion in Cape Charles, and a second course will be at 12:30 p.m., at Food Lion in Onley. Class size is limited. To make a reservation, call 302-2128, or email melissa.glennon@rivhs.com

The Eastern Shore Walk to End Alzheimer's will be held Saturday, Oct. 13, at 10 a.m., beginning at the Hermitage on the Eastern Shore. Sign-in begins at 8:30 a.m. The length is three miles with a one mile option. For more information, call Jennifer Chavez at 757-793-5064.

The Eastern Shore Chapter of the Virginia Master Naturalists will hold a basic training class beginning Thursday, Sept. 6, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., at The Historic Onancock School. The course will run for ten weeks. Applications are being taken now for the class. For more information, go to www.masternaturalistesva.com or call Susan Russell at 804-774-1080.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Northampton County Wetlands Board will meet Wednesday, September 19, 2018, at 10:30 a.m. in the Board Chambers located at 16404 Courthouse Road in Eastville, VA, for the purpose of considering the following wetlands/coastal primary sand dunes matters under public hearing and to conduct regular business. The Board will assemble at 8:00 a.m. to conduct site visits.

A.) VMRC 2018-1236: Calvin and Lisa Hagan are applying for a permit to install a replacement vinyl bulkhead that is approximately 163' in length as well as a 40' return wall, bringing the total replacement vinyl bulkhead to 203 feet in length. The replacement vinyl bulkhead will be placed approximately 2' channel ward of the existing structure. The applicants also wish to re-configure their existing pier to move the existing boat lift to the east, re-pier over the former lift footprint, and add an 8' x 10' "L" to the west side of the pier's terminus. Approximately 30 pilings will be required for both the bulkhead replacement and the pier reconfiguration. No trees will need to be removed to install the new bulkhead. The primary purposes of this project are to replace a failing wooden bulkhead structure and to reconfigure the private pier to make it more suitable for water access. The property is located at 7450 Prettyman Circle in Exmore in Northampton County. It is further described as Tax Map 18, double circle A, parcel 12 & 4D.

B.) VMRC 2018-1250: Waverly Estates HOA and McGuinness Teaghlaigh Sealu LLC are applying for a permit to place a 170 +/- ft of Class III & Type I rip rap revetment, which includes 2 return walls. Both return walls will be 25 ft plus in length to anticipate the adjacent properties non-action on their properties. The toe of the revetment will begin landward of the MHW line and will be buried to a depth of at least 3' below MLW. Rock sizes will not be smaller than VDOT Class III & Type I. All fill for the project, if needed, can be obtained from the toe or the existing embankment. The primary reason for the project is to preclude erosion on their properties located adjacent to the Chesapeake Bay, not in the Waverly subdivision. The properties are further described as Tax Map 28, double circle 5 parcel A & A1.

Anyone interested in the above matter should attend the scheduled public hearing. The application may be viewed in the Planning, Permitting, and Enforcement Office located at 16404 Courthouse Road in Eastville, VA. Written comments can be submitted to the Planning, Permitting, and Enforcement Office, P.O. Box 538, Eastville, VA 23347.

By Linda Cicaira

The majority of us who work at the Eastern Shore Post say October is the best month of the year. We long for those cooler days and nights when we can open the windows without the heat blasting in. We want to breathe in the crisp fall air, kick the leaves, and slow down with the grass cutting. When people say “balmy,” we think “hot.”

“It’s when we finally get to say goodbye and good riddance to the unbearably humid dog days of summer,” Stefanie Jackson, our Northampton reporter said Monday. “There are still some pleasantly warm days, too. But the best part is the glorious autumn rainbow that appears about mid-month when the leaves turn yellow, orange, and red against the canvas of a true blue sky and still-green grass.”

Yes, October is poetic. I love it for those reasons and because October is my birthday month. I am feeling particularly pleased because after 10 long and painful years, I can finally say I have trained our classifieds manager, Angie Huether Crutchley.

Angie proved that when she sent me an email telling me about her favorite month. “October, it’s when the great and powerful Linda Cicaira was born,” she said. Really, she wrote that. I am as amazed as you are. Actually, I’m flabbergasted.

Angie even invited everyone to send me a birthday card and offered to award $25 for the best one I receive that is sent to P.O. Box 517, Onley, VA 23418. She may even be planning a party. Her training is complete!

Troy Justis, our ads manager, also loves the month. “October still reminds me of an awesome childhood growing up in Onancock,” he said.

Kimberly Perry, our graphic designer, really wanted to pick October. But she is due to have a baby in April and now has decided that month is more wonderful. We will let her have that.

Connie Morrison, the editor; Sam Sellard, of the ads department; and Krystle Bono, our sports writer didn’t answer my query. I think they must have passed out in the heat or something.

David Martin, our copy editor, was delirious too. “My favorite month is December because it contains the shortest day of the year and I don’t like sunshine,” he answered. I think he meant to say he also despises hot weather and longs for the wonderful great things that occur in October.

There are 23 reasons October is the best month, according to buzzfeed.com. The website states one can catch the movie “Hocus Pocus” in October on numerous channels, celebrate Oktoberfest, find pumpkin-flavored items, enjoy sweater weather, light a fire, get invited to parties where candy corn is served, wear costumes, check out decorations, practice whittling skills, and scare people for fun. Yippee! Plus you can eat all the candy you want and not get criticized.

“It’s simply beautiful,” is how www.theodysseyonline.com described October. “The leaves change, giving color and life to the dullest of places,” the website states. It called October the cuddling month. “I don’t know about you, but I hate being close to someone in the summer when it’s 1,000 degrees,” it continued. “Yes, cuddling is great and much-needed during all the months in the year but the best time to cuddle is in the fall when it starts to become cold.”

It’s also Pizza Month. I don’t have any idea why, but who cares why. I love pizza.

I also read that we relax more, read more, and think more in October.

“I’m so glad I live in a world where there are Octobers.” That is what Anne of Green Gables said and I fully agree. One more Yippee!

Luria a Great Candidate

Dear Editor:

Late afternoon last Sunday found around 65 people gathered to meet and listen to Elaine Luria, the Democratic candidate for the 2nd Congressional District which includes Chincoteague and all of Virginia’s Eastern Shore. The potluck picnic was hosted by Paul Brzozowski, Louisa Flaningham, and Nancy Payne and held at the Brzozowski/Flaningham property up North Main Street. Luria will face off against incumbent Scott Taylor in the Nov. 6 election.

Luria was joined by State Sen. Lynwood Lewis who was an early supporter of hers and introduced her as “the perfect candidate for our time.” Lewis remarked that her background as a Naval officer and now a small business owner in Virginia Beach gives her a broad appeal to many voters and unique qualities that will make her very effective as the representative of the Eastern Shore. Luria got a good round of applause when she said our U.S. Senator, Tim Kaine, who is running for re-election, told her they make a good team. Just remember, Kaine and Elaine!

Luria graduated from the Naval Academy and began a 20-year Navy career that took her to command positions as a surface warfare officer and nuclear engineer deploying six times on destroyers, cruisers and aircraft carriers, at one point with 400 sailors under her direct command. In 2017, she retired and started a small family business, Mermaid Factory, which has created jobs and infused tax money into her community.

Luria detailed her past military experience, and most importantly, the issues she sees as not just important to her, but to the residents of the Eastern Shore. These include availability of health care, protecting Social Security and Medicare which are threatened by the new increases in the national debt, and environmental issues including sea level rise that can jeopardize the safety and economy of many communities on the Shore and impact the naval base in Norfolk, which has a huge financial impact on the local communities that surround it. She is very opposed to off-shore drilling for the ecological and tourism impacts that could hurt certainly the Eastern Shore and could also impact the training exercises of our naval fleet.

Luria had a busy Sunday with several other meet and greets, but made a point to stay and have in-person conversations with so many of the attendees. There was agreement all round that she was a great candidate and would be a great asset to the Eastern Shore as the 2nd District’s Congresswoman. If Luria wins, she would be only the second woman elected to that office since 1789.

It’s Hard To Be a Republican

Dear Editor:

It’s hard to be a Republican these days. Peter Wehner, who served in the Reagan and both Bush administrations, recently wrote: “A party that once spoke with urgency and apparent conviction about the importance of ethical leadership — fidelity, honesty, honor, decency, good manners, setting a good example — has hitched its wagon to the most thoroughly and comprehensively corrupt individual who has ever been elected president.”

The abandonment of ethics extends deep in the party. Paid staffers of our congressman, Scott Taylor, gathered signatures to place Shaun Brown, who was a Democrat in the last election, on the ballot this November. Why? With Brown on the ballot, fewer votes would go to Elaine Luria, the Democrat who’s mounting a very serious challenge.

Not only did Taylor pay to get Brown on the ballot, the folks he hired cheated. Dozens of the signatures they gathered are apparently forged. A Virginian-Pilot investigation reached 115 of the “signers” and found 51 (44 percent) of the signatures were forged. Four of the “signers” were dead at the time they “signed.”

The Roanoke commonwealth’s attorney has been appointed special prosecutor to investigate the apparent fraud, and it’s likely that Brown will not appear on the ballot. Without the fraudulent signatures, the petition to place her there will be invalid.

At the State level, Republican Corey Stewart’s campaign Photoshopped a photograph to paint Senator Tim Kaine as a violent radical. The photo, which Stewart admits is faked, shows Kaine standing with a gun-toting group of Central American commandos, captioned “working in Honduras to promote his radical socialist ideology.” The photo and caption are complete lies: the commandos are right-wing Nicaraguan troops, and Kaine never worked in Nicaragua.

What did Kaine actually do in Honduras? In 1974, a high school sophomore, he delivered donations to a Jesuit mission in the town of El Progreso. In 1980 he returned to El Progreso, taking a year off from his Harvard studies to teach welding, a trade he learned from his father. I guess Corey Stewart thinks welding is a radical socialist ideology.

And Trump thinks Mexico will pay for that wall.
